Good Christian Reader,

[Page][Page]

K

nowledge (how little soever esteemed in this our age) is the glory of a man, Divine knowledge of a Christian; that of the Word of God, of Sacred Scriptures, is most sublime, and which makes a Christian happy to Salvation.

Now, although humane learning be highly to be countenanced and advanced, as directing and furthering us for a right understanding of Holy Scriptures, wherein all kinds of learning, even through all Tongues, Arts and Sciences, are more or lesse in every book or chapter thereof, to be made use of: as being the [...], that knowledge necessarily required before we can give any certaine interpretation of any text: Yet the one is of far greater transcendency than the other; the brick and straw of Egypt, is in no case to be compared with the Gold and Silver vessels of the Temple. The rich houshold stuffe that was borrowed thence, and placed in the Tabernacle, was but of small estimation, in respect of the riches and glory of Salomons house: So likewise, the instructions, Divines borrow from the Heathen and humane Learning, are found light in the ballance, while compared with the abundance and high value of those golden precepts, contained in sacred Scriptures. This is the knowledge, which fully understood, and conscionably practised, is, or should be, the maine and principall end of every true Christians endeavours. For the written Word of God, (I meane not the Shell or out-side of a bare literall sense, (there is more in it) but the inside and kernell of a true spirituall meaning, therein comprised) is a masse of infinite delights, affording extraordinary sweetnesse to every soule, curing the griefes of heart, clearing a breast full of doubts and perplexities. Here the ignorant may be instructed, the wanderer reduced, the disordered reformed, the cold or Laodiccانlike Christian inflamed, and by [Page] Gods grace farther illuminated. 'Tis as it were, an earnest-peny for our future happinesse, snatching us from the gates of death and hell, and leading us to a full eternity.

Which things premised, being fully weighed and examined, how ought our heads and hearts be employed: these through our honest intentions, and devout affections; the former by our studious endeavours, wholesome directions and pious consultations, with all the care and diligence imaginable, (not sparing any cost or charges,) when we may arrive in the end, by such meanes, to [...] see the face of God with joy?

Whereupon finding the Authour of this elaborate worke, fully fraught with such serious thoughts, such pious meditations, as tend wholly to the glory of God, and the Readers good; the benefit whereof we ought to ascribe to the Translator, who hath opened the casket, wherein the jewell lay; unlockt the treasury, that contained so much riches, wherein the meaning of the Holy Scripture, is so well [...]ly interpreted, by comparing one place with another, and that with as much brevity as may be on each parcell of Scripture, which by the Author is unfolded, that there is an excellency ascribed to these Annotations, by every solid judgement: For they are not so large in the volume, as they are briefe in the phrase and diction: every other word almost a distinct observation, and yet as full of devotion, as they are pithy in expression: So much learning in them, and yet so much modesty, without the least ostentation, or arrogating any thing to himself, (where the Scripture is not expresse) that—miranda, credenda putes—what you cannot but admire, you will also believe.

These considerations would inflame any heart with a religious zeale of his brethrens good; and for this purpose, the Translator hath spent much oyle, used much diligence to make it speake English, for the benefit of his Countreymen. Neither can a man want particular grounds and reasons, as so many tyes and engagements for his utmost performances in such a worke. Especially considering that in these last and perillous times, Heresies on the one side are sprung up, Schismes and Factions on the other, and that there is a kind of Atheisme, irreligion and prophanesse in most: Yet all and each of these are mask't and shrowded under the name of Christianity. The last of these, do not only tyrannize, and usurp authority over mens Consciences; but men yeeld their members, servants to unrighteousnesse; as to a just and lawfull King, to whom obedience is due. All in their severall wayes cast mists, cloud the serenity and cleerenesse of the Scriptures: But still [Page] the irreligious & prophan are not so much to be shunned, as [...]dogmatically and opinatively erroneus; but (as they thwart evident Textes of Scripture, by the debauchednesse of their lives and foulnesse of their conversations, they do not only corrupt their judgements, but defile and foule their soules.

*Devirginant,

Now Paraphrases, Glosses, Annotations and the like, are a great helpe, an especiall outward meanes, for the conversion and reformation of such prophane and impious, by explaining and enlarging, by laying to the conscience, such texts of Scripture as teach what is to be done, what not, by unfolding and giving a just extent, to the cleerest precepts and instructions of Holy Writ, in matters appertaining unto practise; whereby God [...] such men as the Author of this worke, brings this end about to leave men altogether without excuse, in things absolutely necessary to salvation.

Cic. in Verrem▪*

Amongst this sort of men, the corrupt, perverse obstinacy of the the will, infatuates their nobler faculty the understanding; so that it is not, their not understanding, but their not assenting unto, and being conformable to the Word of God, even in what they understand, that casts them head-long to perdition. The will, that untoward faculty, turnes guide, and the eye of the understanding will not perceive, insomuch that these men encroach upon the office of God, to whom judgement belongs, for they blind their own eyes, harden their own hearts, that they will neither see with their eyes, nor understand with their hearts and be converted.

These are a sort of people commonly, notoriously, known to every Christian, to each beholder, as continually treading those paths which lead unto destruction.

But the grand enemies to all solid interpretations of texts of Scripture are Heretiques and Schismaticques, [...]. who ensnare, who with faigned words make merchandise of mens soules, and lead men captive from a true profession of Christianity into a way of error and misbeliefe. Now inter [...], & factionum portenta magis quam nomina, in that there are more monsters in Religion than men; more Heresies and Factions, than names to be ascribed, and that they all assume a kind of infallibility, writing truth over error and falshood, as some Montebankes have done, gilding poysons, writing conserves over Rats-bane, and Rose-water over Mercury: So they All, in their severall wayes, triumph before the victory. Like unto Agesilaus the King, who the better to encourage his souldiers to fight, had engraven on the palme of his hand the word Victory, which when the sacrifice was opened (as the manner of the Heathens was to offer sacrifice before they went to battel) He imprinted secretly with the palme of his [Page] hand upon the heart of the sacrifice, this word, Victory; which being performed, he shewed unto his Captains and Souldiers: whereupon was supposed by all, that, That God which had written Victory, would also give Victory.

*Plutarch. and cited by Bishop Jewel in his Preface again [...]t
Harding.*

I need not take paines to follow the Allusion, tis plaine and easie. But by this meanes those Founders of Heresies and Factions, while by false and groundlesse interpretations of Scripture, they seeme to gaine Proselytes to themselves, they make them seven times more the children of the Devill than before; oftentimes <sup>a</sup> wresting Scripture to their own destruction: So that there is no truth like their own glosse, and no presumption like their own invention.

Hence it comes to passe, that the great paines of learned Divines, are not made use of, every man following his own Fanatique and private humor; whereupon no better meanes can be used to lop off the Heads of such Monsters, than by using the Sword of the Spirit, the Word of God, in such a manner as I find here interpreted by this acute and grave Author; that every man may not follow his own opinion, how groundlesse or unlearned soever; whereby, such men make more doubts than the Orthodox can presently solve: nay, too often, more than are necessary; and to stop a prophanenesse, they'le raise a blasphemy; striving to give satisfaction to a frivolous Quaere; open a gap to an Heresie. By this meanes, we give encouragement to our Adversaries, to thinke better of their errours, than of our own known truths. Thus the weakenesse of many mens arguing, seemes to adde some kind of lustre even to the foulnesse of their cause.

Such dangerous delusions are no wayes better prevented, than by hearkening to learned, judicious and pious Divines, who use all the lawfull, just and ordinary meanes, (setting aside all private Interpreta- tions of private spirits, and extraordinary Divine Revelations) for a true and right understanding of Holy writ. of private interpretation.

For thy Farther instruction in this particular work (good Christian Reader) these Annotations were first written in Italian by a Reverend Protestant Divine, (now living in the Church of Geneva. The worke is highly valued amongst the Italians, & no less amongst our own men, who understand the language; for Divinity, hath been the Authors whole profession, for almost these 50 yeares. His first Bible that he printed with Notes on it: was 36 yeares since, when he had both finished and printed those Notes, he was but 30 years of age: Since which time his book hath been twice or thrice reprinted▪ every impression hath carried along with it some additions, some especial Observations. The book at first was generally well approved of. If then in his [Page] young years he was of so cleare a judgement, so accurate in searching out the profound mysteries of Holy Writ, how can any man but be induced to conceive him in these his riper yeares; (considering His excellent naturall parts, his holy life and conversation, and his continued indefatigable paines in the studies of Divinity) a rare man, a very fit and well prepared Divine for so great and laborious a taske.

For the confirmation of the goodnesse of these his Notes, Res ipsa loquatur; the Notes themselves will speake it. But yet the Author wants not the approbation of very learned and able Divines.

Learned Vedelius hath afforded a large Encomium: tis thus, In giving answer to a certain objection, made against the Resurrection, inferred upon our Saviours words, Matth. 22. 32. God is not the God of the dead but of the living, there he first rejects the common opinion, which is by way of responsal; then that of M. Calvin, and affirms that to be most satisfactory, which he hath from Beza, and our Author here▪ He but barely names the former, but for the latter goes on thus, *Planius autem & distinctius, Cl [...]*vir Joh: Diodati in aureis suis Annotationibus, quas versioni suae Italicae (Operi nunquam satis laudando) Bibliorum annexuit: That is, That most excellent man Johannes Diodati, in those golden Annotations of his, which he hath annexed to his own Italian Translation of the Bibles, (a worke indeed never sufficiently to be commended) hath given a most full and perfect answer; and that more plainely and distinctly than the rest: And when he hath alledged the Authors words, he admires him in the solidity and soundnesse of his opinion, making Christs words directly to prove the Resurrection.

*Rationale
Theologi
[...]um l. 2.
c. 6*

The Attestations of many of our own Divines, I thought to have annexed to this Preface; but the Author being so well approved of; I am unwilling to burden the Book. But above all, the testimony of a most Reverend and famous Prelate, now living in our Church, is very materiall, and as large a commendation to the Work as can be given: tis thus, Directing some young Schollers in the study of Divinity, this particular exhortation amongst others hath proceeded from him; That they would study the Italian tongue, assigning no other reason, but this for their endeavours: The extraordinary great benefit, Divines might reape, from these learned Annotations of Mr. Deodati.

Moreover, who ever desires the knowledge of the Italian tongue, by comparing these English Notes with the Originall Copy in the Italian; I dare boldly affirme he may attaine, in a short time, to a perfection in it. For they will serve in stead of a Dictionary, especially by the helpe of a Concordance for the more easie finding out of every [Page] word, likewise may an Italian-borne quickly attaine our tongue, who never before spake English; these being the first in this manner printed in our language that ever came forth, and contrived wholly for all those, who intend both to read and practise. Neither is it a small benefit accrues to the Reader, in that the Authour, both in his Translation and Notes, hath not gone to the broken Cisternes, but to the Fountaines themselves; His whole recourse hath been to the Originalls, the Hebrew and the Greeke, and for better satisfaction, sometimes to the Syriake; having given a learned and punctuall signification for every word, and in his Annotations, made a full and faithfull interpretation of the same.

That the Booke shall not arise to too great a Volume and price: whereby, many (the Notes in themselves being so large) might have beene deterred from buying of it, and so consequently, they and their Families, have been deprived of the great benefits therein contained: Here is no more of the Bible printed, than what is commented upon: the words of the Text are printed in a different letter from the Notes, and severed in manner of a Parenthesis, thus—] that the Reader may the better know them.

Before every Book also, here are full and pithy Arguments, opening the scope thereof, and also a generall Argument upon the Apocrypha, and likewise one before every Book thereof (no Notes indeed are by the Author written upon these latter) but by this meanes he sheweth the generall received opinion of the Church, throughout all ages concerning these Bookes; and his owne judgement thereon, which I conceive, in these times will be very satisfactory to All. In the reading of these Annotations, in no case sleightly passe over those places of Scripture, which are here cited by the Author, by way of prooffe: For by thus doing (with Gods blessing) such comfort may be reaped by a right understanding, and knowledge of Scripture, that thou wilt blesse God for the Author of this worke.

The Translator hath spent neere two yeares labour and paines in this work, and hath proved himselfe an able man in the Italian tongue, and faithfull in the Translation, and yet with modesty confessed his disability in following the Gracefull eloquence and beauty of the Authors phrase and stile, but if the Reader receive any benefit thereby, and God the glory; both the Author and himselfe, have their ends, their intentions.

Now stand and admire our carefull mother the Church of England, and then, in a just relation, practise thy [Page] filiall obedience. She doth not deale with her children, as the Church of Rome with hers, by withholding any part or parcell of sacred Scripture, from any member thereof, whereby ignorance too often becomes the mother of their devotion. Now ours is the true mother Solomon mentions, who neither stifles them in the womb, nor denyes them the sincere milke of the word, while the children hang upon her breasts: but with the milk of the Word affords them the strong meat also, together with the best helps the learned can afford by way of interpretation. So that we have now no lisping Ephraimites amongst us, every man may or can pronounce Schibboleth: The dew of Heaven lies not onely upon Gedeons fleece, upon some particular persons, 'tis dispersed the Kingdome over. Every man may take Saint Augustines Counsell, Tolle lege, tolle lege, take and read. The Jew cannot say Lognazim, Ye are barbarous. Every man amongst us may be a Rabbi, learned in the Lawes, conversant in the Scriptures, and speaking the language of Canaan. Here is nothing with-held, God hath revealed for the benefit of the meanest. Away then with the seducing Romanists: Let us be obedient to our Mother, the Church of England, while she bespeaks us in the Bride-grooms Language: Let the dead burie the dead, come thou and follow me.

Yet by way of Caution, I cannot but insert thus much for our selves, that although we enjoy a great blessing, in hearing God speak to us in our owne tongue, and for the better understanding of him, and enjoy learned Annotations of most famous Divines, to instruct the meanest capacity: yet that Lay-men will not presume to be invested with Aarons Ephod, although they may be endowed with Aarons knowledge, that the Urim and Thummim affixed to his breast, those lights and perfections, whereby Divines are able to make knowne the will of God, as the High Priest, under the Law did, by the colour of those stones) should not bee assumed by every Common man, without a due and a lawfull calling, that Divinity may not be unravelled at the Loom, the Clew of Predestination wound up in every shop and private Conventicle. Let no man thus far presume, unlesse called of GOD; Let it bee both by an outward and inward calling. For this bold intrusion is contrary to Gods command, the practise pernicious, the effect dangerous: to the first such men should be obedient, the second, they should religiously avoyd; the third, they should with terrour foresee; otherwise they may too late repent; as may evidently be perceived, by the examples of Uzzah, Oziah, King Saul, and the sonnes of Sceva.

19. 14

Above all remember this, that as [Page] Damaratus of Corinth, advised a great King, before he would take off the dissentions among the Gre-rians, he would compose his owne domestique broyles (for [...] that time his Queen and his son and heire were at deadly Feud with him.) So likewise doe I advise every man who intends to read this booke, before he adventures by these and the like helpes, to beat downe Hercsies and Factions, to encounter with such adversaries; first, to amend his owne life, to settle and compose the differences, and distractions at home, residing in his owne conscience, within himselfe.

In fine, here are choyse Meditations, more to be valued than refined gold. Aure [...] mentis verba bracteata: and the choysest subject the world over afforded, being Jesus Christ and him crucified, who is the Way, the Truth, and the Life: The Way by whom we walke unto God: the Truth by whom wee attaine unto him; who is All Truth: The life in whom we live for ever: The Way in his exampls; the truth in his promises, and life in his rewards.

Bernard.

Good God, grant to every Reader readinesse of will to meditate on this word, wisdom to understand it, grace to season this knowledge, and piety to practise it, that a spotlesse innocency may be this Kingdomes glory, a just authority to enforce this innocency, the Churches priviledge, and loyalty to the same, the peoples safeguard. To the obstinate and refractory give a feeling heart, and a tender conscience, strengthen the weak one, and confirme the strong, informe some, reforme others, conforme all to thy Divine Will, giving Grace and Peace, through Iesus Christ our Lord and Saviour.

AMEN.

THE FIRST BOOK OF MOSES, called Genesis.

[Page]

THE ARGUMENT.

M OSSES who was the first Divine Writer, described and set down the beginnings of the world, and Church, in this book: which therefore by the graecians was called Genesis, that is birth, or beginning. As for that of the world, though questionlesse it was revealed to Adam, and [...]o passed over to his posterity, by teachings and traditions from Father to Sonne; yet questionlesse Moses had thereof a new, full, and most certaine knowledge by the inspiration of the holy Ghost: which likewise guided him, in the histori all relation of the beginning and continuance of the Church: to hinder the forgetfulnesse, ignorame, and falsification of those things, whe [...]ein are contained the grounds of her being, and the rules, and drections of her continuance, in all ages. He declarcth therefore, how the world was by God created of nothing, and by him was distinguished into its parts, and by him appointed to his uses, adorned, enriched, and filled with creatures, very great in number, and variety in a most admirable order, And all this for man, who was especially created for the service and glory of God, according to his image, and likenesse in innocency, wisdom, and justice: and by him established as his deputy on earth for the gouvernement of his creatures, joynd with a holy and free use of them, with the enjoyment of a most happy, contented, equall, and immortall life; after the course of which, he should have been without old age, paines, sicknesses, drooping, or death, transported into the celestiall and eternall. And all this if he persevered in his obedience to God, whereof he had asufficient grant in the originall justice, wherein he was created, if he would have practised it; But be having transgressed the commandement of triall, which had been given him, is fallen into death and condemnation, and hath lost his spirituall gifts totally and a great part of his naturall ones, and hath been deprived of the lawfull right he had over Gods creatures, and dispossessed of the quiet, and sweet possession of them, and hath lost the Sacraments of life and happinesse; which were the inhabiting of earthly Paradice, and the free use of the fruit, which grew upon the tree of life. Again [...] Moses declareth Gods [Page] infinite mercy, in restoring man into a new state of grace and hope of life, by the promise of a Saviour: which promise, with all its signes, stamps, and dependencies of sacrifices, and other Religious acts, being made unto Adam, did notwithstanding not indifferently belong to all his progenie; as sin, and the sentence of condemnation was generally passed against them all: but it was Gods pleasure to appropriate it only to part of his race. So that after the said promise, there came two branches from Adam, the one by Cain, and the other by Abel, and afterwards by Seth. The first of the sonnes of men, accursed, abandoned in his sin and condemnation, having the Divell for his head: The other of the sons of God, blessed, holy, adopted by the heavenly Father, reconciled unto him through his sonne, and sanctified by his spirit: Whose chief head is, and hath alwayes been Christ Iesus, even at that time promised, and embraced through a lively Faith by all believers. These two bodies have even from the beginning continued in enmitie, trained up in much cruelty and fiercenesse of the evill, against the good one, the first alwayes strengthening himself, and increasing in power and number, and exceeding in wickednesse, and unrighteousnesse: The second contrary wise being oppressed by the other, and to its greater losse corrupted by his enticements, and conversation, whereby it hath decayed, and even quite degenerated. Which provoked Gods Iustice to drown the first world by an universall deluge; which being spared only for Gods elect, whose number was so decreased, that, as it appeareth, it was included in Noahs Family, which God only saved out of the universall destruction; not so much to preserve mankind, or beasts and plants, as for the preservation of the seed of his Children: But soone after the deluge, there sprung out of Noahs race, againe two generations, with the same contrarieties as the former. For the accursed one quickly grew mighty and powerfull in the world, by setting up great, and tyrannicall empires; and was corrupted by idolatries, pride, violences, and other vices. So that amongst all those Nations, which Noahs posterity was divided into, the knowledge and pure service of God, was almost utterly extinguished: Untill it pleased God to cause the holy stock to sprout out againe in Abraham, severed from the rest of the world by an especiall calling, new promises of grace, and a most peculiar covenant, sealed with the Sacrament of Circumcision, a token of the regeneration of Gods Children in the spirit, and of their separation from the world. This blessing was continued in Isaac, though somewhat interrupted in its beginnings, by the buds of the accursed race, which sprouted out of the Godly one, namely Ismael and Esau. But the blessed one began to take body, and being in [...] Jacob and his numerous famil [...], under the new name of Israel; none of his Children being rejectéd, as some of the others were; Yet was the Church his posterity alwayes a wanderer, and a stranger in the world: full of defects, and infirmities within; and many oppositions, and molestations without, having none of her side, but only her God, who pardoning and correcting its sius, hath continually comforted it, guided it, provided for it, defended it, and increased it: giving it a promise also of a firm [...], and happy dwelling in the World, in the Land of Canaan; And from time to time visiting it, by visible apparitions of the sonne of God, its head; in proper person, under shape of an Angell: under whose conduct, it was at last all brought into Aegypt, where it was kept, untill the death of Ioseph, with which this book endeth.

CHAP. I. VERS. 1.

I N the beginning] God giving the world its first being, began with the creation of the two generall parts of it, and then went to the particulars. [The Heaven] that is the highest and aethereall part; under which it is very likely the Angels are comprehended, Gen. 2. 1. [The Earth] The lower and elementall part of the Universe, here indifferently called, earth, waters, and abysses, because it was a consused masse of all the Elements.

V. 2. Without forme] Without any particular, or distinct creature; without order, forme, or ornament. The Spirit] that is the 3d person of the most holy Trinity, immediatly and through its proper operation: which is to preserve, and maintaine all things in their being, which they have received by the supream will of the Father, and the productive action of the Son: see Psal 104. 2. 29. 30. Moved] the Hebrew terme signifieth, the moving or beating of the wings, which a bird useth over her young ones, to signifie the action of the holy Ghost, in maintaining and cherishing of that shapelesse masse, to prepare it for the subsequent productions.

V. 3. Let there be] It is likely that the light was at first imprinted in some part of the heaven, whose turning made the first three dayes, and the fourth it was restrained into the body of the Sun, or of all the other Stars: but in a different degree.

V. 4. God saw] he liked, and approved of his work, and took delight in it, to preserve it, Divided] that is, ordained the heaven to turne continually about: and that when the Hemisphere, wherein the light was imprinted, was above the earth, it should then be day: and when it was under the earth, it should be night, which was the beginning of the vicissitude or succession of day and night.

V. 5. God called] God gives names to these great creatures, which he reserved under his own government; Gen. 1. v. 8. 10. and 5. 2. And lets Adam give names unto them, which he set under him; Gen, 2. v. 19. 23. Evening] that is night, at which the Jews begin their artificiall days. The meaning is, that in this first turning of the heaven, none but the afore-named things were created.

V. 6. A Firmament in the midst] that is the aire, a thin and clear body, which being at first confused in the masse of the Elements, is now severed, and set in its proper situation. From the waters] The Scripture placeth waters in the heavens. Psal. 104. v. 3. and 148. v. 4. yet neither declareth the nature, nor the use of them: According to some, they are the very substance of the heavens; yet not fluent or running, impure, nor corruptible, as the elementall: Whatsoever they are, it is not said that they were taken out of this lower masse. The waters under, do here also signifie the water, and the earth mixed together in a kind of mirie stuff.

V. 8. Heaven] a name common in the Scripture to the aire; to the place of the Stars, and the abode of glory.

V. 9. Into one place] that is, in the great deep under the earth Gen. 7. 11. which hath divets issues, or openings above, see Psa. 24. 2.

V. 11. Grasse] it is that Kind of grasse, which groweth of it self, without seed, or manuring, and is food for beasts.

V. 14. Lights] great celestiall round bodies, into which God reduced the light: Now together with these bodies, were their motions also established, different amongst themselves, and also from the motion of heaven. Signes] namely of naturall effects and chances, as of heate, cold, raine, faire weather &c. signes of the occasions and seasons of many humane actions: also fore-bodings of diverse extraordinary chances.

V. 16. Great] though indeed the Moon be no bigger than any other Star: but this is spoken in regard of our sight, to which the Moon is neerest, and also by reason of her more sensible operation: T [...] rule] not only by the light, but also by the greater influence and operation. Joh. 38. 33.

V. 20. Moving] a common name to all living creatures, as well of the water, as of the earth, which traile along, creep, or glide. In this place are meant the water ones, and v. 24. the Land ones.

V. 26. Let us make] This manner of consultation, of the Father with the Son, who is his eternall wisdom, and with his spirit (whereof you may see other examples. [Page] Gen. 3. 22. & 11. 7. Isa. 6. 8.) here used only in the creation of man, seemeth to shew his excellency above other creatures. Man] that is, the generation of men, in their first stock, and beginning: Image] set downe in the spirituall, immateriall, immortall qualities of his soule; in the naturall faculties of it, understanding, memory, reason and will; in the supernaturall gifts of wisdom, justice and holinesse: in the dominion over other creatures: all stamps set on man out of the everlasting modell of Gods perfections. Dominion] as well for the governing of them, as for the makin, use and employing of them.

V. 27. Male] This is here spoken by way of anticipation, to gather together the creation of man-kinde, in its two sexes, because that woman was made afterward. Gen. 2. 18.

V. 29. Herbe] That is agreeable with your nature; and so likewise of trees: In this place there is nothing said of the use of the flesh of beasts, as Gen. 9. 3. though it is likely that God did then grant it.

V. 30. Herbe] Which is the same as V. 11.

CHAP. II. VERSE 1.

OF them] Namely of the heavens, to which this word of hosts is often attributed to give an inkling of the starres and the Angels, as well in respect of their order, as of their services under Gods command.

V. 2. He rested] He ceased to shew his vertue and power in creating of new kindes of Creatures, yet ceased not in working of their preservation, sustenance, and increase, by order of nature, and in guiding them with his providence. Joh. 5. 17.

V. 3. Blessed] That is, granted unto it this sacred prerogative of being free from bodily Labours; to be imployed by men, in exercises of piety; and the publike service of God. Because] That is to say, that he would have a perpetuall remembrance to remaine of this his cessation: to teach man from time to time to with-draw himselfe from the cares of this life, to apply himselfe in freedom and tranquillity, to the meditations and actions of the spirituall life; and by this meanes to dispose himself to the perfect repose of the eternall imitating God, who had ended the worke of Creation on the seventh day: in which he did, (as it were) retire himself within himselfe; to enjoy his owne blessednesse. And made] This seems to be added, to shew; that as by this rest God would not proceed in infinitum, increa [...]ing, so would he not leave any thing imperfect which he had intended to make.

V. 5. For] The meaning is, that the first plants were imm [...]iately brought forth by God; the order of nature, being as yet not established, and there being yet no raine, nor labour of man, under which two meanes (the one naturall, and the other artificiall) are comprehended all other meanes of the earths yi [...]lding.

V. 6. But there] After the first creation of plants, God did appoynt raine, engendred by vapours from below, and created man to manure the earth, and finally did establish the order of nature, for the preservation, and continuance of the kindes of them.

V. 7. Of the ground] mingled with the other Elements; yet in such sort, that the earthly part did predominate.

Breathed] it seemeth it was some created sensible and externall breath: as Ioh. 20. 22. for a signe of the vertue proceeding immediately from God, to create the soule of man, without taking it cut of any other matter, as hee had done the body. See Num. 16. 22. Io [...] 27. 3. Zach. 12. 1. Heb. 12. 9. into his nostrills] to shew the means ordayned by God to preserve the union of the body and the soule, which is continuall breathing. Soule] That is a living soule, moving and operating, whereas before the body was but a dead immooveable masse.

V. 8. Planted] Hee caused a certaine parcell of ground, to bring forth plants, and trees most exquisite, and usefull for man: and enriched that place with more fruitfulnessse, and beau [...]ie than any other part of the earth. A garden] called by the Hebrewes and Greeks. Paradice] a figure of the heavenly one. See Gen. 13. 10. Ezek. 28. 13. in Eden]

A Countrey of Mes [...]potamia, which was afterwards called Eden; that is to say, a place of pleasures, for its situation, and most happy qualities. See 2 King. 19. 12. Ezek. 27. 23. Amos 1. 5. Eastward] in respect of those parts where Moses was when he wrote these things.

V. 9. The Tree of Life] A certaine Tree in whose fruit God had put this vertue, that it should keep mans body in a perpetuall, and equall state of health, life, and strength; free f [...]om diseases, decaying, and old age. And besides he had set it there for a Sacrament, of the subsistence and spirituall life of man, in the grace and communion of the Lord, so long as he should persevere in Justice, and Obedience. And to it is correspondent Jesus Christ, in the heavenly Paradiſe. Rev. 2. 7. and 22. 2. Of knowledge] Another Tree by which GOD would make prooffe of mans obedience or rebellion. By which man might also know by experience, his true happinesse, if he persisted in innocency; or his unhappinesse, if he disobeyed this command [...]ment of tryall, joynd to the perf [...] law of Justice, which God had imprinted in [...]s soule.

V. 10. A river] It seemes that it cught to bee [Page] understood of the Channell of two Rivers, Euphrates and Tigris joynd together, which by the confluence of these two Rivers made a great circuit, within which on the East side was the Paradiſe, and so the word, going out, doth not signifie the head or birth of those Rivers, but the extent of their course, out of the limits of Paradiſe, above the which those two rivers were distinct like two heads, and below it two more, into which this great channell did branch it selfe.

V. 11. Pison] It seemeth to be Pasis, or Pas [...] tigris, as the ancients called it, which did [...]un through plaine, and low countries: whereupon, according to the signification of the Hebrew name, it was more like a pond than a river. Havilah] That Countrey which was afterward inhabi [...]ed, by the posterity of Havila, of the Generation of S [...]m, Gen. 10. 29. not the other which was inhabited by another H [...] vila, which descended from Cam, Gen. 10. 7. which is comprehended under the name Cus, or Arabia, spoken of hereafter, and was on the west side of this Channell, See Gen. 25. 18.

V. 12. Bd [...] ll [...] um] the Ital.] Pearles] The Hebrew word is so understood by the most learned, though others doe take it for Bdellium, which is a most precious Gum, which thickens into very cleare drops, like pearles. Num. 11. 7.

V. 13. Gihen] The name of the other branch, which runne along the high Countrey, and swiftly, which is signified by the property of the name of Ethiopia, the Ital. of Cus] one part of Arabia, which bordereth upon Mesopotamia.

V. 14. Hiddekel] which is the river Tigris, Dan. 10. 4. over against] according to the Italian, the English hath it Towards the East] of Assyria.

V. 15. Keep it] To hinder and keep the beasts from spoyling of it or hurting it, through his Majesticall and awfull presence.

V. 17. Shall surely dye] That is, thou shalt be guilty of death, and thy body shall from that very houre become mortall, subject to infinite number of chances, diseases, languishments, and old age, continually decaying unto its last destruction: and as for thy soule, thou shalt be deprived of my grace, and shalt in thy conscience feele my wrath and curse, to the finall condemnation of eternall death, and tota [...] separation, from me, from my life, and from my glory.

V. 18. Sayd] It seems that this happened before Adam was lodged in the Garden. Good] nor agreeing with my decree, to multiply man-kind through him by meanes of matrimony; nor pleasing or commodious for him; nor becomming the dominion which I have given him over beasts, which are all coupled; nor fitting for my service, which ordinari [...]y is best performed in holy society, and by vertue of it; nor according to the pleasure and delight, I take in communion.

V. 19. Unto Adam] This name was given the first man by God himselfe, Gen. 5. 2. and signifieth of earth, or earthly. 1 Cor. 15. 47. And although all other earthly creatures were extracted out of the earth, yet was this name appropriate unto man; because that he only was apt to be instructed, and humbled by his name. Eccl. 6. 10. To see] being willing by this meanes to establish him so much the more in the dominion which he had granted him: a token or signe of which is to give and change his subjects names as he pleaseth.

V. 20. Gave] not onely according to his censure, but also with knowledge and reason, for some hidden or apparent property; which we may yet find in many Hebrew names. Meet] or correspondent, that is of the same kind, with distinction of Sex, as in other creatures: and by that meanes fitting to bee joyned in Matrimony.

V. 21. One of his] Eve was formed not out of the head; because the woman ought to be subject to the husband: nor the feet, because she must not be held as a slave, nor trampled upon: nor of the fore-part, because she must not withstand; nor of the hinder part, because she must not be despised, nor forsaken: But from the side, and from the middle of the body, to shew the moderation which the husband ought to use in his superiority, and the faithfull society they owe to one another.

V. 22. Brought her] as a mediator, to cause her voluntarily to espouse her selfe to Adam; and to confirme and sanctifie that conjunction.

V. 23. This is now] That is to say, it being known to God and my self that amongst the other creatures, I could not have a fitting companion to live with; God hath now provided me one, of the same nature as my selfe, wih whom I may bee contracted in the most straight bonds of Matrimony. See. Ephes. 5. 30.

V. 24. Therefore] These doe seeme to be Moses his words, and not Adams. Leave] That is, shall become head of a n [...]w family; being severed from his fathers; and shall enter into a n [...]w society with his wife; to which duty the naturall duties towards father and mother must yield; not to be annihilated; but to be brought into an inferior degree. One Flesh] as one person, united in body, in soule, in covenant, and indissoluble community.

V. 25. And were not] Because that the soule being as yet in its originall purity, there did not appeare in the body, especially in the instruments of generation, any spot of sin, nor filthinesse of conc [...]piscence, nor discomposednesse of brutish motions, and thoughts: which are the true causes, and objects of s [...]ame: And not the body in its pure naturall nakednesse, which is a glorious example of Gods works which being also by Christ re-established in perfect holinesse, may at the happy Resurrection, [Page] appeare in glory, without any other ornament, or garment, but that of the image of God: see 2. Corinth. 5. 3. Rev. 3. 18.

CHAP. III. VERS. 1.

The Serpent] Moses in all this historie under corporeall and sensible things, doth comprehend the spirituall and invisible. And by the Serpent naturally crafty, and gliding: Gen. 49. 17. Psa. 58. 4. Math. 10. 16. is meant the Divell, most cunning in seducing. Ephes. 6. 12. Rev. 12. 9. who took this as an instrument, working and speaking through him, by Gods marvellous dispensation and providence. Yea hath] The Divell feigneth that he believeth God had wholly forbidden them the use of the fruits of the garden, to make way to talke with the woman; and to induce her to give care unto him.

V. 5. God doth know] he doth wrest into a wrong sence the name of that tree, as if it had power to conferre divine knowledge, and the understanding of every thing: accusing God of envie: and provoking the woman to pride, and curiosity.

V. 7. The eyes] that is, their conscience presently awaked, and made them see the good which they had lost, and the evill which they had purchased, according to the sence of the name of the tree: which appeared by the shame which they were touched with.

V. 8. In the coole] that is early in the morning, when a pleasant little wind useth to rise, in stead of which they heard the terrible signes of Gods presence, see Cant: 2. 15. Walking] it hath been thought by many, that the Son of God did appeare in his proper person, in all those actions, in a bodily shape, taken at times.

V. 12. Which thou] or the which thou hast given me.

V. 14. Because] the Divell, as sufficiently convinced, is not examined by God as Adam and Eve were. And also as having sinned through his own proper malice, and seduced man is absolutely accursed without any moderation, or hope of being restored, whereas the sentence against man, hath all circumstances contrary. Thou art cursed] this is pronounced against the Serpent in a corporall sence, and against the Devill in a spirituall. The Serpent is condemned as a common enemy to all creatures, that he shal no more move with a body and head erected, nor walk openly and securely, as he did before; nor enjoy the good fruits of the earth, but shall hide himself in holes & caves, and lick the dust, and filth. The Devill receiveth either his first condemnation, or the confirmation of it: to be banished from heaven, driven under the earth, and into hell. Luke 10. 18. Rev. 12. 9. deprived of all good, delight, and trust, loaden with confusion and despaire, and subject to have no other food, pastime, nor entertainment, but in filthy, and wicked things, and actions.

V. 15. I will put] that is to say, whereas thou by thine allurements hast drawn the woman into fellowship of sin; I will cause thee, O Serpent, to be an abomination to all mankind, especially to the female sex; and shalt by it be mortally persecuted: as thou on thy part shalt seek all wayes, & means to hurt him. And thou, O Devill, with all thy partie, in whom thou shalt have imprinted thy malice, shalt have a deadly and continuall war with my Church: which in its due time, shall by a Virgin, without work of man bring forth into the world, Christ, her head in this war; wherein the fight, and issue will be very unequall, for all thine endeavours shall not be able to reach Christ. Ioh. 14. 30. Rev. 12. 5. and those which thou shalt be suffered to use against his elect, which shall be his body, and the new progeny of my Church, whose bridegroom he shall become, Rev. 12. 17. shall not be mortall, nor able to take away from them the gift of the Spirit; but shall end with some prickings troublesome to the flesh, in things concerning this earthly life, or in wounding of the spirit of the new man, by the remainder of the old, which he shall draw along with him here on earth, see *Ioh. 13, 10. 2. Cor. 12. [...]*7. But as for thee, Christ of himself, and his elect through his Spirit, shall destroy all thy Kingdom, power, and works, by a compleat and everlasting victory. So that by the woman may be understood the Church, and the Virgin: and by her seed, Christ the head, and the faithfull, who are his mysticall body; as in prophecies we often finde diverse sences joyned, and put together one within another.

V. 16. Multiplie] The paines of travaile have indeed naturall causes; but before sin God would have eased the woman through grace, and supernaturall power, but after that, they have been increased by God, through his judgement. Now God leaving the first sentence of death in force, for which he had granted a remedy to the elect, through the Redeemer: he addeth thereunto the sufferings of this life, common to believers and unbelievers: but for a correction to the first, and a punishment to the latter. And within these paines, is comprehended the curse of the bringing forth of man, see upon 1. Tim. 2. 15. Shall be] that is to say, thou shalt moreover be especially punished, in so much that having abused the equall society, wherein I had placed thee with thy husband by enticing of him to sin; thou shalt be in great part degraded from it: and that sweet direction which he had of thee, shall be turned into domination, as over a subject much unequall in wisdom, capaciti [...] strength, and other gifts: And also seeing your will, are no more united in true and plaine goodnesse as they were before sin: there shall, in your commos manner of living, strifes arise amongst you, wherein [Page] thou shalt be faine to yeeld to thy husband in humility and silence; or by force and violence which peradventure he shall use, and shalt not be able to free thy self, from the power he hath over thee. In conclusion if he have obeyed thee in sinning, thou shalt be subject to him in punishment.

V. 17. Cursed] that is to say, it shall not have power to bring forth all sorts of needfull plants, of it self, or with small labour, but contrary wise it shall abound in noisome stocks. In sorrow] because that the pleasant and easy manuring, which was before sin, is changed into a toilesome labour, as well through the growing weak of mans body, as through the malignancy of the earth, and the disorder of nature.

V. 18. Herbe] that kind which God hath ordained for the use of man, Gen. 1. 29. and no more of the fruit of Paradice.

V. 19. For] not because that the terrestriall matter, or elementall composition of the body of man is the true, and immediate cause of death; but sin: Rom. 5. 12. and 6. 23. but to shew that the body being destroyed, resolveth it self into its first principles, of which the most eminent is the earth.

V. 20. Eve] that is; living, she through whom mankinde having been condemned to death, should also be preserved alive, by the meanes of a new off-spring.

V. 21. Make] in some divine manner, not set down. Now God who had left it to mans wit to provide for those things he wanted, by many inventions and a [...], would notwithstanding cloath himself with beasts skins; not only to shew him the use of them, and to give him the reason of it; but also to impose a necessitie upon him of covering his nakednesse: and to teach him, that it belongeth only to God, to cover sin with the clothing of righteousnesse, and the Redeemers satisfaction. [...].

V. 22. Behold] a bi [...]ter mock of mans boldnesse. Of us] see above, Gen. 1. 26. And now lest.] since that through sin he is fallen from the life of the soule, he hath no more part in the immortalitie of the body, nor the tree of life which is the meanes to it: and ought not to profane the Sacrament of eternall life, which no more belongeth to him, for the aforesaid reason; and it is fitting for him to seek his life, and the causes thereof in his Redeemer, who is therefore called the tree of life: Rev. 2. 7. and 22. 14.

V. 24. And he placed] as it were to watch. Cherubins] a name of Angels appearing in a bodily shape, and particularly in the shape of an ox▪ Ezek. 10. 14. according to the proper signification of the Hebrew word, though it do often extend it self to any other shape: And a] it was a corporall vision to affright Adam, that he might not come neere to the earthly Paradise: whereby is figured the wickeds exclusion out of the heavenly Paradise.

CHAP. IV. VERS. 1.

CAin] that is gotten or getting, from the Lord] by his favour and power.

V. 3. Brought] God even at that time had ordained this manner of service; in token that man oweth unto God a fee out of the goods he hath bestowed on him: and to figure and represent continually before ones eyes Christs sacrifice, the ground of all true Religion, and of all his actions.

V. 4. Of the firstlings] which questionlesse God had reserved to himself by expresse command, which was afterwards renewed by Moses, Exod. 13. 2. Num. 3. 13. even then intending, as it is very likely, to figure out the sacrifice of Christ the great first borne: Had respect] by some visible signe, as by fire sent from heaven: Lev. 9. 24. 1. Kings 18. 38. 1. Chron. 21. 26. he sh [...]wed that Abels person was acceptable unto him; because of his lively [...]aith in the promised Redeemer: and the sacrifice, because of his person: Heb. 11. 4. Now it seemeth that this sacrifice was an act for th [...]election, and consecration of one of the two brethren, whom God did chuse for his servant, and for head of the blessed race. See Gen 4. 7, 25. 26. And thereupon gr [...]w Cains anger, to see his younger brother preferred to this dignitie, which he thought to belong to him by right of eldership: see Num. 16. 7.

V. 5. Fell] through sorrow and confusion.

V. 7. Shalt thou not] that is to say, thou mayst hope to be restored into thy degree of eldership, if thou beest converted from thy wickednesse and malice: see [...]pon Gen 49. 3. others have it shall there not be acceptance? that is, shall not God accept of thy services? others, shall there be no [...] pardon? [Sin] that is as much as if he said: Besides the being deprived of this dignitie, the punishment of thy malice is also ready, and hangeth over thee. His] that is Abels, as if he said: My preferring him before thee in this belonging to my service, doth not take away the civill honour which he oweth thee, and doth willingly yeeld unto thee, as his elder; and thou being sensuall, and worldly shouldest content thy self therewith, see Gen. 3. 16.

V. 12. When] that is to say▪ I will withdraw that remnant of blessing from thy Land, which I have left unto it since sin; and will increase the curse; Under these corporall punishments are comprehended the spirituall, to be deprived of the grace of God, and to be banished out of his Church in this world, and from his glory in heaven. Strength] that is her fruit, which is the effect of that power and blessing, which I have given it: Joel. 2. 22. Vagabond] an outcast of my Church, disquieted in thy minde, tossed up and down in thy body.

V. 13. My] words of despaire in the acknowledgement of his extreame sin.

V. 14. From] Giving mee no place of secure rest. [Page]
From thy] that is from thy Church, where thy name is called upon, and where thou dost manifest thy selfe by spirituall Revelations, and corporall apparitions. It shall come to passe] Cain being all carnal, feareth nothing but bodily dangers.

V. 15. Therefore] since thou fearest this onely, I will deliver thee from it, to reserve thee for my judgment, and will not suffer thy solitary, and roming life, to give any one occasion to hurt thee, since the fact is knowne to me alone, I onely can and will be judge of it. Seven-sold] the Italian addeth, more than Cain] though he slew innocent Abel. The straightlier to repressse all man-slaughters, done without lawfull order and power, a marke] the forme of which is unknowne. Yet it is to be believed, that there was some impression of Gods Majesty added unto it.

V. 16. Nod] This same signifieth flight or exile, and was given this Land in remembrance of Cains curse.

V. 19. Took unto him] The abuse of Poligamy contrary to the first institution of marriage. Mal. 2. 15. is shewne by this, that it was brought in by the accursed Generation, out of the Church.

V. 20. Father] That is inventer of the art. As dwel] that have no firme habitation, but follow the pastures with their cattell, as now a dayes the Arabians and other people doe.

V. 21. Of all] That is to say of all Musicians.

V. 23. I have] Very darke words; neither is there any certainty in any thing that is written thereof. It may be they are onely a vaunt of a cruell and violent man, who thinketh himselfe to have liberty to commit murthers unpunished: and it seemeth hee was one of those Giants of the primitive world, that could kill a man with the least blow of his hand.

V. 25. Again] That is, many years after the death of Abel, Gen. 5. 3. God being willing thereby to try Adams patience, by his long expectation, between his children, in which, and by which the blessed Generation was to be continued, as hee did also afterwards with Abraham. eth] That is, put in dead Abels place in the Priest-hood, and to bee head of the holy Generation or branch of man-kind.

V. 26. Then] Cains progeny running more and more into wickednes, & vices, was parted by som expresse order of God, from Seths: into which the Church was restrayned: this bearing the glorious title, and possessing the right of the Children of God: and the other having no other name or quality, but of Children of men. Gen. 6. 2.

CHAP. V. VERS. 1.

THE Book] Of the blessed Generation, continued by S [...]th, from Adam, unto Noah.

V. 3. In his owne] As well in nature, as in the corruption of it, through sinne; and this seemeth to be expressed to shew that all the oddes the holy progeny had, proceeded from Gods pure grace, and not by vertue of their nature which was corrupt, as well as all others.

V. 22. Walked] That is, did wholly dedicate himselfe to Gods service, and to all exercises of pietie, without any distraction of worldly affaires, or digressing into any vices, by some expresse profession, and rule of living. See Gen. 6. 9. and 17. 1. and 24. 40. And begat] So it appeareth, that the use of matrimony in its purity, may stand with the strictest rule of holinesse.

V. 24. Was not] That is, God by miracle gathered up his soule into the glory of heaven, by a sweet separation from the body, without pass [...]ng through the horrors and pains of death: or hee might also transport him into heaven, both body and soule, cloathing him in a moment, with the qualities of glorified bodies, as hee did Elias. See Hebrewes 11. 5.

V. 29. Noah] That is to say, rest, or refreshing. This same] It is like that Noah's father had divine Revelation, that by him man-kind should bee saved from the generall deluge: which he mis-understanding, might believe that Noah should be the Saviour of the world, through whom Gods curse should bee annihilated.

V. 32. Begat] That is, began to beget.

CHAP. VI. VERS. 1.

VVEre] After the world was peopled, and that through the multitude of women, mens concupisences were excited: the faithfull themselves took leave to use poligamy, and mariyed themselves into strange kindreds, out of the blessed generation.

V. 2. The sonnes] That is, many of the sacred stock, and members of the Church. Gen. 4. 26. [...] f men] of the accursed progeny of Cain, that had no part in the spirituall regeneration, nor in the Sacraments thereof. Faire] More curious in the enticements of the slesh, and in the art of setting forth that gift of nature with painting, ornaments, and [...]alliances, &c. which was always ordinary among prophane people: And by this circumstance it is noted, that the end of their marriages was onely pleasure; and not a desire of holy company, and issue. which] without using any distinction for spirituall matters or religion; which common piety and reason did intimate was to be done: and had questionlesse beene either commanded, or inspired by God: and was afterwards renewed. Gen. 26. 35. Exod. 34. 16. 1 Cor. 7. 39. 2 Cor. 6. 14. From this mixture came the holy races corruption in Religion and [Page] manners: wherefore God determined to destroy the world by the floud: seeing the world subsisted but onely for the elect, and they being almost all failed, the cause of the worlds preservation seemed also to faile.

V. 3. Spirit] Which through the Prophets teachings. 1 Pet.

3. 19. and by internall motions reprov'd the world, and pressed it to repentance. For that] They are altogether incorrigible: the light of my regenerating spirit being quite extinguished in them, and all his power smothered up: whereby the externall action and benefit thereof, is in vaine imployed about them. By the word flesh opposed to the spirit, in Scripture is understood, the corrupt nature of man, and deprived of Gods life: the true subject of death and corruption: as the flesh without soule or spirit is. See Joh. 3. 6. Rom. 8. 5. His dayes] The time which I will give them to bethink themselves.

V. 4. Giants] Men of extraordinary stature and strength, of a fierce disposition, which violently usurped and tyrannically exercised domination over other men. And also] There did arise such tyrants in the Church of God after the mixture of the two generations.

V. 5. Imagination] Internall conceits and secret discourses, which are as it were the modell of all externall humane actions.

V. 6. It repented] There can bee no repentance in God, which is a sorrow for a fault committed, and an alteration of his mind, towards the selfe same subject. 1 Sam. 15. 11. but by this word taken from men, is meant an alienation of Gods will, and liking towards a thing, which of good was become evill.

V. 7. Beast] Because that being created for man, and given to him, God would punish him not onely in his person, but also in his goods and instruments.

V. 9. In his] That is, all the time that hee lived, before and after the deluge, which was a new age of the world. Or else amongst the men of his time. Walked] See above Gen. 5. 22.

V. 12. Flesh] That is man or person.

V. 13. Before me] I have already decreed it, and will shortly put it in execution, the thing is already present before me. God opposeth his certain knowledge, to the worlds conceit, concerning their happinesse and security; and the decree of his will, to naturall likely-hoods: With the earth] As much as concernes the beauty of it, the fruits and goods: but not the substance of it, nor yet the highest and strongest plants.

V. 14. An Arke] A great Vessell, on the inside like a great Chest, of a strangrell forme, with divers partitions and inclosures. The briefenesse of the narration leaves it doubtfull, whether this bodie was not contained within some other, more apt to swimme above the waters, and preserve this. Gopher] It seems to be a generall name for all trees that have Rozen in them: some hold it to be the Cedar, anciently, used in building of Ships. Ezek. 27. 5.

V. 16. A window] The Italian hath it, Give light] It is likely that this light was taken from the top of the Arke: by an opening which is called a Lanthorn, through which the ayre and light came in, and so was distributed into divers stories and rooms of the Arke, by windowes and other overtures. Whereof see Gen. 8. 6. Some translate it, make a window] Above] The roof raised in the middle a cubit, to cause the falling off, of the raine-water.

V. 18. Establish] I will take thee into my charge and protection, as by an expresse covenant, which I doe now make promise of, and will assuredly keep my word.

V. 19. Of all Flesh] Of every kind of creatures. Two] That is generally of all sorts of beasts; for of those that are cleane hee commandeth, Gen. 7. 2. That he should take seven couple of each.

V. 20. Shall come] By a secret instinct: and by Gods motion. As Gen. 2. 19.

CHAP. VII. VERS. 1.

Righteous] That is, righteousnesse of faith. Heb. 11. 7. which consists not in perfection of works, and merit, but in the acceptation of Gods grace, followed by true obedience and holinesse, produced by the spirit of grace, yet never without infirmities, defects, and combats in this life; and therefore alwayes joynd with humble confession, and recourse to the same grace.

V. 2. Clean] Not in regard of the use of cating, but for the use of sacrificing: for the Lord had set downe what kind of creatures he accepted of and required in sacrifices, which afterwards was renewed and set downe by Moses. Such were Oxen, Sheep, and Goats, Doves, Turtles, and Sparrowes. Lev. Chap. 1. Verse 3. 10. and verse 14. 4. and verse 22. 19. By sevens] That is, three paires and one over: this greater number of cleane beasts was ordained for provision for sacrifices. Gen. 8. 20. and peradventure also to increase the race of tame beasts, more then the wild. Because they were more usefull and necessary.

V. 3. Of Fowles] Namely of the cleane kinds.

V. 4. Living substance] That hath a soule or sensitive life, as all beasts are, because it seemeth, that plants, all, or for the most part, were by miracle preserved under the water.

V. 11. Second] The Scripture makes mention of two sorts of yeares: the one sacred, which began with the March Moon, set downe Exodus 12. 2. for the celebration of [Page] feasts. The other civill, which was from the beginning of the world, and began with the September Moon, for the doing of politick businesses: therefore the second moneth was the October moone. All the] under the earth there is a great abyse, which by the heads of rivers, and springs, power forth its waters upon the earth by some breathing, or boyling out, which is unknowne; then they all issue forth into the sea, which is like a great Cisterne, which through Pipes under the earth, lends the same waters back, into the great abyse. Now these waters were then swelled and increased by Gods omnipotency, and fell in great abundance upon the earth; either by the ordinary wayes, or by new gulfes, or by a generall comming on of the Sea. The Windowes] A figurative terme to signifie fierce Raines: and herein there was also a miracle.

V. 14. Of every] The Italian hath it, of every wing] for there are some flying creatures which have skinny, and grisly wings; and the rest feathered wings.

V. 24. Prevailed] Over-flowed in such an abundant manner, and then continued so without decreasing. See Gen. 8. 3. for in this number are comprehended the forty dayes of raine.

CHAP. VIII. VERS. 1.

REmembred] That is shewed that he had charge of him, to set him out of danger, and trouble: and in full fruition of goods. A wind] to consume and drye up the waters by his dispersing of them. Now though the meanes was naturall, yet the operation was increased by miracle. See Exod. 10. 13. and 14. 21. Numb. 11. 31. Pasalme. 78. 26. Were asswaged] from the vehement floating which had stirred them up five moneths.

V. 2. Were] From the fourth day of the deluge, in which it seemeth the waters ceased to increase: yet remained high five whole moneths, and then began to decrease.

V. 2. Rested] came a ground, though the hills were not quite uncovered. Of Ararat] The common opinion is, that it was Armenia. See Isa. 37. 38. Jer. 51. 27.

V. 6. The window] Of the Chamber where he lay, which peradventure was against the great Lanthorne. Gen. 6. 16.

V. 7. A Raven] which likely was made choyce of, because of the quality of that bird, which is to flye far and then returne home, bringing somewhat in his Bill; and so doth the Dove.

V. 9. Found no] Because that though the tops of the hills were bare, yet the earth was all dirty, and distempered.

V. 11. In the evening] according to the custeme of Doves.

Leaf] or a little Bough: Hence it is gathered that God preserved the places miraculously, or some part of them a yeare under the water: and indeed it is not said that he caused any of the roots, or seeds of them to be kept in the Arke, as hee had done of the beasts.

V. 13. Drie] That is, uncovered, and no water upon it, but yet not well hardned, whereby he might set his foot upon it, and inhabit it: which was not so untill two moneths after.

V. 20. Burnt offerings] A kinde of sacrifices wherein the whole offering was burnt. Lev. 1. 3.

V. 21. Smelled] A figurative terme taken from the smell of Sacrifices, in which were used great quantities of Incense. The meaning is, God tooke notice of the purity of Noah's heart, and of his faith, and accepted of his action, and was propitious to him, and to his intentions. Sayd] That is, having decreed it within himselfe it should be so, he made an authenricall declaration of it. For the] the wickednesse of man-kind would often deserve such a curse; but I will take an occasion through this his unavoydable miserie to use my mercy. From his] being perverse by nature he brings forth the effects of it, in his first moovings; and, as a man should say, in the internall Ideas of his actions. Psal. 25. 7.

V. 22. Remaineth] In this state and forme, as it is distinguished by times and the successions thereof. Sec Rev. 10. 6.

CHAP. IX. VERS. 2.

THE feare] God after the Deluge re-estating man in his dominion over other creatures, sheweth by these words, that their subjection is no more through a sweet naturall instinct in them, as towards their naturall master, as it was before sinne. Gen. 1. 28. but for feare, as of an enemy, yet strengthened by Gods decree.

V. 3. Every moving thing] You may eate indifferently of the flesh of all beasts, which thing was not set downe before the deluge; as it was concerning the fruits of the earth; which was then given way too. Now as for herbes it is understood only of those which are fitting for the food of man: so it is likewise to be understood in beasts.

V. 4. The life thereof] The Italian hath the soule thereof] The soule of beasts hath no subsistence, but is a meero vitall faculty, which proceeds from the blood purged, and is maintained in it, and lyeth wholly therein. In man the soule hath its essence; which subsisteth of it selfe, yet it is united with the body, and vivifieth it, by meanes of the spirits which proceed from the blood, and are contained within it. Now God forbiddeth the eating of the blood of the beast, to shew humanity. And chiefly to represent by the blood of the beasts, which was to be spilt upon the ground, a figure of Christs blood which should be spilt for the [Page] redemption of our soules.

V. 5. And surely] If I have care to have humanity used towards beasts, I will take much more care of mens lives, who beare mine Image. Of your] that is, the life of men which shall bee unjustly taken from them. Now because the old world perished through violence. Gen. 6. 11. 13. God in this new re-establishment, provideth for the prevention of murthers, by this first fundamentall Law. Of every] in which there can be no sinne, nor the vengeance of justice cannot be put in execution against them, but are punished onely for examples sake, and mans instruction. Every mans] without regard or distinction of persons: though amongst men your small murtherers are punished, and the great ones honoured.

V. 6. Shall be shed] This, by way of justice should be done amongst all nations. Yet if men will not do it, I will reserve the vengeance of violent deaths, and such like sad accidents, unto my selfe. By man] or amongst men the image of God] therefore ought mans life to be in more esteem than a beasts, and cannot have violence done unto it, without offence to God himself: and this Image being in all, in respect of that, they are all equall, and none hath absolute power over another, unlesse it be in executing of justice; exercised by men in the behalfe of God.

V. 7. Bring forth] Or goe and come, as Gen. 8. 17.

V. 9. I establish] I give you an authentically promise, and through it I doe in a manner bind my selfe to you.

V. 10. From all] As well the present, as them that are to come.

V. 11. Of a Flood] Namely a generall one, for there have been and are oftentimes particular ones.

V. 13. I doe set] The Rain-bow is a naturall impression in the Cloud, and was before the Floud, but here it receiveth a new use of remembrance, and confirmation by Gods ordinance, who may use what signe hee pleaseth for a seale of his grace and promise, although there bee no correspondence between the naturall operation of it, and the thing which is signified.

V. 14. Shall be seen] for that purpose it is sufficient, if it be seen but at some times.

V. 16. I will] A humane kinde of speaking: which is as much as to say, I will as surely keep my promise, as if I did see the bond, by which I was bound to doe it continually before mine eyes.

V. 20. A Vineyard] whose plants were preserved by miracle, and Noah began to dresse and trimme them anew. See Gen. 8. 11.

V. 22. Told] In an impious and scornfull kind of mock.

V. 25. Canaan] God governed Noah's spirit and tongue, that he thus cast out this curse against Cam, in the person of that child of his, whose whole progeny hee had excluded from his grace: willing to have it destroyed at the appoynted time: Namely Canaans generation. For the rest of Cam's posterity have tasted of Gods grace under the Gospell. Of Servants] That is, the most base and abject: Now by this kind of slavery, is figuratively meant the condition of the children of the world, who are deprived of the spirit of adoption, and debarred of that liberty of glory which Gods children have: to be subject to the slavery of sin, the devill, and death, and to the curse of God eternally. See Gen. 25. 23. and 27. 29. 37. Gal. 4. 25.

V. 26. Blessed] From S [...]m descended Abraham, in whose posterity Gods people were preserved. Now in stead of blessing of Sem, as hee had cursed [...]am, he blesseth and prayseth God, to signifie that all the good, and advantage he should have, should proceed from this onely head, that God should be his God. His] Namely Sem's posterities, who are here comprehended under the name of their father.

V. 27. Enlarge] Grant him a numerous issue and posterity, and a spacious Countrey, and especially after they shall turne Heathens: May it then be Gods will to enlarge them out of the prison of ignorance, and wickednesse by the preaching of the Gospell. Others have it; perswade, or draw unto him; that is, by bringing of that posterity to the obedience of faith. Shall dwell] finally under Christs Kingdome, let it be incorporated into the body of the Church, which till then shall be restrained within the Jewish nation, which descended from Sem. This prophesie was fulfilled when the European Gentiles were called, which descended from Japliet.

CHAP. X. VERS. 2.

I Aphet] To whose lot fell Europe, and the Northerne Asia: the memory of him remained amongst the heathen under the name of Japetus. Gomer] It is thought he was the father of the Cimbrians a northerne nation of Europe, Magog] from whom came the Scithians. Ezek. 38. 2. Mad [...] from whom the Medes came. Iavan] The Father of the Ionians or Greeks. Tubal] The father of the Iberians, or the Albaneses, and of Asia. Meshech] By the affinity of the name, and the northerne situation, it is gathered, that this was the father of the Moscoviters. Tiras] The father of the Thracians.

V. 3. Ashkenaz] The Jewes doe firmly believe that he was the father of the Germans. Riphat] the Father of the Ripheans in the farthest northerne parts. Togarmah] The father of some northerne nation hitherto unknowne. Ezek. 27. 14. and 38. 6. The Jewes believe that the Turks were his posterity.

V. 4. Elishah] From whom descended the Eolians in the lesser Asia. Tarshish] The father of the Cilicians, [Page] where the City of Tharsus was. Kittim] The father of the Macedonians. Num. 24. 24. Dan. 11. 30. 1 Mac. 1. 1. Now under these names which have a plurall termina [...], it should seem [...]ught to be understood; the head [...] its descent. Dodoenim] The father of the Epi [...]s the Albaneses of Europe, in which Cou [...] stands the City of Dodoena.

V. 5. The Isles] Here and else where by this name is meant, the Islands of the Mediterranean Sea, and in generall all the provinces of Europe encompassed and divided by the sayd Sea. After] To shew that this separation was after the confusion of Languages, at which time, God by miracle caused every race to take a severall one to it selfe.

V. 6. Cush] Father of the Ethiopians on both sides of the Arabian Sea. Mizraim] Father of the Egyptians. Phur] the Father of all the Eutei, a people of Affrick.

V. 7. Seba] From him and his brethren have the countries and nations of Arabia, the Sabcans, Sabateans, Caulateans, &c. taken their names. Finally, Cam peopled the south, Japhet the north, Sem the east.

V. 8. Began] He was the first after the floud that presuming upon his strength and greatnesse of his mind, set up an absolute and violent domination, such as some were before the floud, in stead of the loving government of fathers of families, of the first borne and of the wise.

V. 9. Before] This in a manner of speaking sheweth, either a great eminency, as if one should say; mighty, as any one under the heavens can be, or an open profession and manner of living: It is said] By common proverb, for an example of strength, and incomparable valour.

V. 10. And the beginning] His reigne began in these Cities, but afterwards it extended it self a great deale further. Babel] This name being given after the confusion of languages, it is very likely that Nimrod did also then begin his reign. Shinar] That is, Mesopotamia, the land between the two rivers, Euphrates, and Tigris, and that is the meaning of the Greek and Hebrew name. Ashur] The sonne of Sem, verse 22. And it seemeth, that Ashur, not able to endure Nimrod his tyranny, who usurped other mens parts, (as Chaldea, which Nimrod had seized upon was Sems part) went away beyond Tigris, where he founded the Empire of Assyria, whose chief City was Nineve. Isa. 23. 13. And afterward destroyed that of Babilon: till such time as Nineve being destroyed by the Medians, Babilon, or Babel, did rise again, in the dayes of Nebucadnezzar the great.

V. 13. Ludim] The father of the nations of divers Countries of Africk. L [...]bahim] The father of the people of Libia.

V. 15. Sidon] This, and they that follow, with their nations, are the inhabitants of that countrey which God did afterwards bestow upon his people.

V. 18. Spread abroad] and were divided into many lesser branches.

V. 12. The father] The first stock of the Hebrews, Gods people; in which branch Sem is honoured and blessed, as Cam is accursed in Canaans. Now it seemeth that the people did derive their name from Eber, rather than from any other of his next progenitors; for Eber lived longest of any after the floud. Gen. 11. 16, 17. Even after Abraham retaining his originall language and the true worship of God. The elder] Others have it the brother of Japhet, who was the elder.

V. 22. Elam] Whence came the Persians, or part of them. Ashur] The father of the Assyrians. Lud] Father of the Lideans. Aram] The father of the Syrians.

V. 23. Huz] These are the fathers of divers nations of Syria. Mash] Also called Mesech. 1 Cro. 1. 17.

V. 25. P [...]leg] That is to say division, by reason of the division of languages, and afterwards of habitations. Jaktan] The people of the uttermost parts of the East, and peradventure America also, where there yet remaine some tracks of that name.

CHAP. XII. VERS. 2.

Language] The Hebrew, which was the original language of the world.

V. 2. From the East] From the mountains of Ararat where the Arke stayed, seeking a larger and more commodious countrey for their families to multiply in. Shinar] See Gen. 10. 10.

V. 3. Brick] For want of stone in that fat plaine, which made them also use clay of that Countrey, instead of mortar, which doth very well with bricks, as divers Authors doe write.

V. 4. Whose] Which may be exceeding high: a hyperbolicall terme, as Deut. 1. 28. and 9. 1. Lest we be] By this may be understood the chief end of this great fabrick; namely to found an universal Empire, whose chiefe head should be Babylon, an enterprise which the devill doth alwayes undertake to keep his kingdome continually on foot in the world, by means of those great Empires, full of pride and violence; alwayes opposite to the spirituall, holy, and friendly kingdome of Christ, and therefore also ever condemned, and overthrowne by God.

V. 5. Came downe] A phrase taken from men, to shew a singular and actuall application of Gods knowledge, and mind unto this action, as Gen. 1. 26, C. 18. 21.

V. 6. This] A holy scorne, as Gen. 3. 22. as if hee should say, This beginning is so stately and so great, that they will imagine nothing to be impossible to them: therefore it is sitting to withstand this their rashnesse at the first.

V. 7. Let us goe down] A consultatiou of the holy Trinity. As it is Gen. 1. 26. [Page]

V. 8. Scattered them] That is, he caused, according to the different languages which had befalne to severall nations, divers and severall communities to be. See Gen. 10. 5. 10. 31. Now in this change God did by miracle send a forgetfulnes of the former languages, and in a moment imprinted new ones in the nunds of men.

V. 9. Babel] That is, confusion.

V. 10. The generations] After that through the confusion of languages God had separated the rest of the world from the holy stock, which kept the originall language, Moses describeth how it was continued, and increased until it was restrained into Abrams family.

V. 26. Lived] Since Abram went out of Haran, at the age of 75 years. Gen. 12. 4. and went out of it after his fathers decease, who lived 205 years. v. 32. it is impossible that Terah should beget him at 70 years of age, but when hee was 110 or thereabout: therefore this word Begat] ought to be understood began to beget these three children; of which, Abraham was not the first borne▪ though he be first named, by reason of his spirituall prerogative.

V. 28. Before] The Italian hath it, in the presence of] That is, whilst he yet lived. Num. 3. 4.

V. 29. Of Haran] It is uncertaine, whether this Haran were the brother of Nahor; and if he were, you m [...]st note that these marriages of uncle and neece, which we [...]e afterwards forbidden by the Law. Lev. 18. 12. were then permitted. Exod. 6. 20.

V. 31: They] Namely, Terah, and Abraham as heads, taking with them Lot and Sarah. Haran] A City of Mesopotamia, renowned in histories, and bordering upon Canaan.

CHAP. XII. VERS. 1.

HAd said] Before he came to Haran:

V. 2: A blessing] Blessed every way: as if all blessings were gathered together in thee, or a patterne of a compleat blessing.

V. 3. Shall] Not only because Abraham should bee a patterne of a Sovereigne blessing: as Gen. 48. 20. But chiefly because the blessing of Gods grace should spread it selfe over all people indifferently, under the Messias: so that in imitation of Abrahams faith; in the promises of the Redeemer, they should become his spirituall progeny. Rom. 4. 11, 12. Gal. 1. 7. 9. Of which, their blessing Abraham was the head, but onely in the title and honour. But Christ, who came from him according to the flesh, is the true author and spring of it: therefore in another place in stead of blessed in thee, is set downe, blessed in thy posterity.

V. 5. Thesoules] The Italian hath it, The persons] and so the Hebrew word is, that is to say, men & women servants: for slavery was then in use, and approved by God himselfe, though the beginning of it be not set downe and declared unto us. Which might bee either for a punishment of rebellions against naturall and mild subjections: or by reason of warre, or through incapacity of understanding; or through poverty. But chiefly it seemes that the first slaves were of the accursed generation of Cam: and condemned unto it. Gen. 9. 25. 26, 27.

V. 6. The plaine] Or the Grove, or Thicket of Oaks.

V. 8. Bethel] This place is here so called by anticipation, for it was then called Luz. See Genesis 28. 19.

V. 15. Pharaoh] A common name of the Kings of Egypt even in those dayes: and it may signifie a defender, a revenger, or a freer.

V. 17. Plagues] That is, sicknesses, and other mournfull accidents; by which Pharaoh finding it to bee a divine vengeance, it is likely he did enquire the reason of it, and did finde it out by some unknowne meanes.

V. 20. Commanded] To see that he should have no injury done him by any one.

CHAP. XIII. VERS. 1.

THE south] The southern part of the land of Canaan, Gen. 12. 9. oftentimes absolutely called by the name of the south, by the distinction of the hill, and plaine Countrey, &c. See Jos. the 10. 40▪ and 11. 16.

V. 6. Beare them] As well for the roome to dwell upon it, as for pasture for their cattell.

V. 7. The Canaanite] This seemeth to be added, for to shew that Abraham and L [...]t could not spread themselves, as they would, the Countrey being already inhabited by mighty nations, which questionlesse were not verie favourable to these strangers.

V. 9. Before thee] At thy choyce by my consent, to take up thy habitation where thou wilt.

V. 10. The plain] It was a great plaine, in the which Jordan did disperse it selfe into small streams, and at last lost it selfe in the earth; for it hath no issue into the sea, and thence proceeded the great fruitfulnessse of it. This is the same place, where afterwards grew the dead sea, or the lake Asphaltis. The gorden] A proverbiall saying, as who should say, A right earthly Paradice. See Isa. 51. 3. Ezekiel 28. 13. and 31. 8. Of Egypt] which is likewise all watered by channels and streams taken out of Nilus▪ unto Zoar] This city is so called by anticipation; for then it was called Bela. Gen. 14. 2. and 19. 22.

V. 15. For ever] I doe now give thee right to it, and [Page] to thy posterity will I give the possession of it, untill the comming of the Messias, where doe [...]nd the temporall promises of the old Testament, Christ bringing in with him a new age.

V. 18. The Plaine] Or the Groves, or thickets of Oaks.

CHAP. XIV. VERS. 1.

SHinar] See Gen. 10. 10. All these other Countryes were towards Chaldea and Assyria. Of nations] the Italian hath it, Of Goi] It was certainly some nation made up of divers nations.

V. 3. Of Siddi [...]] Or of the fields: that is to say arable grounds, which are verie fruitfull. The salt Sea] That is to say a great sulphurous lake, into which were reduced the wicked Cities, with their inhabitants, called Sale, for a distinction betweene it, and other great fresh water lakes that are in Palestina.

V. 5. The Rephaims] All these are set downe in the Scripture, and noted for mighty Nations of Giants, on the east side of Palestina.

V. 7. Amalekites] The inhabitants of the Countrie which was afterwards inhabited by the Amalekites; which as yet were not there. See Genesis 38. 12.

V. 10. Fell] Their men were hindred in their flight, by those pits, by which a great number perished.

V. 13. The Hebrew] That is to say of the progeny of Eber. See Gen. 10. 21. according to some it signifieth one that is beyond the River, as Abraham was come out of Mesopotamia, from beyond Euphrates.

V. 14. Brother] His neerest kinsoman, armed] or led out to warre, trayned servants] That is to say, the sonnes of his servants, which he had fed, brought up, and trayned. Dan] This is a place on the Northerne confines of Palestina, so named by anticipation; for it was then called Lesem. Jos. 19. 47. or Lais Jud. 18. 7.

V. 15. Against them] He divided his men into divers bands to assault them.

V. 17. Dale] It was so called afterwards. 2 Sam. [...]8. 18.

V. 18. Salem] Which was afterwards called Jerusalem. See Psal. 76. 2. for it is very likely that it is the same, and not the place called Salim. Joh. 8. 23. now all the hidden mysteries of this person, and of this action are expounded unto us, Heb. 7. 1. Brought forth] it doth not appear that this was done to any other end, but to refresh Abraham and his men; and in this feast of congratulation, if there was any Sacrifice, it was of prayse and thankes-giving, as the occasion of Abrahams victory required: for in a Sacrifice of expiation there would have bin the shedding of blood required. Hebr. 9. 22. Of the high God] This sheweth that amongst those nations, there was yet some seed of true piety left.

V. 19. Possessor] Supream Lord.

V. 20. Tithes] Which part even at that time was due by divine right, by some expression from God. See Gen. 28. 22. and afterwards confirmed by Moses law, like unto many other.

V. 22. I have [...]t up] The gesture of one that sweareth, whereby it is shewed us, that God is called for a witness of truth, and a judge against falshood. Deut. 32. 4.

V. 23. That I will not] Aswell to free himself from suspition of avarice, as also to shew how he detested that wicked King and his people.

CHAP. XV. VERS. 1.

REward] that is, the good which through my grace thou shalt have according to thy faith; wherewith I will requite thy faithfull service. Others have it, I am thy shield and thy great reward] That is as much as to say, in mee and in my grace consisteth all the good which thou canst expect or look for.

V. 2. Seeing] This is sayd, because that God in all his promises to Abraham made mention of his posterity, in regard of which, they were chiefly made; and therefore it seemed that his want of issue would make them frustrate. The Steward] For want of children I am constrained to put all my goods into the hands of a servant, who is a stranger, who is the second person in my house, See Gen. 24. 2.

V. 6. Beleeved] This faith in that particular promise, was an Essay or prooffe of Abrahams generall faith, in the promises of Gods grace, upon which this particular faith was also grounded. So that Gods approving of it for an act of Justice is drawne by the Apostle, and applyed to the justification by faith in Christ, by reason of the agreement that is between them. For first as Abraham is here justified, for having believed in the promises of God, so is the faithfull man justified before God, for his lively faith in his Redeemer, in whom is all his justice. Secondly, as in this particular faith Abraham groundeth himselfe onely upon Gods power, goodnesse, and truth; all naturall meanes being wa [...]ng. Rom. 4. 18, 19. So justifying faith acknowledgeth it selfe to be void of all vertue, and justice, and utterly renounceth them, relying onely upon the grace of God for the obtayning of salvation and life.

V. 8. Whereby] he asketh this question, not out of incredulity contrary to that faith, which is before commended: but out of an humble desire to be strengthened against the infirmities of the flesh. See Jud. 6. 17. 37. and a King. 20. 8. Isaiah 7. 11. Luke 1. 18. 34.

V. 9. An heifer] Here are implied all kindes of [Page] Beasts fitting for sacrifices. See Lev. 1. 3. 10. 14. Now this ceremony of passing through, between the parts of the sacrifice, which was afterwards observed in the confirmation of solemne Covenants. Jer. 34. 18. is here brought in by the Lord, for the same end, in the 17. V. of three yeares] Some have it, three of each kind.

V. 10. Divided them] All this was done by Gods appoyntment, to whom it belongeth to appoynt all signes that are confirmatives of his grace, divided he not] This ceremony of not cutting the Fowles in pieces, which were offered in Sacrifice, was afterwards confirmed by Moses, Lev. 1. 15, 17.

V. 11. The Fowles] It seemeth to signifie the Disturbances, which evill spirits doe offer to the Elect, by wandring thoughts, or otherwise.

V. 12. A deep] Abraham was ravished in an extasie, during which, God sheweth himselfe unto him in Majesty, imprinting in his soule the knowledge and certainty of those things whereof hee laid the signes before him. A horroure] Ordinary tokens of Gods presence.

V. 13. Foure hundred] In which are comprehended all the Pilgrimages of Abraham, and his posterity, from the birth of Isack, untill the comming forth of Egypt, and the number of foure hundred is set down from four hundred and five, according to the exact number.

V. 15. To thy Fathers] To death, which hath already carryed away all thy fore-fathers.

V. 16. Generation] It seemeth hee meaneth an hundred yeares, which time, or thereabouts was in those dayes the age of man. Others take these words for a lineall degree, and take the beginning of it, at the peoples comming into Egypt. For the] I deferre the giving of this Countrey to thy children, till that time: because I will doe it to the destruction of those wicked people; and I have set downe so long a time for my patience to last towards▪ them. See Mat. 23. 32. 1 Thes. 2. 16.

V. 17. Furance] A Type of Gods Majesty, who is a devouring fire, yet hidden from man, as a fire in an Oven is: yet there comes a blaze out, which did represent some manifestation of God, passing through the middest of the parts of those beasts, to confirme his covenant; now it is uncertaine whether this did happen in a mentall, or in a corporall visi [...]n.

V. 18. From the River]. It was a little river upon the confines of Egypt, elsewhere called Sihon.

V. 19. The Kenites] Which are the Midianites. See Num. 24. 21. Jud. 1. 16. 1. Sam. 15. 6. Here so named by anticipation. Kenizites] This nation is named no where else; it seemeth they were Idumeans, descended from Kenaz of Esau's race. Gen. 36. 15. 42. Now, though in the first conquest of the countrey God did forbid the invading of the Idumeans, Deut. 2. 4. yet were they afterwards subdued by David. 2 Sam. 8. 14. Kadmonites] or Easterly: these were the Arabians. Jud. 6. 3. and 7. 12.

CHAP. XVI. VERSE 2.

Hath r [...]strained me] the Italian Hath made mee barren]
The Hebrew hath shut me up: Goe in] Through the great desire she had of having issue by Abraham, to whom the promises were made: Sarah perswadeth Abraham, to take this Concubine unto him, which was in those dayes tolerated, though contrary to Gods first order. Mal. 2. 15. See Gen. 30. 3. 9. Obtaine] Adopting for mine owne those children which she shall beare, which I may doe, being her Mistresse. See concerning these ancient adoptions Gen. 30. 3. 2 Sam. 21▪ 8. Hest. 2. 7.

V. 5. Be upon thee] Thou oughtest to right me, chastising and rebuking thy servant; for by thy connivence thou makest thy selfe guilty of the wrong she doth me: or I being thy lawfull wife, the injury done unto me, redounds upon thee into thy bosome] for to be thy Concubine.

V. 7. The Angell] This was the everlasting sonne of God, which appeared personally to the fathers, under corporall shapes, cloathed with some beams of brightnesse, and other celestiall qualities: and therefore V. 13. he is called everlasting Lord, by reason of his essence, and Angel, by reason of this speciall embassage, and his generall office of Mediator. Ex. 14. 19. and 23. 20. Isa. 63. 9. Mal. 3. 1. Shur] A place in the desert, betweene Egypt and Palestina.

V. 10. I will m [...]l [...]iply] This sheweth that hee that spake was true God.

V. 11. Ishmael▪] That is to say, God hath heard, or will heare.

V. 12. A man] That is to say, he and his posterity, a fierce and rough people, that shall live in no civill conversation with their neighbours, but in continuall warre: The Italian hath it, Like unto a wilde Asse] because that kind of beast will never be tame. Job. 39. 8. In the presence] That is to say, the nations that shall descend from Abraham, [...]s hee doth, as the children of Ketura, Abraham's second wife, and the posterity of Esau; shall be forced to let thy posterity live by them, though it shall much trouble them with incursions, thefts, and wars, and shall not be able to destroy it, nor subdue it.

V. 13. Seest me] The Italian hath it God of the sight] because thou hast given man his sight, and presery [...]st it, as thou hast now done by mee, strengthning me that I am able to endure the brightnesse of thy Majesty: Thus saith Hagar after she knew him, that she spake with, to bee the true God. Have I] Words of admiration, as if she should say. And is it possible that my life, my light, [Page] and my sences have remained entire, after I have seen God in corporall vision; an astonishment which ordinarily mortall, fraile, and sinfull man falleth into, when God appeareth unto him. See Gen. 32. 30. Exo. 24. 11. and 33. 20. Deut. 5. 24. Jud. 6. 22. and 13. 22. Isa. 6. 5. Luke 5. 8.

V. 14. Beerla hairoi] The Italian hath it, The well of the living after the vision] Or of the person that hath remained alive, after it hath seen God.

CHAP. XVII. VERS. 1.

VVAI/k] That is, beare me alwayes in thy mind, to rest thy selfe upon me by faith, to depend upon my providence, and to regulate all thy actions according to my will.

V. 2. Make] Having made my covenant already, I will make it firme, and not to be changed.

V. 4. As for me] Every covenant being mutuall, God here sets downe his promises, and V. 9. he doth demand of Abraham his duty.

V. 5. Abraham] That is, father of a great multitude, whereas Abram was but onely, high father, or father of height. Father] Not onely by corporall generation of the numberlesse people of Israel; but chiefly by his ingrafting of all nations indifferently, into the body of the Church, through the imitation of Abrahams faith, whereof he was an exemplary and borrowed father. Rom. 4. 12. 17.

V. 6. Make thee] That is as much as to say, I will make thee a father of many nations, which shall proceed from thee.

V. 7. God unto thee] That is, by vertue of my Covenant, I will communicate unto thee the effects of all my perfections; and all that which I am in my selfe, I will be in thy behalfe, so that, as I doe live eternally, so will I cause mine to live likewise. As the Lord concludeth, Mat. 22. 32. and so on the other side, I wil be he alone, that thou shalt serve, acknowledge, & worship as God, forsaking all the false Gods, of other nations.

V. 10. My covenant] Circumcision was a condition of the Covenant through obedience, and a Sacrament of it through faith. Now the corporall Sacrament is named by the name of the spirituall thing, according to the scriptures stile, because that on Gods side, this is alwayes joyned with that; by vertue of Gods order and promise. See Exod. 12. 11 and 40. 15. Mat. 26. 26. 1 Cor. 10. 13. Ephes. 5. 26. Circumcised] As in the genitall parts was imprinted a more expresse mark of sinne. Gen. 3: 7. So God ordained for a Sacrament of his grace, this cutting off in the same part, for a figure and seale. First, of the annihilating of the fault, through remission. Rom. 4. 11. Secondly, of the extirpation of vice, and corruption, and of the life of sin, through the spirit of Regeneration. Deut. 30. 6. Jer. 4. 4. Rom. 2. 29. Philip. 3. 3. Col. 2. 11.

V. 12. He that is borne] The Italian hath it, The servant that is born] meaning the Proselite, who of his owne free will shall adde himselfe to the Church, by the profession of Gods true service. See Exod. 12. 44. 48. But if there were any servants that were not converted to God, the Sacrament had beene prophaned, if it had beene communicated unto them.

V. 14. Cut off] By capitall punishment by the Magistrate, if the fact be notorious; by excommunication if the delinquent be out of the reach of him; or by the judgement of God, if the fact be secret. Exo. 31. 14. Lev. 17. 4. 18.

29. Now this is not to be understood of Children, but of those who by their age were capable of voluntary rebellion, refusing, or contemning the use of this Sacrament.

V. 15. Sarai] Sarai signifieth my Lady; as if it were sayd, Lady onely of her family, but Sarah signifieth Lady absolutely, and without limitation, because that Abraham being established father of the faithfull of all nations: God would have his wife also to participate of this title.

V. 17. Laughed] Not through unbeliefe, not believing a thing which he judged to be strange, and impossible, as Sarah did, Gen. 18. 12, 13. but through a godly rejoycing. and said] Through admiration, not through diffidence, which he could never be blamed for. Now at a hundred yeares of age in those dayes they were not quite unapt for generation. But it was strange that Abraham should at that time begin to get children, and especially by a woman that was barren and past age.

V. 18. Might live] Thy promises doe surpasse my desires, it would doe sufficient for me, if Ismael might live under thy protection, and bee alwayes in thy favour.

V. 19. Isaac] That is the son of laughter.

V. 20. As for] I doe grant thee my temporall blessing for Ishmael, as Gen. 27. 39. but as for the spirituall one, for to be heire of the promise of grace, and Patriarch of the blessed off-spring, and to have my Covenant in his posterity, I doe reserve it particularly for Isaac.

V. 22. Went up] He caused the external signes of his presence to vanish away, carrying them up to heaven, as Gen. 35. 13. Jud. 13. 20. to shew, that is the place of the perfect, and eternall manifestation of his glory.

CHAP. XVIII. VERS. 1.

PLaines] Or Thickets, and groves of Oaks.

V. 2. *Three [...]*en] That is to say, three Angels in human s [...]ape, whereof the chiefe and most honourable was the sonne of God himselfe, as Gen. 16. 7. and at the [Page] first arrivall Abraham did not know them.

V. 3. My Lord] He doth direct his speech to the chiefest.

V. 4. Wash] According to the fashion of the ancients, when they came out of the fields, or from journeying, for they used for the most part Sandalls, or soles laced upon their bare feet.

V. 5. Therefore] A common manner of speaking. as Genesis 19. 8. and 33. 10. The meaning is, your comming bindeth me to this duty, and I could not bee contented, if I should not performe it towards you.

V. 10. And he] The Lord doth here begin to make himselfe knowne. Behind] Or the tent was behinde him: that is, the Angel stood with his back towards the tent, whilst he was talking with Abraham.

V. 12. Laughed] Gods reproving of her sheweth, that it was not a laughter of joy, as Abrahams was, Gen. 17. 17. but of some doubting and irreverence, in a thing that was so strange, and seemed within it selfe, to include an absurdity in nature, which notwithstanding, was presently overcome by her faith, Heb. 11. 11. being awakened by the word of the Lord.

V. 18. Seeing that] Since that I have made him head, and father of all my Church, it is fitting hee should bee instructed concerning this judgement of mine, that by him my Church may receive necessary instructions therein.

V. 19. I know him] Chosen and destyned him for mine owne. Justice and judgment] Termes set downe in Scripture, taken from the duty of Judges; which is to doe good men right, and to punish the wicked. So every faithfull man is bound to avoyd the evill, and do that which is good. That the Lord] That they on their part observing and keeping the conditions of my Covenant: it may for ever stand firme to them, according to my promise made to Abraham.

V. 20. The crie] A figurative terme used in Scripture, to shew how Gods judgments are provoked by exorbitant sins.

V. 21. Goe downe] Humane kinds of speeches, to shew that he will proceed with entire justice; after he hath diligently examined the cause.

V. 22. From thence] From Abrahams habitation. Before] Before him, which amongst the three Angels, was the Sonne of God knowne, and worshipped by him, who stayed yet a little while with Abraham, the other two going before.

V. 23. The righteous] The good man, according to humane condition; the man who is innocent of those sins, for which thou wilt destroy Sodom.

V. 24. And not spare]] Not that this is a perpetuall and generall rule in Gods judgments in this world Ezek 14. 18. but here God through especiall grace, yeelds to Abrahams request.

V. 27. Now I have] A preface of humility, and of correcting himselfe, as if he should say, shall I dare to assume so much liberty to my selfe?

CHAP. XIX. VERS. 1.

TVVO Angels] Two of those which had appeared to Abraham, Genesis 18. 2. For the Sonne of God, who was the third, did not goe into Sodom▪ Genesis Chapter 18. verse 22. and Chapter 19. ver. 27.

V. 2. Nay] To make tryall of Lots words, and to kindle his good affection the more.

V. 5. Know them] A terme of wicked and infamous meaning in this place, as Judg. 19. 22.

V. 8. I have two] Lot astonished at this cruell injury, inconsiderably propoundeth unto them, this blamefull meanes of satisfying their lusts, or doth in earnest thinke, that he avoydeth a greater evill by a lesser, and by reason of a great weakenesse in faith, constancy, and wisdom, sheweth at least his true charity, in preferring the strangers honours before his owne. Therefore] See. Gen. 18. 5.

V. 9. They pressed sore] Even to force him to that execrable act.

V. 14. Which married] The Italian hath: Which were to be married] That is, were espoused, according to that laudable custome, whereby they were wont to leave some time betweene the espousing, or contracting, and the consummation of Matrimony, See the two and twentieth Chapter of Deuteronomy, and the three and twentieth verse, and the first Chapter of Matthew, and the eighteenth verse.

V. 15. In the iniquity] In the punishment of their wickednesses.

V. 17. That hee] The Italian hath it, The Lord] It is likelier that the Sonne of God, one of the three which was not gone into Sodom, came here to meete the other two, and made himselfe knowne to Lot. For thy lise] The Italian hath it, Upon thy soule] as thou lovest thy life. See Deut. 4. 15. Jos. 23. 11. Jer. 17, 21.

V. 18. Oh not so] Make me not goe so farre, lest my weaknesse hinder me from enjoying thy benefits, words expressing the weaknesse of his faith.

V. 20. A little one] And therefore of small consequence either in the destroying or the preserving of it. Words of humane ignorance, not agreeing with Gods justice, who regardeth not little or great.

V. 22. I cannot] Gods order is, that I should set thee in safety, before I destroy the Citie: hast thee therefore, for the time of execution is come. Zoar] That is to say, little; whereas before it was called Bela. See the fourteenth Chapter of Genesis, and the second verse.

V. 24. The Lord] The Son of God, who had appeared [Page] unto Abraham and Lot, caused this raine to fall by some word or token, which raine was caused by Gods omnipotency, and showred upon the earth without any naturall cause.

V. 25 The plaine] Of Jordan, Gen. 13. 10. where there were five Cities: Sodom, Gomorrah, Adura, Seboim, Zoar.

V. 26. *Lo [...]*ked] Following Lot, she turned her eyes towards Sodom, either through curiosity, or through grieffe, against Gods Commandement, ver. 17. A pillar] A dead stiffe body dried up by that sulphurous and Salpetrie stufte, which the Scripture calleth salt. Genesis 14. 3. Deut. 29. 23.

V. 29. Abraham] For whose love chiefly God preserved Lot, who though he was innocent of those abominable vices, yet might very well deserve to be partaker of their corporall punishment, for having stayed so long amongst them for worldly ease.

V. 31. Our Father] It sheweth that they believed all the world was consumed, and that they only surviving with their old Father, it behoved them to make haste to have issue, for to preserve man-kind, and that this necessity, did disannull the ordinary Law: an inconsiderate cause of a wicked effect.

V. 37. Moab] That is to say, of the father; that is, begotten upon me by my Father.

V. 38. *Be [...]*ammi] That is to say, Sonne of my people, begotten in the holy lineage, and not of the accursed of Sodom, where I should have beene married.

CHAP. XX. VERS. 1.

FRom thence] That is, from the plaine of Mamre, Gen. 18. 1. The South] See Gen. 13 1. Kadesh] See Gen. 16. 14.

V. 3. A dead man] This was told Abimelech after the plagues which God had sent him, to hinder him from abusing of Sarah, v. 6 because he might be the cause of them; and be delivered from them by restoring of her to her husband.

V. 4. Nation] because that the Kings Court and the people, had also been stricken with those plagues, verse 7. 9, 17. Righteous] That is, guiltlesse of this fact.

V. 5. In the Integrity] In ending to make her my lawfull wife, without ravishment, or Adultery.

V. 12. Daughter of] Many are of opinion, that shee was Tares Grand-child, and the Hebrewes will have her to be [...]s [...]a, the daughter of Haran, Genesis 11. [...]9.

V. 15. Before thee] At thy command and choyce, See Gen. 13. 9.

V. 16. Thy brother] It should seeme that this sum was given, for a kinde of recompence. Pieces] The Italian hath it S [...]kels] a kinde of silver coyn weighing halfe an ounce, or foure drams. A covering] that is to say, he that alone hath interest in thee, and power over thee, wherefore as a signe of subjection, thou shalt goe with thy face covered, Gen. 24. 65. 1 Cor. 11. 10. That every one that seeth thee may know that thou art marryed; and therefore abstaine from thee. For it is likely that Sarah had taken off her vayle, whereby the King was fallen into some error. Thus shee] Though she was honoured, and rewarded by the King, yet was she faine to suffer the shame of this rebuke.

V. 17. Bare Children] So the Hebrew hath it; the Italian hath it, They were able to beare] This signifieth that Abimelechs plagues and sores were in the genitall parts of men and women, which hindred their cohabitation, which is modestly expressed by this circumlocution.

CHAP. XXI. VERS. 1.

Visited] That is to say, shewed himselfe to bee present with her in grace and vertue, giving miraculously, new power to conceive.

V. 6. Made me to laugh] She hath reference to her laughing, Gen. 18. 12. as if she should say, now have I truely occasion to laugh for joy, as I did before through wonder.

V. 7. For I have] Words of admiration, as if she said, that I should, &c.

V. 9. Mocking] Saint Paul, Gal. 4. 29▪ calleth this scoffe a persecution, which sheweth that there was malice, hatred, and stoutnesse in it.

V. 10▪ She said] Though it is manifest, that there was some carnall and vicious passion in Sarah: yet all this was done by the secret promise of God: to separate Ishmael from the blessed progeny, in which he had no share. See Gen. 25. 6. and 36. 6, 8.

V. 12. Shall thy] The progeny which shall beare thy name, and shall participate in the spirituall right of the holy race, whereof I have made thee head, shall bee borne unto thee by Isaac, and not by Ishmael.

V. 14. Beersheba] The place is so called here, by way of anticipation, v. 31.

V. 17. Where he is] To shew, that God was even present in the desert, in grace, and power.

V. 18. Hold him] The Italian hath, Strengthen thy selfe to have a care of him] The Hebrew hath it, strengthen thy hand [...]ver him.

V. 19. Opened] Whether sorrow did trouble her judgement, or whether God did by miracle hinder her sight, or whether it was dazled through the long distance, all obstacles were taken away in a moment, and the remedy to her want was shewed her.

V. 20. Was with] Went along with him, with his blessing in temporall things, Gen. 17. 20. Archer] both in warre and hunting.

V. 23. That thou] In this Oath as in all other oathes [Page] there is a promise in these words, thou shalt doe, and an execration, If thou] as the Italian hath it in stead of That thou] which must be thus applyed, that God may judge thee, and curse thee, &c. if thou lyest.

V. 25. Reproved] The Italian hath, complained to] Taken away] debarring Abraham, and his servants who had digged it, from the use of it. verse 30. See Gen. 26. 15, 18, 20, 21, 22.

V. 30. That they] That thou art King accepting this present from me, for an acknowledgement that I have digged this well in thy land, I may bee out of strife with thy subjects: and thou giving credit to my saying, namely, that I have digged it, maist command thy servants to be silent.

V. 31. Beersheba] That is to say, a well of swearing.

V. 33. A grove] It seemeth he used it for a retyring place, to doe his exercises of piety, to pray and sacrifice: which example having brought in a superstitious opinion amongst many, as if the Deity were present in such shady places, God did forbid the use of these groves, neere to holy places, Deut. 16. 21. and often condemneth the service that is done there in imitation of the Pagans.

CHAP. XXII. VERS. 2.

MOriah] This name signifieth provision of God, and is here used by anticipation, because it was so called afterwards, verse 14. upon the said occasion: and is one of those bills which afterwards was inclosed within the compasse of Jerusalem; which did also participate of that name: for Jerusalem signifieth, God shall provide in Salem; and upon Moriah afterwards the Temple was built, 2 Chron. 3. 1. One of the] Because there were two hills, Syon and Moriah, and the latter gave the name to the Country.

V. 11. The Angel] Which was the Sonne of God himselfe, as it appeareth by the 12. and 16. verses. See Gen. 16. 7.

V. 12. I know] God hath no need of prooffe, knowing the very bottomes of the hearts: but this is spoken after the manner of men, to shew that Abraham had made his prey notorious and approved, and that GOD had approved of it, and did meane to reward it.

V. 14. Iehovah-Iirch] The Italian hath it, The Lord will provide] And this is the sense of the Hebrew word Moriah▪ and Jerusalem, Verse 2. and the common proverbe that was taken from thence shewed▪ that in the greatest extremities of the Church, God would miraculously provide for it; and especially that there should by pure miracle be provided, the unspotted Lamb which taketh away the sinnes of the world, which is Christ Jesus.

V. 16. For because] This promise was made before unto Abraham, out of meere grace, before this act of faith, and obedience. See Rom. 4 13, 14. but this is said, to shew that, the more Abraham's Faith was strengthened, the more did the Lord assure the promise of his grace unto him.

V. 17. The gate] As i [...] he had said, the Court, the Palace, the seat of the Empire, as formerly your councells and publike Assemblies were held neare the Citie gates: and there also were the Rockes and strong places.

CHAP. XXIII. VERS. 2.

KIriath-arba] It seemeth that this most ancient City, Num. 13. 23. was called Mamre, ver. 19. afterwards Kiriath-arba; that is, the City of Arba the Gyant, who was Lord of it, Jos. 14. 15. Then Hebron, Genesis 35. 27. Come] Into Sarah's Tent, which according to the custom was apart from Abrahams, Gen. 24. 67.

V. 4. Give me] This ground and propriety of a burying place in the Land of Canaan, so much desired of Abraham, was but as an earnest to his posterity of his faith in Gods promises, th [...] that Countrey should be given to his posterity; therefore the rest of the Patriarchs would have also part therein, Gen. 15. 9. & 47, 29. & 50. 13, 25. Exod. 13. 19. Heb. 11. 22.

V. 9. Machpelah] That is double As much money as it is worth] as 1 Cron. 21. 24. Others have it, for entire money, not diminished, nor falsified.

V. 10. Dwell] The Italian hath, Did sit] That is to say, he was of the City Councell. Went in] noted Citizens, which had a seat in the Senate. See Gen. 34. 24

V. 15. Betwixt [...] An honest way to speake the reasonable price of a thing, without bargaining with a friend: as if he did say, the thing is not worth the making many words betweene us, who are so joynd in friendship, and are so wealthy, doe what thou will with it.

V. 17. Were made sure] It is in the Italian, the beginning of 18. verse, though our English hath it the latter part of the 17. gotten by a firme and irrevocable contract. Before all] In the publike assembly of the City. The City] The Italian hath it His City] Namely He [...]s, or Epous.

PUT] A ceremony anciently observed in you [...] obligatory, or binding oaths made by inferiour persons to their superiours. See Gen. 47. 29. 1 Chro. 29. 24.

V. 3. Of the daughters] Because those Nations were Infidels, and accursed: and that by such commixtures and marriages, the holy race had beene infected, and Gods service and manner corrupted. See Genesis 6. 2. [Page] and 27, 46. and 28. 2.

V. 4. My Country] That is, Mesopotamia or Chaldea in the Confines of which Charran was: the place of abode of Abrahams kinred, where Gods true worship was yet preserved, though with diverse corruptions. See Gen. 11. 31. and 27. 43.

V. 6. Beware thou] This so strict forbidding is grounded upon Gods command. Gen. 12. 1. given to Abraham for him and for his whole family.

V. 7. His Angell] To guard and guide thee, Gen. 48. 6. Exod. 14. 19. and 2 [...], 20.

V. 10. For all the, &c.] The Italian hath it, carrying wi [...]h him of all kindes of his Masters goods Now the English is, For all the goods of his Master were in his hand] To shew that hee might take as much of them as he pleased.

V. 13. Behold 1] This servants piety and faith, and the successes which God gave to his desire, shew that this thought was inspired into him by God; not to make any vaine conjecture, or to binde God to his judgement, but to have from God Himselfe a certaine signe of his blessing. See the like examples, Judg. 6. 36. 1 Sam. 6. 7. and 14. 8. and 20. 7. 1 Mac. 5. 40.

V. 14. Thereby] That is to say, if this my thought and prayer, be ratified by thy provi [...]ence, I shall have an assured token, that thou wilt blesse Abraham in this businesse, as thou hast done in all other. Or in her] That is to say, in that maid which by this token shall be made knowne to me.

V. 19. Done drinking] The Italian hath it, have dranke] Or untill they have dranke.

Ver. 27. Brethren] That is, his neerest Kins-folkes.

V. 28. Of her] Because the women had their lodgings a part, ver. 67 Gen. 31 33.

V. 32. To wash] See Gen. 18. 4.

V. 47. Upon her face] The Italian hath it, Above her nose] This was a kind of Carcanet which women did weare upon their forehead, and did hang downe [...]pon the nose. See Isa. 3. 21. Ezech. 16. 12.

V. 49. Deale] Favourably consent to my request, and keep your promise loyally with me.

V. 50. Spe [...]ke unto thee bad] We cannot gain-say thee, nor with words expresse the joy we feele. See Gen. 31. 24, 29.

V. 51. Hath spoken] That is to say, declared his will, by the aforesaid signe, V. 59. Her nurs [...]] Called Debora, Gen. 35. 8.

V. 60. Thou a [...]t] That is to say, they being farre from us, shall not change, no [...] diminish the affection towards thee, through which, from henceforth wee wish thee, happie and abundant fruits of thy marriage

V. 62. South] From the Southerne parts of Palestina, Gen. 12. 9.

V. 63. To meditate] The Italian hath it, To pray] to thinke upon God aside, and upon heavenly and divine things.

V. 65. A vaile] Through virgin Modesty, and to shew even from that time her respect, and subjection to her husband, Gen. 20. 16. 1 Cor. 11. 10.

V. 7. Brought] Brought her into his house, into the Mistresses lodgings, Gen. 23. 2. as it were to put her in possession of them, in Sarah his mothers stead, and there to be married to her solemnly.

CHAP. XXV. VERS. 1.

TOoke] Some have held, that he tooke her whilst Sarah was yet living, but it is uncertaine; & this strength to beget Children, was miraculously re [...]ewed in him, whereby he begat not only Isaac, but all these besides. Wife] That is to say Concubine, verse 6. 1 Chron. 1. 32. Such women were married by the custome of inhabiting together, but were not partakers of their husbands dignity and estate, as the true wives, called Ladies: An abuse of Gods first Ordinance, tolerated in those dayes, Gen. 30. 4, 9.

V. 2. Zi [...]ram] These were the heads of many people of Arabia, and neighbouring Nations.

V. 3. Ashurim] See concerning these names that have a plurall termination, Gen. 10. 4.

V. 5. Gave] Made him his full and generall heire.

V. 6. The East Country] Called afterwards Arabia, which people were called the children of the East, or Easterne in regard of Palestina. See Judg. 6. 3. and 7. 12. Job 1. 3.

V. 8. Gathered] See upon Gen. 15. 15.

V. 13. According] As they have beene set down in their Registers, and Genealogies: and their names as being heads of Nations, have remained to their posterity.

Nebaioth] The Nabateans, and the Chadarens, named in histories amongst the people of Arabia, descended from these.

V. 16. By their] That is to say, the names of these heads were given to the places where their p [...]st [...]rity dwelt; which through the craggednesse of the Countrey, were either strong castles, or unwall'd townes.

V. 18. And he dyed, &c.] The Italian hath, And his Countrey fell to him before all his brethren] As well that which he first inhabited, as that which hee afterwards usurped.

V. 20. Padan Aram] was a part of Mesopotamia, where Charran was.

V. 22. Struggled] By an extraordinary and prodigious kind of moving, which was by Rebecca her selfe found to be such. If it be so] fore-seeing by this prodigi [...] that her burthen was of two breth [...]e [...], which should hate, and hurt one another. To enquire] By some Prophet, or by some divine revelation, in a dreame, or by some Angels message; obtained by prayers and devotion.

V. 23. Two nations] The heads of two nations, the one blessed, and the other rejected. Shall be stronger] bodily, the people issuing from Jacob, the younger, shall [Page] bring into subjection, the other which issued from the Elder, 2 Sam. 8 14. 1 King. 22. 48. and spiritually the Church, little and weake in the world shall overcome by the word, and by the spirit, and by the power of God, the world, and its kingdome, represented by the wicked Idumeans, perpetuall and capitall enemies to Gods people.

Shall serve] Being by me bere [...] of his right of first borne, which was to command his brethren, and all the house under his Father, Gen. 4. 7. and 49. 3. See concerning this accursed slavery, Mal. 1. 3.

V. 25. *R [...]*a] That is with a red hayre all over his body. Esau] That is to say, a man of his hands, valiant and of deeds, as ordinarily your red and hairy men are: Or a man already wholly formed; because that when a body is hairy; he is a man already, and not like a new borne babe.

V. 26. Tooke hold] A miraculous signe, to signifie that Jacob should in a manner strike up Esau's heels, by getting away his birth-right: and that the Church by the only power of the spirit, should overthrow her enemies, though mightier than she. Iacob] That is to say, supplanter, or a wrestler, that striketh up ones heeles.

V. 27. Hunter] The qualities of the Children of the world, to be violent and fierce, and of the children of God to be simple and milde, are here pointed out, by the two different natures of these two brothers. See Gen. 10. 9. Of the field] A man having a sociable, civill, and homely life, loving to live in the fields. Dwelling] homely, stayed, and peacefull.

V. 29. Sod] All this was brought to passe by a secret providence of God, which doth not for all that cleare Jacob from all manner of deceit, and evill cunning: yet makes Esau his prophanenesse evident, in despising that which was taken from him by Gods decree, v. 23.

V. 30. Edom] That is to say, red; Gods people used this name more than the other: Esau in remembrance of this voluntary sale, which justified their contention against the Idumeans, their perpetuall emulators and adversaries, Amos 1. 11. deriving this name more from the red pottage, than from his haire, ver. 25.

V. 31. Thy] Which in those dayes carryed the Patriarchship with it, and the first degree in the blessed race, and the dignity of the sacred function. See Gen. 4. 7. Exod. 19. 22. Num. 8. 16. to this is answerable the spirituall birth-right of the Church, Exod. 4. 22. Jer. 31. 9. Ja. 1. 18.

V. 32. I am at] That is to say, I am mortall, and any manner of living doth daily expose me to a thousand dangers: why should I then debarre my selfe of a present pleasure, for this imaginary dignity? Here is his prophanenesse found noted in him, Heb. 12. 16. whereby hee despised the signes, and earnestes of the spirituall graces▪

VNto thee] To thy person will I now presently give the use, and peaceable, and sure enjoying of it; and to thy posterity, the possession and proprietie.

V. 5. Because that] God doth fulfill his promises, for the same reason, by which he was moved to make them; which is nothing else but his meere grace, and not mans works, Rom. 4. 4. But because between the promise, and the accomplishment hee hath ordained the way of faith and obedience, on mans side, Gen. 17. 9. The Scripture doth often attribute the effect, not to the Sovereigne, and only cause, but to means well observed. See Genesis 22. 16. to incite man to his duty.

V. 8. Sporting [Using some pleasant familiarity of a husband.

V. 14. Of servants] Or a great deale of land to manure.

V. 16. For thou] Because thy great number of people is a hinderance to us; and thy power, and wealth, breeds a jealousie: wherefore for our security, and to the end we may continue friends, it were good thou shouldest go [...] further from us.

V. 20. Ezek] That is to say, strife.

V. 21. Sitna] Enmity, hatred, opposition.

V. 22. Reh [...]both] Making of roome. He shall be] The Italian hath it, We being] or we may be fruitfull in the land: or, as we shall increase.

V. 24. Sake] Alwayes regarding what I promised to Abraham, and his progeny: the conditions of which promise hee hath faithfully kept. So that the blessing of his off-spring proceedeth alwayes from this h [...]ad or fountaine.

V. 29. That thou wilt] The Italian hath it, if ever thou shalt] A manner of swearing amongst the Jewes, the execration being alwayes understood to bee meant, to which hee was to bee subject, that did forswear himselfe. Thou art] The Italian hath it, Thou who a [...]t] Hee like a prophane man, attributeth unto himselfe, to bee partly the cause of Gods blessing; as if it had laine in his power to hinder it.

V. 33. Called it] That is to say, confirmed the name which Abraham had given it before. See the one and twentieth Chapter of Genesis, and the one and thirtieth verse. For this was one of those wells, which the Philistims had stopped up before. City] Which was thereby, or which afterwards was builded there.

V. 34. Judith] It may seeme by Gen. 36. 2. that [Page] these women and their fathers had severall names, which thing was very frequent. Or that Esau had divers wives.

V. 35. Griefe] The Italian hath it, bitternesse] and so hath the Hebrew: which was for their Idolatries, impieties, and prophane customes.

CHAP. XXVII. VERS. 4.

MEat] In all this we ought to look, not so much to mens actions, who cannot excuse themselves from being defective and crosse: as to the execution of Gods Oracle, Genesis 25. 23. which was by these meanes, directed through his sacred providence. See Genesis 25. 29. My soule] That is to say, that I may with a good will, and with all mine heart declare thee to be mine heire, and successor in the right of the spirituall blessing and Gods Covenant, and also to be the head of the blessed race. Now it seemeth, that either Isaac had not rightly understood the said Oracle; or that it was grievous to him to obey it.

V. 7. Before the] By his authority and approbation, presenting my selfe before him, as in a religious act, to desire the confirmation of his grace.

V. 8. Obey] Rebecca did understand the Oracle, Gen. 25. 23. and did desire to bring it to passe: there was no defect in her, but only in the meanes which she used, which God suffered, and made to serve for his worke.

V. 13. Thy curse] This great confidence in Rebecca sheweth, either a strong inspiration, and conduct of God; or a certaine knowledge of, and faith in the aforesaid Oracle.

V. 16. The hands] &c. which are the naked and uncovered parts of the body, by which also Isaac embracing of, and touching his son, might have knowne him.

V. 23. Blessed him] That is to say, wished him all manner of good, because that here the [...]e is not yet the formall, and patriarchall blessing which is contained ver. 28, 29.

V. 27. Smelt] It is very likely that these clo [...]thes were perfumed with some sweet sent; which being smelt by Isaac, excited in him this joy of spirit. The meaning and sense is: As a faire and fruitfull parcell of land recreates the senses, especially the smelling, through its flowers and fruits; so I do finde my selfe exceedingly delighted in the presence of that of my Children, upon which Gods blessing must rest: who shall also bring forth the true fruits thereof in piety, and holinesse.

V. 28. God] This vertue con [...]a [...]neth the promises which belong to this life, made unto his piety: the next hath r [...]spect to the spirituall ones.

V 29. Serve thee] That is to say, let the whole Church comprehended in thee and thy posterity, and represented now in thee, obtaine the right of inheriting the world: and of the spirituall liberty and dominion over the creatures, and other men, who are but servants in the house. See Genesis 9. 25. and 25. 23. Isaiah 49. 23 Gal. 4. 25, 26. Rev. 3. 9. Thy brethren] Figuratively are understood all the men of the world, that are of the same nature as the faithfull: Cursed] by God, who taketh upon him all that is done either for, or against his Church,

V. 33. Trembled] By reason of his astonishment, seeing he had done otherwise than he intended: and there was also a kinde of divine motion, whereby God revealed unto Isaac, or put him in mind of his decree concerning his Children: inclining him through a religious feare to consent unto it. And hee shall] This blessing shall stand firme and irrevocable.

V. 34. A great] With griefe that he had irrecoverably lost that good, yet without conversion or repentance.

V. 35. Thy blessing] That which seemed by right to belong to thee, as first borne.

V. 37 What shall I doe] This prerogative of being the stocke of the blessed race, must not be divided, it must remaine whole and entire, and cannot bee communicated to unbelievers, and children of the world, which are represented by Esau.

V. 38. Hast thou] These words shew that Esau had no understanding, nor did not apprehend this true blessing, which is single and onely one. And if hee had in earnest desired to have him partaker of it, hee must have sought for it, by holding with Jacob, and with the true Church, as a member, not as head.

V. 39 The fatnesse] The Italian hath it, In the sat places of the earth] So all the blessings of worldly men consist in temporall goods, not in the grace and covenant of God.

V. 40. Shalt thou live] Though thy p [...]sterity shall bee subj [...]cted to the Israelites, yet shall they defend themselves from them, with armes in their hands Ezec. 25. 12. Amos 1. 11 A pourtraiture of the world, in maintaining it selfe in power and might against the Church, which in right and in spirit ought to bee mistresse of it: When thou shalt have the dominion] The Italian hath it, When thou shalt have groaned] That is to say, when thy progeny hath been oppressed, and subdued; others have i [...], When thou shalt have overcome▪ See 2 Kings 8. 20. A signe that the Church oft [...]n loseth her right, she h [...]h over the world in temporall things, but never in spirituall, and everlasting things.

V. 43. Haran] The Italian hath it Charan. See Gen. 11. 31. and upon Gen. 24. 4, 10.

V. 45. Of you both] Of thee if Esau should [...]ay thee: and of him also, who by killing of thee would bee guilty of Capitall punishment. G [...]nesis 9. 6. and would stand accursed, and finally punished by God Himselfe, as [Page] Cain was.

V. 46. Of my life] Rebecca would have Jacob, by the occasion of seeking a wife out of the holy race, to obtaine leave of his father, with his good liking and blessing.

CHAP. XXVIII. VERSE 9.

VNto Ishmael] That is to say, to the Ishmaelites, for Ishmael was dead, Gen. 25. 17. Ma [...]aleth] Called also by the name of Bashemath, Genesis 36. 3.

V. 12. A Ladder] This vision signifieth the Communication which the Elect have with God, through the mediation of Jesus Christ, and the Covenant of grace founded upon him, through which God takes notice and care of their wants, and prayers which are brought unto him by his Angels: and doth miraculously afford them ayd. See Joh. 1. 51.

V. 15. Untill I] The Scripture doth often use this manner of speech, not to exclude the time which followeth after the prefixed time; but onely to assure the thing against that time, when it seemeth to bee most doubtfull and dangerous. See Psalme 110. 1. Matth. 28. 20.

V. 16. The Lord] As if he said, God appeareth in this Country of Infidels, as well as in my Fathers house, where I thought this gift had beene peculiar, and restrain'd to that place.

V. 17. Dreadfull] Through the glorious apparition of God, which alwayes brings terrour to the frailtie and Conscience of the sinfull man, This is] The Italian hath it, This place is] This place seemeth to bee a place of the particular presence and residence of God; and from hence man seemeth to have Heaven open to communicate with God, and have accesse to his Throne. Words of an abstracted mind; for there was no worth nor holinesse annexed unto this place: yea the Israelites were condemned in following ages, for holding this superstitious opinion, 1 King. 12. 29, 32.

V. 18. A pillar] For a remembrance of this apparition. Oyle] Which was used in the consecration of places, and persons, Exod. 30. 25. and 40. 9.

V. 19. Bethel] That is, the house of God. Citie] That is, neare unto the place of this vision.

V. 20. Vowed a vow] This manner of ceremoniall service was then in use, and so it was afterward with many such like observations, afterwards confirmed and ruled in Moses Law: If God] Not that he doubted of Gods promises, or that he would bargaine with God, like one that were mercenary, but by this it must bee understood; when, or after, that these good things shall have chanced unto me, according to Gods promises I doe promise him service therefore, with an expresse and solemne acknowledgement.

V. 21. Shall] That is to say, I will serve him faithfully, and will worship him as mine only God.

V. 22. Gods house] A place of devotion, prayer, and sacrifice. See Genesis 35. 7. The tenth] See upon Gen. 14. 20.

OF the East] That is of Mesopotamia, East of Palestina, from whence he went.

V. 8. We cannot] Either because the shepherds of those three flockes, verse 2. were not able to roll away the stone: or because by some common order they were forbidden.

V. 12. Brother] That is to say, next of kindred▪ or nephew.

V. 13 All these] The cause and whole progresse of his voyage, as it is above set downe.

V. 14 Thou art] I doe truely acknowledge thee and doe love thee dearely, as thy nearest kins-man, of my bloud and linage.

V. 21. I may goe in] A modest phrase to signifie cohabitation.

V. 27. Her weeke] Or the feast of Leahs wedding Judg. 14. 12.

V. 31. Hated] Lesse beloved, scorned, or neglected. See Deut. 21. 15. Matth. 6. 24. Luke 14. 26.

V. 32. Reuben] Or sonne of regard, or regard of affliction.

V. 33. Simeon] That is heard.

V. 34. Levi] That is, conjunction.

V. 35. Iuda] That is, the Lords praise.

CHAP. XXX. VERS. 3.

BEhold] See above Genesis 16. 2. Upon my] I will receive, adopt, and bring up the Children shee shall bring forth, as if they were mine owne. See Gen. 50. 23.

V. 4. *To w [...]*e] That is to say, to be thy Concubine, Genesis 35. 22. See upon Genesis 25. 1. yet the sonnes which Jacob had by these Concubines did inherit with their other brothers, by reason that they were adopted by his lawfull wives.

V. 6. Iudged mee] The Italian hath it, Done me [...] right] Namely, of the wrong my sister did me, through her contempt of me, and by her insulting over mee.

V. 8. Wrestled] I have strived with my sister concerning Children, and have overcome; [...]or I also through Gods blessing have had some. *N [...]*pt [...]ali] that is wrestling.

V. 11. God] That is to say, Good luck.

V. 13. Daughters] The Italian hath it, Women] The Hebrew hath, the daughters. Asher] Happie fortunate.

V. 14. *Mand [...]*kes] Nam [...]ly appl [...]s of this roote or plant, which are fragrant, and of a good colour, [Page] Cant. 7. 13.

V. 15. Shall lie] Hence it seemeth that Jacob did oftener and more frequently cohabit with Rachel, as with his first and true wife, and best beloved. Or that he abstained from Leah, after shee ceased to bring forth.

V. 16. Hired thee] I have bargained with my sister, that thou shouldest lie with me this night.

V. 18.] Because I] A rash reason in regard of God: but such a one, as according to men, may have some colour. Issachar] That is, or recompence.

V. 2 [...] Zabulon] That is, dwelling.

V. 23. Reproach] For barrennesse was opprobrious in women in those dayes: See Luke 1. 25.

V 24. Ioseph] This name in Hebrew hath a double sense, either to take away the reproach, or to adde, namely a new posterity.

V. 26. For] Seeing that I have faithfully performed my bargaine, and my time is out.

V. 27. If I have] A broken kind of speech, which must be supplied, if thou beest my friend heare mee, let us yet treat together: Learned by experience] the Italian hath it, I sore-bode] Laban being an Idolater, and superstitious, Gen. 31. 19. useth a terme of a damned art, which peradventure he did practice.

V. 32. Browne] Under this denomination are comprehended the black, and sad coloured. Such shall] all the spotted, or browne sheepe or goates, which shall bee brought forth by white ones, which he therefore drawes out, as if hee contented himselfe with a very small likely-hood of gaine.

V. 33. It shall] The Italian hath, When thou shalt contend with mee. My righteousnesse] My innocence shall be made manifest to thee, because that what is thine shall bee marked, and so shall what is mine. Browne] By the precedent verse is knowne, that under this colour are comprehended and to bee understood the spotted, and speckled.

V. 35. White] Namely mingled with other colours.

V. 36. Betwixt himselfe] Betwixt his servants, his children, and his spotted and brown flocks. The rest] Namely them that were all white.

V. 37. Rods] This art hath some reason in nature, for in the act of ingendring, an obj [...]ct lively imprinted in the imagination, or in the common sence, may frame some likenesse of it selfe in the thing that is brought forth: but this being seldome and uncertaine we must acknowledge that in this numerous and certaine production of spotted cattell Gods providence did work miraculously, see Gen. 31. 8. Hasell] O [...] Almond-tree. Chesnuti-tree] or Platane.

V. 4. Iacob did] After he had kept all the spotted and brown broods for himselfe, he would drive them in severall flocks before Laban's white beasts, in the time of their joyning, to give them the greater impression of their colour. The Lambes] Under which must also be understood

V. 41. The stronger Cattell] Those which joyne in the spring, which is the best season for brood, as well for the hees which are then most vigorous, as for the ewes which feed better in the Summer, and for the young ones: which being brought forth in Autumne, are exempt and free from the great droughts, and partching heat of Summer.

V. 42. Feeble] That is, those that shall be begotten at the autumnall coupling.

VNto thy kinred] The Italian hath it: Unto thy native place.]

V. 5. But the] He wisheth mee evill wrongfully, seeing I have been faithfull to him and likewise lucky for his profit, through the blessing of God.

V. 8. If [...]ee said] Laban had agreed with Jacob, Genesis 30. 32. that generally all the Sheep or Goats which were spotted, browne, or black, should be his; but afterwards seeing that those coloured broods, multiplyed beyond his expectation, he restrained them to one of these colours.

V. 10. The Rams] the Italian hath it: The he goats] The sense is, that God by this vision sheweth him how he would by myracle work this bringing forth of spotted broods, from flockes that were all white, as if the old ones had beene of the same spotted colour.

V. 11. The Angell] The Sonne of God Himselfe, v. 13. See Gen. 16. 7. and 18. 13. and 22, 11.

V. 12. For I] Because Laban is ingratefull and disloyall unto thee, and the bargaine which thou hast made with him, depends wholly upon me: I will favour thee by miracle.

V. 13. Of Bethel] The same God which appeared to thee in that place, and who doth take care of thee, as at that time I did promise thee.

V. 15. Sold us] That is to say married us at a certaine price, and in manner of bargaining by which he hath made profit, and hath not given it us for our portions, as reason and custome required.

V. 16. That is ours] By right, without this meanes, wherein God hath wrought so miraculously; should have beene ou [...],s, for the part of our Fathers goods, which belongeth unto us, and for thy service.

V. 19. Had stollen] It is not set downe to what end, but it is likely that she was infected with her fathers, and his households Idolatry, see Gen. 35. 2. Jos. 24. 2. The Images] The Italian hath it, The Idols] they were certaine little humane pictures, consecrated to bee little household, and moveable Gods: v. 30. 1 Sam. 19. 13. The Hebrew word signifieth, pollutions, a common name to Idols. Now it is likely that Laban's Idolatry, did not runne so far as to worship the Pagans false gods, but to worship the [Page] true God, in certaine representations and remembrances: see Exod. 32. 4, 5. 2 Kings 10. 28, 29.

V. 21. The river] That is Euphrates. Gilead] so called by anticipation: v. 47.

V. 23. His brethren] That is to say his neerest Kindred.

V. 24. Speak not] The Italian hath it, That thou come not to words] That is to say of strife, neither to contend with him, nor yet to do him any violence.

V. 33. Leahs] See of these severall roomes for women, for civilitie: Gen. 24. 67.

V. 40. Thus I was] The Italian, *I have carried my self [...]*o] I have served thee with all diligence, vigilancy, and fidelity, and have been alwayes present and ready, when they businesse hath required it.

V. 41. Ten times] That is as much as to say, many times.

V. 42. The feare] The true God who hath so often appeared to Isaac in his terrible Majestie, a thing opposite to the vaine terrours of Idolaters.

V. 43. These] Since thou art so neere unto me, I hold thy good to be my good, and therefore do not intend to do thee any wrong.

V. 44. Let it be] Let this formalitie of agreement, put us in minde of our enterchangeable bond, and tie us thereunto more strictly, by reason of the oath which passed therein.

V. 45. A pillar] A monument of this agreement on Jacobs side, as the heap of stones on Labans.

V. 46. They did eat] Namely after that they had sworne: v. 54.

V. 47. Johar-Sagadutha] This is a Syriack name: Galed the Hebrew: and they both signifie the selfe same thing, that is a heap of witnesse. So it is manifest that the holy language, remained pure in the blessed generation, together with the pure service of God. Gaced] The Italian hath Galed, so by a little change, afterward was framed the name of Galaad.

V. 48. This day] Is set for a remembrance of our covenant [...].s.

V. 49. Mizpah] That is a view, or watch tower.

V. 51. Betwixt me] To be as a bound, or a barre, to stay all our differences, and every evill thought.

V. 53. The God] The Italian hath it, The Gods] It appeareth by Jos. 24. 2. that before Abrahams departure they served God in his fathers house, in pictures, and representations, which are in that place called strange Gods, because that prophane nations did use it. And it seemeth Laban would confirme his idelatrie, as being the true Divine service, used by his ancestors.

V. 54. Sacrifice] To give thanks for the preservation and blessing of the covenants. And in these sacrifices, after they had offered unto God those parts which were due unto him, the rest was spent in holy feasts of mirth: 1. Sam. 9. 12. and 16. 2. To eat] That is to say to take food.

CHAP. XXXII. VERS. 1.

The Angels] In humane shape, well known to Jacob, by their brightnesse, agilitie, and other signes.

V. 2. Mahanaim] That is to say host, or camp: the one of Angels, the other of his own company.

V. 3. Seir] See Gen. 14. 6. and 36. 20. Of Edom] In that part of the Horims, which Esau otherwise called Edom possessed, and was named according to his name: Deut. 2. 22.

V. 8. If Esau] Peradventure he will vent his anger upon one and spare the other.

V. 10. I am not worthy] The Italian hath it, I am lesse then all] They infinitely go beyond any power I have to deserve them; and any abilitie I have to worthily acknowledge them.

V. 11. The mother] A proverbiall manner of speaking, as much as to say without any mercy or distinction: see Hos. 10. 14.

V. 16. Every drove] This distinction, and distance was to stay Esau his first violence.

V. 21. In the company] The Italian hath it, in the camp] that is, in the midst of his tents, which were in manner of a camp.

V. 22. Sonnes] That is to say the males, for Dina was the twelfth.

V. 24. A man] It was the son of man in humane shape, as it appeareth by the whole narration and by Hos. ch. 12. 4, 5. Now by all this action he would shew Jacob, what trialls he would make of his faith, and constancy, in all difficulties which should be set before him, by him, and by the happy issue that he would grant him, and by this meanes give the Church an instruction touching the good combat of faith.

V. 25. He touched] A figure to shew that all the spirituall victories of the faithfull in this world, are marked with some notable frailty which God giveth them a lively feeling of, to humble them: see 2 Cor. 12. 7. Was out of joint] the bone was driven out of the joint, and though it was quickly put in againe, yet did it leave paine, and weaknesse behind it.

V. 26. Let me go] This is said to kindle in Jacob the desire of holding the Lord so much the more: as Luke 24. 28, 29.

Breaketh] A figure to signifie, that after the night of afflictions, comes the bright day of consolations: in which night, faith ought not to slack, but to grow stronger, to obtaine from God the fruit of the victory, as he hath granted him strength to fight. I will not let thee] Representing unto us, that the faithfull man, in his victory, and in his infirmities which he acknowledges in it, cannot rest securely, untill God through his Spirit have assured him, that he is in his favour, that he accepteth of his faithfulness, and remits unto him his defects. It may [Page] very well be that Jacob did not understand all these mysteries, in that instant, and did not know his wrestler: but God inspired him with some words from whence grew occasion of instructing, and illuminating him. Except thou] Jacobs intention indeed seemes to be no other, then to intreat his wrestler to go away from him in peace, and friend-ship. But the Son of God grants him, and makes him feele another blessing, namely a Divine one in the approbation of his faith, and in the assurednesse of his crown of glory, in the eternall sight of God, whereof he would also have his changed name to beare a signe.

V. 28. Israel] That is Gods valiant, or valiant with God; with which name Jacobs posteritie was rather honoured, than he himself, who did not leave his old name. And it seemeth that this name of strength and valour, was opposite to the name of Jacob, which shewed a certaine weaknesse of humane cunning and deceit: Gen. 25, 26. and 27. 36. With God] in all the trialls which I have sent thee, wherein the outward appearance might make thee judg that I was against thee, and likewise in the oppositions which thou hast had with m [...]n as Esau, Laban, &c. thou hast obtained victory, through thy faith in me: 1 Joh. 5. 4, 5. now by these words Jacob was enlightened to know who it was that spake with him.

V. 29. Wherefore] Thou knowest my name well enough; but by that thou canst it not fully comprehend, the person of him that beares it: Judg. 13. 18. let it suffice thee to see some small beame of it, and feele some effect of my grace, who am thy true God, whom thou knowest and worshippest. Blessed him] in some manner so evidently divine, that Jacob presently knew him: and with all apprehended the meaning of the aforesaid mysteries.

V. 30. Peniel] That is, the face, or sight of God. Face] Not in a dreame, or in a vision, but with mine eyes, waking, and having the use of my senses, free and entire I have seen my God, in divine, and unspeakable glory; though indeed it was but in a bodily shape, and in a small beame, not in that essence, naked, and simple majestie of God, which is the true face of God, and is not visible in this world. Ps 17. 15. 1 Cor. 13. 12. 1 Joh. 3. 2. My life] I have not been cast down dead to the ground, by this presence: see upon Gen. 16. 13.

V. 32. I herefore] This observance being onely for a remembrance, and not for any superstition, is not blamed. Sinew] The Italian hath it, Muskle] Annot. the Hebrew word signifieth properly a Sinew, but because one doth not use to eat Sinewes it seemeth that it should be understood of the great muscle of the joint of the thigh, which from thence extendeth it selfe downwards. The Hebrew word signifieth, Borrowed, that is to say, applied on the out-side. Others expound, drawn u [...], or shrunk, namely by this accident.

CHAP. XXXIII. VERS. 8.

DRove] The Italian hath it, This host] That great multitude of cattel which thou hast sent to present me withall: Gen. 32. 13.

V. 10. For therefore] The good of having seen thee, and been friendly entertained by thee bindeth me unto it, and the fruit that I desire of this enterview, is that thou wilt shew good will towards me, and accept of what is mine: see upon Gen. 18. 5. As though] A proverbiall, and hyperbolicall kinde of speech: see 2 Sam. 14. 17. 20.

V. 12. I will go before thee] The Italian hath it, I will beare thee company] The Hebrew, I will go beside thee. Which may also be understood, I will accommodate my going to thine.

V. 14. Untill I] Yet it is not said that he did go thither, be it either because he altered his minde, or because the Scripture hath not spoken of it, or that Jacob dissembled his intention, to get away from his brother, whose sight did yet terrifie him.

V. 15. Leave with thee] For to guide, and guard thee. Let me] A courteous manner of refusing, as if he should say, I pray do not.

V 17. Succoth] That is to say cottages, or booths, it was a place beyond Jordan.

V. 18. Came] The Italian hath it, Arrived safe and sound] according to others, to Salem a City of Shichem: and so the ancient name of the City should have been Salem: Joh. 3. 23. afterwards changed into Shichem, Hemors sons name.

V. 19. Peeces] Hebrew, Chesite that is lambes, according to the opinion of some, but it seemeth it was some coine with this stampe: See Job 42. 11.

V. 20. El] The Italian hath it, God the God] Not to attribute Gods name to that Altar: but by this title he would shew to whom it was consecrated, and by whom it was consecrated, that is to say Jacob, whose name God had newly changed into Israel, for a new earnest of grace: see Gen. 35. 7. Jerem. 23. 6. and 33. 16. Ezech 48. 35.

CHAP. XXXIV. VERS. 5.

HEld his peace] He durst not make his complaint against the offender, nor crave justice, for feare of ostending, having no meanes to defend himself.

V. 7. In Israel] In Jacobs family, which began [Page] already to beare the forme of a people, under the name of Israel, which was a glorious title of the continuance of Gods covenant: see Gen. 33. 20. and Deut. 22. 21.

V. 12. Dowrie] Either the ordinary one which the husband giveth to the wife, Gen. 31. 14. or some extraordinary one, ordained by the Laws, or by custome in the behalf of defloured maidens: see Exod. 22. 16, 17. Deut. 22. 18, 19

V. 19 More] The greatest, the heire, the second person, whereby he might through his authoritie and example, perswade his Citizens to his will.

V. 20 The gate] To the Court of the Citie: See Gen. 22. 17 and 23. 10

V. 23 Shall not their] Incorporating them into our communitie, we shall make profit of their goods by way of alliance, or commerce, whereby our city will grow more powerfull.

V. 24 Went out] All the Citizens and inhabitants of the City: Others, that it was none but the chief, who had admittance and a place in Councill.

V. 25 Sore] See Jos. 5. 8. and therefore were unable to defend themselves. Brethren] both by father, and by mother side. Boldly] into the Gity which lived securely, without any feare or suspicion.

V. 30 Gather themselves] But God provided for it: by a terrour he sent amongst those people: Gen. 35. 5

CHAP. XXXV. VERS. 2.

STrange] That is false; or worshipped by the strangers to our Nation, (which alone is holy, and blessed) These idols were come out of Labans house, Gen. 31. 19. 34. Ios. 24. 2. or peradventure also by meanes of some servants, that came out from among the wicked nations, which Iacob had in his house: Be cleane] Namely inwardly from sin, and outwardly from all corporall and ceremoniall impurities: for which before Moses Law, there was some Law from God: See Exod. 19 10. as well as for many other rites.

V. 4 Eare-rings] Either because there might be some Pagan superstition in them, because he would utterly canc [...]]l, all markes of the Chaldeans customes whence these came, and where these eare-rings were used both by men and women: Iud. 8. 24. Or because he would present his family to God, in a habit of humilitie, and repentance: See Exod. 33 4, 5. Hid them] That is to say buried them privately.

V. 7 El-bethel] The Italian hath it, The God of Bethel] See upon Gen. 33. 20

V. 8 Allon Bachuth] The Italian hath it, The [...]]ake of weeping] It may be that this weeping hath a reference to that which is written: Hos. 12. 4

V. 9 When he came] While he was yet in the way, before he came to his fathers house.

V. 10 Called his] Confirmed in a vision his name which the

Angell had already give him: Genes. 32. 28

V. 13 Vent up] See upon Gen. 17. 22

V. 14 A drink offering] The Italian hath it, An offering to be spilt] Of liquid things, as of wine, and oile, to give God thanks, according to Iacobs vow: Gen. 28. 21, 22 and to consecrate that stone, Gen. 28. 18

V. 15 Called the name] That is, confirmed it solemnely, in the presence of all his family, and published that name which he had given it in secret: Gen. 28. 19

V. 16 A little way] Or a mile: 2 of Kin. 5. 19

V. 18 Benoni] The son of my sorrow. Benjamin] son of my right hand, as who should say, staffe of my old age: see Psal. 80. 17

V. 26 Padan-Aram] In the Italian it is verse 27 save only Benjamin.

CHAP. XXXVI. VERS. 2.

ADah] These women and their fathers were diversly named. Gen. 26. 34 and 28. 9. either because they had more names, or for some other unknown reason. And that is very frequent in Scripture.

V. 6 Into the countrey] That is to say further up into the countrey, others have it in another countrey. From the face] voluntarily yeelding the place unto him. Now Esau was before well seated in Seir: Gen. 33. 14 16. having left his fathers house because of his wives: and because he saw himself excluded from the holy race, to whom the Land of Canaan was allotted by Gods order and promise. Yet it is very likely that he did yet frequent the Land of Canaan, and had some houshold there till that after the death of Isaac, he altogether remained in Seir, to avoid all occasion of strife with Jacob.

V. 11 Zepho] This name with diverse others that follow, are diversly set down: 1 Chron. 1. 36

V. 12 Timua] It may be the same which is mentioned v. 22 as Aholibama 21. 2. was the same as the Horite was v. 25. and it is likely that these alliances with the Horites, Esau his posteritie settled themselves in that countrie which at the last he made himself master of, destroying the ancient inhabitants: Deut. 2. 22

V. 15 Dukes] That is heads, and Princes, according to whose number the countrie was divided into severall [Page] principalities, and peradventure under one only supreme Lord, head of all the nation. Now in this partition Eliphaz, as first borne, had a double part, his six sons being made Dukes, as Esau his own children were: see a like example 1 Chron. 5. 1. Those of Revel were so also, it may be in part to equall Basemats progenie who had but one sonne, with Aholib [...]us who had three.

V. 16. Korah] This is not named amongst the children of Eliphaz v. 11. and therefore it is very likely he was his nephew.

V. 20. Inhabitea] Who there had their habitation, and command, untill such time as Esau, and his posteritie did drive them out of [...]t. Deuteron. 2. 22.

V. 24. The Mules] By the mixture of the two kinds the asse, and the horse: So the Hebrews interpret it. Others believe the word may be understood of certaine hot waters, or minerall waters which he found out.

V. 31. The Kings] Moses sets down the Kings which had been in Idumea before his time, which he sheweth had been tyrants, and usurpers; or elective Princes without any right of succession: seeing they were of diverse Cities: and those being extinguished, the state returned to its first forme, of diverse Dukes: v. 40. Any King] before any forme of supreme government was established amongst the people of God, which began in Moses called a King. Deut. 33. 5. So Esau condemned to servitude, raigneth in the beginning, whilst Israel, who was the right master serveth in Aegypt, but that was but for a little while, untill the Kingdom of Israel was established, and then Esau is subject unto it. A pourtraiture of the world, which raigneth in this age, untill the Kingdome be given to the Saints: Daniel 7. 22. 27.

V. 37. By the river] A City standing by Euphrates: Gen. 10, 11.

V. 39. The daughter] Or neece.

V. 40. *The Duk [...]*s] After the Kings of Edom were failed, for some reason which is not set down, the Countrie was againe governed by Dukes: and it should seem that the heads of Esau his nation, came into their states againe. And because here they are but eleven, whereas before they were fourteen v. 15. it is to be thought that some families were quite extinct, or joyned to some other, to strengthen themselves.

CHAP. XXXVII. VERS. 1.

And Jacob] This is a continuation of the narration broken off from Gen. 36. 7.

V. 2. The generations] Described Gen. 35. 23. now this [...] seemeth to be added to take on the course of Jacobs history, after the interweaving of Esaus. Was feeding] By reason of his youth, and through the envie of his brethren, he was held in the degree of a servant, and in the company of the hand-maidens sons, Jacobs concubines, whom it is likely the other brethren disdained. [...] Of some facts or wickednesses not set d [...]w [...] in this place.

V. 7. Were b [...]nd [...]ng] These two dre [...]mes signified the self same thing, namely Joseph [...] exal [...]ion above his brethren, and their submission to him in their necessitie, and the honour Jone to him by his father, in sending his children to him, before they kn [...]w him.

V. 10. Rebuked him] Being not yet perswaded that they were divine dream [...]s; or to trie whether there were no childish vanitie in this his saying, or to abate his brethrens anger. Thy mother] Rachel Josephs mother was already dead: Gen. 35. 19. but here is understood Leah his mother in Law, who was Jacobs then only lawfull wife.

V. 25. A company] A great company of merchants, and travaillers, which were wont to travaile that way in great companies, fearing the dangers of the countrie: see Job 6.

19. Balm] or rozen. Myrrhe] namely liquide myrrhe, or Ladano.

V. 28. Midianites] It is likely that this people was mixed of Ismaelites, Midianites, and Medanites: see Gen. 16. 15. and 25. 2.

V. 29. Reuben] Who was not present at Josephs sale, and beli [...]ved that his brothers had indeed killed him: Gen. 42. 22. He rent] a custome amongst the men of old times in some unexpected evill news, or in some cruell case.

V. 34. Sack-cloth] Or haire-cloth, or a rough-cloth, a habit of mourning.

V. 35. Daughters] Jacob had never a daughter but Dina, so that we musthere understand to be meant his wifes, and his sons daughters. The grave] The Hebrew phrase signifieth grave, and hell, for by Gods Law, the reward of sin is both corporall, and eternall death: but through grace they are several for the faithfull. Therefore we ought to distinguish of this name, which is common to both deaths, according to the diversitie of the subject to which it is attributed: and in the meane time the name of grave remaineth amongst the Hebrews, marked with it's naturall horror, which is to be the entrance into hel, but only that God through his grace delivereth man from thence.

V. 36. An Officer] The Italian hath it, An Eunuch] This name signifieth a man that is gelded, but because such kind of people were much employed about Princes Courts, the name hath been put upon all manner of Officers, though not gelded, as it should seem this man was not, seeing he had a wife. Of the guard] the Italian, Of the guards] the Hebrew word signifieth executioners: for in the old time Princes guards were wont to do many capitall executions: see Jer. 39. 9. Dan. 2. 14. Mark. 6. 27.

AT that time] Of Jacobs remaining in Canaan, for it should seem that this happened before, Joseph was sold, and is here inserted, to shew. Gods admirable providence, who hath caused the royall st [...]mme of Israel, and our Lord Jesus Christ according to the flesh to proceed from such beginnings. Adullamite] of the City of Adullam, which afterwards fell to Judah.

V. 5. Chezi [...] a place also called Aczib: Jos. 19. [...]

V. 7. Was wicked] the Italian, was displeasing▪ or was wicked in Gods eyes.

V. 8. Marry her] The Italian addeth, By reason of consanguinity] This custome that the brother, or the neerest of kinne who was unmarried, should marry his brother or next kinsmans wife, which died without issue, was already brought in amongst Gods people, questionlesse by some expression from God, which was afterwards confirmed by Moses Law. Deut. 25. 5. Raise up] Beger issue which may beare thy deceased brothers name, and may be reputed for his: which thing, in those dayes when issue was esteemed the greatest temporall blessing, it seemeth was ordained for their comforts who died without children, as adopting hath since been used for the same [...]

V. 9. Should not be] Yet Moses Law: Deut. 25. 6. sets down, that the first borne only should be reputed his that was deceased, and not they which came afterward.

V. 11. For he said] Being ignorant of the true reason of his sons deaths, he suspecteth the woman, and therefore thinketh to put off the marriage, or with an intention to forsake her quite, or to take time to finde out the reason of the precedent deaths, and t [...] redr [...]sse it.

V. 14 And covered] She used this deceit to induce Judah, who was a widdower, to take her to wi [...]e as next of kin to the deceased. See the like cunning, Ruth 3. 3. iunay also be that Judah his sons had no [...] known her; which might lessen her fault, in which, whatsoever it were, she aimed chiefly to the honest end of having issue.

V. 15. Covered] Quite muffled up, which was the fashion of unchast women: Cant. 1. 7.

V. 17. Will thou give me] Or I am content if thou wilt give me but &c.

V. 18. Thy bracelets] The Italian hath it, A scarfe, or swathe] It might be some towel, or scarfe to binde about his head according to the manner of the Easterlings.

V. 23. Be shamed] For dealing with such kind of women was infamous even amongst the infidels.

V. 24. Bring her forth] Let her be brought to [...]dgement, to be condemned to death, as convinced of adultery, against the faith shewed unto S [...]la her spouse, according to the law of those days: see Deut. 22. 23. Now his passion would not suffer him to bethink himself how that a woman with child ought not to be put to death.

V. 26. she hath been] we are both in fault, but I more than she, having through my backwardnesse, given her cause to seek issue by me, which she should have had by my son.

V. 28. Bound] For a signe of eldership, which was so much honoured in those dayes. There may under this figure be a mystery hidden like unto that of Gen. 25. 26. for Pharez, from whom Christ came according to the flesh, represents him, who as the true first borne: Col. 1. 15. Heb. 1. 6. snatcheth away from the Prince of the world the advantage, and command which he pretendeth to have.

V. 29. What breach] A violent kinde of coming out: a figure that Christ cannot be borne as concerning his Kingdom, and truth, without many rends of the world. This breach] A casting manner of speech: since thou hast done the evill, thou shalt beare the continuall reproach for it, by the name of Pharez, that is breach.

V. 30. Zara] That is a sweet, and easy birth, as the s [...]nnes, and the plants &c. a figure of the facility, with which the Prince of the world planteth his Kingdome, which notwithstanding is alwayes the lesser, because he hath no share in the eternall Kingdome, which by right belongeth to the first borne.

CHAP. XXXIX. VERS. 6.

HE knew not] He took no other care, relying for every thing else upon Josephs faithfulness, [...]ilig [...]nce and industrie.

V 9. There is none] None greater in the house han my self.

V. 14. The men] Which might be in some place neere thereunto. An Hebrew] See Gen. 10. 21. and 14. 13.

V. 20. Into the prison] The Italian hath it, Into the tower] It was some strong and safe prison. Some expound it a house that was vaulted.

CHAP. XL. VERS. 2.

Officers] The Italian hath it, Eunuches] as Gen. 37. 36.

V. 5. According to the] The dreames were diverse, as the events were to be.

V. 8. Interpreter] According to the custome of those [Page] nations, to investigate the interpretation of dreames that had any extraordinary singularity in them.

V. 15. Stollen away] Secretly, and brought away by deceit. Of the land] Out of Canaan, where long since Abraham's famous and mighty nation was seated.

V. 16. White baskets] Made of white willowes, others have, bored or full of holes. Others, full of white bread or b [...]skets.

CHAP. XLI. VERS. 1.

BY the river] of Nilus.

V. 7. And behold] It remained so deeply imprinted in his memory, that hee knew it was no ordinary nor vaine dreame, 1 King. 3. 15.

V. 9. I doe] that which thou requirest, putteth me in memory of a fault, whereby I provoked thy wrath against me: but yet it was an occasion whereby thou mayst now be satisfied.

V. 16. It is not in me] This faculty of interpreting dreams, ought not to be esteemed any science, or art of mine; it is a pure gift of God, working in me, to whom I will now pray, that he disclose the meaning of this dreame unto thee, for thy good.

V. 39. For as much as God] God having enlightned thee to foresee, and foretel these things, it is likely that he will also give thee understanding above all others, to provide for them.

V. 40. My people be ruled] the Italian hath it, shall kisse thy mouth] In signe of acknowledgement of a supream power under the King. 1 Sam. 10. 1. Psal. 2. 12. So a kisse was used in the receiving of new Lords, and Magistrates. Others expound it, the people shall arme themselves at thy command. In the throne] In the soveraignty, and title of King.

V. 42. His ring] His seale, for a token of full power in any high businesse which requires the Kings Seale. See Hest. 3. 10. and 8. 2. 8. Pine linnen] The Italian hath it Of bisse] That is to say of most fine and resplendent linnen, which is in Egypt, and the places thereabouts, and was the cloathing that great men used. A gold chaine] As Daniel the 5. 7. 29.

V. 43. Bow the knee] Some expound it the Kings Father, as Gen. 45. 8.

V. 44. I am] That is, in full power and royall authority I command that all shal depend upon thee, and follow thy commands in all publike and important businesse.

V. 45. Saphnat] Egyptian words, which acording to some signifie, revealer of secrets; according to others, Saviour of the world, by Josephus, providing against a generall famine: The Italian hath it, Governour of On. Priest of] the Hebrew word is common to sacred and civill dignities, because that in old times they were for the most part joyned in one person. Here it is most likely to be the name of some civill office, as Exod. 2. 16. 2 Sam. 8. 18. Went] to give order, and execute his commission.

V. 47. By handfulls] That is, largely and abundantly.

V. 51. Manasseh] That causeth to forget. Hath made me] By this great present happinesse, he hath blotted out in me, all feeling of my passed troubles, and mitigated the grieffe I took for the goods I had lost.

V. 52. Ephraim [which fructifieth in double fruitfulness, by reason of these two sons.

V. 54. In all lands] Nam [...] that were neere unto, or knowne in Egypt.

V. 55. And when all] When all the provisions of particular men failed them.

CHAP. XLII. VERS. 4.

SEnt not] Because he was very yong; and remained onely of Rachel. v. 38.

V. 9. You are] Hee seemeth to use this fiction, to be informed of the state of his fathers house, or to awake his brethrens consciences. The nakednesse] the ill kept and unfortisied places, to worke some enterprise thereupon.

V. 13. Is not] It is credible, that they having been a long time without hearing any newes of Joseph, believed that he was dead. Gen. 44. 20.

V. 14. That is it that] It is unlikely that a man should have so many children, all growne to mens estates, living together, and they should adventure themselves, in so long and dangerous a voyage; Wherefore I am confirmed in my opinion, that you are men having some evill meaning, which I will make prooffe of, seeing your younger brother: all this was artificially said and done by Joseph, for to comfort himselfe with the sight of his Brother Benjamin.

V. 15. By the life] A manner of honourable affirmation, without any formall Oath, which cannot be made without mentioning the name of God. See 1 Sam. 1. 26. 2 Kings 2. 2.

V. 18. I feare God] And for love of him I will [...]ack my rigor, and will not hinder the relieving of your families, by your suddaine returne.

V. 19. Be bound] For a pledge.

V. 20. Shall not dye] Shall avoyd hunger and punishment, being freed from all suspition, and having free liberty granted you to make your provision of corne. They did so] That is to say, consented and resolved so to doe.

V. 24. Simeon] As the eldest of them, which consented to the selling of him.

V. 27. One of them] And after him all the rest. Gen. 43. 21.

V. 35. They were afraid] That there might be some [Page] deceit and evill su [...]mise in this.

V. 36. Are against me] These things which have befallen to my children are more grievous to me than to you, who make so little account thereof, having premised to carry Benjamin along with you.

V. 38. Alone] Namely by Rachel his mother. To the grave. See Gen. 37. 35.

CHAP. XLIII. VERS. 9.

LET me] I will take the fault upon mee, and bear what punishment thou shalt please to inflict. Or I will therefore submit my selfe to Gods judgement.

V. 10. For ex [...]pt] Meaning, that he was certaine they should freely returne: which would have beene already done, if thou hadst sooner resolved. Or as if he should say, I am so urgent in this businesse; because by delaying, we deprive our selves of the means whereby we might relieve our selves in this our extreame want.

V. 11. Balm [...]] Or Rozen. Myrrhe] That is liquid, or Ladano, a kind of sweet liquid gum.

V. 12. Double] Either because hee imagined that corne was growne dearer, or because he would have them buy more store.

V. 14. I am bereaved] The Italian hath it, Let it be so] I will dispose my selfe to beare it patiently: See Hest. 4. 16.

V. 16. Slay] The Italian addeth Flesh] Namely, of such beasts as were lawfull to be eaten amongst the Egyptians, as vemson, sowle, or poultrie. for they killed no sheep nor oxen. Ex. 8. 26.

V. 18. That he may] oppresse us with his might, and having sailed in the occasion, which he pretended, in our first voyage, suspecting us to be spies, he now will take another occasion, and accuse us of theft.

V. 20. To buy] Having no other intent, being no spy [...]s come to view the countrey.

V. 23. Peace be to you] It goeth well with you. Tour God] Hence it may appeare, that this Steward, knew well enough what they were to Joseph, and also that he had beene instructed in the true religion, through his Masters piety and care. I had your] I am satisfied, and doe acquit you of it.

V. 24. Water] According to the custome of men of the old times, who wearing no other ordinary shoes, but Soles, or Sandalls, did much dirty their feet in going: wherefore the first thing was offered to a stranger when he came into a house, was water to wash his feet, Gen. 18 4.

V. 30. Yerne] They boyled, and were stirred within him.

V. 32. For him] Because of his dignity; and to the others, because of their difference in religion. Might not] By their Law and superstition: for the Egyptians neither eating nor killing, neither sheep nor oxen, Ex. 8. 26. Which they worshipped for their Gods, they had other nations in abomination which did not use the like abstinence. Gen. 46. 34.

V. 34. Benjamins messe] The quantity of m [...]sses pretended to each one severally in solemne Feasts, was altered according to their degrees of honour, and the good will which was borne. 1 Sam. 1. 5. and 9. 24.

CHAP. XLIV. VERS. 2.

AND put] All this was plotted by Joseph in this manner, to discover his brethrens affections towards Benjamin, that if they did forsake and leave him in slavery, through envy and malice, as they had done by him, he might then keep him with him, in honour and safety; but if they did shew themselves well-affected towards him, hee might then discover himselfe unto them, and forgive what was past, and doe them some good:

V. 5. Whereby] This also is fainedly spoken to aggravate the theft. Now such manners of divining by Cups, and Basons full of water, were frequent amongst the Egyptians, and Chaldeans, and were done with certaine plates and Characters, and invocations of the devill, who answered them out of the water, to such questions as were demanded of him. See upon Gen. 30. 37.

V. 15. Such a man as I] He spake thus fainedly according to the common opinion, as if Joseph were one of the wise men of Egypt, which were all addicted to magick.

V. 16. God hath] Wee are convinced by God himselfe, no excuse can serve in a fact which is so evident: He speaketh thus, imagining some of them had beene faulty. Or his meaning is, God by this accident, whereof wee are innocent, will punish us for other sinnes.

V. 21. Set mine eyes] That is as much as to say, will be so farre satisfied as to see him: Or I will do him any favour, and take him into my particular protection.

V. 27. My wife] Rachel, my most lawfull and dearest. See Gen. 46. 19.

COuld not refrain] Could not forbear any longer, to make himselfe known to his brethren, which could not be done without a great deale of tendernesse, and discovering of his brethrens error. Wherefore he commandeth the people to goe out, as well to maintaine the majesty of his degree, as also to preserve [...]s brethrens honour.

V. 5 God did send me] God hath guided all these occurrences, suffering your evill will to be [...]cted, yet[Page] directing them to a comfortable end, both for you and me. So that you ought no more to grieve for the offence done to me, seeing it is fallen out to bee for a greater good. Joseph leaveth them neverthelesse to thinke upon the sin committed towards God, whose secret councill doth not justify man, who did not know it nor follow it in sinning.

V. 6. Earing] For the people knowing the prediction of seven yeares barrennesse, would not lose their seed, which was needfull for their nourishment and food.

V. 7. To preserve you] To cause the small number which is of you to escape the scourge of famine, so to increase to bee that great nation promised by God.

V. 8. A father] As well by my authority, advice, and guiding of all his businesse, as also in regard of the great honour, and respect he beares unto me.

V. 15. Talked with him] They were encouraged to talke familiarly with him, being freed from that fear which before stopped their mouthes.

V. 20. Regard not] The Hebrew hath it, Let not your eye spare your houshold-stuffe: That is to say, let it not be grievous unto you, to remove with some dammage and discommoditie, for here you shall bee largely recompenced: Or leave nothing behind you, bring all, for I will give you an excellent countrey, for a constant habitation.

V. 24. See that ye] Doe not fall out, blaming one another for the injury that was done unto me. For they were not all equally guilty. Gen. 37. 21. 26.

V. 26. Fainted] At the mentioning of Joseph his grieffe renewed, whereby he fell into a swoun.

V. 28. It is enough] My desires are now accomplished, I care for no more: so he cuts off all his sonnes long discourses, and breaks off all the delayes of his voyages.

CHAP. XLVI. VERS. 3.

FEare not] Because it was fore-told, that Gods people should be afflicted in Egypt, Gen. 15. 13. and Abraham had beene injured there, Gen. 12. 15. And that God in the time of the like dearth had forbidden Isaac to goe thither Gen. 26. 2. and lastly, because that Canaan was become already as it were his owne native countrey.

V. 4. I will goe downe] I will accompany thee with my grace and favour. bring thee] Not that Jacob did ever return out of Egypt, but it is spoken of his posterity, which was brought from thence in its due time: or it might be spoken of his body which was brought back againe into the Land of Canaan, to thy S pulcher of his Fathers, in token of the right which he had to the Countrey, Gen. 50. 13. shall put] That is to say, shall close up thine eyes; so he assureth him that Joseph is living, and comforts him by telling him of the good offices he should doe unto him, and how hee should out-live him, which is the Parents desire.

V. 7. His daughters] That is to say his daughters in law with Dina, Gen. 37. 35.

V. 8. Which c [...]e] That were mustered in the first mustering, that was af [...]er Jacobs comming into Egypt: for otherwise many of these were borne in Egypt.

V. 10. J [...]l] Also called Nemuel, Num. 26. 12. So many of these names doe vary in Numbers, and in the Chronicles, for some unknowne reason.

V. 12. H [...]zron] These were borne in Egypt. Now the sonnes of Shela and Zerah, which are set downe, Num. 26 20. are here left out, because they were not born when these were set downe.

V. 15. The sonnes] and Grand-children. And his daughters] Not that Dina, and his sonnes wives, were comprehended within this number of thirty three, but hee would onely say, that his sonnes were marryed, and had brought their Wives with them into Egypt.

V. 18. These s [...]e bare] Namely G [...]d and Ashe [...]: from whom came the aforesayd Grand-children. Sixteene] Not counting Sera, the aforesaid daughter of Asher, as Dinab also was not numbred, as verse fifteenth.

V. 19. Wise] See Gen. 44. 27.

V. 21. Belah] All these, or the greatest part of them were also borne in Egypt, for Benjunin was not above three and twenty yeares of age, when he came into Egypt: and besides, they were not all his sons, but his Grand-children, as it appeareth Numbers 26. 40. Of which he could not have any yet neyther.

V. 26. Threescore and six] To bring this number within compasse, wee must exclude Joseph, and his two children, which were in Egypt, and did not come with Jacob, and Er, and Onan which dyed in Canaan, and then we must adde Dinah unto it.

V. 27. Which came] Either in their owne persons or their fathers. Threescore and ten] Joyning to the fore-sayd threescore and sixe, Jacob, and Joseph, and his two sonnes. Now Acts 7. 14. there is the number of seventy five, because that the Greeke version of the seventie Interpreters, which was then in use amongst the Jewes, hath added in the twentieth verse of this Chapter, sive nephewes to Joseph.

V. 30. Let me die] I have now obtained that, which might makes me desire, to live more than any thing else, now will I dye contented and comforted. See Luk. 2. 29.

V. 34. That ye may] To enjoy the fruitfulnessse of the pastures, and principally by these means to bee severed from the corruptions of the Egyptians and to keep you in an united body, in purenesse of religion, and manners;
Every shepheard] Those that did use grazing, for to eate the flesh of cattell, which the Aegyptians did not do: [Page] Gen. 43. 32. Exod. 8. 26. And though they did bring up cattel: Gen. 47. 6. 17. and Exo. the 9. 3. yet they made no use of them, but only for the wooll, the tilling of the earth, to carry, and to trade with strangers.

CHAP. XLVII. VERS. 7.

Blessed] Saluted him, thanked him, wishing him Gods blessing, for his many good deeds.

V. 9 Of my pilgrimage] Which I have passed without any settled habitation of mine own in strange countries; which to the ancients was a figure of the spirituall pilgrimage here on earth: Heb. 11. 13. short] In respect of Noahs, and other more ancient Patriarks.

V. 11 Rameses] Which might peradventure be the chief City of Goshen.

V. 13 In all the Land] Namely in Aegypt, and all countries thereabouts as Gen. 41. 54

V. 18 The second yeare] That was the seventh yeare of the fore-told famine.

V. 19 Buy us] Let the King get the Dominion and propriety of us, and of our Lands, that we may become thy servants, tenants, and husband-men. Seed] To till and sow the ground, for this yeare they took courage and did so, because they knew the famine should end then: see Gen. 45. 6. Desolate] For want of inhabitants, and tilling.

V. 21 Removed them] That is to say, brought the greater part of the people out the countrie, to dwell in the Cities, for handy-crafts, traffick, and trades, to multiplie and increase the Cities, wherein consists the glory and power of a Kingdome, leaving only such a number without, as should suffice to till the ground.

V. 22 Their Lands] Their proper and hereditary livings.

V. 24 The first part] This hath been and continueth in Aegypt, from Josephs time, to this houre.

V. 25 Let us finde] A civill terme, that is, we be contented, we accept the match, and we hold it as a singular favour, which we beseech you to continue always towards us.

V. 27 Had possession] For their dwelling, and use of the pastures, for the King held his right, and title in it as before, and there remained also many Aegyptians, living amongst the Israelites.

V. 29 Put I pray thee] See concerning this kinde of ceremonie in swearing: Gen. 24. 2 Deale] With mine, and with me also, in carrying my body into Canaan, saying this in testimony of his communion with the ot [...] Patriarks, in expectation of the heavenly life, of which this countrey was a figure, and for an instigation to his posterity, not to settle their mindes in Aegypt, but to aspire unto the place of the rest, and establishment of the Church: see Genesis 23. 4. and 50. 11. 12. Heb. 11. 22

V. 31 Bowed himselfe upon the beds head] The Italian addeth, And worshipped] Being not able to arise out of his bed, he put himselfe in the posture of those that worship, his body bended, and his face upon the bolster: 1. Kings 1. 47. Isa. 38. 2. and so worshipped God to give him thanks for all his good gifts, but especially for the spirituall and everlasting gift, which he apprehended by a lively faith, in this last failing of all his forces and strength: see Heb. 11. 21.

CHAP. XLVIII. VERS. 3.

APpeared unto me] This seemeth to be remembered by Jacob, to acknowledge that Josephs issue was an effect of that blessing of God, and also to shew that since he had from God right in the land of Canaan, he might by especial authority dispose of it, as he doth here; adopting of Josephs children, and placing them in the same ranke with his owne; and by that meanes binding Joseph, and his, to keep themselves joyned to the body of the Church.

V. 5 Are mine] That is to say, I adopt them for mine, and make them heires to an equall share with mine owne children, and will have every one of them to be a severall head of a tribe: see 1 Chronic. 5. 1. Reuben and Si [...]e [...]n] Which were Jacobs two eldest sons.

V. 6 Shall be thine] Shall be held in the number of my grand-children, and shall not be severall tribes, but must joyne with one of the two, Manasses, or Ephraim, and carry the name of it, and have a part amongst them, as if they were their children.

V. 7 And as forme] This seemeth to be also inserted, to instigate Joseph to desire the Land of Canaan where his mother was buried, and to shew that she dying in the floure of her age, he would by adopting Josephs sons, fill up the number which she might have had besides.

V. 12 Brought them out] after Jacob had a while cherished Josephs children, Joseph did put himself in an humble and reverend posture, to receive the prophetiall and patriarchall blessing.

V. 14 Wittingly] Not by chance, nor through error, but purposely, and by divine inspiration.

V. 15 Fed me] Provided for me in all my wants, guided, and conducted me.

V. 16 The Angel] The son of God who appeared in the time of the fathers, and in whom the everlasting Father did manifest himselfe unto them, as in the person of the mediator: See upon Genesis 16. 7. and is the same who was called God in the precedent verse. Be named on them] Let them beare the name of us Patriarks, as our lawfull children, not only according to the flesh, but also [Page] according to the promise, of which they shall be heires. He saith so because that the name of Patriarks was quickly extinguished in Ismael and Esau his race, who were cast out of the holy stock: and remained appropriated to the Church: Gen. 21. 12. Grow into a multitude] The Hebrew hath it, let them increase like fishes; for the increase of fishes is more numerous than that of any other kinde.

V. 17 It displeased him] Through the naturall affection of Father to their first borne, though God hath almost alwayes put them back, as Cain, Japhet, Ishmael, Esau, Zera, Reuben, the brothers of David, and others, to shew that his grace is not tied to any order of nature.

V. 20 Israel] That is to say thy children shall be as a President of an excellent blessing amongst the Israelites:

see Ruth 4. 11. 12. and Jerem. 29. 22.

V. 21 And bring you againe] Shall at his appointed time bring your posterity back againe into the Land of Canaan, of which he hath promised, & given a right to your forefathers, and where they have dwelt as in their native countrey.

V. 22 To thee] Besides the two parts which I have assigned to thy posterity in the division of the Land of Canaan, I do order that Ephraim shall have moreover Sichem and the countrey belonging to it: See John 4. 5. One portion] In the Hebrew there is an ambiguitie between part and Sichem, and by that Jacob sheweth, that by that part, he specially meane [...]h Sichem. With my] With my s [...]ns swords, who there wrought my revenge, for the disgrace done to my daughter. Gen. 34. 25. For although Jacob reprov'd the deed: Gen. 34. 30. and 49. 6. yet remained he Lord of the place, as by right of warre: which was as the first fruit of the destruction of the accursed natio [...]ns.

CHAP. XLIX. VERS. 3.

MY might] Begotten in the floure of my age, and of my strength an Hebrew phrase, as Deut. 21. 17. Psa. 78. 51. The excellency] By the right of thine eldership thou hadst the superiority of commanding thy brethren, and the honour of Priesthood, and the prerogative of the double part.

V. 4 Unstable] The Italian hath it, All that is runne out] Through thine abominable incest thou hast lost that naturall right thou hadst, like water powred upon a pent-house, for the Dominion was transferred to Iudah, the Priesthood to Levi, and the double portion to Ioseph, in the persons of his 2 children, Gen. 48. 5. 1 Chr. 5. 1. Thou shalt not excell] The Italian, Thou shalt not have the superioritie] By my patriarchall authoritie I deprive thee of thy right of eldership. Up to my couch] The Italian addeth, All that vanished away] that thy degree is vanished away, like a vapour or smoake: the Hebrew is gone up.

V. 5 Are Brethren] Even as they were borne of one mother, so were they joynd together in their wills, in the action touching the Sichemites. Gen. 34. 25.

V. 6 Come not thou] God forbid that ever I should either in thought, or word, have had any part, in those bloody councells and enterprizes. Mine honour] That is my tongue, according to the Hebrew phrase, Psal. 16. 9. and 30. 12. and 57. 8. 9. because that the facultie of speaking, amongst the sensible faculties is the noblest that man hath, above all creatures. In their selfe will] In their owne passion, without any lawfull power, or any just enforcement, which are the two things, which make taking up of armes just. Digged down] Utterly destroyed the City of Siche[m], though that be not expressed in the history.

V. 7 I will divide them] For a punishment of their blame-worthy union and league; I decree their posteritie to be scattered amongst the other tribes, in the division of the Land of Canaan; So Simeons part was intermixed with Iudahs: Ios. 19. 1. and it was yet more scattered, when the one part of it went to seek out new habitations: 1 Chron. 4. 24. Levi also had no part together, but was divided amongst all the tribes: Ios. 21. 4. &c.

V. 8 Shall praise] That is, shall honour thee, and acknowledge thee, for their head, and superior: 1. Chron. 5. 2. He alludes to the signification of Iudahs name whereof, see Gen, 29. 35. Thy band] he prophecyeth of the peoples victori [...]s, wherein Iudah was alwayes the chief: Iudg. 1. 2. and 20. 18. chiefly under David and his descent. Now under these corporall warres, and victories, are also understood Christs spirituall ones, who was the true Lion of Iudah: R [...]v. 5. 5. Thy fathers ch [...]]dren] All my posterity shall respect thee as their Lord, in the Kingdome conferred upon the Tribe of Iudah, in Davids person. And all the Chu [...]ch, which is the true Israel in spirit, shall worship Christs person, which came from Iudah, according to the flesh: Gen. 27. 29.

V 9 A Lions whelp] That is to say, in his beginnings, and as it were in his first youth, he shall overcome and subdue his enemies, and then shall enjoy that rest which he hath established through his valour. An old Lion] For there are two kindes of Lions, the one short and trussed up, with a curled haire; the other greater, with long haire, and more fierce.

V. 10 The S [...]pter] The right of eldership and of supreme temporall Dominion, shall never be quite taken away from thee, untill the Messias be come, who shall be of thy posterity, and he shall change it into a spirituall and [Page] everlasting kingdome, destroying a little while after, by means of the Romans, both the people, and forme of any Jewish Common-weale, Dan. 9. 26, 27. Now although the Tribe of Judah have not alwayes beene in possession of the kingdome, as before David, in Babylon under the Asmoneans, who were Levites, and under Herod the Idumean, yet it never lost the title and right to it; and hath alwayes kept some Reliques of the possession, having the body of its common-weale severall, and its divine and humane Lawes, which never was promised, nor happened unto any of the other Tribes. Isa. 7. 8. And the alteration of one rainging generation, altereth not the kingdome, if the same people and Lawes remaine. Now he describeth this slate by the Scepter, and the Law-giver, and by the first fifteen poynted out the supream power, and by the second, the administration of Justice, Councils, and Offices of government. Between] It seemeth that he alludes to the custome and fashion of Kings, who when they sit in their Thrones, have below at their feet their Chancellors, Councillors, and chiefe officers. Shiloh] The Italian hath it, him to whom that belongeth] That is, the Messiah; the true everlasting King of his Church, Psalm. 2. 6 and 110. 2: Of whom the earthly ones were onely figures and representers: The Hebrew word Shiloh hath beene by many of the ancient, rightly translated. Vnto him] Hee shall convert it into a spirituall and universall Kingdome, over all people. Others, unto him shall the people be gathered and reduced.

V. 11. Binding] A propheticall and allegoricall description of the Churches spirituall blessings. Vnto the Vine] As in some other lands one might bind his b [...]ast he r [...]deth on, to a stump or wild shrub: The meaning is, the Land shall be so perfectly unshrubbed, and unforrested, that one shall hardly find any uselesse plant to tye an Asse unto. See Isa. 7. 25. He washed] As Job. 29. 6.

V. 12. With Wine] Or more than Wine, or Milk.

V. 14. Asse] A mighty nation, but cowardly in its enterprizes, and base to submit it self to the yoak of slavery, before it will free it selfe with labour and danger. Co [...]ching down] Shut up in his owne countrey, like an Asse in a stable. See Judges, Chapt. 5 verse 15.

V. 16. Shall judge] By allusion to the name of Dan, which signifieth judgement, Genesis 30. 6. He meaneth that Dan shall have his Tribe within his jurisdiction and government, as the other: or peradventure he meaneth it of Sampson, the Danite, who judged; that is to say governed the whole nation: see Judges 13. 2. 24.

V. 17. A Serpent] A crafty people, who shall proceed more by deceits, than by open strength. See an an example thereof, Judg. 18. and in the whole history of Sampson.

V. 18 O Lord] It should seem that Jacob, at the remembrance of Dan, trembleth with horror, and rageth, fore-seeing that in that Tribe should be erected the generall idolatrie of the ten Tribes, from whence should grow their ruine, 1. Kings 12. 29. Amos 8. 14. which should be restored by the Messias, whom he also looketh upon in this astonishment: see Hos. 3. 4, 5.

V. 19 A troupe] His country shall be exposed to incursions, and robbings, by his neighbours the Arabians, and other Easterne nations, as being upon their confines beyond Jordan, according to the custome of borderers. He makes an allusion between the Hebrew name for troopes of souldiers and forragers, and the name of God. At the last] Or at the last, he shall prey and forrage.

V. 20 Out of Asher] The Italian hath it, Out of Ashers countrey] That is to say, he shall have aboundance of all things to live on, in his own cuntrye.

V. 21 A hinde] A nation of a quick, and ready wit, yet courteous and loving, without gall, or offence to others, like a tame hinde: Prov. 5. 19. which needeth no watch nor locking.

V. 22 Bough] A figurative description of the marveilous increase of Josephs progenie, chiefly by Ephraim: Gen 48. 16. 19.

V. 23 *The ar [...]*ers] Though he hath always been as the
But at which too many unjust persecutions have shot, by his brothers, his master, his mistresse, yet hath he through Gods grace withstood all these assaults, without diminishing either in state, or faith, and he hath alwayes raised him up, greater, and happier, to be the relief of his Church, in the extremitie of famine.

V. 24 Of the mightie God] the Italian hath it, Of the mightie of Iacob] that is God, in whom lieth all his Churches strength: see Psa. 132. 2.

V. 25 Of heaven] In dewes, raine, sunne-shine, and other celestiall influences, Lev. 26. 4. Deut. 28. 12. Of the deep]
By springs and streames, which do all issue out of the great masse of waters which is under the earth. Of the breasts] by the copious bringing forth, and bringing up of children; and cattel, Deut 28. 4. 11.

V 26 The blessings] The favours I have received of God, have abounded above them of my forefathers; as in respect of the great number of children which God hath given me; as in regard they are all admitted to be of the blessed seed, and none of them hath been cast out, as in the families of Abraham and Isaac: besides other wonder-full gifts, wherewith God hath blessed me. Vnto the] A proverbiall manner of speech, which signifieth the highest of a thing; as the tops of the high hills are above the [Page] plaines. Now he saith the everlasting hills, as Deut. 33. 15
Hab. 3. 6. because that for the most part they were from the beginning created in the same forme, and manner, as they have continued in ever since. They shall] As I have received th [...]se favours through Gods blessing, so I do wish them in thee, through my blessing, which I assure my self God will ratifie. Of him] Of thee Joseph, whom God hath made remarkable in spirituall and temporall gifts, and raised to so excellent a dignitie.

V. 27 A Wolfe] A description of the warlike customes of this tribe.

V. 28 All these] This is the state of the partition of the twelve tribes, of which Jacob had spoken, in this his propheticall will. According] That is to say, according to those gifts as God would bestow upon them; which will was revealed to Jacob.

V. 33 Gathered up] An act of a sweet and quiet breathing his last, as of a man that falleth a sleep.

CHAP. L. VERS. 2.

IMbalme] This custome of the Aegyptians was grounded upon vanitie, and the fond desire of shunning, or prolonging the condemnation of sin, which is returne to dust: Gen. 3. 19. But since, God having spoken nothing thereof in his Law: it hath been held as a thing indifferent.

V. 4 Spake] Because that those which mourned, did not go abroad: Gen. 2. 32. and it was not lawfull to appeare before the King in mourning habit, Hest. 4. 2. as well by reason of the sadnesse of the spectacle; as also because the meeting of such a one, was held for an evill signe.

V. 5 Digged] In that great cave, or hole in the rock, Jacob had caused a monument to be cut, according to the fashion: see 2 Chron. 16. 14. Isa. 22. 16. Matth. 27. 60

V. 7 The Elders of his] Councillors, Senators, and Officers.

V. 11 *Abel-Mizra [...]*m] That is the Aegyptians sorrow, or the plaine of the Aegyptians sorrow, for Abel signifieth both sorrow and plaine.

V. 17 Forgive the] Words of messengers, and intercessors.

V. 18 Behold we be] We yeeld our selves unto thee, and we acknowledge that thou hast reason to requite us for the slavery we sold thee into.

V. 19 Am I in] To work my own revenge which belongeth to God alone: Deuteron. 32. 35. and to oppose my selfe to his Councell and decree through which I was to be afflicted and tried: Psal. 105. 19. and to turne that to be an evill to you which he had ordained for your good: Gen. 45. 5

V. 23 Upon Iosephs knees] He held them as his own, and brought them up tenderlie even from their infancy.

V. 24 His brethren] Under which name were comprehended his nephews also. Visite you] Shall make you feele the effects, of the care he taketh of you, by delivering you out of captivitie: See Gen. 21. 1

V. 25 My bones] That is my dead body, see the reason of this desire, Gen. 47. 29

THE SECOND BOOK OF MOSES called Exodus.

THE ARGUMENT.

THis book hath been by the Graecian Interpreters called Exodus, that is to say, the coming forth: because the chief subject thereof is, the history of the miraculous coming forth of Gods children out of Aegypt, where they had been detained, after the death of Ioseph, in long, and cruell slavery, and oppression, untill the time appointed by Gods promises, for their deliverance, to bring them into the Land of Canaan promised to their forefathers. And just then, the Lord, by the hands of Moses and Aaron, set the people in full libertie, after he had with many, and terrible plagues, broken and tamed Pharaohs pride, causing them to passe drie foot through the red Sea, where he drowned Pharaoh and all his host that pursued them. That the people, after that time might not have, nor acknowledge any other God, and Lord, but the everlasting Sonne of God, who had manifested himself unto them by a new, glorious, and most singular name, which he revealed unto Moses: and had instituted the new Sacrament of the Passeover, for a remembrance of this miraculous deliverance: After which he himself conducted them through the desert, even to mount Synai, where he more particularly and solemnly renewed h [...]'s Covenant with them, giving them his Law, together with many ordinances, ceremonies, and Statutes, as well Ecclesiasticall as Politick to consecrate and appropriate them altogether to himself, and to sever them from all intermixture with prophane Nations, and chiefly to keep them alwayes ready, through faith, and desire, for the comming of the Messias in the [...]lesh, in whom was to be the accomplishment and substance of all these shadowes, and figures of the Law. Appointing also the Priesthood, and ordinary service of God amongst his people, and a holy Tabernacle in manner of a moveable Temple, with all its ornaments and parts: amongst which the Arke of the Covenant held the first place, over which the Son [...]e of God, appeared present in grace and power, as true God, King, and Sovereigne Oracle of his people: Who on their parts performing very ill the conditions of this Covenant, did through their frequent murmurings, rebellions, and idolatries, severely punished, yet still pardoned by God, cause this truth to burst forth, that it was a Covenant of meere grace, grounded upon Gods meere good will and mercy in Christ Iesus, their head and Mediator: by whose only propitiation and intercession; represented and sealed by the Leviticall Priesthood, they were alwayes preserved by God; notwithstanding their disloyalties, and transgressions. Now this history, as it is expound [...]d in divers places of the new Testament, containeth an excellent representation and figure of the spirituall deliverance of the Church, from the Divels tyrannie, and from the slavery of the world, to passe through the [Page] Sea of the grace of Christs bloud, applyed in holy Baptisme, into the long, and troublesome course of her vocation in this life, still making towards the heavenly Canaan and erusalem: In which course she hath for her guide, the light and comfort of Gods Spirit: and for her sustenance the Manna of his grace and word: and for the consolation and comfort of her conscience, a Communion to the good deeds of her high Priest: and for a rule of living, her soveraign Kings Laws and commandements, against which sinning but too often, she is chastised with a fatherly seve [...]ity; but still held up, and restored, by vertue of the eternall satisfaction, and everlasting intercession of her Saviour, and Redeemer, who never doth forsake her with his presence, and continually directeth her towards the end of her everlasting vocation in Heaven.

ANNOTATIONS.

CHAP. I. VERS. 4.

D

An] These are set down in the last place, not according to the order of their birth, because they were the sonnes of the hand-maidens.

V. 7 Multiplied] The Hebrew, increased like fishes, see Gen. 1. 20. and 48. 16.

V. 11 To affl [...]ct them] To tire, and weaken them through labours, and toiles, to make them lesse able to get children, and hinder them from plotting any innovations. Treasure Cities] For munition of warre, armour, and victuall, as 2. Chron. 17. 12. and 32. 28.

V. 14 In mortar] And about lime.

V. 15 Midwives] It is very likely that there were more of them, but these were the chief, or these were in that place where the Kin [...] had his abode.

V. 19 The Hebrew women] This might be true for the greatest part of the Isra [...]ish women, who for feare, made no use of midwives. And therefore they say this, rather to escape, by not speaking the whole truth, which was not necessary, but dangerous to do; then for to lie: and also this art, of hindering a man from doing evill, by some [...]ction, is not any where condemned in Sc [...]ip [...]ure: See Jos. 2. 5. 1 Sam 21. 2. 2 Sam. 17. 20. 2 Kings 6. 19. Jer. 38. 25, 26, 27. As the Egyptian women] So tender, and delicate. Lively] Others translate it, they themselves are midwives.

V. 21 Made them] He blessed and prospered their families and affairs: see 1 Sam. 2. 35. [...] Sam. 7. 11. 27. 29. 1 Kings 2. 24. and 11. 38.

CHAP. II. VERS. 1.

AMan] Amram the sonne of Cohath, the sonne of Levi: Exod. 6. 18. 20. A daughter] Jochebed the daughter of Levi: Num. 26. 59. If the word daughter be here taken in its proper signification, Amram married his aunt: which afterwards was forbidden: Lev. 18. 12. Others hold that by the word daughter is meant grandchild, and that Exod. 6. and 20. the word aunt signifieth cosen.

V. 2 Conceived] After Aaron and Miriam who were elder than Moses: see Exo. 7. 7 A goodly] Of an extraordinary and divine beautie, Act. 7. 20.

V. 3 She could n [...]t] Without being discovered, and incurring the penalty of the Kings proclamation. This necessitie being through meere humane feare, could not excuse from sin, in an act meerely contrary to Gods Law.

V. 4 His sister] Namely Miriam, Num. 26. 59.

V. 10 Moses] Taken out, and saved from the water: this is an Hebrew name, and is equivalent with another Aegyptian name: if these two languages had not yet some kinde of affinity betwixt them.

V. 11 Was growen] Namely to the age of fourty yeares Acts 7. 23. Went out] By divine inspiration, to joyne in communitie of life, and affliction with his brethren: Hebr. 11. 24.

V. 12 He slew] the Italian hath it, He smote] he killed, according to his calling of deliverer of the pe [...]ple, which he even at that time knew by divine revelation, and had accepted in his conscience, Act. 7. 25 yet the time of his using and executing that calling was not yet come.

V. 16 Priest] Or governour, or both: see upon Gen. 41. 45. He is called Jethr [...], Exod. 3. 18. 10. 2. Exod. 4. 18. and Hobab. Num. 10. 29. Judg. 4. 11. and knew, and served the true God.

V. 17 Drove them away] for to water their flocks fi [...]st.

V. 18. Revel] This was Jeth [...]o his father: Num. 10. 29 grandfather to these maidens.

V. 22. Gershom] banished, driven from his own home.

V. 23. Processe of time] The Italian hath it, In the [Page] meane time, which was long] namely forty yeares, as it may be proved by comparing, Exod. 7. 7. with Acts 7 30. Dyed] Which heartned Moses to returne into Egypt, Exod. 4. 19. Came up unto] See concerning this manner of speaking. Genesis 18. 20. Exod. 22. 23. 27, Deut. 24. 15.

V. 25. Had respect] He entred into an actuall judgment of this cause.

CHAP. III. VERS. 1.

THE back side] Seeking for fresh p [...]stures, further into the Desert. Of God] This mountain got this name as well by reason of this vision, as chiefly because God did chuse it, and consecrate it, to bee as it were his tribunall of glory, out of which he pronounced his Law. Exo [...] 11. Horeb] It should seeme this was the gen [...] name of all that row of mountaines, and that Sinai was the particular name of that mountaine from which the Law was given.

V. 2. The Angel] Which was the sonne of God himselfe, which appeareth by that he is called the everlasting Lord. verse 4. 6, 7. 14 Deut. 33. 16. Mark 12. 26. And Angel by reason of Mediator. See Gen. 16. 7. *In a [...]/la [...]*e] The flame signifieth the presence of God in power and spirit, the bush represents the Church, as well for her meane and weak condition in the world: As also because in her sinfull nature she cannot subsist before the devouring fire of Gods Majesty, no more than thornes can endure the materiall fire, Isa. 9. 18. and 27. 4. 5. and 33. 14. But God tempereth his pr [...]sence in such sort, that it doth not make it feele the hurtfull eff [...]cts of the fire, but the comfortable enlightning of it, warming and purifying it. See Isa. 4. 4. 10. 17. And it is also signified that the afflictions of the world cannot disannull the Church. Psalme 129. 2. Isa. 43. 2.

V. 5. Draw not nigh] No nearer than thou art, to shew the reverence that is due to Gods Majesty, and how all rash curiosity ought to be avoyded. See Exo. 19. 12. 21. Put off] A figure of the cleansing from the filth of sinne, required of everyone that drawes neare to God, Heb. 10. 22. sinne, wherewith the faithfull man is yet spotted, through the contagion of the world, being compared to the dirt upon ones feet or shoes, Joh. 13. 10. Wherefore the Jewes, though without any expresse commandement, did not come into the Temple, but bare-foot, and washed. Holy ground] Through my presence, and so long as I shall appeare in it, not for any inherent or perpetuall quality.

V. 6. Hee was afraid] See upon the sixetenth Chapter of Genesis and the thirteenth verse: and the sixth Chapter of Isaiah, and the second Verse.

V. 7. I know] The Italian hath it, have taken notice] as Exo. 2, 25.

V. 8. I am come downe] See Gen. 11. 7. 18. 21. Unto the place] and into their habitation.

V. 11. Who am I] What meanes have I to doe this, being in that misery, and exiled, as I now find my selfe? Moses knew when hee was in Egypt, that hee was ordained thereunto. See Exodus, chapter the second, verse the twelfth. But it seemeth that hee then beleevved hee should free the people through the favour and power which he had in Egypt; and having I [...]st that, he might now think that he was loosed from his bond: Seeing hee wanted meanes to accomplish it.

V. 12. Shall be a token unto thee] As in this place I tell thee thy calling; so hereafter in the same place, I will give thee an expresse remembrance and assurance of it; for thou shalt here receive my Law concerning my service, and here thou shalt a [...] so begin to exercise thy calling. So in Scripture oftentimes signes are taken from future things, when God will assure the continuance of the thing promised, which is not yet to come in long time. See the first booke of Samuel, the second Chapter, and the foure and thirtieth Verse. And the second book of Kings, the nineteenth Chapter, and the nine and twentieth Verse. And the seventh Chapter of Isaiah and the fourteenth Verse. And the second Chapter of John, the eighteenth and nineteenth verses.

V. 13. What is] Not that the people was altogether ignorant of the true God, or of the sacred names, under which hee had revealed himselfe to the ancient Fathers, but because Gods common names had beene transferred to the Creatures, and given to Idolls: and also because the Nations we [...]e divided into severall Religions, and superstitious, and had particular names for their owne proper Deities. Moses therefore desireth God to reveale some particular, and incommunicable name unto him, by which the people may distinguish him from the false Gods of Egypt, and they themselves may be distinguished in their religion from all prophane nations.

V. 14. I am] I am the onely true God, truely subsisting, and not onely through the opinion of men as Idolls are, that have an everlasting being, unchangeable, subsisting of it selfe, not depending from others, infinite, most simple, the author of all things: Not borrowed, changeable, finite, dependent, and compounded, as all other creatures are. Of this mine essence will I give thee the highest, expressest, and most generall name; he that is, which hath remained in u [...]e amongst the Hebrewes, and was then first revealed by God: Exodus, chapt. 6. vers. 3.

V. 15. The Lord God] In the Hebrew the Text there's the same aforesayd name, framed in the third person. [Page] He that is, in stead of the first, I am what I am: which following the reverent custom of the ancient Jewes, and the Apostles themselves, wee interpret with the word Lord. Memoriall] whereas Idolaters doe faine divers representations and remembrances, this my glorious and speciall name shal serve to put you in mind at all times, who is your God, See Isa. 57. 8. Hos. 12. 9.

V. 16. The Elders] The heads of the people, who either by reason of their age or being the first borne, or through election, had the government of it: and it is likely they were seventy in number, according to the seventy soules which came into Egypt. See Exod. 24. 9. Numbers 11. 16. Visited] See Gen. 50. 24.

V. 18. Hath met us] Hath appeared unto us unrequested. Thus will God have his grace acknowledged, which pventeth all humane motion and endeavour, and also that through his authority they might be blamelesse before Pharaoh. Let us goe] God would indeed quite deliver his people, and doth not command this dissimulation, but will have Pharaoh's malice & tyranny discovered, throug this so just request, thereby to draw Gods judgements upon him, because that when the inferiour power differeth from the supream, man is freed from the inferiour, and is bound to follow the supream one.

V. 19. By a mighty] See Ex. 6. 1. and 13. 3. and Ps. 136. 12.

V. 21 Favour] That they shall freely lend them whatsoever they shall desire. See Gen. 39. 21. Palme 106. 46. Prov. 16. 7. Dan. 1. 9.

V. 22. Shall borrow] According to the Egyptians intent. Ex. 12. 36. Though Gods command be absolute to borrow, without saying to what purpose. Now howsoever it be, the Egyptians presently after this, moved warre against the Israelites, and did unjustly assault them: So that by right their spoyles belonged to the victors, who were assaulted. which was brought to passe by Gods secret providence, to recompence his people for the slavery which they had endured in Egypt. See Gen. 31. 9.

CHAP. IV. VERS. 3.

IT became] So God would confirme to Moses, and others the truth of his word: which was to be apprehended through faith in spirit, by the omnipotency of his working, which might be perceived by sence both powers being inseparable in God. Now the end of this particular transmutation of the rod into a serpent, seemeth to be, to shew that Moses should be healthfull to the Israelites, to guide and governe them, which was signified by the rod: And that he should bee deadly to the Egyptians, which was agreeable to the serpent.

V. 6 Put now] It seemeth that this second signe hath the same sence as the other, his hand being sound and powerfull for the children of Israel, but a sore one against the Aegyptians.

V. 8 Thy voice] To the voice of thy first signe the Hebrew hath it,

V. 10 Nor since] It seemeth he hath a regard to that first calling: Exo. 2. 11, 12. Acts 7. 25. since which time were fourty yeares being expired and his impediment of speech, not being amended by any miraculous help from God, he thought, and argued from thence that God would have eased him of that commission, which was incompatible with that defect. Slow of speech] Faltering, stuttering, stammering in speech.

V. 13 Send I pray] Through this mine inabilitie I am perswaded to believe, that thou hast not indeed chosen me for this great work, but that thou usest these speech [...] to me to prove me, or for some other hidden [...] give him then the charge thereof whom thou hast destined thereunto, and made capable of it seeing that Gods gift, is the foundation of the calling. Many have thought that he meant the Messias himself, whom alone he thought to be capable of bringing such a thing to passe.

V. 14 I know] This is given for a remedy to his defect of tongue. Behold] This is set down for a signe of Gods guiding this businesse in the whole course of it: for by an inward motion he caused Aaron to come so farre to meet him, that he might have time to instruct him, concerning this their common commission.

V. 15 Put words] Declare them unto him, and instruct him fully of them, that he may have them ready at a need.

V. 16 In stead] Thou shalt be in my stead towards him, in revealing my will unto him, and power to command him.

V. 17 Do signes] Not only that signe in the third verse, but also all the others which are meant: Exod. 3. 20. see Exod. 7. 9. 19. and 8. 16. 17. Now the power of working miracles was not included in the rod, nor bound unto it, but God of his free will joynd his operation thereunto as he doth to any externall signe or meanes, which he ordaineth.

V. 18 *Ieth [...]*o] The Italian hath it, Ieter] which is the same Jethro.

V. 19 All the men] As well that Pharaoh, under whom thou slewest the Aegyptian, as also his courtiers, which were thine enemies and evill willers.

V. 20 His sons] Gershom: Exod. 2. 22. and Eliezer: Exod. 18. 4. Rod of God] ordained and consecrated by God: who had promised to cooperate with his power to the usin [...] of it: see Exod. 17. 9.

V. 21 Put in thy hand] Ordained, and put the execution of them into thy hands. Willharden] God is not, nor cannot any way be the cause of sin, in any part, or kind, nor yet of the hearts rebellion. But he looseth the reines to his [Page] enemies malitiousnesse, who are already rebellious, and hardened, without repressing or correcting of it, and by his just judgement delivereth them into the power of Satan, to worke effectually in them: in such wise, that all Gods commands, counsells, exhortations, and other good workes produce nothing in them: but a greater contumacy; even as when one contrary doth not overcome, or tame the other, it kindleth and strengtheneth it the more.

V. 22. My sonne] Namely by grace and adoption: Jer. 31. 20. Rom. 9. 4. My first borne] He who amongst all nations is to me most deare, and by mee most esteemed, and hath the prerogative of dominion, and a double portion of both the temporal, and spirituall blessing. See Genesis 25. 31. and 27. 27. 29. Wherefore there is no reason why he should remaine in bondage.

V. 24. Met him] This was done by some apparition, in which Gods Angel was seen threatning Moses with death, and telling him the reason of it, which was for having neglected to circumcise one of his sonnes, or both; which happened by some unknown occasion, either by reason of their mothers tenderness who was a Madianite, among which nation circumcision peradventure had been left off, though there remained some piety and service of the true God amongst them.

V. 25. Zipporah] The administration of the Sacrament by the hand of a woman, was an extraordinary act, and beyond the common rule of the Church, and therefore must be no president. A sharp stone] the Italian hath it a [...] int] According to the old fashion, to make use of sharpned stones in stead of knives, especially if incisions were to be made in mens bodies. See Jos. 5. 2, 3. Yet others translate it there, sharpe knives. Cast it] As in spight and reproach, that shee should wound her sonne, to save her husbands life. A bloody] That is to say, whose religion forceth me to be cruell to my child.

V. 26. Then she sayd] This seemeth to shew, that after Moses his danger was past, Zipporah yet stil rema [...]ned speaking, and thinking evill of the Sacrament of Circumcision, and thence it is presumed, that Moses sent her back againe to her father, and that he afterwards brought her back againe to her Husband. Exodus, the eighteenth Chapter and the fifth verse. Circumcision] The Italian hath it, Circumcisions] Of her two sonnes, either because they were both circumcised at that time, or because the one having beene circumcised before, shee reproveth Moses, for that he had not done the same to the other, and to all those that had been born unto him before.

CHAP. V. VERS. 5.

THE people] That scumme of people, that base common sort of people, so he doth in anger call the Jewes, Are many] Therefore it is dangerous to propound any innovations unto them, or to keep them idle.

V. 6. Officers] These were Jewes, as it appeareth by the 14. and 19. verses, whether they were of th Elders: Exod. 3. 16. or that they had onely some o versight of these works: but the task-masters certainly were Egyptians.

V. 7. Straw] Either to mingle amongst the clay to to make brick, or to burne it.

V. 11. Yet not] Be carefull in providing for it, for you must fully accomplish your work.

V. 16. Thine owne people] The poore Jewes thy subjects faile in their duties; in not performing what thou commandest, and therefore there is both injustice, and losse for thee in this rigorous dealing.

V. 21. To put] giving them occasion to oppresse us, and persecute us.

V. 22. Returned] Going aside, hee directed himselfe to God, for to complaine, and disburthen himselfe, as he had done Exod. 4 and to desire an answer from him.

CHAP. VI. VERS. 3.

I Appeared] That great and glorious name of Hee that is, which I revealed first unto thee: Exodus Chapter 3. verse 14. ought to be an assurance unto you, that as my name is the highest of all ancient names: so shall my grace, and power be more excellent towards you, than it was towards your fore-fathers. By the name] God had made himself knowne by other names before Moses time, but the name of Almighty, had beene the onely proper and incommunicable name: which made a difference betweene God, the creatures, and Idols. After Moses the name of, he that is (which the English hath Jehovah) held the same place, but more excellently: for the name of Almighty sheweth but onely one of his perfections, but the other comprehends them all: in the infinitenesse, and simplicity of the divine essence. Was I not] That new name was frequent in the Scriptures before Moses, but it was used there, as it were by anticipation, to shew, that the God of the Fathers was the same, as revealed himself afterwards unto his people, by this most glorious name.

V. 6. I am] That is to say, as true as I am the everlasting, or because that I am everlasting, that is to say [Page] immutable in mine essence; I will be the like in my promises and word. Stretched out arme] shewing my supream power.

V. 12. Vncircumcised] As Circumcision was a holy signe of the amendment of the naturall defect of the soule from sin:

so the Jewes called all them uncircumcised, who had any naturall defect either of body or mind.

V. 14. These] A digressio<sup>n</sup> out of the course of the history, to shew the lineage of Moses & Aaron, whom God did employ about the deliverance of his people, The heads] hat is to say, tthe first fathers of these nations, from whom also they took their Names. Houses] The Italian hath it, Families] The people was divided into Tribes, the Tribes into Families, or great Kinreds, the Kinreds into Housholds, and the Housholds into Heads. See Jos. 7 14. Here are understood great families of seventy in number, according to the number of the heads which came into Egypt, called fathers by eminence; and their successors families of the Fathers, Reuben] Meaning to insist upon the Family of Levi; hee briefly passeth over the heads of the two Tribes, which according to the order of the birth of the sonnes of Jacob, were the first.

V. 16. According] Each of which had also its distinct generation, to which also it gave its name.

V. 19. The Families] The first, from whence came those great families, which did also distinctly keep the same names as the first had.

V. 20. His Fathers sister] Others have it Cousen: see upon Ex. 2. 1.

V. 23. Daughter of] Which was of the Tribe of Ju [...]ah; and these two tribes of Judah and Levi did often joyne in affinity together.

V. 26. According to their] That is to say, in manner of an army, divided into companies, and colours, &c. according to the trib [...]s and families: [...] Ex. 12. 41. 51. and 13. 18. and 14. 8.

CHAP. VII. VERS. 1.

A God] The Italian hath it, To be in stead of God] That is to say, to be in my stead, and represent me, as head of this Ambassage: of which Aaron shall be as interpreter and orator under thee.

V. 3. My wonders] That is to say myracles, not of [...]race; nor for good to them; but of present punishment, and p [...]esages of greater evils to come.

V. 9. Thy rod] The same which God had ordained, which it seemeth Moses did ordinarily carry about him, and which he should deliver unto Aaron, as the performer of his commands, when there was any miracle to be wrought.

V. 11. Wise men] Those which were esteemed such; & bear the name of such, though their knowlege was altogether diabolically: otherwise by the name of wise men were understood those onely which studied naturall arts, and Sciences: and by Magicians those who had made a covenant with the devill, & wrought by his power. See Gen. 41. 8. Dan. 2. 2 Now Pharaoh his intent was, to take away from the God of the Israelites the honour, and power of working miracles alone: and from Moses the authority of his commands and threatnings.

V. 12. They became] not by any true change of substance, nor in a moment, in which two poynts consisteth the nature of a true miracle, and is out of the devils power, and the power of all his Ministers, but by some illusion wrought upon the beholders senses, by false impressions in the ayre, or by the putting in of true serpents, insensibly brought in from some other place, taking the rods from the peoples sights, by devillish deceits of the sight. Aarons rod] while it was yet a serpent. Here God, to leave Pharaoh in his wilfull error, is contented to shew by this signe that he is too strong in all things as the Devill can any way plot against him.

V. 14. Is hardned] The Italian hath it, made heavy] That is, obstinate, and firme in his purpose, as things which are very heavy, are also very hard to move.

V. 15. In the morning] Which sheweth that the Lord appeared unto Moses in the night.

V. 17. I will smite] That is to say, I Moses will cause Aaron to smite.

V. 18. Shall loath] The Italian, Shall be wearied] Namely, with endeavouring to purifie the water, eyther by digging in the earth, or by draining of it through the sand, seeing that in Egypt they have no other common water but that of the river Nilus.

V. 19. Vpon the waters] That is to say upon the waters of Nilus, which divideth it selfe through all the Countrey by channels and streams: Gods operation stretching it selfe from that place where the river was smitten to all the remnant, even to that which successively ran in the river.

V. 22. Did so] By illusi [...]n or supposition, as vers. 12.

Now this water whereupon the Magicians did work, was either that in the Land of Goshen, to which the plagues did not reach, Ex. 8. 22. and 9. 26. and 10. 23. Or the water of those wells and ditches which the Egyptians digged, or peradventure the water of Nilus it selfe, which peradventure was not so suddainly changed, but that the Magicians might have time to practice upon it.

V. 24. Digged] To trie if the water drawn through the earth, could be purified, which also might in part happen to be so.

CHAP. VIII. VERS. 5.

Over the] See upon Exod. 7. 19.

V. 7. Did so] Smiting the water with their rods, as Aaron had done. Brought up] Namely in the Land of [Page] Goshen, which was exempted from plagues: or in some other place, which was not presently, upon an instant, covered with frogs by Moses working. See upon Exod. 7. 22. Now God againe glorifies himselfe above the Magicians; in suffering them to imitate the miracle of the plague: but discovereth the false-hood and weaknesse of the devill, in that he doth not suffer them to imitate the remedy, and the deliverance: see upon Exod. 7. 12. and 8. 18.

V. 9. Glory over me] Now thou dost humble thy self, and bringest thy selfe into Gods obedience, thou obtainest the victory over mee, and beatest back my plagues: Or elie he speakes in scorne, as if he sayd, scorne me if thou wilt, and withstand me, according to thy wonted custeme; yet must thou request mee to relieve and helpe thee.

V. 12. Because of] Concerning the Frogs which he had caused to come upon Pharaoh.

V. 13. Villages] The Italian hath it, Courts] Or villages, or countries.

V. 16. Lice] The Italian hath it, Gnats] or Butterflies, or horse-flies, so many have interpreted the Hebrew word: yet others doe take it to be lice.

V. 18. They could not] Being hindred by God, from using their diabolicall deceits in this plague, which seemed [...] to be more easie to imitate; and in the plagues which followed, which he did to take away all colour of excuse from Pharaoh. There were] stayed upon them for a time.

V. 19. The finger] An effect of his omnipotence, to which no art can adde; confessing thereby secretly, that their miracles had been done by art. See Luk. 11. 20. Vnto them] Namely to Moses and Aaron. Or else to his owne Magicians.

V. 22. In the midst] This seemeth to be added against those prophane persons, who confesse the essence and glory of God in heaven, and deny his providence upon earth. Or against those Idolaters, who thought God to be a particular God of his people, and that his power could stretch no further.

CHAP. IX. VERS. 6.

ALL the] By the 9. 19. and 25 verses, it seemeth that all the Egyptians cattell did not dye: but the meaning is, that the mortality took hold of all kind of ca [...]el, and consumed great quantity of them.

V. 11. Stand] To practice wiles, or to seeke to withstand him with false miracles: So it seemeth that the small knowledge of God which they had obtayned: Ex. 8. 19. had wrough no conversion in them.

V. 14. Send] Or I willer flye, and shoot off like so many arrowes, which shall pierce thee mortally.

V. 15 For now] Beleeve not that, because thou hast hitherto escaped, that it hath proceeded from want of power in me, or that thou hadst might to strive with me: I have preserved thee my selfe, by not casting that mortality upon thee, which hath spoyled thy cattell.

V. 16. Raysed thee up] Caused thee to be born into the world, raysed thee up to royall dignity, and upheld thee till now, though I knew thine untamed malice, that by striving with it, and overcoming it, I might manifest my omnipotency to all men, to the comfort of my people, and terrour to the wicked: See Ex. 14. 17. Prov, 16. 4. Rom. 9. 17. 1 Pet. 2. 8.

V. 17. Exaltest thou thy self] Like a bank to oppose thy self against the increase, and free departure of my people.

V. 18. Foundation thereof] Since the first setting up of this kingdome, v. 24.

V. 19. Send] A warning out of superabundant mercy, to make Pharaoh so much the more condemnable, and to spare such amongst the Egyptians, as had some feare of God in them.

V. 23. Ran along] Did run along upon the earth; The Italian hath it, Did seize upon.]

V. 27. I have sinned] I confesse my sin, condemne my selfe, and give God the glory of having commanded me just things, and to have punished mee justly for my rebellion.

V. 28. Mighty thunderings] The Italian hath it, Thunders of God] That is to say so terrible and extraordinary.

V. 29. I will spread] This is the ancient gesture in praying, with armes stretched out, and the palmes of of the hands turned upwards.

V. 32. The Rye] The Italian hath it Spelt] or Formenty] which is the noblest kind of wheat.

CHAP. X. VERS. 1.

I Have] Seeing that through my just judgement, hee still remaines hardened, I will have thee to urge him againe, that I may have new matter proffered me, to overcome and tame him. I might shew] That I might publikely shew the effects of them, and leave the memory thereof to posterity, for a remembrance of my power and justice.

V 2. Thou mayst] That is, thou Moses, and by thy means and instruction, every one of my people.

V. 7. A snare] That is to say, for an occasion to make us guilty before God, and so to insnare us in an inevitable ruine.

V. 9. A feast] And therefore it is fitting that all' both great and small, which are comprehended within Gods covenant, and bound to his service, should be present: And that we should also have all our cattell with us, to offer unto God, according to his will.

V. 10. Evill] You stand provoking my wrath, and drawing on your own ruines, through your enterprizes and bold demands: the Ital. hath it, Evill hangeth over you] Others have it, you have evill before you▪ That is to say, you have some evill designe, which I will severely punish, if I doe discover it. Hee feared they would go quite away, to [Page] his losse, and the losse of his whole countrie, for losing the service of so many men, and therefore he will have them leave their children for hostages of their comming back again, see Exo. 1. 10.

V. 11 For that] The Italian hath it, Seeing that] If this be your sincere intent, be content that I grant you this, without desiring that which is not needfull thereto.

V. 13 An East-wind] Raised by miracle, to serve for Gods work, see upon Gen. 8. 1. Numb. 11. 31.

V. 17 This death] That is to say, this mortal plague, which will bring in a generall famine.

V. 19 The red Sea] Called by the authors, the Arabian gulfe. This name of red hath been taken from this, because this Sea bounded the Land of Edom, or Idumea, 1 King. 9. 26. 2 Chron. 8. 17. and Edom signifieth red. The Hebrew word signifieth the Sea of Sea grasse, which is a kinde of grasse, or small Sea bull-rush.

V. 21 May be felt] Through the thickest of the vapours, and the mist raised by miracle, to hinder the Sunne-beames, and dimme (yea put out) any artificiall light.

V. 24 Called unto] very like it was after the darknesse was past, for before no man could stirre out of his place.

V. 26 With what] Of what kinde of cattel, and what number.

SAid unto] Namely before Moses withdrew himself for the last time from before Ph [...]raoh.

V. 5 That sitteth] He who is acknowledged, for Prince, and successor; is already installed in the Kingdome▪ others have it, That must sit. Behind] According to the use of those days to make the m [...]n, and maide servants turne the mill. Judg. 16. 21. Isa. 47. 2 Matth 24. 41.

V. 7 Not a dog] There shall be no stirring nor noise, so much as to make a dog barke in the ni [...]t, every thing shall be exceeding quiet: see Jos. 10. 21.

CHAP. XII. VERS. 1.

SPake] It is likely that this was before the plague of darknesse.

V. 2 This moneth] Called by the Hebrews Abib: Exod. 13. 4. and 23. 15. D [...]ut. 16. 1. and by the Chaldeans Nisan, Hest. 3. 7. which was the moone after the Equinectiall of the spring. Shall be] Whereas untill this day the yeare hath begun the moone after the Autumnall equinectiall, Gen. 7. 11. and 8. 5, 14. hereafter you shall have an holy yeare which shall begin the fore-said moneth of Abib, and the other yeare shall remaine for civill acts, and affaires: see Exo. 23. 16. and 34. 22.

V. 3 In the tenth] This keeping of the Paschall Lambe for foure dayes or there abouts was ordained to teach the preparation, and sanctification, required in the participation of the Sacraments. And also to figure unto us that Christ the true mysticall lambe, after his solemne consecration through Baptisme, should exercise his function for three years and a half untill his death: see Dan. 9. 27. Christ did also the tenth day of this moneth, make entrance into Jerusalem: and the fifteenth he was crucified. Now because there is no mention made elsewhere of this keeping; it is likely that it was one of the singularities for the first celebration, v. 6. which had no perpetuall Law. Every man] the Italian hath it, Every house] To shew the communion of the Church, in the enjoying of Christ, and his benefits.

V. 4 Take it] Let them joyntly provide the lambe, and provide in common, for all things required for this action. According to the number] in such manner, that these two, do make out of their families, a sufficient number, to eat up a lambe at one time.

V. 5 Without blemish] A figure of Christs perf [...]ct j [...]stice and innocency: Heb 9. 14. 1 Pet. 1. 19.

V. 6 U [...]till the fourteenth] Towards the end of which day, which was at the setting of the sunne, the l [...]mbe was killed, made ready, and eaten, v. 18. Lev. 23. 5. Num. 28. 16. and then immediatly after, being the fifteenth, begun the feast of unleavened bread, Lev. 21 6. Num. 28. 16. and ended on the even of the one and twentieth. In the evening] The Italian hath it, Be [...]ween the two eve [...]ngs] The Jewes anciently used no houres but did part the light, or naturall day, into morning, midday, and evening. Psal. 55 18. Dan. 6. 10. Now the midday and evening, were by them called by a duall name, as who should say two middayes, and two evenings, because that under the name of midday, were comprehended two houres before, and two houres after th [...] just me [...]idi [...]nall point: and under the name of evening, the beginning of the [...]nnes declining▪ untill the full setting thereof. The Romanes brought up the division of day light into twelve houres, whereby this time of two evenings, was then accounted from the ninth houre, or three in the afternoone, untill the sun was set: see Acts 3. 1. and 10. 3. 6. and this time answereth just to the time of Christs death. Matth. 27 46. Mark. 15. 34.

V 7 Of the blood] For a marke to distinguish those houses which God would free from that corporall death, which should overthrow the Egyptians houses, and for a figure of the application of Christs bloud in baptisme, for the redemption from everlasting death, which falls upon the rest of the world: see concerning the spirituall seale, [Page] figured by this: Rev 7. 3. and 9. 4. and 14. 1. This circumstance also was singular for the first Passeover.

V. 8 Let them eate] So Christ having sealed us with his bloud in Baptisme, to absolve us from death, and damnation; doth afterwards give himselfe to us for food: whereof the holy Communion is a Sacrament. In that night] In the evening of the fourteenth, the night of the fifteenth comming in, into which night the n eale did also somewhat extend it selfe. [...]oste] To figure Christs [...]u [...]erings, which were extreame and universall, without any drop of comfort, or refreshing: subsisting in the fire of Gods anger against the sin of man, for which he was become pay-master. Psalm. 22. 15. 16. John 19. 28. Through the onely juice (as one may say) of his owne justice and innocency. With unleavened bread] In remembrance of their hasty departure out of Egypt, verse 34. and for the peoples poverty in that countrie: Deuteron. 16. 3. and to teach us that none can participate of Christ, with the leaven of hypocrisie, impurity, or malice: Matth. 16. 6. 11. 1 Cor. 5. 7, 8. Bitter hearbs] The Italian hath it, Wi [...]de lettuce] So the Hebrew word is translated by the ancient: and so now the Jewes do use to eat wilde succory, which hath been holden for a kinde of lettuce, dipped in a certaine sauce made with other bitter hearbs. That signified at that time, the troubles which should accompany the people at their going out of Egypt, untill they did arrive into the Land of Canaan. And for ever the tribulations of all the true faithfull partakers of Christs life, and of his sufferings, Mat. 20. 22, 23. Rom. 8. 17.

V. 9 *R [...]*w] Ill, or half dressed. As a figure of Christ, who to be our true Passeover, was to be afflicted to the uttermost. Isa. 53. 3. Sodden] Because that water correcteth and tempereth the scorching of the fire; which did not befall Christ at all, who felt the heat of Gods wrath against sin, without any lightening or eas [...]. Head] this betoakeneth also that Christ ought to be apprehended by faith, in his wh [...]le person; his office, grace, justice, and benefits without any division. The pur [...]enance] Namely that which was to be eaten, and not be offered unto God, as the fat, the caul, and the kidneies were: 2 Chron. 35. 12. 14.

V. 10 Ye shall let nothing] to avoid superstition, and to shew that Christ must be apprehended whole and at once.

V. 11 With your loines] the Italian [...]ath it, Have your loines] with your garments girded, and tuckt up, alter the manner of travaillers, to be ready to depart out of Egypt. A figure of all the faithfuls preparation, to expect Christ for their full deliverance, disburthened of all aff [...]ctions, sollicitudes, and other carnall hinderances: Luke 12. 35. 1 Pet. 1. 13. This ceremony was also singular, and peculiar for that first Passeover, as it app [...]th by our Saviours Passeover with his Apostles. Passeover] that is in commemoration of the passing over of the destroying Angel, by whom I will work your deliverance. It is a figure and Sacrament of Christ his passing out of the world to the Father by death: Joh. 13. 1. by which the Church hath obtained redemption.

V. 12 Execute judgement] Either that the Idols of Egypt by miracle were thrown down, or that he only meaneth, that through his judgements upon Egypt, he would confound the false Gods thereof, that they should not be able to escape. see [...]pon Isa. 19. 1. and 46. 1. and elsewhere in the Prophets. I am] a manner of affirming a thing, as it were by oath, as if he should say; as certaine, as it is true that I am the Lord.

V. 13 A token] of safety to you, and for a distinction to mine Angel: as Ezech. 9. 4. Rev. 7. 3. To destroy you] not like unto the Egyptians plague.

V. 14 For ever] All the time that ceremonies shall last, namely till Christ, who by the fulfilling of them, shall abolish the use of them, bringing in a new age, and state in the Church, Rom. 10. 4. Col. 2. 16, 17.

V. 16 A holy] That is to say, a solemne and holy day, on which the people shall meet in a place for the publique service of God, to be instructed in his word, and to render unto him the worship of praises, and sacrifices, &c. Lev. 23. 35, 36. May be done] Unlesse it were in case, that [...]ay should fall on the Sabbath, which day the making ready of meat was forbidden: Exo. 16. 25. and 35. 3. And it is credible that this permission did extend also to other solemne feasts.

V. 22 Ye shall take] This also was ordained only for the first Passeover. Untill the] That is to say, before the slaying of the first borne be ended: for otherwise they went out in the night, yet somewhat neere the morning, v. 42.

V. 23 Will passe] The Italian hath it, When the Lord shall passe] That is to say, shall cause his destroying Angel to passe.

V. 24 This thing] The generall command of the Passeover, and unleavened bread, but not to observe all the particular forenamed orders.

V. 25 When ye be] For the Passeover, by reason of many discommodities, was kept but once in the wilderness, and that by Gods expresse command: Num. 9. 2, 3. This service] The Sacraments being part of the sacred acts of the publique service of God.

V. 27 The sacrifice] The Passeover signified Christs sacrifice, and likewise the application which the faithfull man, ought to make thereof to himselfe, through a lively faith; wherefore the passeover participated, both of the sacrifice, wherein he is offred to God, and of the Sacrament, wherein his grace is received. As it was a sacrifici [...]: Exod. 34. 25. Num. 9. 7. 13. D [...]on. 16. 2. 5. the bloud of the Lambe was sprinkled in a holy [Page] place by the Priests; and the fat, the caul and the kidneyes were burnt upon the Altar, Deut. 16. 2. 2 Chron. 35. 11, 12, 14. According as God did afterwards specifie these ceremonies. As it was a Sacrament the flesh was eaten by every particular person. Bowed the head] in token of submission, and reverent acceptance of the commandement.

V. 29 Captive] That is to say, of the slaves. Exo. 11. 5. who wrought in irons, and in the prison also, where they were shut up after their work, see Judg. 16. 21.

V. 31 He called] He caused him to be called, and told in his name, for Moses did see Pharaoh no more, Exo. 10. 29.

V. 32 And blessed me] that is to say, pray unto God for me, laying aside all hatred and rancour.

V. 34 Leavened] Before the water was well dried up in it, or was well settled, which is required in dough, although it be unleavened, before it be baked; because that howsoever all leaven was forbidden from the beginning of the fifteenth, verse 15. 19.

V. 35 They borrowed] They had done it after the ninth plague, before the tenth: Exo. 11. 2.

V. 36 They lent] the Italian hath it, They had lent] see upon Exo 3. 22.

V. 37 Succoth] This name seemeth to be given to this place, by reason of the cabins and bowres, which the people made there in hast, for their first resting place. On foot] That is to say, compleate, and able men, fitting to walke in battaile array without riding upon beasts, or in waggon, like women, and weake old men, and little children: Num. 1. 45, 46. Children] the Italian hath it, Housholds] That is of women and children.

V. 38 Multitude] that is to say strangers, the Israelites servants, or some which had voluntarily joynd themselves whith them: see Numb. 11. 4.

V. 39 Leavened] It had no leaven amongst it, because it was forbidden, nor was not well made up, by reason of the haste, v. 34. Prepared] that is to say, before hand.

V. 40 Fou [...] hundred] Within this account is comprehended all the time since Abraham came out of Chaldea, Gen. 12. 1. and he and his successors remained as strangers in divers countries, for the people were in Aegypt but 210. or 215. yeares.

V. 42 To be much observed] That is to say, solemne, and hallowed by many ceremonies, which God ordained to be straightly observed, making it more famous than any night in the yeare, by the remembrance of so many benefits, and wonders. For bringing them] The Italian hath it, When he brought them] or chosen to bring them out, in, or after that he had brought them out.

V. 43 A Forrainer] by nation, or by religion, who is not by circumcision incorporated into the Church of God, to which alone are made the promises of grace; and to whom also appertaine the seales and Sacraments thereof.

V. 44 Hast circumcised] Seeing he had voluntarily embraced the Churches faith, and desired to weare the Character of it: see upon Genes. 17. 12 He shall eate thereof] That is to say, he shall have right to it, and libertie to do it, and shall be bound thereunto. As under the Gospell, a man hath no right to the Lords table, if he hath not been baptized: and even as one that is not living, cannot be nourished.

V. 45 A forreiner] He that upon some occasion liveth amongst the people, and is not by right, nor religion incorporated. And the same must be und [...]rstood of the mercenary and uncircumcised stranger.

V. 46 In one house] Every familie shall cat it in one and the selfe same place: verse 3. Not carry forth] To avoid all superstitious abuse, [...]ut of Gods ordinance, and to shew that out of the Church and the communion of Saints, there can be no participation of Christs spirituall goods. Neither shall ye break] A figure of Christ whose bones were not broken, as the two theeves bones were: John 19. 33. to shew that no man had power to take away his life; but that he voluntarily had laid it downe: John 10. 48.

V. 48 Of the Lord] Or to the Lord, that is to say, to his honour and service. All his males] see Gen. 17. 10.

CHAP. XIII. VERS. 2.

SAnctifie unto me] Tell the people from me, that besides the most ancient custome, Genesis 4. 4. every first borne, as escaped, through my favour, out of the slaughter of the first borne of Aegypt, verse 15. belongeth unto me as a sacred thing wherefore the firstlings of the cleane beasts shall be offered unto me, and the flesh shall be for the Priests: Num. 18. 17. they of uncleane beasts shall be redeemed, verse 13. and the price given to the Priests: Num. 18. 15 the first borne of men shall be consecrated to my service. Now in exchange of these, God afterwards took the I evites, Num. 3. 12. and 8. 16. and after this first exchange, the first borne were to be redeemed with money, and the money was to be given to the Priest: Num. 8. 15. 16.

V. 3 There shall] That the memory thereof may be preserved by this observation.

V. 4 Abib] See upon Exo. 12. 2. the Hebrew word signifieth an ear [...] upon the stalke, or the corne cared, which beginneth in those countries to be so about Easter: Exo. 9. 31 Lev 23. 10. 15.

V. 9 For a signe] That is to say, in stead of remembrances, which men use to carry about them, to preserve or [Page] renew the remembrance of any thing, See Deut. 6. 8. Pro. 3. 3. and 6. 21. and 7. 3. Isay 46. 16. That the] to give thee occasion to meditate continually upon Gods Commandements: to which thou art straightly obliged by this admirable deliverance, through which he hath gotten thee wholly to himselfe.

V. 12. Set apart] that is, lay aside all the interest thou hast in them, and resigne them wholly to the Lord.

V. 13. Of an Asse] and likewise of every other unclean beast, which is not fitting for sacrifice, Breake his] to the end that which belongeth to the Lord, may not be put to any other ordinary use.

V. 16. Frontelets] the Hebrew word signifieth ribonds, or lists of skins or parchment, which they tied about their armes, or forehead for a remembrance. The Jews did use to weare them for devotion, writing some sentences of Scripture upon them, and were called in Greek Philacteries, that is to say, preservers of memory, Mat. 25. 5. afterwards they used them for superstitious preservatives against sicknesse, and other sinister accidents.

V. 17. Of the Land] drawing towards that land, [...]ast peradventure] meaning, that it was fitting the people should first be accustomed to labour, enclined to obedience, and strengthened in faith, by the long journey in the desert, before I put them to the triall of war against the Cananites: and that all hope of returning into Egypt may be taken away from them, knowing no other way but through the red sea, which shall miraculously be opened for them, and presently shut up again. Now this is a kind of human discourse: For God is no way tied to means, for to come to his ends, yet he doth set down many very convenient and fitting ones according to the free diposition of his wisdom.

V. 18. The Wildernesse] of Etham, Num. 33. 8. Harnessed] the Italian hath it, in array] the Hebrew word seemeth to signifie in ranke by five and five, Jos. 1. 14. others harnessed] according as the Hebrew phrase implyeth, wearing of the sword b [...]It about the fifth rib, that is to say, about the five last small ribs.

V. 19. Of Joseph] together with the other Patriarchs Acts 7. 16.

V. 20. Succoth] see Exo. 12. 37.

V. 21. The Lord] the Son of God personally, 1 Cor. 10. 9 therefore called the Angel of the Lord, Exo. 14. 19. w [...]n [...]] he shewed his presence in power and operation, joyned to this signe, and instr [...]ment, wheresoever he removed or transported himselfe, a Pillar] an airy body, like a cloud in sight, and quality, miraculously formed, standing upright and spreading it selfe very high in the aire. After the Tabernacle was set up, this Pillar had its basis upon it, Exod. 40. 38. Num. 9. 15. and remained so in the middest of the Host, when God would have it stand still: and when he would have it march on it removed to the head of the host, to lead them] through those deserts, & uninhabited sands, without any beaten way, Num. 10. 33. Deut. 1. 33. it was also to make them a shade, and keep them from scortching, Psa. 105. 39. a pillar] it was the same Pillar in substance, as the first was; but by night by miracle it shewed otherwise, and was for another use, By day and night] as well by day as by night, as it pleased

God to cause them to remove, now at one time, now at another, Numb. 9. 17 and some times also causes them to march diverse dayes and nights without resting, Num. 10. 33. and 33. 8.

V. 22. He tooke not away] all the time they were in the wilderness.

CHAP. XIV. VERS. 2.

That they tur [...]e] whereas the right and direct way to the land of Canaan is on the left hand, let them draw to the right hand towards the red sea: Pi [...]a [...]irot] the Italian hath it, the throat] or gorge of Hirot] hills which made a h [...]ad to the red sea, into whose throat Pharaoh thought that the people running away, would inclose themselves.

V. 3. The Wildernesse] they thought to have saved themselves in the wildernesse, but the difficulty therof hath affrighted them, wherefore they have turned aside, to shut themselves up, and inclose themselves, within the streights, of these mountaines.

V. 5. Fled] made a shew of going away, intending not to returne, contrary to Pharaohs opinion, grounded upon Moses his first proposition, Exo. 3. 18 and 5 3. which, Pharaoh disobeying, and now again following them in an hostile manner. Moses was no more tied in that unto that first proposition, and the peoples departure was justified by Gods providence.

V. 7. Over all] cer [...]ain heads commanded over all this number of chariots: or over every chariot there was an Officer, who had the rule over them, that were upon the said chariot.

V. 8. A high hand] openly, freely, with displayed banners, not like run [...]wa [...]es.

V. 10. Cried out] through feare and perturbation: not with a faithful calling upon him.

V. 15. Wherefore] It is likely that Moses amazed at the peoples murmuring, was gone aside to pray unto the Lord: who chideth him, not for the holy act of praying, but for his feare, which stayed the execution of that which he had already abundantly consented unto. And did also let him know, that hee was readier to heare him, than hee was to call upon him.

V. 16. Divide it] thou making this signe which I commanded thee, my self at the same time will produce the effect of it, v. 21.

V. 19. The Angel] the Son of God himself, the per- [Page]fect pattern and eternall Mediator between God and man, Exo. 13. 21. removed] the Italian hath it, went away] removing the pillar, which was the signe of his presence, he spread forth his power behind the host, as well as he had done before it.

V. 20. To them] the Italian hath it to the one] namely to the Egyptians, that part of the pillar which was towards them, being like a cloud, whereby they were hindred in their pursuite, to these] the Italian, to the other] namely to the Israelites, to whom the other side of the pillar, appeared like fire, to shew them the way.

V. 21. By a strong] which in part was a signe of Gods presence, who wrought therein by his omnipotency: and in parts was an instrument of his working: Yet above all naturall property of its owne; but rather contrary to it, its property being rather to spread the waters abroad, than to gather them up in a heap. Others say that it was to dry up the muddy bottome of the sea, Gen. 8. 1. Exo. 15. 8.

V. 24. Morning watch] according as anciently the nights in stead of houres, were divided into so many watches, the number of which is not certainly known: see 1 Sam. 11. 11. Looked] a figurative terme, asmuch as to say darted his thunderbolts, as it were out of the lightning of his eyes, Psa. 77. 18, 19.

V. 25. Looke off] having broken them or brought them out of order with the thunder, Drave them] the Italian, He did lead them] going before them, hindered them in their pursuite.

V. 27. His strength] the Italian hath, His violent course] that is to say a violent fall of waters so heaped up, Overthrow] by some impetuous wind, or otherwai [...].s.

V. 30. Upon the sea shore] which were driven thither by the boyling of the sea, which in that manner casteth up dead carkasses, See Psa. 74. 14.

V. 31. Beleeved the Lord] through confidence, and entire dependency of the heart and conference upon him, as their Sovereigne: Moses] through acknowledgement, obedience, and docility, as towards Gods servant and ambassadour, Exo. 19. 9.

CHAP. XV. VERS. 2.

SOng] the subject of my praises and holy songs, prepare him an habitation] the Italian hath it, glorise him] the Hebrew, I will give him ornaments, and trimmings; others, I will set him up a habitation, that is to say a holy place, where hee shall be served and honored.

V. 8: With the blast] whereby he intimates that the wind, Exo. 14. 21 was miraculously raised by God, and accompanied with a supernaturall property.

V. 11. Fearefull] the Italian Reverend] who by thine excellent and famous works, causest thy self to be respected and feared.

V. 12. The earth] it should seem he meant the miry bottom of the sea, wherein many did stick.

V. 13. Towards thy holy habitation] That is to say, the land of Canaan where thou hast determined to set thy holy temple, and the habitation of the signes of thy presence, in grace and power.

V. 14. Shall [...]eare] The Italian, Have heard it] He speaketh of times to come, in words signifying times past, according to the manner of Prophets.

V. 16. As still] The Hebrew hath it, quiet and mute: See Gen. 35. 5. Psa. 76. 6.

V. 17. The mountaine] that is to say, the hilly countrey of Canaan, which thou hast chosen for the place of thy service, and for the habitation of thy people. Deut. 32. 8. 9. especially mount Moriah destined for the building of the Temple, Psa. 75.

V. 20. The Prophetesse] See Num. 12. 2. A timbrell] according to the manner of publick rejoycings; Judg. 11. 34. 1 Sam. 18 6. Psa. 68. 26. *Danc [...]*s] That is to say, mounting motions of the body, in token of rejoycing, exultation and rapture of the mind, without any lasciviousnes or lightnes: See 2 Sam. 6. 14. 21. others translate it Flutes.

V. 21. Answered] In manner of an antheme, as 1 Chron. 16. 41. 2 Cron. 5. 18. Esdras. 3. 11. Jer. 33. 11.

V. 23. Marah] That is to say, bitternesse, or a bitter thing.

V. 25. A tree] Either that this naturall property was in the wood, increased peradventure, and strengthen'd by miracle: or that all the vertue proceeded immediatly from God, and that the wood was but only a token appointed by Gods will, as 2 Kings 2. 20. and 4. 41. to which it pleased him to joyne his power, to exercise the peoples, and Moses faith and obedience, Made] he began to give them straiter lawes of obedience, having by the meeting with these waters, had a triall of their perversenesse, and by the miraculous changing of them, given them sufficient cause to depend wholly upon his providence, Exod. 16. 4. Deut. 8. 16.

V. 26 Diseases] And other plagues, Healeth] Or preserveth, 2 Cron. 30. 20.

CHAP. XVI. VERS. 3.

BY the hand] by these miraculous plagues, wherewith the Lord smote the Egyptians.

V. 4. From Heaven] a food created by God in the aire, wherefore it is called the corne of Heaven and Angels, Psa. 78. 24, 25. and 105. 40.

V. 5. Prepare] Because that Manna might be prepared diverse waies. V. 23. Num. 11. 8. which was forbidden on the Sabbath day, Ex. 35. 3. Bring in] for the Sabbath dayes meales.

V. 6. That the Lord] and not we of our own proper [Page] motion.

V. 7. The glory] A miraculous effect of his soveraign power, namely Manna.

V. 9. Before] towards the pillar of cloud, which was a token of Gods presence.

V. 10. The glory] Some extraordinary and divine brightnesse, Lev. 9. 6. 23. Num. 14. 10.

V. 12. At even] The Italian hath it, Betweene the two evens] see upon Exo. 12. 6.

V. 13. The dew] The Italian hath, A floure of dew] this was a superficies, of a liquid and aereall substance which through the coolenes of the morning was congealed into little co [...]nes, which were Manna.

V. 14. Gone up] The Italian, Vanished] that liquid body beeing turned into cornes.

V. 15. Manna] It should seeme that at that time Manna was the name of the airy honey or honied dew, which to this day is to be found in diverse places, like to that of the wildernes, which was always so called by the Easterlings. But Moses presently sheweth the difference, namely, that this was produced and sent by miracle, for the time of their pilgrimage in the desert, whereas the other is naturall, and falleth only in certain places and at certain seasons.

V. 16. [...]o his eating] That is to say, his own and his families: An Omer] A kind of measure containing the tenth part of an Epha. v. 36.

V. 20. Left of it] either through distrust or curiosity.

V. 22. Same] this sheweth that the people made this provision of their own accord, to the end that they might observe the Sabbath, and that Moses had not as yet declared unto them Gods command concerning that, in the v. 5. wherefore the rulers feared the people had transgressed the commandment, which was to gather no more but an O [...]er a day.

V. 23. Bake] For Manna was to be dressed these two ways, Num. 11. 8.

V. 25. Unto the Lord] Dedicated to his service, laying aside al other businesses.

V. 29. Let not man go out] To gather Manna, or to do any servile work, because he was to be at the holy assemblies, Lev. 23. 3, 4. and it was lawfull to go a Sabbath dayes journey, Act. 12. to walk upon lawfull occasions.

V. 33. Said unto] After the Tabernacle was set up a Pot] which was of gold, Heb. 9. 4. Before the] before the A [...]ke which afterwards was the expressest and holiest signe of Gods presence.

V. 35. The testimony] That is, the Arke called of the testimony, because that within it were the Tables of the Law, Exo. 25. 25. Deut. 10. 5. wherein the Lord hath testified, that is to say declared his will concerning mans duty; and the Tables thereof, are the sacred monument of his covenant, Deut. 31. 26.

CHAP. XVII. VERS. 1.

Commandment] Declared unto them by the standing still, or moving of the pillar, Exod. 13. 21. Now between Sin and Rephidim there were two resting places in Dophea and Alus, Num. 33. 12, 13.

V. 2. D [...] ye tempt] Make a rash triall of his power, and truth through incredulitie? and of his patience, through malice and boldnesse The Lord] the son of God, who was personally present in the midst of the people, and did conduct them; See Exo. 13. 21. 23. 21. and so the Apostle expound it, 1 Cor. 10. 9.

V. 5. Elders] See Exo 3. 16. Now they were to bee eye witnesses of the miracle, which was denied the people, either by reason of their incredulity; or to cause them to beare more reverence to the wonderful works of God, see Exo. 24. 1. 9.

V. 6. I will stand] I will cause the pillar to stand there, in token that in that very place I will shew forth the power of my presence.

V. 7. Massa and Meriba] Temptation and strife: see another Meriba, Num. 20. 13.

V. 9. I will] Thou Joshua shalt do what belongeth to a Captain, and I will look to my office of Prophet, to mediate with God for his assistance, and to use the rod, the instrument of his miracles, to dispense that grace and supernaturall power unto thee, which I shall have obtained by my prayers.

V. 10. H [...]r] which sheweth that he was the head of the tribe of Judah, which had the precedency of the other: see Exo. [...]4. 14. 1 Chron 2. 19. So Hur was under Moses the chief politick magistrate, as Aaron was chief of the Ecclesiasticall order; and by these three was represented the whole body of the people, when they joyned in prayer for the publick welfare.

V. 11 Held up] with the rod in it: For a token as well of the perseverance, and fervour in prayer, as of Gods action which followed in saving the people. As contrarywise the letting down of the hands, did shew the slacking of prayer and therewithall the slacking of Gods working. The stone signifieth Christ, the only prop of faith which he also as high Priest of the Church like Aaron, and her chief head and King, like Hur, strengtheneth in all sights by his interceslion, Luke 22. 32.

V. 14. I [...] a Booke] The Italian hath it, In the Book] which thou w [...]i [...]est by mine appointment, Exo. 34. 27. Deut. 31. 9. 22. which is nothing else but the volume of the five books of Moses: Rehearse it] The Italian, Put it] cause him to understand it well that he and all other heads of the people, which shall be his successors, may put this my command in execution, when I shall give them occasion so to do, as I did to Saul, who neglected it.

V. 15. An Altar] according to the custome, aswel for to give Gods thanks for his deliverance, as to leave a [Page] monument of it behind him: Called the name] not for to attribute Gods incommunicable names to the Altar, but to make it beare this Mott [...], as it were for a title, or inscription. Or because he would now professe this thankfulness, and erect in this altar a lasting monument thereof. See Judg. 6. 24. Jer. 23. 6. and 33. 16. Ezech. 48. 35 Je [...] Jovah-Nissi] The Italian hath it, The Lord is my banner] he under whom, and by whose power I fight, and is also the only authour of my victories, through which I erect banners and trophies, Psa. 20. 6 and 60. 6.

V. 16. Because the Lord hath sworne] The Italian hath it, Certain it is that there is a hand upon the throne of the Lord] That is to say, the power of God, spread from his celestrall throne, is it which hath given his people this wonderfull victory. I did but only shew it by lifting up my hand from the stone which I sate upon. Others expound it, the Lord upon his throne hath lifted up his hand, that is to say, hath sworne he will for ever have war against Amaleck: See Deut 32. 40.

CHAP. XVIII. VERS. 2.

AFTER he had] Which is conjectured to have hapned upon the occasion set down, Exod. 4. 24, 25. Others after her dowry, that is to say, bringing his daughter to Moses, and sending before him [...]tell, and other goods, which he gave for a dowry, or for a present to Moses, as Gen. 32. 16.

V. 4. Eliezer] That is to say, God is my help.

V. 11. For in the thing] that is to say, the Egyptians harmes, have not befallen them by chance; out they were a just punishment of God upon the oppressors of his people, through which he hath been exalted above all their false gods, which could not escape him.

V. 12. Sacrifices] To give thanks; with which Sacrifices, feasts were made in the presence of God, Deu. [...]2. 7. and 27. 7 Before God] before the pillar in which God appeared.

V. 15. To enquire] that is to say, to desire of mee the determination of doubtfull, and litigious cases, that are amongst them, whether there were any speciall revelation required for the doing of it: or whether the ordinary guide of the Spirit of God in Moses was sufficient to resolve them. See Exod. 31. 7. [...] Sam 9. 9.

V. 16. Matters] That is to say, a cause or a suite.

V. 18. Both th [...] and this] Thou for the greatnesse of the labour, and the people for the tediousnesse in expecting, and for want of decisions to rule them in their doubts.

V. 19. God shall be] Thou mayest hope for a blessing from God, who accompanieth a good order, and holy wisdom: Be thou] that is to say, it is enough for thee to be a meanes between God and the people, to [...] Gods answer, in highest, and obsourest businesses, and to relate from him to the people, not only the determinations of particular causes, but his generall laws also.

V. 23. Shall also go] Thou being thus eased, and the people maintained in peace and good order, by the easie, and speedy administration of justice; it may under thy conduct happily arrive into the land of Canaan, which God hath promised them, and prepared for them.

V. 24. Harkened] namely with Gods approbation, Numbers 11. 16. and the peoples consent, Deuter. 1. 14.

V. 25. Rulers] Succeeding in order to one another, Of thousands] of men and their families.

CHAP. XIX. VERS. 3.

VVEnt up unto God] To mount Sinai, where God had brought the pillar of cloud, wherein he was present.

V. 4. Ba [...]e you] Taken you into my charge and government, conducted, and defended you, as the eagle carrieth her young ones upon her wings, Deut. 32. 11. Unto my selfe] to this place where I appear unto you, and communicate my self unto you in grace and blessing, as to my children into my house, and consequently into the land of Canaan, where I have established my firme residence on earth, and finally to heaven, the seat of my glory, and last marke of your vocation.

V. 5. Treasure] A people esteemed above all other, to whom I will communicate my most peculiar favours and of whom I will take a particular care. The Hebrew word signifieth a store house of rare and precious things. All the earth] And therefore also have I freely chosen that people, which it pleased mee to chuse.

V. 6. A kingdom] not a profane state, but sanctified, for the true service of God, over which the Son of God reigneth, not only as a King to command and threaten: but as a Priest also to reconcile, expiate, pardon, &c. Psal. 110. 4. tempering the one office with the other.

V. 7. The [...]llers] See Exo. [...]. 16.

V. 10. Sanctifie them] Give them order to cleanse themselves from all corporall and spirituall uncleannesse, and bid them prepare themselves to receive my Law with all manner of devotion: See Gen. 35 2. Jo [...]. 3. 5. and 7 13.

V. 11. Will come down] He will appeare here below, in the likenesse of that glory in which he dwelleth [...]n heaven.

V. 12. Set Bounds] not only to keep the people in awe, and feare of God, 1 Sam. 6. 19. but also to teach them, that through the Law there is no accesse to God by grace, Heb. 12. 2. there being always between the bar of mans sin, and Gods justice, Isa. 59. 2. and that betwixt God, [Page] proceeding according to his Law, and sinneful man, there needeth a Mediator, for satisfaction, and expiation, as Moses was for relation, and communication, Gal. 3. 19.

V. 13. Soundeth] namely with an even and sweet sound, opposite to a loud and rough sound. V. 16. by which was signified the voyce of the law which thunders, terrifies and beates off; as by the other, the voyce of the Gospel, which calleth, and gathereth together: See Num. 10. 7. 1 Kings 19. 12. Heb. 12. 19. To the] drawing neer the foot thereof, v. 17.

V. 15. Your wives] The Italian hath it, To a woman] though it be your lawfull wife, the use of which doth not contaminate the conscience, Heb. 13. 4. Yet it having much sensuality in it, this was one of the ceremoniall abstinences of the Law, 1 Sam. 21, 4, 5. Zach. 7. 3.

V. 16. Thunders] tokens of Gods terrible Majesty, and to teach us that the Law was given after sin, to abate mans pride, to terrifie and awake mens consciences, to have recourse to the grace of the Gospel, Heb. 12 19. A thick cloud] as it were to shadow the brightnesse of Gods glory, which is not communicated unto us by the Law, but by the only grace of Jesus Christ, See 1 Kings 8. 12. 2 Cor. 3. 13. 18 and 4. 6. Trumpet] an instrument of command, justice, war and uproare. A figure of the rigor of the law in commanding, and of its force, in piercing the consciences, Heb. 12. 19 opposite to the sweet sound of the Gospel, 1 Kin. 19. 12: All the people] yea and Moses himself, Heb. 12. 21.

V. 18 In fire] to represent the power of Gods word, like unto that of fire, Jer. 23 29

V. 19. By a voyce] the Italian hath it By thunder] by a loud and resounding voyce: Yet distinct and intellgible; see Psa. 81. 8 Iohn 12. 29

V. 22 The Priests] Before the Priesthood was restrained within the tribe of Levi, the first born of great families did execute the place; see Exo. 24. 5. Num. 8 16: *which come n [...]*re] which present themselves before God, and go between men and him by prayeis, sacrifices & ordinary service: see Lev. 10: 3. Break forth] I [...]st he send upon them some suddain & unresistible plague to cast them to the earth.

V. 23 Ca [...] they are sufficiently warned to take heed, [...]d their own fear keepeth them back sufficiently, sanctifie it] separate it by this signe from all approaches and contamination of sinfull men.

CHAP: XX. VERS. 3.

GOds] Idols, to whom idolaters do falsly attribute any divinity; see 1 Cor. 8. 4, 5: Before me] in my Church, where I am present in grace and power, wherfore idolatry in it, is like an adultery committed before the husbands eyes, and despighteth God to his face, Isa. 65. 3, 5.

V. 4 Image] No representation of God absolutely: Nor likenesse of any creature to yeeld unto it any part of divine honor and service.

V. 5. Jealous] Impatient to see my divine glory taken from me, or imparted unto any else: and an u [...]placable revenger of this misdeed, Isa: 48. [...] Visiting] I inquire after it and punish it; Of the Fathers] As concerning eternall judgement upon the soule, every one dieth for his own iniquity, Jer. 31. 30. but for the fathers sins, the children are often punished in body, in goods and other things, which they hold, and derive from their fathers, Num. 14. 33 Sam. 12. 1 [...] & 21. 5, 14: And besides, God often times cu [...]seth the generation of the wicked, withdrawing his grace and spirit from it, wherby imitating their parents wickednesse, they are punished in the same manner, 1 Same 15 2: Mat. 23. 32, 35.

V. 7. Shalt not take] That is to say in oathes, and other kind of frivolous, unprofitable, ras [...]i, false and impious speeches.

V. 8. To keepe it Holy] To keep it, as consecrated to divine exercises of piety, and religion, Isay 58▪ 13. and effectually employ it wholly therein.

V. 10. Of the Lord] The Italian To the Lord] and dedicated to him and to his service: Any work] That is to say servile or toilesome labour or diligence about corporall things: Exodus 34. 21. Leviticus 23 7. Num. 28. 18. That is] That dwelleth with thee in the same city or countrey.

V. 12. May be] Or that they may bee prolonged through them, that is to say, that they may be instruments and a meanes of it, by their blessing, and that this good may befall thee from God by their means.

V. 18. Saw] They could perceive and hear plainly; They removed] The Italian hath It trembled] or went further off and fled.

V. 19. Speake thou] This request of the people was approved of, and allowed by God, Deut. 5. 28. and by this interposition of Moses, was figured the necessity of the great Mediator between God and men: See Gal. 3 19. Which was also promised upon this occasion, Deut. 18. 16.

V. 20. To prove you] Whether this terror will breed in you a holy feare and reverence, which is the [...] spring of obedience.

V. 21 Where] Where he shewed the power of his presence, by these admirable effects and signes.

V. 22. From Heaven] From above, on high in the aire, on the top of the mount, Deu: 4. 36. Neh. 9. [...]5. And therefore, Heb. 12. 25, 26: It is said that he had spoken on earth.

V. 23. Ye shall not make] Imagine none in your minds, neither shape any with your handy work, neither set it up to be worshipped, through any custome [...] or authority.

V. 24. An Altar] This is to be understood of some altars set up for some extraordinary service, Deu. 27. 5. Jos. 8. 31. or made only for the mean time, until the [Page] Tabernacle was built, where the Altar was made of wood, or till the Temple was built where it was made of brasse: Exod. 27. 1. 1 King. 8. 64. And it seemeth that God would have such transitory altars, to be of some meane stuffe, and of no durable forme, because that in ensuing times, they might not divert the people from the only altar, upon which he delighted to be serv [...]d. Deuteron. 12. 5. see Jos. 22. 16. 19. 23. in token of the onely altar of the crosse of Christ, Burnt offerings] See Lev. 1. 3. Peace offerings] See Lev. 3. 1. In all places] Build no constant altars, to fixe as it were my grace upon any place, at thy pleasure. For I will heare thee indifferently in any place where I shall give thee occasion or command to call upon me.

V. 25 Thou hast] Thou having transgressed my commandement, the altar shall no more be holy, to sanctifie the offering, Matth. 23. 19.

V. 26 By steps] This was in part changed in ensuing times when God caused the brazen altar to be made ten cubites high, 2 Chro. 4▪ 1. with an ascent: E [...]ec. 43. 17.

providing for modestie the Priests linnen breeches. Exod.
27. 42. Now the occasion of this commandement seemeth to be taken, from the shamefull shewes and actions which the Pagans used in their sacrifices.

CHAP. XXI. VERS. 1.

The judgements] The Italian hath it, The judiciall Laws] by which, judgements, in civill, and criminall causes, were to be regulated.

V. 2 If thou buy] Which was lawfull in two cases: First, when one sold himselfe, and his children for poverty. Secondly, when he was sold for his theft: Exod. 22 3. For nothing] Because he had repaid the price which was given for him, by his servitude, Deut. [...]5. 18.

V. 4 *Have given him a wi [...]*e] Some fo [...]aigne bond-woman for a concubine to have children, by: For it was not lawfull to abuse an Hebrew bond-woman in that kinde: v. 8, 9. and such conjunctions with forraigne women had not the streight bounds of lawfull marriages in them: see Deut. 21. 11. Neh. 13. 23.

V. 6 Shall bring him] To make a publick declaration of this his will. To the doore] Of his Masters house. Shall bore] A bored care, was an ordinary signe of slavery: now doing of that act at the doore or upon the doore post, did shew that he was bound to that house: See Psa. 40. 7. For ever] Untill the yeare of Jubilee: Lev, 25. 40.

V. 7 She shall not go out] Under these words is covertly contained the commandment of espousing her, to save her chastity.

V. 8 Please not] That is to say, if he be divorced from her therefore; Deut. 24. 1. Let her [...]e redeemed] The Italian▪ Let him make her free] Without any price, v. 11. see Deut. 21. 14. Strange nation] This is specified, because such a sale amongst Gods people, would have been void; as, being made against the aforesaid commandement, of making free for nothing wherefore he that would have defrauded the Law, would have sought a forraign buyer, to get his money againe. Dealt deceitfully] The Italian, Broken his faith] Namely the faith of a husband, by being divorced: see Mal. 2. [...]0. 16.

V. 9 The manner] Let him give her a dowrie for her virginity: Exod. 22. 16, 17. see Gen. 34. 12. 1 Sam. 8. 25.

V. 10 If he] If he take another for himself, being betrothed to his bond-woman, v. 8. 14.

V. 12 Striketh] Premeditatly, and on purpose. Put to death] By way of publick justice.

V. 13 But God] Because that any thing which seemeth casuall, in respect of mens intentions is neverthelesse alwayes governed by Gods providence. A place] The Cities of refuge, Num. 36. 11.

V. 14 Mine altar] God had not made any place of freedom, for willfull and grievous murthers. Yet is was accustomed, that those who had done any offence to mighty men, might flie to the Altar: 1 Kings 1. 50. as it were to crave mercy in Gods name, who in that place unfolded his mercy towards men, and to save themselves from violence, by the respect of the place, which was holy, and inviolable. But when others have sought, to abuse that custome for the immunity of cruell crimes, justice hath not regarded it, but hath been executed even in the place it self, 1 King. 228. or drawing away the delinquent perforce from that sacred place: 2 Kings 11. 15. 34.

V. 19 Be quit] And free from mortall punishment.

V. 20 His servant] Of a strange and prophane nation, over which kinde of servants, God did grant absolute Dominion with rigor: which was forbidden over Hebrew bond-men: Lev. 35. 29. Under his] Whilest he continued striking of him so cruelly. Punished] He shall be punished at the Judges discretion, according to the diversity of circumstances.

V. 21 Continue] The Italian hath it, Escape] That is to say, though he afterwards die of those stroakes; because that it is presumed his masters intention was not to kill him. His money] his own goods, possessed by just sale: Deut. 25. 46. wherefore he hath power to chastise him, and make him obey him by force.

V. 22 And burt] That is on purpose, and voluntarily. No mischief follow] The Italian hath, That no death happen] Either of the Mother, or of the fruit already living. Punished] The Italian hath it, *He shall be am [...]*d] For the dammage which happeneth through violent, and forced' deliverances or childe-births. Shall pay] Let him be forced to pay it.

V. 23 If any mischief] The Italian, If death happen] [Page]

A commandement directed to the Magistrates, for the ordering of publick punishments: and not any permission given to particular persons to work their own revenge.

V. 24 For eye] This ought not to be understood rawly according to the litterall sense, which was never put in practice, but they are manners of speaking, to shew that the punishments ought to be paralleled with the faults, by a just proportion, though not alwayes in the same speciall kinde of suffering.

V. 26 His servant] Namely an Israelite, as it is most likely.

V. 29 A man] An Israelite or stranger of free condition, because for slaves there was a ransome, v. 32.

V. 30 La [...]d on him] by the partie, which is willing before the judge to remit the rigor of the punishment.

V. 31 Gor [...]d] mortally. A Son] names of ages. Be done unto him] to the oxe and to the master.

V. 32 A man servant] Of a strange nation.

V. 33 Or an asse] Or any other tame beast.

CHAP. XXII. VERS. 1.

Five oxen] The punishment for stealing of an ox is more grievous than for stealing of a sheep, because that in an ox there is double damage, of the beast it selfe, and of his service for plowing of the Land.

V. 2 There shall no bloud] The Italian hath it, There is no man-slaughter] This death ought not to be taken for wilfull murther, nor be capitall. For the darknesse which the thief hath chosen to do his evill deed in, doth take away the use of judgement; and hindereth a man from containing himselfe within the mederation of a plaine and harmelesse guard, and defence. And also because that the publick safety requires this freedom, against the breakers of civill society, declared to be such and condemned for such. And naturall reason suffereth one to oppose violence against violence, when the assistance of publick power cannot be craved, nor lent in time, as in the night. And finally, because as the uttermost assault may be feared from a thief, so one may withstand him without any restraint or respect.

V. 4 Found in his [...]and] Having neither sold it, nor killed it, v. 1. and therefore he hath not shewed himself so hardened in his evill doing; and hath yet some hope that he would have restored voluntarily.

V. 5 Tole eaten] Not purposely, but through some inevitable neglect; for otherwise it would bee theft.

V. 6 The field] The stubble which remained in the mowed field, which was kept for divers uses, or all the other plants of a field. He that kindled] Though he did it unawares.

V. 7 To keep] that is to say, left it as it were deposited.

V. 9 Challengeth to be his] The Italian hath it, This is it] This is mine which he hath in his hand, and therefore he must answer the robbery. Or this is he, this is the thief. The Judges] which shall consider of the fact, and shall make enquiry thereof by each or otherwayes, without giving way for every one to right himself. And whom] Namely the accused, if he be convinced, for his theft: or the accuser, if he can not make good his accusation, for a slaunders, shall be punished Paena talionis.

V. 10 To keep] In the nature of shepheard, or a hired keeper. No man seeing it] Secretly, while the beast was feeding in the field.

V. 11 Of the Lord] Framed in his name, and ordained by him, to determine uncertaine and doubtfull causes. Shall accept] that is to say, shall submit unto it, and be quiet.

V. 12 From him] From home, or out of the flock which he was bound to watch, and provide for the safety of, and to make good any dammage as shall happen thorough his default.

V. 13 Let him bring it] Some peece as he can get again to witnesse the mischance, and his care, Amos 3 [...]12.

V. 15 Be with it] And have seen that it happened not through his neighbours default and that he could not help it, seeing the master himself could not help it. It c [...]me] It hath been a kinde of merchandizing, and no curtesie or favour done, in lending of it, wherefore he that had it, is not bound to pay for it, unlesse there were some default in him. Others have it let it go for his hire.

V. 16 Entice] With dallyings, and enticements, not by force as Deut. 22. 29. where both the case, and the Law for it are different. Endow her] See Exo. 21. 9

V. 17 According to] According as the custome is, or the Law; more or lesse, according to the proportion of the maidens qualities, or wealth: as may be gathered by the 1 Sam. 18. 25.

V. 18 The witch] Any one that hath made a Covenant, or hath communication with the Divell: or any way practiseth divelish arts, to any end whatsoever: He specifieth the female sex, because that in it this kinde of evill is most frequent, and notwithstanding the frailty of it, it must not escape unpunished.

V. 20 Utterly destroyed] The Italian addeth, As Anathema] That is to say, accursed, and execrable, see Deut. 18. 21. 1 Cor. 16. 22.

V. 23 If thou afflict them] The Italian hath it, Beware of afflicting him] The Hebrew hath it, if thou afflict him, an abridged manner of forbidding, with an implied threate.

V. 25 Any of my people] by this word are oftentimes meant especially the poore, Psa. 14. 4. Mic. 2. 9.

V. 26 Thy neighbours] Who is poore or needy.

V. 27 Wherein shall he] Or whereupon he lieth

V. 28 The ruler] The Italian hath it, He that is go- [Page] vernour] that is to say, he that is the chief of the politick, or ecclesiasticall order.

V. 29 Of thy ripe fruits] The Italian hath it, Of thy vintage]
The Hebrew, of thy fulnesse. It appeareth by Numb. 18.
27. Deut. 22. 9. that this word here meaneth the vintage, which runneth out in abundance, out of the wine presses, or fats As that which is afterwards spoken of oiles, is pointed out by the word of dropping, because they are pressed out drop after drop. Now this is specified, because, that the offerings, of the first fruits of corne, were at Pentecost: Exod. 23. 16. and 34. 2 [...]. Numb. 28. 26. but not them of liquors, and therefore God commandeth that it should not be maliciously, or negligently delayed.

V. 31 Holy men] Spiritually abstaining, and purifying your selves from sinne, and ceremonially, by abstaining from all such things, whereof I have declared the use to be uncleane.

CHAP. XXIII. VERS. 1.

Shalt not raise] By being the author or divulger thereof. Others have it, shalt not receive, that is to say, thou shalt not give eare unto it, nor lightly believe it.

V. 2 A Multitude] The Italian hath it, After great ones] That is to say, for to make thy selfe partiall with them: others have it after a multitude.

V. 3 Countenance] Regarding his poverty, and not the justice of the cause.

V 5 Wouldest forbear] Or, wouldest thou forbear from freeing of him?

V. 6 Of thy poore] Of the poore man that is thy brother, and of the same nation: Or, that is under thy power, and censure, in whose defence the judges ought to stand.

V. 7 From a false matter] The Italian hath it, From false speaking] In the accusation, by not receiving it, and in the sentence, by not giving it. will not justifie] In my soveraigne judgement, I will correct all false humane judgements, and will do justice as well against the Judges as against the parties. Neither is this contrary to the free justification of a sinner, through Gods absolute grace, by the meanes of Faith: Rom. 4. 5. because that in the precedent act, God is brought in as a Judge, doing according to the rigor of the Law; and in this last he proceedeth as Soveraigne, and absolute Lord, pardoning whom hee pleaseth.

V. 8 No gift] Namely gifts to corrupt judgement. Perverteth] Maketh them neither speak, nor judge aright: or frustrates all the reasons of a good cause.

V. 11 Let it rest] Doing nothing with it, neither plowing, sowing, nor reaping. The poore] Let the fruit of the trees, and whatsoever else the earth brings forth of it selfe, be common to all men. Levit. 25. 6, 7. and so let the poore bee relieved.

V. 12 And the sonne of] The slave borne in thy house, and the purchased stranger, and the hired servant.

V. 15 Of unleavened bread] That is the Passeover. Before me] In my Temple, where I shew my selfe in the signes of my grace and power. Empty] Without an offering.

V. 6 Of harvest] Namely at Pentecost, when they offered two leaves, for the first fruits of harvest: Lev. 23. 17. Of in gathering] The Feast of the Tabernacles, after all [...] were brought in both of fields, vines, and trees. Deut. 16. 13. Of the yeare] Namely of the politick yeare which begins in September; for there was an holy yeare, which began in March, se Exo. 12. 2.

V. 17 Three times] That is to say, at these three feasts.

V. 18 Of my sacrifice] This is indeed a Law common to all sacrifices: Levit. 2. 11. but here is particularly meant the Paschall Lambe, which is also called a sacrifice: Exod. 12.

27. with leavened bread] As Exod. 12. 8. The fat] No part of the Lambe was to be offered in burnt offering, 2 Chron. 35. 12. 14. and therefore in that expresly consisted, the figure of the singular sacrifice of Christ, offered but once, Heb. 9. 26. and 10▪ 12.

V. 19 In his mothers milk] Whilest it was as yet all milke, being newly borne, because the Lambe that was offered for a [...]stling was to be seven dayes old: Exod. 22. 30. Lev. 22. 27. being also to be eaten: Deut. 14. 21.

V. 20 I send] The Holy Trinity speaking in the Sonnes person, sendeth the Sonne of God: Isa. 48. 16. to accomplish that worke in his own person; as it appeareth by Exod. 32. 2, 3. Acts 7. 38, 39. 1 Corinth. 10. 9. Heb. 12. 26. see upon Gen. 10. 7. Exo. 13. 21. and 14. 19. Into the place] Into the land of Canaan.

V. 21 Provoke him not] Be not rebellious unto him. My name] He is of the one essence, and glory, with me the Father, see John. 10. 38. and 14. 11. and 17. [...]1.

V. 22 An adversary] I will afflict them, as shall afflict thee.

V. 24 Overthrow them] Those wicked people, together with their Idols.

V. 26 The number] The naturall course of thy life.

V. 28 Hornets] Some understand this according to [Page] the letter, Jos. 24. 12. Others figuratively, from a suddaine, gene all, and unavoydable invasion of the people comming upon their enemies with Gods assistance, as Psal. 118. 12.

V. 31. Of the [...]hi [...]stines] That is to say, the Mediterranean, upon whose coast the Philistines Country was: Unto the River] Euphrates: This was fulfilled under David and Solomon. 2 Samuel. 8. 3. 1 Kings 4. 21.

V. 32. Nor with their] Thou shalt make no covenant with them, neither in matters of policy nor of religion.

V. 33. It wil surely be] That conversation and familiarny, would almost be an inevitable inticement to idoltry, and consequently an occasion of perdition and ruine.

CHAP. XXIV. VERS. 1.

COme up] After thou hast propounded these Lawes unto my people, and that they have conse [...]ed to my covenant: doe thou come againe with Aaron, and the rest. Aaron] Who with his two eldest sonnes in this treaty of covenant with God, represented the whole Ecclesiasticall order, and the seventy Elders the politick. See Nehem. 9. 38. and 10. [...]. A farre off] At the foot, or about the mid-way of the hill.

V. 2. Neare the Lord] To the top of the hill, where the firme signes of my presence shall be, verse 14. and 17. Neither shall] They shall not passe the bound set. Exod. 19. 12.

V. 3. Came] out of darknesse, and from the hill where God shewed himselfe: Exod. 20. 21.

V. 4. An Altar] For a monument and holy signe on Gods side, as the twelve pillars were on the peoples behalfe, in this treaty of covenant. See Gen. 31. 45. Jos. 48. 9. 20.

V 5. He sent] Out of the host, to the foot of the Hill. You [...]g men] The Italian hath it Minist [...]ing men] which ministred in holy businesses, & they were then the first b [...]rn of families, Exod. 19. 2 [...]. Which offered] Upon the Altar which hee had erected. Of Oxen] and Goats. Hebrewes 9. 19. Peace Offerings] See Lev. 3. 1.

V. [...]. And put it] Mingling'it with water, Heb. 9. 19. That he might sprinkle it upon the Altar, and the people:

because that bloud alone will quickly congeale. And also by reason of Christs mystery, who came with the bloud of purgation, and the water of regeneration, 1 Joh. 5. 6. Wherein consisteth the substance of the new covenant, figured by this old one. On the Altar] As Exod: 29. 36. The reason of this action is touched Heb. 19. 23. Namely, that as here the Altar represented God himselfe, the head of this Covenant, and this Altar was besprinkled with the bloud of his owne sacrifice, for to sanctifie it, and make it fit to sanctifie the people, and their worship: so Christ, head of the everlasting covenant, hath beene besprinkled and consecrated with his owné proper bloud, to be the cause of everlasting salvation to them that believe in him. Isaiah 63. 3. Heb. 5. 9.

V. 7. The Book] Written by Moses himselfe, verse the fourth: This book was also besprinkled with the bloud, Heb. 9. 19. To signifie that Gods covenant was grounded upon Christs satisfaction, given to the Law: whereof this booke represented the bond, Col. 2. 14.

V. 8. The bloud] Which was in the basons, verse 6. and sprinkled it] to see the participation of the Church in Christs bloud, for the redemption, and justification of life, by whose meanes she hath accesse to God, and part in his Covenant: and enterchangeably by accepting of his grace, the Church bindeth it selfe to obedience, and newnesse of life, Heb. 12. 24. 1 Pet. 1. 2. Of the covenant] That is to say, a scale and confirmation of the Covenant, according to the ancient manner of making of Covenants, Genesis 15: 9. Figure of the bloud of Christ, upon whom is grounded the new and everlasting covenant, Matth: 26: 28. Luke 22: 20. Concerning] That is to say, upon these conditions: or of which covenant these commandements are the subject and substance.

V. 9 Went up] Untill they c [...]me to the place appoynted above, verse the second.

V. 10. They saw] In some visible shape, clothed with everlasting glory, by which visible shape the son of God, who made this covenant in his owne person, gave an essay of his future m [...]arnation, and to the elect a signe of their future glory, and sight of God in heaven, Acts. 7. 38. and Isaiah 6: 1. John 12: 41.

V. 11. He laid not his [...]and] God shewed that by vertue of this covenant, he was propitious to his people seeing he had not by this appearing in glorie confirmed these men, seeing sinners are not able to subsist before this devouring fire: but did rather comfort and rejoyce them. See Gen 16: 13. and 32: 30. Deut. 4: 23. Judg: 13: 23. And did eat] were at a sacred banquet, made of the flesh of sacrifices of thanks-giving, verse 5: in token of mirth, and of full [...] of [...]race, and of their continuall participation of the body and bloud of Christ, to the nourishing of everlasting life, and perfect enjoying of the joyes of heaven.

V. 12 A Low] That is to say the ten commandements, which onely were giaven upon the two tables, Exodus, Chapter 34. verse 28: Moses having written the rest of the Commandements in a booke verse 4.

V. 13 Jeshua] who notwithstanding did not got up to the top of the hill, but stayd in some place between the camp and the hill, v: 2: Exo. 32. 17.

V. 14. Here] In the host amongst the people. Aaron [Page] and Hur] The one the Ecclesiasticall, and the other the politick head.

V. 15. A cloud] See Exod. 19. 9. 16. and 20, 21. Psa. 18. 12. 13. Matth. 17. 5.

V. 16. The glory] The signes of his glorious presence, as the great fire was, verse 17. Deut. 4. 36. Covered it] Namely Gods glory which appeared in that fire, which having lyon hidden by the cloud six dayes, at the last burst forth in the sight of all the people, verse 17. the cloud going downe to the bottome of the hill.

CHAP. XXV. VERS. 4.

AND blue] Wooll dyed in these colours. Fine linnen] Hebrew Bysse; that is, a kind of white and shining linnen, whereof great mens garments, and the Priests garments were made. See Gen. 41. 4 [...] Rev. 19. 8. 14.

V. 5. Shittim wood] A kind of wood which would not corrupt. Isa. 41. 19. which hath leaves like the white Thistle, but groweth as high and as thicke as a Cedar.

V. 6. Sweet Incense] The Italian hath it for the perfume of spices] This is added for to distinguish this perfume from the fat sacrifices.

V. 8: Amongst them] Not by inclusion of the essence, Acts 7. 48. and 17. 24. But by an expresse and firme revelation of glory: and by the working of grace and power, through sacraments and pledges of visible signes.

V. 11. With pure gold] That is to say, with little plates of gold. A Crowne] It seemeth to be some Cornice, which should goe round the body of the Arke above.

V. 16. The Testimony] The two Tables of the law: see the occasion of this name, Ex. 16. 34.

V. 17. A mercy seat] The Italian hath it, a cover] The Hebrew word signifieth also a propitiatory, or mercy seat: and so the Apostle calls it, Heb. 9. 5. That is to say, a means of purging, and expiating of sinne: Because that this cover signified Christ, who with his justice covereth all our sinnes, and containeth within himselfe all the Churches justice, as the Tables of the Law were inclosed under the cover, and interposeth himselfe as Mediator, between the Law which accuseth us, and God our judge; as the cover was between the said Tables, and the Majesty of God, which resided upon the Cherubins.

V. 18. Cherubins] Human figures, winged; representing those Angels which stand before God in his Celestiall glory: as the Sanctuary signified heaven, and the Arke Gods throne in it. See upon Gen. 3. 24.

V. 19. Of the mercy seat] Italian, Of the cover] Sothered together with the cover, as if they were all of one piece.

V. 22. Between the two] Which with their wings stretched forth, made as it were a kind of a seat, upon which God appeared, and spake. 1 Sam. 4. 4. Psalme 80. 2. and 99. 1. Whereupon the Arke is also called the foot-stoole of Gods feet. 1 Cron. 28. 2. Psal. 99. 5. and 132. 7.

V. 23. A table] These three ornaments, namely the Table, the Candle-stick, and the Altar of Incence, shewed how that in the Church there were alwayes these three benefits; namely a distribution of spirituall goods by the nourishing of a new life in the soule of the faithfull, Joh. 6. 27. A perpetuall light of the word and doctrine; and a continuall service of good works, and prayers offered unto God, in Christs name, and sanctified through his intercession. Or otherwise, the gift of life by Gods spirit; the light through his word, and the expiation through Christs intercession.

V. 24. With pure gold] With little plates of Gold; A Crowne] An out-jetting, which did rise from the edges of the Table, in manner of a Cornice.

V. 25. A border] This was the girt that went about the foure feet below.

V. 27. Over against] So farre distant from the top of the table, as the border was from the lowermost part of the feet.

V. 29. To cover withall] The Italian hath it, For the pouring out] that is to say for the offering of liquid things, as wine, oyle, and the like: See Genesis 35. 14.

V. 30. Shew-bread] So called, because it was to stand continually before the Ark of the Lord, which was as it were his face.

V. 31. Of the same] The Italian hath it, Of one peece] Seeing the Candlestick was to be of beaten worke, it could not really be of one piece, as if it had beene cast: but the meaning is, that all the parts and pieces of it were sothered together that they could not be disordered nor dis-joynted.

V. 32. Six branches] to beare the six Lamps, and in the middle of those six was the chiefe stemme, which also had one Lamp upon it, verse 37. a type of the diversity of the gifts of the holy Ghost in the Church: as Zac. 4. 2. Rev. 1.

V. 33. Like unto] Poynted at the bottome, and bread belly [...]d at the top.

V. 34. Foure boules] the first was upon the foot upon the first forking, and the second upon the last.

V. 35. Vnder two] The meaning of this seemeth to be that the Candlestick in those places should bee made in this manner, that under a boule, there should be a flower, and upon the flower the knop: which being just under the forking, or parting of two branches, made as it were the basis thereof.

V. 37. Shal light] This was the Priests office, and these Lamps were to be sighted between two evens: Exod. 30. 8. 2 Chron. 13. 11. and were to stand so lighted all the [Page] night, Exod. 27. 21. Lev. 24. 3. then be put out in the morning. 1 Sam. 3. 3. Give light] the Nosels and Cotten Wykes being turned towards the North, and the Candlestick was to stand in the fouth part of the tabernacle. Exodus 26. 35. Numbers 8. 2.

V. 38 *Sn [...]*ffe [...]dishes Little vessells to gather out any foulnesse that was in the Lampe.

V. 39 A Talent] Which as we may gather by Exodus chap: 38: verse 25. was three thousand Shekels, and one hundred and five and twenty pounds of 1 [...]. ounces a peece.

V. 40 After their] As God did also afterwards give one in writing for the building of the temple. 1. Chr. 28. 19. Now the Apostle Heb: 8: 5. referreth this model also to the meaning of what it signifieth, it perfectly agreeing with the first patterne o [...] heavenly things, either the mysteries of these correspondencies being revealed to Moses or the Apostle, speaking onely by allusion.

CHAP. XXVI. VERS. 1.

The Tabernacle] The overthrow of the wooden Fabrick hereunder described. Blew] That is to say with wooll of these colours. With cunning works] That is to say, it must not be woven, but wrought with a needle, in manner of pictures, like your Arras works.

V. 4 The coupling] That is to say, of the first five Curtains sowed one to the other; because that for the more commodious taking downe and carrying, this covering was of 2 great pieces, consisting of five Curtains a peece; and these two pieces were joyned together in the middle of the Tabernacle, with certain hooks or catches fastned to the strings, which were upon the last Curtaines.

V. 7 A covering] The Italian hath it, A Tent] This was a second covering of the Tabernacle, to preserve the first, which was very costly. Haire] that is to say, of some stuffe woven with Goats haire, as your Chamlets are.

V: 9 Shall double] Let the one half of this eleventh Curtaine, which shall be more than was in the first covering be folded up before, and the other half to be spared for the hinder part: v: 12.

V. 13 A Cubit] For this second covering was thirty cubits in length, whereas the first was but eight and twenty; that the first might the more perfectly be covered on every side: a type of the severall degrees of the Church, as the Politick, Ecclesiasticall, and mysticall, which are like divers circles in this heaven; whereof the mysticall and spirituall is the most precious, and layd open to Gods view alone. Psal. 45, 14 the others serve but only for a [...]hrouding and preservative.

V: 17 Tenons] in the bottome to thrust them into the holes of the Pedestalls.

V: 24. Coupled] The Hebrew Twinnes, made in the corners, to front two wayes; The head] upon the front of the corner; where it seemeth there was a ring to receive the two barres which ran along the two sides of the said corner, and they locked into it in some manner which is not expressed. A ring] although these corner planks doe face two wayes, yet they shall have but one ring; for every rank of rings of the other planks, through which the barres must be put, because that ring was just in the corner, and did inclose and joyne together the barres with some Key or pin, and with the bars the whole body of the building.

V: 25 Shall be] In the bottome, on the west side.

V: 26 Bars] which put into the two rings which were in each plank, joyned them together: Now it is a question, whether these rings and bars were on the out-side, or the inside of the Tabernacle: but it is not likely they were on the out-side.

V: 28 In the midst] That is to say of the height of each plank: yet others think that it must bee understood of the thickness of the planke; which had a hole made in it, to put the bar through.

V: 29 With gold] With plates of gold, not gilded over with leafe gold.

V: 31 A vaile] Which represented the visible heaven; Hebrewes 6: 19: and 9: 24. Without the which is the Militant Church figured by the holy place; and within, God in his glory; and the Church triumphant figured by the most holy place.

V: 33 Vnder the Taches] Namely in that place where the two great pieces of the first covering were joyned together with golden Taches, verse 6: Which was ten cubits from the bottom; so that the most holy place, filled but the third part of the length of the Tabernacle. The holy place] The foremost part of the Tabernacle, where all the Priests might indifferently come in at any time, when they had any occasion to do any service: The most holy] The inmost part, where the high Priest onely might come, and that but once a yeare, Exo. 30: 10: Levit: 16: 2: 6: 17: Heb. 9: 7.

CHAP: XXVII. VERS: 2.

THE bornes] They were certaine little Pyramides or Spires, which were above four Pilasters of the Altar, into which the boords of the side thereof vvere fastened, verse 8: Some are of opinion that those cattell vvhich vvere to bee slaine for sacrifices vvere tyed to those Hornes, Psalme 118: verse 27: Of the same] They shall be of one peece vwith the Pilasters. With Brasse] With little plates of Brasse.

V: 3 Shovells] Or rakes; others have it tongs: Basins] to make the sprinklings. Fire-pans] They were some [Page] little kinds of dishes or pans to take up coales, and carry them from this Altar, to the Altar of Incense, which was within the Tabernacle, or to put them into the censers, to cast incense.

V. 4. A grate] A great piece of Copper or Brasse, hollow, and full of holes, and fastened into the table of the Altar, and upon it was maintained the continuall fire, and over that was the wood layd, and the Sacrifices. Rings] To put barres through Exod. 38. 5. To carry it severall from the rest of the Altar, to keep the fire kindled in it continually. For when the Altar was wrapped up in a cloth to be transported, Num. 4. 13. The fire could not have beene carryed under the cloth.

V. 5: The compasse] This was the space of the Table above the Altar, from the grate to the edges thereof; and it was so broad that the Priest could walke round about it.

Beneath] By this is shewen the concavity of the grate, which did sink downe to the middle of the height of the Altar.

V. 7. The rings] Of the body of the Altar, which were other than those of the grate: Ex. 38. 7.

V. 17. Of silver] That is to say, covered with silver: Ex. 30. 17.

V. 19. The pinnes] To which were made fast and stretched with cords, both the Tabernacle and the Court, as they use to fasten Tents.

V. 20. Beaten] The Italian hath it, Virgin-oyle] which is the oyle that runs without heating, or pressing. Alwayes] That is to say, every night. See Exo. 25. 37.

V. 21. Order it] To burne all night. A figure to shew that the heavenly light, is a remedy for mans naturall darknesse, Joh. 1. 5. 2 Cor. 4. 6. 2 Pet 1. 19. and also the light of the outward word hath no place, b [...]t onely in the darknesse of this life, and passeth not into the eternall: 1 Cor. 13. 8. Rev. 21. 23. Of the congregation] In which I have promised to be present: Ex: 25: 30: and have appoynted my people to refort to me thither. The testimony] The Ark in which shall be Gods Law, which is called the Testimony, Exo: 25: 16.

CHAP. XXVIII. VERS. 1.

Take thou unto thee] Call them unto thee, to conferre upon them, from me, the office, title, and ensignes of my Priest-hood.

V: 2 For glory] To make them venerable, and Majestick in the executing of their offices.

V: 3 To consecrate him] To distinguish him from the common sort, by his garments, as he is internally by my vocation: which separates him from the condition and employments of the civill life: to be wholly dedicated to my service.

V: 5 Gold] The Italian hath it, Of that gold] Namely, of the voluntary offering, Ex: 25: 3.

V. 6 The Ephod] An Hebrew name, which signifieth a kind of garment that is girded or tyed to the body. It was an outward garment a Cubit long, or thereabouts, made of two square pieces, made fast upon the shoulders, and to the sides. Now there were two sorts of them, one of severall colours and stufes, which was peculiar to the high Priest only; the other of Bysse, or pure fine Linnen, which was common for all Priests. 1 Sam. 2. 18. and 22. 18. and also for other men in any sacred solemnities. 2 Sam. 6. 14. Of gold] beaten out in plates, and cut into Wyers. Exodus 39. 3. Cunning work]. As Ex. 26. 1.

V. 8. Is upon it] The Italian hath it, From the Ephod] that is to say, woven together, not sown, nor hooked to.

V. 12 Upon the shoulders] In that place where the two square pieces are fastned together. Of memoriall] By the sight of which, God should (as it were to say) remember his people in grace, beholding them in his Priests sacred person, when hee entreth into the Sanctuary, after he had accomplished all the expiations, Lev. 16. 2. in token that God being satisfied, admitteth his people to come into his presence. A figure of Christ, who after he had ostered himselfe, went up into heaven, to carry and present his Church before the face of God, which by Gods imputement is wholly comprehended in the two Jewells of his Priesthood, which are his absolute justice and satisfaction. Now the names graven in the stones upon the shoulders, signifie the intercession of Christs merit: the stones upon the breast, 29. the intercession of his charity.

V. 14 At the ends] The chains must not be made in compasse, as the chains that are worne about ones neck; but must be like two pieces of a chain fastened to the two O [...]ix stones, and comming down lower, must be hooked to the rings of the breast-plate, to hang that on: as likewise there were two other little chains hanged to the sides of the Breast-plate, which went upwards, and were hooked to two Rings of those Ouches, v. 22. Exod. 39. 18.

V. 15 The breast-plate] This was a wrought piece laid over the Ephod, upon ones breast, and it was called of the judgement; because the Priest was to have it on, when he was in Gods name to answer upon doubtfull cases and secrets, as by the oracles of a supream sentence, Num. 27. 21. 1 Sam. 28. 6. and 30. 7. Esd. 2. 63. Neh. 7. 65. And this Breast-plate was as a signe of the gift of the Prophetick spirit: which God had promised to conferre upon that person in that act: See Mal. 2. 7. Joh. 11. 50. And besides, it might be a figure of the manner how the Church is justified in Gods judgement; namely by Christs intercession, who is the CHURCHES everlasting Priest.

V. 16. Doubled] To be so much the stronger, to [Page] beare the stones, or ouches, made fast to it.

V. 24. Thou shalt put] And hang them to those rings.

V. 26 Thou shalt fasten] With some hook thou shalt hang one of the ends of those chaines to the rings of the ouches which are upon the shoulders, v. 9.

V. 26. Upon the] That is to say below, for the other v. 25. were upon the upper sides, Inward] the brest plate was double, v. 16. therefore the hem, which was on that side that touched the Ephod, whereunto these rings were fastened, was called the inward hem.

V. 27. Underneath] The breast plate, Coupling] upon the hips, where the two squares of the Ephod did meet, and were fastened together, Girdle] of which see V. 8.

V. 29. When he] once a yeare, in the day of the attonements, Exo. 20. 10. Lev. 16. 6.

V. 30. The Urim, and the Thummim] These two Hebrew words signifie lights, & perfections: It is not certainly known what it was, but it is manifest that it was not made by any of the workmen, Exo. 39. 8. Lev. 8. 8. but put in by Moses: Whatsoever it was, it represented the two chief vertues that any servant of God can have, and especially Christs most perfect wisdom and justice, who by vertue of them presents the Church to God his Father, 1 Cor. 1. 30. The judgement] The breast plate was so called for the reasons specified above, v. 15. Upon his] To shew what affection the shepherds affection towards his flock should be, and especially what an unspeakable charity, Christs charity towards his Church is.

V 31. Of the Ephod] That is to say, upon which the Ephod must be applied and worn.

V. 33. Pomegranats] According to Josephus, they were flat of [...]mbrodery work, mixed with bells sowed between them, upon the hem of the robe, and not hanging beneath it. Now these pomegranates and bells [...]o seem to signifie the two indivisible qualities of a true shepheard, which are a sounding speech, and holy works: See Mat. 5. 19. 2 Cor. 6. 6, 7. And these bells were also to warne the people to second the priest with heart and mind in his sacred acts.

V. 35. He die not] For his disobediende; now this threat, representeth the condemnation of all those Pastors, which do faile in those fore said parts.

V. 36. Holinesse to the Lord] The Italian hath it, The Holinesse of the Lord] to shew us that the Churches perfect holinesse, remaines in Christ its head, Dan. 9. 24. 1 Cor. 1.

30. Heb. 7. 26. And to teach all sacred ministers; to have God and his holinesse continually before their eyes.

V. 38 May beare] That is to say, may intercede, by this ceremony, between my people and me, that I may not punish the errors which they commit in my service. A figure of Christ, who with his most absolute justice, covereth all the defects of our good works which are still spotted with some [...]: S [...] Lev. 16. 16. Isa. 64. 6. Heb. 13. 5. 1 Pet. [...]. 5. Alwayes] every time as he shall present himselfe before God to do his office.

V. 39. The coat] This was the first garment next to the body, reaching down to his heeles, made of two doubles of linnen cloth, backstitched together, as may be gathered by Josephus the historian: The miter] The coverture of his head, made, as it is supposed, like a turbant: The girdle] which according to Josephus, was foure fingers broad, and went twice about his body, & then hanged down to his feet.

V. 40. Coates] They were long linnen coates, for inferiour priests were forbidden to wear any woollen stuff in their garments, Eze. 44. 17. B [...]anets] they were caps made pointed:

V. 41. Consecrate them] The Hebrew hath it, fill their hands, because they used to consecrate them by putting of bloud on the outside of their hand, and certain parts of the sacrifices of consecrations in the palmes of their hands, Exo. 29. 20, 24.

V. 42. Breeches] To eschew all danger of dishonest discovery, see Exo. 20. 26.

CHAP. XXIX. VERS. 4.

With water] Taken out of the hallowed laver, Exod. 30. 18. Now by these three things, water, bloud and oyle used in the consecration of Priests, is signifie the true spirituall sanctification which consists of the remission of sins, regeneration, and gifts of the Spirit.

V. 5. Of the Ephod] See Exo. 28. 31: Gird him] bind the Ephod to his body, tying down those two squares with the girdle, and so all the under garments were bound down with the Ephod.

V. 6. Crown] The blew wreath with the golden plate, v. 36. Lev. 8. 9.

V. 10. Before the] Where the Altar stood, which was the place to kill all sacrifices, after the Tabernacle, and then the Temple were built up; Put their] A ceremony set down for sacrifices, which represented two things. First, that the beast was dedicated and appropriate to God. Secondly, that the Priest did transfer upon it, either his or the offerers sins. Figure of Christ, who hath burthened himself with our iniquities, I say 33. 4, 6.

V. 12. Of the Altar] Of incense, for this being a sacrifice for sin, v. 14. the law of these sacrifices, equired, that some of the bloud of them should be put on the horns of that Altar, Lev. 4. 7, 18. & 16. 18. The bottome] of the Altar of burnt offrings, where all the bloud of the sacrifices was spilt, Lev. 4. 7, [...]8, 30. and 9. 9.

V. 13. All the fat] These parts in all sacrifices were to be burned to God, Lev. 3. 3. and 4 16, 17.

V. 14. Without the] According to the law of all sacrifices for sin, Lev. 4. 12. to signify that the guilt and [Page] condemnation therefore was carried out far from the people. And therefore Christ suffered death without the gate Heb. 13. 12.

V. 18. A sweet savour] See Gen. 8. 21.

V. 20. Upon the tip] This ceremony of the eares, hands and feet, signifieth that every sacred Minister ought to be sanctified by Gods spirit to believe, work and persevere.

V. 28. That is upon] Because that when the the thing offered was s [...]in, the blood was received into some vessell, which was set upon the Altar, to performe the ordinary sprinklings.

V. 22. For it is] This ram is not an holocauste to be burnt whole as the other was, but a sacrifice of thanks-giving v. 28. & therefore these parts alone shall be consumed with fire: As for the rest, the right shoulder, after it hath been heaved, shall be thine, O Moses, who in this action representest the high Priest, and the breast also after it hath been waved: and the rest shall be Aarons, and his childrens, who in this consecration, stand in stead of those persons, which offer the sacrifices of thanksgiving: See Lev. 7. 30. 34.

V. 24. Wave offering] this was a ceremony in presenting offerings, or sacrifices to God, throwing the pieces out of one hand into the other: but the heaving was performed by casting up the said pieces, one with the one hand, the other with the other, without shifting of hands: Yet these two words oftentimes were taken one for the other: And these actions were not always done to burn those parts & pieces afterwards, but sometimes to consecrate them only for hallow'd food for the Ministers.

V. 25 Burn them] in sacrifices [...] of thanksgiving the right shoulder was the Priest's, Lev. 7. 32. Deut. 8. 3. but although in this action Moses was in the Priest's place, consecrating of Aaro [...] yet he had but the breast. 22. For a burnt offering] the Italian hath it, Make a perfume of it upon the burnt offering] of the fore mentioned ram, v. 8.

V. 17. Shalt sanctifie] Taking the breast for thy self, v. 26. and burning the shoulder to God: v. 22. which sheweth that in all sacrifices of thanksgiving those parts should be hallowed meats, dedicated unto God, in the persons of his Ministers, Lev 7. 34. Deu. 18. 3. Of that] namely of that basket full of baked things, 2 [...]. 2, [...]

V. 28. Heave offering] Under which are also comprehended the wave offerings, Unto the Lord] being consecrated unto him by the heaving. and then by him assigned for his Ministers portions.

V. 29 His sons after him] Successively to the eldest of his progeny.

V. 30 Seven dayes] one after the other, when he shall come into his office, for so many daics were required for his confecration: v. 35. That is priest] that is to say, high p [...]i [...]st, In the h [...]ly place] as well in the first, or fore-part of the Tabernacle, where the high Priest onely carried the bloud of the sin offerings, Lev. 4. 7. 8. and that of atton [...]ments, Pro. 30. 10. A [...] in the inmostpart, in the sanctuary, where he went in once a year withthe bloud, Lev. 16. 2. Heb. 9. 7.

V. 31. The ram] the remnant of the flesh thereof, after thou hast offered unto God his part, & unto Mos as a sacred Minister his part: v. 26. In the [...]oly place] namely in the court, at the entrance of the Tabernac. Lev. 8. 31.

V. 33. A stranger] that is to say, one that is not of Aarons generation.

V. 36 Thou shalt offer] thou shalt continue a bullock a day in the same manner as I have given thee order for the first to be done, v. 11. For a sin offering] see of this kind of s [...]crifice, Le. 6. 25. For atonment] aswel for Aaro<sup>r</sup> and his children, as for the Altar it self, which aswell as the creatures, may be defiled by sin and ought to be blessed again, & again consecrated by the bloud of sacrifices, which was a figure of Christs bloud, hy which all things are sanctified to the children of God, especially those things which are used in his service: see Lev. 8. 15: & 16. 18: 2 Chro. 29. 18. Eze. 43. 2: Heb. 9: 23

V. 37 Whatsoever] let no mancome neerer the Altar, unles he be consecrated, for fear of polluting it, Hag. 3 13. and let all those things which touch the altar, be co<sup>n</sup>secrated to God. Mat. 23. 19. the figure of Christ, in who<sup>n</sup> no body hath part, unlesse he be sanctified of himself: Joh. 13. 8. and who sanctifieth every man that toucheth him by faith, Heb. 9. 14. from Eze. 44. 19. and 46. 20: there may be a third sense gathered, namely of threatning: that every thing or person not consecrated should beware of comming neere the altar, lest it become sacred by the forbidden means, Lev. 27. 28. 29.

V. 38. Thou shalt offer] For every day or daily, wherefore this only is called a continuall sacrifice.

V. 39 At even] the Italian hath it, Betweene the two Even.] see Exo. 12. 6.

V. 40. A tenth deal] The Italian hath it, The tenth part of [...]n Ephah] which was a measure for dry things, An Hin] A measure for liquid things: Beaten oyle] the Italian, Virgia oyle] see Exo. 27. 20.

V. 42 Where I] namely in the Tabernacle, but more especially in the innermost part thereof, where the most holy place was, Exo. 30. 6: Lev. 16. 2.

V. 43 By my glory] That is to say, by my most glorious presence, which shall cleanse them from [...]h [...]r pol- lutions, shall adorn them with spirituall gifts, and shal dedicate th [...]m to me, and to my service.

CHAP. XXX. VERS. 1.

TO burn] The Italian, to make] this was the daily use of it, but besides this, there was atonement by blood made once a yeare, and in some certain sacrifices v. 10. Lev. 4. 7. 18: [...] wood] see Exo. 25. 5.

V. 2. The hornes thereof shall be] see Exo. 27, 2.

V. 3. The top thereof] that is the boording or roofe above it, The sides] the Hebrew hath it the wals.

V. 6 Before] Wi [...]hout in the holy place, The va [...]le] see Exo. 36. [...]1. Me [...]cyseat] the Italian hath it, the coverture] see Exo. 25. 17.

V. 7. Aaron] In quality of Priest, but not of high [Page] Priest, see Luk. 1. 9. Sweet incense] This signified the second part of Christs office, which is the intercession he makes in heaven, as the sacrifice which was offered in the court, signified the redemption and satisfaction given on earth, Heb. 9. 24. Dresseth] Set them in order & cleansed them from all filth, after he had put the out, Le. 24. 1. 1 Sa. 3. 3. to be ready to light again at night.

V. 9. Strange] That is to say common, or prophan or of any other composition that I shall give order for: v. 34. Nor burnt sacrifice] Because that all sacrifices were offered in the court, upon the great altar, shewing that Christ being gon up into heaven, sacrifices now take place no longer, but his perpetuall intercession only remains, and the power of his blood, still fresh, Heb. 9. 25. and 10. 20.

V. 10 Once in a yeare] In the day of the anniversary attonements, which was the tenth day of the 7 month, see Lev. 16. 19. & 23. 26. Nu<sup>r</sup>. 29. 7. Besides at that time they did carry thither some of the blood of the sin offering: when it was offered for the high Priest, & for the whole congregation, Lev. 4. 7, 18. because that was also a publick attonement, but an extraordinary one, Upon the] laying some of the blood of the sacrifice thereon: Most holy] so were all things called which were imployed in Gods service, and were anointed with holy oyle, Exo. 30. 26. 29.

V. 12 Takest the umm] by mine appointment, as Exo. 38, 25. & Nu<sup>r</sup>. 1. 26: for without his order, Davids example, 2 Sam. 24. 2: 2 Chr. 27. 24: sheweth, it was no lawfull enterprise, their number] the Italian hath it, of them that are to be numbred] that is to say of them that are above [...] twenty years of age, and have no impedime<sup>n</sup>t in them wherfore they should be refused; v. 14. Deu. 23 1. Ransom] halfe a shekel for a head, and it was cal'd a ransome, because it was a kind of tribute paid unto God as to their soveraign Lord; to ransom them from the punishment which was to be inflicted upon them, for not performing their duty; or because the Tabernacle was built with that money, Ex. 38. 25: and afterwards the daily offerings were bought therewith, and those for holy days, and other offerings for the attonment of all the people in general; 2 Chro. 31. 3. which were the ordinary sacraments of the redemption of soules through Christ.

V. 13 Halfe a shekel] Which was the di [...]rachma, Mat. 17. 24. which was a quarter of an ounce weight. Now by the Jewish history it plainly appeareth that this tribute was paid every year, though there were not always a solemn setting down of the people; but it is likely that without that, all those that were come to be 20 years of age, gave in their names into the register, or muster books of their commonalties, and from that time begun to pay this tribute to God, which was gathered, and kep [...] in the treasures of the Temple; see 2 Kin. 12. 4. 2 Chro. 24. 9. Neh. 10. 32. Of the sanctuary] Some believe that there was an ordinary shekel of two drammes, and another holy one of foure: Others, with more likelyhood hold, that there was but one kind of shekel, which is cal'd of the Sanctuary, because that of these holy taxes, there was one invariable estimation and weight, whereof there was a proof kept in the Sanctuary, to prevent the abatement of coine: And it is thought that this is the same shekel as the Kings shekel is, 2 Sam. 14. 26. See upon 1 Chr. 23. 29.

V. 15 Therich] Because that before God all soules are equall, the debt equall, and the price of Christs bloud likewise equall.

V. 16 A memoriall] A perpetuall signe of obedience and of a faithfull homage given to God, bestowed towards the use and means of attonement.

V. 18 The altar] of the holocausts, which was in the court.

V. 19 Shall wash] The water running down through pipes; this signifieth that no service can be acceptable to God, if the person be not first purified by faith in the blood of Christ, Heb. 9. 14.

V. 25 Holy ointment] which signified the gifts of the holy Ghost, without measure wherewith Christs human nature was endowed, which is the Churches true altar and Tabernacle, and was a figure of the consecration of his whole person to the office of Mediator: see Ps. 45. 8, 9. and 133. 2. Isay 11. 2, 3. and 61. 1. Dan. 20. 24. John 3. 34.

V. 30 Aaron] It appeareth by Lev 4. 3, 5, 16 and 16. 32 that this unction was used only for the high Priests, when they came to succeed, and not for the inferior ones, Exo. 40. 15.

V. 32 Upon any strang [...]r] the Italian hath it, The flesh of any man] out of the pr [...]estly line: true it is that by Go s expresse command, the Kings were also anointed with it, in case of the election of a new li [...]age, or some notable alteratio<sup>n</sup> in the successio<sup>n</sup>. see 1 Kin. 1. 39. Ps. 89. 21

V. 33 Like it] To shew the reverence due to sacred things; & also that it is not lawfull for man, according to his own fancy, to frame unto himselfe any other means of sanctification, but by the Spirit of God, nor any other intercession but throu [...]h Christ.

V. 34 Stacte] the Italian hath it, Storax] others have it Stacte, which is a liquor that issueth out of incisions made in a Myrrhe or Cinamom tree, or a certaine fatnesse which comes out of myrrhe new pressed: *On [...]*cha] the Italian hath it, *sweet [...]*ngl [...]a] ancient Authors make mention of this U [...]glia or [...], and say that it was the shell of a fish which fed upon Sp [...]enard in certain ponds, and thereby did get its sweet smell. Now a dayes there is none, at least not known: Ga [...] banum] A drug of ev [...] sent; but sure it was not meant of this ordinary sort, or else it served only to temper, and sharpen the other perfumes, or else there was some mystery in this mixture, to shew that even the best of our works, have some defect in them: With pure] that is to say, bright, transparent, and cleansed from all [...]regs and soulnesse.

V. 35. Tempered together] Exactly well incorporated [Page] and mixed, the Hebrew hath it salted, which seem take in the proper sense, Pure] made all of selected drags, without any corruption o [...] defect.

V. 36 Some of it] As much as will serve to make the daily incense, Before the] that is to say, upon the Altar of incenses which was before the Arke, wherein the Tables of the Law were, called the testimony, Exo. 30 with the great cu [...]tain between.

CHAP. XXXI. VERS. 2.

I Have called] That is to say, I have ordained him by name, or namely.

V. 3. With the Spirit] Which sheweth that this was a knowledge, and industry insused by God, and not gained by art, study or imitation.

V. 8. The pure] Made of most pure gold; and kept most cleanly, through the Priests care.

V. 13. Veriy] The Italian hath it, Neverthelesse] As much as to say, though I will have these utensiles, that are for my service to be carefully made, yet will I not have my Sabbath broken. A signe] A holy document which I have set down for my Church, by which I continually put her in mind of the benefit which she receiveth from me, regenerating of her through my Spirit that resting from fleshy workes, shee may apply her selfe to them of the Spirit which is the true spirituall Sabbath; and this ceremony being holily observed by the Church, sheweth that she consenteth thereto and employeth her selfe therein.

V. 16. Covenant] By an enterchangeable bend, it being correspondent to the benefit which I dispense, and grant unto them by the externall Sabbath: v. 13.

V. 18. The singer] A humane kind of speech; meaning that it was done without any art of man, only by divine operation and work.

CHAP. XXXII. VERS. 1.

Gods] Visible images, which we will consecrate, and then yeeld divine honour unto them. It is likely that the greatest part of this people inclined to idolatry, after the manner of Pagans, and that they did desire many images, but that Aaron, in part consenting to their wicked demand, would have them to acknowledge and worship the true God in this image, which therefore he will have to be but one; which shall go] Shall be our guides in this v yage, as the Lord hath been hitherto in the Pillar, which having stood still all the time that Moses had beene in the mount; it is likely that the people, wearied with this long stay, would substitute [...] other signes of the Godhead, which should move at their pleasure.

V. 2. Eare-rings] By, Gen. 35 4. and Judg. 8. 24. It seemeth that there was some p [...]fanenesse in the use of these ear [...] - [...]ings, which Aaron would by this meanes root out, & take away one s [...], by bringing in a worser.

V. 4. Calfe] The Egyptians worshipped their Apis in the shape of an Oxe, and their goddessse Isis, had a Cows hornes, and it should seem the Israelites tooke this shape from thence; See 1 King. 12. 28. Ezek. 20 7 and 23. 8. Acts 7. 39. If they did not take it from the likenesse of Cherubins, which appeared in a vision, in the shape of Oxen; Ezek. 10. 14. Thy Gods] The Godhead which thou servest, and worshippes, which the idolaters never did know truly, in its most single unity and spirituall and infinite essence, and giving a corporall shape, have alwayes divided it into parts and numbers.

V. 5. To the Lord] Hence it is manifest that Aaron, though he gave consent to make this visible figure, did intend neverthelesse to keep them in the knowledge, & service of the true God under this forme, as 1 Kin. 18. 22. and 2 of Kings 10. 16. and 23. 29.

V. 6. To play] As always dissolutenes hath accompanied idolatry.

V. 7. Thy people] A word of scorne, or disdain.

V. 9. Siffe-necked] Refractory, unapt to be taught, a terme taken from Oxen that cannot bend their necks to the yoke.

V. 10. Let me alone] Do not mediate for them. Now by this forbidding, God doth so much the more incite Moses his zeale to pray for the people; shewing him, that only prayer coald hinder this lamenable e [...]fect.

V. 11. Why doth] As much to say, if there bee great reasons and causes, for to have them destroyed, yet are there some greater, and more powerfull for the pardoning of them, namely, the respect of thy glory; See Deut. 32. 27.

V 12. And repent] See Gen. 6. 6.

V. 15. Of the testimony] See Exo.: 6. 34. On both] It is not likely that they were written inside & outside, but only the two foresides, opposite against one another.

V. 17. Joshua] Who was not returned to the Host, but had stayed in som [...] part of the hill all the while Moses was there, Exo. 24. 13.

V 18. It is not the voyce of them] The Hebrew hath it, It is not the noise of a cry of strength, nor the noise of a cry of wearinesse.

V. 19. And brake them] Not through any excesse of wrath, but to shew the people (in whose presence hee did it, Deu. 9. 17) that Gods Covenant was broken through their idolatry.

V. 20. Barn [...]d it] That is to say, melted it, to utterly abolish the image or shape of the calfe, and then ground the stuff, and made it small, and caused the people to drink it, that it might passe out with their excrements; others beleve that Moses had calcinated it by some art, and all this was for the greater detestation of idolatry, Deu. 7. 25.

V. 24. There came out] A terme of a shamefull dissimulating of the fault.

V. 25. Were naked] Out of Gods protection, who was offended for that sin, wherby it was easie for their [Page] enemies to assault and overthrow them: See Num. 14. 9. Isa. 22. 8. Mic. 1. 11. The meaning is, that Moses chose rather to act the revenge himself, than to expect it from the enemies, for fear of taunts and blasphemies.

V. 26. Stood] As it were to separate himselfe from the company of the idolaters: See Exo. 33. 7. In th. gate] At the coming in, according as the campe was settled, and quartered into streets, piazzaes &c. after the manner of an Host; On the Lords side] that had no part in this revolt, that is zealous of Gods glory.

V. 29. Consecrate your selves] Doe this act of justice for a proof and triall of your faithfulness in the service of God, and to make your selves worthy to be called his ministers.

V. 30. Peradve [...]ture] Moses speaketh thus, because that God had not revealed unto him, what he intended to do concerning the pardon: v. 14. I shall make] or shall pacifie him concerning this your sin:

V. 31. Unto the Lord] To the mount, where he stayed other forty dayes, and forty nights, De [...]t 9. 18.

V. 32. I [...] not] The meaning is, I shall find asmuch paine and torment, by the violation of thy glory, and the destruction of thy Chu [...]ch; as if I my selfe had no part in the election to thy grace, or as if I did lose it. My good and my particular joy, will be drowned in this publick heavinesse; words of an extraordinary zeale and charity, as Rom. 9. 3. Out of thy book] A figurative terme, as Psal. 69. 29. Dan. 12. 1. Luke 10. 20. Phil. 4. 3. Rev. 3. 5. and 13. 8. and 20. 12. to signifie the decree of Gods Will.

V. 33. Him will I blot out] That is to say, exterminating of obdurate and impenitent sinners, out of the body of my Church, which is as it were, the pourtraiture and register of eternall election, Ezeck. 13. 19. I will shew by the effects that they were never mine, nor were never chosen; See Psal. 69. 29. Deut. 29. 20. Rev. 3. 5. and 22. 19. Ma [...] 7. 23. and 15. 13.

V. 34. Mine Angel] I the Son of God will no more shew my self immediatly present by the effects of my power and grace, as I have done heretofore, Exod. 23. 20, 21: but will give you an Angel, which is a creature and a servant, to be your conductor; see Exod. 33 2, 3, 12. But Moses caused this threatning to be called back, Exo. 33. 14. 17. In the day] I do forbear to panish this sin fully at this time, but if they continue in doing evill and breake my patience, I will reckon this sin unto them with the rest. To shew that the true remission of sin is alway joyned with the renouncing of sin, and that wher [...] sin raigneth, sin is not forgiven.

V. 35. Plagued] The Italian hath it, Smote] by the hands of the Levites this time, and in the ensuing plagues, he alwayes bore this horrible sinne in mind.

CHAP. XXXIII. VERS. 3.

LEst I] If I should see my presence injured, and profaned through thy rebellion, See Hab. 1. 13.

V. 4. Did put on him] In signe of hearty sorrow, a [...]d publick repentance.

V. 5. That I may know] The Italian hath it, And I shall know] according as thy repentance shall be true or false, I shall dispose of thy punishment,

V. 6. By the mount] It seemes they did for some time continue this habit of penitents, some do take it as if there were the word, Going off from the mount] to be understood there, as acknowledging they were unworthy to come neere to God, as Exo. 20 18.

V. 7. The Tabernac'e] The Italian hath it, the Tent] the publick place, where [...]e sate in judgement and counsell, and called the assembly together, where God appeared in the cloud, and spake with him, Without the campe] it appeared that this was done by Gods appointment; seeing the cloud (which questionlesse was gone out of the Campe) came to settle in this place; to signifie that the people were divorced from God, and in a manner excommunicate by him; and also because that sacred things should not be contaminated by the company of sinn [...]rs, Of the Congregation] See the reason of this name, Exo. 27. 21: which afterwards was given to the place of Gods publick worship, Which sought] by the meanes of Moses, to be told Gods will, or for the determining of any controversie See Exo. 18. 15, 19. 20.

V. 8. Rose up] The people perplexed and terrified by the clouds departure, followed Moses with heart and eye, as their Mediator towards God, to see if the cloud would returne and stay with them, seeing of which it worshippeth God again, as for a new homage after their idolatry.

V. 9. The Lord talked] The Italian hath not, The Lord] Not the cloud, but the Lord in it.

V. 10. Face to face] Not in a ravishment of mind, nor in abstraction of senses, nor in a vision nor in a dreame, but as present to present, with distinct and articulate voices: Moses having the perfect use of all his senses; See Num. 12. 8. which was a priviledge that Moses had above all other Prophets, and was granted but once to the people, Deut. 5. 4. Departed not] Joshua as Moses his lieutenant, to judge the people, according to the order established, Exo. 18. 25 26. And this seemeth to be added, to shew that the other Magistrats were from that time deposed, for participating in the peoples idolatry, untill God again sanctified and chose seventy [...]lders for that purpose, Num. 11. 16.

V. 12. Whom th [...]u] What Angel, See Exod. 32. 34. Thou hast said] This seemeth to have a reference to the assurance which God had given to Moses, of his eternall election, Exod. 32. 33 and to the hearing his prayer for the people, Exod. 32. 13, 34. I know thee] Thou hast chosen me to be thine, and predestinated me to glory; See Jer. 1.

5. Rom. 8. 29. Thou hast also] thy prayer hath graciously been heard [...], for the pardoning of the peoples sin.

V. 13. Shew me] Let thy presence in the midst of [Page] thy people be made manifest unto me, as it hath been heretofore by the accustomed signes, and wonted speech, and do not now turn me over to speake to a created Angel: That I may find] that I may be certaine and know by the effects, that I am acceptable unto thee, and that thou hast heard my request.

V. 14. My presence] The Italian hath, My face] My selfe in mine owne person, will be the conductor of my people, Deuternon. 4. 34. Words of the Son of God, who is called the Angel of the presence, Isay 63. 9. Rest] that is to say, deliverance out of thy present anguish, and ease in the conducting of this people; till that by thy meanes I have brought them to a place of firme habitation.

V. 16. Separated] The Italian hath [...], Admired] that is to say, adorned with singular and glorious priviledges.

V. 18. Thy glory] The tokens of the presence of the Son of God, shewed to Moses in the precedent times, are called the glory of God, Exodus 24. 16, 17: but here he requireth somewhat more, namely that he might see the face of that visible shape which the Son of God had taken upon him, when he spake to him (which till then had been covered with darknesse, Exodus 24. 10.) in the same brightnesse and majesty, as it shall appeare in celestiall glory. Moved by a desire of tasting heavenly life, which desire was stirred up in Moses, through the certainty of his election, and by Gods facility in granting him whatsoever he requested.

V. 19. My goodnesse] The Italian hath it, My beauty] That bodily shape, clothed with brightnesse, and divine excellency, Proclaime] This is to teach Moses that God in this life, makes himselfe known through hearing, and not through sight, 2 Cor. 5. 7. in the distribution of his grace and mercy, and not in the full communication of his glory, to reduce Moses his too hasty desire, to the common rule of the faithfull in this world, see 2 Cor. 12. 7.

V. 20. My face] This difference of not seeing the face, but only the back parts, of that visible figure of the Son of God, was to shew, that in this world the faithfull can have but only some tracks, and obscure notice of Gods Essence and Glory, a [...] if one should see a mans back: but in the life everlasting, they shall see him directly as he is, and fully; Se [...] 1 Corinth. 13. 12. 1 of John 3. 2. There shall n [...] man] The Italian hath it, No man can] As well through mans infirmity in this mortall life, as for vice and the reliques of sin; of which things, the first is not able to endure Gods [...]ining p [...]esence, neither can God endure the sight of the other, see Genesis 16. 13 Exo. 24. 11.

V. 21. By me] In this mount, neere unto the place where thou hearest me speake.

V. 22. I will cover th [...] e] A figure of the darke dispencing of the knowledge of God in this world, by the word, sacraments, works, &c.

CHAP. XXXIV. VERS. 5.

DEscended] He shewed himselfe present in the cloud, as if he had descended down into it from Heaven, which is the place of his habitation, Exod. 19. 11, 18, 20. Or else the meaning is, that the cloud it selfe descended, for ordinarily the cloud was raised upon high in the aire, and did come down lower when God was pleased to speake to Moses, Exo: 33. 9. Num. 11. 17, 25.

V. 7. Mercy] The promise of using mercy; Let my Lord] the Son of God himselfe, see Exod 23. 20. and 33. 2, 14. Take us for thine inheritance] The Italian hath it, Possesse us] take us as thine own, dwell and raigne in the midst of us, as our true and onely Lord, reprove us not, nor do not leave us to our selves, or to any other Lords: See Isay 1. 3. and 26. 13 Zach. 2. 12.

V. 10. I make] That is to say, according to thy desire, I do solemnly and in the presence of all the people, re-establish my Covenant with you, which you had broken by your precedent apostasie: I will do] my presence shall shew it selfe, by more high and wonderfull effects then any of the former ones: With thee] accompanying thy ministry with my supream power, Isay 63. 11. Hab. 3. 13. Marke 16. 20. 1 Cor. 15. 10

V. 13. Groves] Choice places, and ordinarily prephaned with idolatry, either because that the silence and thick darknesse of the thick woods, did imprint some opinion of a present deity in the Pagans: or because the first inventors of this superstition, especially amongst the Israelites, did draw into a perverse example Abrahams act, Gen. 33. 21.

V. 15. Go a Whoring] So idolatry is called a spirituall adultery; because that the soule, which oweth all her heart and love to God alone, bestoweth it upon the c [...]atures, Psalm 73 29. And thou eat] which was h [...]v [...]ng communion with the Idol, for those sacrifice feasts were made with a publick intent of rejoycing, for those benefits, which the idolaters professed they [...]eld, through the Idols blessing; after they had offered the Idol part of it for thanksgiving and [...]cknowledgem [...]nt: see Num. 25. 2. Psalm. 106. 28 Ezech. 18. 6. and 22. 9. 1 Cor. 10. 20. Rev. 2. 20.

V. 17. M [...]en] Nor of no other kind, but this seemeth to be specified to upbraid the people with the remembrance of the golden calfe.

V. 19 Openeth] Every male first borne, Amongst thy cattel] The Italian addeth to it, There shall be an offering made] Because that part of the firstlings of cleane beasts, namely, the sat was to be burned upon the Altar, Num. 18. 17. which in the sacrifices is called the memoriall, Lev. 2. 2, 9. and 6. 15. Because that it did in a manner represent unto the Lord by its smel, the service of the offerings, [Page] and sanctifying of the thing offered. Others take the meaning of the word to be thus: All that is amongst the cattel, of male-kind first born.

V. 22. Of weekes] Of Pentecost, at the end of seven weeks after Easter.

V. 24. For I will] Be not afraid to leave your cities, and your houses without watch or defence, to come to my Temple to serve me, for I wil defend you from all assaults.

V. 2y. Write thou] In a booke a part, which shall containe these particular orders for my service; for upon the tables there was nothing but the ten Commandements written by God himselfe: See v. 28. Deut. 10. 2, 4. After the [...]enour] Upon these covenants, and conditions.

V. 29. Shone] The Lord having granted Moses that he should see some resemblance or beame of his celestiall glory, imprinted also in him some part of the effects thereof, which is to transforme the beholder into the like image of glory, 2 Corinth. 18. 2. John 3. 3. To give his servant the greater authority, 2 Cor. 3. 7, 11.

V. 30. They were afraid] And so it is likewise that Moses came to know this his divine brightnesse.

V. 31. Unto him] The Italian addeth, To the assembly] To the great assembly of the people, which Moses as yet held without the Campe, but after this full reconciliation with God, the holy Tabernacle was erected, and Gods presence did again shew it selfe in the midst of the Campe, Exodus 40. 34. Numb. 9. 15.

V. 33. He put] To shew that it was sufficient that this splendor added some authority to his ministry; not willing for all that the people should thereby be enduced to any excessive or idolatrous veneration: see 2. Cor. 3. 13: the allegory which S. Paul draweth from hence.

V 35. Saw the face] whilst he talked with them; Untill he went] after he had spoken with the people, in his ordinary communication, he used this vaile:

CHAP. XXXV. VERS. 2.

Six dayes] This repetition of the Commandement concerning the Sabb [...], comprehendeth sumarily, the command of Gods Service, for which he would have places and instruments made, and it seems to be done also for the cause spoken of upon, Exodus 31. 13.

V. 13. Shew bread] The work-men truly did not make this bread, nor the oyle of the 14. verse, but the meaning is, that when they had made the table, it should be suddainly furnished with bread.

V. 22. An offering of Gold] Pure, not wrought, nor put into any kind of work.

CHAP. XXXVIII. VERS. 8.

OF the looking glosses] Of those excellent ones, wch anciently were made of the finestbrasse mingled with pewter: See Job 37. 18. So these women converted those instruments of their vanity, into a naturall cleanness, and a meanes of a religious purification; in which there was a sacrament of the spirituall: See Luke 7. 38. Of the women] The Scripture makes no mention neither of the beginning, nor manner, nor order of this custome, only it may be gathered by 1 Sam. 2. 22. and Luke 2. 17. that these were certaine devout women, who renouncing worldly affaires, and secular employments applied themselves to prayers, fasting, almes and such like religious exercises, and had some small employments about the Tabernacle; wherein it is also likely that there were distinctions of offices, and turnes of serving; and therefore the Hebrew word is taken from warre services, [...]s elsewhere it is also used, to set down the sacred order of Divine service.

V. 17. The overlaying] This is added for an exposition of that which he had said before, that those capitels were of silver, that is to say, seemed so without, being all covered over with little silver plates, but the fillets, lists, and rounds, were of pure silver layd upon the body of the Columnes.

V. 18. In the breadth] The meaning is, that the height of this hanging was taken in the breadth.

V. 21. Of the testimony] made chiefly for this end to place the Arke of the Testimony within it, Exodus 25. 16.

V. 25. A hundred talents] Hence it is cleare that a talent was three thousand shekels, and the shekell being halfe an ounce weight, the talent came to be one hundred five and twenty pounds, of twelve ounces to the pound.

V. 26. Abekah] The Italian hath it, A didramma] A piece of money of two drammes; and foure drammes were a whole shekell: See Matthew 17. 24.

CHAP. XXXIX. VERS. 33.

The tent] The fabrick of wood, and the coverings of it.

V. 37. The pure] See upon Exodus 3 [...]. 8. In order] in the same number, order, and disposition, without being misplaced, lessened, or taken away out of their places; a figure of the spirituall gifts of sanctification disposed in a certain order amongst themselves, and ought to bee kept in their native forme.

OF the first] That is of the second yeare after the coming out of Egypt, verse 17. Num. 11. For the Jewes made that the set time to count their years from: see 1 Kings 6. 1.

V. 4. The things] The sh [...]w bread, and all manner of vessels belonging to it, Exo. 25. 29, 30.

V. 15. Shall surely be] By this sacred signe the inferior Priests shall be consecrated once for all, and installed in their office, and the right of it, and the calling shall passe to their issues unto the end of this ceremoniall worship, the anointing being no more required to be reiterated in their posterity, for the high Priests only were anointed in following times, Lev. 4. 35, 11. and 16. 32. and 21. 10.

V. 29. The burnt offering] It seemeth he meanes the burnt offering, and the offering of consecration, Exo. 19. 18, 22.

V. 31. Moses] Who all that yeare executed the office of high Priest.

V. 34. The glory] The signes of his glorious presence: So the Lord seemeth to be altogether reconciled to the people after their idolatry, and contented to dwell in the midst of them, and to conduct them, bringing of these signes again into the Campe, which had been out of it ever since the calfe, See upon Exod. 33. 9. and 34. 1 [...].

V. 35. Was not able] Either because the cloud tooke away the use of his sight, or [...]ough feare, or wearines, or any other way by which God hindered him at that time from comming in to confirm so much the more the power and majesty of his presence: See 1 Kings 8. 11. Afterwards it seemeth he did come into the Tabernacle; Numbers 7. 8, 9. and 11. 24. but not into the most holy place where the Arke was, and over the Arke the cloud, Levit. 16. 2.

[...]hereo [...]] The same cloud that appeared without the Tabernacle just over the place of the Arke, did penetrate also into the Sanctuary like an obscure, darknesse, Lev. 16. 2. 1 Kin. 8. 12 Isay 6 4.

V. 36. In all] All their voyage through the desert, because that afterwards the cloud appeared no more without, because they had no more need of guiding nor of safeguard from the heat, but only the darknesse remained within the Sanctuary.

V. 38. And fire] The same pillar which appeared in the day time like a cloud, appeared in the night time like fire: See upon Exo. 13. 21.

THE ARGUMENT.

THe name of Leviticus given by the Greek Interpreters to this Booke, giveth an inkling of what is the chieftest matter it treateth of; namely, the forme of the ceremoniall worship, which God prescribed his people in the desert after the Tabernacle was erected: especially about offerings and sacrifices, which indeed had been established by God from the beginning after mans sin, and the promise that he should be re-established into grace by the Messias, & had been continually use in the Church, and were of two sorts, and for two ends. The one sort was expiatory, being visible signes, and sensible documents of the only purgation of sin, by the bloud of Christ, that the faithfull might always be occupied in the expectation thereof, and directed to seeke by faith in him the only remedy against sin, and the condemnation thereof, and that through these ceremonies, accompanied with the power of Gods Spirit in their lawfull use, the feeling of Gods grace might be dispenced unto them, and their consciences assured of peace, and reconciliation. The other were Eucharisticall, or to give thanks, to make a publick acknowledgement of Gods benefits, as well generall as particular. But after the comming out of Epypt, God willing to cut off all past abuses, and to give a firme and perpetuall forme to his service, to banish all arbitrary licence, and shew that he is pleased with nothing but with obedience, by which alone he can and ought to be lawfully served; both kinds of sacrifices were regulated by certain laws and circumstances, of rites, times and places. And especially by the appointing of certain persons consecrated and elected by God according to his free choyce, who tooke the tribe of Levi in generall for his service, and one of that tribe Aaron and his race particularly, for sacrifices whereof the eldest (from father to son) should successively hold the place of high Priest: bearing the image of Christ, the only eternall spirituall and effectuall Priest of his Church. To these observations were added that of the fire, which at first fell from heaven, and was continually preserved upon the Altar, to burn all sacrifices. For a figure to shew that Christ the only true Expiatory offering, should be touched and burned, by the fire of Gods wrath against sin, the burthren of which he should take upon him: And also that all the Churches spirituall worship ought to be done and sanctified by vertue of the Spirit of God, given from heaven. As contrariwise by the refusall of the strange fire rashly used by two sons of Aaron, and by the severe punishment of that fact, is taught, that no worke, no motion, no endeavour, that is meerely human, can be acceptable to God for the purging of sin; nor apt for his true service, but that he is contrary-wise offended and provoked by it. Besides this first and principall part, this Book containeth also the Laws of the distinctions of meates, clean and [Page] uncleane, lawfull and unlawfull. As well for an exercise and absolute prooffe of obedience to God, as for a document of holy discretion, to abstaine from any thing as God sheweth to be displeasing unto him, and may staine the conscience. And the declaration of all ceremoniall uncleannesses, by meates, corporall infirmities, and accidents; and the purification required in every one of them, together with the appointment of a generall purgation or atonement to be made once a yeare, of all the peoples uncleannesses. Were signes and figures of the ordinary vices and defects, which the faithfull cannot avoyd in this wretched life: who notwithstanding never want continuall expiation by the application of Christs bloud, nor the correction and cure, by the working of the spirit, untill the time of their full deliverance from sin by death. In this Book are also established the Laws, of the deg [...] of affinity and consanguinity forbidden in marriages, and also diverse other precept [...] of justice, charity, and piety: of the purity required in Priests, of Feasts, of the resting of the earth every seven yeares; of the Jubily, of vowes, of things consecrated to God, and the ransome of them: Thigns which have all been used in ancient times, by an order of Ecclesiasticall discipline, and have likewise some reasonable correspondency with the mysteries of the Gospell, whereof the Levites were the ordinary teachers, sacred ministers and publick expounders. Finally all these command [...]ments were sealed by the Lord with solemne promises to them that should keep them, and threatnings to the breakers thereof.

ANNOTATIONS.

CHAP. I. VERS. 2.

N offering] Namely a voluntary one.

A V. 3. At the doore] Presen [...] it in that place, before he offer it upon the Altar, or it is a generall prohibition of offering it any where, but only upon the Altar, which was before the said doore, and did also sanctifie the offering, Mat. 23. 19. Before the Lord] the Ital. hath more, That it may be accepted before the Lord] For the obeying of Gods order, was that which made the sacrifice acceptable and effectuall to make an attonement with him: see Lev. 7. 18. Deut. 12. 13. 26. 1 Sam. 15. 22. Others translate it: Let him offer it of his own free will.

V. 4. Atonement] Both ceremoniall & sacramental; figuring the true and internall attonement of the soul with God, by Christs offering, apprehended by faith, by all beleevers in their sacrifices.

V. 5. Shall kill] Namely the Levites shal kill it: see 1 Chron. 23. 28, 31. 2 Chron. 30. 16. and 35. 11.

V. 7. Shall put] Seeing that fire which once fell from heaven, Dev 9. 4 was to be continually kept and preserved upon the Altar, Leviticus 6. 12. and the use of all other fire was forbidden in sacrifices, Lev 10. 1. putting of fire upon the Altar in this place, could signifie nothing but kindling of it.

V. 9. Shall he wash] Before they be laid upon the fire, And the Priest] Not the high Priest, but some of the inferior ones, whosoever it is that serveth at that time, for even at that time or presently after it was ordered they should serve by turnes week [...]y see Lev. 10. 9 2 Kings 11. 5. Now this was a figure of Christ, by whom the faithful are sanctified and presented to God with all their spiritu [...]ll service, Heb. 13. 15.

V. 16. By the place] The ashes which fell down from the grate of the Altar were first taken up on the East side thereof, and then were carried out of the camp, See Lev. 6. 10.

V. 17. With the wings thereof] Cleaving of it longways, without disjoyning the peeces, so that there may be a wing on each side, see upon Gen. 15. 10.

CHAP. II. VERS. 1.

A Meat offering] Of which there were two kinds: The first, when these meale things were offered by themselves: The second when they were joynd of beasts, with their pooring offrings, Numbers 15. 4 6. 9. Here is spoken particularly of the first Oyle] oyle and incense containe a figure of what was required in good workes, which are spirituall offerings, to make them acceptable to God, [Page] namely, that they should be watered with the gift of the Spirit, likened unto oyle, and that they should be accompanied with Christs intercession, which is the only acceptable smell unto God, Ephes. 5. 2. Rev. 8. 3▪

V. 2. The Priest] Namely, he that supplies the place, The Memoriall] An ordinary terme in sacrifices and offerings, to intimate that part which is offered to God, as presenting before his Divin Majesty with its sweet savour, the favorable remembrance of the offerer: see Ex. 30. 16 and 34. 19. Lev. 6. 15. Num. 5. 26. Acts 10. 4.

V. 3. Most holy] So are called in the Law these sacred things which ought not to be touched, and those meates wherof none were to eate, but only the Priest, in a holy place neare the Altar: See Exod. 29. 37. Lev. 6. 26. and 7 6. 9 and 10. 12. Num. 18. 9, 10. See the difference between holy and most holy things, Lev. 21. 22.

V. 6. It is] Now in all such offerings there was oyle required, v. 1.

V. 8. Shall bring it] Let him lay in one, in signe that it is offered to the Lord, yet shall but part of it be burnt.

V. 11. No heaven] Which was forbidden in all free will offerings, to signifie, that all leaven of malice, hypocrisie and pride, ought to be laid aside, in all the faithfuls spirituall offerings, which are good works: See Luke 12. 1. 1 Cor. 5. 8. Nor any honey] according to some, because that honey will leaven. Or it may be God would intimate, that the sweets and pleasures of the flesh, do spoyle the study of good works.

V. 12. Ye shall offer] The Iahan hath it, You may may offer these things] that is to say, leavened dough or mixed with honey: Of the si [...] t fr [...] its] which were not offered to God by fire, but after they were consecrated, were for the Priests use, Num. 18. 13. Deu. 18 4. There was also an offering of thanksgiving, wherin leaven was admitted, Lev. 7. 13.

V. 13. With salt] A signe of the incorruptibility of the Spirit of God in the faithfull man, 1 Pet. 3. 4. and of the savour of grace, which it giveth to all good works Col. 4. 5. Of the Covenant] A signe of confirmation of the Covenant which God hath with thee, a phrase taken from the common saying, that familiar friends do use the same salt, that is to say, feed at one table. So anciently salt was a signe or token of friendship, and of an inferiours duty whereby he was bound to his Superiour, whence comes the word salary, or wages, Exodus 4. 14. Or salt is here set downe for a signe of the everlastingnesse of Gods Covenant, Num.

18. 19.

V. 14. First fruits] whereof there were two sorts: the one commanded at Easter, Lev 23. 10. Deut. 16. 9. the other voluntary at the same time: both different from them which were offered in Harvest time at the Pentecost, Num. 15. 9. Deuterono. 26. 2. Of full ears] The Italian hath it, Of the flower of the wheat] Th [...] Hebrew word signifieth properly a certaine kind of wheat, which grew upon mount Carmel, of an exquisite goodnesse. Others translate it, well corned, and full eares, rubbed out with hands.

CHAP. III. VERS. 1.

PEace offering] The Italian hath it, A Sacrifice of thanksgiving] Not for an attonement for sinne, but only for a thanksgiving for benefits received, either in generall or particular: See Leviticus 7. 12, 16. O [...] female] The female sex was not admitted in burnt offerings, but only in sacrifices of thanksgiving and in one kind of sacrifice for sin, Lev. 4. 28. Before the Lord] That is to say, before the Tabernacle.

V. 2. And kill it] see upon Lev. 1. 5.

V. 5. The burnt Sacrifice] Dayly one, or other, for the sacrifices did never begin with the sacrifices of thanksgiving, but with them of expiation or attonment; to sh [...]w that no worke of service or homage can be acceptable to God; if the expiation or attonment for sin go not before.

V. 11. The food] the sacrifices which were burned with fire, were so called, especially the bloud and the fat, Leviticus 21. 6, 8. and 22. 25. Ezekiel. 44. 7. Mal. 17, 12. to intimate that God did feed thereon, that is to say he tooke delight therein; and required them as his part of the sacrifices.

V. 16. All the fat] Namely that which is solid, and is at the end of the muscles.

V. 17. Throughout all] Not only in Gods Temple, but also in your private houses, where those kinds of fat, being not offered to God, it is very likely were thrown away as the blood was, and not eaten, Levit. 7. 24.

CHAP. IV. VERS. 2.

Through ignorance] of the Law, or unawares, or through plaine weaknesse, without malice or deliberation, Ezech. 45. 20. A figure of the faithfulls weaknesses and ignorances, which notwithstanding are sins, seeing they had need of expiation, see Psa. 19. 13. Gal. 6. 1. Heb. 5. 2.

V. 3. That is anointed] The high Priest: see upon Exod. 40. 15. According to the sin] The Italian hath it, Whereby the people come to be guilty] God often times did punish the people for their rulers faults, and also the people is induced to sin by their example, or being scandalized by the Priests sin, do absent themselves from Gods service: see 1 Sam 2 17. 24.

V. 7. Of sweet incense] See upon Exo. 30. 10.

V. 12. A clean place] No dunghill, nor filthy place, as Lev. 14. 40. Where the] See upon Lev. [...]. 16.

V. 15 The Elders] The rulers and Magistrates, which [Page] were seventy in number, Exod. 3. 16. and 24. 1.

V. 18 Which is in] By this meanes is intimated the altar of sweet incense, which was before the Sanctuary in the holy place.

V. 20 It shall be forgiven them] They shall be purged from their sin, according to the Ecclesiasticall and externall judgement; and exempt from the punishment imposed by the Law, in signe of the internall absolution of the conscience before Gods judgement, by vertue of the reall and spirituall expiation through Christ.

V. 21 At the burned] As he was appointed to burn it. A sin offering] Now all such sacrifices as were sin offerings, were to be burned without the camp, see upon Exod. 29. 14.

V. 29 In the place] At the entrance of the Tabernacle, where the burnt offerings were killed, see Lev. 1. 5.

V. 35 According to the offerings] See upon Lev. 3. 5.

CHAP. V. VERS. 1.

OF swearing] The Italian hath it, Of a denunciation with oath] That is to say, before a Judge, not to be sworne, to witnesse any thing concerning a fact which is already questioned, wherein there wants nothing but proof: but it is meant by a generall denuntiation from the rulers to reveale some secret fact, wherein one may have to do with men of respect, or that are to be feared, whereby a man may erre through weaknesse. Or knowne of it] By other mens relation. Shall beare] Such a one is guilty, and subject to divine punishment, if he doth not redeem himself by his sacrifice.

V. 2 Uncleane] See concerning these legall, and ceremoniall uncleannesses, Lev. 11. and the following chapters. Guilty] That is to say, bound to expiate this chance, to be restored to corporall purity, required by the ceremoniall Law, though the conscience be not stained by casualties, nor foulnesse of the body, Mat. 15. 11. 18. but all this was but to teach us, to seek in Christ the pardon for those sins, which are unknown to men: Psa. 19. 13. 1. John 3. 20.

V. 3 When he knoweth] From that time he is bound to give satisfaction, to teach us, not that sin, is no sin, untill we have a knowledge and feeling of it, but that so soone as God awaketh us, we are presently bound to hasten to make our peace with him, or else our sin cleaveth unto us: Joh. 9. 41. Act. 17. 30.

V. 4 Swear] Inconsiderately, violently, without examining whether the thing be just or no, whether it lye in his power or no, see 1 Sa [...]. 25. 22. It be hid] He thinks no more of it, it is out of his memory. He knoweth it] Being told or put in mind of it by others. In one] Of this kinde of sin, whereof there are three sorts, weaknesse: v. 1. ignorance of the fact: v. 2. and inconsideratenesse: v. 3. pointed at in the three cases specified in the precedent verses.

V. 5 He shall confesse] Publicly in the Church, th [...] he is guilty of such and such a sin, for which such a sacrifice is required, yet not specifying any thing of any particular confession, nor of the circumstances of the sinne.

V. 6 His trespasse offering] To shew us that neither weaknesse, nor inconsiderate ignorance excuseth from sinne.

V. 7 One for the] The sacrifice for sin was for that particular sin, the burnt offering, was for all [...]is sins in generall that did offer it. The particular was to be first expiated, as most pressing, and that provoked God most, & hindered the acceptance of the common service, and to teach us also that we must not confound expressed sins with common ones.

V. 9 It is a] Now in this kinde of sacrifices the bloud was spilt by command: Lev. 4. 7. 18. 30. 34

V. 11 No oile] As these things were added in your voluntarily meat offerings: Lev. 2. 1. now the cause of this forbidding, is touched Num. 5. 15. because this offering caused a remembrance of iniquity before the Lord; and not the sweetness of voluntary service.

V. 12 A memoriall] See Lev. 2. 2. According to the] The Italian hath it, Above the burnt offerings] See Lev. 3. 5. and 4. 35

V. 15 With thy estimation] The Priests did use to make these rates: Lev. 23. 8. 12. 14. but here and elsewhere the word is directed to Moses, who held the Priests place in these first ordinances.

V. 17 Shall beare] See upon v. 1.

CHAP. VI. VERS. 2.

AGainst the Lord] Whose Majesty is offended likewise, by our sinning against our neighbours: Gen. 20. 6. and 39 9. Psa. 51. 6. especially by secret sins: whereof God alone is witnesse, and where the fraud redounds to his content: Act. 5. 4. and so much the more when the sin is aggravated with per [...]jury. Delivered him] To trade with for common profit, and at common adventure of loss [...]; or for to trade with it sincerely.

V. 4 Hath sinned] Secretly, there being no prooffe thereof but only his own oath, by which if he refused to purge himselfe, he was held as guilty, and paid double: Exod. 22. 7, 8. 11. and againe if he swore falsly, and afterwards repented himself, and confess [...]d his fault voluntarily, he was included within this punishment, without incurring any other penalty.

V. 6 With thy estimation] See Lev. 5. 14.

V. 9 Of the burnt offering] As well of the publick and continuall ones, as of the particular ones. The meaning is, that nothing must be stirred off from the altar, from one morning to the other, but the burnt offerings must [Page] be burned one upon another untill the next morning, at which time the Priest that waiteth, must take away the ashes, and kindle up the perpetuall fire, and lay the wood, and the sacrifice upon it. The fire] Namely the perpetuall fire, which at first fell from heaven: Lev. 9. 24▪

V. 14 The Law] Of some particular rites, besides those which are set down: Lev. 2.

V. 20 This is the] The generall Law of this offering at a consecration was already given, Exod. 29. 2. 24, 25. and here are only added some particular circumstances.

Anointed] For high Priest; Exod. 40. Lev. 15. 33.

Perpetuall] That is to say, at every consecration of a new high Priest.

V. 21 Bring it in] He whosoever it is that is then consecrated.

V. 23. It shall not be eaten] In the peoples offerings the Priest took his share with the altar as for a recompence of his service, which could not take place when he offered for himself.

V. 25 The Law] Touching that particular, what might be eaten thereof by the Priest, because that this Law in generall is largely set down: Lev. 4.

V. 26 Offereth for sin] For some of the chief, or for the people, for then the blood was not carried into the Tabernacle: Lev. 4. 22. 27. It be eaten] Namely the flesh, after the blood hath been spilt, and the fat burned.

V. 27 There is sprinkled] All this aimed at the holding of the blood of the sacrifices in great respect, keeping it altogether from any common or prophane use or touch: A figure of the most perfect holinesse of Christs blood, severed from sins: Heb. 7. 26.

V. 30 Any of the blood] Such were the offerings that were offered for the high Priest, or for the whole Congregation: Lev. 4. 7. 18. and in the days of the yearly expiation: Lev. 16 27.

CHAP. VII. VERS 1.

The Law] An addition to the ceremonies that are to be used in these kindes of sacrifices, whereof the generall Law was given: Lev. 8. 5.

V. 3 All the fat] See upon Lev 3. 16.

V. 6 Every male] That is cleane from ceremoniall uncleannesse, v. 19, 20. Holy place] In the Court of the Tabernacle. It is] See upon Lev. 2. 3.

V. 9 Shall be the] After that hath been taken off, which must be consumed upon the altar: Lev. 2. 2 9.

V. 10 And dry] Without any oile or incense: Lev. 5. 11 Num. 5. 15.

V. 11 The Law] An addition to the generall Law of Lev. 3. 1. Now of these sacrifices, which were not for expiation of sin, but for an acknowledgement of some benefits received at Gods hands, there were three kindes: [...]st, voluntary for Gods benefits in generall: Second, of thanksgiving for some noted favour: The third, upon a vow, when the benefit was obtained upon some singular vow made.

V. 13 Leavened bread] Leaven was not permitted, but only in these kindes of offerings of thanksgiving; because that in it the offerer was not questioned about the purity, and sincerity required in him: Lev. 2. 11. but was only to acknowledge Gods benefits, amongst which, that of the proper feeding of mans body with leavened bread, was to be numbred: see Lev. 2. 12. and 23. 17

V. 14 For a heave offering] Which was done by only presenting it to God, without consuming it upon the altar: see Exo. 29. 24. 28.

V. 17 Shall be burnt] To avoid superstition, in keeping of these hallowed meats, and to not prophane them with sordid sparingnesse: whereas God would have them eaten in mirth, and holy freedom in token of a heart spread out before him.

V. 18 Shall beare] Shall be guilty before God, and subject to judgement, if he doth not purge his fault by sacrifice: see Lev 5. 5

V. 19 That touch [...]th] Namely after it hath been offered, because by that touch it was defiled: Hag. 2. 13. All that be clean] That is to say, let the Priests which are not unclean, eat their parts set down v. 31, 32. and the offerers likewise, which are not unclean, the rest: see Exod. 24. 11. Sam. 9. 12. and 20. 26. Proverb. 7. 14

V. 20 Having his] Before he be cleansed of it, according to the Law: Lev. 11. 24. &c.

V. 21 Abominable] The Italian hath it, Creeping creature] The Hebrew word may be taken generally for any abominable thing.

V. 24 The fat] That kinde of fat which is specified above:

Levit. 3. 16. Of the beast] Of those kindes of beasts as are fitting for sacrifices.

V. 26 In any of your dwellings] See upon Leviti [...]ous 3. 17

V. 31 And his Sons] It appeareth by Exod. 29. 26. was to be the high Priests, and his families, wherefore it is cleare that by the word Sons, are to be understood every high Priests Sons: but the right shoulder was for the ministring Priest.

V. 34 The wave breast] These two portions, may be referred to the two parts which do work in every faithfull sacred minister: namely to labour, which is signified by the shoulder: and to the care and affection, figured by the breast: And therefore the high Priest, did to that end, weare the names of the tribes upon his shoulders, and upon his breast.

V. 35 Of the anointing] Of the Priest-hood, whereof the anointing was a Sacrament: see Exod. 40. 15

The congregation] All the heads and chief of the people, representing the whole common-wealth of Israel: Lev. 9. 1.

V. 19 And he killed it] The Italian hath it, And Moses killed it] Or it was killed, and Moses sprinkled the bloud.

V. 31 The flesh] The Italian hath it, This flesh] Namely the rest of the flesh of the ramme of the consecration, Eat it] both the rest of the flesh, and of the bread was left in the baskets, Exo. 29. 32.

V. 34. As he hath] I have faithfully executed my office in your consecration, now do you fulfill yours, by standing in the holy place, in continuall exercises of piety, which sheweth, that the spirituall sanctification of the faithfull, is accomplished with time, and perseverance.

CHAP. IX. VERS. 1.

Thè Elders] see upon Exo. 3. 16.

V. 2. Take thee] This sacrifice of a young calfe, which was ordinary in sins committed through ignorance, by the high Priest, Lev. 4. 3. is here offered at his entering into his office, for the purifying of all his former faults, and also to teach him that his Priest-hood served aswell for himself, as for the people, Heb. 5. 3. and 97.

V. 3. A Kid of the Goats] For the people, v. 7 15. this sacrifice of a Kid was ordained, Lev. 4. 23. for the sin of a Prince or a Magistrate, and that of a young bullock for that of the whole assembly, but there is some special respect in these sacrifices of dedication, as for examples, to shew the equality that is betweene the shepheard and the flock, in the state of conscience, and forgivenessse of sins before God.

V. 5. Before the] In the court of the Tabernacle.

V. 7. Make thee] By purifying thy selfe, first, make thy selfe capable of offering acceptable sacrifices for all the people, so that thy atonement may redound to the generall good.

V. 9. Of the Altar] It appeares by Lev. 4. 7. that we must here understand the altar of incense, which also is intimated by Moses and Aarons entering into the Tabernacle, v. 23. At the bottome] of the Altar of burnt offerings, Lev. 47.

V. 16. The burnt offering] The calfe or the lamb, added to the sin offering of the people.

V. 17. Tock a [...]andsull] Of the flower, oyle and incense of: he offering according to the Law, Levit. 2. 2. Beside the] beside the continuall morning sacrifice, which was to be before all other sacrifices, and had his offering joyned as well as the rest, Exodus 29 28.

V. 21. Waved] See upon Exo. 29. 24: Breasts] which was the portion of the Priest, which was in office at that time, in all sacrifices of thanksgiving, Leviticus 7. 34.

V. 22 Came down] From the little ascent whereon the altar stood.

V. 23 Went into] To carry in the bloud of the sacrifices for sin offerings, Lev. 4. 7, 16. Blessed] that is to say, brought word from within the sanctuary, that God accepted of those sacrifices; for this is a different blessing from that of the precedent verse, which was at the end of the action; The glory] Some extraordinary flash of divine brightnesse had shewed it selfe in the pillar of cloud, as Exodus 16. 10. Numbers 14. 10.

V. 24 A fire] Caused by God miraculously, and sent from heaven, or from the Tabernacle, in token of approbation: See Judg. 6. 2 [...]. 1 King. 18. 38. 1 Chr. 21. 26. 2 Chro. 7. 1. which was the cause of the great rejoycing of the people; and this sacred [...]re was afterwards preserved and kept upon the Altar; Leviticus 6. 13.

CHAP. X. VERS. 1.

Strange fire] Not taken from the Altar, where the only fire was, which God would have used in all his service. And though the command was not given before, yet it was a sin in undertaking the contrary, before Gods mind was known: Now this sacred fire signifieth the power of the holy Ghost, by which one may offer sacrifices acceptable to God, Rom. 8. 26. Eph. 6. 18.

V. 2 From the Lord] From before the Arke, where God was present in the signes of his Majesty, and efficacy of his working: Some have it, from the Altar; Devoured them] Stisted, burned, and slew them, though it consumed neither their bodies, nor their cloths. v. 45.

V. 3 I will be] This is not found set downe any where else, but it seemeth that Moses writ nothing but only abridgments of his sermons; Sanctified] That is to say, I will teach them to reverence my presence and my service, as a holy and inviolable thing, by my severe judgements, which I will bring upon them who shall prophane it, by disobeying my will, that all the people may feare me and honour me; see Isay 26. 15. Come n [...]gh me] In my ministers, which come neere to the signes of my presence, and do my service, Exod. 19. 20: Isay 52, 11. Jer. 15. 19. Held his peace] Through humility, and quiet yeelding to the will of God.

V. 6 Uncover not your heads] take not off your miters, nor ornaments of your heads, which was a token of grieve, Ezek. 24. 17, 23. See Lev. 13 45. and 21. 19. Some take it for shaving their heads, as Job 1. 20. Isay 22. 12. Mich. 1. 16. Now when they uncovered their heads they hid all then face to the eyes; See the second of Samuel, Chap. [Page] 15. verse 30. and 19. 4. Jer. 14. 3. Mic. 3. 7. Neither rend] See Gen. 37. 29. Now sorrow was a kind of Ceremoniall defiling. Lev. 21. 11. Wherefore they ought not to beare any shew thereof, when they were actually performing Gods Service. To signifie unto us that Gods spirituall service, ought to be performed with holy and divine rejoycing. Rom. 14. 17.

V. 7. You shall not] That is to say, forsake not your ordinary function, which you must of necessity do, if you desile your selves with grieffe, Lev. 21. 10. Others do take this strictly, as if it had happened within the seven dayes of the consecrations, Lev. 8. 33. For the anointing oyle] Seeing you are consecrated to God, you must forgo all naturall affections for his service, Deu: 33. 9.

V. 9. Wine] Some conjecture by this, that Nadab and Abihu had sinned through drunkennesse, Strong drink] All manner of artificiall drink besides the juice of grape, which is apt to make one drunk.

V. 12. Eat it] As well for to observe the Law, as also because that fasting was an act of sorrow, forbidden priests, during the time they executed their office.

V. 14. In a clean place] Clean from ceremoniall uncleannesse, though it be in a private house, and in no holy place; see Lev. 2. 3.

V. 16. It was burnt] Against the order, Levit. 6. 26. That the flesh of every sin offering, whose blood was not carried into the Sanctuary should be eaten by the Priests. Now this neglect should seeme, happened by reason of the disturbance, which this accident caused.

V. 17. To beare] In recompence of your office, by which you are bound to make atonement for the people.

V. 18. Was not] This sacrifice was one of those, the flesh of which was to be eaten, by Gods command; which is forbidden in those whose blood is carried into the Sanctuary, Lev. 6. 30.

V. 19. Behold] In this so moutnfull and extraordinary chance, wherin God hath shewed himselfe so wrathfull, would it have pleased him, if that we had observed the customary law of rejoycing, eating in his presence?

V. 20. He was content] Seeing that there was great shew of reason in it, and that he thought God approved of it, seeing he had not spoken to him concerning it.

CHAP. XI. VERS. 3.

AMong the beasts] The Italian hath it, Among the foure sooted beasts] These differences are upon no other ground but Gods meere will, who would have the first order of the creation observed in some kinds, by which order all beasts were not created to be eaten, but to do man other services, and to adorne the world; in other some, there is a misticall and a mysticall and a morall sense, drawn from the naturall properties and inclinations of those beasts and that for two ends: First, to bring him absolutely to the obedience of Gods will: Secondly, to teach him and fram him by these rudiments to spirituall and internall holinesse.

Cloven footed] These two marks were to be joyned, for it was not enough if the foot were cloven, if the hoo [...]e were not parted also; as in oxen, sheep, goats, bucks, and fawnes, nor was the parting of the paw sufficient, as in dogs, cats, beares and wolfes; but there must be a cleft.

V. 4 Be it uncleane unto you] Not for any defect or naturall blemish, for every creature is good and pure in its own kind, but only concerning the use of food, or touching of them against Gods command, who only sanctifieth to man what he pleaseth, 1 Tim. 4. 455.

V. 13. The Ossifr [...]ge] Because we could have no certainty of the Hebrew names for these birds, we have for the most part held with Saint Hierome his translation.

V. 20 Upon all foure] As all creeping things do, that fly.

V. 21. Legges] The Italian hath it, Knees] that is to say, that under the knee have no other thing but their leg, which serveth them to rest upon, and to skip with like your locusts.

V. 22. Os Locusts] The Italian hath it, *Ar [...]*e] unknown names of locusts or other insects of the like kind and nature, which anciently and in these dayes have beene used for food by many Southerne and Easterne people, who salt them up, See Mat. 3. 4.

V. 24. Uncleane] Ceremonially, not fitting to touch or take part of any sacred thing; no not so much as come neer them, but must be sequestred from conversin, with the members thereof: A figure of excommunication for vices which may infect others.

V. 26. *Divided the hoo [...]*e] Either before or behind, as the horse, the asse and the camell. That toucheth them] when they are dead, the reason is, because of the resemblance of what hath been spoken concerning other beasts, requires that this also should be understood so.

V. 27. Goeth upon his paws] As wolves, lions, beares, dogs, cats, apes, &c.

V. 32. It shall be unclean] The livelesse things were uncleane, when by them man was made uncleane in the manner spoken of, v. 24.

V. 34. That on which] The flesh, herbs, seeds, or graine which is made in pottage and other food which is dressed in water, being touched by the carion of these beasts, shall be unclean, but not those things that are eaten dry, as fruite, graine, &c. See v 37, 38.

V. 35. Oven] They were little ovens to bake bread, and other meats, which ovens were made of two Pieces [Page] of burnt earth or [...]ile, the one [...]lat and the other hollow: Now in these legal uncleannesses, such earth could not be purified with washing, but was to bee broken; Ranges] They were a flat kind of tile wheron they baked somethings, putting [...]ire under them.

V. 36 Or [...]it] Though no living spring, but some cisterne or other kind of dead water, Shall be cleane] though such dead flesh be fallen into it, so it be taken out, But that] though the water be not uncleane, yet that person which taketh the carrion out of it, shall be unclean.

V. 37. Which is to be sown] Which shall be used for feed, or for food, so it be not steeped in water, verse 34.

V. 44 For I am holy] Now there can be no true friendship nor union, but between those that are alike, and not between contraries: And all this sanctification consisteth in nothing but in obedience, even in those things which of themselves could not staine the conscience; and were not ordained but only for a signe of spirituall nolinesse, and for to binde one to it.

CHAP. XII. VERS. 2.

She shall be unclean] Sequestered from her husbands and other mens company, whom she may desile with her touch, Lev 15 19: a figure of the corruption of fathers, and mothers in the generation of children, whose signes are most evident in the woman.

V. 4 Three and thirty] During which time she did not defile every thing she touched, as she did in the first eight dayes: No hallowed thing] Such as all the flesh of sacrifices of thanksgiving was, speaking of ordinary wom [...]n: And hallowed meates, firstlings, tithes and Priests portions, speaking of the Priests wives: Into the Sanctuary] Into the court of the Tabernacle, whose chief place (by which all the rest was consecrated and sought after) was the most holy place, which gave the name to all the rest.

V. 5 Two weeks] The time is double, to that it was in male children, because that naturally in the birth of females, the purifications are longer and slower, though there be no certain nor fixed time.

V. 6 Burnt offering] Which was a sacrifice for the parties sins in generall, as the sin offering was for particular sins of ignorance or error, and there are the two sins of the fathers, which may be imputed to the children; and for which Christ his expiation is required, to cleanse the posterity by the gift of justification and regeneration.

V. 7 From the issue] For a figure of the spirituall purification by faith, by means of which the issue is sanctified, 1 Cor. 7. 14.

CHAP. XIII. VERS. 2.

IT be in the skin] Shall give any suspicion, that it may grow to be a leprosy.

V. 3 When the haire] Signes of a malignant and incurable leprosie, which are observed by Physitians also. First, when the haire groweth white in it. Secondly, when there is a pit or hollownesse: Thirdly, when it spreadeth abroad: Fourthly, when there is a difference of colour, between the quick flesh, and that which is stained with leprosie: pronounce him unclean] To be severed from company, v. 46. Num. 12. 14. 2 Chto. 26. 21. and one who did infect with his very touch: see above Lev. 12. 2.

V. 10 Quick raw flesh] Which was a token that nature had not strength enough to drive out all the malignant and evill humor, wherby the remainder within was putrified and past cure.

V. 11 An old leprosie] Quite made up and perfect, Not shut him up] to make any further proof.

V. 12 Abroad] Which in like diseases is a token, and cause of healing, nature shewing its strength in the expelling of those malignant humors, and abundantly disburthening her selfe of them.

V. 13 Cleane] That is to say, touched with a sleight kind of leprosie, that is curable, and already in the way of healing, wherby others were no more polluted with his touch or conversing.

V. 16 Turne again] That those biles grow generally over all the body.

V. 22 It is a plague] of leprosie, for a leprosie is absolutely so called.

V. 30 Yellow] Which is a true signe of a skall.

V. 31 And that there is no] If there be one of the tokens of recovery, which is the plainnesse of the skin without any pit, but that the other signe is wanting, namely of the brown haire and naturall colour, opposite to the yellow and bad collour.

V. 36 Shall not seek] This signe of the skal spreading is sufficient of it selfe, without adding the changing of the colour of the haire to it.

V. 39 Be darkish white] The Italian hath it, Wrinkled up] or grown narrower, and not spread or grown broader: A freckled spot] a disease a great deale lesser than leprosie, and curable, being nothing else but a deformity and foulnesse of the skin.

V. 42 A leprosie] Called by the Greeks Alopecia] caused by a skald, or by leprosie, or by some other inward disease, and is likewise for the most part incurable.

V. 45 His cloths] In token of sorrow, Ezek. 24. 17, 22. Mich. 3. 7. Not only for the disease, but especially for being sequestred from holy things: A figure shewing what hurt excommunication doth to man in spirituall things; His head] see Lev. 10. 6. And shal cry] to give every one warning, that he should beware touching him, or [Page] coming neare him.

V. 47 The garment also] This leprosie in the garments, and in the houses, Levit. 14. 33. was not like the infection of the plague in our age, which is nothing but some exhalation of theatre, of breath, of sweat, or some other excrement, which may be purified and cleansed diverse ways. But it was a putrefaction peculiar to those places and times, grafted into the very substance of those things rotting and gnawing them, and spreading abroad, as it were in a living body: And elsewhere there is no memory of any such evill.

CHAP. XIV. VERS. 2.

OF his cleansing] Of the ceremoniall expiation and cleansing, which was to be done after the disease was cured, to receive him that was leprous again into the fellowship of the people: A figure of the orders of the Ecclesiasticall discipline, in restoring of them again which are penitent; and had been sequestred for some sin; He shall be brought] Let there be a place without the campe, for the Priest to go unto, and let him that was leprous be brought thither unto him to be searched and looked upon.

V. 4 And clean] Of a kind that is unclean, see Lev. 11. 13. Cedar wood] the Jews say that of these three things, there was a sprinkling brush made, namely, the brush of hysop, the handle of cedar wood, and the binding of a thred of scarlet die.

V. 5 Running water] Taken out of a spring, or a running streame, not out of a well, nor of rain-water. In signe of the water of life, which is spirituall, and effectuall to obtaine Gods grace and favour, through Christ, Joh. 4. 10.

V. 7 Let the living] In signe of liberty restored to the leper, which was cleansed.

V. 8 May be cleane] The Italian hath it, Shall lee cleane] declared fitting to converse with other men; Out of his] Hence it appeareth that there was some common house or tent in the camp, for them who were first shut up for a triall, and for them which were afterwards restored, after they were cured.

V. 9 He shall shave] A ceremony used in cleansings, Num. 8. 7. Deut. 21 12: a signe of casting away all remainders of malice and filthinesse, Jam. 1: 21.

V. 10 Three tenth deales] Of an Ephha, cald Omers, Ex. 16. 36. Mingled] or l [...]neaded, [...]og▪ a measure sor liquid things wherof ten made a Hin, Ex. 29. 40.

V. 12 Per a trespasse offering] Not that there were any trespasse in the disease it self, but only misery. But sin being the cause of all these diseases, God would have together with the cleansing of the body, the purificatio<sup>n</sup> of the soule to be also sought for, by meanes of this sacrifice; and besides these diseases being figures of the in [...] of the soul, these ceremoniall sacrifices represented likewise the internall expiation. Now amongst these three offered things, one of the lambs, v. 10. was for a meat offering the other lamb for a burnt offering, v. [...]. and the ewe for the sin offering, v. 19. females being also admitted for such sacrifices, Levit. 4 28.

V. 13 In the place] Namely, in the court; For as the] Lev. 7. 7. For these two sacrifices being in the same kind and degree of holinesse, they ought also to be offered in the same place.

V. 15 Of oyle] So the bloud and the oyle were joyned together, Ex. 29. 4, 21. For to figure the two parts of true spirituall purification, namely the remission of sins, by vertue of Christs bloud, and the renewing of man by the spirit of regeneration.

V. 16 Before the] Before the great curtain drawn before the sanctuary, where the Arke was, the peculiar place of Gods presence, Lev. 4. 6.

V. 17 Upon the bloud] Upon the same part of the body upon which the bloud was laid.

V. 32 That which pertaineth] See v. 10.

V: 34 In a house] See upon Lev. 13. 47.

V. 36 That all that is] Before the Priest have judged of it, the house could not pollute the stuffe, nor the persons, and therefore the sore being yet uncertaine, it is good to empty the house, for feare lest thé houshold stufle be also comprehended within the pollution of it, when the Priest shall pronounce the sentence. A law of equity and instruction, to teach us to prevent Gods last judgement, sequestering ones selfe betimes from the contagion of sinners, and also to teach us that God will passe over, and forgive the sins and faults of his children, which they commit through meere ignorance: but not those trespasses which they commit against their consciences, and expresse manifestation of his will; Be not] May not be handled without infecting all them that touch it, and must be purified before it may be put to any use.

V. 37 With h [...]]low strakès] These are the same tokens as were for the leprosie in men persons, Levitic. 13. 3.

V. 40 In an unclean place] Upon the dunghill or into the sink, where all unclean things were cast; being contrary and opposite to a cleane place, Leviticus 4. 12.

CHAP. XV. VERSE 2.

Out of his flesh] Or out of his genitall parts: He is] He is not fitting to converse freely with other men, much lesse to come neere holy things, and polluteth by his tou [...].

V. 3 Whether his] Whether the person subject to this infirmity, or naturall impediment, be uncleane, or actually lose his issues, or for a time bee without them.

V. 9 Whatsoever] The Italian hath it, Every saddle] [Page] or any other furnitur he rideth upon; others have it, any thing he rideth on, horse, asse, mule, waggon or litter.

V. 11 And hath not] After he hath polluted them by touching.

V. 13 Is cleansed] After he is made whole, Shall bee clean] to converse with other men, and come neere to the Tabernacle, there to perform the following things to be observed, Lev. 4. 10.

V. 15 An atonement] See upon Lev. 14. 12.

V. 16 Go out from him] By nightly pollution, or any other casualty, besides lawfull copulation.

V. 18 Man shall lye] The Italian addeth, That hath an issue] to whom such a chance hath happened, or be touched with that impediment, and have not beene cleansed. Others have it, if such a man lie with a woman, and joyne his seed with hers.

V. 19 Anissue] Her ordinary monethly termes, Put a part] In her owne private house, out of common conversation: Yet not out of the campe, as the leprous, or those who had suffered any nocturnal pollution, Deu. 23. 10.

V. 24 Lie with her] Unawares; for it was death for him that did it wittingly, Lev. 20. 18. Others are of opinion that the capitall punishment was when the thing came to be published, and that here it is spoken of the deed done secretly.

V. 25 Beyond the time] beyond the ordinary time of seven dayes, Lev 12. 2.

V. 28 But if she be] The Italian hath it, And when she shall be] If her issue stop, let her so passe over seven dayes, and if it commeth not again, let her be held for cleane.

CHAP. XVI. VERS. 2.

AT all times] Not indifferently, when he shall please, but only once a yeare, v. 34. in the day of the generall atonement for all trespasses, of forgetfulnesse, ignorance, or carelesnesse, where [...]f they have not been purged by the ordinary sacrifices; Dye not] for his unreverence, rashnesse and not sufficient atonement, as it happened to his two sons.

V. 3. Thus shall] Preparing and purifying himselfe, with these sacrifices o [...]ered for himselfe in the court, and afterward carrying the bloud of them upon the altar of incense in the holy place, before he might ent [...] into the most holy place, Heb. 9. 7.

V. 4 Linnen coate] Together with all the other priestly apparell as it appeareth by Exo. 29. 30. 35.

V. 8 The scape Goat] The Italian hath it as the Hebrew word is Azazel, because that Goat was sent away, which is the signification of the Hebrew word, carrying with it, being a piacular or purging oblation, the peoples curse.

V. 11 Shall bring] The Italian hath it, Shall offer] A particular repetition of the ceremonies of this sacrifice, but only touched in generall. v. 6.

V. 12 From off the Altar] Of burnt offering, where the continuall fire was, and stood in the Court, directly by a line, over against the Arke, which was the peculiar signe of Gods presence.

V. 13. Upon the testimony] That is to say, the Arke within, which were the Tables of the Law, called the testimony, Exo. 16. 34. and 25. 16.

V. 14. Eastward] Which way the Arke was turned, Before the] Upon the ground.

V. 16. *Make anaton [...]*ment] See upon Exodus 29. 36. Heb. 9. 13. For the Tabernacle] for part thereof, called the holy place.

V. 18. The Altar] Namely the Altar of incense.

V. 21. Shall lay] See upon Exo. 29. 10.

V. 24. In the holy place] In the holy laver, which was by the Altar in the Court, which it was likely the Priest went forth into, for to wash himself, and afterwards came into the Tabernacle again to put on his cloths, and then he came out again to offer the sacrifice. His garments] the ordinary priestly ones, not the solemne and Pontificall ones, which the high Priest never put on, but when he went into the Sanctuary, Exo. 28. 29, 30, 35.

V. 25. The Altar] Of the holocaustes or burnt offerings.

V. 29. Afflict] With fasts and abstinence from all carnall pleasures, and dispose your selvs by an inward conpunction and repentance for your sins, to obtaine pardon and atonment.

CHAP. XVII. VERSE 3.

That killeth] Though it was for a common use, yet the Lord would have all such bloud, during the journey in the desart, to be poured down at the bottom of the Altar, and the far burned upon it, v. 5, 6. after the comming into Canaan, this Law was restrained only to the beasts which were sacrificed, Deu. 12. 5. 15. 21.

V. 4. Shall be imputed] Hee shall be judged and punished, as a murtherer, for violating my Law in the spilling of bloud, as well as if he had transgressed it by murther; See Isay 66. 2. Shall be cut off] hee shall be put to death, if the thing be known. Or he shall be punished by me if the fact be hidden from men, or if they do not execute justice, See upon Gen. 17. 4.

V. 5. To the end] I will have those sacrifices of thanksgiving, which the people useth to offer to idols here and there in the fields, making thereof their prophane meats, to be cut off by this strict Law, which shall bind them to consecrate all the flesh they eate, to me only: In the open field] to idols in remote, and severall places, sought out by idolaters, to withdraw themselves from the sight of men: For Peace offerings] Whereof they that offer, may eat those parts, which the Lord had not reserved for himselfe, Levit. 39 14. 4.

V. 6 The bloud] The sprinckling of the bloud, and [Page] offering of the fat of this common flesh, had a resemblance to these offerings of thanksgiving: but when such offerings were expresse, and formall, there were other ceremonies, and other parts also reserved for God, Lev. 17. 11.

V. 7 Unto divels] That is to say idols; wherein whether the idolater have such an intent or no, the divell is served under diverse names & resemblances: see Deut. 32. 17. 2 Chron. 11. 15. Psa. 106. 37. 1 Cor. 10. 20. Rev. 9. 20. the Hebrew word signifieth shaggy, or hairy, because the divell appeareth in such ugly shapes to them that serve him: see Isa. 34. 14. A whoring] Spiritually by idolatry: See Ezech. 23. 8. This shall be] Namely to have every sacrifice offered to the true God, and only in the place dedicated to his service, for otherwise the foresaid Law was restrained after the comming into Canaan: see upon v. 3.

V. 10 Set my face] That is to say, I will declare my self to be his adversary, and will persecute him in my wrath, by the hands of men, and by the way of Justice; or by my own judgements.

V. 15 That eateth] That is to say, hath eaten thereof unawares.

V. 16 He shall beare] If he have offended wittingly, and that the fact is known, he shall be punished by the Judges; if it be secret, he is guilty before God; and if he have sinned unawares, yet must he purge himselfe by sinne offering: See upon Levit. 5. 1. and 7. 18.

CHAP. XVIII. VERS. 2.

I Am] As I am your Sovereigne Lord, I command you these things out of absolute authority, and as I am God most holy, I declare unto you that you can have no Communion with me committing these following misdeeds.

V. 5 If a man] According to the first Covenant of God with man, at the first creation, this may be understood of the perfect observing of Gods Law, which had the promise of eternall life annexed: But because man by sin, hath deprived himself of the power of attaining to this perfect obedience, this must be understood of the disciplinary, and externall accomplishment of the Law, which hath also its temporall reward: O [...] according to the Covenant of grace of the new internall, and spirituall obedience, created in the faithfull, by the gift of the holy Ghost, which hath the promises of this, and the future life: 1 Tim. 4. 8.

V. 6 To uncover] To violate with any act, or in any manner, the chastity, or respect due to the bloud.

V 7 Of thy father] These words are spoken to the daughter, and the next words to the son.

V. 8 Thy Fathers wife] Thy mother in Law. It is] Thy father and she, by the vertue of matrimony are all one flesh: and therefore the prohibition of carnall copulation is in the same degree as that of fathers and mothers with their children, and so interchangeably: see Ezech. 22. 10.

V. 9 The daughter] By another wife. Of thy mother] By another husband. She be borne] Either lawfully begotten, or a bastard. According to others it meaneth, sister by the same father and mother, or sister only by the mother.

V. 10 Is thine own] They ought to be to thee as thine own children.

V. 11 Thou shalt not uncover] This verse seemeth to be added for an exposition of the ninth verse, for marrying with the mother in Laws daughter, is forbidden, when both have one and the self same father, but not when they have two fathers.

V. 12 She is] She is in a degree of consanguinity, forbidden by all Laws, and even abhorred by nature it selfe.

V. 14 Thou shalt not approach] This is an expostion of the precedent clause: see upon v. 8 Thine aunt] Neerennesse of affinity hath as much force, to forbid joyning in marriage, in certaine degrees, as the neerennesse of consanguinity.

V. 17 For they are] Between thy wife and them there is the degree of consanguinity descending by a direct line, therefore in the degree of affinity is also forbidden in infinitum.

V. 18 shalt thou take] Such a conjunction is incestuous, verse 16. seeing there is the same reason for the sisters husband, as for the brothers wife: but here is also added the reason of the inconvenience, it being a kinde of confusion, to make two sisters rivals to one another, to produce continuall strifes and jealousies, as an example may be seene in Jacobs marriages, which in those first ages were tolerated. To vex her] The Italian hath it, To be her rivall] The Hebrew word is her adversary, 1. Sam. 1. 6.

V. 21 Molech] An idoll of the Ammonites, which seemeth to be the same as Milcom, 1 Kings. 11. 5. 7. and the Pagans Saturne, in honour of whom the idolaters caused their children to passe through the fire of his sacrifices: either by some manner of expiation and dedication, or by really slaying of them, see 2 Kings 3. 27. Psa. 106. 37, 38. Isa. 57. 5. Neither shalt thou prophane] Let not the glorious title, of being Gods children and people which you beare, bee contaminated by such a commixture of idolatry.

V. 25 Vomiteth out] The Land is over-burthened therewith, as with a thing most abominable, and is no longer able to beare them: see Jer. 9. 19. and 10. 18. Mic. 2. 10.

HE hath prophaned] Breaking the commandement, in the observing of which consisteth all the holinesse of Gods service.

V. 16 As a tale learer] The Italian hath it, Speaking amisse of others] Or spying, and reporting other mens words and actions, or calumniating and maliciously accusing: see Prov 11. 13. *Neither shalt thou s [...]*and] The Italian hath it, Shalt thou arise] That is to say, thou shalt not lay waite for his life, thou shalt not raise any unjust s [...]t, nor beare false witnessse against him.

V. 17 Not suffer sin upon him] The Italian hath it, Do not burthen thy self with sin for him] Take heed lest through too much respect, thou become guilty of want of zeale towards Gods glory, and of charity towards thy neighbours safety.

V. 18 Against the] Not that deeds and ostices of charity ought to be limited and bounded between those of one nation only, but because the accursed people of Canaan, were to be destroyed without mercy: Deut. 7. 16. and also to shew that private revenges are the overthrow of civill society, which is preserved by publick authority, and private good will towards one another.

V. 19 Shalt not sow] Not to confound the order of nature, and likewise to teach man to love sincerity all his life time.

V. 20 A bond maide] For a free maide there was capitall punishment: Deut. 22. 25. Now the difference is grounded upon this, that these conjunctions with bond maides which were not free, were not held for true and entire marriages; in which the quality of freedom is required, aswell to contract them, as for to participate of the husbands estate, according to Gods first institution, and they were really but like concubines, with some sleight kinde of [...]: see Exod. 21. 4. 7, 8.

V. 23 Then shall ye count the fruit thereof as uncircumcised] The Italian hath it, Take away his fore skinne which is his fruit] That is to say, sanctifie it, by beating down the fruit of it, or suffering it to be lost; as you sanctifie your bodies by Circumcision. As uncircumcised] Uncleane.

V. 24 Shall be holy] That is to say, pres [...]ted unto God, and converted to the Priests use, as [...]th [...] [...] fruits: Num. 18. 12. Deut. 18 4.

V. 26 With the bloud] Without having squeezed it well out, let run, and cleansed all the bloud.

V. 27 Not round] It was some custome, or superstitious signe of prophane people: see Jer. 9. 26. and 25. 23. and 49. 32. Or a signe of an immoderate and vitious sadnesse in their mournings, as Levitie. 21. 5. (Note that in these quotations the Italian text hath acording to the Hebrew, having the corners of their haire polled, the English all that are in the uttermost corners.)

V. 28 Cuttings] As idolaters used to do in their mournings, penances, and prayers, 1 Kings 18. 28. Jer. 16. 6.

V. 30 My sanctuary] As being the holy place of my presence amongst you, in grace, and power.

V. 31 That have familiar spirits] The Italian hath it, The spirits of Piton] A kinde of familiar spirits, which spake out of the bellies of those which were possessed with them.

V. 33 Sojourne] As merchants, way-faring men, or mercenaries do, without taking any firme or constant habitation, or becomming proselites, or converts.

V. 34 As one borne] Namely in things that belong to the Law of nature and nations, in offices of justice, equity, and humanity: For otherwise Gods people had diverse priviledges, wherein strangers had no part: Deut. 14. 21. and 15. 3. and 23. 20.

V. 35 Mete-yard] As in measuring of stufes by the yard, or rod, &c. Or in measure] The Italian addeth, Of containing or continence] Of vessels of liquid, or dry things.

CHAP. XX. VERS 3.

I Will set] The Italian, I will also set] Besides the corporall punishment, I will also accurse him in his soule, cutting him off from all communion with my Church. To defile] By intermixing it with prophane idolatry: Lev. 19. 30. To prophane] See upon Lev. 17. 10.

V. 4 Hide their eyes] Cloaks the fact, or is carelesse in punishing it, by a wicked connivence.

V. 5 I will set] As Lev. 17. 10. Go a whoring] By spirituall fornication of idolatry, see Lev. 17. 7.

V. 8 Sanctifie you] All your holinesse consists in fearing, and obeying me, and not in any superstition, or false worship, chosen according to your minde.

V. 9 His bloud shall be upon him] Let him beare the punishment of his capitall misdeed: Ezech 18. 13

V. 11 His Fathers] His mother in Law: see upon Lev. 18. 8

V. 12 Confusion] A forbidden, and abominable mixture of bloud, [...]erting all holy order of Faith in matrimony, of progeny, and honesty: See upon Lev. 18. 23

V. 14 And they] If the misdeed be committed with th [...] knowledge and consent of the woman.

V. 15 The beast] As instrument of that wickednesse, in t [...]ken of detestation, for otherwise the Law is for [...]one but such creatures as are endowed with reason, and will:

[...] Gen. 9. 5. Exo. 21. 28.

V. 20 Be childelesse] Let them be put to death speedily that there may be no execrable issue, of such damnable conjunctions; it being unfitting, that the fruit of holy [Page] matrimony should be common to such abominable commixtures.

CHAP. XXI. VERS. 1.

FOR the dead] Comming into some place, where there is a dead body, touching it, or making ready his grave, eating of the funerall feast or mourning for him; which made one uncleane for seven days, sequestred from common conversation, and set a part from holy things: Num. 6. 6. and 19. 11. 14 16. Deut. 26. 14. Hos. 9. 4. now all this was a figure and document, especially for Pastors of the Church, for to renounce all fleshly inclinations (though they otherwise be blamelesse) to attend without disturbance to Gods service: Lev. 10. 7. Deut. 33. 9.

V. 2. But for his] This is said only for inferior Priests; for all manner of mourning was wholly forbidden the high Priest: v. 10. Kinne that is neere] The Hebrew hath is, His flesh] By which word is signified, the most intimate, and streight consanguinities.

V. 4 A chief man] The Italian hath it, As a husband] For the death of his wife.

V. 6 Shall be holy] Still pure and cleane, that they may alwayes be ready for my service, from which they were hindered by mourning. And not prophane] Not to hold as slight, common, or indifferent, the title which they beare of being Gods Ministers, or the majestie thereof: leaving the service of the living God, to follow that of a dead man: see Mat 8. 22. And the bread] The Italian, The food] See Lev. 3. 11.

V. 7 Or prophane] The Italian hath it, Or defloured] Either forcibly, or consentingly.

V. 8 Thou shalt sanctifie him] The Italian hath it, Them] This is spoken to Moses in this sence: Teach and command them to observe all purity and holinesse. Or concerning the people in this sence: Reverence the sacred office of my Ministers, honour their persons, which represent my sacred Majesty towards thee, to sanctifie thee by my word and Sacraments, which they administer unto thee.

V. 9 She prophaneth] Dishonoureth, and staineth the dignity of his office.

V. 10 Upon whose head] See upon Exo. 40. 15. Lev. 4. 3. and 16. 32. Uncover his head] See Lev. 10. 6.

V. 11 For his father] The high Priests eldest sonne was anointed during his Fathers life, for to serve him as a Deputy, and after his death he immediatly succeeded him, and therefore he could not mourne for his Father, being already consecrated.

V. 12 Neither shall he go out] For this seven dayes pollution: Num. 19. 11. he shall not exclude himself out of the sanctuary where he must do me dayly service: or going into it, let him not pollute it. Of the anointing oile] consecrated by the anointing oile applied to the Priest, having this crown upon his head: Lev. 8. 9. 12.

V. 15 Neither shall he prophane] Through marriages unfitting for his degree, and contrary unto my will. Do sanctifie him] I have conferred this sacred honour and office upon him, which he must therefore preserve in its inviolable purity.

V. 17 Any blemish] Have any defect, deformity, or natural or accidental imperfection.

V. 20 A blemish] Some think that he toucheth specially two impediments of the eyes, when all the humours of the eyes are mingled, and when the christalline humour is become white.

V. 22 Most holy] As were the shew bread, the meat offerings, the parts of sin offerings, and trespasse offering: see Lev. 2. 3. Holy] Such as were the first fruits, tithes, and offerings of thanksgiving.

V. 23 He shall not go] He shall not performe any part of the Priests office, whereof one was to offer sacrifices upon the Altar in the Court; the other was to carry the bloud of them into the holy place before the curtaine, and there burne incense upon the golden Altar. For I the Lord] These holy places are sanctified by my presence, and by the service which therein is performed to me, and therefore none as I dislike, ought to be admitted there, as deficient or maimed persons.

CHAP. XXII. VERS. 2.

SEparate themselves] When they shall be unclean by some ceremonially pollution. Prophane not] That they fail not to bear due reverence unto my most sacred Majesty; which reverence consists in punctually executing of my will.

V. 3 That goeth unto] To eat of them, or to touch them. Cut off.] See upon Gen. 17. 14.

V. 7 His food] His lawful portion, or estate for to maintain him.

V 9 Do sanctify them] I have chosen them, and called them unto an office, the holiness of which dependeth upon my self; and therefore the prophanation thereof is both against my command, and against mine honour, and therefore deserves the greater punishment.

V. 10 Stranger] That is not a Priest. Of the Priests] That sojourns in his house or feedeth at his table, yet is none of his family.

V. 14 With the holy thing] With the value of it.

V. 15 They shall not prophane] Namely the Priests, to whom all this is spoken: v. 2.

V. 24 shall ye make] Gold none your selves, nor do not buy any g [...] It to offer in sacrifice.

V. 29 At your own will] Observing strictly the Law of such sacrifices with all their rites described, Lev. 7. 12. 15. for obedience was that which [...] [...]ices acceptable: 1 Sam. 15. 22.

V. 32 Shall ye prophane] Contemne not my Majesty [Page] by violating of my commandements. Be hallowed] Making my self venerable, and causing my self to be acknowledged holy and inviolable in my Majesty, through my judgements: Lev. 10. 3. Isa. 26. 15. If I have not been so with you through my commandements. Which hallow you] Who having given you a rule by my Law, of all purity and innocency, and the forme of inward holinesse, by my Spirit, will also revenge as a most just, and most holy God, the transgression of the one, and the rejecting of the other.

PROclaime] By the sound of holy Trumpets, sounded by the Priests: Num. 10. 8. My feasts] which I command and accept of, and which are and may be truly dedicated to mine honour and service.

V. 7 No servile] Corporall and painefull, which employes the person, such as masters use to employ their slaves in.

V. 10 Shallreape] As soon as ye shall put the sickle into the corne, which in those Countries was done the day after Easter: Deut. 16. 9.

V. 11 To be accepted] That the Lord having received this homage, and service from you, may receive you you into favour and blesse you in all the rest of your harvest. The Sabbath] That is to say, the feast of Easter, v. 5. for so are called all the feasts which are made holy.

V. 14 Bread] Made of new wheate. Green eares] Which were much used in those places, either raw rubbed out, or parched: see Math. 12. 1.

V. 16 Even unto] Which was the day of Pentecost. A new] That is to say of new bread.

V. 17 Habitations] It seemeth that this ought not to be understood of private houses, but of Cities, Castles, Townes &c. With leaven] See upon Levit. 7. 13.

V. 18 Young bullock] Num. 28. 27. in stead of one bullock and two rammes, there are two bullocks and one ramme, whereby it seemes it was left to free choice of what sort they would offer two.

V. 20 They shall be] Let all these things that are offered for first fruits, be held as food sacred to the Lord, and the parts thereof must be distributed, the fat and kidneyes &c. must be burnt upon the Altar, and the rest must be for the high Priest and his family: Num. 18. 12. no part thereof belonging to the private offerers, as there doth in other sacrifices of thanksgiving.

V. 21 Proclaime] With sound of Trumpet, and publick acclamations, as all other feasts were. Exo. 32. 5 Num. 10. 2. 10

V. 24 Seventh moneth] Which was the beginning of the civill and common yeare: see upon Exod. 12. 2. and therefore it was the solemnest of all the new moones, which were all kept holy. A memoriall] A holy day which shall bring into memory the benefits received from God the yeare before; and also the preparations required for the holy duties which happened that moneth. And a signe of Gods remembering his, in his grace, renewed by new sacrifices and devotions, as by a warning with the sound of Trumpet: see Num. 10. 10.

V. 32 At Even] Which was the end of the ninth day joyning upon the tenth. Now all solemne feasts did take in some part of the precedent day for the preparation: see upon Exo. 12. 6. 18.

V. 34 Of Tabernacles] Bowers or arbours, to stand under at covert: see Neh. 8. 15.

V. 36 On the eighth day] Which was not reckoned with the seven aforesaid, for that day they did not observe the ceremonies of standing under those bowers, but the people went into the Tabernacle, or into the Temple in the City. A solemne] The Hebrew word signifieth an inclosure, restraint or prohibition; so were all the last days of your chief days, that had many called festivall days: Deut. 16. 8. because they closed up the feast, and the people was then kept in holy places, for the celebration of those days, wherein all other work was forbidden.

V. 39 Also in the] Moses comes againe to speak of the Tabernacles, to set down some particular rites and circumstances thereof. The fruit] Of the fields, vineyards, and trees, whose fruits were the last that were gathered.

V. 40 The boughes] The Italian hath, The fruit] The boughes whereon the fruit yet hangeth. Of goodlie trees] The Italian hath it, Of Cedar] So the Jews commonly expound the word, which in their language signifieth a faire and goodly tree. Thicketrees] The Italian hath it, Mirtle tree] The Hebrew word signifieth a thicke tree, but your ancient Jews have especially understood it of the mirtle tree.

CHAP. XXIV. VERS. 3.

OF the testimony] Drawn before the Arke, where the tables of the Law were, which were called the testimony: Exo. 25. 16.

V. 4 The pure] Made of pure gold, and kept exceeding pure.

V. 6 The pure table] Covered over with pure gold: Exo. 25. 24.

V. 7 Pure frankincense] See upon Exod. 30. 34. A memoriall] For that part of the offering which belonged to God, for the remainder was the Priests: see upon Lev. 2. 2.

V. 8 Everlasting covenant] That is to say, by my command, and your own voluntary agreement to obey it.

V. 9 And it shall be] After he hath put new ones there, upon the Sabbath day. Most holy] See upon Lev. 2. 3

V. 11 The name] That singular essentiall and glorious name of everlasting Lord, by which name he had revealed himself to his people by Moses: Exo. 3. 14. [Page]

V. 14 Lay their hands] For a confirmation of their witness. Stone him] The ordinary punishment for blasphemers: Deut. 7. 5. 1 King. 21. 13.

V. 22 For I am] I command you by vertue of the absolute power, which I have over you: and I will have you herein to be imitators of my indifferent Justice, free from all acceptation of persons.

CHAP. XXV. VERS. 2.

VVhen ye come] The beginning of these Sabbaticall yeares, was taken from the six and fourtieth yeare after the peoples comming out of Egypt, the sixth yeare after their comming into the Land of Canaan, when the Land was divided: as it appeareth by Jos. 14. 7. 10. Shall the Land] The Italian hath it, The Land shall have its rest] It shall not be plowed, nor fruit. A Sabbath] Not for any naturall or oeconomically respect, to let the tired Land get strength: but with a holy rest dedicated to my service; for a more expresse document (besides the Sabbath) of the dayes of eternall rest, particular to every faithfull at his death, and afterwards generall at the blessed resurrection; when there shall be a generall enf [...]anchizement of all Gods children, and their new entrance into their heavenly inheritance.

V. 4 For the Lord] Sacred, and religious to him.

V. 5 Undressed] In the Hebrew: Nazaritish, to the resemblance of the Nazarites, who did not cut their haire: Num. 6. 5.

V. 8 Shall be meat] Indifferently for any one as shall come to it upon the place, without laying it up, or making any bundle of it, by way of harvest, or vintage.

V. 9 The seventh] Which was the first of the civill yeare: Exod. 12. 2. Lev. 23. 24. according to whose moneths, they counted the times of politick affaires, to the order of which the Jubile was for the most part referred; though with some instruction for divine and eternall things. The Trumpet] Which was the ordinary signe of festivall dayes: Numb. 10. 10. and 29. 1.

V. 10 Hallow] Distinguish it from all other common yeares, to execute in it those commandements which I enjoyne you; and shall be a sacred signe unto you, of the acceptable yeare of the Lord, under the Messias, Isa. 61. 2. 2 Cor. 6. 2. The fiftieth] Seeing the Jubile was only the revolution of seven weekes of yeares, and that in the verse 20 concerning the Jubile, there is nothing spoken, but onely of the seventh yeare: and that besides, it would have been a hard matter to let Lands lie still for two yeares together, and that the Jewes never reckoned the Jubile, but by the seventh Sabbaticall yeare, we must understand the number of fifty, in that vulgar manner, comprehending the yeare of the precedent Jubile. Since that indeed, from one Jubile to another, there was but nine and fourty yeares. Liberty] Libertie from all slaverie for the Israelites: see Exod. 21. 6. Iubile] This word is by many interpreted to signifie a rammes horne to sound with. But it seemeth that it signifieth rather a consort of many such hornes, trumpets and such like loud-sounding instruments. And it may be that this name was derived from the first Inventaer of Musically instruments, called Jabel: Gen. 4. 21. see Exod. 19. 13. Jos. 6. 4. Possession] Which hath been sold and alienated. Family] From which he is gone away, having sold himselfe for a slave, or being sold by his father: v. 39.

V. 12 Out of the field] And not out of a garner, cellar, or other store-houses: v. 6.

V. 14 Oppresse] Let him not take an occasion by reason of his poverty to dispossesse him of his inheritance.

V. 15 Jubile] Namely the last part. Of the fruits] The Italian hath it, O [...] the rent] That is to say, of the fruits more or lesse, which thou mayest gather out of his Land for the yeares to come out of the next Jubile.

V. 21 For three yeares] That is to say, for the end of the sixth, all the whole seventh, and the eighth untill harvest time: see 2 King. 19. 29. Isa. 37. 30.

V. 22 Of old fruit] Of the sixth yeare: The Italian addeth, Of that harvest.]

V. 23 For ever] The Italian hath it, Absolutely] That is to say, quite cut off without leaving any hope to the seller, ever to redeem it. Is mine] I reserve unto my self the right of property in it, and grant you nothing but the bare use of it, therefore I will not have you alienate it at your pleasure, neither will I suffer you to bargaine for any things, but onely for the fruits: but as for the Land it selfe, it must alwayes remaine as by perpetuall lease unto those persons and families to whom I have given it.

V. 25 Possession] In the fields, for there was another Law for houses in Cities: v. 29. Any of] The Italian hath it, The next of] See Ruth 3. 2. 9. 12. Jer. 32. 7.

V. 27 The over-plus] Of the price of the yeares▪ which are yet to come before the Jubile according to the number of which yeares he had made his sale.

V 32 Of the Cities] Of which see Num. 35. 2. Jos. 21. 4.

V 33 And if a man purchase] The Italian hath, And he amongst the Levites that shall redeem] That is to say, the next of kinne tha [...] hath between Jubile and Jubile, redeemed that house by reason of the kinred. For the houses] Seeing the Levites have no other proper [Page] inheritance, but only their Cities and some places about them: Num. 35. 2. without any Lands or other possessions (because they lived by tithes: Num. 18. 24.) their houses may not be alienated, no more than the Lands of other Israelites.

V. 34 But the field] They were certaine places of a thousand cubites, in the suburbs or places adjoyning to the Levites Cities, for them to keep and feed their cattel in, Num. 35. 4. which being all undivided and lying in common, no particular person had any power to make any bargaine for it, as he might for his house which was his own. Yet it should seem by Jer 32. 7, 8. That this Law was altered in ensuing ages.

V. 35 A stranger] An Israelite, but not of the same place, or some stranger, a proselite converted to Judaisme: for otherwise God suffered them to take use for money lent to strangers either of nation, or in religion: Deut. 23. 20.

V. 38 I am] The benefit which you have freely received at my hands, should invite you, me thinks, to do the like towards your brethren my children, and my Covenant and absolute power which I have over you, doth binde you to it.

V. 39 To serve] Keeping him only as an instrument of his will and profit, without any rigor or constraint by reason of his debt.

V. 40 Unto the yeare] In case that it have pleased him to remaine in thy service after the seventh yeare was past: Exo. 21. 2, 6.

V. 42 My servants] And therefore none can get soveraigne Dominion over them to prejudice mine; and besides, strict bondage is a hinderance to the service of God, 1 Cor. 7. 23.

V. 47 To the slock] That shall be borne in the countrie, yet of a strange nation.

V. 48 He may be] At any time, without being bound to serve the strange master, the six yeares ordained by the Law for an Israelite to serve an Israelite: Exo. 21. 2. Deut 15. 12.

V. 50 Of Iubile] For the longest terme: for whosoever was his master, either stranger or Israelite, the servant might come out in the yeare of remission. But if the price exceeded the valuation of six yeares service, or if he be contented to stay with the strange master after the seventh yeare; but howsoever it happened, at the Jubile he was to be free. To the number] Counting off the price he was bought for; the wages for his service, more or lesse, according to the number of yeares that he had served.

V 54 In these yeares] The Italian hath it, By any of these meane [...] Either by his service, or by the help of some kinsman, or by his own ransoming, of himselfe.

CHAP. XXVI. VERS. 2:

MY sanctuary] My self, who dwell there, in the signes and demonstration of my presence and power: see Lev. 19. 30.

V. 5 Shall reach] By reason of the great plenty.

V. 10 Old store] Of provisions layd up in the former yeares, which you have had no occasion to empty, but only for to make roome for the new.

V. 11 My Tabernacle] For an everlasting pledge of my presence in grace and power.

V. 13 Upright] A phrase taken from beasts, lightened of their yoke, to signifie liberty, mirth, and glory: Exo. 14. 8. Num. 33. 3.

V. 19 As Iron] The heaven shall not raine, nor the earth bring forth, no more than if each of them were massie and hard, like unto these mettals.

V. 20 Shall be spent] With tilling of the ground.

V. 21 Contrary] That is to say, as if you undertook to contend and resist me: Job 15. 25.

V. 24 Then wil [...] I also] Psa. 18. 27.

V. 26 When I have broken] When I have taken from you all meanes of living, by ordinary sustenance of food; either taking away the vertue of it by my curse, or causing you to want, through dearth, or barrenness of the earth. By weight] As a rare and precious thing whereof account must be taken, and the distribution thereof made with rigor, and great exactness: Ezech. 4. 16.

V. 30 High places] Sides of hills, or hillocks, or other places, high by art or nature, and dedicated to idolatry. Images] The Hebrew word signifieth certaine idols of the Sun, or according to others, certaine little cell [...]s or courts dedicated unto him, wherein there was a continuall fire preserved upon an Altar. An idolatry which questionlesse came from the Chaldeans or Persians.

Carkeises] Stumpes and shifers of idols cast down: Jer. 16. 18. Ezech. 4. 3. 7. 9.

V. 31 Will not smell] Will not accept of your sacrifices: see upon Gen 8. 21.

V. 32 Which dwell therein] After you shall be driven out of it.

V. 34 Enjoy] Being weary of bearing you, and to bring forth food for such a perverse nation: it shall then in a manner recreate it self, finding it selfe disburthened, and at leisure to take her own pleasure, being without inhabitants: see Lam. 1. 7.

V. 35 Because it] These long vacancies of the earth, shall be in exchange of the labour it hath endured in bearing and nourishing of you: being not suffered to enjoy so much as the rest of every seventh yeare, according to my Law: Lev. 25. 3.

V. 39 Pine away] Forsake their hardnesse of heart▪ and humble themselves with teares, and repentance.

V. 41 Uncircumcised] Impure, carnall, prophane, not regenerate by Gods spirit, whereof Circumcision was [Page] a Sacrament: Deut. 10. 16. Jer. 4. 4. and 9. 26. Ezech 44. 7. Acts 7. 51. Accept] The Italian, With a good will acknowledge &c.] Others if they willingly accept the punishment of their sin.

V. 42 The Land] Chosen and consecrated by me, for the seat of my abode amongst men, for the abode of my Church, and a signification of heaven to mine elect.

CHAP. XXVII. VERS. 2.

The person] The Italian hath it, When he hath made a vow [...] f persons to the Lord] There were two kindes of these vowes of persons, the one to a particular holinesse, such was that of the Nazarites, wherein there was no way for ransome, but he was to fulfill it in his own person: Num 6. 2. the other to the service of God in his Temple, to which God admitting none but the Levites, the vow might be ransomed, which is the meaning of these words, a vow under estimation. By thy] The Italian hath it, Under thy] The taxe of which ransome thou Moses by this my Law oughtest to leave to the Priest.

V. 3 The shekel of] see upon Exo. 30. 13.

V. 9 Giveth] Consecrateth unto God by his vow. Shall be holy] Offered to God in sacrifice, according to the Law: Lev. 7. 16.

V. 12 Value it] To be set to sale, for the price which thou hast set upon it.

V. 13 Redeem it] Keep it for himselfe, for a certaine price, which notwithstanding shewed a certaine kinde of lightnesse in the vow and consecration which he had made of it, whereupon also, the estimation is raised a fifth part.

V. 14 To be] That the price of it may be carried into the treasure of the Temple from whence were taken out the ordinary charges belonging to the service of God.

V. 16 Of his possession] The Italian hath it, Of his inheritance] That is to say of his own patrimony, which is contrary to purchased fields, v. 22. Omer] A name of a measure which contained ten Ephahs: Ezech. 45. 1 [...]. Of barley] He specifieth this kind to signifie the Lands of least value, whereupon they sowed barley, and to shew the proportion which was to be kept, in the estimation of wheat Lands which were more fat and fruitfull.

V. 17 It shall stand] Without alteration, or diminution.

V. 18 After the Jubile] Some yeares after. Shall reckon] Those Lands which were so consecrated, might be redeemed by him that had made the vow, or if they were not redeemed, they were sold to others, who were to enjoy the fruits of them untill the next Jubile; and then they were the high Priests own: and therefore it is ordained, that the rate of fifty shekels should be abated according to the number of yeares more or lesse, that remained untill the yeare of Jubile.

V. 20 He will not] When it is set to sale publikely.

V. 21 Devoted] See upon v. 28. and Num. 18. 14.

V. 23 In that day] The same day that he shall enter into possession.

V. 24. Unto him] To him that made the vow, by which he could not give, but onely what was belonging to himself, namely the fruits; not the Land, in the which the seller had the right of ransoming, and to'be restored unto it at the Jubile: Levitic. 25. 15. 23, 24. 30.

V. 26 Shall sanctifie it] By a voluntary vow, because of necessity and by right, it is the Lords already.

V. 28 Devoted thing] It was a kind of vow, by [...] which man for ever renounced his right and use of the [...] thing vowed, which by vertue of this vow was to be destroyed to Gods honour, and in execution of his justice, if mention were of things belonging to Gods enemies overcome in War, of their Cities or goods▪ Num. 21 2, 3. Jos. 6. 17. 1 Sam. 15 3. Or belonging to rebels and apostata's: Deut. 13. 15. Or it was consecrated to holy uses, as for sacrifices, if the vow were of cleane cattel belonging to private persons: or for the high Priests maintenance if it were of Land, or uncleane beasts which were not fitting for sacrifices: Num. 18. 14. Most holy] See upon Lev. 2. 3.

V. 29 Of men] Some referre this onely to the persons of accursed natio<sup>o</sup>s, whose destruction ordained by God was to his glo [...]y, as an execution of his Justice; Others hold that the Law was generall for all persons in which he that made the vow had any right; and hereunto they do referre J [...]phtas vow, Judg [...]. 30. 34.

V. 30 Holy] See Lev. 21. 22.

V. 32 Passeth] By this is meant, cattel of one herd or flock, which going out at a narrow gate were told by the shepheard with a rod one by one: see Jer. 33. 13.

THE ARGVMENT.

THis Booke containeth the continuation of the history of Gods people leading through the desert, for the space of eight and thirty yeares and nine moneths. And fist is set down how by God [...] command, the eleven Tribes which were not consecrated were numbred from twenty years of age upward, and the Tribe of Levi by it selfe; together with the order which they were to observe in their marching and encamping in the said voyage. Then is set down the new forme of publick government established, by adding of seventy Elders to Moses; whose authority neverthelesse, the Lord still maintained untouched, no withstanding Aurons and Miriams opposition, as Aurons priestly dignity against the vi [...]l [...]nt faction of Core, Dathan and Ab [...]ram. And afterwards is rehearsed, how that the people being come upon the confines of the land of Canaan, Moses sent twelve men to discover the Country, ten of which at their returne daunted the people, maliciously making the difficulty of the enterprise, farre greater than it was: And though Ioshua and Caleb did endeavour to encourage them, yet they beleevd the others relations and made an insurrection, wi [...]h an intent to returne into Egypt. Wherefore both the people▪ and the spies were austerely punished by the Lord who pronounced the sentence of death in the desert, against all those which were numbred and came out of Egypt, save Ioshua and Caleb. And therefore God caused the people to turn back into the desert, where he made them to wander up and down for the said space of eight and thirty yeares during which time he gave them and renewed diverse Laws, concerning his service, and politick government, and justice. And after forty years were expired since their comming out of Egypt, he brought them again to the confines of the land of Canaan, where he gave them many great victories, against the Kings and inhabitants of Canaan, and the Amorites, which dwelt beyond Iordan: although the people did here also go astray after diverse abominable idolatries, by Balaams d [...]ceitfull advice, and after that Countrey beyond Iord in was subdued, it was divided amongst two Tribes and a halfe, and it was appointed how they should proceed in the division of the rest beyond Iordan. And in the mean time God co [...]ded that the people should be numbred again, which were found almost as many as they were in the last muster, whereof non [...] [...] left alive, bu [...] Moses, Ioshu and Caleb. And because this Book begins with the first mustering, and ends with the last, it was called by the Greeks, the Book of Numbers.

CHAP. I. VERS. 2.

Take ye] This is the same Muster which was mentioned, Exo. 38. 26. as it may appear by the comparing of that place, with Num. 1. v. 46. Families] h [...] peopl [...] in generall was divided into twelve Tribes, and the tribes into seventy two great Families, Num. 26. 5. and these families into lesser families called of the Fathers, or belonging to the fathers, because every one of them bare the name of the head of the branch, See Josh. 7. 14, 17.

V. 3. All that are able] who by any defect or d [...]bility of members, Deut. 23. 1. or by reason of old age, are not unfitting or unable to beare annes.

V. 14. Devel] or Revel, as it is Num. 2. 14.

V. 16. These were] They that represented the whole body of their tribes, in the great assembly of the councell of all the people; and it is likely they were the first borne of the tribes, others expound it, famous and honorable [...] See Num. 16. 2.

V. 47. After] Because that it being of it selfe one of the [...]ibes, they might be numbred as the rest in then order.

V 49 Shalt not numler] Not at this time, because this muster was made, to set the campe in order for service of war, and [...] to pay the halfe the s [...]kel [...], Exo. 30. 13. where with the Tabernacle was to be built, where those Levites did minister, and therefore it is likely they were not comprehended within the command of [...]ans [...]me, but afterwards they were mastered and numbred, Num. 3. and 4. and 26. 57 1 Chr. 6. and 21. 6.

V. 50. Of testimony] Set up chiefly for to put the Arke of the Covenant in it, in which were the Tables of the Law, which was called the Testimony, Exod. 16. 34. Minister unto it] to set it up, take it down, Keep it, &c. And after that these kinds of services were [...], [...]y reason of their settling in the land of Canaan, David did assigne unto the Levites, other standing services to do, in stead of these walking services, 1 Chron 23. 26.

V. 51. The stranger] That is not a Levite, [...] commeth nigh] to performe any of these kind of services, or to [...]ouch any of th [...] holy things.

V. 53. That there be no] That the Levites standing in the places appointed for them, neere the Tabernacle, may hinder the people, from [...]usly and prophanely comming neere un [...]o [...]t, or touching it: whereby they might be grievously punished.

CHAP. II. VERS. 2.

STandard] All the whole army of the people were divi [...]ed into foure generall standards, under each of which, here were three tribes, and every great family o [...] family of fathers, had its particular ensigne.

V. 14. R [...]] Called Devel also, Num. 1. 14.

V. 17. With the Campe] That is to say, the Tribe of Levi, which was encamped round about the Tabernacle, and marched close about it, being encompassed by the other Tribes.

CHAP. III. VERS. 1.

ANd Moses] Seeing that here is no mention at all made of Moses his children, it is very likely, that by generations here; are understood, and meant the successors in the office of Priesthood, which being joyntl [...] executed by Moses and Aaron, Psalme 99. 6. was afterwards exercised by the sonnes of Aaron [...]ne.

V. 3. He consecrated] Hebrew, whose hands were filled, see upon Exo. 28. 41.

V. 4. In the sight] Whilist he was alive, being under his government, see Gen. 11. 28.

V. 7. He charge] Hebrew, observe his observing, that is to say, they shall be the hands, and helpers of Aaron, in the inferior places, of the service of Gods house, and shjall represent the whole people in the ministtry, performed in their name, which before was performe [...] by all the first borne indifferently, Exo. 19. 22 and 24. 5. N [...]. 16. but now in stead of them, I [...] chosen the Levites: The service] See upon, Num. 1. 50.

V 9. Given] Appointed and assigned for perpetuall ministers, and help [...]s in sacred ceremonies.

V. 10. Stranger] Whosoever is not of Aarons stocke, which only is con [...]ed by mine anointment and calling: Wher [...] by is signified that God hath in abom [...]ation, al [...]h [...]r satisfaction and intercession be [...] Christs, who is only called by God to the everlasting Priesthood, [...]n [...] hath alone received the ful [...]sse of [...]ts through [...], Heb. 5. 4, 5.

V. 12 In head] See Ex. 13. 12.

V. 13. I am] An ordinary addition to the most imp [...]rt [...]nt, [...]nd w [...]ghty commancements, for to increase the w [...]g [...] o [...] t [...]m, and to bind the [...]irmlier to the performance of them.

V. 15. Number] This fust setting down of the Levises [Page] from a month old, was different from the other, Num. 4. 3. from the age of thirty years upwards. In the first they were mustred as consecrated to Gods service from the beginning; in the second as actually serving in an age, which was fitting by strength of body and maturity of judgement. And the first was deferred untill a month after their birth, because that before that time the mother was unclean, and was not purified untill the end of forty dayes, Lev. 12. 4. Luk. 2. 22. See Num. 18. 16. See another numbring from the age of three years, 2 Chr. 31. 16.

V. 26. The cords of it] To pitch the Tabernacle, or stretch it out, Exo. 35. 18.

V. 28. Keeping] Which were destinated even from their birth, to do it when their time was come: Of the Sanctuary] to looke to it, to carry it, and to set up all the parts and ornaments of it, which are set down in the v. 31.

V. 39. Twenty and two thousand] The three particular summes, set down before, came to two and twenty thousand three hundred. Now the three hundred are here left out in the generall summe, not only to make a round number, because they might have been set down for the two hundred seventy three first borne, which were over and above the Levites, v 46. But it should seem that these three hundred were the first born of the Levites themselves, who as such, did already belong to God, wherfore they could not be set down in stead of other first borne.

V. 47. By the polle] It is not set down which of the first born should be ransomed with money, and which should be ransomed by exchange of Levites, peradventure there were lots cast for it, or the money was taken up in generall upon all the first borne.

V. 49. Them that were redeemed] Of them in whose roome by equall number the Levites were taken, and consecrated to do Gods service.

CHAP. IIII. VERS 3.

That enter] The Italian hath it, That can enter] that are not hindered by some naturall impediment or defect, Lev. 21. 17. which are not unable to perform these laboursome services, which ability was also observed in the other tribes, which were mustered for the use of war, Num. 1. 3. Into the h [...]st] the It. [...]an hath it, Into office] th [...] Hebrew is war or military profession, for this great number of ministring officers, were distributed into severall troops or squaorons, to do service by turns, in order, under their particular heads, as in war. The work] the corporall and laborious service, of carrying these sacred things upon their shoulders, [...]urin [...] the voyage in the wilderness.

V. 4. Most holy] The Arke the Table, the Altars and the C [...]l, with all things belonging to them, w [...]h things were the most sacred instruments of Go [...] service.

V. 7. Of shewbread] See upon Exo 25 36.

V. 11 The golden Altar] It was the Altar of incense which was all covered with gold, Exo. 30. 1, 3.

V. 13. From the Altar] Of hol [...]sts or burnt offerings.

V. 15. To beare it] This was only used in the wildernesse, for after the number of priests was increased, when the Arke was to be carried, the priests carried it themselves, Deu. 31. 9. Jos. 3. 6. and 6. 6. 1 King. 2. 26. and 8. 3. though peradventure that was not continually, 1 Chro. 15.

255 Any holy thing] The Italian hath it, The Sanctuary] before it be covered and wrapped up, see the 2 Sam. 6. 6.

V. 16. To the office] The Italian hath it, The charge] Let him not give these things to the Levites to carry, as the rest of the holy things, but let him always have them in his own keeping: Daily meat offering] the Italian hath it, The continuall offering] which was the meat offering, which stood continually ready for the morning and evening sacrifice [...] which was never intermitted, although the campe marched, see upon Exo. 29. 40. And the oversight] the Italian hath it, Besides the oversight] having besides all this, the government of all this conduct and carriage of the Tabernacle by the C [...]atites.

V. 18. Cut ye not] The Italian hath, Do not so that it may be cut off] do you priests looke, lest the Chehatites do transgresse this my commandement through your neglect, through either curiosity or rashnesse by looking upon, or touching the thing belonging to the Sanctuary, but cover and wrap them up very carefully, for feare least I punish it severely, 1 Sam 6. 19.

V. 26. Os their service] The Italian hath it, And let them serve for all, &c] to set up, and stretch out, to take down, fold up, carry and accompany.

V. 32. By [...]ame] Piece by piece, severally, upon accompt.

CHAP. V. VERS. 2.

AN issue] Of their genitall seed comming from them, and under this infirmity in men is comprehended also the womens infirmity, of extraordinary issues of bloud.

V. 6. That men commit] Which are frequent among men, see of these kinds of sins, Lev. 6. 2. Against the Lord] See Lev. 6. 2.

V. 7 Then they shall confesse] The Italian hath it, If he confesse If voluntarily, or through inward conpunction publikely declareth, he to the priest, that he is guilty of such a sin: See upon Lev. 5. 5. and Lev 6. 4.

V. 8. The m [...]n] To whom the wrong hath beene done: Have no] If he be dead and there be no neere kinsman left to inherit his rights. Others construe it, i [...] there be no body to demand the thing, or unto whom it may be restored; [...]f the man hath stoln it, not knowing whose it was. Now this is a supply of the Law given, Lev. 6. [Page] 2. to which end it seemeth that it is here repeated, To the Priest] as Gods minister, and who representeth God in such businesses.

V. 9. Every offering] The Italian hath it, Every heave offering] see upon Exo. 29. 24, 28. They bring] for to offer them unto the Lord.

V. 10. Hallowed things] The meaning is, that every Priest shall have for himself, and for his family, that which he himself offereth, and in the course of his service, of all voluntary and extraordinary offerings, but not of the commanded and generall ones, as of the first fruits and tithes.

V. 13. No witnesse] Because that a proved adultery was to be punished by death, Lev 20. 10. Deut. 22. 22. now it seemeth that all this is to be understood, in case the woman denieth it, and submits her self to this fearfull triall.

V. 15. For her] Because that none were to present themselves before God empty, the man therefore desiring a prooffe of his wives innocency, there was an offering required; Oyle] oyle and incense being alway joyned with meat offerings, Lev. 2 1. the oile signifying Gods mercy towards the sinner; and the incense, the prayer of faith, and a good conscience acceptable unto God. But in this offering of jealousie, there was no prayer for pardon, but an imprecation of revenge, and punishment: No sweet savour of a good conscience truly manifested, but an evill one of a sinister report; see upon Lev. 5. 11. Of memoriall] by which the remembrance of the misdeed, is in a manner awakened before God, to incite him to punishment.

V. 16. Before] In the court of the Sanctuary, with her face turned towards the sanctuary.

V. 17. Water] Out of the laver, Exo. 30. 18. or of the water of separation, Num. 19. 9. Earthen] for such vessels were employed in diverse purifications, Lev. 4. 5. 50. Dust] to signifie that the woman appearing in judgement in a place sanctified by Gods prosen [...], should find the effect of it to her condemnation, in case she did rashly deny a thing which she had indeed committed before God.

V. 18. Uncover] In signe that she presented her self before God, to whom all things were manifest, Heb 4 13. and also in signe of a good conscience, which that woman professed to have, Put] because that all this ceremony was performed in the behalfe of the womans innocency, which she professed, it was fitting that she her self should call God to witnesse of it, and to be her defence: Bitter] either because the water was indeed so in taste, through the mixture of the dust, and other ingredients, as the Jewish opinions, or that it is only termed so by reason of its dolefull effects, upon the woman if she prove guilty; Caused] which by a secret & supernaturall power shewed by God in the use of it, shall bring forth a manifest effect of his vengeance and curse, in case the woman be faulty, who hath undergone the same by an oath of execration.

V. 21. Make thee] Execute upon thee an exemplary judgement, to make thy person, thine offence and thy memory execrable to the whole Church Thy thigh] the naturall parts dedicated to generation. And it seemeth that therby is meant the disease of the falling of the matrice, by a total loosening of the ligaments, or by the putrefaction of the substance, whereby it groweth incurable and the woman barren: So the punishment lighteth properly upon the organs or instruments of the sin.

V. 24. And b [...]c [...]me bitter] the Italian hath it, by the bitter water] by being no common water, but a signe & mears ordained by God, to s [...]ale up by a dolefull effect, the truth of the denied act, and his justice, which was called upon.

V. 25. Shall take] Before he give the woman this water to drink; Shall wave] see upon Exo. 29 24.

V. 26. The memoriall] See upon Lev. 2. 2.

V. 31. Guilt'esse] For his lightnes & unjust suspitions; so that the presumptions were powerful, & the signes pregnant; & acknowledged for such by the high priest though the woma<sup>n</sup> had not sinned. So the Lord by pardoning of some humane weaknesse, hath pres [...]ved the faith and peace of matrimony, either by the manifestation of the womans unchastity, or by [...]eing her from the violent passion of her husbands jealousie, which are two evils, that break matrimo [...]al society, Her iniquity] through the punishment described, v. 27. sent by God the punisher of secret [...]ns, suth as this womans fault was, and it is not likely that she was any further subject to the judges ordinary punishment.

CHAP. VI. VERS. 2.

O [...] a Nazarite] The Hebrew word signifieth severed or abstinent. Now under the Law there were diverse religious abstinences, either by vow or otherwise, as from the pleasures of eating and drinking, from the company of women, from common conversation, and from many other indifferent things: for a helpe to meditation, prayer, mortification and internall sanctification, Exodus 19. 15. 1 Samuel 21. 4. Jeremy 36. 5. Zac. 7. 4. but the Nazarites abstinence, had a certain kind of solemn and publick profession, and a longer lastingnesse and stricter rules of notable purity, see Lam. 4. 7. And of these Nazaritical abstinences there were two sorts, the one was perpetual for ones whole life, Jud 13. 5. & 16. 17. 1 Sam. 1. 11. Luk. 1. 15. the other was but only for a time, and that is mentioned in this chapter.

V. 3. From wine] As well for the greater mortification of the flesh, as for to avoid all accidents of having his senses troubled by wine, whereby some unadvisednesse may happen in the observance of the rules▪ as Lev. 10. 8. Strong drink] All manner of artificial drink made of any thing save grapes, and was apt to make one drunk.

V. 5. Holy] That is to say, inviolable, upon whom no [Page] [...]n ought to lay his hands, to take any thing from him; as those things were which were cons [...]cra [...]d to God. A figure of Christs perfect holinesse, who [...] [...] Nazarite of the Lord, Matth. 2. 23. and also of he vow of entire

V. 6 He shall come at no] Which did Cerimonially pollute a man, Numb. 19 11. and therefore was unsusserable to the prof [...]ssion of the Nazarites puritie.

V. 7 The consecration] The Italian hath it, The Nazarite-ship] as he beareth in his haire. the mark of his [...]nsecration to God; so he ought to beware from violating of it, either ceremonially, or inwardly in spirit.

V. 9 The head] The profession of a Nazarite, whereof he carrieth the [...] in the haire of his head. Of his] which cleansing was commanded all them, who were polluted by comming neere unto a dead carkasse, Numbers 19. 14, 19
S [...] hee shave it] To beginne againe the whole time [...] his Nazarite-ship.

V. 11. He sinned] That is to say, he shall offer, though he be unadvisedly fallen into that legall pollution, incompatible with his consecration: See upon Lev. 5. 2. A figure of the inavitable sinnes of the spirituall Nazarites; for which there is alwayes a remedy; namely the bloud of Christ, upon whom is also layd the bond of new beginning, the course of their sanctification. Shall hallow] shall renew his vow, and his profession of Nazarite, for so long a time as he had vowed at first, without reckoning the time before his casual pollution.

V. 13: Be brought] The Italian hath, Let him bring it] That is to say, let him come with his locks, the token of his Nazarite-ship, to the Tabernacle, and there cut them off, v. 18.

V. 14 For a burnt offering] A kind of an expiatory Sacrifice for all the sinnes of the person, as the sinne-offering was for the sin of action. And thereby is signified, that in every exercise of holinesse, which the faithfull doe use, there are alwayes two defect [...], [...] one in the person, the other in the action, which have alwayes need of purging, and of Christs intercession Ex [...]. 28. 38. And so ought every faithfull man give thanks unto God for his sp [...]ll gifts.

V. 15 And their meat-offering, and their thank offrings] They were c [...]r [...]ain [...] additions of Flower, Wine, and Oyle, to the sacrifices of Beasts. See Exo. 29. 40.

V. 18 Of his] Upon which he [...] hath let his hairegrow, according to the Law of the Nazarite-ship.

V. 19 And shall put them] Because that this sacrifice was for a persin consecrated by vow: there are many such like ceremonies in the sacrifice of the consecration of Priests.

Ex. 29. 24.

V. 20 Wave them] See upon Exod. 29. 24. May drinke] He shall be absolved from his vow, and may returne to the ordinary manner of living, like other men.

V. 21 Hath vowed] Namely, the Nazarite, during the time of his Nazarite-ship, shall offer two kinds of offerings; the one commanded, and necessary, annexed by the law of God, to the Law of the Nazarite-ship; the other of a voluntary devotion, according to his power.

V. 23 Ye [...] shall blesse] publikely and solemnly. Lev. 9. 22.

V. 25 Make] That is to say, shew thee his grace by effects.

V. 26 List up] A signe of grace, and good will, as contrariwise the turning of his face away, was a token of wrath and hatred. See Psal. 4. 6.

V. 27 Shall put] By their prayer and blessing, pointed out by the stretching forth, and laying on of their hands, may they draw on, and keep the presence of my grace, power and spirit in the midst of my people.

CHAP. VII. VERS. 3.

COvered] Made after the fashion of horse-litters, or coaches with arched covers,

V. 5 The service] To help in part to supply the want of carriage of the things belonging to the Tabernacle; for otherwise six such waggons could not suffice for all.

According to his] according to those parts which were left to the conduct and looking to of the two families of the Gershonites and the Merarites, Num. 4 24. 31.

V. 7 Two] Moses divided these waggons according to the proportion of the greater weight and bigneste of those things, which were committed to the Merarites charge, Numbers ch: 4. v. 3. And the lesser weight which the Gershonites had, Numbers chap. 4 v. [...]4.

V. 9 Upon their] Without the help of any waggon, Numbers 4. 6, 8, 10, 12, 14. 2 Samuel 6. 6. 13.

V. 10 For dedicating] This was a holy Ceremony [Page] which was done with prayers, Sacrifices, Musicke, Feasts, and Rejoycings, when any Fabricke, being finished, was to begin to be employed to its uses, either holy, or ordinary, to dedicate it first to God, and draw his blessing upon it. See Deuteronomy, chapter 20. verse 5. 1 Kings chapt. 8. verse 63. Ezr. chapter 6. verse 16. Neh. ch. 12. v. 27. Psal. 30. v. 1.

V. 89 When Moses] After Aaron the Tabernacle and the Altar were consecrated, when Moses enquired of the Lord within the Tabernacle, without the Curtaine, God spake unto him with a distinct voyce, which did not proceed from, nor was not framed by the Organs of any body, assumed for a time, nor in diverse places, as he did before, but alwayes from above the Arke, by a voice divinely framed, according to his promise made in the five and twentieth chapter of Exodus, and the two and twentieth verse. See upon Exodus. chap. 40. vers. 34, 35. Hee spake] Moses to GOD: Others have it, and so hee spake unto him; namely, GOD to Moses.

CHAP. VIII. VERS. 4.

The shaft] By the shaft is vnderstood, or meant, not onely the chiefe middle stock, but also all the branches, divided with their vessels, and knabs to the flower of Gold, beaten out with the hammer.

V. 6. Cleanse them] From all exterior and ceremonniall uncleannesse: Exodus chapter 19. vers. 10, 15. that they may be imployed in the service of the Tabernacle: Numbers 4. A figure of the spirituall purification of all Gods true Ministers, yea of all the faithfull; Isaiah, chapter 52. verse 11. 1 Thessalonians, chap. 4. verse 4. 2 Timoth. chap. 2. verse 21.

V. 10. Shall put] That is to say, lift up, and stretch forth their hands towards them, wherein the people imitated that which was done in sacrifices, where the person that offered, layd his hands upon the offering, as well to dedicate it to God, as for to transferre the punishment of death upon it, to which the person himselfe was subject: so the people consenting to the consecration of the Levites, did disburthen themselves from doing the service of God: which otherwise every one was bound to yield unto him their owne proper persons.

V. 11. An offering] The Italian hath it, A wave offering] in the manner of the ordinary offerings, which were so shifted out of one hand into the other. See the nine and twentieth chapter of Exod. and the four and twentieth verse. The Levites also were presented unto the Lord by making them turne themselves towards the fore parts of heaven.

V. 12 Lay their] An ordinary ceremony in sacrifices. See upon Exodus 29. 16. 19. Lev. 1. 4. and 3. 2. and 4. 4. Of the Bullocks] here and elsewhere, the burnt Offering is for the expiation of the sinnes of the person corrupt in his owne nature, and the sinne offering, for the actuall sinnes. See Exodus, chapt. 19. vers. 14. 18. Numbers 6. 14.

V. 13. Shalt set] After Aaron hath presented them unto God, doe thou Moses offer them to him, giving them for perpetuall assistants, and underministers to his Priests: as in many offerings, that which was not consumed by fire, did irrevocably belong unto God, being possessed by his Priest. See Nu. 3. 6. 9.

V. 16. Wholly given] The Hebrew, gifts, or presents given, purchased to be my proper, and perpetuall servants, dedicated unto me by their owne and all the peoples consent.

V. 19 The service] To which they should otherwise be tyed in their owne persons. See upon the third Chapter of Numbers, and the seventh verse. And to make] That my service, beeing done by them, which are persons consecrated by mee, bee lovingly accepted, and I not moved to revenge the contempt of my glory, upon the people, if they had pressed upon it rashly, or unreverently.

V. 22 Before Aaron] Under their direction and command.

V. 24 Twenty and five] Numbers, chapt. 4. vers. 3. 47. The age of the Levites, that they should begin to serve at, is set downe at thirty yeares. This difference may be composed; first, because here it is spoken of any kind of service; in the other place for to carry the sacred Ornaments; and here the Levites goe onely in service: from which may be inferred, that for the space of five yeares they should stay in the function under some discipline, in that other passage, they are admitted to the compleat Ministry.

V. 25. Shall serve no more] Of an ordinary service, and constant; and for obligation and necessity in the workes and actions of labour.

V. 26 Shall minister] The Italian hath it, To serve] Helpe them in small services, and in counsaile and direction.

CHAP. IX. VERS. 6.

They cou'd not keep] Although there should bee no expres law which should exclude such persons from the Passeover, neverthelesse this was a publike scruple, builded upon that, that God in any religious and [Page] sacred acts required purity in the person, which wrought or participited. See 2 Chron. 3 [...]. 18. Came before] Because the custome of the Law. Num. 5. 2. to put such persons out of the camp, was not yet introduced.

V. 7 To offer] See upon Exod. 12. 27.

V. 1P Of a dead] Under this kind of ceremoniall immunity, it seemeth one should include all the other, for which they were to bee separate from the Num. 5. 2. or shut up in their houses, Lev. 12. 2. and 15. 19. or sequestred from the conversation and approach of other men, Lev 11 24.

V. 11 Bitter herbes] The Italian hath it, wild Lettute] See upon Exod. 12. 8.

V. 13. Cut off] See upon Gen. 17. 14.

V. 14 A stranger] th [...] hath been circumcised, and incorporated into the Church by voluntary profession of the R [...]li [...]ion, Exod. 12. 48.

[...]. l. v. 16. 2.

V. 19 Kept] Which requiring some time, in setting up the Tabernacle, and making ready the deckings thereof, could not be performed marching.

CHAP. X. VERS. 5.

AN alarm] The Italian hath it, a shrill sound] as when they [...]ound alarm, or for joy.

V. 7 You shall not] Bee with an out-stretched and even sound, such as they use at any publike Proclamations. See upon Exod. 19. 13.

V. 9 Be remembred] A humane kind of phrase, as if the Lord were awakned and warned by this sound, to signifie unto us that the sacred signes which were appoynted by him, and were lawfully used, were alwayes accompanied with the effect of his grace, in the power of his promise and appoyntment. And besides that the prayer of faith, figured by this sound, is the onely meanes to draw on his assistance.

V. 11 Second yeare] After the comming out of Egypt.

V. 13 According to] Concerning the order which should be observed therein, Num. 2 and at the sound of the Trumpets.

V. 14 Of the camp] This was the squadron of the three Tribes, which marched under Judah's Sandard, as the ensuing word of Armies is taken for the squadron.

V. 21 Os each Tribe] Bearing upon their shoulders, according as they were commanded, N [...]. 4. 4. 7. The other] Namely, the Gershonites, and Merarites, Nu. 1. 51.

V. 28 The joueneyings] The order which they observed in removing the Campe in the Wildernesse.

V. 29. Hobab] This same name is found Judg. 4. 11. and some doe judge that to be the same Jethro which after returned to his Countrey, Exo. 18. 27. should come againe to find Moses encamped in the wildernesse, which was neare to the Countrey of Madian, and that he should also perswade himselfe to stay with the people, together with his family; the progeny of which was after propagated amongst the people of Israel, Judg. 1. 16. and 4. 11. 1 Sam. 15. 6. Others do believe, that this Hobag should be the sonne of Jethro, and brother to Zippora; and that here, and Judg. 4. 11 the Hebrew word of Father in Law, may be understood also for his brother in law; and that Raguel, was as second name of Jethro: as Exo. 2. 18.

V. 31 Knowest] As Midianites neere to those deserts, in the which those people did conduct to pasture their owne flocks, and oftentimes also did travail further. see Gen. 37. 28. Ex. 3, 1 Of eyes] of guid, and of counsaile in certain particularities, and circumstances; those that God shall not have revealed unto me; because otherwise the generall guide was the pillar of the cloud.

V. 33. Of the Lord] See above Exo. 3. 1. Three dayes journey] Without encamping or pitching their Tents; but it is likely that they did take some rest in the night, and in the houres of eating. Before them] Not that he should goe in the head of the Army, as it is apparent from v. 21. But because the Lord through the cloud which did rest upon the Ark, did give to all the Camp the signe of moving themselves, or resting themselves; like Generall Captain of the Army: To search out a resting place] The Iral. hath it, For to search diligently] A warlike speech, where the runners doe search diligently the Countrey for the Army which followes them: so that to walke, and lodge securely, and commodiously: So from the top of the cloud God did chuse convenient places and wayes, Ezech. 20. 6.

V. 34 By day] And by night in a pillar of fire, Exod. 13. 21. Deut. 1. 33.

V. 6 Return] The Italian, Reconductest] a Warlike word, when after winning of the battaile, the Captaine causeth a sound, to assemble the souldiers together, and doth reconduct his men in rest and security.

CHAP. XI. VERS. 1.

HE did shew] Begin to give some signes, and to let fall some words of murmuring. The fire] some heavenly fire, created and sent from God as a miracle. One of the extremities] Or one part.

V. 3 Taberah] Burning: A Flame.

V. 4 *They did re [...]*ur [...]] after the murmurings, or after his complaining on the same occasion, touched Ex. 16. [Page] 21

V. 7 Bdassium] The Italian, Pearl] See Gen 2. 12. Others doe translate Bdellium to be a kind of transparent and pretious gumme.

V. 8 Fresh Oyle] The Italian hath it, Daynti [...] pstae meat] Al the Elders Interpreters do so expound the Hebrew word, and so as it is related, Exo. 16. 32. The Modernes do translate, green Oyle, or fresh, or floure of Oyle.

V. 9 Vpon it] Or upon the same field.

V. 11 Host thou afflicted] The Italian, Hast thou done this] Gave this great annoy and labour.

V. 14 Alone] There was already the helpers in the peoples overnment, as the seventy Ancients, and the other heads and Rulers, Exo. 18. 21, [...]]4. but those doe not work, except with their wits and naturall prudence, as inferiours to the Prophetical and heroically supremacy of Moses, Deut 33. 5. and also sheweth that that subalterne dignity should be suspended See Exod. 33 11. But now Moses required that, that Monarchical form might be changed into a government of good men: to the which God consented, distributing that same Prophetically spirit of Moses to the seventy; so that the beginning and foundation of the government, should be continually the same, in the command of his spirit and word, but that should be divers Organs of the same for an [...] to Moses▪

V. 15 Let meant see] The Italian, That I see] that I prove the fury of the people, for some tumultuous and ignominious death; which I doe feare.

V. 16. Sevenly] This Senate of the principals of the people was already established, Exod. 24. 19. but without the gift of the Prophetically spirit. Of the Elders] chosen of the greater number of the other heads of the people, Exod. 18. 25. for to constitute the great Councell, or Senate. Thou knowest] Those thou hast chosen in thy own offices; or else thou hast acknowledged and approved them in their owne exercises.

V. 17 I will come down] see upon Exod. 34. 5. I will put] a word taken from humane separations: not that the gift of the spirit should be in any manner wanting in Moses: but onely was made common to all the seventy in the publike government, that insalible conduct of the spirit of God: the which untill then had been peculiar to Moses.

V. 18 Sanctifie your selves] By abstinence and purification of any impurity corporall, or spirituall: for to see an extraordinary apparition of Gods Majesty, and for to participate the effects of it, Exod. 19. 10. Others doe expound it simply, Preparations.

V. 20. Vntill that] In such abundance, that not only it should be sufficient to satisfie you; but also to make you have no mind unt it; because otherwise their owne greedinesse had not been satisfied. Psalm. 7. 8. Vntill it come out] which falls out sometimes when the stomack is turned, and the food is violently vomited out. Despised] By incredulity and diffidence, as contiarwise he is embraced, and retained through faith.

V. 21. Foot-men] Compleat and strong men, as Exod. 12. 37.

V. 22. Slaine] Words of admiration, joyned with some kinde of curiosity, to enquire out a meanes; the knowledge of which, was onely reserved to Gods secret Providence, yet not ioyned with any distrust of his power: and much more free from any prophane scoffe at his promise, as 2 Kings chapter 7 verse 2. Psalme 78. verse 20. John chapter 6. verse. 7. See Luke chap. 1. ver. 18, 20, 34.

V. 23 Is the] Is his power lesse now, than it hath been heretofore, in doing as great miracles as this?

V 24. Went out] Of the Tabernacle where he received his answers from within the Sanctuarie, Num. 7; 89:

V. 25 Come downe] See upon Exodus 34. 5. Rested] This gift of light, and supernaturall guide, was not conferred upon them for a short t [...]me, but to remaine with them continually. See the second of Kings, chap. 2, verse 15. They prophesied] Their spirits were enlightned with supernaturall knowledge, and their hearts filled with heavenly vertue, and their tongues set forth, in a divine manner, with holy and spirituall motions and gestures, which were all Propiets properties. See the first of Samuel chap. 10: ver. 5, 10. Did not cease] This was a continued gift bestowed upon them in the execution of their places: as in Moses, some expound it, and they continued no longer: that is to say, onely this first time; the spirit which was to guide them all the time they were in office, shewed it selfe in the afore-sayd extraordinary effects; afterwards it was but an inferiour gift.

V. 26. Remained] In their Tents, being stayed there upon some lawfull occasion, as by reason of some Ceremoniall pollution: see 1 Samuel 20. 26. Jeremiah 36. ver. 5. That were written] By Moses in the number of those seventy, which God had commanded to chuse.

V. 28 One of his young men] The Italian hath it, From his youth] Others have it amongst his selected young men. Forbid them] It should seem that Joshua did not know that these two had been chosen amongst the rest, to be members of the Senate; and that hearing they prophesied; that is to say, spake in Gods name; with extraordinary power and authority, he did feare some schisme, or that he feared the duminution of his Master Moses dignity and credit; See Luke 9. 49. John. 3. 26.

V. 31. From the Lord] Miraculously, and at the very instant, as Gods will was, and upon the present occasion: for otherwise sometimes the w [...]d ordinarily bringeth abundance of Quailes from beyond the seas. The [Page] sea] That is to say, the red, or Arabian sea.

V. 32 Omers] A kind of measure called Corus, which contained ten Ephas, Ezcch. 45. 11. Spread them] The wind had cast downe the quailes, in heaps; and the people, because they should not be stifled, nor spoyled, laid them abroad, and put them in the Aire, that they might be good to eat for many dayes: the propertie of these kindes of birds being such, that they use to lye as it were astonie [...] for a time, after they have beene driven any way by the wind: wherein there might also be some divine operation.

V. 33. Yet it was chewed] The Italian hath it, Before it was spent] or all eaten.

V. 34. Kibroth-Hattaavab] That is to say, the graves of lust.

CHAP. XII. VERS. 1.

SPake] Either openly contending with him, or speaking ill of him aside, in his absence. Because of] It is not set down what they object unto him, concerning this marriage, whether it were because she was no [...] of Gods people; or because that for the love of her he gave her father Hobab too much power, Nu. 10. 26. or some such like thing. Ethiopian] The Italian hath it the Cushite. Zippora. Exod. 2. 21. Who was of the land of Midian, part of the eastern Ethiopia, or Arabia, called Cus, Genesis, chapt. 2. [...] 13.

V. 2. Hath the Lord indeed] Are not we also endowed with the same spirit of prophesie as hee is, and able to reprove or correct him, if wee doe amisse? See 1 Corinth. 14. 32. By us] See Exodus 15. 20. Mic. 6. 4.

V. 3 Now the man] Moses took notice of it, and pardoned these murmurings, and small distastes; but the Lord would [...]oot them out at the first beginning, for feare of scandall, and the inconveniences which might spring out of the dissention of the governours.

V. 5. Came down] See upon Exod. 34. 5.

V. 6 If there be] Although yee bee all Prophets, yet there is a difference of degrees in this gift; and Moses hath it in the most eminent; and therefore it behoveth not you to judge him as his equalls. In a vision] These were the two ordinary wayes of Prophetically revelation in both of them;

the Prophets senses were, as it were, lulled asleep, to receive the impression of Gods light: the soule being as it were gathered all within it self, and severed from corporall senses. But the difference consisted in this, that in a vision, the withdrawing of the senses, was by a supernaturall meanes, whereby the body, and the faculties of it were extreemly troubled and cast down, Dan. 8, 18. and 10. 8, 16, 17. by the strength of divine enlightning, beyond all naturall capacity, imprinting in the mind the representations of the things revealed, or the meaning of them by words. In a dreame, the suspension of the senses was naturall by sleep: wherein God framed some imaginations, or caused them of mans fancy to meet in some concurrency with such things as he meant to reveale: or without them hee fashioned some inward speech in the Prophet, and all this without any labour to the body. The third manner which was ordinary to Moses, & very rare in other Prophets, was by a distinct and sensible voyce, all the senses remaining entire, and free in their owne actions, especially in Moses: for in other Prophets this never happened, without extreem terrour and abatement of all naturall power, Josh. 5. 13. Judg. 6. 22. and 13. 20, 22. Unto him] by internall speech in the mind, as Hos. [...]. 2

V. 8 Apparently] Clearely, directly, and openly, even as present. See 1 Cor. 13. 12. Darke speeches] The Hebrew hath it, with Enigma's. See Judg. 14, 12. He behold] So was the sonne of God wont to speake with Moses, in a visible shape before the Tabernacle was set up, Ex. 24. 10. and 33. 20. Afterwards hee spake with him ordinarily out of the cloud by [...] voice, Num. 7. 89.

V. 10 From off] The cloud did alwayes use to be over the Tabernacle, in the shape of a cloup, lifted up in the aire upright, Exod. 40, 35, 38. but when God would speak out of it, it would come down and spread it selfe about the Tabernacle: and when hee had done, it would return again to its wonted place. Miriam] By this it appeareth that Miriam was most in fault, concerning this murmuring against Moses, it may be by some female emulation between her and her sister in law. White] as Ex. 4. 6. yet it is likely there was some live slesh amongst it: otherwise the should not have been kept apart as uncleane, according to the Law, Lev. 13. 10. 13, 15.

V. 11 Lay not] Doe thou forgive us, and let us through thine intercession be absolved by God, impute not this sin unto us.

V. 14 Had but spit] through any just anger. [...] ashamed] not daring for to shew her self. Shut out] according to the Law Lev. 13. 46. 2 Chron, 26 21.

V. 16. Peran] In the Italian, this is the first verse of the 13 chapter. It is plaine by Numbers 3 [...]. 8. Deut. 1. 22. That all the removalls inserted, Numb. 33, 18. are here omitted for brevity sake: and that it was a great parcell of desert from Sur, Exod. 15. 22. to Kadesh, whence the spies were sent out, verse 26.

NOw in the Italian, this is the second verse, and so all along this Chapter, the English translation runneth one verse before the Italian Spake] approving of the desire and demand of the people, Deu. 1. 22.

V. 2 Of their fathers] Whereof each one carrieth the name of Patriarch, one of Jacobs sons. A ruler] Of a thousand, or an hundred families. See upon Exo. 18. 25.

V. 17. Southward] Directly upon the south side of the land of Canaan, over against which we are now encamped. The mountain] This was the great mountain of Seir, and Idumea, which incloseth Palestine on that side.

V. 19 In tents] in moveable dwellings, tents, after the fashion of the Arabians in those countries, and of field souldiers.

V. 21. Of Sin, unto Rehob] These were the two ends of Palestina, longwaies from the south to the north. Hamath] a city of Siria, the northerne bound of Palestina, 2 Sam. 8 9 called in after ages Antioch.

V. 22 And they] At their return they did more particularly discover the southern part of the land of Canaan where Hebron stood, and it may be gathered by Jos. 14. 9, 12. that Caleb went thither alone: the spies having before severed themselves one from another, the better to avoyd danger. Unto Hebron] called also Kiriath Arba or city of Arba, the father of Anak, from whom issued the race of Giant, here named, Gen. 23 2. Jos. 14. 12, 15. and 15. 13. was built] was one of the ancientest cities of the world, seeing it did contend with the chiefest & ancientest city of Egypt, Isa. 19. 11.

V. 23. The brook] or valley of clusters, it was a place neere unto Hebron. Upon a staffe] by reason of the bigness and weight of it.

V. 24. The brook Escol] The Italian hath it, Nabal Eschol] valley or brook of clusters.

V. 26 [...] o Kadesh] In this place is to be understood, not the great desert of Kadesh, but the city of Kadeshbarne, where the Israelites were encamped, being a confine of the Idumeans, Num. 20. 16. and 32. 8. Deu. 1. [...]9. Jos. 14. 6.

V. 29. In the mountains] in the hilly part of the countrey, which fell to the tribe of Juda.

V. 30 Caleb] Together with Joshua, Num. 14. 6. 30 The people] which began to murmure, and to rise against Moses.

V. 32. Eateth up] Is inhabited by a warlike and fierce nation, whereby there arise frequent wars, and seditions, and slaughters amongst them: how much the more then need we feare these things, that are strangers, and enemies unto them?

CHAP. XIV. VERS. 4.

AND let us return] which God had expressly forbidden them, Deu. 17. 16. Because that Egypt being the figure of spirituall bondage, God would have the people to have it for a perpetuall document, to abhor to return under the old bondage of sun, out of which God of his grace had freed them: and also that such a glorious effect of his power might never be annihilated.

V. 5. Fell on their] To prepare the people with their humility, to give over this enterprise, or to pray to God to turne them from it by his spirit and power, Num. 16. 4 and 20. 6.

V. 6. Rent] In token of extream grief and anger.

V. 8. If the Lord] It wee do not provoke him to wrath by our sins.

V. 9. They are bread] God hath given them into our hands to destroy them, and to get all their goods. Their defence] the Italian hath it, their shadow] their protection and safety; which had hitherto been nothing but Gods patience; their measure being not yet ful heaped, Gen. 15. 16. to make an opposition between those accursed people, abandoned of God, and the children of Israel, which lived secure under the shadow of the cloud. See Ex. 32. 25. Is, 22. 8. Mic. 1. [...]1.

V. 10. The glory] Some extraordinary light & brightnes; signe of Gods glorious presence, in the cloud come down lower, and spread above the Tabernacle, see Ex. 26, 16, 17. and 40. 34. Lev. 9. 23. Num. 16. 19. 42. and 20. 6.

V. 13 For thou] I fear lost the Egyptians, upon whom thou hast hitherto glorified thy self, in the deliverance of thy people, now take an occasion to blaspheme thee, by reason of their destruction.

V. 14 Art seen] In the signes of thy presence, though not in any visible likenes, Deut. 4. 15. which was reserved for Moses alone. Num. 12. 8.

V. 15 As one man] At once at one stroak.

V. 17. I beseech thee let the] Accomplish thy work, to shew that nothing can be done contrary to thy will.

V. 18 Cleering] The pardon to which I am inclined, is not an indisterency, or connivence at sin, which I always late and punish, in all those that continue in it through impenitency: and cause the very repentants, after I have remitted them their punishments, as I am judge, to feele my fatherly corrections, and punishments. See. Ex. 23. 7.

V. 20 I have pardoned] I doe remit unto them the punishment of present and universall death, d [...]nbunded by my threatnings, v. 12.

V. 21 All the earth] As I am jealous to maintaine the glory of my justice, and providence over all the World, much more will I be jealous in doing it in the midst of my people. Others, all the earth shall be, or ought for to [Page] be filled: that is to say, as I will by my works, and finally by my word be known and worshipped all the world over, for what I am, so I will by effects make it knowne to them, to whom I have already revealed my self.

V. 22 Tempted me] See upon Ex. 17. 2. ten times] that is to say very often, as Gen 31. 7, yet some will take this in its proper signification.

V. 24. Caleb] which whom [...]s Joshua also to be understood, as v. 30. and 38. Spirit] hath been moved and inspired by a better spirit; namely, by Gods spirit. Followed [...]] hath believed in m [...] with an entire heart, without varying or wavering. Whereinto] see upon Num. 13. 33.

V. 25 The Amalekites] since I have consented unto thee, not to destroy this people upon a suddain, take heed lest they run from themselves into ruine voluntarily; going on against mighty enemies without mine ayd. Canaanites] these are the Canaanites of the mountaines, or the Amorites: being different from the Canaanites which were by the sea coasts, Num. 13. 31. and 21. 1. In the valley] Beyond the hill where you now are. Of the red sea] Toward Egypt, whereunto you had conspired to return.

V. 28 As you have spoken] Namely, desiring to die in the desert, v. 2.

V. 30 Doubtlesse ye shall not] The Italian hath it, if you doe come into] A shortned kind of an oath. To make you dwell] Namely, your Nation in generall.

V. 33 Wander] The Italian hath it, shall seed] leading heards-mens lives, without any firme habitation as the Arabians in the wilderness. Others, wandring like sheep in the pastures. Fourty] untill the fourtieth yeare after the comming out of Egipt; because that after this threatning, untill they came into the land of Canaan there were but eight and thirty yeares, Deut. 2. 14. Whoredome] That is to say, idolatries, which are the spirituall fornications of the soule, by a breach of faith to God, wherein the people are taxed to have failed often in the wilderness, Num. 15 39 Deut. 32. 17. Amos 5. 25. Act 7. 43.

V. 34 Each daie for a yeare] The Italian, Each year for a day] See Ezech. 4. 6. My breach▪ The Italian, I will break] A kind of humane speech, that is to say, I shew you, that my promises made in generall to my people, doe not belong to unbelievers and rebels, but onely to them which observe the conditions of my covenant, and towards them onely shal my promises never change nor alter.

V. 37 By the plague] Of some strange, suddaine, and violent death, sent supernaturally by the Lord; some take it to be the plague it selfe.

V. 41 Transgresse] For God had comanded them to turne their faces towards the red sea, v. 25.

V. 44 The Arke] By which was to be guided every removall in this voyage. See Num. 10. 33.

V. 45 Hormah] A place called by anticipations see Num. 21. 3.

CHAP. XV. VERS. 4.

A Tenth deale] called an Omer, Exod. 16. 39.

V. 15 Before the Lord] in holy things belonging to my service, there ought to be no difference between the native Israelite, and the Proselite, or believing stranger, and I will accept of, and be propitious to the one as well as to the other.

V. 19. When yee] Every year when harvest is ended, you shall eat new corne.

V. 24 Of the congregation] Lev. 4. 13. There is some diversity, whereby it seemeth, that either God hath here expounded and aggravated his Law to make the people more circumspect; or that it is not spoken in both places of the same faults committed by ignorance. But that in Levit. is spoken of common errors, and faults: and here of those onely which are committed in those actions, which belong to Gods service.

V. 30. Ought] that is, unlawfull or wicked. Presumptuously] premeditately, on porpose, through boldnesse and arrogancy. See Lev. 26. 21. Job. 15. 26. Psa. 19. 13. or publikely and boldly, as Exod. 14. 8. Cut off] punished with death.

V. 31. Shall be] Let the misdeed returne, and the punishment remaine upon the sinner himselfe; and let it not, through connivence to him be imputed to all the people.

V. 33 The Congregation] In this, and the like places it should seem by the Congregation is to be understood, the great council of seventy, or the assembly of all the governours, and heads of the people.

V. 34 It was not] Exodus 31. 14. capitall punishment was ordayned for Sabbath-breakers: but here there might be a question, by reason that the fact was apparently of small moment, was such a transgression, whether it might be pardoned, and by what kind of death, he ought to dye.

V. 38 Of their garments] Their outward garments, Deut. 22 12. Of blue] of blue wollen threed.

V. 39 And it shall be] The Italian hath it. And that ribbon] those fringes composed of many threeds, comprehended the changes and strayings of mens thoughts and actions; which ought to be restrained under the obedience of Gods heavenly law, figured by that sky-coloured ribbon: See Psalm 119. 113. Seek not] have alwayes your thoughts and will set upon my commandements, without being drawne away by the evill motions of the heart, and enticements of the senses. A phrase taken from huntsmen, which never keep any certaine way, but runne after the tracks and sent of the beast: see Deuteronomy chapter 29. verse 19. Job chap. 31. verse 7. Ezech. 6. 9. A [Page] whoring] Spiritually, by lusting after fleshly things, and after the world, contrary to Gods chaste and pure love: See Psa. 73. 27. Jam. 44. or by committing idolatry, as Num. 14. 33.

CHAP. XVI. VERS. 1.

KO hath] So that Korah came to be Moses his cosen german, Exo. 6. 18, 20, 21. Tooke men] The Italian addeth, Tooke other men with them] namely the two hundred and fifty men spoken of, v. 2.

V. 2. In the Congregation] The great councill or supreme ordinary Senat was but of seventy, Num. 11. 16 but besides that, when they were to treat of any busines that was very general, wherein the advice and consent of the whole people was required, or whose execution was to be committed to the inferior magistrats there were gathered together the other heads of the people, divided into heads of thousands, and of hundreds, &c. Exod. 18. 25. and this was the Congregation which is spoken of in this place, Numbers chapter [...] v. 16.

V. 3. Ye take too much upon you] The Italian hath it, Let it suffice you] That is to say, content your selves with what you have been suffered to do hitherto, and seek not to usurpe perpetuall domination upon Gods people: Words of ambition, jealousie and sedition; against the order of government established by God himselfe; as if Gods ordinary gifts of grace, did free them from all manner of subjection, and did confound all manner of order, by an equall popularity.

V. 4. He fell] See upon Numbers, cha. 14. v. 5. and 20. 6.

V. 5. Who are his] Whom he accepteth of for his particular servant, as me: And whom he hath consecrated by his gifts, and calling, as he hath done Aaron: and not by the gift of common grace, as he hath done the rest of the people: v. 3. And will cause him] will confirme his vocation, by some miraculous and extraordinary signe.

V. 6. This do] All this is ordained by Moses, through divine inspiration.

V. 7. Doth chuse] Approveth of, by accepting of his Incense, see upon Gen. 4. 4. Ye take too much upon you] The Italian, Let it suffice you] You undertake too much, stay: Or content your selves with the honor ye have received from God, to be his inferiour Ministers.

V. 9. To minister unto them] To do in the Congregations name and stead, that which they were bound to do themselves about the service of God: See Num. 3. v. 7.

V. 10. And he hath] He hath not only appointed you for this sacred function, but hath already installed you in it, and put you in possession and execution of the same: The Priesthood also] Which as it may here appeare Korah did purpose to make common to all the Levites, as it seemeth also that his followers, which were not Levites, purposed to do the like with Moses his politick power, and with the counsels power, which God had appointed.

V. 14. Into a land] According to thy promise, Exo. 3. 17. Lev. 20. 24. Put out] The Italian hath it, dazle] to dazle the peoples eyes by thy authority, that they may not finde, thy cunning and ambition of rainging.

V. 15. Respect not] Be not thou propitious unto them, when they shall present their prayers, and sacrifices unto thee, Psal. 109. 7. Or by the refusall of the solemn proof of their incenses: shew that thou doest disallow of their rebellion, See Genesis chapter 4. v. 4.

V. 17. Before the Lord] Before his Tabernacle.

V. 18. Fire] From the Altar, which was the only fire that was acceptable in all offerings, Lev. 10. 1.

V. 19. All the Congregation] The whole body of the people, or their governors, as it appeareth by v. 22. and it seemeth that they inclined to Korah his side, but did forbear to declare themselvs openly, untill such time as they had heard Gods determination: The glory] the ordinary signes of his approach, and presence, which appeared by the comming down lower of the cloud, and by the brightnesse of it: See Exodus 16, 7, 10. Leviticus 9. 6, 23. Numbers 14. 10. and 20. 6.

V. 22. Of the spirits] Creator and preserver of the soules, who knowest the hearts; wouldest thou destroy thy divine work, for a sin which thou knowest to be of malice in Korah, but of ignorance and seduction in the rest?

V. 25. The Elders] The councill of seventy.

V. 26. And touch nothing] As being condemned to a curse, and anathema, in which case it was altogether forbidden to touch or come neere any such thing, Deu. 13. 16.

V. 27. And stood] For it was no more lawfull for them to come amongst the people.

V. 28. All these works] To have brought the people out of Egypt, to have conducted and guided them, and done all other things which belonged to mine office, verse 13.

V. 29. Be visited] By a naturall and ordinary death, which neverthelesse is always a punishment for sin, Rom. 6. 23.

V. 30. Go down] Go die under ground, contrary to the ordinary course of dying, which is to die above ground, and afterwards to be buried under ground.

V. 32. All the men] Num. 26. 11. it is said that Korahs children did not die in this execution, whereby it may be gathered that here are meant, some slaves or women, and finally all them which did stay with him, and were yet within his houshold, from which some were already severed by marriage or otherwise. As for Korah he died in the Tabernacle, with all the two hundred and fifty Levites which followed him, v. 35. 40. Num. 26. 10.

V. 35. Came out] It was created by him, and darted, [Page] either out of the cloud, or out of the Sanctuary.

V. 37. Of the burning] Of those dead bodies, which were fired and consumed to ashes, which were yet burning hot: hallowed] these censers, having been presented before God by his commandement, and besides that, belonging to persons which perished by a curse, ought now to belong unto God, and not be prophaned by any common use, or left at random, see Lev. 27. 28.

V. 38. Of these sinners] Who through their sin, have been the causers of their own deaths: Of the Altar] of burnt offerings, which was of wood, Exodus, cha. 27. 1

V. 45. They fell] To beseech the Lord, and make intercession for the people, as Num. 20. 6.

V. 46. Take] A signe of intercession, by a prayer of charity, and publick office, see Rev. 8. 3. is a figure of the only intercession of Christ by merits: The plague] that is to say, the mortality, which happened suddainly and by miracle.

CHAP. XVII. VERS. 2.

To the house] That is to say, the Tribe.

V. 3. Aarons] As head of the hense of Levi.

V. 4. Before the] In the holy place of the Tabernacle, right over against the place where the Arke of the Testimony was within the Sanctuary, the great curtain being between:
Where I] See upon Exod. 25 22. Num. 7. 89.

V. 7. Before the] In the holy place over against the Arke.

V. 10. Befo e the] By Hebrews the 9. 4. it appeareth that this rod was layd, and keep within the great curtaine.

V. 12. Behold] Words of terror, by reason of the slaughters which had lately happened.

V. 13. Commeth any thing neere] Rashly, and without being called: The people would infer thus; We are and may every day be guilty of this fault; shall we then continually remain in the terror of these horrible judgements?

CHAP. XVIII. VERS. 1.

SHall beare] Now having confirmed you in the Priesthood, I will cause you only to give me an account of all errors that shall be committed therein.

V. 2. Joyned] An allusion to the name of Levi, which signifieth joyned, Gen. 29. 34. And minister] See Num. 3. 6, 7. Minister] The Italian hath it, Stand] as well to stay there continually, Num. 3. 38. as to attend upon the Sacrifices and offerings, which were offered upon the Altar before the Tabernacle.

V. 3. Nor you also] Because that cannot come to passe, but only through your negligence.

V. 4. A stranger] That is not a Levite.

V. 5. Of the Sanctuary] Of the holy place, to light the Lamps, to renew the shew bread, and to make the daily perfumes, Exod. 27. 21. and 30 7. Lev. [...]4. 3. Num. 8. 2. of the most holy place to go in once a yeare with the bloud, Exod. 30. 10. Lev. 16. 2, 17. That there be no] As it was when Korah and his sect, intruded into the Priests office.

V. 6. For the Lord] The Italian, From the Lord] Or for the Lord, to help you in his service.

V. 7. And within] In the most holy place, See Exo. 26. 31, 33. if so be by the curtaine, the carpet be not meant, which was at the coming in to the holy place, Exod, 26. 36. I have given you] for a property incommunicable to others.

V. 8. I also have given thee] By my precedent Laws, Lev. 6. 16, 18, 26. and 7. 6, 32. Num. 5. 9. By reason of the] by reason of the Priesthood, sealed by the holy unction, as Lev. 7. 35.

V. 9. Most holy] See upon Lev. 2. 3. Reserved] after the part which ought to be offered to God, hath beene burnt upon the Altar, as Lev. 2. 2, 3. and 7. 5, 6, 7. Trespasse offering] For holy things taken through ignorance, Lev. 5. 15.

V. 10. In the most holy place] At the entrance of the Tabernacle, called here the most holy place, to distinguish it from the peoples court, and every other place about the Campe, which was not uncleane, Lev. 6. 16, 26. and 14. 13.

V. 11. The heave offering] See Exodus chapter 29. verse 27. Leviticus chapter 7. verse 32. Of their gift] Of their voluntary offerings, of thankes-giving, &c. Leviticus chapter 7. verse 14. and 10. 14. With all the] Because that all which was offered to God was thus waved: See Exodus chapter 29. verse 24.

V. 12. The best] The Italian, The floure] Their first fruits, which they must also offer unto me of all the best fruits of the earth.

V. 15. Of men] Which were offered unto God, when they were specially consecrated to his service, Num. 8. 11, 21.

V. 16. A moneth] The first borne, before they were redeemed, ought to bee presented to God in his Temple, Exodus chapter 13. verse 12. Luke chapter 2. verse 22. And that could not be done before the mother was purified, which required forty dayes time, Leviticus Chapter 12. verse 4. According to thine] See Leviticus, Chapter 27. verse [...].

V. 17. Upon the Altar] Upon the hornes therof by sprinkling, and the residue at the foot thereof, by powring, Leviticus Chapter 4. 7. cha. 25. v. 30. and 5. 9.

V. 18 Wave breast] Of all sacrifices, that were not [Page] wholly burnt upon the Altar.

V. 19 Heave offerings] Any part, or member of the beast voluntarily offered, which the offerer shall be willing to offer unto God by heaving. A Covenant] An order for the recompence of your service, which I cause the people to give you. Of salt]. Authentically, inviolable; as anciently the most solemne ceremony that was used in Covenants, was to take and eat of the same salt: and it was esteemed more sacred, and firme then to eat at the same table, and drink of the same cup: see 2 Chro. 13. 5. Before the] of which I have been the only appointer; and will be the maintainer of it.

V. 20 I am] My rights, which I appoint thee to receive of the people in offerings, tithes, first fruits, &c. are thy revenues and maintenance: see upon Jos. 13. 14.

Inheritance] As for Aaron and all his descent, which were high Priests: this is absolutely understood of them, for they had no other inheritance. But as for other Priests, the meaning is, that they were not to possess any Lands for tillage, or fields, or vine-yards, but they might have Cities and pastures for beasts: Jos. 21. 4. Jer. 32. 7, 8.

V. 22 Come nigh] To do any part of Gods service.

V. 23 Shall beare] I will have them recompensed for their service, and I will have them also beare the punishment for any faults that shall be committed therein.

V. 24 Which they offer] This offering was a kinde of first fruits, which belonged unto the Priest, Deuteron. 18. 4. and it was different from the first fruits, touched, verse 13. because that in these, there was wine, oile, and corne made ready; in the other there were nothing but grapes, eares, and olives. And by this addition out of which the offering was taken, these titles are distinguished from those which are mentioned, Deuteronom. 14. 22. 28. and 26. 12. of which nothing was taken out for the Lord.

V. 26 For the Lord] To be given unto his Priest.

V. 27 Shall be reckoned unto you] The Lord hath▪ accepted of it in your behalfe, no lesse than if it had preceeded out of your owne labour and work. Fulnesse of the wine presse] The Italian, the Muste of the wine] Heb. fulnesse: see Exo 22. 29.

V. 28 To Aaron] To every high Priest for himself, and all the Priests in common.

V. 29 Of the Lord] The Italian addeth, whole] The tenth part exactly compleat, without any diminution.

V. 31 In every place] Indifferently in any of your dwellings, not in holy places onely, where the Priests alone did eate the most holy things: v. 10.

V. 32 Shall ye pollute] You shall not through negligence or malice cause my dues to be paid unto mee, that the remnant of the tithes may become your prophane goods, held and enjoyed with an evill conscience; in which there shall be no signe or token of my grace, nor power of my blessing.

CHAP. XIX. VERS. 3.

The Priest] Who was the next to the high Priest, and as it were his chief deputy, Numb. 3. 32. whence one may gather, that in ensuing times also this office of preparing this water for purification, was given to the second person; for the high Priest could not be ceremonially polluted: Lev. 21. 12. as this man was, who was chief in this action of the heifer, vers. 7. Without the camp] Which was singular in this sacrifice: to shew that Christ was to die without the City: Heb. 13. 11, 12.

V. 4 Shall take] After he hath carried it into the camp in some vessell.

V. 5 And one shall] The Priest being returned from without the campe, as it appeareth by v. 7. Her bloud] The remainder which hath not been used in the former sprinkling.

V. 6 Cedar wood] See Lev. 4. 4.

V. 7 Uncleane] Shall be severed from common conversation, especially in holy places, and shall pollute by touching and comming neere any. A figure of Christ, to shew that he, for to cleanse us, hath burthened himselfe with the guilt of our pollutions, in the sight of God, Isa. 53. 12 2 Cor. 5. 21.

V. 9 That is cleane] Not defiled by any ceremoniall pollution. A cleane place] Not a receptacle of filth, sweepings, offals, and other unclean things: see upon Lev. 4. 12, For a water] the Italian hath it, To make a water] Mixing of those ashes with running water, v. 17. Of separation] the Italian hath it, Of purification] From diverse legall, and deadly impurities. A figure of Christs blood, which purifieth the consciences of the faithfull, from dead works: Heb. 9. 14. and 10. 22. A purification] The Italian hath it, A sacrifice] This slaying and burning of the heifer, is a kind of sacrifice for sinne, and therefore those ceremonies ought to be observed herein, as were accustomed in the like sacrifices, excepting the ashes: see Lev. 4. 11. [...].

V. 10 Unto the stranger] that is a proselite. Othershold that all strangers which dwelt among the people, were comprehended herein, by reason of the frequent & unavoidable contaminations of the one with the other.

V. 12 Purisie himself] With the sprinkling of that water, v. 18. The third day] a document for the faithfull to begin and continue, purifying of themselvs whilst they are in this world, for to be so in the everlasting Sabbath: see 2 Cor. 5. 3.

V. 13 Defileth] Comming neere it rashly whilst he was yet unclean; for by the Law holy things were polluted, by the touch of unclean ones: Hag. 2. 13. see upon Levit. 15. 31. and 16. 16. Cut off] See Gen. 17. 14. His [Page] uncleanness] Having contemptuously been carelesse of the meanes of cleansing himselfe, he shall not now be admitted thereunto. Yea as unclean he shall be cut off from the communion of the Church, and be put to death, if the thing be known: or if it be unknowne to men, God will punish it.

V. 17 Of the burnt heifer, &c.] The Italian hath it, Of that sacrifice, &c.] See v. 9. Running water] Of some spring or running streame, as Lev. 14. 5.

V. 21 That sprinkleth] To shew that, as it is in bodily uncleannesses, he that maketh another cleane, defileth himselfe: so the Ministers of Gods grace, draw much impurity upon themselves, from the infection of sinners: Isa. 6. 5. That toucheth] Either by sprinkling of it, or being sprinkled therewith. Another document to teach us, that the faithfull man, even after he hath received the gift of forgiveness of sins, hath yet many reliques thereof remaining: and that his perfect purification is fulfilled at his death: see Joh. 13. 10.

CHAP. XX. VERS. 1.

OF Zin] This Zin is a part of that great desert which bordered upon Palestina on the south-side, and differeth from the other Zin which is neare unto Egypt: Exo. 16. 1.

In the first] Of the fourtieth yeare after the comming out of Egypt: Num 33. 38. Deut. 2. 13, 14. Kadesh] This is the City of Kadeshbarnea, where now the people were encamped the second time: Num. 13. 26. after they had gone back againe, and gone about all the desert, for the space of eight and thirty yeares: Deut. 2. 14.

V. 2. There was no water] For the water which followed them: Exod. 17. 6. 1 Cor. 10. 4. sometimes was dried up as Num. 21. 5, 6. or peradventure it failed quite, when they came neere Canaan.

V. 8 The rod] That with which Moses wrought the miracles in Egypt: Exod. 4. 17. and 17. 5. which is more likely, than to understand it of Aarons rod which was blossomed.

V. 10 Must we fetch you] These words, which are taxed Psa. 106. 32. and the smiting of the rocke twice without Gods command, maketh some shew of the incredulity pointed at v. 12. But God did see at in [...]s very depth and truth; and he shewed it, and punished it: see Num. 27. 14. Deut. 1. 37.

V. 12 Sanctifie me] By a plaine and absolute obedience unto my word, attributing unto me the glory of a most holy and undoubted truth, and of an infinite power; and so have given the people a President whereby they might have done the like.

V. 13 Of Meriba] The Italian hath it, *Of con [...]*ention] Or of Meriba. See this self same name attributed unto other waters: Exod. 17 7. Sanctified i [...] them] The Lord by this miracle, did plainly shew the sacred glory of his power, goodnesse, patience, and truth; and thereby did convince the prophane diffidence and reproofes of the people.

V. 14 Thy brother] Because the Idumeans were issited from Bsau, Jacobs brother.

V. 16 An Angel] The son of God in his own person: Exo. 14 19. and 23. 20. and 33. 14.

V. 17 Of the wells] Or out of cisternes, or other particular waters, but only out of common waters as out of rivers, and brooks &c. Others expound it, we will take none without paying for it, v. 19. Deut. 2. 6.

V. 19 Of thy water] Which in those deserts, by reason of the great store of cattel which was bred there, was one of the most necessary and cleare things they had. On my feet] The Italian hath it, With our company] Or on our feet without doing any dammage.

V. 21 Refused] The contrary seemeth to be said, Deuter. 2. 29. but in that place are meant other Id [...] means, or else these same Idumeans suffered the people to go round about the Country, and furnished them with victuall, though they would not suffer them to go through the middle, and the direct way. Turned away] By Gods command, Deut. 2. 5.

V. 24 Shall be gathered] Shall dic: [...] ordinary kind of speech in Scripture.

V. 26 Of his garments] Namely his sacred and Priestly garments.

V. 29 All the house] The Italian hath it, All the samilies] In the time of mourning, it was the custome to stay in the house, and in publick mournings every family did the like. Others expound it plainly, all the house of Isracl mourned for him.

CHAP. XXI. VERS. 1.

*The Canaa [...]*te] Num. 14. 25. Of the spies] They had retained them which Moses had sent to discover the Country: see Num. 13. 18. others take the Hebrew word to be the proper name of Abarim.

V. 3 Hormah] D [...]

st unction, after the manner of accursed things, see Num. 14 45.

V. 4 By the way] The Italian addeth, Drawing towards the] That is to say, turning about some way to compass the mountaines of Idumea: Num. 20. 21.

V. 5 Light] This they speak secretly of Manna, as food of light substance, which did notwithstanding, without troubling the organs of the body, or oppressing them with too much fulnesse, maintaine the body in good health, and in one continuall equality of strength and vigour, as it chanced to Moses: see Deuter. 34. 7. and to Caleb, Jos. 14. 11.

V. 6 Fiery] That is to say, whose bitings did presently cause grievous and painfull inflammations over all the body: see Deut. 8. 15.

V. 8 Make thee] This serpent was a figure of Christ who was sent into the world in the likeness of sinfull flesh: Rom. 8. 3. the pole was a figure of the Crosse, upon [Page] which he was raised, and the looking upon it, represented Faith in our Saviour: John 3. 14, 15.

V. 11 Fie-Abarim] The Italian hath it, Hillocks of Abarim] They were little hills where the mountaines of Abarim did begin: see Num. 33. 47. wildernesse] Called the wildernesse of Moab: Dour. 2. 8.

V. 12 The valley] Or the torrent.

V. 13 On the other side] The Italian hath it, Along the river] On the wildernesse of Moabs side: for the Moabites of Ar, had given the people passage: Deut. 2. 29. although the King had refused it: Deut. 23. 3, 4. Judg. 11. 17, 18.

V. 14 In the book] It might be some poem, or ancient writing upon the subject of the peoples voyages, and it is uncertaine whether it was written by any Prophet: see Jol. 10. 13. 2 Sam. 1. 18. Jude 14. What he did in the red Sea] The Italian hath it, Vaheb in Suf] These words with the verse following, being nothing but parcells pricked out of the same booke, there can be no other sense gathered out of them, but this, that Arnon was a famous river upon the confines of Moab; which is also the only scope of this allegation.

V 16 To Beer] Or to the well, a place so called by reason of a well, which God caused to be digged at the peoples arrivall thither.

V. 17 This song] It should seeme it was some song, made and sung to hearten, and cheere up those who wrought in digging of the well. Spring up] Let us quickly finde thy waters: or may thy waters be high, and abounding, Sing ye unto it] A Poëtically Prosopopeia, as who should say, bid it welcome.

V. 18 The Princes] At the digging of which well, Moses the great Law-giver, and all the rulers of the people were solemnly present with their staves in their hands, which staves were signes of dignity and office: Judg. 5. 14.

V. 20 Moab] This was the country of the Moabites of Ar [...] see upon Num. 20. 13. Pisgah] This was some of the steep mountaines of Abarim, which went down into a spacious valley: see Deut. 3. 17. 27. and 32. 49. and 34. 1. 6. now here is meant the Easterne side of the hill, which stood towards the wilderness of Moab, for on the other side one might see Jericho, and the Land of Canaan.

V. 21 Sent] Sihon as an Amorite was already condemned by God to extirpation, and was unworthy to enjoy the rights of War, which were to proffer peace before they did invade them: Deur. 20. 10. But this superabundant equity served to discover and exasperate this Kings cruelty: which opened the meanes to execute Gods generall sentence: see Deut. 2. 26. 30.

V. 22 Waters] See upon Num. 20. 17.

V. 24 Jabock] The name of a river which confined the Amorites Land. For the] Not because the children of Israel had tried to force those borders, and could not, for God had sorbidden them to invade the country of Ammon: Deu. 2. 19. but to shew that Sihon could not enlarge his conquests on that side as he had done towards Moab: v. 26.

V. 26 Who had sought] The Italian hath it, Who had been the first that had fought] amongst the Kings of the Amorites, Sihon was the first that had broken the peace and neighbour-hood with the Moabites, & had taken Heshbon from them, which anciently belonged to Moab, to whom it returned afterwards as appeareth by Isa. 15. 4. and 16. 8 Jer. 48. 2. Or else the meaning is, that though God had forbidden the Israelites to invade the Moabites country: Deut. 2. 9. yet they might take that country from Sihon, which he had taken away before from the Moabites.

V. 27 They that speak in Proverbs] The Italian hath it, The Poets] It sheweth that there were some panners of popular songs, upon those things which happened in this journey, as v. 14. And this it should seeme was some triumphall song upon the taking of Heshbon; and thereby the Israelites are encouraged to repaire it, for to dwell in it: Num. 32. 37.

V. 28 A fire] That is to say, whereas Heshbon was esteemed to be the defence and strength of all the country of Moab: after it was taken by Sihon, it did help to loose all the rest of the country, as it ordinarily happeneth when the chief Cities of a country are taken: see Jerem. 48. 45. Ezech. 28. [...]8. Ar] This was the chief City of the Country of Arocr, in the territories of Moab, which it is likely it was not taken by Sihon, but remained in the Moabites hands: Deut. 2. 9. but that which is here said, is to be understood of the losse of some part of their territory, which was taken from the Moabites by Sihon, and from Sihon againe by the Israelites: Ios. 12. 2. The Lords of the high places of

Arnon] The Italian hath it, *The inhabitants of Ba [...]*ot Arnon] High places, and they might be forts or rocks, situate upon the side of the hill, along the river of Arnon.

V. 29 Chemosh] An idoll of the Moabites, 1. Kings 11. 7. 2 Kings 23. 13. He] Namely Chemosh could not help his people; but part of them were slaine by the sword, and the rest led into captivity.

V. 30 We] Namely we Israelite: Shot at them] The Italian,
Discomsited them] The Hebrew, shot and transfixed them.
Heshbon] The taking of the principall City, did consequently draw on the losse of the rest of the country.
Which reacheth] Whose territory doth extend it selfe.

CHAP. XXII. VERS. 1.

ON this side] The Italian hath, On that side] or Beyond] in regard of the land of Cannan. By Iericho] Along Iordan, over against Iericho, and its territories.

V. 2 Balak] The King of Moab.

V. 3. Sore affraid] The Lord had sent this feare a- [Page] mongst them to make the enterprises of the people so much the easier, Exodus 15. 14. Deuteron. 2. 25. Jos. 2. 9.

V. 4. Unto the Elders] It seemeth they are the same hat are called Kings, Numbers 31. 8. and Princes, Jos. 13. 21. Whereof every one was Governour of his own Countrey, and all of them together made a common body of a nationall Councell, and at that time it seemeth they were all joynd with the King of Moab, and in all this action it seemeth they continued joynd together, Numbers 25. 16. and 31. 2.

V. 5. Pethor] A City of Mesopotamia, Num. 23. 7 Deuter. 23. 5. By the river] Euphrates, Of his people] namely Balaams: And they abide] that is to say, they are encamped.

V. 6. Curse me] This may be understood of some simple or plaine magicall imprecations, whereby evill spirits are raised and employed to hurt and offend, by vertue of the covenant which the magician hath made with them. Or of some solemn execrations which the pagans did use in war against their enemies, conjuring and calling upon their tutelar Gods, and raising infernall spirits against them, which oftentimes tooke effect, through Gods permission, who suffered them to erre in their beleaving of Sooth-sayings, and common sorceries which in effect were nothing but implicit and silent contracts with [...]e [...].

V. 7. Of divination] The Italian hath it, Having the divination in their hands] Some formularies or set termes, according to which Balaam was to utter his imprecations according as we read in histories, as it hath been done in like acts to draw the devill to do that thing which he that imployed him did desire. Others understood this of the gifts and rewards that were given for doing such things. From hence it appeareth that Balak knew Balaam to be a magician, and a Sooth-sayer, as he is called, Jos. 13. 22: and Balaam himselfe confesseth it and doeth the acts of one, Num. 23. 23. and 24. 1. True it is that he had some knowledge of the true God, v. 8. and 18. and that hee had some propheticall revelations from him, Num. 24 4. 16. 2 Pet. 2. 15. but being a wicked man, he mixed pagan superstitions and diabolicall witchcrafts therewith, which he covered all with the cloake and colour of divine revelations. But in this occasion, God did not give him leave to use any.

V. 8 I will bring] He speakes confidently, by reason of the experience he had diverse times had of divine revelations granted unto him upon his request; though indeed the light of prophecy was never perpetuall, and at the Prophets discretion, but only conferred according to Gods pleasure.

V. 19. Tarry ye also here] As they did which came before. Here Balaams avarice is discovered, who against Gods will, already sufficiently declared unto him, desireth to go and please Balak, being allured by his promises, 2 Pet. 2. 15. Jude 11. and God condemning his wicked intent, giveth him leave to go, to bring to light his malice, and to cause his own glory to shine, enforcing him to blesse that people whom he would have cursed, Deu. 23. 5.

V. 22. For an adversary] To shew him by the signe of this terrible vision, like unto that of Exod. 4. 24. that God did disallow of his enterprise, and would withstand the execution of it, and constrain him to do contrary to his intent.

V. 23. Saw] The sight of these apparitions was specially granted and made plaine to one, and hidden from the other, though they were present, see 2 Kings 6. 17. Dan. 10. 7. as also the voyce, Acts 22. 9.

V. 28. Opened] He did by miracle frame these distinct words in the exterior organs of the Asse, though they proceeded not from any internall discourse, or conceipt.

V. 31. Opened] Caused him to see the Angel, see Gen. 21. 19. Luke 24. 16, 31.

V. 32. Is perverse before me] The Italian hath it, Is not rightly appointed in my sight] is contrary unto my will, and as such I do reprove it, and condemne it.

V. 33. Unlesse she had turned from me] The Italian hath it,

May be she turned for feare of me] Thou hast cause to think that God would have it so for thee, and not for the asse, because that I should not kill thee, if the asse had gon forward.

V. 38. To say] Of my self or according to mine own will.

V. 39. Kiriath Huzoth] To the City of Huzoth.

V. 40. Andsent] To make a festivall meale, with the flesh of sacrifices, according to custome.

V. 41. The high places] Temples and Chappels dedicated to Baal-Peor, the god of the Moabites, upon some hils or hillocks, adjoyning to that place, The utmost part] some part or quarters of that great campe, to make some triall of his conjurations and imprecations.

CHAP. XXIII. VERSE 1.

SEven Altars] Some are of opinion that there was some heathenish superstition in this number, and also that these sacrifices were prepared for Idols. But because that in the fourth verse Balaam doeth so confidently present them unto God, it is likely that they were consecrated to the true God, and that in this number and other ceremonies, he did observe some ancient custome, or command of God, to obtaine prophetically revelation from him. And it may also be that if hee had obtained none of God, he would have had recourse to magick Arts, for to give Balak content, Num. 24. 1.

V. 3. Hee sheweth mee] That is to say, shall be [Page] revealed to mee in vision; To an high] Upon the top of some neighbouring rock. Others quickly, or a side, to see if the Lord would reveale himself unto him.

V. 4. God] In some signe, or some shape known to Balaam.

V. 5. Put] He inspired him with what he would have him say.

V. 7. Parable] The Italian hath it, His sentence] that is to say, his prophetick speech, conceived in numerous and sententious termes, beyond the vulgar manner of speaking: From Aram] The Italian hath it From Syria] Under which was also contained Mesopotamia.

V. 9. Shall dwell] It shall be selected, and severed from other nations, to be a peculiar people to God, and to be by him endlessly kept, blessed, and increased.

V. 10. Of the fourth part] He alludeth to that as Balak would shew him but a part of the campe, Numbers 22. 41. Whereby Balaam is ravished in spirit, to behold with admiration the miraculous increase of the people, a signe of Gods expresse blessing; Let me dye] I am so far from having any power to work any evill end to this people sanctified by God, and by him directed in all justice by his Law: that contrariwise I envy that soveraigne happinesse which they alone enjoy, that is, to be able to dye in his favour, by vertue of his covenant, and of his promises.

V. 13. From whence thou mayest see them] Namely, all wholly; either because he beleevd that the fight of all the people was necessary for the magick operation which he desired, or that there might be some conjurations and witchcrafts, which are put in practice by the sight; or that he would induce Balaam to stronger conjurations, by reason of a higher object; or that he purposed to affright Balaam himselfe, by the apearance of danger, shewing him such a multitude of people.

V. 14. The field] It was some little plaine a top of the hill, where the watches stood, at the beacons or watch towers, which the Hebrew word Zophim signifieth.

V. 15. Meet the Lord] The Italian hath it only, Meet] with God and some revelation from him, or with the devill and some of his magicall apparitions.

V. 19. Lye] In his promises made to his people.

V. 21. He hath not beheld] This may be understood of Gods publick service, publikely pure from idolatry though there were many private, and secret ones, Amos 5. 26. Acts 7. 42. or by comparing them to other people, which were given over to all impiety, and wickednesse. Or God hath not beheld, &c. that is to say, he pardoneth them all their sins, through his grace, and purifieth them by his word, and spirit, And the shout] there is a continuall cause of security, and mirth, by the blessings, and safveguard of their God, and through the manifold victories which he granteth them over their enemies.

V 23. Against Jacob] The Italian hath it, In Jacob] O Balaam, this people is not idolatrous, nor given to divelish arts, as thou art, through Gods power, he puts by and undoeth all the devils plots: So God puts Balaams condemnation in his own mouth: According to this time] The Italian addeth, Within a yeare according, &c. because that within the compasse of that time, the people went over Jordan, and tooke Jericho by miracle. Others expound it in his time, or within a certain time.

V. 24. Shall rise up] They shall undergo their warlike attempts, and shall not give them over, until they have destroyed and conquered their enemies. A great Lion] because there are of two kinds, See upon Job 28. 8.

V. 27. Peradventure] Words of a superstitious man as though divine aspects were more or lesse favorable, as the Starres aspects are according to Astrologians traditions.

V. 28. Peor] The name of a hill, from which the Idoll Baal-Peor had his name, Deu. 34. 6.

CHAP. XXIV. VERS. 1.

INcha [...] tmen's] Or spels, that is to say, communications with the devill, to learn or to receive from him meanes to satisfie Balak. See Num. 23. 1. 15. He set] without stirring or looking for any solitary place to call up evill spirits; The wilderness] where the people were encamped.

V. 2. A [...] iding] Lodged in their camp, which was ordered in manner of a City: The spirit] There came a revelation and prophetical motion unto him.

V. 3. Whose eyes are open] The Italian hath it, Whose eye is shut] who from time to time, and even at this present, hath poetical raptures, and extasies, through which the eyes and senses were lulled at rest, and abstracted: See Num. 12. 6.

V. 4. Falling] This also hath a reference to those trances and faintings, which happened to them that were taken with the spirit of prophecie; See 1 of Sam. 19. 24. Ezech. 1. 28. Dan. 8. 18. and 10. 16. Rev. 1. 17. Having] his understanding is supernaturally enlightned by divine inspiration.

V. 6. Of lign-Aloes] The Italian hath it, Santa [...] i] Aromatick, and sweet smelling trees, which grow in the East, in great and thick woods. Others understand the Hebrew word for the tree called Agallochum or Lign-aloes: Hath planted] that is to say, hath created the kind of them, through his omnipotency, and preserveth it through his providence without human art or labour. Psa. 104. 16.

V. 7. He shall powre] God shall water his Churches [Page] garden, with his abundant blessings, having sown his gifts and graces in it. A metaph [...]r taken from the precedent of orchards and gardens: Buckets] Such as are used in engines, and watermils, to water gardens; And his king] Namely the King of Gods people, Agag] a common name of the Kings of Amaleck, 1 Sam. 15. 8. from whence also the whole nation took its name, Est. 3. 1, 10. and 9. 24. Now this prophecy, which according to the letter, was accomplished in the destruction of King Agag, and his people by Saul, 1 Sam. 15. doth also comprehend Christs victories over his enemies, who is the great monarch of his Church.

V. 9. He couched] The Italian, When is couched] that is to say, when he hath conquered that country which is allotted him by God and shall have settled himself in it; and shall have established his state, who shall be able to trouble, or assault him? Gen. 49. 9.

V. 10. He smote] In token of great anger, as Ezek. 21. 17. and 22. 13.

V. 14. I will advertise] Here questionlesse Balaam gave that pestilent counsell, of misleading the people to idolatry, through the company of women, to draw Gods vengeance upon it, and withdraw his grace and aide from it, See Num. 25. 1. and 31. 16. Revel. 2. 14. The meaning of the words is, that the Moabites at this time, ought not to feare the children of Israel, because God had commanded them, not to set upon them, Deut. 2. 9. they will subdue them a great while hence, all the advice I can give thee to prevent this evill is, that thou shouldst insnare this people into idolatry, to the end that God himself may destroy them.

V. 17. I shall see him] The Italian, I see him] by the spirit and by prophetick revelation, I see that which I foretell, as if it were now present, though the event be yet a great way off; A star] David shining in glory who shall subdue the Moabites, 2 Sam. 8. 2. Psal. 60. 10. whereby they shall be made tributary to his successors, 2 Kings 3. 4. Now under this temporall domination is understood Christs spirituall dommation (who is the true morning star, Rev. 22. 16.) and his Churches dominion over her enemies, such as the Moabites had been to Israel; See Zepha 2. 9, 10. The children] It seemeth he meanes all those that had part in the Meabites government, which were many, as it appeareth, Num. 23. 6. Amos 2. 3. A state being as [...] building, whose foundation that beareth it up, and bindeth it together, is the Prince, so the precedent words of Prince] (in the Italian, for in the English it is Corners) is taken from the corners of a fabrick, and the word Destroy] from the throwing down of a wall. The meaning is, the supream power shall be cast down, and the nation shall become tributary, 2 Sam. 8. 2. yet it shall not be quite waste. It may also be expounded children of rest, that is to say a nation that hath lived a long time at rest, and hath not beene troubled, Jer. 48. 11. The Hebrews refer it to Baals evill favoured picture, which sheweth its but tooks bare to the worshippers: Or to the shamefull manner of worshipping him, presenting their hinder parts unto him, and doing their ordures before him.

V. 18. Edom] This according to the letter was also accomplished under David, 2 Sam. 8. 14. and spiritually in Christ, Amos 9. 12. Obad 18. Seir] a mountain of Idumea, Gen. 36. 8.

V. 19. Out of] The Italian hath it, And one descended from] Namely David who destroyed all the males out of Idumea, 1 Kin. 11. 14. 16. Of the City] Not only those that shall be in armes in the fields, but all the males, though they be at home and dwelling in the cities of Edom.

V. 20. The first] God having decreed in his appointed time to cut down (as by a harvest) the accursed nations, hath begun with Amaleck; whence as he hath as yet taken but the first fruits, Exod. 17. 13. but the rest shall be all reaped under Saul, 1 Sam. 15. 3. Or Amaleck is a head of nations, a principall people, making of it self a body of a nation and kingdom, but its last condition, and abasement shall be beneath all other people, even to perdition and extreame ruin.

V. 21. The Kenites] That is to say, the Midianites, or the one part of them, for Jethro being a Midianite, Exo. 3. 1. is called Kenite, Jud. 1. 16. 1 Sam. 15. 6.

V. 22. The Kenite] The Italian hath it, Kain] the first founder and father of the Kenites, which is not mentioned any where else; Wasted] spoiled and sacked by diverse incursions, and at last they shall be carried away captive by the King of Chaldea, sometimes in the Prophets called Assyria, because that the Babilonian or Chaldean empire, had swallowed the Assyrian empire, and was grown great by it, see Jer. 49. 28. 31.

V. 23. Doth this] The Italian Shall have raised him] that is, when he shall by his Sovereigne providence, have given to Ashur and Chaldea the great command and empire of the Universe, Dan. 2. 37, 38. Because that he shall over-run all the neighbouring countries.

V. 24. *A [...]*d] The Italian, And afterwards] The great Empire of As [...], first held by the Assyrians, afterwards by the Chaldeans, and last of all by the Persians, shall [...]e destroyed by the people beyond the sea: Namely by the Greeks, and Macedonians, properly called Chittim, Genesis 10. 4. Isay 23. 1. 12. And afterwards by the Romanes, who came over into Asa [...], out of the harbours of Grece, Dan. [...]. 30. Eber] The Jewish Nation and their countrey shall be much infested by the Grecians of Syria and Egypt, Dan. 8. 11. & [...]. 31. and then utterly destroyed by the Romans, Dan. 9 27. He also] The Italian, they also] The Greeks shall bee ruined by the Romans; and the Roman Empire shall also perish before the end [Page] of the world, 2 Thesselon. 2. 7.

V. 25 To his place] Yet he came not to it; for he remained amongst the Midianites, and was slaine there, Num. 31. 8.

CHAP. XXV. VERS. 1.

ABode] was encamped, as Num. 24. 1. Commit whoredome] being inticed by the Midianitish women, according to Balaams counsell, Num: 24. 14. and 31. 16. Rev. 2. 14

V. 2 Vnto the sacrifices] That is to say to the feasts which they made of the flesh, consecrated to idolls; whereof one part was already offered. See that prohibited Ex. 34. 15.

V. 3 Joyned himself] Committed idolatry, which is a spirituall fornication and adultery, communicating with the Idoll, by participating of his table; by which was signified an acknowledgement of, and a dependency from him. See upon 1 Cor. 10. 20. Baal-Peor] An idoll of the Moabites. Baal was a name common to many Idols, especially such as represented any starre or planet, and signifieth Master, Lord. The addition of Peor is taken from the hill Peor, where he was worshipped. Num. 23. 28.

V. 4 The heads] Those which have consented, dissembled, or participated in this wickednesse. Hang the [...]] By this punishing of the guilty, give my justice satisfaction, and appease my wrath, which is kindled against the people. See upon Deut. 21. 23. 2 Sam. 21. 6. Before] publikely for a spectacle layd open to all mens view.

V. 5 Judges.] See Exodus 18. 21. His men] Which are under his charge and jurisdiction, according to the order of the rulers of the people, set over a certaine number of families. Exod. 18. 25.

V. 6 The Congregation] Namely, the great council of the people, Numbers 1. 16. and 16. 2. Were weeping] through extreme grief, making intercession for the people's sinne towards God, as Numbers 20 6.

V. 8 The tent] The Italian hath it, The brothell] The Hebrew word signifieth certaine little houses, or tents set up neere to the Idols Temples, where prostitute persons went to commit fornication. See 2 Kin 23. 7 Thrust both of them through] An act of extraordinary zeal, and motion of Gods spirit, in a cruell and fierce delict, which was approved in Phineha's by God after the act was done: and by Moses the supreme Magistrate, the execution being done under his eyes, and knowne to him. Through her belly] Or through the naturall parts Others have it, in the Brothell house The plague] This word in like Histories signifieth some suddain mortality caused by Pestilence, or otherwise: and it is likely that some such destruction happened at this time, besides the execution which was done by the hand of men.

V. 9 Twenty and foure] The Apostle 1 Cor. 10. 8 speaketh onely of three and twenty thousand; but it seemeth he speaketh onely of them that dyed by the hand of God: and that Moses addeth thereunto a thousand more, which were put to death by the Judges.

V. 11 Hath turned] Having wrought my revenge, having strongly and angerly conceived mine indignation.

V. 12 My Covenant] By expresse covenant I conferre upon him and his posterity the dignity of high Priest, for to be an everlasting Mediator for peace between me and my people, as he hath been at this time by appeasing my wrath: Or else which dignity, he shall quietly enjoy without any disturbance. See Mal. 2, 4, 5.

V. 13 His seca] This suffered some interruption through some unknown cause or accident, when Eli who was of Itamars line, obtained the high Priest-hood, and left it to his children afterward: but a little while after, by vertue of this promise, it came again into Eleazar & Phinchas his stock in Zadock. See 1 Sam. 2. 35. 1 Kings 2. 26. 34. 1 Chron 24. 3. An atonement] by just revenge and punishment, not by expiation or satisfaction.

V. 14 A chief house] One of those great households whereinto each tribe was divided. See Numbers. 1. 2.

V. 15 Head over a people] A principall man amongst his people, who was Lord over some part of the Midianites: and peradventure it was the same Zur as was called King. Numbers 31. 8. Joshuah 13. 21.

V. 18 Of Peor] Of the Idoll Baal-Peor.

CHAP. XXVI. VERS. 4.

FRom] A briefe way, representing the publike proclamation, whereby all of that age were to appeare for to be mustered.

V. 10 Together with Korah] It appeareth by Num. 16. 32, 35, 40. that Korah was not swallowed up by the earth, but that he dyed by the fire sent from God: but he is joyned with the other because hee was a confederate in the same misdeed, and was punished by a miraculous death, at the same time. A signe] a document and example of Gods judgements, See 2 Pet. 2. 2. 6.

V. 12. Of Nemuel] Gen. 46. 10. and 1 Chron. 4. 24. and in the following verses there is some difference in these names.

V. 29 Of the Machirites] whereof see Jos. 17. 1. and by that place it appeares that Machir had divers children, whereof some took their names from Machir, and some from Galaad his sonne: And the word fam [...]ly [Page] here signifieth one of the great branches of this Tribe, divided into families. See Joshuah 7. 14.

V: 30 Jezar] called also Abiezar, Jos: 17: 2 Jud. 6: 11: 34.

V. 42 Shuham] called Fusim, Gen. 46. 23. The Families] Which were divided into lesser families.

V. 54 To many] As well of the Tribes, as of a Familie of the Tribes, to some of which Moses assigned their inheritance on this side Jordan, and appointed Joshua to do the like beyond.

V. 55 By lot] In regard of the countries situation, wherein they were to take more or lesse land according to the number of the pers [...]ns; see Nu. 33. 54.

V. 58 The families] Namely, the lesser Families.

V. 62 For they] The other Tribes were mustered, to equall the quantity of the inheritance, with the number of th [...]m who being above the age of twenty years, were capable of being heads of Families. But in mustering of the tribe of Levi, this reason took no place: wherefore they were mustered from a moneth old: at which time both the mothers and the children were purified; to shew that they were consecrated to God for his service, even from their birth; See Numbers 3. 15. and 18. 16.

V. 63 Neere Iericho] The Italian hath it, Of Iericho] see Num. 22. 1.

V. 65 Caleb] It is true, that Moses was yet living; but he is left out, because he was to dye also on that side Jordan, without comming into the land of Canaan, Num: 20 12. and 27, 13.

Then came] They did not appeare in their order, in the publike muster, amongst the rest of the families of Manasse [...].

V. 3 And he was not] Our father had not committed any publike misdeed, nor was not fallen into any interdict, whereby he merited to have his name extinguisht, or to lose his right in the land of Canaan, whereunto God had condemned Korah's faction, causing their families to dye, and their goods to be swallowed up, Nu. 16. 27. 32. now this would have befallen him, if being one of the heads of the families of Manasseh, we his daughters had not had right to represent that family for his inheritance. In his owne sinne] The Italian hath it, For his sinne] Generally belonging to humane nature, which also cleaveth to Gods children in this life, whereby they are also subject to death; or for having been participant of the common sinne of murmuring and sedition; Num. 14: yet having committed no sinne of Anathema or a curse, which was imputed to all the people, and insnared them in the punishment, till the whole family of the Malefactor were rooted out; see Deuteronomy 13. 15. Joshuah 7. 24. 1 King. 16: 34.

V. 4 Give unto us] Give order, that in the division of the land of Canaan, every one of us may be received by the poll. see Jos. 17. 4.

V. 12 Abarim] It was a long row of mountains, amongst which was mount Nebo, Deut: 32, 49. and upon that the top of Pisgah, Deut. 3: 27: and 34: 1: where Moses dyed.

V. 13 Gathered] see Num. 20. 21.

V. 14 In Kadesh] This is added, to distinguish this strife, wherein also Moses did offend from the other strife in Rephidim, Exod. 17. 7. in which he did not participate of the peoples sinne.

V. 16 Of the spirits] Who onely hast created the soules of men, framing them and inspiring them with thy gifts, according to thy will; for to imploy them in severall vocations.

V. 17 Which may goe] May governe them at home and abroad, in peace and in warre.

V. 18 The spirit] A singular gift and inspiration of Gods holy spirit, to produce extraordinary motions, and heroicall actions in him: See Gen 41. 38. Judg: 3: 10: and 11; 29: 1 Sam. 16. 13, 18. And lay] To consecrate him to God, and likewise to imprint in him a new increase of spirit proportionable to the new charge which is conferred upon him; see Deut. 34. 9.

V. 19 Set him] To cause him to be acknowledged, and accepted of by all.

V. 20 And thou shalt put] This outward ceremony of laying on the hands, shall bee accompanied by me, with a new gift of my spirit, in heroicall qualities, which shall appeare in his carriage, look and gestures, to gaine him the same authority and respect which thou hast with the people; see Nu. 11. 17. 25. 1 Sa. 10. 6. 9.

V. 21 Shall stand] In all doubtfull and difficult businesses, and enterprises; see Jos. 9. 14. Judg. 1. 1. and 20. 18. 1 Sam. 23. 9. and 30. 7. After the judgement] That is to say, by way of oracle; seeing that the high Priest having Urim and Thummim about him, gave answers in Gods name, which were of infallible truth, and made a supream determination; see Exod. [...]. 15, 30. Ezt; 2▪ 63. Before the Lord] Before the Tabernacle, turning his face towards the Arke, or presenting himself before him by prayer. At his word] namely the high Priest.

CHAP. XXVIII. VIRS. 4.

AT even] The Italian hath, Between the two evens] see Ex. 1 [...] 6.

V: 6 wh [...]ch was] Which was ordained, and used for sometime, and afterwards was intermitted in the desert, as many other ceremonies, which had been ordained, [Page] Amos 5. 25. Acts 7. 42.

V. 7. In the holy place] In the court, neere the comming in of the Tabernacle, where the Altar was, Exo. 29. 42.

V. 15. One kidde of the Goates] The Italian, A hee Goat] See Lev. 42. 23. Num. 15. 24.

*V. 16. The fourteenth [*See upon Exo. 12. 6.

V. 23. In the morning] Under which is also understood that of the evening: but this only is named, because it was the first, from which the solemnitie began.

V. 26. After your weekes] That seven weekes which was from Easter to Pentecost, Leviticus 23. 15. 16.

CHAP. XXIX. VERS. 18.

AFTER the manner] As it is set down v. 3, 4, 9, 10. concerning meat-offerings: And concerning drink-offerings,
Num. 28. 7, 14.

CHAP. XXX. VERS. 2.

TO bind his soule] Voluntarily submitting his person to divine punishment, if he did faile in his vow, and breake his promise. Some understand these words for vows of abstinence; and mortifying ones selfe, for some reasonable and lawful respect towards Gods service, See v. 13. 1 Sam. 14. 24. He shall not breake] So it be not against the will of God, as Mark. 6. 23, 26. Acts 23. 14.

V. 3. A woman] By which ought also to be understood every childe, servant, or any other person, that is subject unto another bodies will.

V. 5. In the day] Without delaying it any longer than one whole day: v. 14. Shall forgive her] shal not impute it to her for a sin, and if it be, he shall pardon it, seeing it was not her default, that the vow was not accomplished.

V. 6. If she had at all an husband] After she had bound her selfe by a vow made in her fathers house; so ought this precept again to be distinguished from the other, v. 10.

V. 13. To afflict] By some fast, or other voluntary abstinence, Lev. 16. 29. Others to the affliction of her soule; that is to say, to be punished by God in her person, in case she breake h [...]r promise.

V. 15. Her iniquity] If there be any, as it might happen if the husband should for some unlawful respects gainsay his wife.

CHAP. XXXI. VERS. 2.

AVenge] For their malignant and fraudulent injurie, of bringing them to idolatry, the meanes of thei [...] women which were suborned thereunto, Num. 25. 2. and 31. 16: The Midianites] the Moabites were also partakers in this misdeed; See upon Num. 22. 4. and 25. 1. but the Lord wa [...] pleased to spare them [...] Deu. 2. 9.

V. 3. The Lord] Who had been wronged in his glory and service, through this idolatry, procured by the Midianites.

V. 6. Instruments] The Arke with all their furniture, which sometimes was carried to the wars, Num. 14. 44. Jos. 6. 9. 1 Sam. 4. 4. and 14. 18. Or only the sacred Ephod, with Urim and Thummim, for to inquire of the Lord, as the occurences and necessities of the war required, as 1 Sam. 23. 9. and 30. 7. according to the command, Num 27. 21.

V. 7. All the males] According to the order of war, established by God himself, Deut. 20. 13. Judg. 21. 11. 1 Sam. 27. 9. 1 Kings 11. 15, 16. in the wars against other nations save the Amorites, who were to be destroyed according to the manner of the injunction, without any distinction.

V. 8. The Kings] See Num. 22. 4. Balaam] See Num. 24. 25.

V. 10. Wherein they dwelt] Over all the precincts of their country.

V. 12. Neere Jericho] See Num. 22. 1.

V. 14. Was wroth] Either because that Gods command, Deu. 20. 13. to destroy women also, was already published, or because the souldiers had not taken notice of the end of this service, which was to punish the enemies for misleading the people by the meanes of women.

V. 18. Keep alive] For to be your servants or slaves.

V. 20. Rayment] Of the prey or spoile; Goats haire] whereof in old times was made a kind of course cloth, for tents or souldiers coates, coverings for carriage, &c. See Exo. 25. 4. and 26. 7.

V. 21. This is] This manner of purifying by the water of separation, is a common ordinance for all such like uncleannesses, Num. 19. 12. 15. 19. but I as high Priest, do now enjoyn you a particular one by fire, in signe of extreame abomination of that, whereto these mettals had been employed and made use of amongst the Midianites.

V. 28. Of five hundred] According to the proportion of tithes; for the Levites took the tenth of the fruits of the earth, of the people, & the Priests took the of Levites the tenth of the tenth, Num. [...]8. 26. So the Levites had here one of fifty, and the Priests one of five hundred.

V. 32. Being the rest] After the slaughter of the males and the females which had known man, & some waste which might be made by the army in its return, and whilst it lay without the campe.

V. 41. As the Lord] Either being a new and singular command, which he had received from God for this action, as v. 47. or because that Moses did bring it in as by necessary consequence, from that which God had commanded in g [...]nerall, Num. 18. 8.

V. 50, Therefore] We offer him this oblation of gold, [Page] for an acknowledgement, that through his grace he hath miraculously preserved us all from the dangers of war, and brought us home again healthfull and safe, though we had given occasion enough to cause us to perish, Exo. 30. 12.

V. 52 Shekels] A weight, or coine of halfe an ounce, Exo, 30. 13.

V. 54. Memoriall] See upon Exo. 30. 16.

CHAP. XXXII. VERS. 1.

For cattell] Abounding in pasture.

V. 4. Before] By discomfiting of the King and his army, he hath given his people the countrey

V. 7. Discour [...] ge ye] By your example, cont [...]nting your selves with the land which is already conquered, and for feare lest they should be too weake for the conquest [...]f Canaan, losing your great number.

V. 11. Followed me] See upon Num. 14. 24.

V. 12 The K [...] nezite▪ Descended from one Kenaz, head of that family, b [...]ing of the tribe of Judah, as Cal [...]b was, see Jos. 15. 17. 1 Chr. 4. 13.

V. 14. An inc [...] ease] Or an addition, which heapes [...]p the measure of your fathers sins: Or a swarme an [...] multitude.

V. 17. But we] That number of us, as shall be thought needfull to assist them in their wars & conquests, Jos. 4. 13. leaving the rest to safeguard our countrey from the neighbouring people, see Jos. 22 8.

V. 19. Fallen to us] Not by lot as to the other tribes, but by Moses his absolute & only appointment, Deu. 3. 12, 13. Jos. 13. 8. 24. 29.

V. 20. Before the Lord] Before the Arke, which was a visible signe of Gods presence, and conduct, see Jos. [...].

13: so God is set forth as a great generall or head of an Army, in the middle battaile, or in the arreare thereof.

V. 22: Before the Lord] Lawfully, as by his authority and gift, and happily, as having God always present in favour and blessing.

V. 23. Will find you out] You will never escape the punishment due for it.

V. 30. They shall have] Let them be constrained to come and conquer the rest of the land with the rest of the people, without attributing to themselves any propriety in the land of this side Jordan.

V. 33. Unto h [...]lfe] This halfe tribe was joynd to the other two tribes, because that of their own proper motion, and with their own forces, they made the conquest described, v. 39.

V. 34. Built] The I [...]alian, Re-edified] for many of them h [...] been ruined by the wars, see Num. 21. 27.

V. 36, Beth-nimra] Called also by the name of Nimr [...], v. 3.

V. 38. Being chang [...]d] In detestation of the Idols, whose names these Cities did beare, for Nebo was an Idol of the Chaldeans, Isay 46. 1. and Baal of the Amorites, see Exo. 23. 13. Psal. 16. 4. Hos. 2. 17. Yet it appeareth by Jos. 13. 17, 20. that the ancient custome did overcome, and the old names did remain; Shibmah] called Shebam, v. 3.

V. 41. The Son] By the 1. Chron. 2. 22, it appeareth that this Jair, came from Judah by the fathers side, and that his grand mother only was a Manassite: But whether he were adopted into that Tribe, or whether hee joyned himselfe with his kins-folks the Manassites, in this enterprise; he was always numbred amongst thē: Thereof] from the Amorites, v. 39. called also Geshurites, and Sirians, or Ar [...]mites, 1 Chro. 2. 23.

V. 42. Nobah] This man is mentioned no where else, but it is very likely [...]hat he was some of the heads of the halfe tribe of Manasseh.

CHAP. XXXIII. VERS. 31.

BEne-Jaakan] A name abbreviated from Beeroth-Bene-Jaakan, the wells of the sons of Jaakan, Deu. 10. 6.

V. 44. Jie-Abarim] The Italian hath it, The tops of Abarim] see upon Num. 21. 11.

V. 45. *D [...]*bon *G [...]*d] It should seeme that this place was so n [...]med, after the country was conquered to dist [...]nish it from another Dibon, which fell to Reuben, J [...]s. 13. 17.

V. 49. Abel-shittim] The plaine of Shittim, and it seemes to be the same place which is plainely called Shittim, Num. 25. 1.

CHAP. XXXIV. VERS 3.

SALT sea] The sulphurous, and bituminous lake of Sodom, see Gen. 14. 3. Contrary to the other lakes of Palestine, which are of fresh water: Eastward] at the end of this sea of Sodome, the Eastern, and Southerne bounds [...] m [...]e [...].

V. 4. Hazar Addar] Jos. 15. 3. there are two distinct Cities H [...]z [...]n, and Addar, it may be they wer [...] two neighbouring Cities, or but one City divided into two pa [...]ts, wh [...]reby the names come to be joyned.

V. 5 The River] The Italian, The tor [...]ent] a little river which p [...]rted Palestine and Egypt, & went out into the s [...], [...]t a City called Riv [...]cotura, and is called Sihor, Jos. 13. 3. which in the Hebrew is the same name as Nilus, wherefore some beleeve that it was a branch of it, but the distance of the place will not suffer it, At the sea] namely the Mediterranean sea, called here below, the great sea, to make a distinction betweene it and the lakes of Palestina, which are also called S [...]as.

V. 6 For a border] The Italian, The great sea and his borders] the meaning of these words may be, that the sea did bound the land of Canaan on the Westerne side, from one end to the other, to the bounds of the Country Northward and Southward: Or that within this bound [Page] were contained the circumstances of the sea it selfe, as certain Islands, and some way within the sea, according to the custome of the Countries bordering upon the sea, and other waters; having therein right of fishing, custome, passage, &c. See Jos. 23 23, 27. and 15. 12.

V. 7. Hor] This is another Hor, and not that which is spoken of Num 20. 22. where Aaron died, for that was [...]n the East side of Canaan, and this on the North side, and it seemeth to be the same as is called Hermon, Deuter. 3. 9. Jos. 13. 5. and was a long ridge of hills, wherof one part peradventure was called Hor, the other parts Senir, Syrion, Sion, Misai, Deu. 3. 9. and 4. 48 Ps [...]. 42. 6. and therefore: the generall name is also sometimes expressed in the plurall number Hermonim, that is to say the Hermonian hills.

V. 11. On the East side of Ain] The Italian hath it, Over against the fountain] the Ancients have here understood the great and delicious fountain Daphnis, which was neere unto Antioch, and is here call'd Ribla, which went out into Jordan: Some take this fountaine to be the spring of Jordan, which cannot so well be; Chinnereth] this is the lake called in the new Testament, the sea or lake of Genezareth, or Tiberias.

CHAP. XXXV. VERS. 2.

SUburbs, &c.] They were certain spaces of ground, about the cities, for pastures, orchards, gardens, flocks, countrey houses and other petty countrey commodities, which ought not to be tilled nor planted with vines, because the Levites were to have no such lands, nor yet employ themselves in tilling the ground, Num. 18. 20, 24.

V. 4. A thousand] Drawing foure lines, of a thousand cubits a piece from the foure sides of the wals of the city, and then measuring the length from one end of the lines to the other end opposite against it, which will be two thousand cubits to make a perfect square.

V. 6. The manslayer] Having done it unawares.

V. 12. From the avenger] The Italian hath it, From him that hath right to avenge] That is the neeres [...] of kinn [...], to whom by reason of consanguinity it belongeth [...] prosecute the manslayer in judgement, who also [...]ing the mansl [...]yer in a place by chance, from whence he may not b [...] brought before a Magistrate, may lawfully [...]y him; In judgement] to justifie his innecency [...] [...] and unwilling mansla [...], [...]ter. The [...] [...] Magist [...]ate or councill of Judges established in every great city to decide capitall matters, which according to some, were three & twenty in number, and according to others, seventeen.

V. 16. Smite him] Though peradventure without any intent, yet he may not make use of the freedom; because that smiting in that kind, he might and ought to have foreseen the danger of the blow.

V. 17. Throwing a stone] Throwing it out of his hand, or out of a sling [...]; opposite to stones thrown down unawares, v. 23.

V. 19. Shall stay] Shall procure by way of justice to let him have his deserved death; *He me [...]*e [...]] whether he be moved by su [...]daine w [...]a [...], or that he meet him in a place whence he cannot bring him before a publick judge.

V. 22. Suddenly] The Italian, Unawares] by some chance, sodainly, it not laying in his power to beware or to prevent it.

V. 27 Not be guilty] In civill and human justice, for otherwise the ma [...]aughter being proved to be casual and unwillingly done, conscience did not permit the next kinsman to take revenge, Deu. 19. 10. But this exemption served to impose a necessity upon the unwilling manslayer, to observe the order established by God, for his safety, flying to a place of freedom. The I [...]lian hath, Fo [...] suffering to fly to the city of his refuge]

V. 32. For him that is fled] My safeguard ought not to be sold nor exchanged for money: others translate it; You shall not take money (of him that is to fly to the City of refuge) to let him return, &c.

V. 33. Shall not pollute] Make it not a place or theater of misdeeds, nor a receipt for all offenders. For a place is sanctified or polluted by those that dwell in it, and by the deeds that are done in it.

V. 34. I dwell] The Italian, I will dwell] in the signes and sacraments of my power, and in the continual effects of my vertue, wherefore I ought to be obeyed in my commands, and reverenced in mine Image, which I have imprinted in man; being not able to suffer violence before mine eyes.

CHAP. XXXVI. VERS. 4.

The Jubile] At which time all were restored to their goods which they had alienated.

V. 7 For eve [...] y one] This law hath a regard to the distinction aswel [...] of per [...]ons as goods, that the goods of one tribe, may not p [...]sse over to the other, and likewise that no persons may leave their own tribe, to joyn unto another, by reason of thes [...] inherita<sup>ce</sup>s, see Ch. 23. 22.

V. 8. Every man] Generally in every tribe.

THE FIFTH BOOK OF MOSES called Deuteronomy.

THE ARGUMENT.

THis Book was by the Greeks called Deuteronomy; that is, Repetition of the Law. Because that in it Moses sets downe, how after he had conducted the people of Israel unto the confines of Canaan, through a long Pilgrimage in the wilderness, for the space of forty yeares, knowing by divine Revelation that the time of his end drew neare, he imployed the two last moneths of his life in rehearsing unto the people, in publike sermons, what things had happened unto them in the Wilderness, that they might remember them for their owne instruction, and amendment, for to provide for like casual ies in time to come. Putting them in mind of Gods singular and inestimable benefits: and on the other side of their rebellion, hardnesse, diffidency, murmurings, and perpetuall ingratitude: whereby God was moved to execute upon them most severe judgements, and vengeances; even so farre, as to cause that great number of their forefathers, set down at their first comming out of Egypt to dye all in the wilderness. And therefore with a pastorall providence, and care, and even out of the entrailles of fatherly tendernesse, he againe sets Gods Lawes before them, with most part of the Ordinances, and dependences of it, confirming, expounding, and laying it open in many heads; and pressing the observation of it, by many weighty and lively denuntiations, and exhortations, as by a last discharge of his conscience, and a solemne act of protestation to all the people, who being now ready to enter into the Land of Canaan, might cause Gods grace and blessing to be firme and lasting unto them, by keeping of his Covenant. Whereas, doing the contrary, they would put away their God from them, and call all his curses upon them, which Moses through a Prophetick spirit fore-telleth them, appoynting expresse formularies or presidents of both of them; (namely curses and blessings) to be publikely pronounced in the land of Canaan, in the presence, and with the consent of all the people. Then afterwards hee solemly reneweth the Covenant with the Lord, and taketh a promise for the performance of it: with threatning to the transgressors tempered notwithstanding with promises of grace, and pardon to all those that through Gods visitations and corrections should be called to repentance. Besides, hee appoynteth all these books which were written by him, to be kept by the Levites; and every seven yeares to be read openly in the generall assembly of all the people. And by Gods command he composeth a Canticle, the subject of which are all the aforesayd things to bee for common use, for a [Page] perpetuall testimony and instruction. At the last after hee had prophesied what things should happen to the people, he dyeth, leaving Ioshuah to be his successor, having already consecrated him, and given him all necessary instructions, and commands.

ANNOTATIONS.

CHAP. I. VERS. 1.

I N the plaine] Of Moab, which was at the head of the great wilderness. The red sea] The Italian hath it, Zuph] This indeed is the Hebrew name for the red or Arabian sea, but because the great distance of the place cannot suffer this place to be so understood, wee must believe that here it is the name of some place not mentioned elsewhere, save onely Numbers 21. 14: As likewise the foure last names are not found any where else; for this Haseroth doubtlesse is not the same place which is mentioned in the eleventh chapter of Numbers and thirty fifth verse. See Numb. 33. 18.

V. 2 There are] This seemeth to be here inserted, to shew that the cause of the peoples long abode in the wilderness, was not by reason of the tediousnesse or length of the journey, but onely through Gods judgement, who had caused them to remaine there. Num. 14. 34.

V. 3 In the fortieth] After the comming out of Egypt, which was the beginning of the calculation of the number of yeares amongst the Jewes, Exodus 40. 2.

V. 6 Long enough] Because they had been there about a yeare, Exodus Chap. 19. verse 1. Numb. 10. 11.

V. 7 To the mount] Here are set downe the foure bounds of the Land of Canaan; the mount of the Amorites on the East-side; the sea-coast on the West, Lebanon on the North, and the south Countrey of Palestine, on the South side. And within those bounds lay that countrey, divided into fieldcountrey; namely vales for corne, hills, and plaines; that [...] say, low grounds for Meadows and Pa [...] [...] This River was not a bound for [...] owne Countrey in which they dwelt, for [...] [...]ds were farre shorter on that North-side, Numbers Chapter 34. vese 7. But it was a bound of the Land which God gave them right to subdue, and make tributary, which was performed in the dayes of David and Solomon; Genesis, chapter 15. verse 18. Exodus, chapter 23. verse 31. 2 Samuel chap. 8. verse 3. 1 Kings chap. 4. verse 21.

V. 13 Knowne] or wel experienced, or famous and renowned.

V. 15 The chiefe] In gifts, qualities, reputation, authority, and some preheminance of rank.

V. 17 The judgement] God is the supream Judge, and yee are but his Ministers, who cannot at your pleasures pronounce what sentence you please, but must follow that rule in judging, that hee hath prescribed you, either by his Law, or by some internal inspiration, and inward feeling of your owne conscience.

V. 31 Bare thee] As taking upon himselfe the whole charge of you, and of your wants, bearing you up through his power, and helping you through his goodnesse.

V. 36 Caleb] Under whom Joshuah is also comprehended, verse the eight and thirtieth, Num, 14. 30.

V. 44 As Bees doe] Comming out of their Hives in great swarmes, encompassing the offender, Psal. 118. 1 [...].

V. 46 Yee abode] After the returne of the spies. Many] Fourty dayes and more. Abode there] Untill the returne of the spies. Others for many dayes, according to the dayes that ye did abide there.

CHAP. II. VERS. 1.

MOunt seir] Under the name of this Mountaine, which is a principall part of Idumea, are comprehended all the other mountaines of the said Countrey, about which the people went wandring, after God had condemned them to goe back againe into the wilderness. For Ezion Gabe, [Page] which is upon the red sea, verse the eighth, was also of the countrey of Edom. 1 Kings, chap. 9. verse 26. 2 Chron. chap. 8. verse 17. Many dayes] For the space of eight and thirty yeares, verse 7. and 14.

V. 3 Northward] Turne you towards the Moabites Countrey, North-ward from the red Sea, to which the people was come backe againe.

V. 5 Meddle not with them] Namely the Idumeans, named especially. For otherwise the Amalekites, though they were of the Idumean race, Gen. chap. 36. verse 16. were to bee invaded and destroyed. Exodus Chap. 17. verse 14. Deuteron chap. 25. verse 17.

V. 8. Wee passed by] Using no manner of hostility towards those Idumeans, which had given a free passage; and turning away from them which had refused it us: See Numbers, chapter 20. verse 21. Deuteron. chapter 2. verse [...]9. Through the way] He poynts out the principall parts of the east of Idumea, through which, after Ezion-Gaber, which was the south part thereof, they passed, coasting and crossing the Countrey, without doing any dammage in it. The playne] Which seemeth to bee the same which is called the plaine of Paran, Gen. chapter 14. verse 6. We turned] Whereas our direct way was to goe crosse the Idumeans Countrey; by reason of their refusall wee bent our course towards the countrey of Moab.

V. 9 Ar] A name of the chiefe City of the Moabites, Numbers, chapter 21. verse 28. under which name is understood the whole Countrey. Of Lot] See the nineteenth chapter of Gen. and the seven and thirtieth verse.

V. 10 The Emims] A race of Giants, Genesis chap. 14. verse 5. The Hebrew word signifieth terrible. And many] The Italian hath it, mighty] or numerous.

V. 12 As Israel did] This, and some other parcells scattered here and there, seeme to have beene added to Moses his words after the conquest of the land of Canaan. See Deuteron. chap. 34. verse 5.

V. 14 From Kadesh] This ought to be understood of the first time that they arrived to that place, Numbers, chap. 13. verse 27. Because they came th [...]her another time, Numbers, chapt. 20. verse 1.

V. 20. Zan-zummims] T [...]y seeme to bee the same as are called Z [...]zites, Genesis, chapt. 14. verse 5. And this name may signifie w [...]ked.

V. 23 Caphtorims] Were a peop [...] joynd both in kindred and habitation with the Philist [...], G [...]. chap. 10. verse 13 Jer. chap. 47 verse 4. Amos ch. 9. verse 7. Whereby oftentimes one nation is taken for the other. The ancients have by thi [...] name understood the Cappadocians; as if the Philistims and the Caphtorims were come from the Cappadocians: which seemeth to agree with Jerem. chapt. 47. verse 4. where Caphtor is called an Iland; that is to say, a land on the other side of the sea.

V. 28 On my feet] The Italian hath it, With my company; see Num. 20. 19.

V. 29 As the] See upon Num. 20 21. How this agreeth with that which is written in that place. Moabites] see Numbers 21. 20. where also that apparent contrariety which is between these passages, and Deut. 23. 3. 4. Judg. 11. 17, 18. is reconciled.

V. 30 *Hardn [...]*d] See Ex 4. 21.

V. 34 Destroyd] By Gods command. Deut. 7. 2. and 20. 16.

V. 36 *A [...]*oer] which was the confine of the Moabites. *The Ci [...]*y] Called Ar; standing upon an Island, encompassed with this five, Mum. 21. 15. 28. Jos. 12. 2. and 13. 9.

CHAP. III. VERS. 9.

SYrion] Called also Sion by abbreviation, Deut. 4. 48. See upon Num. 34. 7.

V. 11 For onely] This seemes to bee added, to shew tha. Og being once overcome, all the whole country was conquered: for of many Giants beyond Jordan, which had reigned in that countrey, hee alone remained, having invaded other countries, after he had overcome the people in battaile. After the Cubit] That is to say, an ordinary and common cubit, as a mans cubit who is of ordinary growth, and compleat age. See Rev. 21. 17.

V. 14 Geshuri] This people was in Syria towards the north of Canaan. 2 Sam. chap. 15. verse 8. and were not driven out by the children of Is [...], Joshuah, chapter 13. verse 13. Bashan-Havoth-Iair] The Italian hath it, Bashan of the townships of Iair] Namely th [...]t part of Bashan, where the townships of [...] stand.

V 15 Gilead] The Italian Galaad] A part of that hilly Countrey; see Num 32. 39. which was also properly so called, Gen. 31. [...]1, 48. and from that the name of Gilead was given to the country thereabout, verse 12.

V. 16 Half the valley] The Italian hath it, In the middle of the ri [...]er] Even unto Ar, a City of Moab, which had not beene conquered by Sihon, wherefore it was not taken in by Israel, nor granted unto them by the Lord, Deu. 2. 9. and was situate in an Island in the middle of the river

Arnon, Deut 2. 36. Ios. 12. 2. & 13 9. so that the countrey of these two Trib [...], ended at the walls of Ar. A [...] d the border] see how this ought to be understood, Num. [...]4. 6.

V. 17 Of the plaine] Namely of Jordan, Gen. 13. 10. [Page] which plaine after the destruction of Sodom came to be a Sea: that is to say a great salt pitchie, and s [...]lphurous lake: Gen. 14. 3. Num. 34. 3. Ashdoth Pisgah] the name of a City, Jos. 13. 20. Others construe it, the coasts, or hanging sides of Pisgah, which was a hill, from which the valley took its name: see Num. 20. 21 and 23 14

V. 18 I commanded you] Namely the two Tribes, who had gotten their parts beyond Jordan. All that are meet] What number shall be thought fitting and sufficient, leaving the rest to keep the Country: see Jos. 1. 14. and 4. 13.

V. 20 Rest] A settled and peaceable abode.

V. 26 For your sakes] For the people had vexed Moses his spirit with their murmurings, and being thus perplexed, he sinned: Psa. 106. 32, 33

V. 27 Pisgah] See Num. 27. 12.

V. 28 Strengthen him] With exhortations, counsellis, and promises &c.

V. 29 Beth-Peor] or the Temple of Peor, or of Baal-peor, idoll of the Ammonites: Num. 25. 3. Name of the place or City, which was the chief seat of this idolatry.

CHAP. IV. VERS 6.

For this is] This may be understood of the Law of God in it self, which is the light and rule of all wisdom: Or of the observing of the Law, which is the true wisdom in practice, the true disposer of the soul, to attaine unto the last end of soveraigne welfare.

V. 7 What Nation is there so great] Namely a whole and entire Nation: For there were some particular and small kindreds, or families amongst idolatrous people, which served the true God, as that of Job. Melchisedeck and Jethro &c. So nigh] Present in the efficacy of his grace and power, and in the pawnes, tokens, and shewes of his Majesty, and ready to help and assist. That we call] The Italian, Whensoever we call] Or in any thing we desire from him: Psal. 46. 2. and 148. 14

V. 1 [...] Miast of heaven] That is to say, in the midst of the aire.

V. 15 Unto your selves] The Italian hath it, Upon your soules] As you love your lives, and regard the salvations of your soules or persons: Or for feare lest your bodies do beare the punishment for it.

V 16 Corrupt] By inclining unto, or participating of idolatry, which is the spirituall whoredome, contrary to the purity of conscience in Gods service. Of any figure] Or God absolutely none at all, nor yet of any other creature, to consecrate it, or to fasten any opinion of Deity upon it, or to attribute any religious honour unto it, see Exo. 20. 4, 5

V. 17 Any beast] Because that the Egyptians and other heathens, did represent and worship the God-head in such shapes, and figures of beasts, Rom. 1. 23

V. 19 Hath divided] The meaning is: They are meere creatures; and therefore ought not to be set in the Creators place. God hath created them for mans use & service, it is therefore an unworthy thing for man to submit himself to them, by worshipping, which is the basest manner of serving. The use, and effect of them are common to all men: therefore it is unseemely for the Church, which hath this advantage to have her peculiar God, to prostrate her selfe to serve creatures which are common to all: see Deuter. 29. 26.

V. 20 Furnace] A place of cruell affliction, for to trie and purifie. A terme taken from founders and refiners of metals. Of inheritance] Which I have taken, and gotten to my selfe, as a proper and particular inheritance for ever, from father to son: Exo. 19. 5. Deut. 7. 6. Tit. 2. 14.

V. 22 But I must] Seeing that according to Gods irrevocable decree I must die shortly, I am bound to make these last protestations unto you, to keep you in obedience after my death: see 2 Pet. 1. 14, 15

V. 26 I call] The Italian, I take] A kinde of publick denunciation and protestation used in Scripture for a provocation, and an upbraiding of mens wilfull dulnesse: Deuteron. 32. 1. Isa. 1. 2. Jerem. 2. 12. and 6. 19

V. 30 In the latter] In the end, after a long time of suffering or towards the end of the time of Gods patience, before he shall shut up the gates of repentance. Others understand this of the Messias his days, which are the latter times of the world, as Ho [...]. 1. Cor. 10. 11. and do believe that here is pointed at, the great and last conversion of the Jews.

V. 33 Heare] Hath been able to endure the presence of Gods glorious Majesty without being consumed and sunke: see Exo. 24. 11. and 33. [...]

V. 34 Hath God] Or any God amongst the false Gods of the Gentiles. Assayed] An excellent and admirable effect of Gods infinite power, to confound his enemies boldnesse, which have presumed to make triall of it.

V. 37 In his sight] The Italian hath it, With his sight] With the immediate presence of his son, who is called the Angel of his presence: Isa. 63. 9 see Exod. 33. 14, 15. Psa. 44. 4

V. 42 He might live] He might have secure freedom, out of danger of the encounter or meeting of the nearest Kinsman, who was the avenger of the bloud.

V. 44 This is the] These verses serve for a preface to the Laws, which are contained in the chapters following.

V. 48 Sion] An abbreviation of the name Sirion: Deut. 3. 9

The Lord] God hath reserved for these your times the establishment of his service, and of the externall forme of his Church, and Sacraments and ceremonies of the same; by which he hath more streightly sanctified his people unto himselfe, and severed them from the world, and sealed his promises and Covenant unto them: which is in substance the same with their fathers; but the distribution of it is now more expresse and authentically.

V. 4 Face to face] As present with present: not that the people did see any likenes: Deut. 4. 12. but without any rapture of minde, having their senses free, they did hear distinct voices, which happened to the people but that one time: but it was afterward ordinary with Moses: Exo. 33. 11. Num. 12. 8

V. 15 Therefore] This reason which was touched no where else, is referred to the two generall ends of the Sabbath, which are the sanctification of the people; pointed at by the rest: Exo. 31. 13. Ezech. 20. 12. and the equity of giving men and beasts respice from their labours. Now the deliverance out of Egypts chiefe end was the liberty to do Gods service; and the people for that notable benefit was tyed and bound to give their servants some interchangeable ease.

V. 22 Added no more] He did speak and pronounce unto the people the Decalogue himselfe immediatly; the rest of the Law was given to Moses, according to the people own desire and request: Exo. 20. 19.

V. 24 [...] talke] That he tempereth his terrible and glorious presence, with his grace and favour towards his people, so that they are able to endure it, without being overthrown and consumed by it: Exo. 24. 11. and 33. 20.

V. 25 Why should we] Since God hath witnessed that he will be propitious to us, we pray him to regard our infirmity, which findeth it self incapable of any longer enduring his terrible presence: and that he will be pleased to accept of thee as a Mediator between him and us. A document, that man without a Mediator, cannot with confidence be admitted to God: now Moses was here a type of Christ. Deut. 18. 16. Gal. 3. 19, 20

V. 29 Would feare me] Because that this feare, is a true preparative to faith and obedience; and is the true teacher of humility: Prov. 28. 14. 2 Cor. 5. 11. Jude 23

CHAP. VI. VERS. 1.

The commandements] This word seemeth to have a reference especially to the morall Law, the word statutes to the ceremoniall, ordinances to the politick or judiciall; though this distinction do not hold alwayes.

V. 7 Teach them diligently] The Italian, Presse or repeat often] The Hebrew word signifieth to whet or sharpen, so by similitude it is taken for teaching diligently and earnestly.

V. 13 Swear] Do this religious act, onely by the name of the only true God, and not by the name of any idoll; when thou shalt have occasion to do it lawfully: see Psal. 63. 11. Isa. 45. 23. and 65. 16. Jer. 4. 1. and 12. 16.

V. 16 Not tempt] Take heed of seeking to make a trial of God at your own pleasures, through rashnesse, curiosity, or unbelief; to judge whether he be truly such as he hath declared himself to be, or to induce him to do something contrary to it: and through hipocrisie and boldnesse, make a finall triall of his patience, and provoke his wrath. But, do you ground all your actions upon faith, and upon certaine persuasions of the truth of his nature and sacred will: and rule your selves by an humble obedience; doing what you ought to do, because you know that he is such, and that such is his will; and do not what you please, to know whether he be truly such or no.

V. 25 It shall be] God out of his fatherly benignity, shall accept from us, his children, this endeavour to keep his Law, instead of a perfect justice; which in regard of the infirmity of our nature, and imperfection of our sanctification, it is impossible for us to accomplish. 1 Kin. 8. 46. Prov. 20. 9. Ja. 3. 2. 1 John 1. 8. And therefore all this discourse ought to be referred to the new obedience, ruled by Gods Law, and brought forth in his children by his Spirit, after they have been justified by grace, and have received the gift of regeneration. Which is the plainer, because that the most part of these statutes were confessions, remedies, and expiations of sin.

CHAP: VII. VERS: 7.

MOre in number] As in worldly Kingdomes, dominion over a great and powerfull nation, is more esteemed than the dominion over a little and feeble one, seeing greater glory, profit and service is to be expected from it. And according to this quality, may be valued and rated all other qualities, which amongst men may incite others to love or desire any thing.

V. 10 To their face] As an enemy withstanding him face to face, or openly, as they do, who by reason of their great powers do work their revenges openly, not privately, and by wiles. Or thus; shaming them by the reproach of their impiety.

V. 16 A snare] A meanes, and occasion of ruine, and perdition.

V. 22 By little, and little] He will not employ his omnipotency therein, to work against them in an instant, without meanes; but he will do according to the quality of humane meanes, which he will make use of herein, [Page] which is to worke by succession of time, and by the order and pursuite of the issues.

V. 25. Snared therein] Subtilly, and unawares brought into some idolatry, and so brought within the compasse of punishment.

V. 26 Lest thou be] Lest thou be irremissibly condemned to utter destruction, as the idols and all their substance, are to be rooted out.

CHAP. VIII. VERS. 2.

TO know] A humane kinde of speaking, for God hath no need of triall to know by signes or effects, that which he seeth in the springs, affections, and motions of the heart. But it is to shew that God discovering the secrets of the heart, openeth the way for the works of his providence, either in justice or in mercy.

V. 3 By every word] Namely by any thing, to which God shall bee pleased to grant the power of nourishing. Or by the onely issuing forth of his power, called in the Scripture, word: without using of any externall meanes, in which sense this passage is alleaged: Mat. 4. 4.

V. 4 Waxed not old] This happened by miracle, as also the preservation of their bodies in full health, and vigour: Deuteronomy 34. 7. Josh. 14. 11. Psal. 105. 37.

V. 7 Depths] Great and deep springs.

V. 8 Oyle olive] Olives wherewith oyle is made: differing from your wilde olive trees which are barren.

V. 9 Whose stones] Which aboundeth in metall mines.

V. 16 Humble thee] This ought not to be referred to the next words, of water and Manna; but to the words which went before, of the voyage in the wilderness.

V. 18 To get wealth] The Italian, To carry thy selfe valiantly] Or for to get wealth.

CHAP. IX. VERS. 3.

VVHich goeth over] In the tokens of his presence, in the Arke of the Covenant, and all the appurtenances thereof, like a Generall: see upon Num. 1. 53. Jos. 3. 6.

V. 10 Of the Assembly] The generall Assembly of the people to receive the Law: Exod. 19. 17.

V. 18 As at the first] Namely the first time that I was upon the mount: Exodus 32. 11. So it is likely that he was three times upon the mount within the time of forty dayes. The first, when he received the Law: Exodus [...]4. 18. The second, when he made intercession for the people: Exodus 32. 30, 31. And the third, when he received the new Tables: Exodus 34. 28.

V. 21 Your sin] The matter, the object, and the instrument of your idolatry: which is the greatest of all sins: see Hos. 10. 10.

CHAP. X. VERS. 1.

AN Arke] Some take it to be some little chest or coffer to lay these tables in, for a time, untill the Arke of the Covenant was made, where they were to be kept alwayes: Exod. 25. 16. 21. and 31. 7. Others take it to be the very Arke of the Covenant, as if Moses did set down the thing thus generally without observing the order of times, and with this seemeth to agree that which is spoken: v. 5.

V. 6 Mosera] This is not Moserot: Num. 33. 30. and it is not mentioned in any other place, and by the circumstance of Aarons death, it is likely that it was some place neere to the mount Hor: and that Moses having generally touched the distance from Beeroth to Mosera, he doth now divide it into some severall stages: v. 7.

V. 7 From thence] Not from Mosera, but from Beeroth.
Gudgodab] Otherwise called Horhagidgad: Num. 33. 32.

V. 8 At that time] After he was appeased with the people concerning the golden calfe.

V. 14 Behold the heaven] The Italian hath it, The heavens] Aswell this first, and nearest heaven, which is the aire, that encompasseth the earth, as the aethereall heaven, which encompasseth the aire: 1 Kings 8. 27.

V. 16 Circumcise] Let the spirituall meaning of the bodily signe of Circumcision, be set a work, cutting off your vitious naturall affections, putting off and mortifying the old man, and endlessly applying your selves to your sanctification: Deut. 30. 6. Jer. 4. 4. Rom. 2. 29. Col. 2. 11. see Lev. 26. 41. Jer. 9. 25.

V. 17 Is God] The highest true God and Lord: of whose God head and dominion, those which are called Gods, have some likeness; a false one if it be through abuse, and a true one if it be by a lawfull and approved representation: Joh. 10. 35. 1 Cor. 8. 5.

V. 21 He is thy praise] He that alwayes gives sufficient cause and matter to praise him for. Or, he who maketh thee alwayes glorious and worthy to be esteemed: Psa. 22. 4. and 109. 1. Jer. 17. 14.

CHAP: XI. VERS: 2.

FOR I speak] It belongeth to you, who have been eye witnesses of Gods great benefits, to make an acknowledgement of them: and not put off the care of it to your posterity, who having but onely heard of them; cannot be so lively touched therewith, as you are by the sight of them. Which have not] Being unborne, or very young, when the deliverance out of Egypt was; for Moses here speaks to them, who in the time of the said [Page] deliverance were under twenty yeares of age, see Num. 14. 29. The chastisement] His punishments upon the Egyptians: or his severe corrections upon his people, aswell during their captivity in Egypt, as indiverse corrections in the desert.

V. 4 Overflow] Having unbound the miraculous heape which he had made to give his people way to passe: Exo. 14. 42. 27. Unto this day] The memory & effects whereof do last unto this day, by the weakning of the power of Egypt.

V. 6 Their houtholds] The Italian, Their houses] that is to say, their families.

V. 10 For the Land] The meaning or sense, is not to preferre the Land of Canaan, for fruitfulnessse to the Land of Egypt, which was very equall to it: Gen. 13. 10. But to shew that the fruitfulnessse of the Land of Canaan did not depend upon humane art, as that of Egypt did, for the most part; but only upon Gods blessing, through raines, dewes, and other blessings from heaven, to induce the people to draw these blessings upon them through their pieties: [...] it] For it rains but very seldom in Egypt, but in stead of raine, the Land is watered at a certaine season of the yeare, through the generall out flowing of Nilus: and at other times, there are channels and small streames, de [...]iyed from Nilus to water the Land. With thy foot] Some say, this is meant by some engines, with which the water was raised up with wheeles, which were turned by mens fear, which was a fashion very much used in Egypt, as it is related in histories. Others do take it in generall for mens labours and industries, in going about such businesses.

V. 1 [...] The first] In Autumne, which was the beginning of the civill and common year, and in the spring. The first raine was to cause the corne sown to spring. The latter raine, to nourish the corne untill harvest, that it was ready to be reaped: Joel 2. 23. Amos 4. 7. Jan. 5. 7.

V. 21 As the dayes] A proverbiall kind of speech: as much as to say, for a very long time, and steadfast lastingnesse, till the appointed end: as Psalm. 72. 5. and 89. 29.

V. 24 Uttermost Sea] The Italian hath it, The Western Sea] That is the Mediterranean Sea.

V. 26 I set before you] I denounce unto you promises on the one side, and threatnings on the other; and do shew unto you the wayes that lead to the one and to the other, to instruct you in the choice which you ought to make.

V. 28 Which [...]e have not] Which are strangers to you: of whose God-head, you never had any such proofes, as you have had of your Lord Gods.

V. 30 By the way] Hebrew, behind the way; that is to say, who so goeth that way meeteth with them. The plaines]
See Gen. 12. 6.

CHAP. XII. VERS. 5.

TO put his name] To settle therein the holysignes of his graces and powerfull presence, whereby he will manifest himself unto us, as well as by his name, and lay open his glory unto us. Now those places were Siloh: Josh. 18. 1. and afterwards Jerusalem.

V. 6 Your tithes] Not those tithes which were paid to the Levites: but of another kinde which were used at your feasts of thanksgiving in solemne festivalls: v. 17. Deut. 14. 22. and 15. 19, 20. Heave offerings] Which were called first fruits also: Deuteronom. 18. 4. which was a portion taken out of the fruits of the earth, made ready, and was carried to the Priests into the Temple: after they had presented into God, in a basket the other first fruits which were not made ready: Deuteronom. 26. 2. The Jewes say, that this portion was levied out of one in fourty at least, and one of sixty at the most, because there was no expresse order for it: see Nehem. 10. 37. Vowes] Namely of sacrifices of thanksgiving offered by vow: of which one part was also assigned to the partie that offered, after the Priest had fallen out his portion Leviticus 7. 11. 31, 32. and the same is to be understood of voluntary offerings. The firstlings] Seeing every firstling of the cattel was ded cated unto God; and that part which was not burnt, did belong unto the Priests: Numbers 18 17, 18. It is to be imagined, that here, and verse 17. and, Deuteron. 15. 19, 20. are not meant your holy firstlings: but the next unto them, which were for the common use. Unlesse by firstlings we will understand the best, and choicest of the cattel verse 11.

V. 7 Shall eat] Of the sacrifices of thanksgiving. In all that] Indifferently of any thing that you have thought good to offer. Or whereon you have bestowed your labour. Or of those parts of the offerings, and sacrifices of thanksgiving, upon which you may lawfully lay your hands; that is to say, to approp [...]iate them unto your selves; for the rest belonged to the Lord.

V. 8 All the things] Because that the Laws of sacred ceremonies, were not, not could not hardly be exactly observed in the wilderness, amongst so many voyages, and scattered encampings of the people: Levit. 17. 5.

V. 15 *A [...]*deat] At common meales, not at sacred ones. Thy gates] Namely Cities or habitations. The uncleane] Of some bodily, or ceremonially uncleanesse. This is spoken for a difference of holy meates, the use of which was forbidden to the uncleane. Lev. 7. 20. *R [...]*buck] The Italian hath it, A Kid] Or sawn, which were beasts not accepted in sacrifices: see Lev. 22. 19.

V. 20 Enlarge] It is likely that in the wilderness [Page] they killed those cattel also, which were for common use by the Tabernacle, for the more strict observing of the abstaining from bloud: [...] 17. 2 [...]. 1 Sam. 14. 34. which being impossible to do in the Land of Conaa [...], by reason of the distance of places, the Lord here dispenoeth with this necessity.

V. 21 As I hate] That is to shy, spilling the bloud upon the ground, v. 16.

V. 22. Even as] For plaine common use, without any religious consecration, as was used in the feasts of sacrifices.

V. 26 Which thou hast] Out of which a certaine portion being deducted for God and for the Priest, all the remainder was for him that presented the offering: see Lev. 7. 19.

V. 27. The flesh] That portion which is assigned unto thee.

V. 30 Snared] Thou of thy self do not runne upon some occasion into idolatry. Or that thou be not induced thereunto by others. Or that thou bring not thy self within the compasse of Gods judgements, making thy selfe guilty before him: Deut. 7. 16.

V. 31 Thou shalt not do so] Beware not only of serving idols but also of serving the true God after the manner of idolaters.

CHAP. XIII. VERS. 1.

A Prophet] Any one that shall vaunt himselfe of having divine revelations by way of visions or dreames. Nu. 12. 6. either falsly or truly, if he be not sanctified by true piety, but be corrupted by idolatry: Num. 22. 7. Giveth thee] Shall foretell some accident to come at a prefixed time, to prove Gods inspiration, who only knows, and appoints things to come.

V. 3 Proveth you] Suffering through his secret judgement, the said signe, or accident to happen, to make an essay of the constancy of your faith, and obedience to his word: see Mat. 24. 24. 2 Thes. 2. 11. Rev. 13. 14. To know] To draw out, by this occasion, evident proofes of the uprightnesse, or hypocrisie of the heart, to give his judgements, power, and authority over a man so discovered. A humane kinde of speech: as Deut. 8. 2.

V. 5 The evill] As Deut. 22. 21. 24. Or the naughty and wicked man: as 1 Cor. 5. 13.

V. 6 Of thy bosome] A proverbiall kind of speech, to signifie the matrimoniall love and the place where it abideth: Genesis 16. 5. Deuteron. 28. 54. Proverb. 5. 20. Mic. 7. 5. As thine own soule] As a second selfe.

V. 8 Thine eye] It is not sufficient, not to give consent to his wicked perswasions; but you must also without any mercy, procure vengeance on him by the way of Justice, by accusing him to the Magistrates; either by information only, for to have it enquired on; or by sufficient proofe:

and in [...] be condemned, thou oughtest to be the first that shall put his condemnation into exe [...] Deuteronom
17. 6.

V. 13 Are gone out] Some from amongst you, separating themselves from the Communion of the Church, and from Gods services have caused a revolt: see 1 John 2. 19. Jude 19. Saying] We must suppose here. And the inhabitants of the City consented thereunto. And in is [...] thru whosoever did oppose himsele to that impiety, by reason of his severe commandement of punishing the City, was warned to come out of it in time, for feare of being infolded in it.

V. 16 [...] the Lord] To satisfie his Justice, and command, and to punish the [...]eason committed against his divine Majesty, and for to [...]cisie his wrath.

CHAP. XIV. VERS. 1.

The children] And therefore do not you imitate prophane nations in your mournings, who by these furious and desperate fashions, shew that they have no comfort in death, through hope of eternall life, which is given unto you, as the inheritance of your heavenly father: 1 Thess. I. 4. 13. Between your eyes] In the fore-part of your head over against that part which is betweene your eyes.

V. 3 Abominable] Which may pollute you, by that Law which I have set down to you, of the differences of meates.

V. 5 Chamois] Some translate it to bee a beast begotten betweene a camell and a panther, but wee doe not reade that beast to bee fitting for food.

V. 7 That chew the cud] Only, but divide not the hoof, nor likewise of those which divide the hoof only, and do not chew the cud.

V. 19 Every creeping thing] See an exception to this generality: Lev. 11. 21.

V. 22 Tithe] This was the second tithe, which was taken up after the Levites tithe, and was to be employed in the sacred feasts, at the three solemne festivals: Deut. 12 6. 17.

V. 23 That thou] The use of these banquets in Gods presence, was to make thee acknowledge, that thou doesthold all thy goods of his grace, and to the end thou mayest use them to his glory and honour, with thanksgiving in all sobriety, and purity, as before his eyes: which are the two principall acts of true piety.

V. 28 Tithe] Some hold it to be a third kinde of tithe which was taken up every third yeare, after the Levites [Page] Tithes, and the tithes of the holy feasts in the Temple; others will have it to be the same ithe which for two yeares was still paid to the Levites; and after the Temple was built, and that the severall orders and offices of the Levites, were established, was carryed to Jerusalem, 2 Chron. 31. 5, 6, 11, 12. and the third year every one kept it at home, and bestowed it any where indifferently upon the Levites, and the poore.

CHAP. XV. VERS. i.

A Release] or intermission: this was the Sabattical yeare; so called, because that in it the lands were left at a stay; and it was not lawfull to call in debts; and the Jewish slaves were set at liberty.

V. 2 Shall release it] It is is not-likely that this precept intended to make the creditor lose his debt quite, but only to give for that year some release and repute to debtors, from the troubles and taxes of their creditors:

V. 3 Of a sorraigner] In Religion, rather than in Nation: so that in these offices of piety, and brotherly charity God hath made some difference between those that are of the household of faith, and strangers, Deut. 23. 20,

V. 4 There shall be] Take heed lest through thy cruelty any one fal into extreame want: and if he do, provide thou so for his wants, that hee be not driven to beg shamefully.

V. 9 The yeare] Which yeare I shall not get mine owne at my pleasure, verse 2. Thine eye] doe not shew thy selfe cruell, hard, carelesse of other mens miseries, or sorrowfull for their well-doing; see Deut. 28. 54. 56. Prov. 23. 6. and 28. 22. Mat. 20. 15.

V. 14 Wine-presse] Or the Tun or Fat.

V. 17 For ever] Untill the Jubile, Exo. 21. 6. Mai [...] -servant] That is an Israelite. Hènce it appeares, that which was set downe, Exod. 21. 7. Not to be an expresse command, but onely a silent inducement, and exhortation to the Master, to espouse, or cause to be espoused by his sonne, the said maid-servant, for the safeguard of her honesty.

V. 18 A double] It is gathered by Isa. 16. 14. and 21, 16. that the time of hiring mercenary servants was to be for a year at least, and at the most for three years.

V. 19 The firstling] What firstlings are here meant you may see Deut. 12. 6.

V. 20. Year by year] in solemne feasts, Deu 16. [...]i. 14.

V. 21 Ill blemish] Not a small imperfection, or accidentall, or externall deformity, but some ill disdisposition of the body, or some notable defect, as Deu 1 [...]. [...] Sacrifice t [...] For a Sacrifice of thanksgiving, of whose flesh these banquets or feasts were made.

CHAP. XVI. VERS. 2.

Sacrifice] See Exod. 12. 27. Of the flock] The Italian sheep] Besides the Paschall-lambe you shall offer other sacrifices, specified Num. 28. 19.

V. 3 With it] With the lamb. The bread of affliction] Or of poverty; as who should say, poor folks bread; who ordinarily for want of provision do eat ill leavened, and ill prepared bread. This, as also the wild Lettuce, were a memorial of the hard estate the people were in when they were in Egypt, and likewise of the precipitate haste they were in, to depart out of it.

V. 7 In the morning] After the first day of the feast, which was a festivall day untill the seventh day; which was also festivall, hee that would, might goe home; for the five middle days were not festivall. Thy Tents, The Italian hath it, habitations] the Heb. hath it Tents; for Moses heeded most that time while the people were in the wilderness in Tents and Pavilions.

V. 8 Six dayes] seeing that every where else it is commanded to eat unleavened bread seven days, Ex. 12. 15. Lev. 23. 6. Num. 28. 17. we must believe, that by these six days must be understood the six days after the passeover, which was celebrated the first day, which is not reckoned here as elsewhere. A solemn] see up-Lev. 23. 36.

V. 9 From such time] From the day after the passeover, which day, the first fruits were gathered for the wave offerings; Lev. 23. 10, 15.

V. 10 Keep] With holy meales and feasts. Of weeks] Of Pentecost, which was the fiftieth day af [...] the seven weeks compleat, Ex. 34. [...]2. Lev. 23. 16. Of thine hand] The Italian addeth, sufficiently] largely, according to thy wealth for to furnish those holy feasts.

V. 12 That thou wast] For to rejoyce in the presence of God, because thou hast been delivered out of it, to give him thanks, and to shew mercy to the wretched, such as thou hast been.

V. 13 Seven dayes] See upon Lev. 23. 36. Thy wine] The Italian hath it, The tunne] or the wine-press.

V. 15 Rejoyce] Put away all sorrow and sadnesse, to rejoyce fully in the Lord, and to blesse him and laud him with all thy heart.

V. 19 [...]r [...]st] S [...] upon Exod. 23. 8.

V. 21 A grove] Not to imitate any way the idolaters superstitions; which did settle some opinion of divinity, upon shady trees and groves, see upon Ex. 34. 13.

V. 22. Image] The Italian, A statue] whether it have any representation or no: as sometimes the idolaters did consecrate such stones and pillars without any effigies.

EVill favourednesse] See upon Deu. 15. 21.

V. 2. Wickednesse] The Italian, That which is unpleasing] this circumlocution is especially referred unto idolatry.

V. 3. Either] Not only Idols of human invention or fabulous fictions, but even those excellent creatures, which become mans idols, when he attributeth unto them any divinity, or yeeldeth any honour or worship to them, see Job 31. 26.

The host] The stars, see upon Gen 2. 1.

V. 5. Gates] Of the city, which was the place where they held their courts of justice, and their common counsels.

V. 7. The evill] Or the evil man, see upon Deu. 13. 5.

V. 8. Too hard] This is spoken to inferior judges, & magistrates, Deu. 16. 18. who were enjoyned to go to the priests, by way of consultation, to be informed of the true sense and meaning of Gods Law: And this is not spoken to the parties, as if they should proceed by way of appeale, for there is no such thing mencioned in Scripture: Between bloud] the Italian, Between man-slaughter] whether it was wilfull or casuall, excusable or no: Suffered by the Law or no, see Exo. 21. 13, 20. 22 28, and 22. 2. Num. 35. 11. 16, 19. Deu. 19. 4, 10. stroke] the Italian Plague] as for example, what stroke was subject to be requited by the like pain, Exo 21. 25, or by the word plague, is ment the leprosie or other uncleane disease, of which the inferior priests might take notice at their habitations, yet in doubtfull cases, they were bound to take advice from the high Priests, which were resident in the publick place of Gods service, see Lev. 13. 2. and 14. 3.

V. 9. The priests] Who were as the great Lawyers amongst the people, practised in the meaning of Gods Law, according to which, judgement was to be given in all the cases comprehended therein, see Jer. 18. 18. Mal. 2. 7. Unto the Judge] this was the chiefe publick magistrate, before the judges were established amongst the children of Israel: He judged supreamly, in things which were meerly civill and belonging to human & positive right, and in things of divine right, the executing belonged to him, after the priest had declared how it should be, see Deu. 19. 17. 2 Chro. 19. 11.

V. 15. Set him] Acknowledge and install him, whom God shall point out by expresse declaration of his wil having no absolute freedom to make choice of any person or family, or to make any law of succession; See 1 Samuel 9. 15. and 10. 24, and 16. 12. 1 Chron. 22. 10.

V. 16. Multiply] This commandement was transgressed by Salomon, 1 Kings 4. 26. and 10. 26. The end therof is, that the King of Gods people should not exalt himselfe in pride and tyranny; nor should not put his confidence in humane means; nor be corrupted with pleasures. See Psal. 33, 17. Prov. 21. 31. To Egypt] from whence came abundance of good horses, 1 Kin. 10. 28. and likewise horsemen for the warres. Isa. 31. 1, 3. And by this looking after such things, the people might have been brought to frequent Egypt by trading, or to demand ayd: which might have obscured the benefit of their deliverance out of that accursed Countrey; by which deliverance they were bound to cleave onely unto God, renouncing the fellowship of, and confidence in the world; which was figured by Egypt. Return] This comendement is extant no where else. But it should seem that Moses had a relation to that which was spoken, Exo. 13. 17. and to some declaration made, Num. 14. 3, 4. see Jer. 42 15.

V. 17 Turn not away] Through disordered voluptuousnesse, which blindeth the understanding, or to idolatry, and spirituall fornication, which ordinarily followeth the bodily fornication.

V. 18 Put off that which is before] The Italian, out of the cobby which] meaning the originall, which was in the Priests custodies, 2 Kin. 22. 8.

CHAP. XVIII. VERS. 1.

AND his] Of all that which of right belongeth properly unto the Lord as tithes, first fruits, and other offerings.

V. 3 A sacrifice] Of thanksgiving, Lev. 7. 31. 33. Vnto the Priest] the shoulder unto the high Priest, and the other parts to him that ministreth, See Lev. 7. 31. 33. Cheeks] These two parts, namely the cheeks, and the maw are not mentioned, Lev. 7. 32. Nu. 18. 18. And in stead of them, is the breast; and it seemeth, that this diversity is to shew, that it was in the Priests choyce to take either the two, or the one.

V. 5 In the name] By his command and commission, with publike authority received from him as his Minister: Or to the name, that is to say in holy things, which particlarly belong to his honour and glory.

V. 6 Come] For some particular devotion, or private businesse at his owne pleasure.

V. 7 Then he shall] Though wee finde no expresse Law, for the exchanging of Levites by turns, before that David had ordered it, 1 Chron. 23. yet by this place it is plaine, that the Levites did do their services by turnes, according to some orders: following the degrees of their line, or otherwise; and those that were out of office, returned to their own homes and Cities; and if they were in Jerusalem upon any occasion out of the time of their office, they might be admitted to doe service as assistants, and in such a case, they had their proportions of sacred food, as [Page] well as the rest of the ordinary officers. which stand] Which in their order are in actual employments about the Temple.

V. 8 To call] The Levites were all fed with tithes, Numbers 18. 21. But it seems that they which were out of [...]mployment, did gather them up about their own homes: but for those that ministered, there was a certain quantity brought to the temple, and reserved in store-houses, to be distributed out in portions. 2 Chron. 31 5. 11. The Italian addeth here, According to their fathers families [...]xilies] observing the distinction of their fathers families, joyning themselves unto it, the Keharite to the Keharite, and the Gershonite to the Gershonite, &c. performing the service assigned to each one. Which commeth of the sale] It should seem that this ought to be understood of that kind of Tithes which might be converted into money, which was to be employed in the sacred feasts upon holy dayes. See Deuteron: chap. 14. verse 25.

V. 10 To passe] By a superstitious and prophane purification, or by an abominable offering, Lev. 18. 21.

V. 11. Familiar spirits] The Italian hath it, Python] See Lev. 19. 31. Necromancer] That calleth up the dead, and enquireth of them. 1 Sam: 28. 8. Isa. 8. 19.

V. 13 Perfect] Pure and sincere in his service, clean from all mixture of idolatry, or superstition.

V. 14 Hath not suffered thee so, to doe] The Italian hath it;

Hath not given thee such things] hath not ordained, suffered or approved any such meanes to enquire of secret or future things: but in stead of such meanes hath given thee his Prophets.

V. 15 A Prophet] The great revealer of all the mysteries which needed to bee knowne. Who is the Sonne of God himselfe, Psal. 27. Dan 8. 13. Joh. [...]. 18 By whose spirit all the Prophets have spoken, Eccl. 12. 13. 1 Pet. 1. 11. and 3. 19. who at the last hath manifested himselfe in the flesh, and in that hath fully accomplished that sacred function. Like unto me] That is to say, true man: and also having the office of Mediator; of which I am but the figure, Gal. 3 19.

V. 16 Of the assembly.] Namely the generall asembly of the people; Exodus 19. 17, Deuteron. 19. 10.

V. 22. Speaketh] By way of meere and absolute prediction, as 1 Kings 22 28. Jeremiah. 9. for even the true Prophets did oftentimes foretell things which did not come to passe; but that was only by way of threatning, or of promise, or according to the order of naturall causes, and upon a condition, sometimes revealed, and sometimes not revealed unto the Prophet: yet it might, and ought to bee taken out of the generall maxims of Gods word; as Isai. 38. 1. Ion. 3. 4. Be afraid] have no respect unto his person, nor fear not to offend God, by proceeding against him to a just corporall punishment.

CHAP. XIX. VERS. 2.

SEparate] Dedicate them to that use, and assigne them thereunto by publike declaration. Three] Beyond Jordan, as Moses had already assigned three more on this side Jordan. Deut. 4. 41.

V. 3 Prepare thee] On every side of the countrey, establish the Cities in such places, that one may come to them from all parts by short and direct wayes; or make new ways on purpose to cause the guiltles mans escape thither so much the easier, v. 6.

V. 6 While his] In his first and suddaine heat of bloud, by reason of his kinsmans death, before hee have truly examined, and found out that it was done by chance.

V. 8 Enlarge] This happened in Davids time, who enlarged the bounds of Israel to Euphrates, according as God had promised, Gen. 15. 18. 2 Sam. 8. 3 2 Chron. 8. 2. 6. yet we doe noe read any where, that he did adde, these three Cities unto the other Cities of refuge: it may be he did not drive the Pagans out which were beyond Lebanon, but onely subdued them, and made them tributary.

V. 10 Innocent] Namely the unwilling [...]and casuall man-slayer:

V. 12 The Elders] that is to say the Magistrates, deliver him] Let them suffer him to bee questioned criminally, by the dead mans next kinsman in a judiciaall way, even to the sentence of death, and execution thereof; see Num. 35. 24.

V. 13 The guilt], Which comes to be common to all the people, if there be any publike connivence, or neglect of punishing the sin.

V. 15 Shallnot rise up] Others, shall not availe. It established] The Italian, be verified] The Hebrew word signifieth firm or stable.

V. 26 Against any man] In case of a secret seducement from Gods true service; he that had been solicited, though he were alone, ought to detect the seducer. Deut. 13. 6, 8. and the Judges ought to proceed therein, as upon an advice, and denunciatiation; not as upon a formall accusation; which had required two witnesses. And if the calumnie was made to appeare unto them, they were to observe this Law, if it were a truth, that of Deuteronomy 13. 9.

The Priest] For ordinarily some of the chief Priests went along with the army, with the holy trumpets, Num. 10. 9. and 31. 6.

V. 5. Officers] Those were the magistrates of particular commualties, Deut. 1. 13. which also followed the armies, Num. 31. 14. What man] A precept of equity to preserve him from danger, who hath yet received no profit of some laudable enterprise, or fact, which he hath already undertaken or done: Dedicated] solemnly blessed the first enjoying of it, by prayers, holy hymnes and rejoycing, according to the use of those times, see Neh. 12. 27. Psal. 30. 1.

V. 6. Eaten of it] The Italian, Begun to enjoy it according to the common use of it] for by the Law, Lev. 19. 23. the fruit of the first three yeares ought to lie abandoned; of the fourth; to be consecrated to God, and the fifth the owner began to enjoy it.

V. 7. Betrothed] That is to say, made a promise, according to the ancient and very laudable custome, which was, to have some time interposed, between the promise or the betroathing and the wedding, see Gen. 19. 14. Deut. 22. 23. Mat. 1. 18.

V. 9. Captaines] These were Captaines for the wars which were appointed, by publick authority, with solemnity, and binding of the souldiers to obedience.

V. 10. Commest nigh] In a just and necessary war.

V. 13. Every male] See Num. 31. 7.

V. 19. Thou shalt not destroy] This must be understood of a generall destruction of all the trees of the countrey, through the fury and rage of war; not of some particular cutting down for use, or necessity in the siege: For the Tree] thou needest not to feare that the trees will stir to get into the besieged towne, the chief care of the besiegers being to cut off all way of relief from the besieged.

V. 20. Build bu [...]ks, &c.] The Italian hath it, Build what shall be necessary for the siede, &c.] Hebrew the siede, namely engines, towers, stakes, or other necessary fences: subdued] The Italian, Fall] that is to say, untill it be forced or taken.

CHAP. XXI. VERS. 2.

Thy Elders] It seemes we ought to understand his word for some of the great councell, Num. 11 16. or some of their deputies.

V. 3. The Elders] These were the Magistrates of each particular communalty, Of that City] For it being the next city, the suspicion of the misdeed was likeliest to fall upon it.

V. 4. A rough valley] The Italian, A desert valley] Hebrew, harsh, rough, and hard, that is to say, which hath not been manured: Strike off] for a signe that h [...]likewise ought to be slaine, who in some solitary place had committed the murther, if he came to be discovered.

V. 5. By their word] As Expounders of Gods Law, in any thing that might be thereby decided, not that they had any absolute or arbitrary power of themselvs, Stroke] See upon Deu. 17. 8

V. 6. Shall wash] To protost of their innocencies; see Mat. 27. 24.

V. 8. O Lord] It is likely that this prayer was spoken by the Priests; And lay not] The Italian, And suffer not, &c.] Preserve thy people from any such misdeed, impute not that unto them, which hath beene done unknown to them, and lay not the punishment thereof upon them: Forgiven them] they being guiltlesse of it, and therefore not punishable for it; but the man-slayer is not thereby forgiven, if he come to light:

V. 9 When] Keeping his ceremony according to my appointment; or because thou shalt, &c.

V. 10. Thine enemies] Other nations besides the Amorites, with which it was not lawfull to contract any alliance by marriage, Exodus 34. 16. Deuteron. 7. 3.

V. 12. She shall shave] In token that she was to cut and cast off all pagan corruptions, vices, and superstitions, to become as it were a new creature, and in this manner be engrafted into the blessed nation, by means of marriage which was sanctified.

V. 13. And bewaile] [...]her once satisfie the duties of nature, for to forget all these affections, and bestow all her love upon her husband, and heartily passe over into the communion of the Church: See Psalme 45. 11.

V. 14 L [...] her go] The Italian, Send her away] seeing that conjunction was a true and lawfull marriage, this sending away again must be understood to be after the manner of other divorces, Deut. 24. 1. reprov'd by God in regard of the conscience, Mala. 2 16. Matth. 198. Yet tolerat'd in regard of the civill order, by reason of the peoples hard hearts; Thou shalt not make] some understand this of publick prostitution.

V. 15. Hated] Lesse beloved than the other, as Gen. 29. 31. 1 Sam. 1. 5.

V. 16. Before the son] The Italian, Preserring him before, &c.] Heb. before his son, which some do expound, during his life, as Gen. 11. 28.

V. 17. A double portion] Which was one of the first bornes prerogatives, see 1 Chron. 5. 1. The beginning] See Gen. 49. 3.

V. 19. The gate] To the court of justice.

V. 22. Ha [...]] This punishment was not inflicted, but only upon great and publick offences, which did provoke the wrath of God upon all the people, which offences were to be purged by the punishment of the [...] guilty, or of those persons which God himselfe had pointed out, N [Page] [...]m. 25. 4. Jos. 10. 26. [...] Sam. 21 6. & the bodies of such ought to be taken away out of the sight of men, as execrable and blasted with the lightning of Gods judgement. Now all this was a figure of Christ, made a curse for us, that we might be freed from the curse of the Law, Gal. 3. 13. who therefore made choice of this kind of expiatory death, and was also buried the same day, Matth. 27. 57. after hee had yeelded satisfaction to Gods justice, John 19. 30.

V. 23. Is accursed] In regard of the misdeed which is punished by this death, not in regard of the punishment it self, nor absolutely in regard of him that is punished, towards God, if he truely convert and repent, Luke 23. 42. That thy land be not defiled] leaving in publick view an accursed object, and displeasing to God, seeing that all which is pleasing to him is pure and cleane, and contrariwise, all that which is displeasing unto him is uncleane.

CHAP. XXII. VERSE 1.

And hide thy selfe] That is to say, thou shalt not forsake them, nor let them go.

V. 7. Let the damme go] For a document of humanity, not to deprive the poore damme of her young ones, and of her life at one time: And of equity and moderation of greedinesse, leaving the damme alive (whose little ones thou hast taken away) to bring forth young ones for others.

V. 8. Abattlement] That is to say a fence, for the roofs of houses in those dayes, and places were open terraces, serving for diverse uses, see 1 Sam. 9. 25. Neh. 8. 16. Jer. 19. 13. Mat. 10. 27. Luke 17. 31. Thou bring not] suffer not through thy carelesnesse, any deadlie mishappe to happen in thy house, whereby thou mayst become guilty before God, who may bring a judgement therefore upon thy house.

V. 9. With diverse] These precepts are figures and documents, of true simplicity and sincerity, which ought to [...]e observed in all our behaviours and actions: Fruit of thy] the Hebrew, the fulnesse, as Exod. 22. 29. Be defiled] not by reason of the diversity of the s [...]eds, but by reason of thy disobeying of this precept: the Hebrew word signifieth sanctified, by antiphrasis, which is frequent in Scripture: Unlesse we w [...]ll understand the meaning to be, that the use thereof shall be held unlawfull, [...]s it is of those things which are consecrated to God.

V. 13. And go in unto her] Shall have knowne her carnally; A manner of speech, taken from the custome of women, which have their severall roomes to themselves.

V. 15. In the gate] Where the seat and court of justice was.

V. 18. Chastise hi [...] See Deu. 25. 2, 3.

V. 19. *M [...]*y not put her away] May not be divorced from her, see Deut. 24. 1.

V. 24. Cried not] And therefore she could not be supposed to have been forced.

V. 25. Force her] Which was subject to enquiry, and verification.

V. 29. His wife] If the virgins father consent therunto, and not otherwise.

V. 30. Fathers wife] That is to say, his mother in law; Nor discover] he shall not lye with her that is or hath been his fathers wife: A phrase taken from the custome of those times, and countries, which was, that the bridegroom laid the skirt of his garment over the bride, in signe of the right which he got on her, and of the marriage duty whereunto he tied himselfe; see Ruth 3. 9. Eze. 16. 8.

CHAP. XXIII. VERS. 1.

That is wounded] Either by reason that in old times such Eunuches, were put to shamefull uses; or to shew by a figure what integrity is required in a spirituall man, or because he will cast off them, who like withered trees could not contribute to the increase of the people, Isay 56. 3.

V. 2. A bastard] That hath not certaine father, nor is not acknowledged by any one to be his son, Zac. 9. 6. Enter] shall not be set down in the muster of Gods people, nor shall not be admitted into the great councill, which was wont to assemble neere unto Gods Tabernacle, who presided there in a speciall manner: see upon Exo. 33. 7. and 34. 31. Numbers 11. 16, 24. and because that counc [...]ll did represent the whole people, it is called the Congregation of Israel, See 1 Kings 8. 5. 1 Chronicles 13. 2, 4 and 29. 20.

V. 4. Met you not] It seemeth by Deut 2. 29. that this ought not to be understood of all the Moabites: for those of Ar of Moab, did furnish victuall, see upon Num. 21. 20.

V. 5 Hearken] Would not suffer him to use his magicall imprec [...]tions against you, according to his intent and desire; but turned his thoughts and words to blesse you.

V. 6. Seeke] Thou shalt have no publick league nor friendship with these nations: for otherwise, the duties of humane and civill society are not here forbidden.

V. 7. Abhorre] Do not every way reject all communion with his person, unlesse he be an idolatrous, and vicious man; but if he become a proselite, receive him into the communion of the Church, or if they have by thy meanes any issue, which persevereth in the true religion, incorporate it wholly into thy commonwealth: Thy brother] that is to say, a people come out of Edom, your father Jacobs brother.

V. 8. The children] Namely, if their great grandfathers have embraced the true religion.

V. 9. Wicked thing] Abominable, uncleane, vicious, [Page] and unlawfull.

V. 10. *That cha [...]*ceth him] See Lev. 15. 16.

V. 15. Deliver] It should seem that this was spoken to the Magistrates, who were to judge, whether the servant were unlawfully persecuted by his Master or no: For in case that the servant were guilty, it was not likely that the Lord would have yeelded him any assistance or freedom: especially the question being concerning his totall departure from his masters house: The servant] it appeareth by the following verse, that this ought to be understood of the servants of strange Nations, who being evill entreated by their masters, did fly for protection to Gods people.

V. 17. Whore] Namely common whore, for some such there were amongst Gods people; but ordinarily they were strangers: Or if they were Israelites, they were excommunicated, and held as strangers: See Prov. 2. 16. and 6. 24. and 7. 5.

V. 18. A dog] It should seem, that male is by a kind of detestation thus called, who endureth that abominable kind of lust.

V. 19. That is lent] For there are some things lent, out of which one may reape benefit, without usury; as for horse hire, houses, goods, &c. which by common use and sense are not contained within this prohibition.

V. 20. A stranger] See Deut. 15. 3.

CHAP. XXIV. VERS. 1.

VNcleannesse] Some displeasent and noisome defect, either in the body, or in the behaviour, besides fornication or adultery, for which there were other laws: Send her] Let it be lawfull for him to send her away. A judicial Law, which doth regulate the licence of divorces, by policy: yet doth not approve of them in conscience, Mal. 2. 16. Matth. 19. 5.

V. 4. Defiled] By cohabiting with another, during the life of her first, and only lawfull husband: So he declareth, that these divorces were unlawfull with God, though he tolerated them, by reason of the hardnesse of the peoples heart, who could not submit themselves to the rigor of the first order: Abomination] For so it appeared, that there was but a small cause for a divorce: Seeing that the husband having already tryed her, was willing to take her again. Now this toleration of God did detest, and abhorre, to have these inconstancies and confusions, cloaked with the sacred name of matrimony, Mal. 2. 16. and the divorce, followed, or seconded by the marriage of another, was in a manner the death of one, in regard of the other: Thou shalt not] These misdeeds ought not to bee suffered nor tolerated, for feare of drawing of Gods Iudgement upon the whole countrey.

V. 5. Businesse] Nor personall and publicke office, which may draw him away from the joyfull society, and company, which he ought to keepe with his wife.

V. 6. The nether] The Italian hath it, Grinding stones] of your hand-mills, under which name are contained, all manner of implements necessary for living Exo. 22. 26. Life] Namely an instrument needfull for the maintenance of it.

V. 8. In the plague] For to keep all the orders for the judging of it, the separations, and purifications appointed, Lev. 13. 14.

V. 9. Remember] To consider, by the example of Miriam, that leprosie is an expresse punishment of God, and that it requireth a separation, without any respect, or exception of condition or dignity: see 2 Chr. 26. 19, 21.

V. 10. To fetch] At thy choice or pleasure, or by violence: but thou must be content to take that pawn as he shall be willing to give thee, so it be sufficient to satisfie thee.

V. 12. Pledge] Which cannot chuse, he being poore, but bee a thing needfull for his sust [...] nance.

V. 13. It shall be] God in his fatherly love, shall approve of this act, as of a good and godly work, and as such a one he will reward it: See Psalme 106. verse 31.

V. 15. At his day] The same day that he hath done his labour, or at the certaine and appointed day, as by the weeke or otherwise: His heart] all his helpe and reliefe in time of necessity, consists in his dayly labour.

V. 18. *A [...]*o [...]d man] In a wretched estate, and depending upon other mens wages, which ought to induce thee, likewise to have compassion upon others, who are wretched.

CHAP. XXV. VERS. 1.

COntroversie] This sheweth, that here is chiefly treated of criminall causes: Justifie] Absolve him, and pronounce him guiltlesse, and also to adjudge and give unto him, that which the Law appointeth.

V. 3. Fourty] By the 2 Cor. 11. 24. you may see that the Jews used to give but nine and thirthy stripes, having made the number lesse by one, for to containe themselves, so much the better within the number which was set down: Seeme vile] that is to say, too unworthily handled without respect of humanity, which should not suffer him to be used like a beast, and to fellowship of religion, which requireth mercy, as towards a child of Gods houshold, and a brother on the same side.

V. 5. Dwell] Are not yet divided into severall hous- [Page] holds, having not married each one a wife, and living together under the head of the family, namely, the father or the elder brother: This thing was in use before Moses time by custome, Gen. 38. 8. but here it is established by law; Her husbands brother] the next in degree of birth to him that is dead, or for want of such a one, another brother, or the nearest kinsman, so that he be not a married man, see Ruth 4. 5. Now God in this case restraineth by his supream power the Law of Lev. 18. 16.

V. 6. Shall succeed] The Italian, Shall be borne] that is to say, shall come into the world b [...]aring the name of him that is dead, and having right to represent his person, as his own child.

V. 7. To raise] To cause his memory to revive by a child begotten in his name, that his memory may not be extinguished.

V. 8. Stand to it] And persist in his saying.

V. 9. Loose his shoe] In signe that she doth strip him of all the right which he might pretend in the goods of the deceased, which she will transfer upon another kinsman that will marry her, and beget upon her a successor to him, whose name he must beare: And spit] in token that as he scorneth to take her to wife, so she renounceth him for ever: Build] A Scripture phrase, which signifieth the begetting of issue, and by that meanes the establishment and preservation of a family, see 1 King. 11. 38. 1 Chr. 17. 25.

V. 13. A great] To buy with and a small to sel by.

V. 14. Measures] The Italian hath Epha's] a measure for dry things.

V. 18. Feeble] Sicke, impotent and old, which came softly after the campe.

CHAP. XXVI. VERS. 2.

Thou shalt bring] Namely, which the earth brings forth, by meanes of Gods blessing upon thy labour and travaile: His name] by the tokens of his presence, to be there worshipped and called upon.

V. 3. That shal [...] be] It is likely that he doth not mean the high Priest; but amongst the inferior sort of them, the chiefe, whose turne it is to serve at that time.

V. 5. My father] Jacob whose originall was from Charan in Syria, Gen. 11. 31. where he had also lived a long time in the house of Laban a Syrian, in great misery and much suffering, see Hos. 12.

V. 11. Rejoyce] Being returned home, after thou hast [...]*red these first fruits to God, thou mayest with a good conscience and rejoycing make use of those fruits thou sh [...]*It reape that yeare, sanctifying the use of that which thou hast consecrated to God by offerings and by charity towards the Levites and the poo [...]e.

V. 12. The Tithes] After the ordinary and yearely ones, the trienniall and extraordinary ones also, see upon Deu. 14. 28.

V. 13. I have brought away] I have laid apart, severall from the rest of my revenues, that part which God hath appointed for pious uses, and have faithfully employed it therein.

V. 14. I have not] Although these tithes be for the poore and wretched; yet since they are appointed by God, for mirth and thanksgiving, I have not employed them to any contrary use: as for mourning, or uncleane feasts, being polluted according to the Law, by reason of having any dead corps within my house, Num. 19. 14. Uncleane] Ceremonially, as those funerall feasts were, and any approach neere a house where a dead carkasse lieth, Hos. 9. 4. For the dead] The Jews had a custome, that when any one was dead, the kinsmen acquaintances and neighbours went to be partakers of the grief, and carried food ready dressed, to the dead mans family, for to comfort and refresh them with food during their time of mourning, which did hinder them from having any care of themselves, Jer. 16. 7. Ezech. 24. 17. 22. Hos. 9. 4 Now all these mea [...] and whosoever did participate thereof, were unclean for seven dayes, by reason of that dead body, Numb. 19. 11, 14.

V. 17. This day] Namely, at this time that I Moses, having repeated all Gods Laws unto you, and yo [...] have accepted of them: you have also by enterchangeable covenants with, and promises to God, renewed your covenant with him, Deu. 27. 9.

V. 18. Peculiar people] Gotten to him selfe, to be dedicated wholly to him, and to his service.

V. 19. Holy] Sanctified through his Spirit, and by him inviolably preserved as holy.

CHAP. XXVII. VERS. 2.

PLaister t [...]em] It should seem it was to write or paint characters upon them, and not to grave thereon.

V. 3. Of this L [...]w] Not only the ten Commandements, but also all the joint and severall orders contened in this book, together with the curses and blessings, as it appeareth, Jos. 8. 32.

V. 6. Whole] That is to say, rough, not made smooth with a chizell, nor polished.

V. 9. Thou art become] As it were newly, the covenant between God and thee, being renewed and [...] confirmed, Deu. 26. 19. see Psa. 114. 2.

V. 14. The Levites] Certaine Levites, and Priests chosen for that purpose, for the whole body of the Levites was to be on the other side to blesse.

V. 15. In a secret place] To commit idolatry, and not be punished for it, see Job 31. 27. Now these curses were especially cast forth against these secret misdeeds and misdoers, to perswade the people from it, for against open misdeeds there was a certaine tain punishment: [Page] Amen] See an example of the like, Jer. 11. 5.

V. 20. Uncovereth] see upon Deu. 22. [...].

V. 26. Confirmeth not] As an inviolable and firme

Covenant.

CHAP. XXVIII. VERS. 2.

Overtake thee] Being sent unto thee by the Lord they shall not be vaine, but take effect, a terme taken from arrowes which are shot at a marke, and hit it.

V. 4. The fruit] Thine issue, it is a Scripture ph [...]ase.

V. 5. Thy basket] Into which the bread is put after it is baked: The meaning is, God shall blesse thee in the preparation, in the keeping and laying out for thy necessities.

V. 6. Commet in] Comming in, and going out, do signifie in Scripture, businesses and undertakings.

V. 10. That thou art called by] That ye are his people and children.

V. 13. Head] In eminent degrees of honour and dignity, see Isa. 9. 13, 14.

V. 23. Brasse] Quite shut up without distilling any sweet shower, or other moistnesse:

V. 27. Of Egypt] Some do understand this to be the same kind of sores, as they were, which the Lord sent upon the Egyptians, Exo. 9. 9. some hold it is meant of the leprosie, a disease very common in Egypt.

V. 30. Gather] The Hebrew word signifieth prophane, see upon Deu. 20. 6.

V. 32. And faile] With extreame grief and a vaine desire, and longing for their return.

V. 36. Shalt thou serve] A forced idolatry (to which thou shalt be drawn by thine enemies against thine own conscience) shall be the punishment of thy wilfull idolatry.

V. 42. The Locust] Others have it the Canker, or [...]asting.

V. 47. The abundance] Though becomming perverse and rebellious, by reason of the great wealth, which thou enjoyest: Or thou couldst not be brought to a voluntary obedience, by so many benefits.

V. 54. Evill] Envious, and sparing of giving share of th [...]se mournfull meats.

V. 96. Shall hang] That is to say thou shalt see such things, as shall put thee in continuall doubt and fear [...] of thy life.

V. 67. Would God it were] Thou wilt [...] be so affrighted with the present [...]anger, that thou wilt thinke on nothing else, but only upon escaping for that time: after which either the same trouble or a greater will come upon thee.

CHAP. XXIX. VERS 1.

TO make] That is to say, to new avouch it solemnely.

V. 4. Hath not given you] God hath corporally punished your rebellions, by the evils and toyles, which you have undergone in the wilderness [...], and suffering (without applying any remedy thereunt [...]) by a superabundant grace and patience, the malice of your hearts, to put out the light of your understandings: which is ordinary in man, Isay 63. 17. Ezech. 12. 2. John 8. 43. Ephes. 4. 18. 2. Thes. 2. 11, 12.

V. 6. That ye might know] Beeing thus fed by miracle without ordinary and naturall meanes.

V. 9. That ye may] Consider wisely of all you do.

V. 11. The [...] This, and the next of fetching water, were employments for the vilest and most abject persons: see Jos. 9. 27.

V. 15. That is not] Namely our posterity.

V. 16. For yee know] Since you have by experience knowne the abomination of idolatrie, and what cruell enemies it hath caused the Egyptians and other Nations to be unto you, you [...]]l no way participate of it: And how] with what dissiculties and assaults.

V. 18. A root] Some secret seducer or plague that corrupteth the rest, or some inward inclination to idolatry, within your own hearts, which like an evill sprout, or bud may branch out into abominable effects: See Ezchiel 7. v. 10, 11. Hebrewes 12. 15.

V. 19. Blesse himselfe] Dally with himselfe, upon the conceit of Gods grace and patience, against the expresse protestations joyned to his Covenant: See Psalme 49. 18. Jeremy 2. [...]0. Zach. 11. 5. To adde] For to take an occasion to satisfie to the full his unbridled inclination to Idolatry, which being fulfilled, bewitcheth a man to continue in it: even as thirst induceth a man to drunkennesse; yet drunkennesse doth not quench the thirst, but rather increaseth it, and maketh it even unquenchable: See Pro. 23. 35. Isay 56. 12.

V. 24. The heat] What is the reason of it?

V. 26. He had not] He had not given them leave to chuse for their proper deities, to worship as hee had done each Pagan Nation; but he himselfe by Covenant was the particular & peculiar God of his people, Psal. 16. 5. Isa. 53. 12 See Deut. 4. 19.

V. 29 The secret things] Mans wisdome dependeth not on the curious searching out of Gods myst [...]ries, and hidden counsels, which he hath reserved for his own knowledge: but upon the true knowledge and execution of his Law, which he hath revealed: see Deut. 4. 6. Job. 28. 12. 28. Proverb. 1. 7. Eccles. 12, 13. 14.

I Have set] Which I have proposed unto thee that thou mightst take thy choyce: Are come upon thee] The blessing while thou hast persisted in obedience, and fidelity, and the curse after thou hast gone astray: Thou shalt call] Through remembrance and by lively meditation.

V. 6. Circumcise] Shall ratifie, and make effectuall the Sacrament of Circumcision, which thou carriest in thy body, through the internall sanctification of his Spirit.

V. 11. Not hidden] The Italian, So high that thou canst not apprehend it] Hebrew, So wonderfully above thee, that thou mayest not comprehend it. Hee hath a relation to the cleare manifestation of Gods will, made unto his people, whereas other nations, go but as it were groping after it in the darke, I say 25. 7. Acts 17. 27.

V. 14. In thy mouth] Thou knowest it and understandest it, thou speakest it, and canst speake of it with knowledge: Saint Paul Romanes, 10. 6. sheweth that these words can truly belong only to the Gospell, for to know, and speake the Law, is not the great prerogative of the Church; nor is it sufficient for salvation, but to beleeeve the Gospell with a lively heart, and make a true confession thereof with the mouth, is this great prerogative and meanes of salvation.

V. 17. Drawne away.] By thine own wicked inclination; by the temptations of the Devill, and by the evill examples and seducements of men,

CHAP. XXXI. VERS. 2.

I Can no more] I feele that the strength, and vigour of my body and mind, which I had till now, Deuteronomy chapter 34. verse 7. doeth on a suddaine begin to faile me, whereby I am warned that the time of mine end draweth neere.

V. 9. This Law] According to some, Deuteronomy alone is meant in this place. But it is more likely, that it was the whole Law contained in the five Bookes of Moses, and that it is the same originall which was found in the time of King Josias. 2 Kings chapter 22. 8. Which bo e] The Arke was borne by the Levites in the wilderness, whilst there was but a smal number of Priests, but afterwards these had the change of it: See upon Numbers chapte. 4. v. 15.

V. 11. Shalt reade] Namely, you Priests, as it was done, N. h. 8. 3, 7.

V. 13. Which have not] Which are not yet come to age of discretion, and did never heare this Law read.

V. 15. Stood] See Exodus chap. 40. 38. Numbers 9. 17.

V. 17. I will hide] I will withdraw my favour and will on all sides take my grace away from them.

V. 19. This song] Which is contained in the next chapter: Put it] Appoint them to learne it, and have it continually in their mouths: May be a witnes] of the benefits which by singing of this song, they shall confesse to have received from me, of their ingratitude, which I reprove them for, of my admonitions by which I warne them to do their duties, of the denunciation of my judgements and of my promise, to restore such as shall repent.

V. 21. Their imagination] In the Italian, Their nature] or imagination, see Gen. 6. 5. and 8. 21. They go about] committing idolatry secretly, Amos 5. 25. Acts 7. 43.

V. 26. In the side] The two Tables written with Gods finger, were in the Arke, Exodus 25. 21. Deut. 10. 2. but on the side of it was laid the whole volume of the Law: See 2 Kings chap. 22. 8. Against thee] O people.

CHAP. XXXII. VERSE 1.

YE Heavens] A manner of appealing unto unanimate creatures, which is very frequent in Scripture, to reprove the peoples hardnesse.

V. 2. Shall drop] It shall bee abundantly and sweetly proposed unto you, as comming from Heaven to penetrate into your hearts, and cause the seed of Gods Word to spring there: And from thence the Prophets are termed droppers, Ezechiel Chapter 21. vers. 2, 7. Amos Chapter 7. v. 16. Mic. Chapter 2. v. 6. 11.

V. 3. Because I] This is a reason for the obedience required, verse 1. Ascribe yee greatnesse] acknowledge his supream Majesty, and do reverence unto him, through your humble obedience to his Word.

V. 4. Hee is the Rocke] It is a name and epithet of God, for the firmenesse and eternity of his Essence, and for the firmenesse of his Word, and for his being a fence and rampire to his children: See 2 Samuel Chapter 23. verse 3. Psalme 18 46. A God] The Italian hath it, A God so truth] or he is the God of truth.

V. 5. They have] Namely the people of Israel, whose name Moses concealeth not to exasperate them at the first: Their spot] They do not sinne through plaine ignorance, infirmity, nor unawares; of which sins Gods children are never truly cleansed in this world, 1 Kings chapter 8 46. Pro. 20. 9. but through malice, with delight, perseverance, and profane boldnesse, 1 John 3. 9.

V. 6. Bought thee] Ransomed thee from Egypts [Page] tyranny (which was a figure of the bondage to the Devill and sinne) to make thee his, by adoption, and Covenant, Deuteronomy 4. 20. and 7. 6. and 14. 2.

V. 8. When] When the Lord had through his providence assigned all the habitable parts of the world to severall Nations to inhabite, he reserved the land of promise for his children, which was sufficient to hold, and nourish the innumerable multitude of them.

V. 9. Portion] Is the people only, whom he hath consecrated and appropriated unto himself by a continued Covenant from father to sonne, Deuteronomy Chapter. 9. 26. Psalme 78. Verses 70. 71.

V. 10. In a desert Land] This may bodily have relation, to the peoples wretched estate, in the land of Egypt, and in the wilderness. Spiritually, to the estate of sin, wherein all men lye by nature, which is likened to a wilderness: As well for the barrennes thereof in all goodnesse and vertue, as for the farre distance of it from all grace and communion with God and for the horreur of his curse: See Cant. 3. 6. and 8. 5. Hos. 9. 5. and 13. 10. Howling wilderness] Where there are no other cries to be heard but the terrible cries of dragons, owles and other beasts crying out through hunger and thirst, Isa. 43. 20. Mic. 1. 8. a figure of the cries of a thirsty and troubled conscience, and of infernall horrors.

V. 11. Stirreth up] She useth and accustometh them by little and little to fly, and with the beating of her wings she incites them to try themselves.

V. 13. He made him] After he had brought them forth of Egypt, he hath caused them gloriously to soare over the high mountaines, to the confines of the Amorites, to come in and possesse their fat and rich country, Isay 58. 14.

V. 15. Jesurun] A feigned name, attributed to the people, by allusion to the name of Israel, and signifieth the right; by reason of the rule of justice, which they had in the Law of God, & of the profession they made to observe it: see Deuteronomy 33. 5, 26. Isay 44. 2.

V. 17. Unto Devils] See upon Levit 17. 7. New gods] newly set up and consecrated by the Idolaters, which is contrary, not only to the Eternall Essence of the true God, but also to the ancient revealement which he hath made of himselfe to his Church: Feared not] the Hebrew word sheweth the superstitious terror of the Idolaters towards their Gods: Opposite to the sincere feare and holy reverence towards the only true God.

V. 18. That begate thee] Made thee his people, by imprinting his image upon thee, by the meanes of his Word and Spirit.

V. 20. I will hide] That is to say, by taking away my favour from them, I shall make them know what they can do, or what they will become, without me.

V. 21. Vanities] A frequent name for Idols, because they have no other power nor God-head, but that which the idolater doeth vainly attribute unto them, 1 Cor. 8. 4. See 1 Sam. 12. 21. 1 King. 16. 13. Move them] Giving unto the Gentiles my grace and knowledge, which shall be taken away from them or refused by them: Which are not] which being without the true knowledge of God, in which consisteth the true bond and foundation of a body of a Commonwealth, deserveth the name of a rabling multitude: Or plainely, which is no people of mine, Hos. 1. 9.

Y. 22. Shall burne] A figurative description of a total desolation.

V. 27. Were it not that I] A human kind of speech, by which is signified, that God tempereth his punishments, that he inflicts upon his children, because he would not give his enemies occasion to insult, and blaspheme, Exodus chapter 32. verse 12. Numbers Chapter 14. verse 13. Deuteronomy 9. 28. Joshua 7. 9.

V. 28. For they are] Namely, the Israelites, Void of counsell] That have lost all their true iudgement and can neither take of themselves, nor receive from others, any wholesome counsell.

V. 29. Their latter end] That which will befall them in the end, good or evill; according to my promises, or threatnings, for their works: See Psal. 39 4. and 90. 12.

V. 30. One chase] Namely of the enemies.

V. 31. Their Rocke] The enemies false gods, in which they put their confidence: Themselves being Judges] May be convinced and constrained to acknowledge the infinite power of the true God above the weaknesse of their Idols: And likewise to acknowledge that their victories over the Church, are the effects of Gods Judgement: See 1. Sam. 4. 8. Jer. 40. 3.

V. 32. Their Vine] Figurative termes, to shew how the people were corrupt: See Isay 1. 10. Jer. 2. 21. Ezech. 16. 46. the vine is the wicked nature, the grapes are the hurtfull works.

V. 34. Is not this] My patience doth not blot out the memory of their misdeeds, it doth but heap the measure full, untill the prefixed time.

V. 35, Their foot] That after so many sinns, they shall adde some one, as a full scale goeth down with the least weight that is added to it, or the least touch that is given it: Or my vengeance shall at first appear by small shakings in the beginning, which shall be seconded, by unavoidable ruin.

V. 36. And repent] He will stay the effects of his just wrath, now fully pacified, and use his mercy, to repaire that breach which himselfe had made. A forme of speech taken from human weaknes. Gen 6. 6. Sam. 24. 16. [Page] opposite to the irrevocable judgements against the wicked. See Jer. 20. 16. There is none] A Scripture phrase which signifieth the totall destruction of a state, which is often poynted at by these termes of opening and shutting, Job 12. 14. Isa. 22. 23 Or the sense is, every thing shall be enfolded in a generall desolation, as well those things and persons, which are most precious, and most carefully kept, as the basest and least regarded, as 1 Kin. 14. 10. and 21. 21. 2 Kin. 9. 8. and 14. 26.

V. 38 The fal] The remainders of the Heathene sacrifices, being employed in feasts of rejoycing, in honour of their idolls, in imitation of the holy feasts, used by Gods people, see Exod. 34. 15. Psalme 106. 28. 1 Cor. 10. 20.

V. 39 Am he [That great and supream God, whose glory is spread all the world over; or that onely true God, whose essence is everlasting, not depending of any one, and immutable, see Psalme 102. 28. Isai. 41. 4.

V. 40 I lift up] That is to say, I sweare; a terme taken from those men which use that gesture when they sweare, as it were to call God, who reigneth in heaven, for a witnesse and judge of the truth of their saying, Gen. 24. 3.

V. 41 Take hold] As I would take hold of weapons, see Esay 59. 17.

V. 42 From the beginning, &c] The Italian hath it, Beginning at the head] That is to say, at the Devill, Prince of this world; or at the Prince of the great worldly empire, enemy to the Church, being those great Empires which have named themselves universall, have alwayes warred against God, & his Church. see Psal. 68. 21. It might also bee translated thus; With the bloud] Of the head of the revenges of an enemy; that is to say, of the head of the adverse party, fierce in his deadly hate against the Church;

Psal. 8. 2.

V. 43. O yee nations] This joyning of the nations with Gods people, in rejoycing for their deliverance from the common enemy, cannot have any relation but only to the Christian Church, composed of Jews and Gentiles, equally participating of one, and the same salvation in Christ: see Rom. 15. 10.

V. 44. Hoshea] That is Joshua, which is the name which Moses gave him, because that he was to accomplish the work of the peoples deliverance, bringing them into the land of promise, which was denied to Moses, to shew us, that Christ only pointed at by Joshua, Exo. 3. 8. doth bring his Church to the fruition of the kingdom of heaven, which the Law could not do.

V. 49. Unto mount] See how this ought to be understood upon, Num. 27. 12.

V. 50. He gathered] See Gen. 15. 15.

CHAP. XXXIII. VERS. 1.

The man of God] Namely, a Prophet, inspired by divine Spirit, in giving this blessing.

V. 2. Came] From the top of Sinai, a hill of Idumea, called Seir, in the wilderness of Paran, God appeared unto his people to give them his Law, Exod. 19. 18. From Seir.] from off Idumea, see Gen. 33. 14. 16. and 36. 8. Now under the name of Idumea, often times is meant in Scripture, all the Countrey from the red sea, to the dead sea, or lake of Sodom: See 1 King. 9. 26. Paran] See of this name, generally to that great mountainous wilderness, Numbers 13. 3. Ten thousands] The Italian hath it, From the ten thousands] Namely from heaven, which is the habitation of holy Angels, which are in manner of innumerable armies of God: see Psal. 68. 27. Dan. 7. 10. Rev. 5. 11. and 9. 16. Went] The Italian, Having on his right hand] Being in a manner armed with fire, Exo. 19. 18 and 24. 17. for to pronounce his Law, in token of the power of it, Jer. 23. 29. and of his terror and curse against sinners, Heb. 12. 18.

V. 3. Yea he loved] The Italian, Though thou lovest] that is to say, O Lord, though thou through a common love, causest all men to feele some effects of thy goodnesse, yet thou bearest thy people a speciall affection, whom thou hast sanctified and taken as proper to thy selfe, to have them under thy care and protection: At thy feet] attentive and tractable like to thy disciples, Luke 10. 39. Acts 22. 3.

V. 4. The inheritance] The singular wealth and treasure that God bestoweth upon his children, and in which as in a generall inheritance, are comprehended all other goods; which also by vertue of the Covenant, passeth from the father to the child; See Psal. 119. 111.

V. 5. King] He hath not only been a Law-giver, but also a supreme Magistrate, actually administring his own Law. Such Kings raiging by vertue and justice only, not by force and violence, were anciently called Heroick Kings: When the heads] So it is declared that this Monarchy of Moses was tempered with Aristocracy, in which temperature consists the most absolute kind of government: And the Tribes] This seemes to be added, to shew so much the more the harmony of this Commonwealth, the whole people with a free accord consenting to Moses his Laws, proposed in the generall assembly.

V. 6 Let Reuben live] God will not suffer (and I pray him it may not) the tribe of Reuben be utterly extinguished, for the grievous sins of its first father, Gen. 49. 3, 4. though by that meanes it were deprived of the gift of great increase, which seemed to belong unto him by birth right, and was conferred upon Joseph.

V. 7. Judah] Because that there is no mention made [Page] of Simeon in these blessings, some imagine that this tribe was comprehended under Judah, in whose countrey Simeons part was also included, Jos. 19. 1. Judg. 1. 3 Bang him] He hath a relation to the severall captivities of this tribe, out of all which it was delivered, ever untill the coming of the Messias, whereas the other tribes were dispersed, without being restored: Be sufficient] let it have no need of any human help to maintain it, but only thou, O God, lend it thine aid: Others, he shall fight with his own hands for himselfe, that is to say, he shall defend himselfe valiantly against all his enemies, Gen. 49. 8.

V. 8. Thy Thummim] He directeth his speech to God: The sense is, O Lord, confirme thy Priesthood, meant by these two words, Exo. 28. 30. to Aarons lineage, whom thou hast consecrated to it, though thou hast imposed that just punishment upon him, that he should not enter into the land of Canaan, for the fault which he committed at the waters of Meriba, Numb 20. 13. which were also called of Massah, as the rest, Exod. 17 7. because that God did there try his servants: Thou diddest strive] rebuking him, and severely punishing him.

V. 9. Who] This hath a relation to that, that the Priests being judges in many cases, Deut. 17. 9. and 19 7. ought to be free from all acceptation of persons following Moses and Aarons examples, who had proceeded therein with all manner of integrity: Others referre this to the history of the execution done by the Levites, for, the pure zeale of God, without any carnall respects, Exod. 32. 27. and to the Law of mourning for the next of kinne, Lev. 10 6, 7. and 21. 10. They] The Priests and Levites, who till then had kept themselves pure in Gods service and obedience, more than the rest of the people; but by these words their duty is not so much set down, as the act commanded, Mal. 2. 7. See Jer. 18. 18.

V. 11. His substance] The Italian hath it, His army] for the orders, services and the whole conduct of the Leviticall Ministry, had some resemblance of military discipline: See Numb 4. 3. The worke] Namely, his Ministry: Smite through] Destroy all Shcismaticks that shall seeke to oppose that order of Priesthood, which thou hast appointed: See Numbers chap. 16. v 5.

V. 12. The belived] It should seem he calleth Benjamin so, by reason that as Jacob loved Benjamin in a singular manner, he being the youngest of all his children, Gen. 44. 30. So the Lord honored that tribe, being the least of all the rest, 1 Sam. 9. 21. Psal. 68. 27. Chusing Jerusalem which was within her territories, Jos. 18. 28. for the place of his Temple and service: By him] Neere to his Temple, which was as it were Benjamins safeguard: Between his] Let the chiefe City of Benjamin be Jerusalem, a City of Gods singular presence, in which the two holy hills of Moriah and Sion, resembled two shoulders, a figure of Gods power and protection, who beareth of the whole body of his people.

V. 13. The precious things] See Gen. 49. 25. For the deep] that is to say, of the earth moystned, and fattened by the sweet exhalations up the waters under the earth.

V. 14. By the Sun] Which warmeth the earth, and quickens the seeds, and ripens the fruits: The Moon] Which the diverse seasons, and months of the yeare, produce in great variety.

V. 15. Mountaines] See Gen. 49. 26.

V. 16. Of him] Of God, who appeared in the bush, Exodus 3. 2. for a signe of his residence in grace and power in the midst of his people.

V. 17. His glory] He hath a reference to the power, valour and warlike customes of these two tribes: See Psal. 78 9. The people] which shall come to assault him or all those Nations, whose land that was which God had assigned for his people: And they] these great acts shall bee archieved by these two numerous and warlike tribes, come out of Joseph, whereof that of Manasses who was the elder, shall yeeld in power and number to Ephraims, who was the second brother, according to Jacobs Prophecie, Genesis chap. 48. v. 19.

V. 18. In thy] Of the commodity thou shalt have, thy land bordering upon the sea, to make many voyages, which will be very profitable to thee: In thy] in thy peaceable and home led life, free from enterprises, and altogether employed in governing of thine owne private affaires: See Genesis chap. 25. verse 27.

V. 19. They] Namely the Zabulonites, by their frequent voyages into farie Countreies, shall invite many Nations to come and worship the true God in his Temple in mount Sion: There] these nations by the Zabulonites enducements, shall serve the true God in that only manner which he hath approved of and appointed: Or the Zabulonites themselves, being delivered from the dangers of the seas, and enriched, shall come to yeeld sacrifices of thanksgiving to the Lord, Psal. 107. 32. Jon 2. 9. The abundance] The great riches which navigation brings in: In the sand] the sea-shore, which though of it selfe it be very barren, brings in great revenues, by reason of the sea trading.

V. 20. He that] Namely the Lord, who hath bestowed upon the tribe of Gad, a large and spacious Countrey, and although it lye upon the frontiers, and therefore be often invaded, yet it shall have strength, and heart to defend it selfe.

V. 21. He provided] God hath assigned unto Gad, the first land which was conquered from the Amorites on this side Jordan: See concerning these first fruits of the countrey, Numbers 24 20. Because there] because this part of the Country was that alone which God let Moses see, [Page] and which he would have him divide amongst certain tribes: And he came] This is spoken by propheticall anticipation concerning the Gadites company and faithfull assistance, which they lent their brethren, in the subduing of the land of Canaan, and executing the Lords vengeance upon the accursed people, See Jos. 4. 12.

V. 22. A lions whelp] The Italian, Like a lions, &c.] It shall be a warlike nation, which out of his mountainous frontier, shall often invade its enemies.

V. 23. With favour] With Gods grace and favour, which will make him acceptable amongst his brethren, Gen. 49. 21. Possesse thou] the Italian, Thou shalt possesse] See Jos. 19. 32.

V. 24. Dip] He shall enjoy an exceeding fat countrey, Gen. 49. 20.

V 25. Thy shoes] It seemeth to be a proverbiall kind of speech, taken from shoes which are made of a solid, and hard matter, to signifie a continuance of strength, without wearing out, as Deuteronomy, 29. 5.

V. 27. Underneath] As in heaven is the pacificall feat of Gods glorious resting place, so here on earth is the theater of the works of his providence, and omnipotency, through which he rules the world.

V. 28. Alone] From other people, as a Nation consecrated to God and by him protected against all assaults.

V. 29. Bee found Ciars] The Italian, Shall dissemble] Hebrew, Shall lye unto thee, that is to say, shall be constrained to yeeld obedience unto thee, though it be but a feigned and forced one: See Psalme 18. 44. and 66. 3. and 81. 15. Shalt tread] Shalt beat downe their loftinesse, shalt assault and conquer their country, and all their forts.

CHAP. XXXIV. VERS. 1.

VNto the mountaine] See Numbers 27 12. Unto Dan] This chapter hath beene added to Moses his books, by some Prophet: after the division of the land of Canaan, and therefore these countries are by anticipation called by the names of the tribes to whose lot they fell: Now Dan had the uttermost Northern frontier, Judg. 18. 7.

V. 3. Of Palme trees] Jericho is so called, Judges 1. 16. 2 Chronicles 28. 15. Because that the territories thereof did abound in such kind of trees: and this very name is also given to it by profane authors: Zoar] A city situate on the furthest part of the sea of Sodom, Gen. 19. 22.

V. 6. Buried him] He caused his body to be laid in the earth by the ministry of Angels, or by some other meanes: No man] It is likely, that it was done to take quite away all occasion of superstition, and Idolatry, See Jude 9.

V. 7. His eye] By divine miracle, Deuteronomy, 8. 4. Joshua 14. 11. It may also be that the use of Manna did somewhat helpe towards it, it being an exquisitely pure kind of food, of an aereall, and not very corruptible substance: Naturall force] Hebrew greennesse, that is to say, a fresh, and thriving constitution of body, as Psa. 32. 4.

V. 8. So the dayes] In this moderate length of time was this mourning ended, which amongst other nations, was much prolonged for such kind of persons, see Gen. 50. 3.

V. 9. Of the Spirit] Of a supernaturall gift, and infused with wisdom, under which are comprehended all the vertues belonging to a heroicall and excelling soule: See 1 Kings 3. 9, 12. Had laid] For a signe and sacred meanes of that divine infusion of the holy Ghost into him: the Lord going along with the ceremony, with his internall operation, according to the true property of all Sacraments.

V. 10. Whom] With whom God hath parleyed, and to whom he hath communicated himselfe, by a cleare and ocular representation, without any abstraction or oppression of the senses, without any doubtfull speeches, visions, dreams, or other hidden meanes: See Numbers, Chapter 12. verses 6. 8.

V. 12. Hand] Operations of Divine and Omnipotent power, which did accompany Moses his Ministry: See Deuteronomy Chapter 4. verse 34. and 7. 19.

THE ARGUMENT.

J Oshua, who very likely did by divine inspiration write, and compose this History, and joyned it by way of appendix to the Originall volume of Moses his bookes, kept by the Priests in the Tabernacle: Sets down in it how that he being whilest Moses yet lived, appointed and consecrated his successor after his death, entered upon the conduct of Gods people, being instructed and strengthened by Gods own Word, and authorized by his miraculous and glorious power which accompanied him, and accepted, and acknowledged by the generall consent of the people. And afterwards how he passed over Iordan; and after he was come into the land of promise, he again sanctified and purged the people, putting Circumcision in practice again, which had beene intermitted in their pilgrimage in the wilderness. After which, the people beginning to enjoy the fruits of the land, Manna ceased. And the Son of God appearing corporally to Ioshua, assured him of his conduct and power; through which, he in six years conquered with armed hand, the Land of Canaan, destroyed the accursed Nations and Kings, according to Gods Commandement; and afterwards divided the Land amongst the nine Tribes and a halfe, which had not received their inheritance beyond Iordan; appointed the Priests and Levites, Cities for their habitations; settled Gods Tabernacle in Shiloh, observed punctually all things which were appointed and set down by Moses; and preserved Gods service in its purity: and finally established the estate of the Commonwealth of Israel; and put the people into the free, peaceable, and secure possession of the Countrey: Save only that there remained some remainders of the Canaanites for a certain time for a triall, and exercise of the people. And in all this Ioshua, according to the resemblance of the name, was a figure of Iesus Christ, who through his righteousnes hath obtained the Kingdome of heaven for his Church; and by his power and conquests, brings it into the possession thereof; having destroyed all her spirituall enemies, and accomplished the great worke of Salvation; which Moses with his Law, had but only directed, and prepared. And if there be yet any remainder of sin in the faithfull, and that the world, and the devill hath yet any power against them, it is but only to exercise a continuall combat during this life, with a promise of full liberty, victory and peace in the life everlasting. And at last Ioshua having solemnly renewed Gods Covenant with the people, and taken from them a promise of sincere obedience, dieth quietly in a full old age.

CHAP. I. VERS. 4.

T He great Sea] Namely, the Mediterranean Sea, opposed to the petty seas or lakes of Palestina, Num. 34. 6.

V. 8. Thy way] All thy actions, counsels, enterprises and businesses.

V. 17 Only the Lord] Words of a vow for Joshua, or on exhortation unto him to cause him to make himselfe capable of Gods continuall assistance.

CHAP: II. VERS: 1.

SHittim] See of this place, Numbers 25. 1. and 23. 49. An Harlots house] The Hebrew word may also signifie a common lodger, but Hebrews 11. 31. Ja. 2 25. she is plainly called harlot: Lodged] they went in there, to passe away the night.

V. 4. I wist not] See concerning these profitable and officious avoydings of the truth of a narration, which is not necessary to be declared upon, Exodus chapter 1. 19.

V 6. The rooffe] Which was made like a terrace, leades, or flat rooffe, according to the custome of those places.

V. 7. Fo [...]ds] Places where they passed over the water by meanes of bridges, or boates, or where they waded over.

V. 8. They were laid] In the place where she had hid them.

V. 9. I know] Rahab might have heard Gods promises spoken of: but that she so firmly perswadeth her selfe that they will come to passe, did proceed from an internall motion from God: See Exod. 15. 14.

V. 12. A true token] Of a loyall and inviolable safe-guard, as the line was, v. 18.

V. 14. Our life for yours] Even with the hazard of our owne lives we will safeguard you from all violence.

V. 15. Upon the towne wall] The Italian hath it, Belonged to the wall] The City wall made the backe part of the house, and in that part Rahab dwelt.

V. 19. His bloud] He alone shall be guilty of his own death, because he would not make use of the place of safety, which we appoint you: Shall be on] Wee will answer for it in our own persons before God, whom we call for a judge and avenger of the disloyalty, if we should use any in this kind against you.

CHAP. III. VERS. 2.

Three dayes] It seemeth they are the same three dayes that are spoken of, Jos. 1. 11.

V. 3. When ye see] See Num. 10. 33.

V. 4. That ye may know] This hath a relation to what was spoken in the precedent verse, concerning the following of the Arke, which questionlesse was still guided by the pillar of cloud, as Numbers chap. 9. verse 17.

V. 5. Sanctifie] Namely by spirituall, and ceremoniall purifications: by abstinences, religious mindes, and acts of devotion, for a preparative to see a miraculous effect of Gods presence: See Exo. 19. 10. Num. 11. 18. Jos. 7. 13.

V. 6. Take up] See Num. 4. 15.

V. 7. Magnifie thee] Accompanying thy ministry with my miraculous power.

V. 13. And the waters] The course of the river being cut off, the water below will all run away, leaving the bottome dry to make a large passage for the people, and the waters above shall stand still, standing up in an heape for a time without overflowing the countrey.

V. 15. Over floweth] Ordinarily every yeare, through the melting of the snow from the neighbouring mountaines, or by some other meanes. Now this makes the miracle so much the greater in this place: The time] which was the time of this passing over, see Jos. 4. 19. and 5. 10. For harvest in that countrey began at Easter: See Lev. 23. 10. Deut. 16. 9.

V. 16. Zaretan] A City of the Tribe of Ephraim, 1 King. 4. 12. and 7. 46. The salt sea] That is the lake of Sodom, see Gen. 14. 3. Num. 34. 3.

V. 17. were passed] This second passage through the waters dried up by miracle, after them of the read sea, is a figure of the faithfuls last passage into the Kingdome of heaven, through corporall death, which is no way dangerous for them, after they have gone through the first, in which through baptisme and the regeneration thereof, they have renounced the world, and are [Page] entred into the Communion of Christ and his Church.

CHAP. IV. VERS. 3.

LOdging place] Which was Gilgal, v. 19, 20.

V. 7. Before] As it were to give way & passage.

V. 10. According to] Which briefly was nothing else, but that he should be a faithfull reporter and executioner of what God should command him.

V. 13. Before the Lord] Before the Arke, which was a signe of Gods presence, Num: 32. 20.

V. 19. Gilgal] A place so called by anticipation: see Jos. 5 9.

CHAP. V. VERS. 2.

KNites] Or slints sharpened for that use; Again] For Circumcision had beene intermitted in the desert, upon some unknown occasion: Peradventure by the wil of God, to punish the peoples revolt, Num. 14. Or peradventure through a prophane carelessness of the people, which God punished, by suffering them to go on in their sin, without admonishing or reprovng them for it: Circumcise] take order that Circumcision be used again amongst the people.

V. 3. Of the fore-skinnes] A name given to the hill, by reason of this that was done there.

V. 7. He raised up] Caused a new people to be borne with whom renewing his Covenant, and willing to reassure his promises unto them, concerning the possession of the land of promise, he would have the Sacrament of the Covenant also reestablished.

V. 8. Whole] As Genesis, 34. 25.

V. 9. The reproach] The people was infected with a great deale of idolatry and profanenesse through their long abode in Egypt, Lev. 18. 3. Jos. 24. 14. Ezech. 20. 7. and 23. 3, 9. wherefore God had taken away the honorable signe of his Covenant from them, suffering them to were their fore-skinns, which was a shame amongst the Israelites, Gen, 34. 14. But now renewing of his Covenant, he pardoned and blotted out all that was past, and the people on the other side were bound to forsake their foresaid sins, see 1 Mac. 4. 58. Gilgal] that is to say, discharging or taking away.

V. 10. Of the month] The first month, Jos. 4. 19.

V. 11. Of the old corne] The Italian, Of the Corne] of the new harvest after they had presented unto the Lord the first fruits, as it was appointed, Lev. 23. 10, 14. 16.

V. 13. A man] That was the Son of God in humane shape, which he diverse times tooke upon him as it were for a frequent preamble of his incarnation. For it was he, as may appeare by Joshuas religious adoration, and his acceptance of it, which a created Angell would have refused, Rev. 19. 10 and 22 9. and by that is spoken, v. 15.

V. 14. Of the host] Namely of all the Angels, which fight for the Church, and also of the Militant Church, See Exodus chapter 23. verse 20. Daniel chapter 10. v. 13. 21. and 12, 1. Revelations chapter 12. verse 7. and 19. 11, 14. Now come] This apparition is a signe unto thee, that I am even now going to employ my self in this my calling, fighting with, and overcomming mine enemies for thee: whereas heretofore I have only shewed my selfe a peaceable conductor of my people: What saith] words of admiration, or a question: what will it please you to command me?

CHAP. VI. VERSE 1.

STraitly shut up] The Italian, Shut and barred up] The gates were not only shut as they were ordinarily, but strengthened with rampires and fences, as in danger of war.

V. 2. The Lord] Which was the Son of God himself and head of the aforesaid army: Men] Those which defend it, the men of war.

V. 4. Trumpets of rammes hornes] The Italian, Trumpets that sound sounds of joy] distinguished by these words from Trumpets of strife and warre, whereof God would not have any signe or token be in this assault, but only of rejoycing, and of the triumph of Faith, which is the victorie of the Church.

V. 5 A long blast] Not in quavering and broken sounds, but with an equall sound, as they use to do at the end of the sound, to shew an accomplishment of the victory of Faith; Flat] ruining themselves even from the very foundation.

V. 9. Rereward] Of which see Num. 10. 25.

V. 10. Nor make] With cries, or military noises.

V. 15. Seven times] In signe that the perseverance, and continuance in Faith, and the actions thereof, at last obtaine the victory, and that the neerer the end of the combate is; the more ought the faithfull man to be diligent and laboursome therein.

V. 17. Accursed] All that may be destroyed, let it be destroyed to the honour of God, forbidding straightly to touch any thing: and those mettals which can not be consumed by fire, let them be consecrated to his Service: See Leviticus chapter 27. verse 28. Now a General might thus vow unto God the destruction of persons and Cities: And Joshua did so by Jericho, as it were to offer the first fruits of the Land of Canaan to the Lord: See Numbers chapter 24. verse 20.

V. 18. Make the Compe] That ye be not the occasion, wherefore God should destroy the whole Camp, as that thing which is stollen away from him should have been, Deu. 7. 26.

V. 19. Shall come into] Shall be laid up in the Taber- [Page] nacle to be employd in Gods service, see Num. 31. 54. these holy treasures are often made mention of.

V. 21. Destroyed] This execution and the like, being grounded upon Gods exprsse command, Deu. 20. 16. admit no contradiction of humanesense.

V. 23. Her kindred] Her next kinsfolks, which were all come into her house: And left them] as uncleane things, untill they were purified according to the Law, Num. 31. 19. to be afterwards incorporated amongst Gods people: by instructing, Profession, Circumcision, &c.

V. 25 Dwelleth] being also married into the Tribe of Judah to Salmon, the son of N [...]h [...]sson.

V 26 Adjured them] The Italian, Caused anoath to be sworne] By which the people submitted themselves and their posterity to the execrations pronounced by Joshua by divine authority and inspiration: In his first borne] Shall be punished for his presumption, by the death of his two sons, as the event confirmed it, 1. Kings. 6. 34.

CHAP. VII. VERS. 1.

The children] One of them, whose misdeed was imputed to all the people, untill such time as by diligent enquiry and just punishment, they were justified, and the offence purged, verse 12. Achan] called Achar also, 1 Chron. 2. 7. Zabdi] who is also called Zimri, 1 Chro. 2. 6.

V. 2. Go up] For out of the plaine of Jericho, they went towards the mountainous places of the Countrey.

V. 6. Put dust] A ceremony used in great mournings, and lamentations, 1 Sam 4. 12. 2 Sam. 13. 19. Neh 9. 1. Job 2. 12. Now Joshuas grief was not for the small number of the people which was lost, but because it was a signe of Gods wrath, because he favored not this enterprise according to his promise, and might thereby turne the peoples hearts from beleeving, and cause them to saint.

V. 7. Would to God] There is some excesse in this wish, contrary to Gods expresse command, but the generall sense is good: It had been better for us to have had lesse land, and fewer goods, and that thy name had not been exposed to the blasphemies of thine enemies, through these accidents, if thou wilt suffer them.

V. 9. What wilt thou do] How is it possible that thy great glory should not be disabled by this our losse? Exo. 32. 2. Num. 14 13.

V. 1 [...]. My Covenant] The command which they had accepted of, with a voluntary submission to the punishment.

V. 12. They were] by this offence they have made themselves guilty of the same destruction, to which the accursed thing was condemned: The accursed] man who is guilty thereof, and is thereby become accursed himselfe.

V. 13. Sanctifie] Prepare them by ceremoniall purifications, abstinences, prayers and devotions, to appeare before God, that the offender being discovered and punished, the people may be freed from the offence, see Jos. 3. 5.

V. 14. To your tribes] See concerning this chusing out, and severing the people, upon Exo. 6. 14. Taketh] which shall be drawn by lot, or pointed out some other way, not specified, whereby that tribe may be stayed until the offender be found out, the other tribes being sent away free.

V. 15. That is taken] That is discovered to be guilty of it: Be burnt] as the accursed things ought to be, Deu. 13. 16.

V. 17. Man by man] By poll, the heads of families, which [...]scended from Z [...]a, Gen. 38. 30.

V. 19. Give] Humble thy selfe before him by a sincere confession; acknowledging him to be the searcher of the hearts, the witnessse of all secret facts, and the judger of sins, 1 Sam. 6. 5. Jer 13. 16. Joh. 9. 24.

V. 23. Laid them out] This phrase seemeth to shew some detestation, Before the Lord] before the Arke of God, where this solemn act was done.

V. 24 Of Achor] Of trouble, so called by reason of this accident, v. 26.

V. 25. Stoned them] An extreame severity for example, which neverthelesse admitteth no complaint, seeing God was author thereof, whose judgements are always just, though incomprehensible and beyond all human reason.

V. 26. Raised] According to the custome, over the bodies of them, which died ignominiously, Jos. 8. 29. 2 Sam. 18. 17. Lam. 3. 53.

CHAP. VIII. VERS. 7.

Then] When I shall give you a signall.

V. 12. Five thousand] Whether they were other ambushes laid in another place, to make the execution so much the surer, or whether he chose these five thousand out of the thirty thousand which were spoken of before, when he was in the place, to make the adventure so much the easier.

V. 13. Joshua went] Drawing neere the city with the body of his army.

V 14. At a time appointed] From all parts of the city at once.

V. 19. As soon as he] Whether that Joshua stood in a place where the ambushment might see this signall, or whether upon this stretching out of his hand, he people raised a cry, to give them, which lay in ambush, notice of it

V. 20. They had] Being inclosed betweene the city, and the camp, before and behind.

V. 24. *S [...]*ote it] The remnant of the men, the women and little children.

V. 26 Drew not] he did not cause the retreat to be [Page] sounded.

V. 29 Assoon as] According to the Law Deut. 21. 22, 23. Jos. 10 26, 27. Raise] See Jos. 7. 26.

V. 32 A copy] As Deut. 17. 18. Others expound it the repetition of the Law, meaning Deuteron. or a summarie thereof.

V. 33. Should blesse] And also denounce the curses opposite unto them, Deut. 27. 12, 13. The first time] These words are added in the Italian, and are not in the English. After the coming into the Land of Canaan; for this was to be done once in seven years together, with the publike reading of the Law, Deut. 31. 10. yet not with any speciall restraint to these places.

CHAP. IX. VERS. 1.

OF the great sea] That is to say, of the Mediterranean sea.

V. 4. They did work w [...]lily] to provide for their owne safeties by deceit, as the others did by strength.

V. 7 Ye dwell] You are of the people of this countrey, which God hath given us, with whom God, hath forbidden to make any Covenant, Exodus 23. 32.

V. 8. Thy servants] Not thine enemies, as the other Canaanites are.

V. 11 We are] Wee will take our Law from you, and accept of such conditions as you shall propound to us: amongst which it is to be imagined, the first was, that they should embrace the true religion, and the pure service of God.

V. 14. The men] Namely the chief of Israel. Took] as accepting this for a proof of their saying, without enquiring of the Lord by Urim and Thummim, Num. 27. 21.

V. 19 We have sworn] See how this Oath was broken by Saul, and how hee was punished for it, 2 Sam. 21.

V. 20 This we will doe] That is specified in the next verse. Wrath] of God, the revenger of perjury.

V. 21. Hewers] Subject together with their whole posterity to doe these base offices belonging to strangers, Deut. 29 11. For all the sacrifices, and all the service of Gods house.

It seemeth these are they which afterwards were called Nethinims, 1 Chron. 9. 2. Ezz. 3, 43. confirmed in these offices by David. Ezz. 8. 20.

V. 23 Cursed] Gods generall curse upon all the people of Canaan, would require that you should be destr yed as the rest: but by reason of the Oath which hath been made unto you this curse shall bee only to slavery, and not to death.

V. 27 For the Congregation] To doe these works belonging to the service of God, which otherwise was imposed upon the people to doe.

CHAP. X. VERS. 1.

AND were] Had taken their part, were of their Religion, and lived amongst them: and may be, they were already employed in that service whereunto they were doomed.

V. 12 Then spake] Desiring him to doe the ensuing miracle; and after that he was heard and was certified by some unknown means of Gods will, he commanded the Sun to stand still; stand thou still] In the same place of heaven as thou art in now, that we be in Gibeon. And thou] It seemeth he spake this towards evening: having by the benefit of the [...]ayes length followed the enemies as far as Ajalon, and being desirous to goe yet further, he desired the Moon, being up, to stand still also, to favour with her light the pursuit of the victory all the night.

V. 13. And the sun] See the like miracle 2 Kin. 20. 10, 11. Of Josher] The Italian hath it, Of the upright] or of the right, as 2 Sam. 1. 18. The subject, nor the Author of this book is not knowne, being lost, as many other History books were. See upon Num. 21. 14.

V. 16. Fled] Whilst Joshua followed the victory.

V. 21. At Makkedah] Where the Armies campe was; but after the end of the victory, they all returned to the great camp where all the people were, who remained still in Gilgal, v. 15. 43. None moved] None durst assault them, or offer them the least injury. See Exod. 11. 7.

V. 24. Put your feet] For a disgrace, and to shew that he had quite subdued them.

V. 26 Vntill the evening] according to the Law, Deu. 21. 22. Jos. 8. 29.

V. 41. Goshen] The name of a City in the land of Canaan. Jos. 15. 51.

CHAP. XI. VERS. 2.

Cinneroth] It was that Countrey which was by the lake of Genezareth, where the City called Cinnereth was, Deuteron. 3. 17. Dor] A City and Countrey which afterwards fell to the Tribe of Manasseh, Jos. 17. 11.

V, 3 Hermon] The name of a hill towards the North part of Palestine. Mizpeh] A city, whereof see Gen. 31 49.

V. 6 Thou sha't hough] God did never allow his people to make such great preparation of warlike instruments, because they should believe and hope only in his ayd. See Deuter. 17. 16. 2 Samuel 8. 4. Psalme 147; 10

V: 8 Mizrephothmaim, The Italian, The hot waters] Some have thought them to be Saltpits, where they boyled salt: And some waters belonging to glasse-making.

V. 10 The King] Be it either that, Jabin, verse the [Page] first, was gotten into his City, being escaped out of the battaile; or that being slaine there, the people of Hasor had suddeinly created another King for the defence of the chief City.

V. 17 Halak] That is to say smooth, or a bare rock, without herb or trees.

V. 21 Anakims] A race of Giants, Num. 13. 33. Deu. 1. 28. Of Israel] Of the other tribes beside Judah: for even in those dayes Judah was distinguished from the other tribes, by his power and preheminance.

V. 22 In Gaza] These were of the Philistims Cities which were not conquered at the same time.

CHAP. XII. VERS. 8.

South Countrey] The Hebrew word may also be understood of great Lands, as the precedent word wilderness, of a Countrey of pastures.

CHAP. XIII. VERS. 2.

GEshuri] A people towards the North of Palestina.

V. 3 Sihor] Which was the Torrent of Egypt, Numbers 34. 5. which is counted] though the Philistims came not out of Canaan, Genesis 10. 14. yet was that Countrey which they possessed themselves of, held to be part of Canaan, and was comprehended within Gods gift, given to his people. The Avites] Which had anciently possessed that countrey, which afterwards was taken by the Philistims, who chased out the old inhabitants, Deuteron. 2. 23. But peradventure some remnant of them remained in some part of that Countrey from whom it retained the name.

V. 4 From the south] He would say that upon all the coast of the Mediterranean sea, from the South, where the Philistims were, to the North, where the Sidonians were, remained the Canaanites. Amorites; these were some Northern Amorites, of which see Judg. 1. 34.

V. 5. Gheblites] People neare Sidon, whose City or Countrey was called Ghebal, Psal, 83. 7. Ezec. 27. 9. 40.

V. 6 Divide thru it] Though these Countries are not yet conquered, doe thou neverthelesse divide them amongst the Tribes, for I will give them the possession thereof in their due ime. See the first chap. of Judges and 13. that they had it not yet in Ioshua's time.

V. 11 Border] Of which they had onely received the right from Moses, and not the possession, as appeares by v. 2.

V. 12 The remnant of the Giants] The Italian Rahaims] or Giants.

V. 14 The sacrifices] The portions thereof assigned to the Priests, and under these kinds of Offerings are contained all other kinds which were given to the Levites, Num. 18. 8. 20. 24.

V. 15. According to] Proportioning the quantity of land to the number of the families, or assigning to every family its part.

V. 23 The border] See how this ought to be understood, Num. 34. 6.

V. 25 The children] God had forbidden the taking of any parcel of the Ammonites lands from them, Deuteron. 2. 19. Whereby it may be presumed that this halfe was already taken, and possessed by Sihon, as a part of Moab was, Numbers, chapter 21. verse 26.

V. 31 To the one halfe] The other half had its share on this side Jordan, Jos, 17. 2. 5.

CHAP. XIV. VERS. 2.

BY Lot] Wherein they proceeded in this kinde: All the countrey being divided into so many parts as there were Tribes: When the lot was drawn for one Tribe, in such, or such a countrey, according as the number of that Tribe was, great or small; to the portion of it was either enlarged or restrayned. See Num. 26. 55.

V. 4 For the] This is added to shew how two Tribes and a halfe being provided for of shares beyond Iordan, and the Tribe of Levi being to have no inheritance, there could be yet nine Tribes and a halfe to provide for, Iacob having left but twelve sons in all; and that was by reason that the posterity of two of Iosephs children made two Tribes 1 Chr. 5. 1, 2. according to Iacobs order. Gen. chapter 48. verse 5.

V. 6 Came] To second Calebs demand, by their consent or intercession.

V. 9 Moses] By Gods own will declared, Nu. 14. 24.

Whereon] See how that ought to be understood upon Num. 13. 30.

V. 10 Forty and five] Seeing that word was spoken two years after the comming out of Egypt, and that after that the people had wandered eight and thirty years in the wilderness, Deut. 2. 14. it is manifest that this was the seventh yeare after the comming into the land of Canaan: and from hence we may see that six whole yeares went to the conquering of it: Wandred] was constrained by Gods command to go back into the wilderness, Num. 14 25.

V. 11 I am] Caleb speaketh this to celebrate Gods miraculous benefit, like unto that which is spoken of Moses, Deut. 34. 7. and to shew that he was yet able to conquer the countrey which hee required, which was [Page] yet possessed by the Anakites, the overcoming of which nation he had in Moses his time assured.

V. 12 This mountaine] or mountainous Countrey. If so be] These are no termes of distrust but of modesty and submission to Gods will, for the time and meanes.

V. 13 Hebron] See Ios. 15. 13. Iudg. 1. 20. Now this is to be understood of the territory of Hebron, and Cities of that Countrey; because that the City it selfe was given to the Priests, Ios. 21. 11. 1 Chron. 6. 55, 56.

V. 14. Caleb] And to his posterity.

BY their] As every Tribe was divided into families, and into households, according to the number and greatnesse of which, was proportioned the share of land which was awarded unto them.

V. 2 Salt sea] The lake of Sodom, sulphurous, and bituminous, contrary to other lakes of fresh water, which were in Palestine.

V. 4 The sea] Namely, the Mediterranean sea.

V. 5 Vnto the end] Where it went out into the lake of Sodom.

V. 6 Bohan] Iudah did no way border upon Reuben; wherefore it is likely this stone was so called, for some other unknown reason.

V. 8 That lyeth] Namely, the foresaid mountaine.

V. 10 Seir] This Seir being in the middle of the land of Iudah, can by no meanes be Seir of the Idumeans.

V. 12 And the coast thereof] See upon Numbers 34. 6.

V. 14 The children] That is to say, they were of his posterity. Now under the name of these three giants may be comprehended the whole race of them which dwelt in that City.

V. 15 He went up] The taking of this city hath been already described, Ios. 10. 38. and therefore this seemeth to be but onely a repetition of the same history, to shew who was chiefe in that enterprise: namely Othniel, and what was the occasion of it.

V 18. A field] A free hold, as an addition of reward: for otherwise the daughters had no part in the inheritance. Lighted] The Italian hath it, She cast her selfe down] at her fathers feet, as intending to make some particular request to him.

V. 19 A south land] The Italian, A drye land] Hebrew a South land, exposed to the scorching of that aspect. Give me] Ioyne unto this field or inheritance, which my Husband hath desired of thee, other Lands adjoyning, which have water in them, that wee may water it, and make it fruitfull.

V. 32 Twenty and nine] the afore-named Cities are six and thirty, but seven of them were given to the tribe of Simeon, Ioshua, chapter 19. verse 1.

V. 36 Gederothaim] This city seemeth to bee but onely an addition to the preecedent, as if one should say Gederah the double; for otherwise in stead of fourteen cities there would be fifteen.

V. 47 And the border] See upon Numbers, chap. 34. 6.

V. 63 Could not] God whose Oracle was enquired of in all enterprises, did not suffer them, or did not give them the power, and opportunity according to the prediction, Deuteronomy chapt. 7. verse 22. onely to try and exercise the people, Iudg. 3. 3. 45. Drive them out] Wholly; because that one part of Ierusalem was taken by the tribe of Iudah, Iudg. 1. 8. But there remained yet the rock of Sion, and one part of the city which David tooke in his time: 2. Samuel, chapter 5. verse 7.

BY Iericho] See Numb. 22. 1. The water] It might be some particular place called by this name, which is specified, because that the Easterne border of the Ephramites, did not extend it self all along that part of Iordan, which carried the name of Iericho; yea, onely to this place, as it appeareth in the eighteenth chapter of Ioshua, and the twelfth verse. From the bounds of Benjamin, which bordered with Ephraim.

V. 4 Manasseh] The halfe of this tribe, which had not had its share beyond Iordan.

V. 5. On the east side] Namely, on the North-east side.

V. 7 To Jericho] Within the Territories thereof; for otherwise the city of Iericho fell to Benjamins lot, Ioshua the eighteenth chapter, and the one and twentieth verse.

CHAP. XVII. VERS. 1.

FOR he was] Though hee was the first borne; yet Ephraim which was the youngest was preferred by Iacobs appoyntment: Genesis the eight and fortieth chapter, verse the tenth. As well in dignity, being first drawne in the division; As also in great largenesse of Countrey, proportioned to the greater Number of Ephraims issue. Because [Page] he was] Wherefore they freely achieved the conquest of the land, which Moses had given them, Numbers 32. 39. and for the same reason they were chosen by him to inhabit in that place, to stand as it were in defence of that dangerous frontier. Gilead] The one halfe of it, as it appeareth, Deuteronomy chapter 3. vers. 12, 13.

V. 2 By their] Whereof each one was a head of a nation which carried their name.

V. 5 Ten portions] Five for the five brothers, verse the second, and five more for the five daughters of Zelophel [...], the son of Hefer, who was the sixth brother.

V. 6 The Daughters] In this Tribe the division was not made onely according to the number of the males as in other Tribes, but also of the females.

V: 10 Met together] The Italian, Bordered] These two Tribes descending both from one Patriarch Joseph, being joyned together; for otherwise if you did divide them, Manasseh bordered upon the other two tribes.

V. 11 The Inhabitants] who because they could not be driven out, were brought into bondage, as it is said afterwards.

V. 12 Would dwell] Resolved to stand upon their owne defence; to be admitted to capitulation, that they might dwell in their owne Cities.

V. 14 The children] Namely of the two Tribes, Ephraim and Manasseh. One lot] They did indeed receive two severall portions; but they would say, that they both were worth but one, in regard of their great multitude.: and that one of their tribes was sufficient to people them both: especially seeing that a great part thereof was yet enjoyed, and possessed by the Canaanites.

V. 15 To the wood Countrey] It was some great wood between these two tribes.

V. 16 The hill] The hilly part which wee have hitherto conquered: and as for the plaine, the Canaanites have the advantage of us, by reason of their warre Charets; Judges 1. 19. and 4. 3. Of Iron] It was thought they were Charets for warre; the axle trees armed with Iron-hooks, and trimmed up every where with Iron, both for offence, and defence.

V. 17 Thou shalt not have] As there is good reason thou shouldest have as much land as two Tribes, so thou must employ a double strength in conquering of [...].

V. 18 For it is] The Italian, If it be] If the rest of the countrey be a wood, the best remedy is to cut it. Thou shalt drive out] with the help of God which will not faile thee; so that thou employest thy s [...]fe in it valiantly, and put thy confidence in him, and his promises.

CHAP. XVIII. VERS. 4.

DEscribe it] Thou shalt take a note of the countrey, and of the situation of it, the bignesse of it, and number of the Cities, and Castles, to make the shares equall.

V. 6 Yee shall therefore] Joshua's words to the Deputies which were already chosen. The Lord] that is to say, before the Ark.

V. 7 The Priest-hood] They have their portions assigned them, out of the things which are offered and consecrated to God, in recompence of their service.

V. 19 The North bay] The salt sea, or lake of Sodome, stretched it self from the North and South, and at the two heads, it did restraine it selfe into two great poynts; whereof the Northern was the end of the Land of Benjamin, and the Southerne one, of that of Judah, Josh. chapter 15. verse 2. and the mouth of Jordan, which went out into this lake was Southernly, in regard of the head thereof, which was northerly.

CHAP. XIX. VERS. 2.

BEer-sheba] This City, and that which followeth next, were both but one City, divided by some river or wall; otherwise in stead of thirteen Cities, there would bee fourteen. See 1 Chronicles 4. 28.

V. 9. The Inheritance] See upon Josh. chapt. 15. verse 32.

V. 11 The River] Called Kishon. Judg. chap. 4 verse 7.

V. 15 Bethlehem] This is another City of the same name as that which was in Judah, where the Lord was borne, yet it is not the same. Twelve] the whole number of the Cities which are named, is sixteen. But we must imagine, that amongst this number, there were some which were not of Simeons portion, but did onely border upon it.

V. 27 Cabul] This is not the name of a City, for then in stead of two and twenty, there would be three and twenty: but it is the name of some Countrey lying in the outermost bounds of Palestina, 1 Kings 9. 13.

V. 34 To Iudah] Jordan was the Eastern border of this tribe, and of all the rest of the Tribes which lay upon it, untill it came to Judah.

V. 38. Nineteen] See how this number must bee understood upon v. 2. 15.

V. 47. Went up] That is to say afterwards, After the [Page] death of Joshua, Judges 18. where Lesem is called Lais, which was at the Northerne end of the Countrey: whereby Dan is after set downe for the northerne head, opposite to Beer-sheba the southern head.

V. 50. Built] Repaired it from the ruines of the warres, increased it, and made it fitting for his own use.

SPake] In a sensible apparition, as Jos. 5. 14. or in a prophetick revelation.

V. 4 His cause] The true relation of the fact, for his owne justification. Take him] Namely, if they doe not find him guilty of wilfull murther.

V. 8 Assigned] Confirmed and ratified, that which was already appoynted by Moses, Deuteronomy 4. 43.

V. 9 Untill hee] Till that after the death of the high Priest, he did present himselfe before the great assembly of the people, to be re-established in his owne house, under the security of publike protection, after his innocence was made knowne, and the avengers wrath abated and qualified.

CHAP. XXI. VERS. 11.

OF Anak] The Italian hath it, Anoe] commonly called Anak.

V. 12 The fields] Beyond the two thousand cubits, specified, Num. 35. 5.

V. 16. Two Tribes] Namely, Judah, and Simeon, verse 9.

V. 27 The other halfe Tribe] Besides that half which had its share beyond Jordan.

CHAP. XXII. VERS. 3.

These many dayes] See upon Jos. 14. 10.

V. 8. With your brethren] With those of your Tribes, which stayed behind for the safeguard of the countrey, according to Moses his order, Num. 31. 27 see 1 Sam. 30. 24.

V. 10 To the borders] Others, to the bounds; Others doe keep the Hebrew word Gheliloth, as it were a proper name, as Ios. 18. 17.

V. 11 At the passage] The Italian, On the side of] On this side Iordan, in the other Tribes Countrey.

V. 14 Each chiefe house] Namely, the chief in every Tribe: Now the halfe Tribe of Manasseh, which was on this side Iordan, is here set downe for a whole tribe.

V. 16 Rebell] For as much as this Altar had been built to offer ordinary Sacrifices upon, as it was very likely, seeing it was not slightly built, as your extraordinary Altars were, which were not built to endure, Exodus 20. 24, 25. It would have beene a mark and occasion of Schisme, and division in the Church, and a disobedience and alienation from Gods true service, which was not acceptable to him, but onely upon one altar. Deut. 12. 26, 27. for a figure of Christ his Crosse, which was the onely true Altar.

V. 17 From which] For many which were guilty thereof, whom God spared at that time when the evill was committed, did notwithstanding suffer for it many yeares after, as Numbers, chapt. 14. vers. 20, 22.

V. 19 Be uncleane] In your judgement and opinion, as having not in it the holy signes of Gods presence in the instruments of his service. Of the Lord] Which the Lord hath acquired, and consecrated to himselfe for his Churches habitation, and a place of the si [...]nes of his presence, such as the Altar, the Tabernacle, and the Arke were. Against us] Severing your selves from the communion of the Church: in which alone is the true service of God, and the participation of his grace and Covenant.

V. 20 Wrath] The discomfiture before Ai, Ioshua, chapter 7. verse 5. That man] Namely, the thirty men which were slaine by the enemies, and the whole family of Achan, which was put to death with him, causeth us to feare, lest all Israel bee entangled in the punishment of your sin.

V. 24 What have you to doe] You are not of Gods people, being separated from the holy land by the river of Iordan.

V. 25. Make our children] They might coole their zeale in the service which is yielded unto him in the place which he hath chosen, and consecrated.

V. 26 Build us] By graving some inscription upon it, or keeping in our treasurie of Monuments, some publike record, when, by whom, or to what end that Altar was built.

V. 27 Before him] Before the Ark, the place by him chosen, to shew his presence in grace and power.

V. 31 Among us] With his grace and blessing, by not suffering so grosse an abuse. Delivered] Have not drawne upon them, some severe judgement of God.

V 34 Ed] We have so set it up in the middest of the Tribes, which are on both sides Iordan, for a token, that we doe all equally acknowledge, and worship the same God, whom we all can, ought, and will serve in his Temple.

That remaine] Whose countrey hath not yet been conquered.

V. 7 Come not among] You joyne not your selves carnally with them in marriages, or otherwise. Cause to sweare] The Italian, Use them in oathes] in oathes which you shall make of your selves, or swear them at other mens requests.

V. 8. As ye have done] Since you came into the Land of Canaan, under my conduct.

V. 11 To your selves] The Italian, Upon your soules] as you tender the welfare of your owne persons, and especially the salvation of your soules. Or upon paine of most grievous punishment upon your persons.

V. 14 I am going] I shall shortly dye; 1 Kings 2. [...]. as it is appoynted for all men once to dye. Hebr. 9. 27.

CHAP. XXIV. VERS 1.

SHichem] In Silo, which was within the Territories of Shechem, where the Tabernacle and the Arke were.

V. 2 The floud] Namely Euphrates.

V. 3 Multiplied] By Hagar, and Keturah. Gave him] For heire, and partaker of my Covenant by speciall grace and power.

V. 10 Out of his hand] Namely Balak.

V. 12 The two] Sihon and Og.

V. 15 And if] This is spoken, not to free the people from their service to God, but to trye them, and binde them more strictly unto him, as having chosen him to bee their God of their owne free will, and so come within his Covenant; as your pleasingest bonds are the strongest. See Ruth chapter 1. verse 8. 1 Kings chapt. 18. verse 21. Psal. 119. verse 173. Prov. chap. 1. verse 29. Ezech. chap. 20. ver. 37.

V. 19 Ye cannot] Take care what you promise, because you must religiously observe it, and one can hardly hope for that at your hands, knowing your naturall rebellion, and inclination to Idolatry, which will provoke Gods wrath.

V. 25 Ioshua] Who representing Gods person, in the quality of his servant, and in his name renewed and confirmed his Covenant with the people.

V. 26 In the Book] Ioyning it by Gods order and inspiration to the book of the Law written by Moses. Deuteronomy, chapter 31. verse 9. 26. Set it up] As the custome of those dayes was, to set up such stones or pillars for signes and monuments either with, or without inscriptions, Genesis chapt. 28. verse 18. and chap. 31. verse 45. and chapter 35. verse 14. Exodus, chapter 24. verse 4. Deuteron. chap. 27. verse 2. Ioshua, chapter 4. verse 3. and chapter 8. verse 32. By the Sanctuary] Within the precinct of the Court, which was about the Tabernacle.

[...]. 27. It hath heard] It shall represent unto your Consciencs the promises you have this day made; as a living witnessse would doe, that had been desired to be present at the making of a contract.

V 33 Given him] By some particular and speciall liberality for the commodiousnesse of Gods Service, established in Siloh, a place of Ephraim: to the end that the high Priest might dwell neare: For otherwise all the Priests Cities were taken out of Iudah, Simeon and Benjamin, Ioshua, chap. 21. verse 4.

THE ARGVMENT.

THIS Book, which seemeth to have beene gathered by some Prophet [...] of publike Records, and the treasures where they were kept, containeth the Historie of the chiefe things which happened to the people of God, after the death of Ioshua, untill the dayes of Eli high Priest. The sum of which is, that God after Ioshua's death; having left many of the accursed people remaining for a continuall proof, and exercise of his people; they by their unlawfull practises, contracts, and marriages with them; were thereby misled into severall great corruptions in the service of God; and into a boundlesse Idolatry, and corruption of Life and Manners. Whereupon, God had also imployed the same nations, for to afflict and punish them severely by tyrrannies, oppressions, violences, and desolations by warre. But yet the sonne of God, the everlasting head of his Church, would not suffer it to bee quite corrupted, or destroyed; but divers times appeared, and spake either in his owne person or by some Pr [...]phat, to reprove his people and call them to repentance. And did also at their need extraordinari [...] prayse up some heroicall persons, which he did indue with power and gifts of his spirit, inspiring and setting them on to take upon them the government, under a benigne, fatherly and reasonable* forme, to minister justice, practised through the light and guid of Gods spirit: and to defend, and deliver the people from their oppressors, and to re-establish the publik liberty and peace by their Armies, miraculously conducted and blessed by God: and all under the plaine name & title of Iudges: seeing their whole dignity and office being restrained [...] [...] the bounds of those two functions, could not beare any signe of a violent, proud, or absolut domination, but depending onely upon Gods election, command, approbation, and guid, aiming onely at the publike good and safety, as Moses and Ioshua had done, which lasted untill the Philistims tyranny, which was never quite abolished by the Iudges; yea, joyned to the rest of the peoples frequent dis-orders; it layd open the way for Gods providence to confirme the state, by erecting. Davids and his posterities Monarchy: which was to serve for a perpetuall direction to expect Christ his spirituall, and everlasting Kingdome.

ANNOTATIONS.

CHAP. I. VERS. 1.

Sked] By the high Priest, according to the Law, Nu. 27. 21.

A

V. 8. Had fought] Namely, in Ioshua's time.

Now they of Iudah had but onely taken one part of Ierusalem, which had always been divided into two Cities, severally enclosed with walls. See Ios. 15. 63.

V. 16 Kenite] A Nation of which Iethro, Moses, his father in law was. Num. 24. 21 who stayed with the people at Moses his request, Num. 10. 31. or at the least his posterity afterwards, did come amongst them, Iudg. 14 17. 1 Sam. 15. 5 1 Chron. 2. 55. Ier. 32. 5. Out of the City] Namely Iericho. See Deut. 34. 3.

V. 17. Hormah] That is to say destruction, after the manner of the accursed thing.

V. 19. Could not] See Ios. 63. Of Iron] See upon Ios. 17. 16. Now the use of these charers, was for the plains, and vallies, not for the hilly Countries.

V. 21 The children] For one part of Ierusalem belonged to the land of Benjamin, Ios. 18. 28. the other belonged to Iudah. Ios. 15. 63.

V. 27 Would dwell] As Ios. 17. 12.

CHAP. II. VERS. 1.

ANgel] Which was the sonne of God himselfe, who from time to time appeared in humane shape, as the great Captaine of the people; and therefore here attributeth unto himself the works of God, see Ex. 14. 19. and 23. 20. and 33. 14. Ios. 5. 13, 14. Iodg. 6. 12. and 13. 3. Came up] From Gilgal, where he first appeared to Ioshua, Iosh. 5. 13. hee now appeared again in Bochim: here so called by anticipation, vers. 5.

V. 3 A snare] A cause of r [...]ine, and perdition; through the idolatry which you shall commit with them, drawne thereunto by the society which you hold with these nations. Exod. 23. 33. Deuteronomy 7, 16.

V. 4 Spake] It is very likely that hee spake through the high Priest, or Ioshua himselfe.

V. 5 Bochim] That is to say, the place of weeping.

V. 9 Timnath-Heres] It seemeth that by reason of the abommation of the idolatry which was here done to the Sun (for Heres in Hebrew signifieth the Sun) this place was afterward by transposition of, letters called Timnath- [...]ra, Ios. 19. 50. and 2 [...]. [...]0. as upon the same occasion the like change was made, of many other proper names.

V. 10. Which knew not] Which was not present at the time of those miraculous works, and manifestations: and had not the experience, nor lively impression thereof, as they who had been eye-witnesses of it.

V. 11. Did evil] By this ordinary circumlocution is meant idolatry, which is the sinne which above all other sinnes offends Gods Majesty. Baalim] The generall name of all the Canaanean, Caldean, and Syrian idols, and signifieth Lords, or Governors. Under this name the Planets were worshipped, to whom the Astrologians attribute some kind of domination in their houses in heaven. Under this name is also the name of Bel comprehended, either single or compounded.

V. 13. Ashtaroth] The generall name of the female idolls of those nations as of Venus-starre amongst the Sidonians, and of the Moone and the earth amongst the Syrians; and it is very likely that from thence is derived the Greek word, [...], as Saturne, Mercury, Iupiter, Luna, Pallas, &c. came from the Hebrew.

V. 16 Iudges] Rulers and supream Magistrates who were endowed with heroicall and extraordinary vertues by Gods spirit, and had also a divine calling, as well to rule the people with Laws and judgements, as for to defend them from their enemies by just warre.

V. 17 A whoring] A very frequent terme in Scripture, signifying the unlawfull and shamefull conjunction of the soule with idolls: whereas true and sincere religion is compared to chaste wedlock. Their fathers] In Ioshua's time, and a while after.

V. 18 It repented] See upon Gen. 6. 6.

V. 19. Then their fathers] The ancientest, in Egypt, [Page] and in the wilderness: They ceased not] they imitated, yea went beyond the examples of their wicked forefathers.

V. 22. I may prove] This was Gods end, when he left these Nations in Joshua's time, for afterwards, this triall having an evill issue, they served no longer for trials, but for scourges and instruments of revenge.

CHAP. III. VERS. 1.

AS had not] They had not been present, whereby they were also lesse touched with these wonders, as being olde; wherefore God left some victories to follow, to renew the memory of the old, and keep the people in continuall exercise of Faith and Obedience, seeing they had the same need of Gods grace against that remainder of the enemies.

V. 2. Only that] Besides that chief foresaid end, God had another, which was to prevent the relenting and tenderness, which is caused by great and long rest; and for to force his people to hold those nations to be enemies, and to execute his sentence against them, seeing they were continually assaulted & molested by them: To catch them] the Italian, Being taught] at their own costs, and to their dammage.

V 3. Five] Judg. 1. 18. It hath been said, that Judah conquered three of them, but we ought to beleieve, that this chanced after the time which is here set downe: namely after the death of Joshua, Judges chapter 2. verse 21.

V. 7. The groves] See Exodus 34. 13. Deutcronomy 16. 21. Judg. 6. 25.

V. 10. The sp rit] God did endow him extraordinarily with the gifts of his Spirit, in heroicall vertues, fit ting for the charge of government, and deliverance of his people, and did by a vehement and secret force of his Spirit, drive and inspire him to undertake the doing of it: Judged] See upon Judges chapter, 2 verse 16.

V. 11. Forty] Reckoning after the death of Joshua, as it may be gathered by the summe of years set down 1 Kings 6. 1.

V. 13. The City] The Country belonging to Jericho, Deut. 34. 3. fortifying himselfe also in the ruines thereof.

V. 15. Left handed] Hebrews, that had his right hand shut, see verse 21. In many men being lefthanded, is a signe of strength, and courage: See Judges chapter 20. verse 16.

V. 16. Right thigh] Because he was left handed.

V. 18. Sent away] Ehud went along with them part of the way, and from thence sent them home, and he went back again to performe his businesse more secretly, and without endangering any body else.

V. 19. The quarries] The Italian, The stone statues] It may be they were the twelve stones which Joshua set up, Jos. 4. 20. Others would have them to be some Idols of the Gentiles; Others take the Hebrew word to signifie certaine stone quarries, Keepe silence] forbear speaking of it, untill wee bee alone.

V. 20. Summer parlour] Hebrew, coole, according to the custome of great men, who had their Summer rooms, and their Winter rooms, Jermiah, 36. 22. Amos 3. 15. Arose] in signe of some reverence to the God-head, though it was an ignorant and superstitious one.

V. 25. Till they were] They could not tell what to say, nor what to thinke. Others, they stayed till it was very late.

V. 26. Sei [...]ath] This was some place in the land of Israel, peradventure the same that is mentioned, Jos. 15. 10.

V. 27 Heblew] To gather the people together.

V. 29. Lusty] The Italian, Fat] that is to say, chosen and able men.

V. 30. Fourescore] Counting, according to some, from the death of Othniel to Shamgar, or according to others, from the dividing of the Countrey, joyning into one summe the forty yeares mentioned, verse 11. And others in stead of eightie, read eight.

V. 31. With an oxe g [...]ad] Peradventure for want of another weapon; for they which had dominion over them were wont to keep them without weapons, Judg. 5. 8. 1 Sam. 13. 19, 22.

CHAP. IV. VERS. 2.

Sold them] Forsooke them to be made slaves, and suffered them to be subdued: Of the Gentiles] It should seeme that this place was so called, because that the Canaanean heathens, had their habitations, & forts there, as Isay 9. 1.

V. 3. Of iron] See upon Joshua Chapter 17. verse 16.

V. 4. *The w [...]*e] Either Lapidoth was her husbands name, or else it should be translated a woman of [...]ap doth, that is to say, borne in a city so called: Judged] by divine inspiration, and extraordinary vocation judged the people, and declared unto them Gods Will, and was raised up for their deliverance.

V. 5. Of. Deborah] For so this Prophetisse was called.

V. 9. The journey] Or in the way that thou takest, namely the way that thou followest, in being desirous to have me go along with thee.

V. 11. From the Kenites] From the other kindred of Jethro, called Kenites, Num. 24. 21. who had taken up their habitation amongst the tribe of Judah, Judg. 1. 16.

V. 14. Gone out] As Captaine of this army, where by [Page] also the action is imputed to the Lord.

V. 15. Discomsited] As Jos. 10. 10. and by Judg. 5. 20. it may be gathered that this was done by some heavenly means, as 1 Sam. 7. 10. With the edge] giving by this discomfiture, way to Barak and his men, to slay them without danger.

V. 17. Peace] Namely a forbearance of hostility and offences, but not any sworne o [...] covenanted peace, for in that case Jaels act had been blame worthy.

V. 21. Anaile] A Stake headed with iron, which was stuck into the ground, to keep the cords of the Tents in the field stretched out and sl [...]ffe: Now this act of Jaels being applauded, Judges 5. 24. we ought to beleieve that it proceeded from a holy zeale, to destroy the enemies of Gods people, according to his expresse command, to testifie her perfect communion with the Church, without having, any regard of her own proper good and safety.

CHAP. V. VERS. 2.

The people] Namely some of the tribes thereof, v. 18.

V. 4. When thou] As when thou appearedst to thy people, giving them thy Law in the Wildernesse (which is a part of Seir, or Idumea) and afterwards diddst miraculously conduct them, causing the prodigious effects of thy presence to be left, even so hast thou done at this time.

V. 6. The high wayes] A description of the calamities of warre, when the country is over-runn, and the high wayes kept by Souldiers and theeves, and all trading cutoff, none daring to travaile, but only through by-wayes: See Leviticus chapter 26. verse 22. 2 Chr. 15. 5. I say chapter 33. vers. 8. Lam. cha. 1. verse 4. and 4. 18.

V. 7. A Mother] That is to say, a governesse, and protect [...]ix.

V. 8. Seene] The people were taken unprovided of all manner of defence: Peradventure it hath a relation to their being disarmed by their enemies, see 1 Sam. 13. 19. 22.

V. 9. The gavernors] I do honour and love the Magistrates and Judges of the people, who notwithstanding their peaceable offices and dignities, have beene willing to participate of the labours, and dangers of warre.

V. 10. That ride] A token of dignity in these dayes, and countries: See Judges 10. 4. and 12. 14. He would say, let all the Magistrates and eminent persons, take an example of these mens zeales, and let travailers, safeguarded through their valours, praise God, and honour his instruments.

V. 11. They that are delivered] Seeing that now the Country is in peace, and the fields are freed from Souldiers incursions, and countrey people may go abroad about their businesse, to fetch water at the common wels, Ne emiah cha. 4. 23. Let those places of great meetings sing out Gods praises: Then shall.] by meanes of this victory, the countrey people may frequent the Cities, on Court and Market dayes, and the inhabitants of the cities may attend upon their businesses in the publick places, which ordinarily are neere the gates of the cities.

V. 13. He made him] He hath given him the victory over his enemies, and granted him the conquest of their land: That remaineth] The remainder of the children of Israel, who had been rescued out of the Canaanites oppression and tyranny: The Lord made] That is to say, by the hands of me Deborah, he hath delivered Princes and great Captaines into the hands of a multitude of meane people.

V. 14. Was there a root] Namely out of Manasseh, whose countrey began at the foot of the hill called Amaleck, which was within the Tribe of Ephraim, Judges 12. 15. After thee] Namely Ephraim and Manasseh whose land was on the backside of Benjamin from the South to the North: Out of Machir] Out of the halfe tribe of Manasseh, which was beyond Iordan, Num. 32. 39. Came downe] Namely the Magistrates are come down to this war: They that handle the pen of the Writer] The Italian hath it, Conducting their troopes with staves of Scribes] Annotations in the Italian are thus, Staves] bearing in their hands the signes and badges of their offices, Numbers 21. 18. Of Scribes] In Scripture they are so called which are towards the Law, as well by teaching and expounding it, as by judging according to it.

V. 15. Into the valley] Of mount Tabor, Iudges 4. 14. For the divisions] The Italian, Amongst the rivers] That part of the Reubenites, whose countrey, is bounded by two rivers, namely Iordan, and Arnon, have shewed themselves very valorous and free in this expedition.

V. 16. Why abodest thou] What was the reason that the other Reubenites have chosen rather to stay at home unworthily, to attend their cattel whereof they have great store, Num. 32. 1. then to come to this [...] glorious and necessary a war? For the divisions] The Italian, Amongst the rivers] The reason of [...]dis unworthynesse was carnall wisdome, which considering the dangers of the war, thought they did very wisely, in making more account of their security, then of employing themselves any way, for the publick good and safety.

V. 17. Gilead] Machir, who had his portion in Gilead, hath been commended verse 14. for being come freely to this enterprise, wherefore it seemeth that we must here by Gilead understand the tribe of Gad, which possessed the one halfe of Gilead, Ioshun 13. 15. In Ships] Because Dan and Asher had their Countrey neere to the Sea, [Page]

Ioshua chapter 19. verse 29, 40.

V. 18. In the high places of] Namely in plaine and open field.

V. 19. The Kings] Namely Jabin and his confederates: They tooke no] they could not get any prey, nor take any prisoners to put to ransome.

V. 20. They fought] See upon Iudg. 4. 15. In their courses] Hebrew, ways, or pathes.

V. 21. The river] These rivers, and torrents were neere the place where the battaile was fought, and it is very likely that many were drowned in them whose bodies were carried away with the water, Strength] of the enemies,

V. 22. Broken] In their rash, and over-hasty flight.

V. 23. *Me [...]*oz] This name is not any where else to be found, and it is likely, that it is some altered name, to point, out some city obscurely, as Mich. 1. 10 11, 12. Or every consonant of this word did shew the first letter of the names of some places, as might be Megiddo, Rabbot, Zabulon; three cities neere unto the place of that battaile: Said the] I do pronounce this curse, by the revelation, and command of the Son of God himselfe, Iudges 2. 1. who appeareth to me in the shape of an Angell, whose only servant, and instrument I am, in the conduct of his people: Of the Lord] of his Church, to the safeguard of which, the Glory of God himselfe is annexed.

V. 24. In the tent] As the Kenites did dwell for the most part in tents in Palestina, Iudges 4. 11. Ier. 35. 7.

V. 25. Lordly dish] In a dish or cup fitting for his greatnesse and dignity.

V. 27. Dead] The Italian, Desolate, losing his life as he had lost his men, and armes.

V. 29. Returned answer] To confirme, and comfort her selfe: An ironical representation.

V. 30. On both sides] Before, and behind: Meet for the neck] meaning some great kind of Royall mantles, buckled under the chin.

V. 31. Forty yeares] Counting from the fourescore, Iudg. 3. 30.

CHAP. VI. VERSE 2.

The dennes] Which afterwards served for shelters, places of refuge, and strength, untill the last desolation of the Iewes: See 1 Samuel Chapter 13. verse 6.

V. 3. Of the East] Namely the people of Arabia, which was Eastward from Palestina, Iob chapter 1. verse 3.

V. 10. Feare not] As every religion is joyned, with a feare of that deity, which it serveth, and worshippeth the true religion with a feare of piety and knowledge, the false religion with a blind and superstitious feare.

V. 11. An Angell] The Son of God himself, appearing in human shape, wherefore he is also called the everlasting Lord, v. 14. and 23. See Ios. 13. 14. Iudg. 2. 1. and 13. 3.

*Ab-Lzri [...]*e] It was one of the families of the tribe of Manasseh, Ios. 17. 2. Threshed] He did not thresh it openly upon the threshing floore, as he was wont to do, for feare of being espied by the Midianites, but he did beat it out with staves, or clubs privately in the wine-presse, without making any noyse.

V. 14. Thy might] Of body and mind, which thou must acknowledge God hath heretofore given thee, and now it shall be doubled upon thee by my Spirit, to execute thy vocation of deliverer of the people.

V. 15. My family] The Italian, My thousand] as the tribes were thus divided into thousands, Exo. 18. 25, Mic. 5. 2.

V. 17. That thou] The Italian, That thou art hee] The great Angell of God, which appeared so often.

V. 18. My present] Of corporall food, wherewith he meant to honour the Angell, as Abraham did, Gen. 18. 5. and Mano [...]h, Iudg. 13. 15. looking for some signe, which the Son of God gave him in that selfe same food.

V. 21. Departed] Vanished suddainly away for a little while; for presently after he appeared unto him again, and spake to him, v. 23.

V. 22. Alas] Words of an affrighted man, who was afraid to die, according to the conceite of all those to whom the Son of God did any way shew any beame of his glory: See Genesis 16. 13. and 32. 30. Exodus 24. 11. and 33. 20. Deut. 5. 24. Judg. 13. 22. Isay 6. 5. For because] Must I therefore die being cast down, and swallowed up by thy Majesty? Or plainly, thus have I seen the Angell, &c.

V. 23. Peace be unto thee] be quiet, be free from feare: Or else, I give thee my grace and blessing.

V. 24. An Altar] For a remembrance and a monument: Jehovah Sha [...]om] The Italian hath, The peace of the Lord] the Lord alone is the author of all peace, security and prosperity. See concerning these titles, Exodus 17. 15. Jeremiah 33. 16. Ezechiel 48. 35.

V. 25. The grove] Which according to the custome was dedicated to idolatry, Judges Chapter 3. verse 7.

V. 26. Rocke] It might be some clift, hard to get off where there had been some place of retreat, and defence.

V. 31. He that will plead] I will take upon my selfe the revenge of this impiety presently, words of zeale-inspired by God.

V. 32. Jerub-ba [...]]] A man against whom Baal is [Page] to strive and contend: See 2 Samuel, Chapter 11. v. 21.

V. 34. Came upon] Did seize on him, by an unaccustomed heat, and zeale, and filled him also with heroicall gifts, necessary for the executing of his office.

V. 37. Behold] Words of an humble and religious craving of a signe, in such a dangerous and high calling; to be thereby strengthened in faith and obedience, against all contrary perswasions, and not to prescribe God any thing, or to tempt him rashly.

CHAP. VII. VERS. 2.

AGainst mee] Taking from me either partly, or wholly the glory of their deliverance, attributing it to themselves.

V. 3. Gilead] There is no where else any mention made of any mount Gilead on this side of Jordan, wherefore it may be presumed to be some hill, situate within the Countrey of the halfe Tribe of Manasseh, standing on this side, which did somewhat resemble that famous mount Gilead, on the other side of Jordan, which was in the possession of the other halfe Tribe.

V. 5. That loppeth] Besides Gods free will in chusing by this signe, those whom he thought good, it seemeth he would also describe such as are sit to follow the Lord; Namely those who for zeale to his service, do but taste the pleasures of the world, as they passe along, without staying with them, only for necessity, and not for any constant delight they take in them.

V. 8. The people] Namely those three hundred chosen men.

V. 10. To go downe] With thy people to set upon them.

V. 11. Armed men] Which had the watch that night.

V. 13. A cake] Which represented the smalnesse and weakenesse of the Israelites that were with Gideon.

V. 15. He worshipped] Casting himselfe upon the ground before the Lord, he gave him thankes and glory, for confirming of his vocation; and for the victory which he did assure him of.

V. 16. Divided] Keeping one hundred with himselfe: A Trumpet] not only to affright the enemies campe, which was a very usuall stratagem of war, but also to represent unto us the true way, how to overcome the world and the devill, by the free profession of the Gospell, and cleere manifestation of the light thereof, in the publick preaching of it, and the lively demonstration of the power of it; in works of jastice even in this earthly body, though it be to the destruction of it, which is the earthen pitcher, wherein we have this treasure: See Joshua cha. 6. v. 4, 16. Psalm 149. v. 6. 2 Corinth. 4. 7. Revelations 12. 11.

V. 18. Of the Lord] The Italian, To the Lord] Or let the victory be for the Lord, that is to say, we fight for God and Gideon who are our heads.

V. 21. Stood] The Italian, Stood still] in signe that the whole work was Gods; as Exodus cha. 14. v. 14.

V. 22. Set] See like examples, 1 Sam. 14. 20. 2 Chro. 20. 23.

V. 24. Beth-barah] It seemes to be the same place which is called Bethab-barah, John chapter 1. verse 28. And Iordan] The Italian, Along Iordan] or, and Jordan, as if by the other waters were meant other rivers and torrents.

V. 25. Rocke Oreb] So called, by reason of this chance: On the other side] Before he was come over it.

CHAP. VIII. VERS. 1.

VVHy hast thou] The Italian, What thing i [...] this] Why hast thou so far despised us, as not to make us partakers of this enterprise, and of the honour of doing it? A complaint grounded upon the prehemineny of this Tribe, as well by reason of the power of it, as because Joshua was an Ephramite, and that the Tabernacle of God was in Siloh, a City of this Tribe: See Judges chapter 11. v. 1.

V. 2. What have] You complaine unjustly, for all that I and my Abiezerites, Judges 6. 11. have done and all the honour and profit we have gotten in this action, doth not equall the least part of yours, who have taken the two Princes, and spoiled them that fled, at your pleasure, &c.

V. 5. Succoth] This city, as likewise Penuel, were beyond Jordan: Loaves] The Italian hath it, Pious of bread] Hebrew, a round, or cake, because the J [...]s made their loaves flat and broad, whereofre they did breake them, when they shared them, and did not out them.

V 6 In tly hands] Are they already thy prisoners, that we should acknowledge thee to be a conqueror, & not feare the danger of their revenge? Words of mistrust in God, of a persidious and cruell abandoning of their brethren, and of a biting kind of scoffe to Gideon.

V. 7. With briers] The Italian, Thistles] or *Teaz [...]*s] A kind of a wilde herbe, of a triangular forme, with very sharpe prickles in the corners: Some hold it to bee, the starre thistle, or Saint Barnabies thistle.

V. 11. That dw [...] / [...] These were the Arabians, called Scenites by the Grecians, because they do not live in [Page] houses, nor cities, but in moveable tents, feeding their cattel: See Jeremiah chapter 49. verse 29. Nobah] Sco concerning these places, Numbers 32. 35, 42.

V. 13. Before the Sun was up] The Italian, Before the getting up of Heres] or, when the Sun began to rise.

V. 16. He taught] The Italian, He punished] or bruised.

V. 17. The towre] Which afterward was restored by Jeroboam, 1 Kings 12. 25.

V. 18. Each one] Others have it, one of them.

V. 21. For as the man] Why doest thou command this boy, in scorne and contempt of us, to do things beyond his age? If thou wilt slay us, do it thy selfe: The ornaments] Or plates of a pretious mettal, which were about the collars of Camels, that belonged to great Lords, or principall persons.

V. 23. The Lord] The supream dominion which you offer me, belongeth to God alone: as well to give his people laws, as to appoint and raise heads, and Judges amongst them; and from time to time declare his will unto them, and shew his power and might, see 1 Sam. 8. 7.

V. 24. Ishmaelites] That is to say, Arabians for the most part, who commonly used to weare eare-rings: See upon

Gen. 35. 4.

V. 27. An Ephod] A priestly habit, Exodus 28. 4. by which ought to be understood all other preparations belonging to Divine Service: which though it was in appearance appointed for the honour of the true God: yet it is called fornication and idolatry, because it was of mans invention, against Gods order: A snare] an occasion of ruine for all the tragical accidents, which did befall Gideons house, happened through Gods judgements, for a punishment of this idolatry.

V. 28. Fourty yeares] Counting as it is imagined from the other forty: Judges chapter 5. verse 31.

V. 29. Dwelt] That is to say, lived a private life.

V. 33. A whoring] Besides the corruption of the service of the true God, brought in by Gideon, they fell to serving of idols, as they had done before, Judg. 2. 11. and 3, 7.

CHAP. IX. VERS. 2.

Three score and ten] For the most wretched, and imperfect kind of government, is of a great number of supreme Lords, equall in authority: Your bone] Of your blood, and parentage by my mothers side.

V. 6. Millo] The Hebrew word signifieth a terrace and it might be some great place neere the palace, which therefore bare the name of it: and so by the house of Millo, should be understood the city counsell: Others take this name for the fortresse of the place, and the house of Millo for the garrison of it; Of the pillar] The Italian, The oake of the pillar] See Jos. 24. 26.

V. 7. That God] An ordinary kind of speech, when one desires any thing at a mans hands; do this as God shall helpe thee. Or else it is a kind of threatning: Hearken unto me, and then may God prosper you as you deserve.

V. 8. The trees] See a parable, or a fable like unto this 2 Kings 14. 9. You Sichemites, Gideon having refused the command which you had proffered to him, Judges 8. 22. have chosen a most wicked man to be Lord over you; if you have dealt justly in this election, then may you enjoy the fruits of a just government, but if you have dealt perfidiously, and ungratefully with Gideon, then may it please God to revenge it, by causing you to destroy one another, [...]. 57.

V. 9. God and man] Being that oyle was used in offerings, and in the consecration of persons, and instruments for Gods Service; and amongst men it is also employed to honourable uses. Others translate it, by which, by my meanes God and man is honoured; namely, in consecrating Kings and Priests: and to beautifie the face upon occasion of feasts and banquets.

V. 13. Which cheareth God] Because that wind was used in offerings, powring out the wine in Sacrifices of a pleasing odour to the Lord.

V. 15. If in truth] That is to say, if your chusing of Abimelech to be your King, be not joynd with a cruell treachery against my father, and his issue may you with security enjoy his government, verse 19. The cedars] Namely the most noble, and powerfull that are amongst you, for your tyrants chiefly aime at the overthrow of such.

V. 18. Maid servant] Of the Israelitish kind, which might be taken for concubines, Exodus chapter 21. verses 8, 10.

V. 22. Over Israel] Not that he had the same command over all the people, as he had [...] Sichem, but by reason of some preheminance, which he might have as being acknowledged for Gideons heire, and successor.

V. 23. Sent] Loosed the reines to the devils malice, that he might raise discords, for a punishment of their precedent hurtfull agreement: See 1 Kings 22 2. Psalme 55. verse 9. Hosea Chapter 10. verse 2.

V. 25. Set Lyers in wait] To catch him, if he w [...]nt by, evill accompanied, or to spie him if he passed along with any great troope, and to giye notice of it, troubling passengers in the meane time, according to the [Page] licentiousnesse of anarchy.

V. 26. Put their confidence] That is to say, chose them for their heads, reposing great trust and confidence, in their valour, and conduct.

V. 27. Made merry] The Italian, And sang] According to the custome of the vintage, Isay 16. 9. 10. Jeremiah 25. 30. The Italian addeth, Songs] The Hebrew, praises; for the originall of these Songs, was to praise God: See Leviticus Chapter 19 24.

V. 28. Who is] That is to say, Is there any reason that a city of such antiquity, and power as Sichem is should be subject to strangers, such as Jerubbaal the father of Abimelech was: Zebul] This was some governour of the city under Abimelech, who though he were borne in that place, was neverthelesse subject to envy and hatred, because he was his officer: Serve the] If you will have a master, take me rather, or some of my family, who are descended from that ancient Hamor, Genesis 34. 2. as the residue of the Canaanites were mingled amongst the people of Israel.

V. 29. And be said] He challenged him openly, though in his absence, and did send the challenge to him by some one or other.

V. 31. For [...]fie] That is to say, they use all their shifts and endeavours, to cause the city to rebell against thee, and to become Lords of it themselves.

V. 37. By the middle] The Italian, From the navell] that is to say from above, or from the middle, or from the open country, for the other squadron came by hidden and close wayes: Meonenim] the Italian, Of Southsayers] the occasion of this name is unknowne: it might be some grove dedicated to some southsaying idoll.

V. 41. Arumah] Concealing his ill will against the city, as though he had meant it to Gaal, to sin prize the inhabitants unprovided.

V. 42. Went out] Expecting no more enmity from Abimelech.

V. 45. And sowed it] As in abomination, condemning it to perpetuall barrennesse, as the barrennesse of salt ponds.

V. 46. Of the Tower] It was some forteresse or rock about the Temple of Baal-berith: The God Berith] The Italian, Baal-berith] Or, of the God of Berith.

CHAP. X. VERS. 4.

That rode] Ordinarily, for a token of dignity, according to the use of those times: See Iudges 5. 10. and 12. [...]4.
Havoth-Jur] The Italian, The Villages of Jair] Like to the other villages of Jair: Num. 32 41. the name of Jair being here renewed in one of his posterity.

V. 6. Baalim] See Iudges, Chapter 2. verses 11, 13.

V. 7. Sold them He forsooke, and abandoned them like slaves: See Iudges Chapter 2. verse 14.

V. 8. Eighteen] The Italian hath it, The eightenth] namely after Iairs death, v. 5.

V. 11. And the Lord] The Son of God appearing in [...] visible forme, or speaking of his oracles out of the Sanctuary, which were related to the people by the Priest.

V 12. Maonites] It is uncertaine what people these were, 1 Sam. 23. 24. there is mention made of the wilderness of Maon, in the Tribe of Iudah, neere to Idumea, whereof these Maonites might be a part.

CHAP. XI. VERS. 1.

OF an ba [...]lot] Kept by Gilaad as his concubine; Gilead] one of Gileads posterity, the son of Machir, whose name was Gilead.

V. 2. Wife] His lawfull wife.

V. 3. Tob] It was a Countrey in the confines of Arabia, and it is imagined to be the Tubienites land, which histories make mention of: Went out] Followed him in the excursions which he made upon the enemies of Gods people, in those frontiers, whereby the Gileadites knowing his valour, were perswaded to chuse him for their Captaine.

V. 7. Expell me] Hence it may be gathered that he was banished by publick authority.

V. 8. Therefore] If thou hast received any wrong by us, we come now for to make thee amends, and to re-establish thee by publick decree.

V. 9. Shall I be] Will you acknowledge me for your governour perpetually? Meaning thereby to prevent his brethrens injuries, which they might have done him, being a private man.

V. 10. The Lord] We promise and sweare it unto thee in his name, calling him to be a witnesse and a judge thereof.

V. 11. Ultered] Made a Covenant upon the same promises in the publick Congregation of the people encamped in Mizpeh, Judges chapter 10. verse 17. both parties appearing before God, who was the maintainer of the oath.

V. 13. Tooke away] Israel took nothing from the Ammonites, Deuteronomy Chapter 2. verse 19 [...]ut upon Sihon, who peradventure before had taken some part of the children of Ammons lands, Joshua Chapter 13. verse 25. Now though that countrey was for the most part Moabs, Numbers Chapter 21 verse 24, 26. The King of Ammon s [...]th it was his, for it is likely that he commanded Moab, seeing [...]t Chemosh] which was the Moabites peculiar idoll, 1 Kings chapter 1 [...]. v. 7. is v. 24. called the God of Ammon.

V. 24. Wilt not thou possesse] This is said in a [Page] manner of graunting, according to the meaning of Ammon an idolatrous King: and not to attribute any power unto the idoll: Chemosh] See upon v. 13.

V. 25. Did he] Namely Balak, after Isiael had conquered the Midianites, Numbers chapter 31. verse 7. let them in peace enjoy the Amorites country without any more question, though that had formerly been belonging to the Moabites.

V. 26. Thrce hundred] It is thought that these yeares must be reckoned from the comming out of Egypt, including also the forty of the voyage in the wilderness.

V. 27. Have not] Thou hast therefore no reason to un [...]ake this warre, nor to offend and assault me, demanding of a thing which was never thine, nor yet to prepare for any defensive warre being no way provoked nor urged.

29. The spirit] He was set on upon this enterprise, by a magnanimous motion of Gods Spirit.

V. 31. Shall surely be] This vow seemeth to have a reference to a thing devoted, as in Leviticus chapter 27. verses 28, 29. Offer it] If it be a thing lawfull to be offered, or otherwise I will put it to death. These kind of vowes were not commonly used, but only against accursed Nations, which were Gods enemies, Numbers chapter 21. verses 2, 3. Joshua chapter 6. verses 17. 18. 1 Samucl chapter 15. verse 3. But Jephthah transported by the vehemency of his zeale, for the peoples safety inconsideratly devoteth other persons and things, and doth bind himselfe so firmly that he could not recall it.

V. 34. With timbrels] According to the custome of those dayes, Exodus chapter 15. verse 20. 1 Samuel chap. 18. verse 6. Dances] the Italian hath it, Flutes] or dances.

V. 35. Opened my mouth] An ordinary phrase in Scripture for vows, which signifieth an irrevocable word, binding irremissibly.

V. 37. Let me alone] Defer the execution of thy vow, giving me this small respite, to prepare my selfe thereunto, by refraining frequented places, and company, to satisfie my naturall grieffe, for seeing thy posterity faile in me, and therewith all thy joy and comfort, I dying unmarried, and without issue.

V. 39. Did with her] The strangenesse of this act, which hath no president, hath caused many to beleeve, that he did not cause her to be put to death, but that he did consecrate [...]er to God, by some unexpressed way, and do translate the ensuing words; And she knew no man: Whereas the Italian translation is, And she had not knowne any man: But there bein no such consecrations mentioned in the Law, and the devot [...]ment having such a precise necessary in [...], it seemeth that the exposition of the 31. v. [...] to be preferred.

V. 40. Tolament] Those that hold she was not put to death, translate it, to talke with her.

CHAP. XII. VERS. 1.

Northward] To Gilead, which was North of Ephraim:
Wherefore] See such another example of insolency in the Ephraimites, Judges chapter 8 verse 1.

V. 3. Put] A Scripture phrase; that is to say, I have put my selfe into great danger of my life. like as that which is some in the palme of ones hand, may easily fall, o [...] b [...]sn [...]tched away.

V. 4. Becausetiey [...]] The Ephraimites pride was the occasion of this wa [...], who in c [...]t [...]pt [...] upbraid the Gileadites, saying they could not live, but only by their benefi and favour, and that they had no power of themselves, being encompassed by these two mighty Tribes, and that they ought not to go about any publick enterprise, without them, who were their heads and protectors.

V. 6. Sibboleth] Through custome, or corruption of language, naturall to the Ephraimites.

V. 7. In one of the Cities] Or in the Country of Gilead, which was divided into severall cities.

V. 15. Of the Amalekites] It was a mountain in the Ephraimites country, so called for some unknowne reason, see Judges 5. 14.

CHAP. XIII. VERS. 2.

ZOrab] See concerning this City, Ioshua chapter 19. v. 41.

V. 3. The Angel] The Sonne of God himselfe as it appeares by verse 18. and 22. See Iudges 2. 1. and 6. 11.

V. 4. Beware] The sanctifying of thy sonne must begin from thy selfe: Now amongst all the sanctifyings that of the Nazarit-ship was the most noted, and required the strictest abstinence from wine, and all manner of drinke that would make one drunke Num 6. 3.

V. 5. A Nazarite] A figure of Christ the great Nazarite; perfectly [...] from his mothers womb to be the Saviour of the world, Matthew chapter 2. 23. The resemblance of the one to the other is as well in their miraculous births, as in the gifts of the holy Ghost, in strength and justice: For as Samson alone, without an Army, and almost without any weapons, saved the peopl; So Christ hath done of himselfe, [...]y chapter 63. verse 5. Hose chapter 1. verse 7. There are also diverse other correspondences, which shall be noted in the progresse of the histoiry: [Page]

Begin] For the Philistims continued in troubling of the people a long time after Samson, untill they were at the last subdued quite under David, who was a figure of Christ, in the glory of his last comming, destroying all the residue of his enemies, 1 Cor. 15. 25, 26.

V. 6. Very terrible] Majesticall, glorious and sparkling with divine light.

V. 8. That shall bee] Or, when hee shall bee borne.

V. 15. Vntill wee] Thinking it was some Prophet, or some created Angel, and therefore he would do him honour, in imitation of Abraham, Genesis Chapter 18. v [...]se 5. Iudges, Chapter 6. verse 18.

V. 16. Though thou] This thy food doeth not befit me, I being no man, and if thou wilt bestow it in a sacrifice, bestow it as upon the true God, and not as upon a created Angel.

V. 17. May do thee honour] As a Prophet, by service, acknowledgement, and resp [...]ct, or as a good Angell, by remembrance, renowne and reverence.

V. 18. Askest] Thinking to know my name as a creature is: Secret] The Italian hath it, Incomprehensible] Hebrew, hidden, difficult, or admirable as Isay 9. 5; Now by the name he meanes the essence, and divine glory it selfe.

V. 19. A meat offering] Manoa had questionlesse brought bread with the Kid, and she employed that bread [...]n a meat offering, which was wont to be joyned with the Sacrifices.

V. 20. From off the Altar] He calleth that part of the rock so, where these offerings were offered.

V. 23. At this time] Namely of the childes sanctification, and the promise of the Churches deliverance through him, in this time of our great wants, are not signes of anger, but of grace.

V. 25. The Spirit] Which was extraordinarily conferred upon those, whom the Lord had chosen for deliverers of his people: To move him] To inspire magnanimous thoughts into him, and give him a miraculous strength of body and minde, and incite him to do great and more then humane acts: In the Campe of Dan] The Italian hath it, Mahane-Dan] See Judges 18. 12.

CHAP. XIV: VERS. 4.

That he] Namely Samson, who enlightened with the knowledge of what he was called unto, stood waiting to have the Philistims give him cause to contend with them, to revenge himselfe, or their tyranny over the people.

V. 6. *Came migh [...]*ly upon him] In a moment he filled him with a supernaturall strength both of body and minde, to confirme him by this act in his vocation; as 1 Samuel chapter 17. verse 34. A figure of Christs first victory over the Devill, by his death: John chapter 12. verse 31. Hebrewes chapter 2. verse 14. He told not] by the 8. verse, it appeares that Samson did this act out of the way, being gone aside from his father, for some unknown cause.

V. 8. To take her] To marry her solemnely, a figure of the Gentiles calling, Hosea chapter 2. verse 19.

V. 11. They brought] Under pretence of keeping him company, and honouring him, but it was indeed to sift him, and look to him perceiving some terrible motions in him.

V. 12. Put forth] According to the fine ancient custome, especially at feasts, to exercise their wits; See 1 Kings Chapter 10. verse 1. A riddle] [A speech, or obscure and intricate question, hard to find out or resolve: A figure of the Gospell which is a doctrine hidden from the knowledge of the flesh, preached to the world in the time of the Gentiles calling, 1 Corinthians chapter 2. v. 7. The seven dayes] an usuall time for nuptiall feasts: See Genesis chapter 29. verse 27. Sheets] Which they carried about them, as they do yet in these dayes in the East countrey, to rubbe and dry themselves, or to cast over their heads, or other parts of their body, or for other necessary uses: See Genesis Chaptes, 38. verse 18.

V. 14 Out of the] An expresse figure of the mystery of the sweet and saving food of the soule, brought forth by Christs death, by which he destroyed, death and the devill: See John chapter 6. v. 5. and Hebrew, 2. 14.

V. 15. Declare unto us] By declaring it unto thee, that so we may know it from thee: A figure of the worlds vaine endeavours, to comprehend the Gospell of themselves, which cannot be understood, but only by the revelation of Christs Spirit, 1 Corinthians 2. 10. by the ministry of the Church; which in the children of this a [...]e causeth a scossing of Christ, and the persecution of his Church.

V. 17. The seventh day] Beleeving it to be already beyond the prefixed time.

V. 18. If ye had not] These words seeme to intimate some signe of suspicion, of some secret and unchaste dealing with his wife, which kindled a jealousie in him, wherein the Spirit of God having a hand, he was provoked, & had power to execute his vengeance upon the accursed and tyrannicall nation.

V. 20. To his companion] To that Philistim whom Samson had chosen for his second-selfe in the nuptiall feasts, according to the custome, John chapter 3. v. 29.

INto the chamber] according to the ancient laudable custome, by which women had their chambers severall from the rest of the houshold. See Gen. 23. 2 and 2467. and 3133.

V. 4. Foxes] Whereof there was great plenty in that Countrey, Cant. 2. 15. Now this act of Samsons containeth in it a figure of division of the wary counsels of worldly men, by which Christ setteth the world on fire. Psal. 55. 9. Luke 12. 49.

V. 6 Burnt] A figure of the persecution of the Church, whereby Gods judgements are redoubled upon the Church.

V. 7 Yet will I be] the Italian hath it, If I be not] a manner of a reserved oath. And after that] I will not give over, untill I have fully accomplished my revenge.

V. 8 Smote them] He made a great slaughter of them without any weapons, hurling them against the ground with spurnes and thrusts with his knees. Etam.] See 2 Chron. 11. 6.

V, 9. Lehi] A place so called by anticipation, verse 17.

V. 14. Loosed] Not onely in the knots, but even the very webs of them.

V. 16 With the] In the Hebrew there is a kind of similitude between the word Asse and Heap; as if he did say, with the jaw-bone of an Asse I have made such a slaughter.

V. 17 Ramath- [...]ehi] That is to say the Hill of a jaw-bone, or the slinging of a jaw-bone.

V. 18 A thirst] A figure of Christs spirituall heat and thirst, in the extremity of his combats, and upon the very poynt of his victory upon the crosse. John, chap. 19. 28. Thou hast given] Thou hast given him the meanes and power to obtain it.

V. 19 In the Jaw] The Italian hath it, A hollow stone] according to others, one of the teeth, which was in the jaw-bone. Enhakkore] That is, the well of him that called, or cryed.

V. 20. Of the Philistims] Namely, when they ruled Israel, for Samson did never quite free the people from the Philistims yoak: that being reserved for David to doe, who was the figure of Christ, who shal accomplish the delivery of his Church, at the last glorious appearing of his kingdome.

CHAP. XVI. VERS 3.

AND took] A figure of Christ his glorious resurrection, who could not be detained by death, Psal. 68. 20. Acts 2. 24

V. 9 His strength] From whence it came; namely from the spirit of God: and by what means his strength was preserved; namely by meanes of his strictly keeping his Nazarite-ship, through Gods si [...] gular grace, which did tye Samson to that obedience, whereby it is likely that he had some expresse manifestation from God: though this gift was not common to all Nazarites.

V. 13 Weavest] And windest it as the yarne for a web of cloth. The seven] Any haire, divided into seven locks, as the gift of the Holy Ghost, are often represented by the number of seven: in signe of perfection: Exodus 25. 37. Zach. 3. 9. and 4. 2. Revelations, chapt. 1. verse 4. and chapt. 5. verse 6.

V. 14 Fastened] To the loome, having wound his haire about the yarne-beame.

V. 17 If I be shaven] This did not depend upon the ordinary forme of the Nazarite, who might be without the miraculous gift of corporall strength; but it was a singular favour in Samson by Gods free will, annexed to the necessity of his obedience in letting his haire grow. For a figure of Christ, true Nazarite in holinesse, and also infinite strength and power; and for a document, that the spirit of sanctification, ought to be, and is in the faithfull: a spirit of spirituall strength, 2 Timothy Chapter 1. verse 7.

V. 20 Was departed] hath taken away his gift from him.

V. 21 He did grind] In hand-mills, as slaves did Exodus chapt 11. verse 5. Isa. chapt. 47. v. 2. Mat 24. 41.

V. 22 The haire] And withall the gift of his former strength was restored unto him by the same free will of God, even according as the sacred signe of his long haire waxed.

V. 23 Dagon] An Idoll of the Philistims in generall; though it seemeth his Temple was in Ashdod. the Hebrew name is taken from Dagon, which signifieth corne, as if hee had beene the God of Husbandry: or which is the most likely, from Dog, which signifieth fish: for it was of the shape of a fish from the middle of the body downward, as it seemeth to be intimated 1 Samuel, chapter 5. verse 4. Because the Philistims were sea-men, and dwelt upon the sea-coast.

V. 24 Saw him] Namely, after hee was taken.

V. 25 Made them sport] Either he did indeed do some ridiculous acts, as blind men use to doe, or he onely feigned to conceale his intent:

V. 27 Upon the roofe] Which was made after the manner of a Terrace.

V. 30. Were m [...]e] A figure of the efficacy of Christs death, by which he finished all his combats against the devill and sinne; which he had begun by his preaching in the world, John 19. 30, Hebr. 2. 14.

There was] The History, and all the rest unto the end of this book, are here inserted out of the order of times, for they are of things which happened presently after Joshua's death.

V. 2 Thou cursedst] Discover the guilty, Levit. 5. 1. or, which curses, thou utteredst through anger against the thiefe: Blessed be thou] shee saith so, not only to shew, that she was pleased with her sons act, but also to recall her former imp [...]ecation.

V. 3 For my son] In the behalfe of thee, and of thy actions, to draw on the blessings of God, and in honour of thy house. Or dedicating them to Gods service, which I was desirous to establish in thy house, and to which I had allotted thy sonne, my Nephew. I will] accomplishing my designe, the money shall returne to thee, and to thine use.

V. 4 Two hundred] It is likely that the remainder was also employed to this service.

V. 5 An Ephod] A Priestly garment. See upon Iudg. 8. 24. Teraphim] The Italian hath it, Idolls] see upon Gen. 31. 19.

V. 6 No King] No supream and continuall ordinary magistrate, over the whole body of the people; for the Iudges were extraordinary, raised at Gods pleasure, and oftentimes having power but upon one part of the people, Iudg. 9. 22. and without absolute authority, Iudg. 2. 17.

V. 7 Judab] Distinguished by this addition, from the other Bethlehem of Zabul [...], Io [...]. 19. 15.

V. 10. A suit] The Italian, Thy ordinary cloathing] Namely two Garments.

V. 11. As one] For good usage, good will, and partaking of his goods.

V. 13 Seeing I have] As if in all this establishment of divine worship, there had been nothing wanting, but onely a lawfull Minister, as the Levites were; whereas there was a defect in all; in the insttution without command, approbation, and promise of God in the place, means, and idolatrous ceremonies.

CHAP. XVIII. VERS. 1.

AND [...]n those d [...]yes] Presently after the death of Jo [...]ua. The Tribe] The portion which f [...]ll to the Tribe of Dan under J [...]ua, Josh. 19. 47. being too little; one part, of it which was not yet provided for, resolved to goe se [...]k some new countrey, J [...]s. 9. 47.

V. 2 From Zorah] These Cities were of Dans first lot, Jos.
19 41.

V. 3 The voyce] Either by reason that they had knowne him elsewhere, or because they heard him do some Ecclesiasticall office, of prayer, or praise. Thither] Where they had heard the Levites voyce.

V. 5 Aske Councell] Not that this Levite, whether he were Priest or no, had any power, or promise to give a true answer, being not ordained by God, nor having the breast-plate of judgement, Exod. 28. 15. Num. 27. 21. But this people being infected with Idolatry believed he might: and the Levite answereth of his owne accord: or else God out of his superabundant grace, and of his owne free will inspired him to give an answer from him. Shall bee prosperous] or whether he will cause it to prosper.

V. 6 Before the Lord] He will favour it, and hath taken it into his care to provide for it.

V. 7 To Laish] This is the same City as Leshem, Josh. 19.
47. Zidonians] Who by reason of the strength of their countrey which lay upon the sea-coast, and by reason of their might, were not molested by any. No magistrate] but they lived in the manner of a free Common-wealth. Farre from] and therefore could hope for no suddain relief from them, v. 28.

V. 12. Mahanch-Dan] That is to say, the encamping of Dan. See Judg. 13. 25. Behind] On the back of it, towards the North.

V. 14 What ye have to doe] Whether you will take them away, or no.

V. 24 What have I more] That is, worth so much, or can equall it.

V. 27 Burnt] Which might come to passe, either in the fury of the assault by chance, or done purposely in det [...]station of the Pagan uncleannesses, [...]o blot out all marks thereof, and purisie the city.

V. 30 Ionathan] Which was the name of the fore-sayd Levite. Gershom] The Jewes, and many of the Ancients have t [...]ou [...]ht it was the sonne of Moses, Exod. 2. 22. and that the name of Moses was transformed into that of Manasses, by the small addition of a letter, in honour of that great Prophet, whose grandchild was become a Minister of I [...]olat [...]y. But of this t [...]re is no certainty. Of the captivity] and it is not knowne wha [...] captivity is meant here: it may be that though this [...]olat [...]y were abolished in the dayes of Samuel and David, the p [...]sterity of this Levite might yet remain amongst the Danites in some office belonging to the Levites, un

[...]l the changes which happened throu [...]h the Assyr [...]ans.

V. 31 Al [...] th [...] time] Um [...]llah. A [...]ke which was setled in Siloh, Jos, 18. 1. was taken; and then ouried to Kiriath-Jeasim, 1 Sam. 7. 1. at which tim [...] the wh [...]l [...] countrey was purged from idolatry by Samuel, 1 Sam.
7. 3.

IN those dayes] Presently after Joshua's death, which appeareth by that, that Phinea's, Aarons Nephew, was yet living, Judg. 20. 18. A Concubine] See upon Gen. 25. 1.

V. 10. [...]bus] Namely, to the city of the Jebusites, Jos. 18. 28

V. 18 To the house] In Siloh, which was in the Tribe of Ephraim, where the holy Tabernacle was, Jos. 18. 1.

V. 21 They washed See Gen. 18. 4.

V. 22 Know him] A word expressing the infamous meaning of an abominable kind of Luxury.

V. 24 My daughter] See the like example of such another diversion from the like horrible violence, Gen. 19. 8.

V. 25 Took his] Imagining it was not reasonable to have his hosts daughter to suffer that shame and reproach for him.

V. 26 And fel down] dead Her Lord] For commonly those Concubines were maid-servants, which were b [...]ught. See Ex. 21. 8, [...]0.

V. 29 Together with her] That is to say, according to the joynts of her body.

V. 30 Consider of it] The Italian, Take the fact to heart] or consider of it.

CHAP. XX. VERS. 1.

AS one] By comon consent of all. From Dan] From Lai [...]n, which was also called Dan, Iudg. 18. 29. which was the northern bound, to Be [...]sh [...]ba, which was the southern, and to Gilead, which was the Eastern. To the Lord] Who was present in, and did preside over such Congregations as were gathered together in his name, and for his service, Iudg. 11. 11. Mizpeh] A city situate in the borders of Iu [...]ah and Benjamin, where they oftentimes had their generall meetings before th [...]s [...]at of the Kingdome was established in Ierusalem, 1 Samuel 7. 5. and chapt. 10. verse 17.

V. 2 The chief] with their people, or the communalities, the Hebrew [...]th it, the Cant [...]ns.

V. 5 Have slaine me] [...]eeing that I resolved to withstand their abominable intent.

V. 16 Left-handea] See Iudg. 3. 15.

V. 18 To the house] To the tabernacle which was in S. Ioh, Ios. [...]8. 1. Judg: 21, 12. First] Namely, as head of all the rest, to g [...]ve the first on-set.

V. 26 Peace-offerings] holding the victory to bee sure, through faith, after the expiation of their sins.

V. 27 Enquired] By the high Priest, by Urim and Thummim, Numbers 27. 21. There] Or in Siloh. v. 18.

V. 28 Stood before it] Hee performed the office of high Priest in the Tabernacle.

V. 31 D [...]awne away [By Israels feigned flight. Gibeah] besides that, out of which the Benjamites came. see Ios. 18. 24, 28.

V. 33 Put themselves] They recovered themselves from this feigned flight, and put themselves in battaile array against the Benjamites which were come out into the fields; and the same time the ambushments set upon the City.

V. 34 Ten t [...]ousand men] Who had layen in ambush. The Battell] which was in the field.

V. 35 Twenty and five thousand] This is the generall summe of all that dyed, which is afterward specified particularly.

V. 36 Gave pl [...]ce] Gave way, and retired feignedly.

V 37 Drew themselves along] Out of divers places where they had layn in wait.

V. 38 Appoy [...]ted signe] To turne their faces towards the City.

V. 41 That evill] That they were lost beyond hope of recovery.

V. 42 And them which] For besides those men that were in the army, there came people out of every City of Israel, which slew the Benjamites in their flight.

V. 43 With ea [...]e] Without resistance, with small labour.

V. 44 There fell] In the battaile.

V. 48 The children] Those that were left in the Cities. That came to hand.] That was met with in that eat, and furie of war.

CHAP. XXI. VERS. 1.

HAD sworne] When they gathered themselves together together to deliberate upon this war, Judg. 20. 1.

V. 2 To the house] Namely to the Tabernacle in Siloh.

V. 4 An Altar] For a monument and remembrance of this Victory, as Ios 8. 30: and 22: 10: Iudg: 6: 24 for otherwise it is likely that they having the Tabernacle by them, wherein was Moses his Altar, they did offer sacrifices upon that.

V. 5 Who is there] This ought to be understood of communities, and not of particular persons:

V: 6 Repen [...]ed them] Being very sorry that they were constrained, to execute justice so sharply, and their wrath being now turned to Compassion:

V. 10 The women] according to the rigour used in [Page] the Law, concerning such accursed things.

V. 11 Every woman] as Num. 31. 17. 18.

V. 15 The Lord] By their hands as executioners of his justice, which acts it is praise worthy to go about, as it were by constraint, and ill will, being that to delight in shedding of blood, is a token of cruelty, and not of zeale and justice.

V. 18 That giveth] At this time, for this oath was not to last ever.

V. 19 A feast] One of the three solemne feasts, whereat there were many honest, and holy recreations used▪ being as it were in the sight of God; and such were these dances, as Exod. 15. 20. 1 Sam. 18. 6. 2 Sam. 6. 14

V. 22 In the warre] Namely, that of Jabesh. Give unto them] But unto us who desire them of you: or because you have not given them, seeing they were ravished from you. Guilty] Of having broken the oath of the congregation.

THE BOOK OF RVTH.

THE ARGVMENT.

THIS little Book, is but onely an addition to the book of Iudges, containing an History of things that happened at the same time. The contents of which are, that Ruth a Moabitish woman by birth, having in her owne Countrey married an Israelite of Bethlehem; after the death of her Husband, came into Iudah, with Naomi her mother in law; where professing Gods true worship, she was incorporated amongst the children of Israel: and by a singular providence of God, who blessed her piety and vertue; she was espoused to Boaz: of whom was borne  Davids great grandfather. And it appeares that the chiefe end of this History hath been to set downe some notable singularities in  Davids Genealogie, of whom Christ was to be borne according to the flesh. And to shew that our Lard Iesus who in his appoynted time would fully call all the Gentiles to the spirituall communion of the children of God, would even from that time consecrate some first fruits of them, through the share which he bestowed on them, in his corporall generation.

ANNOTATIONS.

CHAP. I. VERS. 2.

E

Phrathites] Of Ephratha which was the ancient name of Bethlehem, Gen. 35. 19.

V. 11. Be your husbands] according to Law, Deuteronomy, Chapter 25. verse 5.

V. 13 For it grieveth] Your departure is more grievous to me than to your selves: Or because I am in greater bitterness than you, having no more hope of being comforted by a husband or of having children, as you may.

V. 14. Kissed] That is to say, tooke her leave of her.

V. 15. Behold] Naomi's piety causeth us to beleeve that shee spake this to try whether Ruth had indeed a firme resolution to embrace the true religion, by c [...]mming along with her.

V. 17. The Lord do so] A manner of swearings▪ which they anciently used, by which they prayed God to send some great evill upon them, and to double, and aggravate it, if they did not speake truely.

V. 20. Naomi, That is to say, merry and pleasant; Mara] That is to say, bitter, or afflicted.

V. 21. Full] Having a husband and children, and goods sufficient: Hath testified] Declared his rigour against me, through afflictions, which he hath sent me: See Job 10. 17.

and 16. 8. and Mal. chapter 3. verse 6.

CHAP. II. VERS. 1.

MIghty] In wealth, and honour, or valiant and [...]ngularly vertuous.

V. [...]. Her [...]ap was] In respect of her it was a chance she having no certaine intention in the doing of i [...], but it was not so in respect of Gods providence, which guided this as well as other things, as the event shewed it.

V. 8. By my maidens] Servants and concubines.

V 9. Shall not touch thee] To do thee any offence, or make a scorne of thee.

V. 10. Take knowledge of me] That thou shouldest regard, and favour mee as if thou diddest know mee.

V. 13. Let me find] The comfort thou yieldest me, causeth me to cast my selfe into the armes of thy charity, that thou mayest continue being favorable unto me.

V. 14. Parched corne] A food very usuall in those times and places.

V. 15. Reproach her not] Forbidding her or giving her harsh words or scoffing of her.

V. 20. The dead] My husband, and my children who are dead; One of] the Hebrew, one of our Redeemers, that is to say, he is so neere a kinne to us, that it is his right to redeem my husband and my childrens lands, which are are alienated by the Law, Leviticus chapter 25. verse 25. And also may, and ought to marry the widow of him, that is dead without children, Deuteronomy, Chapter 25. verse 5.

CHAP. III. VERS. 3.

VV Ash thy selfe] Though Naomi's end was good in all this, for to seeke her daughter in laws good, and to put Boaz in minde of his duty, according to the Law of God: yet it seemeth to be a womanish provision, somewhat lesse than honest, to bring it to passe: which was notwithstanding tolerated, directed, and blessed by God, as Genesis chap. 27. ver. 7.

V. 9. Spread therefore thy skirt] Take me for thy wise according to the right you have thereunto, and according as you ought to do: A manner of speaking ta [...]n from the ceremony of spreading the skirt of ones garment in that kind over the woman, for a [...]gne of marriage, Ezechiel, 16. 8. See upon Deuter. 22. 30.

V. 10. Kindnesse] Towards mee, having preferred me, t [...]ugh I a [...]ld, before younger men, who by [...] been more fitting for you: And also tow [...]s the memory of thy husband, procuring the preservation of his name and race: Or piety, towards God, in submitting thine affections [Page] to the observance of his command.

V. 11. I will do] I have a desire to do it, and will do it indeed, if the other neerest kinsman will not make use of his right: The City] The Italian hath it: The gate] that is to say, the city, and all the inhabitants thereof.

V. 14. He said] Within himselfe, and therefore he bade Ruth rise before it was day.

V. 16. Who art thou] Shee asked the question because Ruth came home while it was yet darke.

V. 18. Sit still] Go not forth at doores, that thou mayest be ready whensoever thou shalt bee called to the accomplishment of this marriage.

CHAP. IV. VERS. 1.

TO the gate] Of the city, which anciently was the place of publicke Assemblies, and Counsels.

V. 2. Of the Elders] Namely of the Magistrates, and Councillors.

V. 3. Selleth] Through poverty, and for want of meanes, Lev. 25. 25.

V. 4. Before] Judicially and according to due course of Law, solemnly.

V. 5. Thou must buy it] The right that thou hast to redeem it, is not only by reason of thine affinity with Naomi, but with Ruth also, which bindeth thee to marry her, that the childe which shall be born therof, may beare the deceased husbands name, and enter upon his inheritance.

V. 6. Lest I mar] Begetting children on another mans bed, whereby mine inheritance would diminish and be divided. For it is likely that he was a widdower, and had children by another wife.

V. 7. Changing] Or yeelding up of rights to one another: A man] Namely he that yeelded the right and gave it to him that he yeelded it unto, in token of the dispossessing himselfe. In this ceremony, there was some resemblance of that which had been appointed by Moses, Deuteronomy 25. 9. but only there was some alteration crept in: And this was] By this formality the yeelding, or cession was ratified.

V. 10. From the gate] From his city, from amongst the citizens of his city.

V. 11. Did build] Did increase his houshold, and laid the foundation of that nation, which is come out of it: Do thou worthily] the Italian hath it, Make thy selfe mighty] by meanes of a numerous posterity: Ephratah] See Genesis, Chapter 35. verse 19.

V. 16. Laid it] Shee tooke an especiall care of it, and brought him up very tenderly.

V. 21. Salmon] Which is the same as Salma

THE ARGUMENT.

THe Holy Ghost in these two Books called Samuels, continueth the History of Gods people; specially to declare how, and wherefore the government of Judges was changed into that of ordinary and successive Kings, in David and his posterity, who were more expressly to beare the image of Christs spirituall and eternall Kingdome. The summary thereof is, that Eli both Judge and high Priest, after he had long time ruled the people, towards his latter end did yeeld up himselfe to a blamefull indulgency towards his children, who abusing their fathers authority, were loosely run into diverse excesses, prophannesses and violences, with great scandall and offence to the people, and with great detriment to divine worship: For the punishing of which misdeeds, God suffered the Philistims power; which before was much abated, that it should be raised again to the peoples disadvantage, they being overcome in battel, and subdued, the children of Eli slaine, and the Arke of God taken, and Eli himselfe dying presently after. Yet God defended his glory, and did severely punish the Philistims contempt of him, and raised up a new Deliverer to his people; which was Samuel, who being miraculously borne, and consecrated to God for a perpetuall Nazarite, was from a childe, by frequent apparitions from God, prepared for the office of publick Prophet; which was also openly conferred upon him together with that of Judge, with all the qualities and gifts thereunto required. By vertue of which, he also reformed the peoples estate, and purged Gods Service from all Idolatries and corruptions, did abate the Philistims tyranny, and settled the people in peace and liberty. But in his old age, having appointed his sons to be his successors, and they degenerating from their fathers righteousnesse; the people did thereupon take an occasion to aske for a King, preventing through their rash and importunate demand, the time prescribed by God for the establishing of a sacred Kingdome, which hee had promised them before. And by GOD'S will Saul was chosen, who at first did [Page] many valiant acts, and obtained many rare Victories. But a while after, in a prooffe of strict obedience, hee discovered his rebellion. Whereupon the LORD declared that hee rejected him, and appointed Samuel to unnoint David, calling him from a private shepherds life, Which was ratified by the LORD, who tooke away from Saul his gifts, and the conduct of his Spirit, and transferred them upon David: Who upon this occasion was called to Saul's Court to ease him by meanes of his Musick, from his extreame passions, ragings, and troubles of the minde. There did the power of GOD shine in him, in all manner of excellent gifts, and notable feates of Armes, which did purchase him as much hatred and evill will at Saul's hands, as it did love and favour with the people. And Saul's passion breaking out at the last into a bloody persecution, by open force, and by deceipts, whereby David was for a long time molested, and vexed; persisting neverthelesse still in his innocency, and loyalty, even towards Saul himselfe. And at the last GOD suffered Saul's cruelty and wickednesse to come to its height, and to bring him to the last potnt of his punishment, so that hee lost a Battaile, wherein three of his sonnes were killed, and he slew himselfe. These two Bookes are called Samuel's, by reason that the one part of the subject, is his owne history, written, as it is likely, by himselfe, and all the rest is of two Kings by him consecrated and settled in their Kingdomes.

ANNOTATIONS.

CHAP. I. VERS. 4.

R Amathaim] The city of Rama it selfe, often mentioned in Samu [...]s history, and the Hebrew termination seemes to intimate that it was once divided into two cities; the word Sophim joyned thereunto signifieth, Watch-houses, or towers, as it is very likely that watch-towers were set in high places of the Countrey, as Rama was, according to the signification of its name, being upon the border of three Tribes, as Num 23. 14. Some beleeeve that it was some Schoole of Prophets, who are called watchmen in diverse places of Scripture, Jer. 6. 17. Ezech. 3. 17. Hos. 9. 8. An Ephrathite] That is to say one that dwelt in the land of Ephraim, though he were a Levite, 1 Chron 6. 33. For the Levites were scattered all over Israel.

V. 3. Yeerely] At the feast of the Passeover, with all his family, 1 Sam. 2. 19. Luke 2. 41. but for himselfe it is very likely, he did observe the Law so strictly, that he came thither all the three solemne f [...]asts, Exo. 23. 17. Of Eli] There is no mention made of this Eli any where else. But it appeares by 2 Sam. 8. 17. 1 Chron. 24. 3. that he was one of Itamars posterity, who was Aarons second-borne, and that for s [...]me unknown cause, there had been some interruption, in the succession of the priesthood in Eleazar the first borne his line; which was afterwards re-established in Sadock, 2 Sam. 15. 27. 1 Chron. 6. 8. according to Gods promise, Numb. 25. 13. Priests] Second Priests under the high Priest, who as his Vicars, and substitutes, did do many things for him, which hee himselfe had not been able to performe alone', as 2 Samuel 8. 17. See Numbers 3. 32. and 2 Kings 25. 18.

V. 4. When the time was] The Italian hath it, When the day das [one of the seven dayes of the Passcover; Offered] Sacrifices of thanksgiving; portions] according to the ancient manner of feasts.

V. 5. A worthy] The Italian, A double] others expound it the most principall, and the most honorable portion, See Gen. 43. 34. 1 Sam. 9. 23, 24.

V. 6. Adversary] Namely Peninnah, who was her rivall: To make her] purposing and taking a delight in urging of her to some unseemely disturbance of mind, or to some distaste, and murmuring against her husband, and peradventure against God himselfe, set concerning such inhumanity, Job 24. 31.

V. 9. After they had] After the holy meale of the sacrifices, which was eaten in the Court of the Tabernacle: Rose up] going to the place of worship, and prayer, right against the most-holy place; Ascat] the high Priest, or the Judge his seat, 1 Sam. 4. 13. A poste] it is likely that the Tabernacle, which was made by Moles was set in Siloh within the compasse of some solid building, which had gates, 1 Sam. 3. 15. for otherwise the Tabernacle had neither gates nor postes, but only a carpet hanged up at the entry, Exodus 26. 36.

V. 11. She vowed] And whether her husband then consented to it, or did (according to the Law) ratifie it afterwards, Num. 30. 7. No raz [...]r] I dedicate him to God for a perpetuall Nazarite, Num. 6. 5. Judg. 13. 5.

V. 14. Put away] Be sober before thou present thy selfe in this holy place and action.

V. 16. Poured out] See Psalm. 142. 2. Mysoule] my grievances and inward desires.

V. 18. Find] I recommend my selfe to thy fatherly favour, and good will; Sad] The Italian hath it, As it was before] namely sad, and sickly: which alteration happened through an inward comfort of Gods Spirit, which informed her heart, that her prayers were heard, which the Priest, blessing, did also certifie her of.

V. 20. Samuel] That is to say, asked of God.

V. 21. The yearly sacrifice] The Paschall Lambe is often so called in Scripture, see Exo. 12. 27. and 34. 25. And his vow] it was some sacrifice vowed to God for the childs happy birth.

V. 22. That he may] Hence it appcares that she had told her husband of her vow, and that he had approved of it: Abide] to serve in certain inferior offices in the Tabernacle, which belonged to a Levite, 1 Sam. 2. 11. and 3. 15. For ever] without intermission or without any relieving by turnes, as the other Levites were weekly. Now it is plaine by 1 Sam. 7: 16, 17. that Samuel dwelt in Ramah, & there judged Israel, which happened either after the age of fifty years, which was a time prefixed for the Levites service, Numb. 18. 25. or by Gods wil, who dispensed with his vow to make him a Magistrate.

V. 23. His Word] That extraordinary thing which he seemeth to have appointed concerning this childe, which he hath miraculously bestowed upon us.

V. 28. Lent him] That is to say, dedicated him, to his service. But she saith lent, because that the Hebrew [Page] word from which Samuels name is derived, signifieth asking, and lending. As who should say, I have asked him, to that end that he might by me, be bestowed upon the Lord.

CHAP: II. VERS: 1.

PRayed] By prayer is often meant thanksgiving, which in this place is chiefly meant: My heart] in this Canticle, as in many others, Gods Spirit d [...]eth not rest upon the first motion, or upon the occasion of the singular and temporall benefit, but ravisheth Hannah into contemplation of the universall, spirituall and eternall benefits of the Church, which are here set down by her. Mine horne] a terme of war, whereof see Psa. 75. 5. and 89. 17. the meaning is, I am become victorious and triumphant: My mouth] I have a large subject of magnifying the Lord; of glorying in him, and insulting over mine enemies, through the great joy, which I conceive for the eternall safety of the Church, and for all the particular deliverances which depend thereon.

V. 2. Rock] That is to say, an inpregnable fort, Gods very frequent name, Deuteronomy chapter 32. v. 4. 31.

V. 3. Talke no more] Upon the occasions of her rivals insulting, she woundeth the boldnesse of all those who are enemies to the humble and distress [...]d faithfull ones: Is a God] as he perfectly knoweth right, and justice, and mens couns [...]ls and actions: So doth he accordingly dispose and governe all the events of them.

V. 5. Seven] That is to say a great number, as Ruth 4. 15 Jer. 15. 9.

V. 8. The pillars] He alone by his power beares up the naturall being of the world; and by his providence the order of the govern [...]m [...]nt of it; see H [...]b. 1. 3

V. 9. In darknesse] Nam ly of horrible calam [...]s in this world, an [...] finally in h [...].

V. 10. Shall ju ge] This pr [...]vidence shall be dis pensed by the Messias, to whom the Father shall g [...] all power in heaven and on [...]a [...]th, and shall grant h [...] the victory over all his enemies.

V. 11. Did minister] See v. 18. Before] Under Eli his command and direction.

V. 12. Knew not] They had no lively li [...]t, feel [...] nor apprehension to feare, and h [...]nor h [...], Rom. 1. 28 1 Cor. 15. 34. Tit 1. 16.

V. 13. The flesh] Of the sacrifices of [...] whereof some portions were [...]ssigned to th [...] Priests, Lev. 7. 32, 34, 35. but they would have th [...] [...] of those preces, which were left for the Pe [...]pl [...] which o [...] red the Sac [...]ifices, and were boil [...] ne [...] the Tabernacle for the h [...]ly feasts.

V. 15. The sat] And all other parts of such Sacrifices, which God reserved for [...], Leviticus cha. 3. verses 3, 4, 9. which is also anoth [...]r centempt of God and his worship, to which they preferred their own ravenosnesse: Give] shewing by this their greedinesse, that they took no care of serving at the offering, but only to satisfie their gluttony: Ile will not have] because he might better make choyce of the best pieces; whilst the flesh lay in sight raw, then when it boyled promiscuously in pots, or caldrons.

V. 17. Abhorred] Their zeale to offer, and their devotion and reverence in offering did much abate: seeing the abuse, violence and gluttony, that was therin committed.

V. 18. A linnen Ephod] It was a kind of holy ornament, Exodus 28. 4. promiscuously used both by Priests and others, in publick acts of Gods service: See 2 Samuel chapter 6. verse 14. The high Priests, was wrought, and of diverse stufes and colours, Exo. 28. 6. the rest were plaine, of very fine linnen; 1 Sam. 22. 18.

V. 20. For the leane] That other issue may supply Samuels place to serve and converse with thee at home seeing thou hast bestowed him upon God.

V. 22. With the women] Whereof; see upon Exodus 38. 8.

V. 24. To transgresse] Not only by imitating your evill examples, but also by giving over publick exercises of piety, seeing th [...]m to pro [...]aned by you.

V. 25. Against the Lord] Directly, in things concerning his service, and perposely for to o [...]end him; Numbers 15. 30. The meaning is, If God will revenge the injuries done by one man to another, how much more un [...]pp [...]as [...]able will he be for wrongs which touch his own gl [...]r [...]? would] he had thereupon given an irrevocable sentence, and therefore hee did not give them the spirit of repentance, to obey [...]heir fathers adm [...]nitio [...].

V. 27. A man] A Prophet; Unto the house] namely to Moses and Aaron.

V. 28 *Ch [...]*s [...] *h [...]*m] The Italian hath it. Chuse thy father] [...].

V. 31 I will cut off] That i [...] to say, I will put th [...]e and all thy post [...]rity from the high Priesthood, and degrade thee fr [...]m all auth [...]rity, and take away my power, and all other gifts necessary for such a holy function [Page] from you; Zac. Chapter 11. verse 17.

V. 32. Thoushalt see] All these calamities shall happen in thy life time, 1 Samuel Chapter 4. verse 11.

V. 33. To consume] If thou wert at that time living and shouldest see it, thou wouldest even pine away for grief to see thy selfe have such a posterity, either so wicked or so wretched.

V. 34. For a signe] That all the rest spoken, in this my sentence shall surely happen.

V. 35. A faithfull Priest] Zadock by name, 1 Chro. 29. 22. Eze. 44. 15. who was of Eleazars line, in whose posterity the Priesthood continued, according to the promise made to Phinehas, Num. 25. 13. I will build him] I will confirme the state of his family, as well in the continuance of his offspring, as in the lastingnesse of his prosperity, See Exod. 1. 21. 2 Sam. 7: 11. 1 Kin. 11. 38. Walke] he shall be continually with the King, which I will appoint [...]v [...]r my people, doing the offices belonging to his charge, in counsels, in giving answers from God by meanes of the brest-plate in prayers, blessings, admonitions, &c.

V. 36. Every one] See the sequels or tracks of this curse, Ezechrel Chapter 44. verse 10. To him] namely to Zadock, and him of his posterity that shall be in his place of high Priest: For a pi [...]ce] to crave an almes of him. Now though God had largely provided for the Priests maintenances, yet it chanced oftentimes, when they were degraded for their misdeeds, misbehaviours, or for some other reasons, that they f [...]ll into poverty: One of the Priests offices] the Italian, Someservices belonging to the Priesthood] some of the most abject and base services, Ezechiel Chapter 44. verses 11, 13.

CHAP. III. VERS. 1.

The word] There were but very few prophetick revelations: See Psalme 74. verse 9. Amos chap. 8. v. 11.

V. 2. At that time] Even at that time that the afore-said Prophet had spoken to Eli, 1 Samuel chapter 2. verse 27.

V. 3. The lampe] Which burnt all night, and was put out in the morning, Exod. 27. 21. Gen. 24. 3. as much as to say, [...] morning; Of God] that is to say, which was consecrated, in the great candlestick: Laid down to sleep] the Italian addeth, In the Temple] namely in some chamber, or part of that building within the precincts of which the Tabernacle and the Arke stood.

V. 7. Did not yet know] Had as yet had no tryall of that way whereby the Lord did make himselfe known to his Prophets by visions, see Acts 19. 2.

V. 11. A thing] Which is set down in the next chap. Both the cares] a frequent phrase in Scripture to describe, a strange or terrible case.

V. 13. *R [...]*strained them not] By severely chiding them as he was a father, by deposing them as he was high Priest, and by punishing them corporally, as he was a Judge.

V. 14. Be purged] In any such fashion, that I revoke my sentence, concerning their corporall punishments, for this hath no relation at all to everlasting punishments.

V. 15. The doores] See upon 1 Sam. 1. 9.

V. 17. God do so] See upon Ruth 1. 17.

V. 20. From Dan] see upon Judg. 20. 1; established] The Italian, *Warra [...]*ed] or established.

V. 21. By the word] Namely by prophetical revelation, not by corporall and visible apparitions, as to Joshua, Gideon, Manoa and other Judges.

CHAP. IV. VERS. 1.

The Word] that is to say, Samuel as an acknowledged Prophet, begun to preach to all the people: Others, the word of Samuel came to passe, that is to say, God did caule his prophecy to be put in execution, by the event thereof set down in this chapter: Eben-Ezer] A place so called by anticipation, see 1 Samuel chapter 7. v. 12.

V. 3. The Arke] As an inviolable pawn of Gods presence and power: Now this was accustomed to be done some times, Num. 31. 6. Jos. 4. 11. by Gods expresse commandement: See Num, 14. 44. But here the peoples act was unadvised, and here the signe became effectuall for want of faith, repentance and true invocation.

V 4. Between] The Italian, Upon] on the top of the Arke which was covered by two Cherubims, from whence God gave his answers, and shewed his Majesty, and power, as out of a throne of glory: see Exo. 25. 22. Numbers 7. 89. Psalme 80. 1. and 99. 1. Were there] namely in the campe.

V. 8. With all the plagues] The Italian hath it, With an entire overthrow] Others with all maner of plagues and in the wilderness: In the wilderness] in the red sea, which is along the wilderness of Etam, Exodus 13. 20.

V. 10. Footmen] These are not so called, as opposite to horsemen, but it is meant that they were men of compleate age, strong and able to march a foot, and had no need of waggons or horses to carry them, as children and old and impotent men were, see Exodus 12. 37.

V. 13. Watching] Expecting what news would come from the campe.

V. 21. J [...]habod] That is to say, there is no more glory: For the Arke was called the glory of God, Psal. 78. 60.

BOth the] Seeing here is no mention made of feet, their opinion seemeth hereby to be confirmed, who think this idoll to be shapen in the lower parts, like a fish; See upon Judg. 16. 23. To him] the Italian, Necre unto it] Namely the Arke: or to him.

V. 5. Tread on] Leap over it, a superstition which spread it selfe in many places amongst the Gentiles, see Zepha. 1. 9.

V. 6. Destroyed them] Spoyling their land with mice, 1 Sam. 6. 5.

V. 8. Be carried about] Imagining peradventure that the wrath of the God of Israel, was kindled by reason of Dagon's temple which was in Ashdod.

V. 9. In their secret parts] The Italian, Hidden ones] that is to say, inward ones, which are the most painefull.

V. 10. To us] The Italian, To me] words spoken by the Prince, or counsell of the city.

V. 11. A deadly destruction] The Italian hath it, A terror of death] either because this infirmity was mortall to many, or because there raigned some other mortall discease besides this, v. 12.

CHAP. VI. VERSE 2.

TEll us] As well by prudent advice, as by magick art.

V. 3. If he] This first part of their answer is, by meere advice, grounded upon the ordinary meanes of appeasing Gods wrath, by gifts offerings; but the specification of the offerings (being so absurd and ridiculous of Mice and Emerods) seemes to be sugg sted by the devill in contempt of God: Who notwithstanding accepted of it, for a memoriall that he had overcome his enemies by such poore and contemptible meanes: A trespasse offering] For it was a kind f [...] trespasse, though committed through ignorance, Lev. 5. 2. Then ye shall] when God shall be thus appeased, then shall ye know that his wrath hath been the came of your evils.

V. 5. *Give glo [...]*y] Through an humble confession and acknowledgement of you [...] fault: See Josh. 7. 19. John 9. 24. Your Gods] whose esteeme and reverence he hath quite debased with his might, 1 Samuel cha. 5 v. 3, 4.

V. 7. Make] This savoureth of a [...]iabolicall prediction, uttered by the idols servants: and being done without faith and without calling upon God, cannot have its beginning nor originall from his inspiration as diverse other signes: of which see upon Gen. 24. 14 though Gods providence afterwards did verifie this signe by the event, to confute th [...] enemies by their own inventions. *Bring the calv [...]*s] To see whether their naturall instinct towards their young ones will be overcome by a divine force, which may drive the kine to go and conduct the Arke to its place, and go away from them.

V. 9. His owne] Namely Gods, where he reigneth and is worshipped.

V. 12. Lowing] In token of griefe for leaving their young ones, and yet being forced by a suddaine and divine power, they went away from them.

V. 13. *Bethshem [...]*sh] A city of Judah appointed for the Priests; and therefore it seemeth to be as it were pointed at by the Southsayers, verse 9. see Josh. 21. 16. whereupon it is said, v 15. that the Levites were there ready to take down the Arke, and for to offer Sacrifices.

V. 14. And they] The Priests, which were of Bethshemesh.

V. 15. The Levites] The Priests of the tribe of Levi, for whom only it was lawfull to touch the Arke, Num. 4. 15.

V. 18. According] That is to say each city or communalty sent its golden Mouse, for it is likely that the plague of the Emerods raigned most in the cities, and the mice in the countrey. Abel] which countrey of the Philistims extended it selfe even to this stone, v. 14. which seemeth to have been afterwards called Ab [...]|, that is to say, griefe, for the reason mentioned, verse 19.

V 19. Looked into] Against Gods expresse command, Num. 4. 2 [...]. Of the people] not only of Bethshemesh, but of other adjoyning places, who were all come togeth [...]r at the Arkes arrivall.

V. 20. Shall he] The Arke, which is the signe, and pawne of his presence and glory.

CHAP. VII. VERS. 1.

The men of] Kiriath-jearim, being no city belonging to the Priests, as Bethshemesh was, & it being unlawfull for any others to touch the Arke, Num. 4. 15. It is to be imagined, that all this was done by the h [...]n [...]s of s [...]me P [...]s, who were sent for, [...]m some other place; unlesse there were some great toleration from God, in such an extraordinary case as this was, and also by the 1 Chron. 15. 2. [...]meth that Ab [...]a [...]ab was no Levi [...]ish Priest: [...]anctifica] They did so for the present time, in that confusion of state and religion, for otherwise the high Priests sonne, was to have care thereof and to looke to it, Num. cha 4. v. 1 [...]

V. 2. Lamented] For the long and hard oppression of the Philistims.

V. 3 Ashtaroth] see upon Iudges 2. 13.

V. 4 Ba [...]m] See upon Judg. 2. 11.

V. 5. Miz [...]eh] A city situate upon the consines of Judah, and Benjamin where they often [...]lled together their generall congregations, Judges cha. 20. v. 1. 1 [Page] Samuel Chapter 10. verse 17. 2 Kings chapter 25. verse 23.

V. 6. Drew] This ceremony, which is no where found to be ordained by the Law, nor used any where else, was here used for a signe, either of Gods grace called upon to the end that the multitude of the peoples sins might as it were be washed away by a great floud, or by their abundant teares: Judged] supplied the place of a supream, and soveraigne Magistrate extraordinarily raised, reforming and re-establishing Gods service: Or he was even from that time acknowledged for a Judge: and did execute his office for the most part in that place, v. 16.

V. 7. Were gathered] This gathering together, threatning some revolt of the people from the Philistims government, or some motion of war.

V. 9. A suckling lambe] The ordinary law of Sacrifices appointed those Lambes, which were offered, should be a yeare old; but here there was some speciall reason, as peradventure to shew that the people presented themselves there before the Lord, as purposing to be renewed in piety, and holinesse: Offered it] Samuel being no Priest, had not the ordinary power of offering Sacrifices, but here he proceedeth as a Prophet, by some divine motion or command; or else he did employ some Priest for to do it, as 1 Kings Chapter 18: verse 32:

V. 10. Thundred] See Joshua chapter 10. verse 10. Judges Chapter 4. verse 15. and chapter 5. verse 20.

V. 12. A stone] To set up for a remembrance of this miracle: Shen, the Italian: The point of the rock] which might be fast by: Eben-Ezer] that is the stone of helpe.

V. 13. Into the coast] With an army to make incursions or to give battell, for they had yet some garrisons left in the Country, 1 Samuel Chapter 10. verse 5. and 13. 3.

V. 14. Peace] That is to say, cessation of armes, and of all acts of hostility.

V. 16. Judged] Kept a publick court of Justice, heard pleas, and controversies, and did exercise a jurisdiction.

V. 17. His return] His ordinary abode, An Altar] Either for a plaine monument of piety, as Joshua chapter 22. verse 10. Judges chapter 6. verse 24. or for extraordinary Sacrifices, Exodus chapter 20. verse 25. Deuteronomy chapter 27. verse 6. Joshua Chapter 8. verse 30. Judges Chap [...]er 21. verse 4. 1 Kings Chapter 8. verse 64. but howsoever by a propheticke motion, and Divine inspiration▪

CHAP. VIII. VERS. [...]

HE made] With Gods p [...]missio [...], and consent.

V. 2. Beer-Sheba] It sheweth that Samuel reserved to himselfe the government of Rama, being towards the North, and for his own ease he assigned his children for the compasse of their Jurisdiction, from Beer-sheba, which was the Southern border, to Ram [...], for otherwise Beer-sheba being on the outside of the countrey had been an unfitting place for the generall seat of justice.

V. 4. The Elders] The heads, and magistrates of all the commonalties.

V. 5. Like all the nations] This is the error in the request; condemned, 1 Sam. 12. 17. namely that they will have an absolute, constant, powerfull, and pompous King; in contempt of the sweet and fatherly government of Judges, in whose person God reigned, in regard of the immediate Vocation and gifts of his Spirit, and the cooperation of his grace and power, ver. 7. through a distrust in God, and an ambition to have their nation enjoy the glory of being a Monarchy, with all the honors, dignities & offices belonging to it.

V. 6. Displeased] Not, but that he knew that God had promised his people Kings, Gen. 17. 6. and 49. 10. and that he had given them way to make them Kings, upon certain conditions, Deut. 17. 14. but because he saw the evill motions of their hearts, and their rashnesse in going on before they knew the will of God. See 1 Kin. 1 [...]. 31. and 12 20. Prayed] that he might know his will.

V. 7. Hearken unto] Though there be an error in their request, yet I will grant it them, and if in this their desire, they discover any ingratitude towards thee, the same redounds to me, who in thee, and by thee, have reigned over them in manner most befitting my goodness, the only end wherof was their safety, whereas ordinarily earthly Kings do reign by force, aiming at their own profit and pleasure, little regarding the good of their subjects, but only so far as it concerneth their own good too.

V. 9. The manner] Namely, that which is now grown to a common custome, by the consent of nations and Gods toleration, who prescribeth the subjects the law of patience and obedience, and is now as it were a right in absolute Kingdomes, which as the people desired theirs should be; which power encreaseth dayly, more and more, being such a prince is no way subject to punishment, for otherwise Gods expresse command doth moderate him in another way, D. ut. 17. 16, 20.

V. 11. Appoint them] To be souldiers.

V. 15. Officers] Or courtiers, the Heb. is Eunuches; See Gen. 37. 36.

V. 20. Go out] To the wars, as our Generall.

V. 22. Goye] And expect untill the Lord declare his [Page] will, concerning the manner he will have used in this new creation of a King.

CHAP. IX. VERSE 1.

A Mighty man] Of his person, in armes, or generally in vertue, or mighty in wealth and estate.

V. 7. What shall we bring] According to the custome, which was to bring the Prophet, some honorable presents, or some things for his [...]ood and sustenance, for a token of an acknowledgment, in a kind of moderate liberality, 1 Kings 14. 3. 2 King. 4. 4 [...]. and 8. 8.

V. 9. A Seer] That is to say, he that by divine vision hath the knowledge of Gods secrets, which other men again know by hearing them from him: See 2 Samuel, chapter 24. verse 11. 2 Kings chapter 17. verse 13.

V 12. A sacrifice] It is plaine by the sacred history, that prophets inspired by God, sacrificed in other places, besides Moses Altar, which was within the tabernacle, 1 Sam. 7. 9. and 16 5. especially your sacrifices of thanksgiving, of whose flesh the holy feasts were made, see 1 Sam. 16. 2. In the high place] So are all other places called, where any divine service was performed; besides the settled place which was appointed by God; by reason that they made choyce of eminent places, as cliffes, and hils, &c. Afterwards the word was taken in a sinister sense, for places where they committed idolatry, by superstitious worship.

V. 13. As soon as ye] We know he is not yet come out of his house to go to the feast, and if you do but continue your pace you will be there before he goeth: For the people] it behoveth you to make haste, that ye may [...]nd him at home, for it will not be long ere he come forth, and then hee will bee busie at prayers, blessing and giving those thankes that are required in this solemnity, and then you will hardly come to the speech of him.

V. 15. Had told] This sheweth that this revelation was the occasion of the sacrifice, and of the feast.

V. 19. All that is] That which thou desirest, to aske and know of me, by a prophetick answer.

V. 20. On whom] The people desire a King, and God hath appointed thou shouldest be the man; therefore their longing desires are after thee alone, not by their own wils and meaning, but by Gods secret disposing.

V. 23. The portion] According to the custome of those feasts in those times, 1 Sam. 1. 4, 5.

V. 24. And that which was upon it] Namely the loyne; That which is left] Of the sacrifice of thankes-giving; Since I have said] since I appointed this feast.

V. 25. The top of the house] Of his own house, which was made flat in manner of a terrace, according to the fashion: and it was a commodious place to treat of s [...] affaires, out of other mens sight and hearing.

V. 26. To the top] The Italian hath it, That was on the top] the meaning is, that Saul being told by Samuel, that he would speake with him privately, was gone up to the top of the house, but that Samuel called him down, and did and said unto him what he intended to do and say, as they were wa [...]ing without the City.

CHAP. X. VERS. 1.

OF oyle] An ordinary ceremony in the consecrations of the old Testament, grounded upon the communication of the gifts, of the holy Ghost, figured by the oyle. Now it is not said that it was any other, but ordinary oyle, as 2 King 9. 1. for the Priests holy oyle was not to be used about any other persons, Exod. 30. 32. Yet it is likely that the horne of oyle wherewith David was anointed, 1 Sam. 16. 1. was afterwards kept in the Tabernacle, and other Kings when occasion served, were afterwards anointed therewith, 1 King. 1. 39. Kissed him] in signe of congratulation, or of homage, Gen. 41. 40. Inheritance] Namely his own people, Deut. 32. 9.

V. 2. When] Tokens to assure Saul of the truth of his calling; For my son] to finde him.

V. 3. To Bethel] The Italian, to the house of God] it is a question whether Siloh be meant here, for it hath not yet been said, that the Tabernacle, or the Altar were removed, as afterwards, 1 Chron. 16. 39. and 21. 29. 2 Chro. 1. 3. or whither he meant Kiriath-Jearim, where the Arke was, 1 Sam. 7. 1.

V. 5. The bill] Upon the which Kiriath-Jearim stood, where the Arke was at that time, or some other place, where there was a colledge of Prophets; The garrison] See upon 1 Sam. 7. 13. Of Prophets] they were certain chosen persons consecrated to God, and prepared by continuall meditations, studie and exercises of piety, to receiue of God prophetically inspirations and revelations, under the conduct of Sam. 1 Sam. 19. 20. & such were afterwards called the children of the Prophets; Psaltery] according to the custome of moving the soule of man by meanes of musick, to raise it selfe to heavenly and spirituall things; 2 Kin. 3 15. Prophecy] they shall be in a prophetically action and motion, moved thereunto, by a divine and supernaturall spirit in all their actions and gestures, see Numbers 11. 25.

V. 6. Turned] Thou shalt upon a suddaine miraculously be filled with new and divine gifts, qualities, and motions.

V. 7. That thou do] Undertake thou thy lawfull calling for the Lord will accompany thee w [...]th his power.

V. 8. Shalt thou tarry] After thou shalt be come to Gilgal, 1 Samuel 13. 8. An expresse command to try Sauls [Page] obedience, which he breaking, discovered his rebellious heart, 1 Samuel Chapter 13. verse 13.

V. 12. But who is] The inferiour Prophets were called children, and the head such as Samuel was at that time, was called father. Now Samuel being absent at this time, it seemeth they would say, see y [...] not that Saul holds the first degree amongst them, and leadeth them as their head? and he hath a soveraign Majesty, with more abundance and strength of gifts which did increase the miracle; A proverbe] to expresse a strange and miraculous thing.

V. 13. To the high place] Where the Tabernacle and Altar were then, namely either in Siloh, or in Gib [...] on, 1 Kin. 3. 4. though the history make no mention of the time that it was brought to this last place, see 1 Sam. 9. 12.

V. 17. Unto the Lord] Who is present and governeth the assemblies of his Church, where his name is called upon: see Judges 11. 11. and 20. 1. Unlesse peradventure the Arke were carried thither, as 1 Samuel 14. 18. To Mizpeh] See 1 Samuel chapter 7. verse 5.

V. 19. Ye have] See 1 Samuel chapter 8. verses 7, 19. Present your selves] To draw lots, as Joshua 7. 14. Thousands] According to the divisions of the tribe [...] into thousands of families made by Moses, Exodus 18. 25.

V. 22. Enquired] By Urim and Thummim, Num. 27. 21.

V. 25. The manner] As who should say the fundamentall laws of the Kingdome, inspired by God to temper monarchy, with a liberty befitting Gods people, and with equity towards a nation, which of its own free will did chuse a King, and with a benignity of government of brethren of the same race, Deuteronomy 17. 20. by this meanes to withstand the abuse of an absolute power, which the peoples blind desire might have caused the new King to runne into, 1 Samuel chapter 8. v. 11. Before the Lord] in the Tabernacle before the Arke.

V. 27. Brought him no present] In signe of homage to a new King, 1 Kings chapter 10. verse 25. 2 Chron. 17. 5.

CHAP. XI. VERS. 1.

The Ammonite] That is to say, King of Ammon, 1 Samuel 12. 12. Came up] by the 1 of Samuel, Chapter 12. verse 12. it appeares that this preparation of warre, made so long before hand by Nahas, was a cause that the people demanded a King.

V. 3. We will come out] Wee will yeeld unto these covenants, see concerning the Ammonites pretences upon Gilead, Judg. 11. 13.

V. 4. Gibeah] it is the same City which in other, places is called Gibeah of Benjamin, which after Saul was King, who was borne therein, bore his name in honour him.

V. 5. After the herd] for he had yet no Court, non state appointed in him.

V. 6. The Spirit] in an instant the Spirit of God inspired into his heart, a supernaturall strength of minde, and a majesty of command; and put him on by a mighty and heroick motion to undertake this deliverance: see Iudg. 3. 10. & 6. 34. & 11. 19 & 13. 25. & 14. 6.

V. 7. Samuel] who accompanied Saul in this enterprize, as a Judge and a Prophet. As J [...]dg. 4 9.

V. 10. Tomorrow] to blinde and [...]ull [...] the Ammonites, and keepe secret the newes of their reliefe, which in such a case is but a lawfull dissimulation in warre.

V. 11. The morning watch] when they use to relieve the watch, upon the break of day.

V. 14. Renew] let us by a generall consent of all▪ renew Sauls election, now [...] is authorized by this victory, for to cut off all pretence of rebellion.

V. 15. Before the Lord] see 1 Sam. 10. 17.

CHAP. XII. VERS. 2.

VVAIketh] he guideth and governeth you And J] seeing that I through mine age can no more undertake the publick government, and that my sonnes are reduced to a private life, I require of you a publick approbation of mine innocency, that my memory may not remaine blemished nor spotted, by your taking a distaste at me, and desiring a King.

V. 3. To blinde] to cloake his misdeed, and let him escape unpunished.

V. 7. Now therefore] I, as I am Gods Prophet, and treat in his name, I cannot absolve nor free you, as you have freed me. For I am innocent towards you, but you are guilty towards God, by transgressing his law, and in being ungratefull for his infinite benefits.

V. 8. And made them] conducted them safe to the borders of this countrey, and set them in the way of taking possession thereof.

V. 11. Bedan] there is no mention of this Judge in the history; some have imagined that it is Jair. Judg. 10. 3. Others Sampson.

V. 14. Following] shrowded under his conduct and protection.

V. 16. This great thing] this miracle of thunder and sudden raine, by which ye shall perceive that the desiring of a King hath been displeasing unto him▪

V. 17. Wheat harvest] a season wherein it seldome [Page] rains in Palestina, Proverbs Chapter 26. verse 1.

V. 18. Sent thunder] In some unaccustomed and terrible manner, which affrighted the people, for to confute them and bring them to repentance, as Exodus 10. 9.

V. 21. After vaine things] An ordinary epithet given to idols.

V. 23. I should sin] Failing in my duty of Prophet, in not praying for you: Or by being moved with some revengefull spirit, for your refusing of me.

CHAP. XIII. VERS. 1.

One yeare] The Italian addeth, When these things happened] namely Sauls confirmation, and Samuels speeches.

V. 2. Three thousand] Distributed into certain places of abode, to have them always by him, and ready upon any occasion.

V. 4. Saul] He hath again raised war against the Philistims, which had been intermitted for a while, 1 Sam. 7. 14.

V. 6. Distressed] Greatly weakened by the Philistims tyranny; disarmed, v. 19. and unable to maintaine war; High places] Of high towers or sorts.

V. 9. Bring hither] To implore Gods helpe in this pressing danger, which suffereth no delay; He offered] or caused it to bee offered by some Priest which was there, 1 Sam. 14. 18. for if he had attempted to do it himselfe, it had beene a double sin, which Samuel notwithstanding doeth not here taxe him for.

V. 11. Thou camest not] Sauls rashnesse, and disobedience was in not staying for Samuel untill the end of the seventh day, which day Samuel came.

V. 12. I forced my selfe] That is to say forcedly and against my will, I have transgressed thy command.

V. 13. For now] This triall hath discovered thy heart to be evill disposed towards obedience to thy God, and to the putting of thy confidence in him; by which thy Kingdom might now have been established, For ever] without interruption, untill the end of the time prefixed by God for Israels temporall Kingdom to last.

V. 14. Hath sought him] A phrase taken from men, that is to say, he hath wisely appointed, and of himselfe prepared one that should be [...]itting for this office.

V. 15. That were present] Namely after a great number of them three thousand, verse 2. was departed, verse 8.

V. 19 There was] The Philistims after they had gotten the command of the Israelites for to disarme them, had slain or carried away prisoners all the smiths, 2 Kings Chapter 24. verse 14. Jeremiah 24. 1. See Judges 5. 8.

V. 21. File] in stead of forges, when they could not goe into the land of the Philistines.

V. 23. The passage] It seemeth it was some narrow place betweene the two hils of Michmash, where the Philistines were, and Gibeah, where the Israelites were; and that this was kept by Sauls men. 1 Samuel 14. 4.

CHAP. XIV. VERS. 3.

AHiah] which is the same Abimelech that is spoken of, 1 Sam. 22. 9. 11. 20. Brother] this specification seemes to be added, because that in the history of Eli, there was onely mention made of Ichabod, 1 Sam. 4. 21. and not of Ahitub. Wearing] he was there in the campe with t [...]e Arke, v. 18. as High P [...]iest: in pontificall ornaments, the chiefe whereof was the Ephod with the breastplate, Exod. 28. 4. to enquire of God by Urim and Thummim. Numbers 27. 21.

V. 10. A signe unto us] the event sheweth, that this was a divine motion, to be assured of his being called, in so dangerous an Act. See upon Genesis 24. 14.

V. 13. They fell] through a feare sent upon them by God.

V. 14. That first] the beginning of the Philistines overthrow, which was afterwards followed by Saul; within as it were] this is added here to make the miracle the more evident, the Philistines standing in array, and close together, no [...] scattored, nor flying.

V. 15. All the people] namely, the Philistines.

V. 18. Bring hither] You Priests bring the Ark hither, that Ahiah may stand before it, and enquire of the Lord by Urim and Thummim. With the children] in the campe being sometimes brought thither upon some dangerous occasion for aide, and for a direction, and to stirre men to prayer and to call upon God, Num 31. 6. 1 Sam. 4. 3.

V. 19. Withdraw] forbear a while to enquire of the Lord, the urgent occasion will not now permit us, nor give us time to do it: words of prophane impiety.

V. 21. The Hebrewes] slaves, or others who having their habitations, families, and goods, amongst the Philistines, were forced to f [...]llow them in the wars against their brethren. Before that time] according to the Philistines custome, during the time that they were Lords and Masters.

V. 23. The [...]a [...]ell] That is to say, the pursuit of the men which fled.

V. 24. Adjured] It was an irrevocable kinde of submitting ones selfe to death, used in those dayes. Now there was a raihnesse and inconsideratenesse in Saul, through a blinde desire he had of following the victory without [Page] resting: and was lawfull for the governours to take those oathes, and therewith binde the people also. See Jos. 6. 17. Judg 11. 31. Cursed] let him be rooted out as an accursed thing.

V. 27. Heard not] Peradventure he did not returne to the campe after he had assaulted the Philistines. His eyes] He was revived, which appeared by his eyes which were enlightned and cleered.

V. 29. Hath troubled] hath caused the people to be mightily hindered from obtaining a full victorie.

V. 32. With the blood] Having not the patience to presse the blood out; or to give it time to runne cleane out, according to the law, Levit. 17. 10. & 19. 26.

V. 33. Stone] Of which it should seeme he made an Altar, v. 35. Vnto me] that I may see how you shy your cattell, that you may let out the blood exactly.

V. 35. An Altar] either onely for a monument, as Josh. 22. 10. Judg. 6. 24. Or for some extraordinary sacrifice, Exod. 20. 24. Deut. 27. 5. by Gods speciall approbation.

V. 36. Let us draw neer] let us present our selves before the Ark to enquire by Urim, Num. [...]7. 21.

V. 37. Answered him not] a signe that God was angry, as 1 Sam. 28. 6. not with Jonathan, who was innocent, but against Sauls temerity, who was the author of that foolish oath: only to shew the religious respect which was due to the oath.

V. 38. The chiefe] the Italian, All the communally] namely, Tribes, Kindreds, and Families, as Josh. 7. 14. 1 Sam, 10. 19. for to draw lots.

V. 39. Among all the peopl [...] not so much as any of th [...]m who had seen Jonathan eat.

V. 41. Were taken] the lot fell upon them, Josh. 7. 14. 1. Sam. 10 [...]0.

V. 43. I must die] the Italian, Must J [...]lie?] that is to say, if it be expedient, I am content to die, for to appease Gods wrath.

V. 47. Tooke] that is to say, he undertook the managing and administration of it, as he had gotten the right and authority of it from God. He vexed them] the Italian, He did overcome] the Hebrew word is taken from controversies or suits in law, and signifi [...]th, condemning ones adversaries, and obtaining the suit. To shew that these victories were Gods judgements on his peoples side, against the enemies unjust tyranny.

CHAP XV. VERS: 2.

I R [...]member] or I have reviewed, a phrase taken from accounts, or from criminall examinations. Laid wait for him] the Italian, Opposed him] set himselfe against him, or laid wait for him.

V. 5. Laid wait] others have it, fought.

V. 8. Agag] A common name to all the Kings of the Amalekites, Num. 24. 7. Esth. 3. 1.

V. 9. Oxen] the Italian, *Yoak [...]*d Oxen] young Oxen of a like age, stature, and haire, so yoaked together to till the ground; others double Oxen, that is to say, full and thick bodied. Others, of a middle age, betweene Oxen and Calves.

V. 11. It repenteth me] see Gen. 6. 6.

V. 12. A place] The Italian hath it, *A Troph [...]*y] Or, A signe of victory] some Pillar or Piramides, for a monument of the victory. Others have it, a place of armes, or a mustering place.

V. 16. Stay and I will tell thee] The Italian, Suffer me to tell thee] or stand still, stay.

V. 17. In thine owne sight] while thou didst keepe thy selfe humble before God, acknowld [...]ing what thou wert, to submit thy selfe to his will, 1 Sam. 9. 21.

V. 23. Of witchcraft] sinnes against Gods Majesty in a supream degree. Not that all sinnes be equall or alike. But the meaning is, that that is a sin as well which is repugnant and contrary to his will, as that which is contrary to the truth, and to the glory of his nature and [...]ence: as your magick arts and idolatry; and therefore deserve the same punishment, reserving neverthelesse the degrees of the severity to Gods justice.

V. 24. I have sinned] a confession without sincerity, interlaced with vaine or false excuses; and without internall contrition of heart, swelled up with worldly pride. See a contrary example, 2 Sam. 12. 13.

V. 29. The strength] the Italian, The victory] the only author of all his peoples victories, who will also accomplish, in despight of all oppositions and persecutions what he hath before appointed concerning David. That he should repent] namely; in its proper signification, as to be sorry for having done any evill, neither of which two things can be in God, though it be often unproperly said, that God doth repent; that is to say, he altereth his manifest works according to his good will and pleasure; or his favour, or wrath against men; when they alter and change themselves to good or evill towards him.

V. 30. Honour me] notwithstanding my sinne, and Gods sentence, doe thou beare up my credit, and shew me respect as before. Words of a prophane worldly man.

V. 32. Delicately] in pompous and magnificent habit [Page] and carriage. Not like a delinquent that expecteth punishment.

V. 33. As thy sword] hence it appeares, that this Kings cruelty, and tyrannie against Gods people, or some others, had in God renewed the memory of the nations ancient cruelty and treachery. See Judg. 1. 6, 7. and 8. 19.

CHAP. XVI. VERS. 1.

VVith oyle] see upon 1 Sam. 10. 1.

V. 2 To sacrifice] namely, a sacrifice of thanksgiving; after which there followed a holy feast. For Prophets, either upon occasion, or without, did doe these acts of particular piety, for the blessing and comfort of certaine places and Cities. See 1 Sam 9. 12.

V. 4 Trembled] at the presence of God in the person of his Prophet, whose holinesse condemned common vices; and whose authority, caused the punishment thereof to be feared, as 1 King. 17. 18. Or simply in a sudden occasion, whereof they knew not the cause, they construed it to be some sinister or unluckie one.

V: 5. Sanctifie] prepare your selves by ceremoniall purifications and abstinences, and by spirituall meditations and devotions, to participate of this sacrifice, See Exod. 19. 10. Jos. 3. 5.

V. 6. Eliab] Jesse his first borne, 1 Sam. 17. 13. And said] within himselfe, of his own motion, and not by any prophetick revelation. Anointed] that is to say; he whom God will have consecrated to be King. On whom (in this action wherein God is present by his power, and wherein he governeth by his Spirit) I will bestow and conferre this sacred signe appointed by God, who will ratifie and confirme it by his internall grace and operation.

V. 7. Said] secretly, by a divine and internal inspiration. Refused him] that is to say, I have not chosen him. The outward appearance] the Italian, On the eyes] that is to say, to such outward appearances as present themselves unto the senses. Looketh on] he grounds his calling upon those gifts, which he himselfe hath infused into man by his Spirit, which he alone discerneth and knoweth, and crowneth them with new glories and honours.

V. 8. And he said] it is likely that Iesse onely had notice of the end of this anointing, and David also secretly. 2 Sam. 5 2.

V. 13. The Spirit] that is to say, he presently received divine gifts, and noble qualities, in a supernaturall manner; and was led on, and guided by Gods Spirit, to undertake high and notable enterprizes. Judg 13. 25. & 14. 6. 1 Sam. 10. 6. 10.

V. 14 The Spirit] God took away those gifts from him, which he had conferred upon him for the managing of his royall office, 1 Sam. 10: 6. And likewise that joy, comfort, and guide of his good Spirit of sanctification. An evill spirit] he was by Gods judgement yeelded into the hands of Sathan, who bred horrible passions in him, and perturbations of sadnesse and despaire: together with rages, violent furies, cruelties, and other excesses.

V. 16. Is upon thee] when thou shalt have thy fits of rage or melancholy upon thee, for he had some respites, and spaces betweene those fits Thou shalt] this is spoken through some experience in the like troubles: not that musicall sounds, or any other corporall meanes have any power upon the devill; but because that with the supernaturall madnesse or rage, there was a corporall defect, in the humours dist [...].mperature and exasperation of the spirits, which are the organs of diabolicall operation in such cases: and musick contrariwise bringing the spirits of man for a time to some sweet concordance and harmony, maketh the corporall or bodily instrument, lesse subject to the devils operation. Unlesse this sound were accompanied with some divine word or subject, whose power and respect repressed, and quelled the devils action. Or that some motion of Gods Spirit was awakened in Saul for a time, by the prophetick musick, as 1 Sam. 19. 23. by vertue of some order or promise from God, as 2 Kings 3. 15. Or that God of his free will did cooperate with Davids sound, to beget him a degree in his vocation.

V. 18. And the Lord] Gods Spirit guideth him and leadeth him to all manner of vertue, and his grace blesseth him, and causeth him to prosper in all his enterprizes.

V. 21. And stood] was imployed in his ordinary and houshold service.

V. 23. Departed] not out of the possession and power which he had over him; but from the present accesse and disturbance.

CHAP. XVII. VERS. 2.

OF Elah] the Oake, or grove of Oaks.

V. 4. Went out] the Italian hath it, *in the mid [...]*est] or to fight a du [...]]l, man to man.

V. 5. Of brasse] according to the ancients custome, who knew how to give br [...]]sse a very strong temper.

shekels] the shekell being of half an ounce weight, the whole weight came to one hundred thirty nine pounds, at eighteen ounces in the pound.

V. 6: A target] It was some armour or defence for his shoulders. Some understand the Hebrew word for a kinde of p [...]]ke carried crosse wayes upon their shoulders.

V. 8. Come downe] let him come and fight with me in the field.

V. 12. Ephrathite] of Ephratha, which was the ancient name of Bethlehem, Genesis 35. 19. Eight [...] [Page] Chron. 2. 1 [...]. there are onely seven, but Peradventure one dyed about this time, and left no issue. For an old man] or was attained to the age of the ancientest men.

V. 15. Went and returned] Saul being contented to have him onely bound to his service, for those times that he was disturbed; making no great account of him otherwise; whereby at that time he did not remember him. v. 55. 58.

V. 17. Parc [...]ed corne] A food which was much in use in those dayes.

V. 18 Their pledge] Something of theirs that I know; whereby I may know they are well, and that thou hast done as I commanded thee.

V. 20. To the trench] Or to the carriage.

V. 22. His carriage] Bags and such like things, wherein he brought their supplies.

V. 25. Free] From taxes, imposts, services for war, and other publike duties.

V. 29 Is there not a cause] The Italian hath it, Are not these words?] Is there any cause to be angry for a word which I have spoken, which offendeth no body.

V. 35. By his beard] By his nether jaw.

V. 45 In the name] Calling upon him to be my defence, putting confidence in his power, obeying his motion and inspiration: and for his cause and service.

V. 47 Saveth not] Is not tied to such meanes, for to work his salvation, but delights more in shewing his omnipotency, when he useth no means, than when he useth some. Is the Lords] hee ruleth the battell, giving the victory to whom hee pleaseth.

V. 54 Brought it] Not now, but afterwards, when he took Sion from the Jebusi [...]es. 2 Sam. 5. 7. In his Tent] The Italian hath it, In his tabernacle] It is thought that this must be understood of the tent which David pitched about the Arke. 2 Samuel 6. 17.

V. 55 Whose sonne] This forgetfulness of Saul in not knowing David, may be imputed either to his frequent troubles of the mind, or to the reason touched upon v. 15.

The soule] There was a very strict bond of amity towards David bred in him. See Genesis 44. 30.

V. 2. Goe no more] As he did the first time that he came. See 1 Sam. 17. 15.

V. 5. went out] About divers warlike exploits.

V. 6. As they] Saul and his Armie after the afore-said victory. The women] According to the custome Exod. 15. 20. Judg. 11. 34. Psal. 68. 11. Instruments of musick] The Italian hath it, Songs of Triumph] Or with Violins.

V. 10 He prophecied] The Italian. Did the acts of a mad-man] The Hebrew, acts of a Prophet: for the Prophets in their raptures, or trances, had some uncomposed kind of motion, and action, and were beside themselves. See 2 Kings 9. 11. Jerem. 29. 26.

V. 13. Went out] Led them out to warre, and brought them home againe. 2 Samuel chapt. 5. verse 2.

V 21 A snare] An occasion to make him perish. See verse 15. Sayd to David] Yet David did not make any shew of consenting to it, as it appeareth by the following circumstances. One of the twain] The Italian For both] The one having been promised unto thee, and now the other being given thee to wife.

V. 26. The dayes] Some time appoynted by Saul for the performance of the Covenants: or the time that was between the contract, and the wedding. see Gen. 19. 14. Deut. 20. 7. and 22. 23. Matth. 1. 18.

V. 30. Went forth] Into the field to wage warre out of their sorts, and garrisons, into which they had retreated after their overthrow, Chap. 17.

CHAP. XIX. VERS. 2.

IN a secret] It seemeth that he specified some certaine place in the field, neare which Saul was wont to goe, and take the ayre, that David himself might heare Jonathans speech, and Sauls answer, and provide for himselfe accordingly.

V. 3. What I see] If it be softly or secretly spoken, that thou canst not heare it thy selfe.

V. 5. In his hand] The Italian in danger] The Hebr. In the palme of his hand, as Judges, ch. 12. verse 3.

V. 13 Took an image] That if Sauls messengers came in, looking upon the image, they might thinke that David was in the bed, and so stay, and not goe after him, thereby giving him time to get into some place of safety.

V. 14. Sent] In the morning after they had watched for him all night.

V. 18. In Naioth] It was the place where the Schoole, or Colledge of Prophets was, neare unto Ramah, where Samuels residence was.

V. 20. Prophecying] Being in a divine trance, see Numb. 11. 25. Appoynted over] being the father, and instructor of them, moderating their actions, 1 Sam. 10. 12. Prophecied] were taken with the same inspiration and divine rapture, which made chem forget each thought, remembrance, or will of executing their commission, 1 Sam 10 6. 10.

V. 24 Clothes, His long outward garment, wearing none but his inward ones, Isa. 20. 2. M [...]c. 1. 8. Now Saul did all these strange acts, being in a rapture of mind.

CHAP. XX. VERS. 1.

FLed] That day and night that Saul was in an extasie, 1 Sam. 19 24.

V. 5 The new] The first day of the moneth, when there were offerings of thanksgiving and holy feasts; which it should seeme, lasted at the court, three dayes. To sit] As his Officer and sonne in law, it being the custome of Princes to honour their servants, in that kind upon festivall dayes, Hest 1. 3. Dan. 5. 1.

V. 9. Farre be it] From thee to say or think any such thing of me.

V. 14 While yet I live] When thou comest to be King; it being already divulged that it should come to passe, 1 Sam. 23. 17. and 24. 21. Of the Lord] Which he so strictly recommends unto us, and is so acceptable and pleasing unto him: and to which he bindeth all his children, through the kindnesses which he sheweth them. Or which wee have sworne between us in his name. I dye not] through jealousie of state, or to revenge the injuries and persecutions done to thee by my father.

V. 16 Let the Lord] The Italian, But the Lord] Notwithstanding these covenants, and Davids faithfulnessse in performing of them, 2 Sam. 9. 3. and 21. 7. God executed his judgements upon Sauls issue by other meanes, 2 Sam. 31. 2. 1 Sam. 4. 7. and 31. 8.

V. 17 Because he loved him] The Italian hath it, By the love he bare him] Not onely by the duty of gratitude, for his watching for his safety, but also by the most strict and loyall bond of amity.

V. 19. When the businesse] The Italian, In the day of businesse] It was peradventure some speciall name of some one day in the week, as a day of worke. Others translate it, in the day of that businesse; namely, when I made intercession for thee towards my father, Ezel] The Italian, That sheweth the way] or Ezel.

V. 20 I will shoot] The reason of this kinde of giving warning was, because that if there was no hurt meant to David, he might come securely of his owne accord: that their acquaintance might not be discovered, to make Saul jealous.

V. 21. Goe find out] Goe and stand in such a place, that when I have shot mine arrowes, thou mayest take them up, and bring them to me againe. Take them] come thou along with him, as if thou ca [...]est thither by chance, and come to my fathers court without any feare [...] No hurt] There will be no danger, nor cause of mistrust.

V. 25 Arose] It is likely that Saul and Jonathan were set before Abner came: and that when he came, Jonathan did him this honour, as being the Kings cousen, and captaine of his host.

V. 26 Hath befallen him] By nocturnall pollution, or some other ceremoniall uncleannesse, Lev. 11. 24. and 15. 2.

16. whereby it was not lawfull for him, to eate of the offerings of thanksgiving, which were offered the first day of the moneth, with the flesh of which these holy feasts were made, see Lev. 7. 19. 20.

V. 27 The second day] Of those three dayes in which it was concluded between David & Ionathan, to sift out Sauls intention; or the second day of the royall feast. Wherefore] This sheweth that Saul imagined that David would attribute his endeavouring to [...]lay him, to his madnesse, of which he being now cured, David would forget it, and not bee afraid.

V. 29. A sacrifice] Of thanksgiving, after which there followed a holy feast.

V. 30 Thou sonne] Whether he had any evill conceit of Ionathans mother. Or that hee would say, thou art more likely to be a bastard, than my lawfull sonne, having so little care of thine owne good and credit.

V. 40. Artillery] Namely, his bow, his arrows; and his quiver.

V. 42. Forasmuch] Our enterchangable oathes may cause thee to trust me, and beleeeve that I will never betray thee, but will doe what lyeth in mee for thy safety: and on the other side, the confidence which I have in thee, causeth me to wish all happinesse unto thee. The City] of Gibeah, which was Sauls residing place.

CHAP. XXI. VERS. 1.

NOb] A City of Benjamin: Neh. 11. 32. into which it seemeth the Tabernacle was brought from Siloh, by the authority, and in the behalfe of saul, who was of the tribe of Benjamin, as twas brought to Siloh, a city of Ephraim, in the dayes of Ioshua the Ephramite, and David afterwards carried it into his Tribe, to have Gods oracle alwayes neere him, upon all occasions; and that was the reason that there were so many Priests in Nob. [...] as afraid] suspecting some sinister accident, seeing the Kings sonne in Law, and such a great commander in warre, alone or with but small company. Alone] By the fourth verse, and Matth. 12. 3. It is plaine, that David was not alone in this voyage, but by this word is onely to bee understood that hee was without his ordinary traine of followers. [Page]

V. 3 Under thine hand] What food thou hast ready to be eaten.

V. 4 Hallowed] In other places, bread of the presence or Shew-bread. Exodus. 25 30. Mat. 12. 4. Young men. Those few that David had with him. Kept themselves] They ought not to be eaten, but onely by the Priest, Lev. 24. 9. Yet in this urgent necessity, which thou shewest unto mee, I will give you share of them, so that you have refrained from all cohabitation with women, though legall, which though it was not comanded by the law, yet was observed by a laudable kind of devotion, in your most sacred occurrences, as Exodus chapt. 19. v [...]. 15. Zac. ch. 7. v.

V. 5. Vessells] That is to say we, and all that we have, having been clean from all ceremoniall pollution, ever since our departure, though we did not think to doe any religious act. How much more carefull then will we be this day, of not prophaning the hallowed bread, by any bodily pollution of our persons, or of any thing about us? see Hag. 2. 13.

V. 6 That was taken] On the Sabbath day: see Lev. 24. 8. 9.

V. 7 An Edomite] By nation, but by profession a Proselite. Detayned] Within the Court of the Tabernacle which was in Nob, by some vow, or some expresse devotion. Neh. 6. 10 as contrarywise there were some detainments, which did exclude men out of the Temple, Jeremy, Chapter 36. verse 5.

V. 9 Behind the] That is to say behind that holy place, where the sacred vestures, and holy ornaments were laid up, of which the Ephod was the chiefest. Exodus, Chapter the 28. and verse the 4. 6.

V. 11. King] That is to say, he that is in as great esteem as the King; and is followed in the wars, and comands as the King: or peradventure the Philistims had heard something of Davids being destined to be King.

V. 12 Laid up] Weighed them; and did deliberately think upon them.

V. 13 In their hands] Being taken by them to be brought to

CHAP. XXII. VERSE 2.

IN distresse] Through poverty, debt, or other wants.

Discontented] For some injury or violence offered them, for which they could not be righted: or by reason of some notable losse or accident.

V. 4 In the hold] In Mizpeh, which was a strong hold.

V. 6 In Ramah] Within the territories of that City, neere to G [...]ibeah, or in some hill within Ghibeah. Hi [...] speare] Whether that were his custome, as amongst many nations, such weapons were in stead of a scepter. Or whether it was to shew that his wrath was ready to be put in execution against any one that should be found guilty.

V. 8 Lye in wayt] According to Sauls false suspition, and mistrust which hee had conceived of Jonathans friendship with David, by Davids returne into the Countrey; and by Jonathans absence from Court.

V 9 Set over] Or was there present amongst the servants. The servants] Namely, the shepherds and Herds-men. 1 Samuel, Chapter 21. verse 7.

V. 10 Enquired by] The Urim and Thummim.

V. 15. Be it farre from me] To conspire against the King, or doe any thing offensive to him.

V. 18 Did weare] Priests which did actually serve; for here the Ephod seemes to bee the same Garment as the Coat was: Exodus Chapter 28. verse 40. 43. See upon the first of Samuel, chap. [...]. verse 18.

V. 22. I knew it] The Italian, I did think it] after it was done, representing unto my selfe Doegs cruelty, and malice. I have] though unadvisedly, which notwithstanding I am heartily sorry for.

V. 23 That seeketh] I take charge of guarding thy person, as safely as mine owne.

CHAP. XXIII. VERS. 1.

Threshing floores] The corne which is already brought to the threshing floores.

V. 2. Enquired] By the Prophet Gad, who was with David, 1 Samuel Chapter 22 verse 5. or by Abiathar, who might be already come to David. Numbers, Chapter the seven and twentieth, verse 21.

V. 3 In Judah] Namely amongst our own countrie men, and our friends, and yet wee are affraid of Saul, because we are so few. How much more greater danger shall we be in then, if wee goe among the Philistims, who are a compleat Army?

V. 6 When] This seemeth to be [...] inserted, to shew how David had his answers from GOD, when hee had need, because the high Priest was with him with the Breast-plate, and Urim and Thummim, which were inseparable from the Ephod. Exodus, the eight and twentieth Chapter, and the eight and twentieth verse. To Keilah] Upon the time that hee was going to Keilah: Others affirme that he [Page] came not to him, but to Keilah, and that, that which was spoken 1 Sam. 22. 21. is spoken by anticipation. In his hands] The Italian addeth, the Ephod happened into his hands] Hee tooke it up by chance suddainly and brought it away with him: A signe of the Lords totall departure from Saul, See 1 Samuel chapt. 28. verse 6.

V. 9. Bring hither] Put on the Ephod, and draw neere, to give mee answer, concerning what I shall aske of thee.

V. 12. They will] If thou stayest here.

V. 15 Saw] The Italian, Stood to see] Or saw, meaning that he had good advice and intelligence from his friends.

V. 16 In God] With reasons and comforts grounded upon the grace, promises and power of God.

V. 17 I shall be] I will voluntarily yield the kingdome unto thee; and will be contented with being thy chiefe servant.

V. 18 Made] Renewed and confirmed it in the presence of the Priest, who represented God himselfe: Or by oath onely: by which a man doth present himselfe before GOD, who is witnesse and judge.

V. 22 Prepare] The Italian, Certifie your selves] Or prepare every thing better. Dealeth] in the wars, or in warlike affaires.

V. 23 In the Land] In any place of the land of Israel, if he be not retired into the wilderness, according to his wonted manner.

V. 24 To Z [...]ph] looking for David here and there in the Wilderness, and the countrey of this name. Before Saul] as his guides and fore-runners.

V. 25 Into a rock] This was some place of strong situation in that wilderness, out of which David came immediately after.

V. 27 But there came] see such another history 2 Kings 19. 9.

V. 28. Selab-Hammalekoth] The Italian, The stone of divisions] Because that Saul was forced to goe away, and leave David there.

CHAP. XXIV. VERS 2.

THE wilde Goats] They were steep and inaccessible Rocks, where no other things could come, but onely such kinds of beasts.

V 4 The Lord] This occasion offered by God so opportunely, ought to bee embraced, and taken hold of by thee, as if it were an expresse message from him.

V. 5 Heart] He trembled, and stirred up himselfe with horror, that hee had proceeded so farre in this action, as that it might be taken for an injurie.

V. 6 Seing he is] Seeing God by his absolute power hath made him King, it onely belongeth to him for to depose him. And therefore I ought not to hurt him, neither as an enemy, nor as a misdoer: for the quality of King swalloweth up that of an Enemie towards a subject, and covereth that of mis-doer within his owne Kingdome.

V. 13 Wickednesse] Let some wicked man doe that which thou wishest mee to doe: for my owne part I am an honest man, and will alwayes doe like one.

V. 14 A dead dog] A man of no estimation, nor power, See 2 Sam. 9. 8.

V. 17 Rewarded mee] Or, thou hast done mee good, and I have rewarded thee with evill.

V. 22 Unto the hold] Namely, of Enghedi. verse 1.

CHAP. XXV. VERS. 1.

OF Paran] Which was in Idumea, on the south side of Judah.

V. 2 Maon] A City of Judah, as Car [...]el also was, neare to this southerly frontier: see Joshua, chap. 15 verse 55.

V. 8 In a good day] In a day of mirth and feasting; upon which occasions, all men are likely enclined to liberality. Whatsoever commeth] What thou wilt, whatsoever thou shalt willingly doe.

V. 9 And ceased] They shewed themselves neither importunate, nor insolent, but quietly wayted for his answer. Others have it, they rested themselves from the wearinesse of the journey; which might aggravate Nabals incivility in causing them to stay, and then send them away empty.

V 10 There be many] I know David but for a runne-away, and disloyall servant, and I have no no reason to favour him, for feare I [...]st the number of such, of which there are two many already, should encrease.

V. 22. Doe God] a turning of the execration of the oath. See Ruth 1. 17. Any that] any male. Others, not so much as a dog. A manner of speech amongst the Hebrewes, signifying a generall extermination.

V. 24. Let this] wreake thy wrath upon me, without going any further. But before thou doe any violent act, heare what I will say to thee.

V. 25. N [...]bal is his name] that is to say, foolish, a man of nought.

V. 26. Hath with holden thee] This good thought of [Page] comming to meet thee, to appease thee, and doe that which Nabal had inhumanely refused to doe, is come to me from God. Of avenging] Revenging thine one injury. Be as Nabal] Beastly, and vile persons, unworthy thine anger, out of Gods grace and the love of men.

V. 28. Forgive] For my sake forgive Nabal: from whom (he being my husband) I have nothing severall. For the Lord] Seeing the Lord hath made thee such excellent promises, and that thou hast hitherto shewed thy selfe worthy of them, through an innocent life; oh, doe not staine thy vertues by an act of cruelty: [...]and trouble not thy future happinesse by a remorse and sorrow for having proceeded too far therein.

V. 29. Shall be bound] Thy person shall be preeiously preserved alive. As out of] See Jeremiah 10. 18.

V. 31. No griefe] The Italian, No Stumbling] it will be no blemish to thy vertues, no disturbance to thy happinesse, nor no remorse, to thy conscience. Remember] Thou wilt be glad that I have kept thee from this outrage.

V. 36. Like the feast] According to the custome upon such occasions. Genesis 38. 12. 2 Samuel 13. 23.

V. 37. Dyed] with extreame feare, to which was also joyned some divine or supernaturall kinde of weakning.

V. 44. But Saul] Or now Saul had given, &c. Phalti] called also Phaltiel, 2 Sam. 3. 15.

CHAP. XXVI. VERS. 1.

Came] the second time after the first, [...] Samuel 23. 19.

V. 2. Ziph] see Josh. 15. 55.

V. 5. Arose] In the night time. Trench] see upon i Sam 17. 20.

V. 6. The Hittite] either because he was a Proselyte of the Hittites nation, as 2 Sam. 11. 3. & 15. 18. 19. or he had gotten this surname for some other unknowne cause. Zerviah] a womans name which was Davids sister, 1 Chron. 2. 16.

V. 9. Be guiltlesse] see upon 1 Sam. 24. 7.

V. 10. Shall smite him] shall cause him to dye by some supernaturall plague, or accident sent by his owne hand.

V. 19. Let him accept] Heb. Let him smell thine offering. See Gen. 8 21. Driven mee out] they have sought by the meanes of this persecution to put me out of the communion of the Church, and they doe their good wils to have me run my selfe into a totall apostacie.

V. 20. Before the face] Let the Lord be judge and revenger of my death; if so be he doth give way to [...]ve me bereaved of life.

CHAP. XXVII. VERS. 1.

SAid] Through weaknesse of faith, and through carnall wisdome.

V. 2. Achish] Of whom it is likely he took good assurance, not to fall into the same danger as he was when he first retired thither, 1 Sam. 21. 12.

V. 5. Let them give] to avoide the dangers of body and soule which he might runne into by living at Court. Why should] My present estate doth not deserve it, and besides my dwelling at Court might fill thee with distrusts and suspicions; and me with hatreds and jealousies.

V. 6. Ziklag] This City was of Judahs portion, Josh. 15. 31. Then it was given to Simeon, Josh. 19. 5. And when the Philistines had dominion over Israel, they took it, and David having here gotten it of them, never restored it more; for after he came to be King, he recovered all that the Philistines had gotten from the Israelites.

V. 8. Geshurites] These three nations were the Prophets enemies: the two first towards the North, and the Amalekites towards the South. G [...]zerites] It is thought they were the same that in other places are called Ghergeshites. Amalekites] Of whom it seemeth that Saul destroyed only the chiefe City and the places about it, 1 Sam. 15. 7.

V. 9. Smote] Warred against it with fire and sword.

V. 10. Ierahmeelites] Which were of the Tribe of Judah, 1 Chron. 2. 7. Of the Kenites] see Num. 24. 21. Iudg. 1. 16.

V. 11. Saved] Which he could doe thus secretly by reason that those places which he invaded were farre off, solitary and scattered in the wilderness. And so will be] the Italian, So was] Or and such hath been, &c. As though they were words spoken by people, that could have complained.

CHAP. XXVIII. VERS. 3.

IN his owne] It seemeth, he meaneth Naioth, which was part of the City of Ramah, where Samuel resided, and kept his schoole of Prophets, 1 Samuel 19. 18.

V. 4. In Sh [...]u em] A City of the Tribe of Issachar, Iosh 19. 18.

V. 6. Inquired] The Ephod being brought to David, 1 Sam. 23. 6. 9. Saul could not enquire of the Lord by Urim and Thummim, Num. 27. 21. Well might he have some Prophet by him, as Ier. 37. 17. Answered him not] Which was a token of Gods extreame wrath, 1 Sam. 14. 37. Lam. 2. 9.

V. 7. That hath] That is to say, a Witch: though she did not proceed properly by the spirit called Pithon, who spake from within the belly of them which were possessed [Page] by him, in the meane time tying their tongues, which is called Engastrimancy. But she wrought by Necromancy: that is to say by apparitions, and dead mens ghosts, as Isay 8. 19.

V. 8. Bring me him up] call forth and cause the spirit of a dead man whom I shall name, to appeare unto me. Words proceeding from a grosse ignorance, which accompanied Sauls impiety.

V. 9. Layest thou] Why goest thou about to induce me to doe any thing which may make me deserve death.

V. 12. Samuel] A divellish apparition, in the likenesse and forme of Samuel, by which the witch knew him to be Saul.

V. 13. What sawest thou] Because the apparition did not at first appeare to Saul, but to the woman only. Gods] the Italian, An Angell] The shape of a divine and heavenly man in all points. So the Devill transformes himselfe into an Angell of light, 2 Cor. 11. 14. Others a God, in the same sence.

V. 14. Covered] Which might be some speciall manner of garment that Samuel used, or all the Prophets in generall: see a Kings 1. 8. Zech. 13. 4. Perceived that it was] After that the Devill had thus appeared to the woman, the same apparition came neer to Saul, who knew Samuel better; and then it spake to him hand to hand, no body hearing their talke. Now Saul through Gods judgement, was by this illusion induced to worship the Devill, which is the aime of the evill spirit to all those which seeke after him.

V. 15. Why] A continuation of the Devils lye, to insnare Saul so much the more.

V. 19. With mee] That is to say, dead, as the true Samuel was, who was here represented by the Devill, who by these words, imprinteth this error in Saul; that the soules of all men, as well good as bad go to the same place: for to blot out of him all knowledge and apprehension of eternall life.

Their armies] the Italian hath it, Their principalities] The armies of the five Principalities of the Philistims, distinguished in their severall bands. Others have it, the Princes with their severall hundreds, and thousands.

V. 4. Be an adversary] the Italian, [...]oerevolt] as those other Hebrewes had done, 1 Sam. 14. 21.

V. 6. As the Lord liveth] It is marvellous that a heathen should swear by the true God: but he did it, either to flatter with David: or according to the Pagans opinion and false ceremonies, who beleieve, that each nation hath its severall God living and reigning over his people, as others doe over theirs.

V. 8. But what] Feigned words.

CHAP. XXX. VERS. 1.

SMitten] Forced it, and sacked it.

V. 7. Bring me hither] Come hither into my presence to enquire of the Lord, having the breast-plate which is upon the Ephod, about thee, as 1 Sam. 23. 9.

V. 14. Cherethites] It was a nation neere to the Philistines, or else part of them. See Ezek. 25. 16. Zeph. 2. 5. Of Caleb] of the countrey belonging to Calebs posterity, Josh. 14. 13. & 15. 13.

V. 16. Spread abroad] the Italian addeth, Without any watch] Heb. at randome.

V. 17. Vpon Camels] That is to say, upon Coursers, or Dromedaries.

V. 20. Heards] Which the Amalekites had gotten in other places besides Ziklag and Jew [...]y. Those other cattell] which were Davids and his followers.

V. 24. So shall his] Italian, Ought his to be] not only in naturall equity, they being commanded to stay behinde; and executing a charge so needfull for the whole army: it being reasonable, that he who hath preserved the common goods, should be paid out of the common stock. But also by Gods expresse law, Num. 31. 27. Josh. [...]2. 8.

V. 27. Bethel] This word signifieth, house of God, whereby some have imagined that it ought to be understood of Kiriath [...]ea [...]m, where the Arke was, [...] Sam. 7. 1.

CHAP. XXXI. VERS. 2.

ABinodab] It may bee hee that is called Ishui, 1 Sam. 14. 49.

V. 6. All his men] His familiar and household servants.

V. 11. Iabesh] Questionlesse in remembrance and gratitude for their deliverance by Saul, 1 Samuel 11. 11.

V. 12. Burnt them] Which was not ordinarily used, but onely in case of necessity, as here, that they might be no more found, nor exposed to ignominy: see Amos 6. 10.

V. 13. They tooke their bones] Hal [...]o calcinated, for to give them buriall.

THE ARGUMENT.

THis Booke containeth the continuation of the Historie of GODS people under David's raigne, who after the death of Saul, was raised thereunto by degrees; being first acknowledged and accepted of by his owne Tribe of Judah: and some yeares after, by all the rest, through his victories over the rest of those which were of Saul's side: and at the last, by the death of Ishbosheth, Saul's son, who was installed in the Kingdome. And in his executing of this office, the historie describes unto us the excellent and heroicall vertues, wherewith the Spirit of GOD had endowed David, as well for wisdom, justice, equity and humanity, politick government, and establishment of a perfect order in his house, and the state of the whole Kingdome: as also for valour, knowledge and understanding in military affaires: through which he obtained continually notable victories, as well in forraigne wars, as in civill commotions, factions and rebellions: whereby his State was firme, and the people settled in assured rest, and the enemies over-throwne, destroyed, and subdued round about them; the bounds of the Kingdome enlarged, even to the limits anciently appointed and promised by the LORD. Then is set downe his eminent piety, and his singular Zeale, by which he was moved in

GODS Service, purged by him from all corruption, regulated by an admirable order, and held in greater majestie, and veneration than it was at first, having for that purpose brought the Arke of the Covenant neere himselfe to Sion; having by Divine revelation conceived the designe of the fabrick of the Temple, and prepared, and consecrated infinite treasures for that worke, and purchased the ground upon which it should stand. The history setteth also down the incomparable blessing wherewith  Davids life and raigne was crowned, and rewarded, whilst hee governed himselfe in this laudable manner, by glorious victories and conquests, in [Page] peace, security, and wealth: Obedience, love, and perfect respect of his people in numerous issue, prosperity, and tranquillity at home: and benevolence, and respect of strange Nations, and Princes. And it sets down also how David being run out into irregulate desires, violence, perfidiousnesse, ambition, and pride; vices ordinarily accompanying an absolute power: did also feele GOD'S heaviest punishments, in tragicall enormities, and confusions in his own familie, in publick revolts and practises against his person: indivisions, factions, civill wars, plagues and other scourges in his Kingdome. But as the holy Ghost, by which he was stamped, and sealed, did never utterly forsake him, to an unbridled and unlimited forsaking and refusall: but by the ministry of his Word did continually recall him, to most humble and sincere confessions, lively acknowledgements, and a deep repentance, and loyall conversion followed by an exemplarie patience, and humilitie in bearing of GOD'S punishments: So did GOD also temper his severity, received him againe into grace, and peace, and for the love of him, had mercy upon his people, converting all these sinister chances, into a greater rest, glory and happinesse. And all this through GOD'S power and free will, who having chosen David for a sacred type of CHRIST, and his Father according to the flesh, would also give a signe, and pawne of the Eternity and blessing of CHRIST'S Kingdome; in the firme lastingnesse and prosperity of David and his posterities: As likewise the promise of CHRIST'S Kingdome, was the solid basis of the lastingnesse of  Davids, whose ruines were at the appointed time, to bee gathered together, and the vices and disorders thereof corrected, and rectified by CHRIST'S spirituall and everlasting Kingdome, which being by David apprehended in Spirit, did many times incite him to give unto the LORD, most holy and devout thankes.

CHAP. I. VERS. 2.

ND Earth] See Joshua Chapter 7. v. 6. Job 2. 12.

V. 7. When he looked] The greatest part of this narration is faigned only to gaine favour at Davids hands, for assuring him of his adversaries death, and his relation of having cooperated therein, because that the description set down 1 Samuel 31. is farre different from this.

V. 9. Stand I pray thee] To cause the point of the speare to come through: Anguish] the Italian hath it, This armour of maise retaineth, &c.] Armour] The Hebrew word signifieth as well an embroydered coat, Retaineth] Hath hindered the speare from comming through me.

V. 13. A stranger] Dwelling among the children of Israel, being become a proselite, or otherwayes.

V. 16. Be upon] That is to say, beare thou the just punishment of thy capitall offence; see Leviticus [...]0. 9.

V. 18. Teach] To bring them to the exercise of weapons, and especially of the bow, because therewith the Philistims had prevailed most against Saul, 1 Sam. 31. 3.

V. 19. The beauty] The Italian, O beautifull] Or pleasant, a title oftentimes given to the land of Canaan, Psalme 48. verse 2. and 50. 2. Jeremiah chap. 3. verse 19.

Lamentations chapter 2. verse 15. Ezechiel chapter 20. v. 6. Daniel chapter 8. verse 9. and 11. 16.

V. 20. Tell it not] Would God this evill newes might be hidden from the unbeleever, who will therupon take occasion to blaspheme God, and contemn his Church, as Judges 16. 23. Mic. 1. 10. The daughters] as the custome was in victories, 1 Samuel chap. 18. v. 6.

V. 21. Let there be no] All this cursing of these places is but only a patheticall exaggeration of his griefe; as Job chapter 3. verse 3. Of Offerings] Of thanksgiving to the Lord. The meaning is, may that place which hath given so much occasion of sorrow, never yeeld any subject or meanes of mirth; Cast away] In the flight, the most valiant have cast away their weapons: or after their death they have layen scattered here and there, A [...]inted] Consecrated by the Lord for a lawfull King: Meaning, hee is dead, as Tyrants and Usurpers use to dye.

V. 24. Clothed you] By reason of his victories hee enriched you with the enemies spoiles; as Psalme 68. verse 12. Or through the happinesse of his raigne, he caused his Countrey to abound in [...]iches, and pleasures.

V. 26. Thy love] I was joyned to thee with a more strict and tender affection, then is the husbands affection to his wife.

CHAP. II. VERS. 1.

ENquired] By Urim and Thummim.

V. 3. In the cities] Of which, see Joshua chap. 21. v. 12.

V. 6. And truth] These two words of kindnesse, and truth, are often joynd together, for to point out a loyall, constant and hearty favour, and kindnesse.

V. 8. Ishbosheth] Sometimes also called Eshbaal, 1 Chronicles Chapter 8. verse 33. and 9. 39. For the Hebrewes in detestation of Idols, did expunge the word Baal, and did place in the stead of it Bosheth, or Besheth, that is to say, a shamefull, and infamous thing, as the Idoll it selfe, Jeremiah chap. 3. verse 24. Hos. chapter 9. verse 10. So Jerubbaal, Judges Chapter 6. verse 22. is called Jerubesheth, 2 Samuel 11. 21. and Meribaal 1 Chronicles 8. 34. is the same as Mephibosheth, 2 Sam. 4. 4. Mahanaim] a place beyond Jordan, Genesis 32. 2. belonging to the Tribe of Gad.

V. 9. The Ashurites] That is to say, of the tribe of Asher: *J [...]*z [...]eel] not that of Judah, Joshua 15. 56. But that of Is [...]acahr, Joshua chapter 19. verse 18. From which the Countrey round about tooke its name: Israel] That is to say all the other Tribes, saving the Tribe of Judah, [Page] which even before the separation of the other ten Tribes, in the dayes of Jeroboam, is often distinguished from the rest, 1 Sam. 11. 8. and 15. 4. 2 Sam. 24. 9.

V. 10. Two yeares] Seeing that David reigned seven years and a halfe in Hebron, after the death of Saul, we must conclude either that Ishbosheth was not made King presently after his fathers death, or that the eleven tribes did not put themselves under Davids obedience presently after the death of Ishbosheth.

V. 12. To Gibeon] In the Country of Benjamin.

V. 14. Play] Let them come, to shew both the armies some pastime, in a fight, according to the custome of armies that lye [...]ncere one another.

V. 16. Caught] They came together with such fury and violence, that at the very first onset they closed and [...]ust one another through; Helkath] the field of strong or valiant men: or of the points of swords; In Gibeon] or the territories thereof.

V. 21. Lay thee hold] Vent thy rage upon some plaine ordinary Souldier, and do not contend with me, for I shall quickly make thee know that thou art not able to deale with mee. Words of contempt.

V. 22. How then] Why wilt thou through thy rashnesse cause an implacable hatred to arise between Joab and me?

V. 23. Under the fifth ri [...]] In that part of the body which is called Hypocondrion, where the halfe ribbs are.

V. 26. Thesword] Is it not time to sound a retreat? Thou mayest peradventure repent thy selfe if thou shouldst drive this people to despaire, and seeking to prosecute the victory too hotly, thou mightest peradventure lose it.

V. 27. Unlesse thou hadst spoken] If thou hadst not challenged, and provoked us, v 14.

CHAP. III. VERS. 3.

TAImai] Peradventure she was taken prisoner at that time as David warred against the Geshurites, 1 Samuel Chapter 27. verse 8. and he married her according to the Law, Deuteronomy, Chapter 21. verse 10.

V. 5.  Davids wife] The Italian,  Davids woman] That is to say, his concubine, of a meaner condition than any of his wives.

V. 7.  Wherefore hast thou] Words of suspicion, as though he should suspect that Abner aimed at th [...] Kingdome, for the taking of the deceased King's wife, or concubine, was a token of taking possession of the Kingdome. So David had Sauls concubines, 2 Samuel chapter 12. verse 8. Absalom tooke Davids, 2 Samuel chapter 16. 21. Adonijah desired to have Abishag given unto him, 1 Kings chapter 2. verse 17.

V. 10.  From Dan] See upon Judges chapter 20. verse 1.

V. 12.  Sent] In his own name, and not as Ishbosheths officer.

V. 14.  David] It is likely he did it by Abners perswasion, who was not able to fulfill Davids desire, without Ishbosheths consent.

V. 18.  Do it] Play the parts of men, to bring this businesse to passe.

V. 10. The whole] By 1 Chronicles, Chapter 12. verse 29. It is plaine that the greatest part of Benjamin, did yet follow Ishbosheth: but it is likely that Abner speakes of that part which he had persuaded to be on his side.

V. 22. From pursuing] A troope of the enemies, or some high way theeves.

V. 27. In the gate] Or in the entrance of the porch:
Quietly] The Italian, Privately] or treacherously, and deceitfully; Under the fifth] See upon 2 Sam. 2. 23.

V. 29. Let it rest] Let this bloud be irremissibly punished in his own person, and be continued upon his posterity, for example and instruction; An issue] an opprobrious disease amongst the Jewes: see Leviticus 15 2. Lean [...]th] that is to say, lame or impotent in his limbs.

V. 30. And Abishai] Joab with Abishai's consent, or Abishai having a hand in the fact, and being present when it was done.

V. 31. Gird you] See Genesis 37: 34. Mourne] at Abners funerall.

V. 33. Died Abner] That is to say, ought he to be shine, and his slayer go unpunished? as though he had been some [...]ewd fellow: Or is it possible that hee being such a great Captaine shall dye so unworthily?

V. 34. Were not bound] As a guilty man that is condemned by law to dye: that is to say, if thou hadst not been treacherously set upon, thou mightest well have stood with Joab in a triall of manhood.

V: 39. Weake though'] Hebrew, I am set tender as a young plant, or graft of a tree: Words of humane weaknesse; Too hard] too high minded, and cruell hearted: too mighty by reason of the high esteeme they are in with the Souldiers: Whereby I cannot repress their insolencie; nor punish their misdeeds.

CHAP. IV. VERS. 1.

His hand] Hee fain [...]ed, and was quite out of courage.

V. 2. Was reckoned] Though after Saul's overthrow, [Page] and death the inhabitants of this, and other cities, had forsaken them, and left them to the Philistims, who had seated themselves there 1 Sam. 31. 7.

V. 3. Gittaim] Which was also a city of Benjamin, Neh. 11. 33.

V. 4. Jonathan] This seemeth to be put in here to shew, that there being but two left of Sauls posterity; namely Ishbosheth, and Mephibosheth, that could pretend to be Kings (for the rest that were borne of concubines, 2 Samuel chapter 21. verse 8. Were incapable of it) Ishbosheth being slaine, as shall hereafter be said, and Mephibosheth being impotent and very young; the Israelites were so much the willinger to accept of David for to be King; Out of Jezreel] Where the battell was given, 1 Samuel chapter 29. verse 1. Mephibosheth] called also Meribbaal, 1 Chronicles chapter 8. verse 34. See upon 2 Samuel chap. 2. v. 8.

V. 6. Wheat] For their pay, according to the ancient custome; Under the fifth rib] see upon the second of Samuel chap. 2. v. 23.

CHAP: V. VERS: 1.

Thy bone] Of the same bloud, people and parentage, Genesis chapter 29. verse 14. and therefore nature invites us, to unite our selves to thee: And the triall which wee have had of thee under Saul, moves us to desire thee for to be our King, and Gods calling thee unto it, obligeth us to receive thee.

V. 3. Before the Lord] Namely in the publick assembly where God was called upon, and where he was present in grace; and was called to bee witness and judge of the loyalty of the covenants, Judges Chapter 11. verse 11. 1 Samuel Chapter 23. verse 18. Anointed] Hee was consecrated by some Prophet, or Priest; with the consent, and approbation of all the people, for this signe was alwayes conferred upon one, by some sacred persons, 1 Kings Chapter 1. verses 34. 39. 2 Kin 9. 1.

V. 4. Fourty] Since David raigned seven yeares and a halfe in Hebron, and three and thirty in Jerusalem, if those yeares were compleat, hee raigned fourty yeares and an h [...]lfe.

V. 6. Jebusites] See Joshua Chapter 15. verse 63. and chapter 18. verse 28. Judges Chapter 1. verse 21. and chapter 19. verses 11, 12. Thou shalt not] The meaning is, This place is so strong by nature, that it would be impregnable, though there were none but blind, and poore Iame men to keepe it: how much more impossible is it then to take it, now it is kept by stout and valiant Souldiers. Others will have it, as if they had indeed (in scorne) set blind and lame men upon the wals, as if they were sufficient to guard them.

V. 7. The strong bold] Jerusalem was divided into two little hills, Sion, and Salem, or Moriah: Salem was already taken by the Tribe of Judah, Judges chapter 1. verse 8. Sion was yet held by the Jebusites: and in it there was a rock cut round about, upon which this strong hold was built, which afterwards was called the City of David, where his Royall palace was.

V. 8. Getteth up] Ascending, and soaring up to give the assault: To the gutter] it might bee some conduit, or cistern upon the plaine top of the Rock, through which the raine water ranne, therefore, thereby is understood the top of the rocke, That are hated] By whom David hath so much annoyance, they having been placed there in despite of him, to guard the place: Hee shall bee] This is supplied by, 1 Chronicles Chapter 11. verse 6. They said] The Italian, It is said] May bee it was a kind of by word to say, those blind and lame men could not keepe the, place well in the Jebusites dayes, therefore wee must not trust such men to keepe it, but to employ the valiantest and ablest men to that purpose: Unlesse that in remembrance, of this act, it was even from that time forbidden, to suffer any blind or lame men to come into that place.

V. 9 From Millo] The Italian hath it, From the rampier] Wherewith the wall was earthed within side. The meaning is, David did at his owne cost, and with his own endeavours; build, and re-edifie the inside of the city, and left the, care of building the walls to Joab. 2 Chr. 11. 8.

V. 11 Cedar-tr [...]es] For the King of Tyre was Lord and Master of Lebanon, which abounded in Cedars. 1 Kings chapter 5. verse. 6. And there were also in that countrey excellent Architects, Carpenters, and Carvers, Ezech. 27. 9.

V. 13 Tooke him] Against the Commandement, Deuteronomy chapter the 17. verse the 17.

V. 17 To seek David] To sight with him wheresoever they should finde him. Went downe] out of his royall [Page] palace to muster up his forces, and make preparation for warres within his City, which was like a muster-place.

V. 18. Spread themselves] Pitched their camp, or made their excursions. Valley] which was in the land of Iudah, Ioshua chapter 15. verse 8.

V. 19. Enquired] By Urim and Thummim, Num. 27. 21.

V. 20 Baal-Perazim] That is to say, in this place, which was afterwards so called, by this that happened there, Breach] That is to say, a great floud, or inundation, which overfloweth all it meeteth with. Baal-Perazim] or the plaine of breaches. See Isaiah chapt. 28. verse 21.

V. 21. Burnt them] The Italian, Put them away] consuming them with fire, 1 Chronic. 14. 1 [...].

V. 24 The sound] The signe of Gods comming with his Angels, who are his Armies.

CHAP. VI. VERS. 1.

Gathered together] The Italian addeth, Againe] After the first-time, 2 Samuel ch. 5, v. 3.

V. 2. Baal] It was that City which in other places is called Kiriath-Iearim: 1 Samuel chapter 7. verse 1. 1 Chronicles chapter 13. verse 5. which anciently was called Kiriath-Baal: Ioshua chapter 15. verse 60. That is to say, the City of Baal, and in detestation of the Idoll, the name was changed into Baala, Joshuah Chapter 15. verse 9. and into Baal Judah, that is to say, the plaines of Judah; By the name] Of that great and venerable name: That dwelleth] See upon 1 Samuel, Chapter 4. verse 4.

V. 3. They set] This manner of transporting the Arke, though it was peradventure done for the greater state, as 1 Samuel Chapter 6. verse 7. was neverthelesse beyond Gods command, who had appointed it should bee carried upon mens shoulders, Numbers, Chapter 4. verse 15. and Chapter 7. verse 9. And thereupon grew the occasion of the dismall chance.

V. 7. The Anger] For it was not lawfull for any one, but onely the high Priest, and his sonnes to touch the Arke, Numbers 4. 15. Smote him] With some suddaine and supernaturall death.

V. 8. Had made a breach] That is to say, had smitten Uzzah, with a violent death; Perez Uzzah] That is to say, the breach of Uzzah.

V. 10. Of Obed-Edom] According to some, it is the same that is mentioned, 1 Chronicles Chapter 15. verses 18, 21, 24. who was a Levite called the Gethite, Namely, of the city of Gath Rimmon, which was assigned to the Levites, Joshua Chapter 21. verse 24. Others thinke, that hee was a proselite of Gath of the Philistims, as 2 Samuel chapter 15. verses 18, 19.

V. 14. Danced] In signe of holy mirth; Ephod] See upon 1 Samuel, Chapter 2. verse 18.

V. 17. Tabernacle] The Italian, A Tent] For Moses his Tabernacle was then in Gibeon, 1 Chronicles Chapter 16. 39. And the Altar also, 1 Chronicles Chapter 21. verse 29. And David by Divine inspiration made another in the meane time, to have the Arke of GOD alwayes by him, that he might at any time enquire of the LORD, having already the building of the Temple in his minde.

V. 20. To blesse] After hee had sent home the people, with vowes and prayers to GOD for their prosperity, he came home to do the like, for his houshold and family; Uncovered] The gravity of the ancient manner of clothing left no part of the body to bee seene, or uncovered: Now peradventure David unadvisedly might not observe this decorum whilst hee danced, which Michal hatefully exaggerates through pride.

V. 21. It was] It is an honourable action to leape with a holy joy before the Lord, though in outward appearance it do not somuch savour of gravitie: And GOD notwithstanding this my humility, will make mee seeme never the lesse worthy, nor majestick before men.

V. 23. Had no child] This seemes to bee noted for a punishment of her pride.

SAid] Not by divine revelation, but of himself, being a holy and pious man, considering the designe of it selfe was praise worthy, and that God guided David by his holy spirit, in all his enterprises.

V. 5. Shalt thou build me] Words of admiration, not of reprehension. The meaning is: Hast thou had such a light thought, as for to build a firme and and settled habitation, to the signes of my presence, which have hitherto been unsetled, and wandring? I have not as yet done this honour to any of the other tribes, out of which I have chosen Judges and a King. I doe like of thine intent: 1 Kings, Chapter 8 verse 18. But be thou content with those honours which thou hast received at my hands: the putting of this thy designe in execution is reserved for thy sonne.

V. 7. Spake I a word] God had often sayd in his Law, that hee would chuse himselfe a place, but he had not expressed where, nor what kind of place it should be: And therefore he lovingly admonisheth David to wait for this expression.

V. 11 And as] This is added to extoll Davids raigne, who had for ever suppressed the adverse nations, and settled Israel in a firme repose, and forme of government: whereas the Judges, had but onely delivered them from the tyranny of some one nation, and that but onely for a certaine time. Make thee] A Scripture phrase which signifieth giving continuance of posterity, and a durable being. See Exodus, chapter 1. verse 21. 1 Kings Chapter 2. verse 24.

V. 13 For my name] To mee my selfe, who have made my selfe knowne to my Church as it were by a proper name: that my name might bee called upon therein: and that the holy meanes of my revealing may therein bee used, and distributed. For ever] That is to say, continually, till the Messias, Genesis Chapter 49. verse 10. Who was to come from David, according to the flesh, and change the temporall and figurative Kingdome, into a spirituall, and everlasting one.

V. 14 His father] By adoption and grace to Solomon, and by eternall generation to Christ, Hebrewes chapter 1. vers. 5. If he] This is referred onely to Solomon, and his posterity, and not at all to Christ. With the rod] with rods accorded to humane weaknesse, through a benigne and louing correction: and not extreame, according to the rigour of divine Justice, to utter destruction; see Job. chap. 23. ver. 6. Psalm. 39. 11. Isaiah 27. 7. 8. and 47. 3. Jeremiah 30. 11.

V. 16. Before thee] Thou, and every one of thy successors seeing it, and enjoying it. Or even as it hath been during thy life.

V. 19 And is this] The continuation of thy blessings upon my posterity is not as the succession into goods and honours, which by the Law of Nature and Nations doth passe from the fathers to their children, and so to their posterity, but this is thy singular and meere good will and deed.

V. 20 What can] I cannot sufficiently with words acknowledge thy favours, they surpasse my capacity: but thou knowest the motions of my heart, which the tongue cannot parallel. See Gen. 31. 10.

V. 21 For thy words sake] This admirable revelation of thy grace towards me; and my posterity, is grounded upon nothing, but onely upon the designe which thou hast set downe out of thy owne meere free will.

V. 22 Thou art great] The Italian; Thou art exalted] That is to say, thou oughtest to be praised and exalted, and indeed so thou art by mee, and by all the faithfull. According] As thy miracles and divine works doe testifie. [...]the remembrance of which is come even to us and our times.

V. 23 Went to] Did in a manner come downe from heaven to display and lay upon his glorious power upon earth, Exod. 3. 7. 8. And their Gods] To whom the idolaters attributed the glory of having overcome the true God, and having subdued the people, Exod, 12. 12.

V. 24 Confirmed] Thou hast gotten a perpetuall right unto them, and by thy benefits hast gained them unto thee, and thine obedience, and [...]ast confirmed their being: that they may alwayes subsist to serve thee. Israel] That people which is according to the flesh, untill the comming of the Messias, but that which is according to the spirit; for ever.

V. 27 Found in his heart] The Italian, found his heart] That is to say, hee hath gathered together all his thoughts and affections, and recalled them from the errors of the world, to unite and imploy them all, in the making of this prayer unto thee.

V. 29 Before thee] Under thy protection,

MEtheg Am [...]ah] This name is not any where else; in Hebrew it signifieth the bridle of the angle, or corner. It may be it was some strong hold, in some straight passage, by which one might take the City of Gath, 1 Chron. 18. 1. is set downe, that hee took Gath, and all the precincts of it.

V. 2 Calling them] This it seems must be understood of the Prisoners which hee divided into three parts, whereof two he put to death, and saved the third.

V. 3 Zobah] A countrey of Syria. As he went] Namely David himselfe, to enlarge his bounds to the river Euphrates, according to the bounds set downe by the Lord. Genesis, Chapter 15. verse 18.

V. 4 A thousand, 1 Chron. 18 4. There is the number of seven thousand, but here it seemeth are reckoned none but the chiefe. Houghed] To make them unserviceable: being unwilling to make any store of these instruments of pride, and carnall confidence: See Joshua, Chapter 11. verse 6.

V. 7 The shields] see 1 Kings chapter 10. verse 16.

V. 9 Hamath] A city of Syria, which is thought to be Antioch it selfe.

V. 10 To blesse him] To congratulate with him.

V. 11 Dedicate] Namely, for the preparation of the building of the Temple, and other uses for Gods service. See: Chronic. chapter 29 verse 2.

V. 13 The valley] Which was in Idumea, 2 Kings chapter 14. verse 7. Psalme 16. ver. 2. Eighteen thousand] Which were Idumeans, 1 Chron. 18. 12.

V. 14 Became) Which lasted untill the dayes of Joram King of Judah: 2 Kings chapt. 8. 22. according to Isaaks prophesie, Gen. 27. 40.

V. 16 Recorder] The Italian, Chancellor] or speaker, as 2 Kings 18. 18.

V. 17 The Priests] Namely secondary Priests: as great substitutes, under Abiathar, high Priest: See upon Numb. 3. 32. Whereupon when Abiathar w [...]s thrust out by Solomon: Zadock was put in his place. 1. Kings chapter 2. verse 27. and 35.

V. 18 Cherethites] The common opinion is, that these were the Kings guard. The cause of the name is uncertaine. They might be some of those that had followed David in his flight, 1 Sam. 22. 2. and staid with him in Ziklag, a frontier, or part of the Cherethites countrey, who were Philistims. 1 Sam. 30. 14. It may be they were native Philistims, great and mighty men of stature, which is a proportion required in those who are of the Princes guard: David having chosen them for the guard of his person, after they had joyned themselves to the people of God by profession of religion. And indeed Pelethite, signifieth [...]ulled out, or chosen. So there were of the Gitti [...]es of Gath in Davids service, 2 Sam. chapter. 15 verle 18. and 19. Rulers] The Italian, hath it, Princes] That is to say chiefe barons, or Princes of the bloud.

CHAP. IX. VERSE 4.

LOdebar] By the second of Samuel chapter 17. verse 27. It appeares that it was a place beyond Jordan.

V. 8 Dogge] A person of no esteem.

V. 10 Thy Masters sonne] Namely, Micha [...], the sonne of Mephibosheth; verse the twelfth. For Mephibosheth himselfe had his dyet at court.

V. 11. As for] Others will have these to be Zibah's words, in this sence. Doe O King as thou thinkest [...]itting, and as thou pleasest: though Mephibosheth might have his dyet with me; that is to say, he should by mee bee royally entertained as a Kings sonne.

V. 12. Were] Mephibosheth was master, and Ziba was but over-seer of the house.

CHAP. X. VERS. 2.

AS his] The Scripture doth not set down when this was: It was peradventure when David fled, 1 Samuel chapter 22 verse 3. and this Nahaz might be the same, as the first of Sam. chapter 11. verse 1. who hating Saul that had overcome him, might doe David some good.

V. 3 To overthrow it] That is to say, to entice or corrupt the people, and so disturb thy kingdome.

V. 4 To their] See concerning this kind of disgracefull usage, Isaiah chapter 20. verse 4. and 47. 2.

V. 5. Jericho] which at that time might be some open and ruinate place; for it was not built againe, untill a [Page] long time after, 1 Kings chapter the sixteenth, verse the foure and thirtieth.

V. 6 Beth-Reheb] This was a part of Syria, bordering upon the north of Israel, Numbers 13. 22. Zoba] Another countrey of Syria, 1 Samuel chapter fourteenth, verse the fourty seventh. Maacah] This was also part of Syria, joyning to the former, Deuteronomy chap. 3. verse 14 Ishtoh] The Italian, To [...] See Judg. 11. 3.

V. 8. Of the gate] The Italian addeth, Of the City] Of Medeba, which was upon the frontiers of the Ammonites, 1 Chron. chap. 19. verse 7.

V. 16 Hadar-Ezer] Is the same as Hadad-Ezer, King of A

Syria, 2 Sam. chapt. 8. verse 3. The river] Euphrates.
Helam] A place mentioned no where else.

V. 18 Seven hundred] 1 Chronicles chapter 19 verse 18.
Mention is made of seven thousand: but here are meant onely the chiefe, as 2 Samuel chapter 8. verse 4. Horse- men] 1 Chronicle chapter 19. verse 18. there is mention made of foot-men, neither can there any reason be given of this diversity.

CHAP. XI. VERS 1.

After the yeare] Or the new yeare, namely at the spring.
Rebbah] The principall city of Ammon: Deuteronomy chapter 3. verse 11.

V. 2 His Bed] Upon which peradventure he rested at noon
The roofe] Made in the manner of a plaine Terrace, according to the fashion. Washing] purging her selfe from the legall uncleannesse of her monethly termes. verse 4.
according to the Law: Leviticus chapt. 15. ver. 27, 28.

V. 3 The Hittite] See upon 1 Sam. chapt 26. verse 6.

V. 8 Wash] That is to say, refresh thy selfe according to the ancients custome. when they had beene some journey.

V. 11. The Arke] Whether it was carried into the camp, as it was wont to be upon occasion of some notable danger, or businesse, Numbers chapter 31. verse 6. 1 Samuel chapter 4. verse 4. and chapter 14. verse 18. or that he onely meaneth, it rested under the tent, which David had set up for it. 2 Samuel chapt. 6. verse 17.

V. 16 Observed] The Italian, assayling] Or having observed the City, and given heed to it.

V. 21 Ierubesheth] See upon 2 Samuel ch. 2. verse 8.

V. 27 The mourning] In weeping, Fasting, and living private, and from company, the ordinary time appointed therefore being seven days, as Josephus writeth: see 1 Samuel chapter 31. verse 13.

CHAP. XII. VERS. 5.

SHall surely dye] The Italian, hath deserved death] By reason of the cruelty of the circumstances the penalty of restoring foure [...]old, which was appoynted by the Law, Exodus chap. 22. verse 1. Is not sufficient, and therefore besides what is due for his neighbours satisfaction, it is sitting he should pay a penalty to publike justice with his life.

V. 7 The man] Guilty of that misdeed: see the like example, the second of Samuel, chapter 14. verse 6. 1 Kings chapter 20. verse 35. 41.

*V. 8 Wives] The Italian hath it, Women] This seemes should not bee understood of the women which were marryed to Saul, Davids father in law, nor yet of his concubines, because there would bee incest in it: Leviticus chap. [...]8 verse 15. But of women, and maides of Sauls court which he had not carnally knowne: see upon the second of Samuel chapter 3. verse 7. Too little] As second of Kings chapter 3. verse 18.*

V. 9 The commandement] That is to say, the Law.

V. 10 The sword] This may bee referred to the violent death of Davids three sonnes, Ammon, Absolom, and Adoniah, and to divers warres and bloody deaths of his successors.

V. 11 Evill] A cruell and tragicall evill; namely, the revolt, and conspiracy of thy sonne Absolom: the second of Samuel, chapter the fifteenth, verse the tenth. Who shall ravish, and defile thy concubines: the second of Samuel, chapter the sixteenth, verse the two and twentieth. Take] I will suffer by my just judgement, the divell to suggest this evill thought to Absolom, and suffer him to doe it without any opposition, punishing thy sinne by his sinne. Before thine eyes] In thy life time, and thou knowing of it. In the sight] publikely, and openly.

V. 12. For thou] Because thou hast beene more [Page] ashamed of men then afraid of me, I will punish thee with publick shame:

V. 13. Also hath] seeing thou art so ready to confesse and so sincere in thy repentance, Prov. 28. 13. 1 John 9, 10. Put away] Taken it away from before his eyes, forgotten it, not to be induc [...]d to revenge for it, that is to say, he hath remitted and forgiven it. Now the Lord forgiveth David the severe censure of a Judge, joyned with the curse of his person, and utter destruction by present and eternall death: Yet reserveth unto himselfe the fatherly punishment, for his correction and humiliation See 2 Sam. 7. 14, 15.

V. 14. Thou hast] that is to say, insomuch that a King of Israel, chosen by, & beloved of God, hath committed such cruell deeds, as are reprov'd even by pagans, and that through thy treachery, Gods enemies have had some advantage over his people: see Isay 52. 5. Ezech. 36. 20. 23. Rom. 2. 24.

V. 15. Strake] With sicknesse, proceeding from Gods hand, not naturall infirmity.

V. 17. The Elders] His chiefe counsellors, and officers.

V. 18. On the seventh] Of the sicknesse or birth of the childe.

V. 24. Called his name] By Gods appointment, 1 Chro. 22. 9. Solomon] that is to say, Peaceable. A type of Christ triumphant, as David had beene of the same Christ militant.

V. 25. Iedidiah] Beloved of the Lord, a second name of the same person, as it was the custome of the Hebrewes, to have two names. Of the Lord] by reason of the love he bare to him.

V. 26. The royall City] It seemeth to be a part of the same City of Rabba, wherein stood the royall palace encompassed round with waters, both for safeguard and delight.

V. 28. Be called] The conquerours using often times to give names to conquered places.

V. 30. Their Kings] the Italian, Malcam] it is the same as Molock or Milcom, the Idoll of the Ammonites, upon whose statue was set this crowne, of such an unreasonable weight, for the talent was of one hundred and five and twenty pounds, Exod. 38. 25. Others translate it their Kings, namely, the Ammonites: and in this sense, this crowne was not set upon their heads, but onely hanged or carried by other men over it. Set on] That is to say, hanged or borne over it. Others understand it, that the gold thereof being melted, there was of a competent quantity thereof, a crowne made for David.

V. 31. Under sawes] A kinde of most terrible torture. See Amos 1. 3. Heb. 11. 37.

CHAP. XIII. VERS. 1.

Sister] By the father and mother which was Maacah, 2 Sam. 3. 3.

V. 2. A virgin] And therefore of her selfe more alien from any such unchaste thoughts, and kept the more strictly.

V. 3. Shimeah] called also Shammah, 1 Samuel 16. 9.

V. 13. Shall I cause] How might I cleanse my selfe of my shame? Now therefore] she saith this only to get out of his hands, because she could by no meanes be his wife.

V. 16. Greater] In regard of my dishonou [...], which will be so publickly proclaimed by this my sending away, whereas otherwise the injury which thou hast done mee might have beene conccaled.

V. 19. Put ashes] A signe of extreame sorrow, Josh. 7. 6. 1 Sam. 4. 12. Job 2. 12. Laid her] A gesture of women that were extreameyly grieved, as Jer. 2. 37.

V. 20. He is thy] Therefore we must take care not to publish his disgrace, which in some sort is common to us all, and also he being our brother, we cannot so well revenge our selves upon him, as we might do upon some other body.

V. 23. Baal Hazor] In the plaine of Hazor, Josh. 15. 22. 25. Invited] For upon such occasions they made great feasts and banquets. See Gen. 38. 12. 1 Sam. 25. 36.

V. 37, *Tal [...]*ai] Which was his grandfather by the mothers side. 2 Sam. 3. 3.

CHAP. XIV. VERS. 2.

TEkoah] A City of Judah, 2 Chronicles, chap. 11. v 6.

V. 7. My coale] The only remainder of our family, in which, as on a chimney-hearth, there is nothing left alive, but only one peece of brand, or a kindled coale.

V. 9. The iniquity] If there be any error in this thy pardoning, I pray God the punishment therefore may fall upon me, and mine; and not upon thee.

V. 11. Remember] Swear unto me by him, to performe what thou promisest and sayest to me.

V. 13. Wherefore then] since thou art pleased to doe my sonne such a favour, why doest thou not do the same to Absalom, for the Lords peoples sake; they setting their eyes upon him, as upon thy lawfull successor by birth-right, being new thine eldest. See the like [Page] insinuation, 2 Sam. 12. 1. Deeth speake] Speaking as he now doeth to me. His banished] namely, Absolom.

V. 14. We must needs] death is unavoidable, to Kings as well as others: and therefore it is time for thee to assure thy people of a lawfull successor: which by birth-right is Absolom.

V. 15. Have made me] Because I have feared, lest the people discontented through Absoloms absence, should runne headlong upon some dangerous resolution; as to call him home against thy will, and make him King in thy life time: or some other way rise up against thee.

V. 16. Out of the inheritance] That is to say, out from amongst thy people.

V. 17. The word] that is to say, the answer which he shall give me concerning Absoloms returne, shall be peaceable. To set my mind at rest, and the whole kingdome in peace, staying all popular insurrections. As an Angell] He is inspired by God to judge aright, in every thing as shall be propounded unto him. Whereby he may plainely perceive: that what I speake unto him, is for the publike good.

V. 19. Canturne] Cannot gainesay, but that the businesse is true as thou speakest.

V. 20. To fetch about] for to make way, under this feigned accident of my sonne, to desire this pardon for Absolom of thee.

V. 22. Thanked] the Italian, Blessed] That is to say, thanked him, and withall prayed to the Lord, to grant a happy issue to all these affaires.

V. 26 Kings weight] That is to say, of a just current, and ordinary weight: it is thought to be the same as else where is called the Sanctuary shekel. Exod. 30. 13.

V. 29. He would not] Fearing lest David thereby might suspect, that there was some secret practise or conspiracy betweene them.

V. 30. Set it on fire] Burne the barley that is there. Now that was done for to give him cause, to come and speak with him.

V. 32. Had been good] My fathers wrath had not been so grievous to me being farre from him, as it is now I am so neere to him, neither would the infamy have been so notorious nor remarkable: which may now alienate the peoples hearts from me, who in mine absence did desire my returne.

CHAP. XV. VERS. 1.

Prepared him] Begun to get a train and household like a Prince, and successor to the kingdome, being the first borne since the death of Ammon. For Chileab, 2 Sam. 3. 3. Was either dead or uncapable. Men] That is to say, footmen.

V. 2. Of the gate] Of the royall palace, or of the Court of justice.

V. 6. Stole] Did stealingly and deceitfully with-draw the peoples dependency from David to himselfe.

V. 7. Forty] It is uncertaine whence these yeers must begin to be reckoned: some take it from Davids first consecration, 1 Sam. 16. 13. Some from the first establishment of a kingdome under Saul. For these notable changes many times serve to alter the times, from which they begin their computations.

V. 8. I will serve] the Italian, I will sacrifice unto] namely, sacrifices of thanksgiving: the Hebrew word signifieth, I will serve, as Exod. 8. 1.

V. 10. As soone as] When I shall send about every where to gather the people unto me, and if they aske the reason of it, you shall answer, as from your selves, that I have been accepted of for King, in my fathers stead.

11. Were called] To the sacrifice of thanksgiving. As 1

Sam. 9. 13. & 16. 3. 5.

V. 12. Giloh] A City of Judah, Josh. 15. 51.

V. 14. And bring evill] Lest he overcome us suddenly, or lest he destroy us without helpe, and upon our resistance take occasion to sack the City.

V. 17. Tarr [...]d] To rest a while, or to feed. Farre of] Alone, and out of the City, though not very farre off, as it appeareth by the subsequent narration.

V. 18. Cherethites] See upon 2 Sam. 8. 18. Gittites] It is uncertaine what people this was. Certaine it is that they were so called, from Gath, a City of the Philistims; and it is likely that they being converted to the true religion, David tooke them to be of his guard, for the cause spoken of 2 Sam. 8. 18. wherfore their head is called a stranger. vers. 19. 1.

V. 19. An exile] the Italian, And wilt quickly goe to thy place] as if he would say, thou art old and weake, neere to thine end.

V. 20. But yesterday] Newly, but a little while agoe. Mercy] may God use mercy continually towards thee.

V. 23. Kidron] The name of a valley, and a brooke on the East side of Jerusalem, between the city and the Mount of Olives, Jer. 31. 40. Joh. 18. 1.

V. 24. Zadok] According to the commandement, Num. 4.

15. Bearing] According to the custome in your greatest and most dangerous commotions of the people. See Num. 31. 6. 1 Sam. 4. 3. and 14. 18. But here there was a more speciall occasion, to shew that the Church (as one should say) and the signes of Gods presence, could not be separated from Da-David, who was the figure of [Page] Christ, the head of it. And for a token of a curse to Absalom, who could not have God on his side, in such an abominable usurpation. Set downe] The meaning is, Zadock the second Priest, a Sam. 8. 17. Having the charge of carrying the Arke with his Levites staid with it, to keep the rereward of the people, imitating therein the example of Josh. 3. 17. whilst Abiathar the High Priest went in the front of the people up the Mount of Olives, and whilst the rest of the people made an end of comming out of the city.

V. 25. His habitation] Namely, Jerusalem, by him chosen for a firme residence, for the signes of his presence.

V. 27. A Seer] That is to say, a Prophet, 1 Sam. 9. 9. either Zadock, being indeed a Prophet, or because sometimes he did put on the breastplate, to enquire of God, as he was Aarons successor, in the direct line of the first borne. Though Abiathar for some unknowne cause, did at that time time possesse that place: and either of the two wayes it was necessary for him to stay with the people, and instruct them concerning the will of God.

V. 30. Covered] His head wrapped up and his sight covered according to the manner of mourners, 2 Sam. 19. 4. Esther 6. 12.

V. 31. One told David] the Italian, And David said] To prevent their affrightment, he would tell the people of it himselfe. Others have it, and it was told David, &c. whereupon he said, ô Lord, &c.

V. 31. The Archite] We reade no name like unto this, but only Josh. 16. 2. Earth] See Jesh. 7. 6. 1 Sam. 4. 12. 2 Sam 13. 19.

V. 34. Defeate] Thou maiest cause Achitophels conncell to miscarry and be overthrowne.

CHAP. XVI. VERS. 1.

The hill] namely, the mount of Olives.

V. 3. He said] A false calumniation, 2 Sam. 19. 26. To which David notwithstanding, upon false suggestions gave too much heed.

V. 4. I humbly beseech] the Italian, I do obeisance to thee]. That is to say, I give thee humble thanks. I may finde] thy grace is sufficient for me. A courteous manner of thanksgiving.

V. 5. Bahurim, a city of Benjamin, 2 Samuel 3. 16.

V. 8. The Blood] we reade not hitherto that David had spilt any blood of Sauls house, whereby some have thought, that which is said, 2 Sam. 11. 8. to have been before these things happened. Or that Shimei imputed the death of Ishbosheth, and Abner to David. Thou art taken] overtaken by, and retained in the just punishment of thy misdeed.

V. 10. What have I] I will have none of thy revenge; neither doe I care for thy service in this kinde. Let him curse] I doe perceive that this evill commeth upon me through Gods providence, who having taken away from me my majesty, and the love and reverence of my subjects; hath exposed me to this mans outrages, Job 30. 11. And it is my duty to humble my selfe under the hand of the first author, and not take notice of this fellow, that is but the instrument. Hath said unto him] See 2 Kings 18. 25. Lam.

3. 38.

V. 11. Benjamite] of which Tribe Saul was, from whom the Kingdome had beene taken away, to give it David.

V. 14. There] Namely, in Bahurim, v. 5.

V. 15. The men of] the Italian hath it, The chiese of] which might be the deputies of the communalities, for the chusing of a new King.

V. 19. Whom] In serving thee that art his sonne and lawfull successor, I do nothing that is against my duty; seeing thou art his second selfe.

V. 21. And all Israel] In this manner thou shalt cut off all way of reconcilement, whereby those of thy side shall be bound to defend thee to the last, being out of all hope of pardon.

V. 22. Vpon the top] Made after the manner of a terrace, and exposed to the sight of all men.

CHAP. XVII. VERS. 3.

The man] In the death of David, whom thou seekest after consisteth thy whole conquest; and the secure obtaining of the kingdome. Shall be] The Hebrew is, will make peace, that is to say, will be quiet and not stirre.

V. 8. Is a man] and therefore knoweth of what importance the preservation of a head is.

V. 9. Some pit] Of which see Judges 6. 2. 1 Sam. 13. 6. Of them] namely, of those twelve thousand which Achitophel meanes to have a long with him.

V. 11. From Dan] see Judges 20. 1.

V. 13. All Israel] With such a mighty army, it will be as easie for thee to take a City, [...] as to draw a great weight downe a hill. A proverbiall kinde of speech, as Psal. 83. 14.

V. 14. The good] the Italian, the better] that is to say, the wiser and more profitable advice. Evill] namely, his ruine.

V. 17. Enroge [...]] A place neere to Jerusalem, [Page] Joshua, Chapter 15. verse 7. and chapter 18. verse 16.

Might not] For if they had remained in the city, they could not so easily have come out to execute their commission, which was to carry messages: Or may be because they were suspected.

V. 18. Went both of them] Seeing that they were discovered.

V. 20. They bee gone over] See concerning these lies in matter of narration, told onely to hinder men from doing hurt, by hiding the truth from them, which thing is not conce [....] ned by the holy Ghost: Exodus Chapter 1. verse 19. Joshua chapter 2. verses 4, 5. The brooke ef water] namely over Jordan.

V. 24. Mahanaim] See Genesis chapter 32. verse 2.

V. 25. Ithra] 1 Chronicles chapter 2. verse 17. He is called Jether the Ishmaelite; either because hee was a Proselite; or because hee had gotten this name for some unknowne reason: An Israelite] Not of the Tribe of Judah: That went into] The meaning seemeth to bee, that hee lay with her, without marrying of her: Nahash] The ancient Jewes have thought this to bee a second name of Jesse: Others with lesse likelihood would make it a womans name, which might bee the wife of Jesse: Zerviah] this may be referred to Abigail, or Abigail, [....] Chr. 2. 16.

V. 28. Basins] Or all manner of houshold stuffe, and furniture.

CHAP. XVIII. VERS. 3.

Succour us] With refreshment, of victuall, men and armes. Or that thou mayest bee readie to relieve us in person, in case of need.

V. 6. Of Ephraim] This place being beyond Jordan, could not belong to the Tribe of Ephraim, which was on this side, but might be thus called for some unknowne reason, as by the accident which is set down, Judges Chapter 12 verses 4, 5.

V. 8. The battell] After the army was discomfited, the chase was spread over all the Countrey: The wood] There dyed more of those which ranne away, and had lost themselves in the wood, and were slaine by the people of the countrey, then there dyed in the battell or in the flight, by the hands of the Souldiers.

V. 9. Caught hold] Either his great haire, 2 Samuel, chapter 14. verse 26. twisted and were wound about the bought, or his head got into some forked limbe of the tree.

V. 13. Falshood] Concealed misdeed, which I should imagine to hide with denials or lies: Against mine] For which offence I should bee questioned for my life: Wouldest have] Thou wouldest have kept thy selfe from mediating for me, or taking my defence upon thee, or sheltering me under thy authority.

V. 14. The heart] The Italian hath it, In the breast] the Hebrew is, the heart, but this word must be taken here more largely, by reason that, being thus wounded, hee was not yet dead, verse 15.

V. 17. Laid] See of this custome, Joshuah, Chapter 7. verse 26. Lamentations, Chapter 3. v. 53.

V. 18. Had taken] This seemeth to be inserted, to shew that Absoloms ambition, in raising a piramides, columnne or momument, was punished, in so much as dying in rebellion, hee was also disgracefully buried as a malefactor: Kings dale] Of which vale, see Genesis, Chapter 14. verse 17. I have no] Whereby you may gather his children spoken of, 2 Samuel Chapter 14. verse 27. Were dead.

V. 21. Chushi] The Italian, An Ethiopian] Which might be some slave belonging to Davids house, verse 29. Others beleve that the Hebrew word Cushy was his proper name.

V. 2 [...]. Betweene the two] For City gates use to be double, with an entrie or space between them, for the better security or safeguard.

V. 29. The Kings servant] Namely the Ethiopian.

CHAP. XIX. VERS. 2.

The Victory] Hebrew, The deliverance or salvation.

V. 3. By stealth] Without joy, or pomp, or noise of triumph, quietly, without presenting themselves to the King.

V. 4. Covered] In token of extreame sorrow, 2 Sam. 16. 30.

V. 5. Shamed] Shewing that the service which they have done thee, is not acceptable unto, thee, and frustrated their expectation of the praises, and rewards which they thought to have had from thee.

V. 9. Were at strife] The one laying the fault of this rebellion upon others, and all accusing themselves of their slownesse, in making amends for their fault.

V. 12. My bones] Of my race, and parentage of                    [Page] Judahs lineage.

V. 13. Amasa] Generall of Absaloms armie, 2 Samuel, Chapter 17. verses 25. My bone] The neerest kinsman I have, for hee was Davids sisters sonne, 1 Chronicle chapter 2. v. 17. Before me] that is to say, so long as I shall live.

V. 14. He bowed] Namely David, by the meanes of Amasa and the Priests.

V. 15. To conduct] To comfort him in his return and to accompany him.

V. 17. Before the King] To go meet him beyond Jordan. Or before the King was come over.

V. 18. A [...]ie boat] Prepared for the Kings passage, by the men of Judah.

V. 19. Impute] Let him not hold me guiltie therefore, but pardon my fault. Take it] For to remember it, and beare it in minde.

V. 20. Of Ioseph] That is to say of the tenne Tribes, above which Ephraims tribe who was des [...]ded from Joseph, had alwayes the preheminance.

V. 22. What have [...]] as 2 Sam. 16. v. 10. Bee adversaries] The Italian hath it. Instead of Sathan] A proverbiall kinde of speech used amongst the Hebrewes, signifying as much as yeare importunate Sollicitors, and instigators of mee, to have mee to doe evill I'am] As new created King, therefore there is no reason that this publicke joy, should bee interrupted, by any rigorous punishment. And God having out of his mercy restored the Kingdome unto mee, bindeth mee likewise to use mercy towards them who had offended me.

V. 24. The Sonne] That is to say Grand-child Jonathans sonne, 2 Sam. 9. 3, 6. Had neither] In signe of true sorrow. Dressed] That is to say had not washed them, nor pared the nailes of his toes, things wherein your Easterlings were alwayes very curious.

V. 25. When hee was come] For it is likely that after David was fled out of Jerusalem Mephibosheth went afterwards also, and that when hee came to see him after his returne, hee met him in the Citie.

V. 28. What right] Since my life, and all that I have is thy gift, I cannot gaine say thy will in any thing, nor complaine that thou hast done me any wrong.

V. 29. Why speakest] It sheweth that David did not altogether beleve Mephibosheths justifications, but for the memory of Jonathan hee granted him the one halfe of his goods, meaning peradventure to bee better informed: Or [...] [...] Ziba enjoy the revenues, untill the yeare of Jubile, when every one returned to his owne possessions. Leviticus twenty fift verse 10. I have said] This is my last, and definitive sentence.

V. 30. Yea let him] I little care for my goods though I were to loose them all, I am so joyfull to see thee re-established.

Verse. 35. Betweene good] In meate and drinke, and other delights, and bodily pleasures.

Verse 37. Chimham] The Sonne of Barzillay, as it appeareth by the first booke of Kings 2. ver. 7.

V. 40. Halse] Namely either those who had not rebelled at all, or those who were first come againe into his obedience.

Verse 42. Neere kinne] That is to say of the same tribe.

V. 43. In the King] That is to say in his Kingdome, being tenne Tribes, to the two of Benjamin and Judah. More right] Because he was indeed by us raised to bee King over Israel, 2 Samuel Chapter 5. verse 1. and yee of Judah were the first Authors of the last rebellion. The words] That is to say the men of Judah would not seeke to quench with good words the fire that was already kindled, but spake more taunting words then the others. See of the like jealousies, Judg. 8 1. and 12 1.

VVEE have no] By the speeches of the men of Judah, David belongeth not to us, let him then looke to his owne businesse and we will looke to ours, wee will have nothing to doe with him. See 1 Kings 1 [...]. 16.

V. 4. Amasa] To whom hee had made promise of the Generalls place, 2 Samuell Chapter 19. ver. 13.

V. 6. Thy Lords] Namely Joabs, who hath hitherto beene thy Generall.

V. 7. Cherethites] See upon 2 Sam. Chapter 8. ver. 18.

V. 8. Was girded] In stead of carrying his sword hanging at his girdle, and his garment over it, according to the usuall fashion, hee had girded on his garment, and had put on his girdle over that, about his waste; that the sword hanging in that kinde might at a certaine motion or posture of his body, fall out of the scabbard, that thereby he might take an occasion to take it up in his hand, without giving Amasa any cause of suspition.

V. 9. My brother] For he was his cousin, 1 Chro. [Page] chap. 2. v. 16, 17.

V. 10. Fi [...]th rib] See upon 2 Samuel, chap. 2. vers. 23.

V. 12. Wallowed] He did beat and stirre himselfe in the last pangs of death.

V. 14. Abel] it is likely to be the same City which is called Abel Maim, 2 Chronicles, chap. 16. verse 4. in the Tribe of Nephtali: or that these two Cities Abel and Berma [...]ca, were both comprehended under one name, 1 Kings 15 20. & 2 Kings 15. 29. All the] According to some they were the inhabitants of Beeroth of Benjamin, Joshua, chapt. 18. verse 25. which might be the City of this Sheba. Others think it was the countrey neer to Abel.

V. 15. A bank] According to the old manner of besieging of Cities, casting up of high banks on the out side of the wals, and standing upon them, to fight with those that defended the wals. The trench] Which is now a dayes called a trench with a breast-worke. Battered] That is to say, digged the wall.

V. 18 They were wont] The law of warre according to Gods command, Deuteronomie, chapter 20. verse 10. Was to have besieged places summoned, before they were spoyled by assaults or besieging. And if thou hadst done so, the businesse had beene ended, and thou satisfied.

V. 19. A mother] A chiefe Citie of a Province. The inheritance] A Citie or commonalty of Gods people, which are his owne as his inheritance.

V. 21. Mount Ephraim] Though Sheba was 2 Benjamite; yet peradventure he dwelt in the countrey of Ephraim. Or his Citie was in the confines of these two Tribes.

V. 22. Retired from] The armie was disbanded there.

V. 23. Was over] He retained his old place after Amasa his death. 2 Sam. 8. 16. which David had conferred upon Amasa.

V. 25. Sheva] it seems to be the same as Seraiah, 2 Iam. 8. 17.

V. 26. The Iairite] Of the countrey of Jair in Gilead, Numbers, chapter 32. verse 41. Judges chapter 10. verse 4. Chiese ruler] of Jerusalem. See upon Ezek. 11. 1. Or the chiefe president of the councell. See 2 Samuel, chapter 8. verse 18. 1 Kings chap. 4. verse 2.

CHAP. XXI. VERS. 1.

IN the dayes of David] This storie, and likewise that of the 2 Samuel, chap 24. seeme to have happened before the things which are set downe before this. Inquired] Desired his answer by Urim. Numbers, chapter 27. verse 21. It is] It is very likely, that he did not onely set downe the cause, but the manner of making atonement for it also.

V. 2. His zeale] the Italian, His jealousie] scorning that those strangers should be incorporated into Gods people, and should enjoy the same freedoms and priviledges. And especially, because they were his countrey men, for Saul was a Gibeonite, though of the Israelitish nation. 1 Chronicles, chapter 8 v. 29, 30. Sought to s [...] Taxing them with supposed faults, aggravating their true faults, extending the particular ones unto the generall depriving them of all commoditie and favour: and raising great dissensions amongst them.

V. 3. May blesse] Pardon them the offence that hath beene done to you, and pray to God to forgive them the punishment due therefore. The inheritance] namely his people.

V. 4. We will have] We doe not desire any pecuniary satisfaction for their lives that Saul hath caused to be slaine amongst us; and much lesse the blood of them which were not guilty.

V. 6. We will hang] This kinde of execution was used, in cases of making atonement for some publick misdeed. Vnto the Lord]. To satisfie his justice, and to appease him. Numbers, chapter. 25. verse 4. Gibeah] See 1 Samuel, chapter 10. verse 26. & 11. 4.

Ver. 8. Rizpah] Sauls Concubine, 2 Samuel Chapter 3. verse 7. who was yet living, verse 11. Michal] Since Michal had no Children, 2 Samuell 6. 23. and that not shee; but Merab [...]r sister was married to Adriell, 1 Samuell Chapter 18. verse 19. the word bringing up, must bee taken for adopting, and keeping. See Genesis 16. 2. and 30. 3. and 50. 23.

Ver. 10. Upon the rocke] The Ita [...]an addeth Staying there] Namely at the place where they were hanged. Now here was some singular exception to the generall Law, which was to take downe, and bury those that were hanged up the same day, Deuteronomie Chapter 21. verse 23. Dropped] It is likely that this death, came by occasion of some extreame droughts in the time of the Corne [Page] ripning. And therefore Rizpah would observe whither Gods wrath was appeased by this execution, and whether hee would be pleased to send the accustomed dewes, and raine.

V. 16. The Gyant] The Italian Rapha] That famous Philistin Gyant from whence the others are called Repheites.

V. 17. The light] Thy person in whom consists the conduct, counsell, joy and life of the people, a Scripture phrase. See 1 Kings 15. 4. Psalm. 132. 17.

V. 19. Iaore] By the 1 Chron. 20. 5. it appears that his name was Jair, but by reason of this Gyants great speare was added the word Oregim, that is to say of a Weavers beame. Goliah I 1 Chronicles Chapter 20. ver. 5. He is called Lahmi brother to Goliah, whom David slew, but it may be that after his brothers death, he tooke, and bore his name.

V. 21. Defied] Despised, and scornefully challenged them. As 1 Samuel Chapter 17. verse 10. 25, 26. Shimeah] Called Shamm [...]h also, 1 Sam. 16. 9.

Ver. 22. Of David] To whom as King, and Generall in the warres were attributed all the actions of his servants and Souldiers.

CHAP. XXII. VERS. 1

OOf this Song] Which is the same as the 18. Psalme.

V. 8. The foundations] As who should say the pillars and poles. See Job Chapter 26 verse 11. or plainely the high mountaines, which seeme to beare up the vault of Heaven, as it is set downe, Psalme 18. 7.

CHAP. XXIII. VERS. 1.

The last] The last which he pronounced by the inspiration of Gods Spirit, and set them downe in writing after his Psalmes, and other workes. The sweet Psalmist] the Italian is, The Composer of the sweete songs of Israel] Not only of the holy subject, but also of the tune and inuenter of the very instruments they were sung to. Amos chap. 6. v. 5.

V. 3. That ruleth] This is Gods command to all Kings; but especially to the Kings of his people, which it should seeme David doth here propound to Solomon his sonne and successor: to make him capable of the promises set downe hereafter.

V. 4. The light] which waxeth greater continually and higher.

V. 5. Be not so] The person and eternall kingdome of Christ, who is the head of Gods promises to my posterity, is not altogether like the Sunne or the grasse, because it shall not be without interruption, change, or revolution; whereas the Sun sometimes is darkned, and every day goeth down, and riseth againe; the grasse after it is growne, withereth and dryeth up, then groweth out againe. See James 1. 17. Make it not] He will never suffer it to faile and to spring up againe. All which must be especially referred to Christ and his spirituall kingdome; and not to the temporall successors in Davids kingdome, in which there often happened wants of issue, and ruines of State.

V. 6. Cannot be taken] so he sheweth, that God doth not punish the wicked with his owne fatherly hand, with regard, mercy, and distinction: but gives them over to the instruments of his wrath, and intangleth them in a common perdition.

V. 8. Of the mighty men] Of the most famous Captaines of his army: the severall parts of whose service are set downe, 1 Chronicles, chapter 27. verse 2. That sate in the seat] 1 Chronicles, chapter 11. verse 11. Hee is called Jashobeam, the sonne of Hachmoni; but it should seeme that by reason of his great wisdom and worth, he was by a certaine allusion to his name, called, he that sitteth in the seat, or is president, namely in the councill of warre amongst the Captaines. Chiese] The order and degrees of command in Davids army were these: Joab was the Generall, then there were six Colonels, which were divided into two bands, three of the one side, and three of the other, and of these six it should seeme, this Jashobeam or Adino was the chiefe; and these six had the command over the thirty Captaines which are here under mentioned, which Asahel immediately commanded, verse 24. as Colonell generall of the foot. He slew] the Italian, Discomsited] By slaying three hundred of them, 1 Chronicles, chap. 11. verse 11.

V. 9. The men of Israel] Davids army went away or fled, and forsook their Captaines in this occasion. But after Eleazar had set upon, and discomfited the enemies, the people united themselves together againe, and came to the battell, but onely to spoile and prey, v. 10.

V 10 Cleave unto] By the contraction of his Sinewes, through the great paines he had taken.

V. 12 Defended it] Would not suffer the Philistims to [Page] mow it, for the incursions and skirmishes did happen for the most part, in, and by reason of harvest, Judg. 6. 4. 1 Sam. 23. 1.

V. 14 A bold] Which was the same cave which was mentioned before, fortified either by nature, or by Art. The garrison] For in these inroads and incursions into the country of the Israelites, they took possession of some strong places, and set watches there to keep them, for places to refresh themselves in, to retreat into, or to molest the children of Israel out of them. 1 Samuel 10. 5. and 13. 3.

V. 15 Oh that one] Whether he was indeed extremely thirsty: or that he intended thereby onely to encourage his men to set upon the place: but these three men understood the words as they sounded: which David did not approve of; and therefore refused to drinke of the water, to shew how sorry hee was that hee had given occasion of such a rash enterprise, and he poured it out, as an offering of thanksgiving to God, for delivering them out of that danger.

V. 18. Among three.] This was the second [...]and or squadron of Colonells, consisting of these three, namely, Abishai, Benajah, and Asahel.

V. 19 He attained not] In esteeme, Degree and Honour.

The first three] Of the first squadron.

V. 20 Kabzeel] A City of Judah, Joshua Chapter 15. verse 21. Two Lion-leke men] The Italian, Two Ariels of Moab] They were some Giants, or men of great valour, of one name, and kindred, and peradventure brothers. This name signifieth, Gods Lions; and it might be given them to set forth their valour and bravery. In time] At which time your wild beasts are most fierce for want of food.

V. 21 A goodly man] Either in greatnesse or strength of body, or valour, or power and authority. With a staffe] as David did 1 Samuel, 17. 40, 43.

V. 23 His Guard] 2 Samuel Chapter 8. vers. 18. and Chapter 20. verse 23. which guard he had continually by him to doe his commands; especially in matters of execution of Justice.

V. 24 Asahel] Hee was of the second squadron of Colonels; but he commanded these thirty ensuing Captaines, as their particular Commander.

V. 39 Thirty and seven] reckoning Joab, and and the six afore-named Colonels.

CHAP. XXIV. VERSE 1.

AGaine] Besides the scourge of Famine, 2 Sam. chapter 21. 1. Moved] By his supreme and most just will, he suffered the devill to tempt him with this ambition and curiosity, whereby he made a rash triall of Gods promise, which was to multiply his people infinitely. 1 Chronicles chapter 27. verse 23, 24. And abandoned David so [...] as to give consent to it. See 1 Chronicles chap. 21. verse 1. Goe number] Wherein may be noted these three faults: First, in the cause, and motion, which was ambition or curiosity. Secondly, in the undertaking to doe such a thing without Gods expresse command, which in such a case ought alwayes to be expected, Exodus chap. 38. verse 25. Numbers chapter 1. verse 3. This third seemeth to bee poynted at, 1 Chronicles chapter 27. verse 23, 24. And it may be, from thence ariseth the diversity of numbers, between this history, and the history of 1 Chronicles, Chapter. 21. 5. Where all those that are able to carry armes, even under the age of twenty are mustered: and here verse the ninth. Onely they that were twenty yeares of age and upwards.

V. 2 Was with him] For alwayes one part of the men of war, were with David, 1 Chronic. 27. 1.

V. 4 From the prsence] Being there by turnes to doe their service.

V. 5 In the midst] See Deuteronomy, chapt. 2. verse 36. And it is called Ar, Numbers chapt. 21. verse 15. The River] called Arnon; others of the valley.

V. 6 The land Ta [...]im] The Italian hath it, The lower countrey] which might be some part of the countrey Eastward, opposite to the other which was mountainous. Hodshi] This name is not else where, and it signifieth new, and therefore might be some countrey newly conquered. See 1 Ch [...]on. chapter 5. verse 10. Dan-Jaan] It is the City of Laish, at other times called plainly D [...]n. Jos. 19. 47.

V. 7 To all the cities] In which those people remained mixed with the Israelites. Judg. chap. 1. ver. 31, 32.

V. 10. Snote him] By a remorse occasioned in him by the holy Ghost. See 1 Samuel chapter 24. verse 5. Take away. See a Samuel, chapter 12, verse 13.

V. 13 Seven yeares] Because that 1 Chronic, chapter 21. verse 12. There are but three yeares spoken of; it is [Page] thought that David committed this fault, the yeare after the three years famine, 2 Sam. 21. 1. was stayed. Whereupon if hee had made choyce of this scourge, with three other successive yeares of famine, the number of seven would have been compleat.

V. 14 Into the hand] That is to say, his hand immediately: for when men are employed in these punishments, they mixe their owne passions, and oftentimes exceed the measure, not of the secret providence, but of Gods manifested intention, which aimes at correction, and not at destruction. See Isa. chapter 47. verse 6. Zac. chapter 1.

V. 15 Time appoynted] That is to say, of three dayes, verse 13. Others take the Hebrew word for the ordinary houre of the evening sacrifice of the same day: and so they believe, that God shortened the terme of three dayes, out of his superabundant mercy.

V. 16 Repented him] See upon Genesis chapter 6. verse 6. Araunah] who is also called Araniah, verse the eighteenth: and Ornan in the Chronicles. The Jebusite] That is to say, a Proselite of that nation.

V. 17 When he saw] Because hee appeared unto him in a visible forme, 1 Chronicles Chapter 21. ver. 16.

V. 18 Rer [...]] This was the same place that Abraham had led his sonne to for to offer him; and where the Temple was built afterwards, 2 Chron. 3. 1. which place was consecrated by this Altar; upon which was made the first essay, for a publike atonement.

V. 22 Here be Oxen] See 1 Kings Chapter 19. verse 21.

V. 23 As a King] The Italian King Araunah] It is likely that he had been a King, or of the bloud royall, while the Jebusites were in possession of Jerusalem; and afterwards being converted to the true religion, he remained in Jerusalem, in some degree of honour. Accept thee] Namely in this sacrifice which thou art going to offer for the deliverance from this scourge.

V. 24 Bought] The threshing floore for sixe hundred shekels of gold, 1 Chronicles, chapter 21. verse 25. and the oxen and instruments for fifty shekels of silver: others doe reconcile this place with that of the Chronicles in this manner: that in this place by silver ought to bee understood, not the mettall in kind, but the value of fifty shekels of Gold: and that in the Chronicles the six hundred shekels were of silver, but disbursed and layd out in fifty shekels of gold, which according to the proportion of the common value of twelve shekels of silver for one golden one, comes to the foresaid six hundred shekels.

The ARGUMENT.

THe holy Ghost continuing the sacred History, setteth down in this Book made by one or more Prophets; how that by Gods expresse order, and Davids appointment, whilst he was yet living, Salomon was chosen and consecrated King over Gods People; notwithstanding the eldership of his brother Adonijah, and the power of his faction; and consequently h [...] after Davids death, hee began his reign by executing his Fathers last commands: And how God appeared to him in a dreame, and according to his holy and well guided request did endow him, with divine and incomparable wisdom to govern his people wisely and happily: to know and understand the secrets of nature, and to conceive and utter sentences and notable sayings for the Churches instruction: By which he got the voluntary love, respect and obedience of his people, the good will and esteeme of Kings and Princes farre and neare; peace, and inviolable securenesse in his state: and established an excellent order in his house, and all his affaires. But above all things hee was moved to undertake, and had meanes gloriously to accomplish the structure of the Temple of God, the seat of the manifestation of his grace, truth, vertue, and spirit: and a place peculiarly, and alone consecrated to yeeld unto him holy and acceptable service, by him required and commanded. So that Salomons reigne accomplished with a politick and religious happinesse, represented the triumphant Church in heaven, as Davids reign had been a figure of the Church Militant upon earth: And all by vertue of Gods promises made to David by meanes of his perseverance in pietie, which God had required for them by necessary conditions. To which Salomon was also lively exhorted, and confirmed in by the Lord, by a second appearing to him: But according to the manner of all temporall things; and by the meanes of mens ordinarie corruption, who can never for any continuance of time guide and rule themselves in a happy estate, the heighth whereunto Salomons reigne was come, began quickly to decline through his own fault, who should have beene the man that should have made it firme, to leave it so established, and perpetuall to his posterity. For having entangled himselfe in the love of an exorbitant number of women which were heathens and idolatrous; in his old age he grew slack, suffering their Idelatries, and the open exercise of their abominations neare unto Ierusalem, as one might say under the very eyes of God. Whereupon even in his life time the threat of the rending of his kingdom was denounced unto him; which happened soone after his death, by the meanes of Rehoboam his sonnes pride, and evill governed understanding; who having alienated his peoples love from him, did drive them to chuse Ieroboam King over the ten Tribes, under the name of Israel: the other two of Iudah and Benjamin only, remaining under the obedience of the house of David: which never had any more permission nor power from God to bring those other Tribes unto their former obedience. This revolt or division of state was followed and seconded by a heavie and mortall scisme in Religion, Ieroboam forbidding his subjects to frequent the Temple at Ierusalem, and setting them up two Calves to the likenesse of the old one in the Wildernesse, for to have them worship the Lord in those similitudes, and yeeld him in them all manner of worship due unto him: and did also at his pleasure alter the Ceremonies and Servants: Which things quickly drew the wrath of God upon his house, which was wholly rooted out: Neither did his Successors of other Families any way amend themselves, but grew still worse and worse, even to the publike bringing up of the Gentiles Idolatries, accompanied with all manner of wickednesses, as well in their private conversations and lives, as in [Page] their publike government. As for Solomons posterity it varied much, for sometimes there were very wicked Kings, and sometimes again the Lord did raise pious and religious ones, who re-established religion, and reformed the manners of private living, and of publik government: God still employing towards both kingdoms excellent Prophets, using sundry punishments and visitations, to bring back the people from their errors and strayings: which through his mercie was never without fruit and amendment in Iudah, where the holy seed and the Church of God was preserved: But in the ten Tribes it served to no other end, but onely to gather together some remnants of Gods elect, and to reprove the peoples unbrideled malice, to assure them of their approaching condemnation, and to justifie Gods judgments after his long patience.

CHAP. I. VERS. I.

WAs old] because hee was almost seventy years of age, 2 Sam. 5. 4.

V. 3. A Shunamite] of Shunem a Citie of Issacar, Ios. 19. 18.

V. 5. I will be King] because that after the death of Ammon and Absalom, he was the eldest, but God the Sovereign Lord of the people, had long before named Salomon to bee Davids Successor, 1 Chron. 22. 9. [he prepared] as Absalom had done, 2 Sam. 15. 1.

V. 6. Very goodly] and therefore beloved of the people, and peradventure of David himself. [his mother] by birth-right he was next to Absalom, though by another mother, 2 Sam. 3. 4. and therefore David took no notice of Adonijahs desire, reserving the relating of his own will which was agreeing with the will of God, in the behalfe of Salomon, untill the ending of his dayes; because hee would avoid troubles.

V. 9. En-roq [...]]] some place neere Ierusalem to the Eastward, see Ios. 15. 7. and 18. 16. 2 Sam. 17. 17.

V. 12. Save] for it was cleare by Salomons being excluded from this feast, that Adonijah had a great jealousie of him, which jealousie was grounded upon the notice hee had of Gods Oracle concerning the succession, ordained to be Salomons.

V. 21. With his Fathers] see Gen. 15. 15. and 47. 30. [offenders] as having desired the Kingdom, and secretly sought for thy good will, against his right of first-borne.

V. 23. Hee was come] Bathshebah being gone out at that instant, as it appeareth by vers. 28.

V. 31. Let my Lord] might it have pleased God, would this change had never been, but that thou mightest have lived and raigned perpetually, Dan. 2. 4.

V. 33. The servants] the houshold servants, garders and officers belonging to me your King; shall even from this time belong to Salomon: [mine own] a token of communicating, or transferring of the Royall dignitie, Gen. 41. 43. Est. 6. 8. [to Gihon] it was a hill neere Ierusalem on the West side, opposite to Rogel where Adonijah had gathered his Associates together, and was chosen out by David for this act of consecration to shew the contrarietie of these two Parties, and to avoid any encounter, which might have bred a tumult, or skirmish, see upon 1 Chron. 29. 22. the reiterated, and solemne confirmation of this consecration, which was here but summarily done.

V. 36. Say so too] let the Lord be pleased to ratifie by his Soveraign will, and decree, that which thou hast now made known to us, for to be thy will.

V. 39. A horne] see upon 1 Sam. 10. 1. [out of the Tabernable] not Moses his Taberna [...]le, which was yet in Gibeon 1 Chron. 16. 39. and 21. 29. but that which David had set up for the Arke, 2 Sam. 6. 17.

V. 47. To blesse] to congratulate with him for this his happy succession, and to testifie their joy therefore, by vowes, and wishes: and to give him thanks for having nominated a successor; freeing them by that meanes of all care, and the Kingdome of divisions, and revolts: [bowed himself] hath confirmed all this, by an expresse thanksgiving to God, as Gen. 47. 31.

V. 50. Caught hold] either going to Gibeon, where Moses his Altar was at that time, 1 Chron 21. 29. or to Davids Altar which he had set up in Araunahs threshing floore, 2 Sam. 24. 25. Now though there were no law for the freedome of malefactors in that place; yet custome had brought up this refuge, to avoid any present violence, and also for a signe of craving mercie in Gods name, who by the sacrifices made there, layed open his mercie to sinners, see Exod. 21. 14. 1 Kings 2. 28.

CHAP. II. VERS. II.

I Goe] as Ios. 23. 14. [a man] wisely, valiantly, like a man of ripe and full age; making good by thy vertues, thy want of years, thou being yet but young 1 Chron. 22. 5.

V. 4 There shall not] there shall never want some of thine issue, which was verified in Christ, Ier. 33. 17.

V. 5. Put the blood] putting his bloody sword up into his scabbard, and wearing it so at his girdle; and his shoes also all bloody, in a bold and publick way, as it were bragging of his murthers.

V. 6. In peace] by a naturall and peaceable kind of death.

V. 7. So they came] using such kindnesse towards [Page] me, as I desire should be used towards them.

V. 9. Hold him not] examine, and look well into his actions, for his malice will yeeld thee occasion enough, to adde that old fault of his, to other new ones, which he will questionlesse commit, so that thou maist punish him for both together.

V. 13. Peaceably] with a friendly intent, or for some good, as 1 Sam. 16. 4. speaking thus because she knew Adonijah had reason to be angry with her for having procured the Kingdome for Solomon her Son.

V. 15. Was mine] by order of birth-right, being I was the elder brother.

V. 6. And now] being frustrate of those great pretences, obtaine me for my comfort this small request of Solomon, and I will rest satisfied therewith.

V. 19. On his right] as the most honourable place, next to the regall throne; see upon Psal. 110. 1.

V. 22. Aske for him] Solomon by divine inspiration perceived whereto Adonijahs request tended; namely, to trouble him, and contend with him for the Kingdom; and for to gaine the great ones good wills, with whom Abisha was very gracious: and besides it was the successors right for to have the deceased Kings concubines, 2 Sam. 3. 7. and 12. 8. and 16. 21. [For he is] doe not you perceive that by this meanes he meaneth again to revive his pretences by reason of his eldership, even against Gods expresse command. [For Abiathar the Priest] for all those of his party, who will strengthen him, and egge him on to the destruction of me and all mine.

V. 24. Hath made me] hath given me a firme and lasting [...]ate, which shall passe to my posterity, by a lawfull succession. 2 Sam. 7. 26.

V. 26. Anathoth] a city belonging to the Priests, *I [...]*sh. 21. 18. [Thou barest] thou wer't High Priest, and didst alwayes adhere to my Father, even in his greatest dangers, when it was needfull to transport Gods Arke, as 2 Sam. 15. 24. at which time the High Priest was of necessity to be present, as a President, and Superintendent, Num. 4. 15, 19, 27.

V. 28. The Tabernacle] it is likely that it was Moses his Tabernacle that was in Gibeon with the Altar, 1 Chron. 16. 39. and 21, 29. [Caught hold] see upon 1 Kings 1. 50.

V. 31. Blood] the guilt of his murthers, with which I should be burthened, if I did not punish him for it.

V. 34. In the wilderness] a place for pasturage and feeding of cattell, and was part of that countrey which belonged to the tribe of Iudah.

V. 35. Put in the roome] putting in execution, by his soveraigne power, Gods order concerning the succession of the first borne, to the Priest-hood. (Zadok being descended from Eleazar Aarons first borne, 1 Chron. 6. 50. and 24. 3.) and his expresse declaration made afterwards. 1 Sam. 2. 31.

V. 37. Thy blood] thou shalt beare the punishment of thy capitall offence, and shalt be the causer of thine own death.

V. 43. Of the Lord] made in his name, he being the maintainer of it, the said oath having all its efficacy, and vertue from him, and by his ordinance.

V. 45. Before the Lord] being wholly consecrated to his service: Or through Gods perpetuall care, and providence.

V. 46. Was established] after all the heads of factions, and dissentions, were cut off.

CHAP. III. VERS. I.

AND took] seeing Solomon was not blamed for entering into this kindred, and that hee yet remained in the perfect state of wisdom, and piety, we ought to believe, that it was done upon condition that the woman should turne to the true service, and worship of God, which seemes to be confirmed in the verse following, contrary to that which he did afterwards, 1 Kings 11. 4, 5, 7.

V. 2. Only] this verse ought to be joyned to the next in this sence; In all but this, namely of having a constant and settled place for sacrifices, according to Gods commandement, Deut. 12. 5. Solomon in his beginning was a most religious observer of Gods true service. [in high places] upon certain little hills, and rising places, through a perverse imitation of the ancient Patriarkes. And although Moses his Altar were in those dayes in Gibeon, the people assumed liberty to sacrifice elsewhere, straining that to an extraordinary abuse which had been tolerated onely in some extraordinary cases, and to some certain persons; See Exod. 20. 24. Deut. 27. 6. [The name of] namely unto God, who did manifest himselfe in the sacred signes of his presence, Deut. 12. 5.

V. 4. The King] in the midst of this variety of Altars, which was tolerated for a time, Solomon notwithstanding, bare a singular devotion to Moses his Altar.

V. 7. To goe out] I know neither how to govern my selfe nor my people: having not yet sufficient wisdom or experience, through want of years.

V. 9. To judge] that is to say, to govern by doing them justice.

V. 12. Any] King, or Prince equall unto thee in the art or quality of well governing.

V. 15. And behold] by the lively feeling of Gods spirit, and through the light and impression which remained in him, he knew it was a divine dreame, as Gen. 41. 7.

V. 16. Harlots] common harlots being forbidden, Deut. 23. 17. we ought to beleeve, either that the law was not strictly observed, or that they were some particular mens bond-women, that were not married: or that they were sojourners, according to the other signification of [Page] the Hebrew word, as Ioshua 2. 1.

V. 26. Yerned] or waxed warme.

V. 28. Of God] or divine, infused into him through Gods spirit.

CHAP. IV. VERS. II.

Which he had] the Italian, of his Court, or which belonged unto him.

V. 3. Recorder] see upon 2. Sam. 8. 6.

V. 4. Abiathar] if it be the same as is spoken of, 1 Kings 2. 26. it must be understood, that though he was degraded by Solomon, yet he kept the name, and next degree under Zadok.

V. 5. The officers] of which verse 7. [Principall] that is to say, his favorite, or private friend, and the second person in government.

V. 9. Makaz] this name of city or countrey, is not mentioned in any other place, but by the rest which are here added, they belonging to the tribe of Dan, it is very likely that this was also of the same tribe.

V. 10. In Aruboth] this place is not mentioned any where else, but by the aforesaid reason it should be in the countrey belonging to the tribe of Iudah.

V. 11. Dor] see Iosh. 17. 11.

V. 12. Taanach] see Iosh. 17. 11. [Zartanah] this is not the same as Ioshua 3. 16. and 1 Kings 7. 46. [Abel-Mehola] see Iudges 7. 22. [Iokneam] it seemeth to be the same Iokneam, as is mentioned Ioshua 19. 11. and [...]. 34.

which was in the confines of Zabulon.

V. 14. Mahanaim] Ioshua 13. 16.

V. 21. The River] namely Euphrates according to Gods promise, Gen. 15. 18.

V. 22. Measures] the Italian hath the Hebrew word Cors, which was the name of a large measure which contained ten *Ep [...]*as.

V. 23. *F [...]*llow Deer] the signification of the Hebrew word is very uncertaine; but most interpreters hold that it was a kind of wild goat.

V. 24. Tiphseh] this was some city of Syria neare [...] Euphrates.

V. 26. Forty thousand] 2 Chron. 9. 25. there is mention made but onely of foure thousand stalles, therefore we must imagine that in each stall there were ten severall distinct places, to place a horse in each one.

V. 30. The East] namely Arabians or Caldeans, who as well as the Egyptians, Acts 7. 12. were very skilfull in liberall arts, and naturall sciences.

V. 31. Ethan] there were Israelites of the tribe of Iudah, descended from Zerah, and therefore Ethan was called the Ezrahite, see 1 Chron. 2. 6. Psal. 88. 1. and 89. 1.

V. 32. Proverbs] part whereof are set downe in the book of Proverbs and Ecclesiastes.

V. 33. The hysop] it is so called ordinarily, by reason of the similitude of the Hebrew name, yet others [...]old i [...] to be rather wall-Rue.

CHAP. V. VERS. III.

VNto the name] which should beare the name of the Lord, and should be peculiarly consecrated to his service and presence, 1 Kings 3. 2.

V. 9. Food] for Tire and Sidon wanted food, and made provision thereof in the land of the Israelites, Ezr. 3. 7. Ezech. 27. 17. Acts 12. 20. [For my household] or for my Court, this was the price of the timber, besides other quantities of co [...]e, which Solomon gave the workmen for their labours, 2 Chron. 2. 9.

V. 11. Measures] see 1 Kings 4. 22. [pure oile] the Italian, virgin oile, see upon Exodus, 27. 20. [yeare by year] which by all likely-hood lasted no longer then while the Temple was building, and those workmen, and materials were employed.

V. 14. Over the levie] to make the levie, and to see them follow their work.

V. 15. That bare] these were strangers, as also the three thousand of the verse following, 2 Chron. 2. 2.

V. 16. Three hundred] in the selfe-same place of the Chronicles, there are six hundred: but certainly three hundred were over and above to make the number compleat at any time; upon any chance.

V. 17. Costly] the Italian fine, namely by reason of the hardnesse and beauty of them, as your marbles, porphiries and the like are.

V. 18. Stone-squarers] the Italian hath it, the Gi [...] lites, which were a people of Tire who were great architects, builders, and carvers, Psal. 83. 8. Ezech. 27. 8.

CHAP. VI. VERS. I.

After the] for among the children of Israel they numbred the yeeres since the said comming out, Exod. 40. 17.

Numb. 1. 1. [Zif] which was the April moone: being the second moon of the holy year, Exod. 12. 2.

V. 2. The house] namely the body: or as it is called the Basilisk of the Temple, about which were the porticoes, see Ezech. 41. 1. &c.

V. 3. The Temple] so was peculiarly called the fore-part of this building, at the comming in of it, which was likewise called the holy place, severed by the curtain, and by awall, from the inward part called the most holy place or the Oracle: So called because that out of that place God did give answers to the people.

V. 4. Windowes] see upon Ezech. 40. 6 [...]. and 41. 16.

V. 5. Chambers] see concerning the structure, and use of these chambers upon Ezech. 41. 6.

V. 8. The doore] by Ezeck. 41. 7. 11, it appeares, that there was another such doore on the right side: as reason also requireth: [the middle] serving for wall between [Page] chamber and chamber. Ezek. 41. 9. [right side] that is the south side, the Scripture setting the fore part towards the East.

V. 20. In the fore part] the most holy place was twenty cubits every way: [covered] he made the Altar of incenses with cedar boards, and covered it with plates of gold.

V. 21. Pure gold] namely plates of gold, fastened to the boards with nails that had great heads of gold, see 2 Chro. 3. 9. [chains] the Italian hath it, Locks, by which are meant, all things which belong to the shutting of a door, which were ordinarily made of iron.

V. 22. By the oracle] namely in the holy place, right over against the door of the most holy place: And this was the Altar of incenses. v. 20.

V. 23. Cherubins] they were two great humane winged statues carved to the whole proportion, under whose wings the Arke was to stand: and they differed from those two which were upon the cover of the Arke Exod. 25. 18. and also from them which were carved upon the walls in half proportion. v. 29.

V. 27. The inner] namely the Sanctuarie, which was at the further end of the Temple, which was towards the west.

V. 29. within] that is to say, as well in the inward part called the Oracle, as in the outward called the Temple.

V. 31. The lintell] that is to say, the breadth of the front of the lintell and side posts were the fifth part of the breadth of the said door; Which being of six cubits, Ezech. 41. 8. the two side posts put together, were one cubit, and the fifth part of one, in breadth, and the lintell with its parts, namely the architrave, freeze, and cornice, so much more. Others will have the sence to be, that this door had five angles, four in the square, and the fifth in the middle of the front above.

V. 33. A fourth part] of the breadth of the door, or square, without any front. Ezek. 41. 21.

V. 36. Inner court] namely the Priests court, where the Altar stood; which court did encompassse the body of the Temple; and under the name of it ought also to be understood the other courts belonging to the people described Ezek. 41. 14. and the rest, which were all of like building and measure as the priests court was; [three rowes] whereof the lowermost, was of porticoes made with pilasters, and arches: and the other two of a wall garnished on the out side with rowes of pilastres, see upon Ezek. 40. 14. and 42. 6. [hewed] namely polished marble: [a row] the sence seemeth to be that, whereas the first forementioned row was seiled with arched stone, which served for a pavement or floore to the second row; the second was seiled with Cedar beames, which was the floore of the third row.

V. 37. The fourth] of King Solomons reigne, v. 1.

V. 38. Bul] which is the October moone.

CHAP. VII. VERS. 1.

His owne house] namely his royall pallace, whi [...]h (as it is thought) had three bodies of buildings, severed one from the other by great Courts; the one was for the King, the other for the Queene; and the third was for publike feasts, games, pastimes, orchards, gardens, and groves: and in it was also the magazine of armes, which were of most value. 2. Chro. 9. 16. and is called the house of Lebanon, whether it were by reason of the groves planted about it, or by reason of the great number of cedar columnes which it consisted of. Now this building was contrived after this manner. In the middle there was a great vacant space from the very ground to the rooffe; in manner of a great loggia covered with a vault of timber work, and about that loggia there were three stories of galleries or porticoes one over the other, each one borne up by two rowes of columnes on each side, which make the foure rowes of columnes or pillars spoken of vers. 2. and they were contrived in this sort, that the first row joyned to the wall, and bore up the beames which rested upon the other row of columnes, which were of the same levell.

V. 3. Covered] the rooffe was made of Cedar wood: [the beames] of the said Galleries or porticoes: [fourty five] this is the totall number of all the columnes of one side of the building, in the three stories one above the other, there being fifteen to each story.

V. 4. Three rowes] every story had its wind [...]es, which were directly opposite against them which were on the other side of the building, or directly above them, on the same side.

V. 5. The doores] the openings of the doores and the windowes were all square and not arched, and so were the posts and pilasters, not with halfe columnes as they are now adayes: [and light] the doors through which they came into those porticoes, were directly one against the other in the opposite sides, and one above the other in the same sides.

V. 6. A porch] it was a building in the front of the house which served for a porch and loggia: [of pillars] the Italian, to those pillars, namely, to that ho [...]se so built upon pillars: [fifty] which was whole breadth of the said house: [before them] this portico was a covered place of one story high, built with pillars, upon which lay Cedar beames, which made the seiling over which the roofe was laid, and i [...] served for p [...]ople to meetin; and this story had the same dimensions as the first story of the house it selfe.

V. 7. A porch] it seemeth that this porch was before the Kings Palace, correspondent in its dimens [...] ons to the others which were in the house of Lebanon; these two houses, together with the Queens house, being all environed with one wall, with porticoes.

V. 8. Had another] before they came from that [Page] porch to the dwelling house there was a great Court, which had porches or galleries round about like unto that same [...], see 2 Kings 20. 4.

V. 9. Costly stones] see 1 Kings 5. 17. [according to the measures] all the cour [...]es of stones that were in these buildings, were of one bignesse, as well the rough stones below, as the fine and costly stones above. [From the foundation] meaning from the bottome of the wall which lyeth levell with the ground. [unto the coping] this is the first girt of the cornices, under which th [...]se fabricks were all of rough stone; and above that of poli [...]hed stone: [on the out side] not only that out-side of these buildings which fronted towards the publick way or place, but that also which looked into the great Court, which was between the King, or Queens Palace, and the house of Lebanon, which stood in the middle.

V. 10. Foundation] that which lay within, and underground.

V. 11. Above] from above the ground to the aforesaid gi [...]t. [cedars] for the roofe.

V. 12. The great Court] those great fore mentioned Courts were encompassed with porticoes three stories high, whereof the first below, was made with arches, the other were with a wall divided on the out-side with pilasters, and the second story had its roofe made of cedar, as the porticoes of the Temple Courts, see 1 Kings 6. 3, 36.

V. 14. Of the tribe] 2 Chron. 2. 14. it is said that this Hirams mother was of the tribe of Dan, which may be reconciled to this place by this meanes: Namely, that she was a Danite, but was married to a Nephthalite, of which marriage was born this Hiram, who was brought up in Tire by one Hiram, who taught him his art, and adopted him for his sonne, 2 Chron. 4. 16.

V. 15. A line] the foot of each columnne, above the Basis, which is the thick est place of it, was six cubits in circumference, whereby the diameter came to be of two cubits.

V. 16. Five cubits] 2 Kings 25. 17. there is mention made but only of three cubits, which sheweth that this word capitoll must be diversly understood, either for the upper part of the columnne which is properly called capitoll, which had but two cubits in heighth, or for the architrave and freeze which are called the trabeations, and were of three cubits more; or for all those parts together, which would be all of five cubits.

V. 17. Chapiters] the cornice above the trabeation was enriched with its gutter made with long squares grated with foure square lossanges called rombi, the two diagonall being cut by seven transversall lines [...]ere called wreathes, because of their shape, and for this reason the whole square is called Nets.

V. 18. Two rowes] which did hang downwards from the cornice, one of them was at one of the heads of the gutter inwards towards the body or trunk of the columnne, the other was outward in equall distance, between the Modiglions. [to cover] to make as it were a crown or wreath with those figures about the capitolls with their architraves and freezes.

V. 19. The Chapiters] being the upper part of each columnne, adorned with leaves, flowers, vine-works, and volutes, &c. [In the Porch] which stood in the front of the Basilisk of the Temple, 1 Kings 6. 3. in which portico the said columnnes were set, verse 21. [Lilly work] the edges of the leafes being turned outwards, which are called volutes. [Foure cubits] the sense seemeth to be, that at the foure corners of the square *aba [...]*o, there was a great leafe which came out of the capitoll: and that each one of those leafes, was a cubit high: namely, halfe the heighth of the whole capitoll, which is the ordinary proportion of the Corinthian order.

V. 20. Chapiters] the Italian hath it, crownes, these were the cornices, which were above the freeze: [the belly] it seemeth he meanes the space under the gutter where the cornice jetted out: [two hundred] there were upon each aspect of the columnne, foure of these checquer or networks, with foure and twenty pomegranates upon each one, which make the number of ninty six, Ier. 52. 23. and with the great pomegranates which were between checquer and checquer, being foure upon every aspect, makes up the hundred of 2 Chron. 3. 16. Ier. 52. 23. and the two aspects with the same number, make the two hundred which are here named, and these two hundred on each columnne, make the foure hundred in the two columns, 2 Chron. 4. 13. [upon the other] this is the cornice, which is as a crown to the whole trabeation, as the capitoll is to the columnne, and therefore is called the first crowne.

V. 21. In the porch] whereof, see 1 Kings 6. 3. [Iachin

Boaz] the first name signifieth, he shall establish; the other, in it is strength; which are mysticall names, signifying the firme safeguard, which the grace, presence, and power of God, yeeld unto his Church, figured here by the Temple.

V. 22. The work] namely the capitoll, so called properly.

V. 23. Sea] it was a brazen vessell, of very great capacity; like unto that which Moses made, Exod. 30. 18. which was to hold the water wherewith the Priests washed their feet and hands, 2 Chron. 4. 6. drawing (as it is likely) the water out of cocks. [from the one] that is to say, in diameter. [heigth was five] which sheweth that it was of a halfe sphericall figure. [a line] as verse 15. meaning that it was perfectly round, the compasse being of three diameters.

V. 24. Knopps] the Italian, raised figures, according to some they were Colochinte, but by 2 Chro. 4. 3. it appeareth that instead of Ovoli or Knops there were Oxe heads; [ten] and consequently in the whole [Page] compasse which was of thirty Cubites, there were three hundred of these figures: [two rowes] the one beneath the other at some competent distance.

V. 26. Flowers] daintily turned and wreathed up like the lilly leases: [two thousand,] 2 Chro. 4. 5. it is said that it held three thousand: and therefore some hold that therewere two sorts of this measure, whereof the biggest was as much as an ordinary bath and a halfe. Others hold that under this Sea, there was a la [...]er which held a thousand bathes, which laver received the water that fell from the great Sea above it, and that in this lower one, the Priests did use to wash their feet.

V. 27. Bases] they were certaine square and hollow bodies, which bore up the lavers in which the sacrifices were washed, 2 Chron. 4. 6. and it seemes that they were cast in one piece divided into two plates above and below, and foure little Pilasters at the foure corners, between which were the foure side plates, in manner of timbrils divided by certain borders compassed about with lists.

V. 29. Vpon the] upon the uppermost plate, which lay upon the side plates, where those borders of lists were, there was the forme of the foot of a vessell, hollow at the top to receive the convex of the laver, and that foot was cast together with the upper plate.

V. 30. Plates] those above, below, and on the sides [undersetters] it seemeth they were some bending props which went up from the pilasters in the corners, to beare up the belly of the laver, as the foresaid foot bore up the bottom: [at the side] joyning unto it, for these additions or freezes went round about all the side-plates.

V. 31. The mouth] this was the hollownesse of the foot: into which the bottome of the laver was set. [within the] in the middle of the uppermost plate, which was encompassed with a crown or cornice: [a cubit] namely of diameter in the bottom of this foot: [upon the mouth] this foot was all beautified with sculpture, divided into littlesquares.

V. 32. Under the borders] into which the side plates were set [were joyned] were cast together with the rest.

V. 35. In the top] namely above the plate, and with in the square of it, there was a certain round hollow place, which was made it should seeme to receive the water which came out at the cocks: [on the top] this uppermost plate was divided into squares, encompassed with certain borders, with figures, as well as the side plates.

V. 36. Proportion] the Italian, the empty place, that is to say, sitting the figures according to the bignesse of the empty places wherein they were to be set: [additions] see verse 29.

V. 28. Lavers] great round vessels not very deep, but broad, to wash the flesh of the sacrifices, 2 Chro. 4. 6. [foure cubits] in diameter.

V. 39. Of the house] namely, of the Priests Court in the Temple Eastward, on that side of the Court which stood towards the South-East.

V. 40. Hiram] the Italian Hikom, called also Hiram and Hiram.

V. 41. Bowles] your capitolls are so called, because of their originall, and resemblance; being made at first to the resemblance of bowles or pots, full of flowers or boughs: [and the two] whereof see verse 17. 18.

V. 42. Forthe two] namely, for the gut [...]e [...]s of the two columnes.

V. 46. Succoth] places beyond Iordan, Ios. 3. 16. Iudg. 8. 5.

V. 48. Vnto the house] for the use and service of the inside of the Temple: [the Altar] of incenses which was made of Cedar planks, 1 Kin. 6. 20. and covered with plates of gold, as also the Tables, in imitation of the like made by Moses, see Exod. 25. 23. 24. & 30. 1. 3. [the table] the Italian hath it, the tables, to the number of ten, as also ten Candlesticks, 2 Chron. 4. 7. 8. in stead of one that was in Moses his Tabernacle, in token of the great encrease of divine graces under Christ, who was figured by Salomon, in respect of what it had under Moses.

V. 49. The flowers] of the Candlestick, see Exod. 25. 31. 37. 38.

V. 50. The snuffers] the Hebrew word is of a very uncertaine signification: [the hinges] which the doores opened and turned upon inwardly, as also the hooks which were fixed in the wall on b [...]th sides, see upon 1 Kings 6. 21.

CHAP. VIII. VERS. I.

OF the Fathers] see Exod. 6. 19. Num. 1. 2. [Out of the City] where the Arke had been set for a while upon Mount-Sion, 2 Sam. 6. 12. and from thence it was by Salomon brought to mount Moriah where the Temple was built, 2 Chron. 3. 1.

V. 2. All the men] besides the meeting of the chief, there was also the concourse of all the people by reason of the Feast of the Tabernacles, acc [...]rding to the Law, Exod. 23. 17. and 34. 23. [Ethanim] which was the Moon of September in which that Feast [...]ell, Lev. 23. 34. which is here understood. v. 65.

V. 3. Took up] see upon Num. 4. 15.

V. 4. And the Tabernacle] Moses his Tabernacle, which first was in Gibeon, 2 Chron. 1. 3. 4. And it is not here set down, whether it was taken in pieces or no, or where it was set up.

V. 5. With him] imitating David, 2 Sam. 6. 13.

V. 6. Into the Oracle] namely, into the Sanctuary called the Oracle, Exod. 25. 18. 1 King. 6. 5. [of the Cherubins] of those two great ones, which Salo [...] had made, 1 Kings. 6. 23. 24.

V. 8. Drew out] to shew that the Arke should be no [Page] more removed, as it had been heretofore, but that the Lord did purpose to make his firme residence in the Temple, and from thence spread his power every way for the safetie of his people. [the ends] the Italian hath it the beads, the staves being thus drawn out, lay upon the ground in the fore-part of the Sanctuary, so that going in through the holy place, into the most holy, one might see the foure ends or heads of them: [and they were not] from that day the Arke was not removed from this its place.

V. 9. Nothing] see upon Heb. 9. 4.

V. 10. The cloud] the Italian a cloud, a sign of Gods glorious presence, like unto that of the wilderness, and of the Tabernacle, see Exod. 40. 34.

V. 11. Could not stand] see upon Exod. 40, 35.

V. 12. The Lord] I doe take this thick cloud for a certain sign that God will be here present in grace and power; because he hath alwayes used this sign, as in the Desart Exod. 13. 21. when he gave the Law, Exo 20. 21. Deut. 4. 11. & 5. 22. when the Tabernacle was set up, Exod. 40. 35. Num. 9. 15. and when he did particularly appear upon the Arke, Lev. 16. 2. see Psal. 18. 12. & 97. 2.

V. 16. My name] the sacred signs of my presence, I my selfe made manifest and known in this place, as it were, by mine own proper name. My Majesty and glory in effects of grace and power.

V. 21. The covenant] the tables of the Law, upon which Gods covenant was made, see Exo. 34. 28.

V. 22. Stood] the Italian, presented himselfe, kneeled upon a seaffold or pillar which he had caused to be set up in the peoples court, 2 Chron. 6. 13. looking through the doore of the said Court streight towards the Altar of burnt offerings, which was in the Priests Court: [spread forth] an ancient gesture in praying, with stretched out aimes, and hands spread sorth turned up toward heaven.

V. 27. But will] words of admiration: [of heavens] the highest and supreamest heaven, see Deut. 10. 14.

V. 28. Yet] though thou beest infinite in thine own nature, and beest not contained within any place: I pray thee shew thy selfe present in grace and power within this Temple, in giving eare to mine and the peoples prayers which shall bee presented unto thee, and let us feele the effects thereof.

V. 29. Towards] the Italian addeth turning towards, for either neere or farre off the people when they prayed, did alwayes turn their faces towards the place of the Sanctuarie, see Dan. 6. 10.

V. 31. *V [...]*on him] in open and publike judgement, Exod 22. [come] hence it appears that solemn oathes were taken in the Temple before the Altar, see Num. 5. 19.

V. 33. Confesse] the Italian, giveth glory, by a sincere confession of their sinnes with an acknowledgment, and adoration of thy justice, and beleef in thy merey, see Ios. 7. 19.

V. 36. teach them] as well the knowledge, as the practice, through thy corrections.

V. 37. Plague] all diseases, and sicknesses which proceed immediately from superior causes, or from God, are so called in scripture.

V. 38. The plague] namely their sin, whereby they shall have wounded their conscience and whereby through thy punishments they shall be induced to seek remedy at thy hands, through thy grace.

V. 39. According to] not according to his former sinnes, but according to his present repentance or impenitency.

V. 41. Thy names sake] to worship, and serve thee; Or because he hath obtained the knowledge of thee.

V. 43. Is called] that the name which it beareth, of thy Temple, is not vaine, but accompanied with reall and admirable effects.

V. 44. Thou hast] this is said to shew a lawfull warre, undertaken by Gods command, or according to common right, whereby it must be undertaken by a necessary justice, and a just necessity.

V. 47. Bethink themselves] Heb. bring back the thing to their heart, that is to say, think seriously upon the true causes, and remedies of their evils; [committed wickednesse] or we have been wicked, and guilty.

V. 49. Maintaine their cause] against the unjust invasion and oppression of their enemies, whom thou hast made use of to afflict thy people: though they did nothing regard thee, Isay 10. 5, 6. and 47. 6. Zac. 1. 15.

51. Thine inheritance] thine own peculiar people, Deut. 5. 20.

V. 59. Be nigh] have thou them still in remembrance.

V. 63. Dedicated] by solemn actions of prayers, sacrifices and devotions, began to settle it unto its proper sacred use, see upon Num. 7. 10.

V. 64. The King] because the Altar could not serve for such a great number of sacrifices, hee employed the whole Priests Court to that use, being divinely inspired so to doe.

V. 65. Held a feast] for seven dayes together, the dedication was celebrated, and for the other seven dayes following was the feast of the Tabernacles, as may be gathered by 2 Chro. 7. 5. 9. [the entring] being the confines of the length of Palestine, Numb. 34. 5. 8.

V. 66. The eighth day] on the end of the last day, of the feast of the Tabernacles, see 2 Chron. 7. 9. Exod. 23. 15. [for David] his house, and his successor.

CHAP. IX. VERS. III.

I Have hallowed] I have ratified the dedication which thou hast made of it, that it may be the place where the signes of my presence, and the manifestation of my glory [Page] on earth may remaine; and that have I done within my selfe, and made it manifest unto men that I have done it, by the tokens of the cloud, and the fire descended from heaven, 2 Chron. 7. 1. [for ever] without any interruption untill the comming of the Messias. So that you doe but keep the following conditions: [mine eyes] the effects of my grace and providence, shall there bee found and felt, Deut. 11. 12.

V. 7. Cast out] I will withdraw my love from it, and give over the protection of it, and expose it to destruction, as a foule, and polluted thing.

V. 8. Shall hiss [...]] in scorn and horror.

V. 11. Gave Hiram] for those Cities were as yet inhabited by pagans, Iudg. 1. 31. 32. Wherefore Galilee was called of the Gentiles, Isa. 9. 1.

V. 12. Pleased him not] and therefore he restored them to Salomon, who did people them with Israelites.

V. 13. Cabul] a name of uncertaine signification; according to some, it signifieth a durty or a sandy ground. Others say, that according to the Phenician language, it signifieth a displeasing thing, see Io [...]]h. 19. 27.

V. 14. Sent] according to others [he did send] that is to say, yearly, as in way of tribute, which is not very likely: [talents] see Exod. 38. 25.

V. 15. The reason] the Italian the manner, described, vers. 20. [the levie] of which see 1 King. 5. 13. [Millo] this was a great terrace, born up with exceeding strong walls, set upon a deep precipice or valley, which divided mount Sion from mount Moriah, over against the Temple to the Southward, see 1 King. 11. 27. 2 Chron. 32. 5.

V. 16. Gone up] Gezer was a City within the Territory of Ephraim in which the Cananites had remained since the ancient times, and were not driven out, Iosh. 16. 10. Iudg. 29. And it is likely, that either by reason of the difficulty of the enterprise, or through some connivance of the children of Israel, who had so long cohabited amongst these infidels, Solomon suffered Pharaoh to assault it, provided that the City being once taken, should be delivered into his hands, in lieu of a dowry, or over dowry with his wife.

V 18. Tadmor] some have believed that it is the city which in ancient times was called Palmira, situate in the confines of the Countrey toward Syria, which was a small Countrey very fruitfull, but encompassed round about with desert and sandy places: and that it is the same as is called Tamar. Ezec. 47. 19.

V. 19. Of store] for armes, and victualls, as Exo. 1. 11. [for his Charrets] see 1 King. 4. 26.

V. 21. Were not able] see Iosh. 15. 63. and 17. 12.

[attribute of bond service] this in the Italian is in vers. 20. besides the tribute of their goods; and Solomon herein seemeth to imitate that which was done to the Gibe [...]nites', Iosh. 9. 23. and that these Cananites also were converted to the Lord; for otherwise it was not lawfull to make any covenant with them. Deut. 7. 2. Whereupon those nation were called the servants of Solomon, Ezz. 2. 55. 58 [...] Neh. 11. 3.

V. 23. Five hundred] 2 Chro. 8. 10. this number is but two hundred and fifty, but it is very likely that they did their service by turnes, halfe of them at a time, and that the fifty which are here over and above, were as decurions or commanders of ten over the rest. Now these Commissaries were Israelites; the other inferior ones, which were more in number, 1 King. 5. 16. were Strangers.

V. 25. Three times] namely at the solemn feasts; for he offered his daily sacrifices, besides, 2 Chron. 8. 13. [offer] by the hands of the Priests: [before th [...] Lord] namely in the holy place, over against the Arke, the great curtaine, and another partition being between.

V. 28. Ophir] an Eastern conntrey, of the Indies, Gen. 10. 29. whence came the purest and finest gold, Gen. 2. 11. 12. [foure hundred and twenty] 2 Chron. 8. 18. there are set down foure hundred and fifty; whereupon some have thought that they are severall voyag [...]s which are mentioned; for Solomon sent thither every three years, 1 King. 10. 22.

CHAP. X. VERS. I.

OF Sheba] of a part of Ethiopia, Gen. 10. 7. [the name] which fame he had gotten through Gods benefits, by meanes of his grace: [to prove him] an ancient triall of wits used among wise men, to finde out an ingenious explication of dark and intricate questions, see Iudg. 14. 12.

V. 5. His assent] the Italian hath it, the burnt offerings, others have it, the assent by which he went up into the house of the Lord; because that between the royall Palace and the Temple, there was a very stately bridge built over that hollow place mentioned upon 1 King. 9. 15. and in this sence must be understood that which is spoken, 2 Chron. 9. 4.

V. 11. Of Hiram] that is to say, which was built after the Tirian manner, and with the Timber sent by Hiram, and was manned by his Marriners, 2 Chron. 8. 18. besides Solomons navie mentioned, vers. 22. [Almug trees] a kinde of precious wood, like Ebony or some such like wood, where of there was great store in the Indies: though by 2 Chr. 2. 8. it appears that there grew of the same, or the like in Libanus, if so be that Algummim, and Almuggim be all one name.

V. 13. Gave her] of his own free will, without any asking.

V. 15. Of all] by way of tributes, or presents, for victuall, or for the obtaining of traffick.

V. 17. Three pound] the Italian hath it, three Mines, [Page] the Mine being threescore Shekels, Ezec. 45. 12. which makes two pound and a half at twelve ounces in the pound.

V. 19. The top] the top of it with its neech was made in a semicircular forme.

V. 22. A Navie] his owne Ships for the Ocean Sea, besides them which the King of Tire had lent him: [Peacocks] the Italian hath it Parrats or Peacocks.

V. 26. Gathered] contrary to the Law, Deut. 17. 16.

V. 27. Sycamore-trees] wilde figge-trees, which are very common in those Countreys, called in these dayes Egyptian figgs, or Pharaohs figgs.

V. 28. Horses] Egypt abounding in horses and fine linnen, Prov. 7. 16. Isa. 31. 1. 3. Ezec. 27. 7. [brought out] by covenant and agreement made with the King of Egypt. [Merchants] Solomon had all the profit of it, whereby hee made a great gaine.

CHAP. XI. VERS. I.

Loved] contrary to the Law, Deut. 17. 17.

V. 3. Princesses] solemnly espoused, who participated of their husbands state and dignity, whereas the concubines were in an inferiour degree.

V. 5. Milcom] it is the same Idol which elsewhere is called Molec, and Molcam.

V. 6. After the] see upon Num. 14. 24. The meaning is, that though Solomon did not personally himselfe commit Idolatry, yet hee grew slack, and connived at the bringing of it in, to please his women, carnall love drowning his zeale to God. Others translate it, hee did not persevere in following after the, &c.

V. 7. Build] that is to say, [...]ee suffered to be built: [the hill] the mount of Olives, on the East.

V. 11. Said] caused to bee said by some Prophet: as this] thou hast kept hidden within thine heart, this evill seed of impiety: [rend] I will suffer a great division to be made therein, and the greatest part to withdraw it selfe from thine obedience: A manner of speech taken from that the Kingdome is like unto a glorious mantle upon the Kings shoulders, as 1. Sam. 15. 28. see v. 31. and 1. Kings 12 16.

V. 13. Ierusalems] for my Churches sake, which I will preserve in the pure observance of my service; performed only in Ierusalem.

V. 15. To bury] these circumstances are not specified in the story.

V. 16. Every male] it is very likely that this [...]ught to be understood but only of one or some Cities of Idumea, which being be [...]ieged, refused the reasonable conditions of peace; whereupon they perished with the edge of the sword, according to the Law Deut. 20. 13. Or every male, namely they which were taken in the heat of the fight. 1. Chron. 18. 12.

V. 18. Of Midian] whether Midian was comprehended within Idumea, which was a very generall name of those Countries, or whether Hadad being gone out of Idumea, did rest himselfe some time in Midian.

V. 21. Let mee depart] it is likely that while Solomon persevered in well doing, all Hadads attempts were vaine. But after Solomon was corrupted, hee got his Kingdome of Idumea againe, which remained to his posterity, which held it in see of Iudah, which subjection was also shaken off. 2. Kings 8. 20. according to the prophecy Gen. 27. 40.

V. 24. Vnto him] others have it, against him, namely against Hadad-Ezer.

V. 25. All the dayes] after Solomon did begin to goe aftray.

V. 26 Servant] it is likely that Ieroboam was one of those

Cananites which remained in the land, whom Solomon employed about his work 1. King. 9. 20 and were called Solomons servants. Ezr. 2. 55.

V. 27. The cause] particularly set down v. 29. [repaired] the Italian closed, with a wall, upon which was made that great place, or terrace called Millo.

V. 28. Made him] see 1. Kings 5. 16. [of the house] of the tribe of Manasses, and of Ephraim; especially of this last, which by its preheminance oftentimes bare the fathers name, which was common to both.

V. 29. Clad] some refer this to the Prophet, some to Ieroboam.

V. 32. One tribe] namely that of Iudah, to which alwayes remained joyned a great of the tribe of Benjamin, and Simeon: which were intermixed with that of Iudah.

V, 36. A light] some of his posterity; in whom the light of the Kingdome may remaine alive, and who may possesse the state of it, see 1. Kings 15. 4. 2 Kings 8. 19. Psal. 132. 17. [my name] the seat of my Majesty, and the signes of my presence.

V. 37. Reigne] as a soveraign, absolute, and undependant King.

V. 38. Build thee] I will give thee a firme and durable state, and give thee contiuned issue to possesse it. [Israel] the ten tribes, called Israel from that time, to make a difference between it and Iudah.

V. 39. But not] for Christ descended from David, [Page] according to the flesh, was to restore the ruines of Davids temporall Kingdome; changing it into a spirituall and everlasting Kingdome.

V. 40. Therefore] the knowledge and notice of this prophecy being come to his eare by some meanes which is not specified.

V. 41. In the book] which as well as divers others is lost: the Scripture notwithstanding remaining still perfect, as also the believe and instruction of the Church.

CHAP. XII. VERS. I.

Shechem] to hold the generall assembly of the Kingdome in that place: made choice of for that purpose, because it was in the middest of the countrey: and in the most powerfull tribe of Ephraim, within whose countrey the people were the more encouraged and emboldned to demand to be eased and redressed in some grievances: [to make him] to receive and install him as lawfull successor. An opportunity upon which the people did use to desire favours, new priviledges, or a confirmation of the old; and a redresse of grievances and oppressions.

V. 4. The grievous service] Solomon made the Cananites only servants, 1. King. 9. 20. 22. but peradventure their requests were seconded by all the children of Israel, who might also bee wronged therein, being that service, which before was common to all the people, was now reduced to be the Kings only.

V. 7. Wilt serve them] wilt incline to please them.

V. 10. My little finger] I have as much, and more absolute power over your persons and goods, than ever my father had, and can force you according to my will▪ And since I see the rashnesse of your demands, I will use you with extreame rigor.

V. 20. But the tribe] see upon 1. Kings 11. 32.

V. 25. Shechem] restored it from the desolation which had happened to it Iudg. 9. 45. [Penuel] which had also been destroyed Iudg. 8. 17.

V. 28. Two calves] questionlesse in imitation of that which was made in the wilderness, and to the same end, to worship the true God in those visible signes appointed according to their own will [...], see Exod. 32. 4.

V. 29. Bethel] these two places were in the two uttermost bounds of the ten tribes countrey according to the length of it.

V. 32 Vnto the feast] namely the feast of the [...]bernacles.

V. 33. Hee bad devised] for God had appointed the seventh moneth Levit. 23 34. Numb. 29. 12. [the children] like unto that feast which God had appointed them.

CHAP. XIII. VERS. I.

BY the word] the Italian with the word, having a propheticall revelation to propound openly: others have it, by the word, that is to say, by Gods command.

V. 2. In the word] that what I have prophecied is the true word of God. Or whereof the Lord hath spoken, that is to say, which hee hath commanded mee to propound unto you.

V. 4. From the] that is to say, using some charme, or doing some other act upon the altar, hee withdrew his hand to make some signe that the prophet should bee laid hold on.

V. 11. An old prophet] who had oftentimes propheticall visions and revelations; but in this act hee was a liar v. 8. though with some good and kind intent, to give the other prophet some refreshing.

V. 12. had seen] that is to say did knew, and had taken notice of it.

V. 17. By the word] namely by divine revelation.

V. 20. Came unto] by some internall inspiration, or prophetick extacy: whereby hee was forced to condemne himselfe for deceit, as well as the other prophet for disobedience.

V. 28. Had not] for a more▪ expresse prooffe, that all was done by Gods singular providence, for the execution of his judgement.

V. 32. The houses] or the temples. [Samaria] so called here by anticipation 1. Kings 16. 24.

V. 33. Whosoever would] or hee cons [...]rated whom hee pleased.

V. 34. This thing] the Italian in this, in this manner hee brought in an example of impiety; which being followed by his successors, was the cause of their totall ruine.

CHAP. XIV. VERS. III.

TAke with thee] see upon 1. Sam. 7. 9.

V. 5. The Lord said] by prophetically revelation.

V. 14. But what?] this prophecy is not of things that shall happen after a long time, but shall bee fulfilled within a very short time.

V. 14. The river] namely Euphrates: [groves] a kind of idolatry, Exo. 34. 13. Deut. 16. 21. under which are comprehended all other idolatries.

V. 17. Tirza] a City of the royall residence of the King of the ten tribes, before Samaria was built, and dedicated to that use, 1. Kings 16. 24. Cant. 6. 4.

V. 19. Of the Chronicles] it seemeth that they were [Page] Annals, or publick Records, out of which were composed the books of Chronicles; inserted among the holy books.

V. 21. To put] see upon 1. Kings 11. 36.

V. 24. Sodomites] males, who did abandon their bodies to suffer abominable lust: see 1. Kings 15. 12. and 22. 46. 2. Kings 23. 7. wickednesse which often was joyned with idolatries and pagan superstitions.

V. 28. The guard chamber] see 2. Kings 11. 6. 19.

V. 31. Abijam] who is the same as Abijah 2. Chron. 12. 16.

CHAP. XV VERS. II.

MAachah] it is the same as Micajah, the daughter of Vrieh
2. Chron. 13. 2.

V. 4. Give him] suffered not his name to be quite extinguished, nor his Kingdome to faile.

V. 10. His mothers] that is to say, his grandmothers v. 2.

V. 14. High places] the people could not bee brought to offer sacrifices in that place which was only consecrated to Gods service, though they performed the same in all purenesse, as well for the object, which was the true God, as for the meanes, according to his ordinances. Now this was either through the peoples obstinacy, or through the Kings negligence, who did not make use of his Sovereign power to force them to it, or through some difficulty in the performance.

V. 17. Built] that is to say, fortified it. [might not suffer] to hinder his subjects from having any correspondency with those of Iudah; especially in matters of religion: see 1.
Kings 12, 27.

V. 20. Smote.] that is to say, took these cities by force; and used all manner of hostility in them. [All Cinneroth] which is all the countrey adjoyning to the sen of Chinneroth, Ios. 12. 3.

V. 23. Diseased] this is noted, not only to shew that his happinesse was interrupted and disturbed, but also to shew that upon this occasion, hee did in his disease vary from his w [...]nted piety, 2. Chron, 16. 12.

V. 27. To the Philistines] being by them taken from the tribe of Dan, to which tribe it did belong, Ios. 19. 44.

CHAP. XVI. VERS. VII.

ANd because] the very death of Nadab, was imputed as a sinne to Baasa, for following of his sinnes; that which hee had done could not bee [...]ermed an act of justice, or zeale; but plaine murther, for covetousnesse of reigning, see Hos. 1. [...].

V. 13. Their vanities] the Italian hath it, idols, the Hebr. vanities, a common epithet for false gods, which have nither reality of essence, nor power, and whose deity consisteth in nothing but in the idolaters vaine opinion. Deut. 32. 21. 1. Sam. 12. 21. 1. Cor. 8. 4.

V. 23. Thirty and one] since it is said V. 15. that Zimri began to reigne in the seven and twentieth yeare of Asa, and that hee reigned but seven dayes, wee must conclude that Omri who immediately succeeded him, reigned from the same seven and twentieth yeare; but the Kingdome having been divided into two parts Omri began to reigne peaceably alone in the one and thirtieth yeare, after hee had overthrown Tibui his competitor, [twelve] in all, with the foure yeares which hee reigned before the death of Tibui.

V. 24. Talents] the talent weighed one hundred and five and twenty pounds at twelve ounces in the pound, see upon Exod. 38. 25.

V. 31. Baal] a common name to all the Sidonian idols. Now this idolatry was farre worser than that of the calves, because that in this they professed the worshipping of the true God, though it was in a vitious manner: but in the other they meerely worshipped the creature or idoll.

CHAP. XVII. VERS. I.

Tishbite] hee was so called from the place of his birth, which is not mentioned in Scripture. [inhabitants] the Italian hath it, of the new inhabitants, described, 1. Cron. 5. 22. Others translate it, strangers which dwelt in Gilead: by which they meane certaine Israelites, which went to Gilead to dwell, for some unknown cause: [but according] hee doth not meane that it depended on his will; but that Gods determined scourge should not cease untill Elias had taken away the occasion of Gods wrath. 1 Kings 18. 41. and that afterwards, hee might with a good faith desire God to releive his people.

V. 3. That is] which by direct line runs into Iordan.

V. 9. I have commanded] I have within my selfe decreed it so, and will inspire the womans heart that shee shall performe it.

V. 12. A cake] poore folkes bread, made in haste and ill baked and dressed. The meaning is, I doe want bread: [and dy] that being eaten, we have nothing left us to live on, and must wholly referre our selves to Gods will.

V. 15. Many dayes] the Italian hath it a whole yeare, or for many dayes.

V. 18. What have I] wherein have I offended thee? or wherefore thou being a godly man, and one of Gods Prophets, art thou come into my house who am a [Page] poore sinfull woman, to the end that knowing my sinnes thou mayst draw Gods judgements upon mee? or why doest thou grieve me with thy presence, which reproveth me for not having amended my selfe, through thy words and conversation? see Luke 5. 8.

V. 20. Hast thou] words of wonder, as wondering that God should comprehend this woman within the common calamity: seeing one would imagine, the presence of his Prophet, the dispencer of his graces and mercies, should be a safegard unto her.

V. 21. Stretched himselfe] as well to expresse the servencie of his prayer, as the desire hee had to make him, even partaker of his owne life: see 2. King. 4. 34.

CHAP. XVIII. VERS. I.

The third yeare] after that Elias had hid himselfe from Ahab. 1. King. 17. 3. for that drought lasted three yeares and six moneths. Luk. 4. 25. Iam. 5. 17.

V. 10. The Kingdome] other Kingdomes and nations.

V. 12. Carry thee] by a swift and supernaturall motion, which did often befall the Prophets. Eze. 3. 12. 14. Acts. 8. 39. [feare] and therefore deserve to have thee save mee from this danger.

V. 17. That troubleth] being the cause of this drought, and other evils, by meanes of thine imprecations: because thou wilt not submit thy selfe to the common order, in matter of religion, and of Gods worship.

V. 19 All Israel] the generall congregation of the deputies of all the commualties of the people: [the groves] these were the ministers of some false oracle, or of the idolatry practised in Ahabs grove 1. Kin. 16. 33. which notwithstanding did not come, being peradventure forbidden by Iezakel.

V. 21. Between two] or between two thoughts: whether you shall serve God, or Baal. Standing in suspence which of them is the true God? for it is likely that if you were thoroughly perswaded which is the true God, you would serve him only. Hee speaketh thus, because that in the calves they presumed they served the true God, see upon Exod. 32. 4. 2. Kings 10. 16. 31. [answered him not] either through confusion and compunction of the spirit, or through perplexity, not knowing as yet what his intent was; or for feare of Ahab.

V. 22. I only] publick defender and maintainer of Gods pure service: for the other prophets had hidden themselves.

V. 24. Let him be God] let him be acknowledged and worshipped, for the only true God.

V. 26. I capt] Idolaters actions in their Sacrifices, imitating the motions of holy joy and zeale used in true service of God, 2 Sam. 6. 14. Psal. 26. 6. Or else by these motions they would make shew of being possessed by a Divine Spirit, and ravished into propheticall extasies, see vers. 29.

V. 28. Cut themselves] see upon Lev. 19. 28.

V. 29. Prophesied] faigned as though they had been ravished in minde, by distracted gestures, see 1 Sam. 18. 10. [Of the offering] the daily offering a [...] even. Exo. 29. 39. An observation which peradventure was observed by these Idolaters, [that regarded] or gave any heed.

V. 30. Repaired] it is likely that upon the top of Mount Carmel, there had been an Altar erected to the true God, according to the common custome of high places, and that it had been overthrown by the Idolaters.

V. 31. Twelve] in token that all Israel, in it twelve tribes, was to be united in the worship of the true God.

V. 32. He built] for the use of that time, being an extraordinary time and use, which was permitted, especially to Prophets, and other persons who were inspired by God, see Exod. 20. 24.

V. 33. Powre it out] to take away all suspition, of any hidden fire, or to make the miracle so much the more worthy, manifest, and unreproueable.

V. 36. At thy word] by thine expresse command.

V. 37. Thou hast] give them now the Spirit of repentance, as thou hast heretofore forsaken them, and let them goe astray, Isa. 63. 17. Others, and doe thou turne there hearts back, namely from Idolatry.

V. 38. Fell] an ordinary signe of God approbation, in matters which concerne his service, Lev. 9. 24. Iudg. 6. 21. 2 Chron. 7. 1. [of the Lord] created by him miraculously

V. 40. Slew them] by speciall revelation of Gods will, touching the Prophets personall execution of this businesse; for howsoever those Prophets did justly deserve death, Deut. 13. 5. and 18. 20. see 2 King. 10. 25.

V. 41. Get thee up] the scourge of drought is ceased, the principall cause being taken away which had provoked Gods wrath, wherefore rejoyce: [there is] me thinks I heare it, the thing is as certaine as if it were present,

V. 42. Down upon the earth] an action of most humble and servent prayer, by meanes of which God had determined to grant the benefit.

V. 43. Towards the Sea] whence great vapors arise, which breed clouds and raine.

V. 46. The hand] he was filled with, and driven by a supernaturall strength and agility to over-runne the speedinesse of Ahabs waggon.

FOR his [...]ife or according to the motion of his soul, that is to say, according as Gods Spirit did move and drive him.

V 4. I am no better] that I should live longer then they. It may bee that having had some revelation of his taking up into heaven, and being now weary of living, he did desire God to take him unto him a [...]ording to the ordinary custome and manner of men, without any further delay.

V. 7. The journey] into which the Spirit driveth thee. Now he is commanded to eat for to fulfill natures order, of which God is the author; and to this small quantitie of food, there is a miraculous increase of vertue given, to shew Gods omnipotoncie above all order, when it pleaseth him.

V. 8. In the strength] not naturall, but by miracle infused into, and added unto this food.

V. 9. What dost thou] a loving reproofe of Elias overmuch feare, which had caused him to forsake his vocation.

V. 11. Passed by] he caused the signes of his glorious apparition to passe before him, amongst which the violent and terriable ones were but only preparatives and fore-runners, to dispose the Prophets spirit to a deep reverence; but the revelation and word of God, were specially joyned to the milde and quiet signe, to signifie unto us, that Gods saving revelation of himselfe is in the Gospel onely, which soundeth grace and comfort; and not in his terrible Law, see Exod. 19. 16. Heb. 12. 19. 24.

V. 13. Wrapped] through feare, and a trembling respect, and also because he was not able to endure the splendor of Gods majesty.

V. 15. Annoint] the story doth not say that Elias annointed either Hazael or Iehu, but that the Kingdome was promised to Hazael by Elisha, 2 King. 8. 13. & that Iehu was annointed by one of Elishas disciples 2 King. 9. 1. Whereby it is credible, that the meaning of this Commandement is, that Elias should give order that these things might bee done at their appointed times: Vnlesse that Elias did performe these unctions, and that they were afterwards reiterated at the time of their accomplishment.

V. 17. That him that] this is not spoken according to the order of times, for Iehu was before Hazael, see 2 King 9. 24. and 10. 6. and 13. 3 but plainly to intimate that either of them should doe this execution, [Elisha] though indeed Elisha used none but spirituall weapons of prayers, threatnings, curses, which did all most certainly and infallibly come to passe, see Hos. 6. 5.

V. 18. Every mouth] an act of adoration, either pious, Psal. 2. 12. or idolatrous, Hos. 13. 2.

V. 19. And cast] for a signe of his being called to be a Prophet, and successor in his office, whose ordinary badge was a certaine kinde of mantle, 2 King. 1. 8. Zach. 13. 4. And it is likly, that hee did therewithall annoint him, and declare Gods will unto him.

V. 20. Kisse] that is to say, let me take my leave of them, see Luke 9. 61. [what have I] take notice that what I have done to thee, is a sacred token from God, which bindeth thee to follow this vocation.

V. 21. And took] in sign that hee gave over all his f [...]re employments, and did take his leave of his friends.

CHAP. XX. VERS. IIII.

I Am thine] I acknowledge my selfe to be thy vassall, and am ready to doe thee homage.

V. 5. Although] I doe not meane as thou sayest; I will be master and possessor of all thou hast.

V. 6. Yet I will] the Italian, Or else to morrow, or, but to morrow.

V. 7. Seeketh mischief] he will stand to no reasonable agreement, but will utterly destroy us: [denied him not] I durst not deny him any thing before I had heard your advices: Wherefore if you advise me, I am ready to suffer any thing, for the publike safety: Or else you must prepare to defend your selves stoutly.

V. 10. If the dust] words of proud boasting: The meaning is, I will come into Samaria with so many men, that when I have brought it all to dust, they shall not every man have their hands full.

V. 11. Let not him] a proverb according to the common phrase thus, We ought not to sing, nor boast of a triumph, before such time as wee have got the victory.

V. 12. Set your selves] or make ready your Engines to batter it.

V. 14. Who shall Order] who shall set upon the Camp after it is disordered by the young men.

V. 20. His man] whomsoever hee met, or encountred with.

V. 22. What thou dost] not onely to provide thy selfe with humane meanes, but also chiefly to obtaine the help of God, and his gracious assistance, through repentance, prayer, faith, &c.

V. 24. Take the Kings away] who are no souldiers, and did cause disorder thorough their disobeence.

V. 30. A wall fell] by some earthquake or other miraculous cause: [an inner chamber] the Italian, from chamber to chamber, he got into some closet, study [...], or inner chamber.

V. 32. He is] Kings through good will, and by reason of their equality in degree, use to call one another brothers. Now this elemency in Ahab was nought, being contrary to the will of God, vers. 42. whether that will were [Page] declared to him by the Prophet, or whether it was to bee understood by the miraculous victory, granted by the Lord against a fierce and cruell invader.

V. 34. Streets] the Italian, Piazzaes or Places, they might bee some Courts or Privi [...]edged places in Damascus, where the Israelites had their Iudges and Magistrates depending upon the King of Israel, without any dependency upon the King of Syria. Or some Markets out of which the King of Israel had the tolls and other dues.

V. 35. Of the Sons] there were certaine Schooles or Colledges of Prophets, where Schollars were taught, and did exercise themselves in holy Studies, to prepare themselves for Prophetick Revelations, and those Schooles were governed by certaine principall Prophets, called fathers 1. Sam. 10. 12. and 19. 20. 2 Kings 2. 12. [in the word] declaring unto him that such was the will of God, whereof the other was also inwardly certified. Now by this example God shewed Ahab his error, and the punishment which should follow it.

V. 38. VVith asher] the Italian, with a swathe, or a capp, or with dust.

V. 40. So shall] that is to say, I adjudge and condemne thee to doe, one or the other. For i [...] the other were thy equall, thou confessest that of thine own free will thou madest such a covenant with him. And if hee was thy Master, Captain, o [...] superior, thou were bound unto it by duty. So Ahab condemnes himselfe as David did 2. Sam. 12. 5. for the Lord had put Benhadad into his hands to make him sure, for his peoples safety, and hee having freed him for his own particular profit, deserved to be punished for it.

V. 42. Thy life] according to the Law of the accursed thing Deut. 7. 26. Ios. 7. 12.

CHAP. XXI. VERS. III.

The Lord forbid] for God had forbidden the alienating of possessions: see Levit 25. 23. Ezec. 46. 18.

V. 7. Doest thou] thou art not worthy to be King, being of such a dejected mind, to be grieved at this refusall, making no use of the absolute power which is in thine hands.

V. 9. Proclaime] as if some grievous sin had been committed for which it was necessary to appease the wrath of God.

V. 15. Take possession] not by any way of sorfeiture, which was not used amongst Gods people; but by a tyrannicall usurpation: for though Naboths children had been dead 2 Kings 9. 26. yet had hee no right unto it as unto a voyd inheritance, for it was to goe to the next of Kinne.

V. 18. Which is] or who w'll be, namely when thou comest to him, hee returning from Iezreel, where he now is taking possession of that vineyard.

V. 20. Thou hast] thou hast given thy selfe over to all manner of wickednesse, as a bondman who selling himselfe, submits himselfe to doe whatsoever his master willeth: see 2. Kings 17. 17. Rom 7. 14.

V. 23. The wall] the Italian the ditch, such a one as wee now call a ditch with a false bray.

V. 25. None like] amongst the Kings of Israel.

V. 27. *Hee r [...]*nt] signes of griefe, through remorse of conscience, and for feare of punishment, it not being the love of God which caused that griefe in him; having no firme resolution to convert himselfe; having no recourse to faith, nor to his mercy, as Iohn 3. 6.

V. 29 The evill] of the destruction of his house. So God to shew the effects of true repentance, which is to obtaine eternall pardon for sinne, granteth this false and dissembled repentance, some delay of temporall punishments.

CHAP. XXII. VER. I.

THree yeares] after the agreement was made 1. Kings 2 [...]. 34.

V. 2. Came down] having entred into alliance with him: 2. Kings 8. 18.

V. 3. Is ours] as well because it is within the bounds of the Land which the Lord did give his people; as also by covenants and agreements, 1. Kings 20. 34.

V. 5. Enquire] namely by some Prophet,

V. 6 The Prophets] it is uncertain whether they were corrupt and flattering prophets, going under the name of Prophets of the true God: or whether they were those foure hundred prophets of the grove 1 Kings 18. 19. which were not destroyed by Elias, who might here use the name of the true God, to please Iehoshapat, who notwithstanding knew them to bee false ones, or to cover their idolatry; as if the true God did reveale himselfe to them, although they served the Idol.

V. 7. Besides] besides these false o [...]es: or left, after the extermination of so many 1. Kings 18. 4. and 19. 10.

V. 9. An officer] the Italian, an Eunuch, or courtier, or chamberlain.

V. 11. Hornes] according to the custome of prophets, who did use such signes, to make a stronger impression in mens minds: see Isa. 20. 2. Ier. 27. 2. [with these] with the strength and power that God shall give thee, which is figured by these hornes.

V. 14. VVill I speak] I will answer all questions as shall bee demanded of mee, according to the revelations I have had from God,

V. 15. Goe] these words were spoken with some [Page] signe of scoffing and dissimulation, which Ahab perceived very well.

V. 17. I saw] in a prophetick vision.

V. 19. Therefore] seeing thou takest that which is fore told thee in evill part, as though I did invent it of mine own imagination, through hatred or malice, I will now open the vision to thee at large.

V. 21. A spirit] namely an evill one, father of lies, was brought in, in this vision, as Iob 1. 6. though hee be banished out of heaven, where God dwelleth in glory with his Angles, and blessed spirits.

V. 22. Thou shalt] I will suffer it, and not hinder thee, whereby thou shalt not misse, but shalt surely perswade: see Iob 12. 16. Ezec. 14. 9. 2. Thess. 2. 11.

V. 23. Hath put] hee hath given the divell power to work in the hearts, and tongues of thy Prophets that they may deceive thee.

V. 28. If thou] according to the profe of true or false prophecies, set down Deut. 18. 22. [Hearken] I call you all to witnesse this my prediction.

V. 32. Cryed out] namely upon God, to helpe him at his need, 2. Chron. 18. 31. but in such a manner as the Syrians knew that it was not Ahab.

V. 34. At a venture] Heb. in his simplicity; looking no more after Ahab, than after any else. Others, with all his strength.

V. 35. Stayed up] to keep together or bring together, againe the people.

V. 39. Ivory] the walls being overlaid with such stuffe. Amos 3. 15.

V. 42. Twenty and five] by 2. Kings 3. 1. it appeareth that the eighteenth yeare of Iehoshaphat Joram King of Israel began to reigne. And by 2. Kings 1. 17. that the eighteenth yeare of Iehoshaphat, was the second yeare of his sonne Ioram. And by 2. Kings 8. 16. that this Ioram sonne of Iehoshaphat did not begin to reigne, but in the fifth yeare of the other Ioram King of Israel: whence wee must conclude that in these five and twenty yeares of the reigne of Iehoshaphat is comprehended all the time from his succession to the Kingdome, even to his death: whereof he reigned sixteen yeares alone, then hee joyned his sonne Ioram with him for seven yeares space: and at last put the whole government into his hands, disburthening himselfe of it, two yeares before his death.

V. 43. The high places] as 1. Kin. 15. 14.

V. 44. Made peace] which was noted for a grievous sin in Iehoshaphat 2. Chron. 19. 2.

V. 47. A deputy] put in by the King of Iudah, a [...]t [...]r that Edom was subdued by David, 2. Sam. 8. 14.

Afterwards it had a King, but hee was feodatory: see upon 1 Kings 11. 21. And at last it shaked the yoak quite off, 2 Kings 8. 20. according to the prophecy. Gen. [...]7. 40.

V. 48. Shipps] fitting to saile in the great Ocean sea: see 1. Kings 10. 22.

V. 49. Then said] after the first preparation was broken, Ahazia treated with Iehoshaphat concerning the renewing of [...], but hee would not consent to it; God having already reprov'd him for keeping company with him at the first, 2 Chron. 20. 37.

THE SECOND BOOK OF THE KINGS.

The ARGUMENT.

THe sacred History continueth in this Book the narration of things which happened to the people of God, divided into two Kingdomes of Israel and Iudah, untill the desolation of the first by the Assyrians; and captivity of the other by the Caldeans. Carefully pointing out the true causes of these horrible disasters, for the instruction of the Church in all ages. And as for the Kingdome of the ten tribes, or of Israel, the History sets down how that the corruption of Gods service being first brought in by Ieroboam, and not amended by his successors; but rather obstinately retained and increased by the addition of many idolatries, and pagan abominations; was at last followed and punished, with grievous turmoiles of State, frequent murthers of Kings, treasons, changes of Royall lines, warres, and other accidents which befell sometimes by Gods expresse command, and sometimes through the ambitious and perfidious motions of mens minds. The Prophets never prevailing so farre as to bring them to a sincere conversion, and an entire and setled reformation, though they still endeavoured to bring back the people to their ancient duty, by reprehensions, exhortations and threatnings, Whereupon after long God caused the [Page] Assyrians with their power, to over-runne the ten tribes. For the Assyrians being possessed of the greatest Empire in the world, and having Conquered Syria, they overflowed the land of Israel, and after they had over-runne it, spoiled, and unpe [...]pled it, at divers onsets, they at last conquered and subdued it wholly, r [...]i [...]ed the Kingdome, overthrew the state thereof, and transported the people into totall captivity: and the land was againe inhabited by a new kinde of heathen people of severall nations, who framed to themselves, after they were there seated, a new kinde of bastard and corrupt divine service, in stead of that pure service which was wont to be in Ierusalem: whence grew that implacable hatred and hostility which was alwayes after that time between the Iewes, and that mixture of nations which took, and bare the name of Samaritans. As for the Kingdome of Iudah, the History declareth, that though the Church, and Gods true service, and corsequently his Word, Sacraments, Grace, Presence, and Spirit, were therein preserved; yet as well through the peoples enraged inclination to idolatry, as by the infection of the ten tribes, there were such vices engrafted into it, both against the first and second table of Gods Law, that they could never be rooted out, neither by the Prophets ministry, nor by Gods punishments, nor by the authority and zeal of many excellent Kings, who excelled in piety and vertue, and whom God raised from time to time to repaire the breaches, and to stay the imminent ruine: Whose holy endeavours and works were almost alwayes overthrown, by their successors boundlesse impiety. So that the Lord at last, after hee had miraculously saved the people of Iudah out of the Assyrians hands, delivered them into the Caldeans hands, who afflicted, weakned, subdued and wasted them severall times: and at last took, sacked, and burnt the City of Ierusalem, and the Temple of God; extinguished the Royall Line, and carried away the small remnant captive to Babylon. After all which, through the excesse of the Iewes malice, and Gods rigorous vengance, a small remnant which remained in the countrey was carried into Aegypt, in a state not lesse lamentable but farre more accursed than theirs who were in Babylon: the most terrible Eclipse, and interruption that the ancient Church ever bad. Which notwithstanding,  Davids progenie, and the holy seed among the people was preserved, the one to bring forth Christ according to the flesh, at the appointed time, and the other to people the Church, and to bee gathered, and ingrafted in his everlasting spirituall Kingdome, by the power of Gods promises.

CHAP. I.

V. 2. BAalzebub] see upon Matth. 10. 25.

V. 7. What manner] namely what was his stature, habite, and shape.

V. 8. Hairie] either by reason of his own hair, or by reason of his Prophetick mantle which he wore that was of haire, Zac. 13. 4. Mat. 3. 4.

V. 10. If I be] seeing that after so many proofes of my being a Prophet, and notwithstanding my faithfulnessse, you will yeeld me no faith nor obedience; but by a prophane scorne, you call me man of God: I beseech that great Lord whom I serve, that he may confirme, and make good my ministry by thine exemplary punishment; A motion of the Spirit of God in zeale of a just punishment, see Luke [...].
54.

V. 13. Let my life] take compassion on mee, and spare my life.

V. 17. Iehoram] brother of Ahaziah, and sonne of Ahab, 2 King. 3. 1.

CHAP. II.

V. 2. Tarry here] this is spoken by Elias to make Elisha so much the more desirous of going along with him, that he might be a witness of his taking up into heaven, which the Church was to be certified of in all ages, for divers ends.

V. 3 The Sonnes] see upon 1 King. 20. 35. [knowest thou] this was by Gods spirit revealed to some of those Prophets, and peradventure to the whole Colledge.

V. 9. Be upon me] seing thou hast consecrated mee to be thy successor, and conductor of the Prophets, [Page] mediate towards God for me, that he may grant me gifts and the conduct of his spirit, which thou hast had in great eminence (as Num. 11. 25) even twice as much as any ordinary Prophet; to the end that I may be capable of that degree of superiority, having a larger portion of gifts then ordinary.

V. 10. A hard] a rare and singular thing, which is not ordinarily promise; nor can be obtained but by very fervent, and instant prayer, see 1 Pet. 4. 18. [if thou see me] I give thee this for a signe, to shew thee whether thy desire and my prayer have been heard. The sense is, if God permits thee to see me goe up into heaven, he will also grant thee that gift which thou desirest. To raise Elisha his attention so much the more, to mark this great miracle with all its circumstances so much the better.

V. 11. A Charet] or the likenesse of a charet, [went up] was ravished up into heaven, and in an instant transformed out of all qualities and conditions belonging to this mortall and earthly life, and clothed with eternall and spirituall, without passing by the way of death, as Enoch, Gen. 5. 24. Both examples being as it were a prelude of Christs glorious ascension into heaven, see 1 Cor. 15 51. 1 Thes. 4. 17. [by a whirlewind] wrapped up in a fold of clouds and darknesse, which did presently take him out of sight.

V. 12. The Charet] as thou hast been the Lords faithfull warriar, for the safety of his Church, so now art thou carried into his K [...]ngdom of glory; as it were upon a tryumphall Charet: [rent them] to shew that he was grieved, and much moved.

V. 14. Where is] I shall see now whether God hath heard me concerning the gift of that portion of spirit which I desired of him, in trying to doe the same miracle as Elias did; words of invocation, and faith, rather then of doubt and diffidence.

V. 15. They said] may bee by revelation; or by some splendor, majesty, or divine manner of moving which they perceived in him: [the spirit] God hath by a firme and lasting grace, conferred the same gifts of his Spirit upon him, as Elijah had, as Num. 11. 25.

V. 16. Lest peradventure] for it is likely that Elijah had often been ravished so, and divinely transported, and afterwards sound againe, see 1 Kings 28. 12.

V. 17. Till he was] being overcome with their importunity, he could not gain-say them: [send] to assure them that Elijah was no more upon earth, and by this meanes bring his owne ministry into so much the more esteeme.

V. 19. The ground barren] the Italian hath it, the land disinhabited, by reason of frequent sicknesses, abortive births, sudden deaths, &c. Others say, that hereby is meant the ba [...]renesse of the plants, and their corruption.

V. 20. A new] for feare of some legall uncleannesse, and also for reverence of Gods power, which shewed it selfe in this miracle.

V. 21. And cast] not because there was any naturall power in the salt, to work any such effect; especily, there being but such a little quantity of it: but onely by the will of God, who makes use of any thing he pleaseth for a signe or token of his power; to shew by the weaknesse of the signe, though it have some relation to that effect, that the vertue proceedeth immediately from him, see Exo. 15. 25. 2 King. 4. 41. and 6. 6.

V. 23. Mocked him] not onely through a childish kinde of wanton boldnesse in regard of his person; but through a kinde of prophane impietie towards his ministry, they being bred up in Idolatry, which Elisha's prophetick spirit did very well perceive, and therefore hee caused them to taste the punishment thereof.

V. 25. He went] being driven out of one place into another, by the motion of the prophetical spirit which was now most evident, and to be acknowledged for a Prophet, and to visit the Colledges of the Prophets.

CHAP. III. VERS. III.

VNto the sins] to the Idolatrie of the Calves, and all things depending thereon, which are set down 1 Kings 12. 28. 31. 32.

V. 4. Rendred] after that the land of Moab was conquered by David, 2 Sam. 8. 2. the Kings thereof had been tributary; and after the separation of the ten Tribes, it seemeth that Moab remained to Israel, and Edom to Iudah: [Lambs] see upon Isa. 16. 1.

V. 9. The King of Edom] it is likely that it is the same who is called Governor or Vice-Roy by the King of Iudah, 1 Kings 22. 47. and he might be one of Hadads posterity, 1 Kings 11. 21. who amongst his own people might be called King, though by the Kings of Iudah, his Sovereign Lords, hee was only made a Governour, untill such time as hee rebelled, 2 Kings 8. 20.

V. 11. Which powred] who was his houshold servant.

V. 12. The word] hee is Gods ordinary Prophet, and God revealeth his secrets to him.

V. 13. Of thy Mother] see 1 Kings 18. 19. [Nay] in this extreme streight, which I see proceedeth from the true God, should I turne to an Idoll, to seek for remedy or help at his hands.

V. 15. A Minstrell] according to the custome of the Prophets, which was to elevate, and purge the spirits and organs of the body by sounds and tunes of Musick, to prepare the soule to aske and receive propheticall inspirations by some holy subject, lively imprinted [Page] and vivified in the minde by songs or musicall instruments, see 1 Sam. 10. 5. [the hand] he was taken by a motion of the holy Ghost, both to receive the divine revelation and to declare it with actions, motions, and other prophetick wayes, Eze. 118. and 3. 4. 22. and 8. 1.

V. 16. Make] to receive the water which shall fall by miracle. Thus God for the most part first prepareth the vessells which are to receive his grace, which is never limited nor hindered but onely by mans incapacity.

V. 19. And yee shall] a command joyned with a promise of certaine execution.

V. 20. Offering] namely the daily morning offering, see Exo. 29. 39.

V. 22. Red] they seemed thus red by reason of the Sunne beames, which met with the vapors that did arise out of the earth, which the Moabites could not imagine because those waters were come thither unknown to them.

V. 25. Only] they le [...]t that principall city nothing but the wals and the buildings, having destroyed all the Countrey about: Or, there remained not a stone upon a stone in any other city but onely that, all the rest were ruined: [Kir [...]a-raseth] whereof see Isa. 16. 11. [went about it] to hinder any one from comming upon the wall, whiles it was battered with engines, or digged down with matt [...]cks.

V. 26. To break [...]oron] to save himselfe by a strong issuing out.

V. 27. Offered him] according to the abominable superstition of many Heathen people, who were wont to sacrifice their dearest children in extreame dangers and desperate cases: [there was] the other two confederate Kings moved at this cruelty, detested the King of Israels obstinate spleen, which had caused such an exorbitant thing to be done.

CHAP. IV. VERS. I.

TO be bondmen] according to the permission of the Law, Lev. 25. 39.

V. 3. Borrow not] see upon 2 Kings 3. 16.

V. 7. Pay] to shew that God will have right to be observed, as well by poore as by rich men.

V. 8. Shunem] a citie of Ishacar, Iosh. 19. 18. [A great woman] the Italian, a mighty or great, which may also bee referred to her quality and degree.

V. 10. On the wall] private, that he may be there privately without any disturbance.

V. 13. I dwell] my husband and I live privately, and are at peace with all men, we have no businesse at court, nor meddle we with great ones.

V. 14. Verily] the Italian addeth, I know not, but she hath, &c. I do not see that she hath need of any thing, but only that having no children, and her husband being old, shee is like shortly to bee alone.

V. 16. Doe not lie] doe not feed mee with vaine hopes.

V. 23. New Moone] these dayes were holy by Gods Law, wherefore godly people of the ten Tribes, where Gods service was overthrown, did use upon those dayes to go to the Prophets Colledges to doe their devotions there, and receive comfort by the hearing of Gods word.

V. 26. It is well] to cut off her speech with Gehazi, hastening to speak with Elisha himselfe.

V. 27. Caught him] casting her selfe at his seet to entreat him, shee held them fast to thew the instance of her request, and that her onely resuge and hope was in the Prophet.

V. 28. Did I] seeing that through Gods meere grace, this childe was given [...]e, why was this benefit so soone taken away from me? if I had been vitiously moved to d [...]sire him, it were likely that God would therefore have punished me: Or, why hast thou by this gift given mee cause of joy to afflict mee the more grievously by such a sudden losse?

V. 29. If thou meet] that is to say, goe quickly without staying any where, see Luke 10. 4. [lay] God did often work miracles by some of his servants externall things, as by Moses rod, Exod. 7. 9. 19. by Elijahs mantle, 2 King. 2. 14. by the Apostles garments, Acts 19. 12. not by any perpetuall and necessary joyning of his power threunto, but only during his pleasure, which failing, those things were to no effect, as in this place.

V. 31. But there was] namely in the childe, [is not awaked] he is not come to life again, according to the Scriptures ordinary stile.

V. 34. Lay upon] as Elijah 1 King. 17. 21. see there the reason of these actions.

V. 35. Returned] being still drawn again by instance, perseverance, and patience in faith, in his prayers to God, [necsed] or gaped.

V. 38. Were sitting] he suffered not the Colledge to be dissolved because of the famine, he kep [...] it together, and continued the holy exercises therein.

V. 39. A wild vine] by this name is meant th [...] plant of Coloquintida, whose fruit is called a wilde gourd.

V. 40. Death] both by reason of the bitternesse, as by reason of the cruell paines which this kinde of fruit causeth in mens bodies.

V. 41. There was no harme] this happened not by reason of any naturall propertie of the meale, but by Gods power onely, who in his miraculous works makes use of any thing, though it have no way any such property, see Exod. 15. 25. 2 King. 2. 20. and 5. 10. Ioh. [...]. 5.

V. 42. From Baal. Shalisha] or from the plaine of [Page] Shalisha, see 1. Sam. 9. 4. [of the first fruites] which according to the law, ought to have been presented to the Priests, Num. 18. 2. but there being no true nor lawfull Priests among the ten tribes, 1 King. 12. 31. godly persons did present those things to the Prophets, who supplied a great part of their charge and office: [twenty] it is likely that the loaves were very small, or else it would have been no miracle.

V. 43. And shall leave] as Matth. 14. 10. and 15. 37.

CHAP. V. VERS. I.

Great man] in dignity, wealth, power, and fav [...]ur.

V. 3. In Samaria] not that his ordinary abode and dwelling were there, but because hee was often there. Vnlesse that by the head city, the whole Kingdome be meant.

V. 7. Heerent] detesting such an impious opinion, as that hee shou'd have the power of God: and for feare least under this so impertinent a demand, there should bee some plot, or traine hidden.

V. 10. Wash] see upon 2. Kings 4. 41.

V. 16. Hee refused] prophets did use to accept of some small presents, which came from aa hon [...]st kinde of liberality, or of things necessary for [...]stenance: See upon 1 Sam 9. 7. but here there were great reasons to disswade him from it: as not to let the pagan conceive that he was ava [...]itious; to not seeme to sell the gift of God. Mat. 10. 8 Acts 8. 18. and to not make himselfe beholding to any great worldly man, &c.

V. 17. Of earth] of this countrey earth, which countrey is consecrated to the Lord, that I may offer sacrifices thereon: and keepe it, as a pawne of my communion with his people. A demand which had a shew of good zeale, but it was without knowledge: for the holinesse of the service was not annexed to the materiall earth, but to the observing of Gods command, which was for worship by sacrifice in that place only.

V. 18. I bow] though it bee without any intent of idolatrizing, but only for a ceremony of honour, to the King my Lords presence and devotion. So hee acknowledgeth that he did sin in that, through the remorse, or doubt hee hath of it. [Rimmon] an Idol of the Syrians.

V. 19. Goe in peace] the Prophet doth not approve of this dissimulation, or division of the heart and the act of the body; but it seemes that the Lord having given him no commission, nor revealed unto him that hee should instruct him any further in the true religion, or incorporate him into the body of his people; hee only takes his leave of him, without otherwise answering his question: As saying, content thy selfe with the benifit which thou hast already received: [a little way] the Italian, a mile, or a stadium, see upon Gen. 35. 16.

V. 24. Tower] the Italian, the rock, it might bee some Fort standing upon the high-way, or peradventure the place it selfe where Elisha dwelt.

V. 26. Mine heart] hath not God revealed the act unto mee in spirit, as well as if I had been there bodily present? [is it a time] was this a proper occasion to shew thine avarice, taking a present to enrich thy selfe? couldest thou not perceive by my resusing of it, that the thing was unlawfull? Or at this time wherein true Prophets ought to glorify God, and justifie their function, by vortue, which is contrary to false prophets vices, wouldest thou staine my house, and mine office? Or in these times of the Churches desolation, wouldest thou think upon thy private dishonest gaines?

V. 27. VWhite] see Exod. 4. 6. Num. 12. 10.

CHAP. VI. VERS. I.

The place] out Schoole or Colledge.

V. 2. May dwell] others, where wee may sit; that is to say, keep our Colledge, and doe our exercises.

V. 6. Cast it] see upon 2 Kings 2. 21.

V. 8. My camp] I will there lie in wait.

V. 10. Sent] to know the truth of it.

V. 11. VWhich of us] or who is it that holds with Israel, or taketh their pa [...].t.

V. 13. Dothan] a City neare to *Sh [...]*hem, Gen. 37. 17.

V. 15. The servant] if it be still Gehazi; as may be gathered by 2 Kings 8. 4. 5. wee must beleieve that his leprosie 2 Kings 5. 27. was not of that kinde as that it should hinder his conversation with other men; the whitenesse being generall over all the holy, Levit 13. 13.

V. 17. Open] make him see, and know, by some corporall and apparant vision, the true and reall, though invisible protection of thy holy Angels, see Psalme 34. 8.

V. 17. Came down] that is to say, assaulted the City, or came into it.

V. 19. This is not] see of the converting of a narrative truth, without offence of conscience, for the good, even of them who are perswaded to this falshood, upon Exod. 1. 19.

20. Open] free them from this blindnesse, which indeed did not quite take away their sight, but did only hinder them from plainly seeing that which was before their eyes.

V. 22. Those whom] how much lesse then oughtest thou to slay them who are faln into thine hands by Gods [Page] meere miracle, who by mee forbids thee to hurt them.

V. 23. No more] to robbe or make inrodes only; for they did come againe with whole armies.

V. 25. A cab] it was a measure of dry things, containing (as it is thought) so much corne, as a man could eat in a day: [doves dung] by meanes of which there is alwayes some small corne sound, cut of which one may gather some nourishment, or salt in extream want. Others understand the Hebrew word for the maw; where there might bee peradventure found some corne not digested.

V. 27. If the Lord] the Italian hath it, let not the Lord save thee, words of anger, as if hee should say, the Lord confound thee thou wicked woman, how wouldest thou have mee to helpe thee with bread or wine, which I have not?

V. 30. Upon the wall] where there was much people to guard, and defend the City: [sack cloth] which might bee seene, after hee had rent his garment. Now hee were it in signe of griefe; and in a superstitious way of humblenesse, yet without any true repentance, as first Kings 21. 27.

V. 31. If the head] hee imputed all these evils to Elisha, as having cursed the people, and threatned them with these mischances; or for refusing to pray for them, or to work some miracle for their deliverance, imagining it was in his power to doe it when hee would.

V. 32. The Elders] some godly magistrates of the City, who were comforting and encouraging one another with the Prophet; being come to him, to desire and intreat Gods assistance by meanes of his prayers [this sonne of] nam [...]ly Ioram, the sonne of Ahab, who had murdered Naboth, and so many Prophets, [shut the doore] to keep out *I [...]*ram, who is comming to see mee put to death in his presence: [hold him] namely Ioram, who commeth after the messenger.

V. 33 Hee said] as from the King, meaning to keepe the Prophet in talke, untill the King came, which was presently after, as it appeares by 2 Kings 7. 2. [this evill] all thy talk tends to having us put our trust in the Lord, and to returne to him by prayer, but all is in vaine, for the Lord will have us overthrown; words of a prophane desperate man.

CHAP. VII. VERS. I.

SAid] to the Elders, in the presence of the messenger, to the end that hee might tell the King of it, who was not yet come in.

V 2. On whose hand] according to the custome of great men, 2 Kings 5. 18. [windowes] as it were to powre ou [...] a plenty of provision, see Gen. 7. 11.

V. 3. Of the gate] namely of *Samar [...]*a, by reas [...]n that by the Law Levit. 13. 46. lepers were excluded from the common consort of men.

V. 7. For their life] the Italian, whither every one would, or to save their lives.

V. 9. Hold our peace] and doe not goe to make relation of it in the city, to deliver it out of those streights whereinto it is brought: [will come upon us] the Italian hath it, wee shall finde punishment, the Hebr. our iniquity will finde us out, that is to say, wee shall bee blamed, for concealing a thing which so much concerneth the city, so overpressed with hunger.

V. 13. Are as all] there is no great losse, nor hazzard in adventuring them, for they are almost starved, and little better than they which are dead already.

CHAP. VIII. VERS. I.

SEven years] an ordinary time prefixed in Scripture for great famines, see Gen. 41 27. 2 Sam. 24. 13.

V 3. For her house] which others had taken possession of in her absence.

V. 8. A present] after the manner of the heathens, to purchase the southsayers favours, and others, who were the divells ministers, see 2 Kings 5. 5. and not according to the pure simplicity of the faithfull 1 Sam 9. 7.

V. 10 Recover] thou shalt not die of this sicknesse; but when thou art recovered thereof, thou shalt loose thy life by another meanes, v. 15.

V. 11. Untill hee was] or for a long time.

V. 13. A dogge] an abject, and v [...]le person: [hath shewed mee] by vision, and prophetick revelation, according to that which had been revealed to Elijah 1 Kings 19. 15.

V. 16. Being] see 1 Kings 22. 42.

V. 18. The daughter] namely Athaliah v. 26.

V. 20. Edom] here Isaacks prophecy was fulfilled, Gen. 27. 40 see of Edoms estate, upon 2 Kings 3. 9.

V. 22 Libnah] a city of Iudah, Ios. 21. 13.

V. 24. Ahaziah] called also Azariah 2 Chron. 22. 6. and Ioahaz 2 Chron. 21. 17. and 25. 23.

V. 26. Daughter] that is to say, grandchilde, being daughter to Ahab, v. 18. the son [...]e of Omri

V. 29. Ramath] which is the same as Ramoth.

CHAP. IX. VERS. I.

OF oyle] see upon 1 Sam. 10. 1.

V. 2. His brethren] his [...]e [...]low officers in warre.

V. 3. Powre it] see upon 1 Kings 19 16. [Page]

V. 4. The young man] the Italian, the Prophets servant, his familiar, and ordinary servant.

V. 10. In the portion] the Italian, the field, namely in some place about the city.

V. 11. The servants] to the other captaines and officers: [this mad fellow] a word of scorne, by reason of the Prophets strange actions, when they were in any extasie, or rapture of spirit, see Ier. 19. 16. [and his] you know these Prophets ordinary talke, is nothing but reprooses, warnings, and threatnings. Or Iehu to conceale the businesse, condescends to their saying; as if hee said, his speeches favour of madnesse: and are not worthy to be taken heed of.

V. 12. It is false] wee see that hee hath said somewhat else to thee.

V. 13. Took] a ceremonie of honour, which they used to their new Kings, as Mat. 21. 7. [on the top] where there was peradventure some scaffold, to make Proclamations upon.

V. 14. Had kept] it is likely that Ramoth had been taken away from the Syrians, though the History make no mention of it: whereupon the King of Israel stayed there to de [...]end it from a new assault. Othe stranslate it, after he had been at the siedge of Ram [...]h, &c.

V. 15. Your minds] that I should be proclaimed King.

V. 25. This burthen] the Prophets ordinary phrase to signifie a prophecy, especially of threatnings and curses.

V. 26. Surely I have seene] a forme and kinde or an oath.

V. 27. They didso] the Italian, *they smo [...]*e him, that is to say, wounded him mortally.

V. 30. Painted] to shew her selfe to *Le [...]*u in majesty, and royall brightnesse.

V. 31. Had Zimri] &c. the Italian hath it, O Zimri thy masters murtheror, as much as to say, O Iehu thou that art another Zimri, that hast conspired against, and murdered thy master, see 1 Kings 16. 13.

V. 32. Looked out] making some signe, whereby hee might know they were ready to doe him any service.

CHAP. X. VERS. I.

SONNES] within which number were also comprehended the grand-children, namely Ithorams children: [Iezreel] who i [...] is likely were sent from their own city to Samaria, to govern those royall youths v. 6. [that brought up] the Italian, nourishers, namely they that had the most special charge of [...]ir persons and bringing up.

V. 3. The best] the Italian, him that you shall like best, namely the best and ablest.

V. 9. Yee bee] an ironicall kinde of speech, the meaning whereof is; Think not ye are lesse guilty in this action than I; for if there have been any hurt in the slaying of Iehoram, you are sharers therein that have slaine his children: as for my part, my action is warranted by God himselfe: doe you think the excusing of yours, by the acknowledgeing of Gods justice: which were it not, you and I both should be guilty.

V. 12. Shearing] a place where they sheared sheep.

V. 13. The brethren] that is to say, his nearest kinsmen, 2 Chron. 22. 8.

V. 15. Of Rechab] of the Kenites, which issued from Moses his father in law, 1 Chron. 2. 15. Ier. 35. 6. A nation alwayes famed, for its piety and holy life.

V. 20. Proclaime] the Italian, sanctifie, that is to say, prepare your selves, and all those of your sect, and all that is required thereunto, according to your ceremonies and observations, for to celebrate this feast.

V. 25. To the city] it might be some neighboring place dedicated particularly to Baais worship. Others translate it, in all the cities where there was any temple dedicated to Baal.

V. 27. The image] some chiefe one, which also peradventure was more idolatrously worshipped than the rest.

V. 30. Lord said] by some Prophet.

V. 32. To cut] suffering the Syrians to come in amongst them to trouble them, and also to take their countrey, : [Hazael] according to Elisha his prophecy, 2 Kings 8. 12.

V. 33. By the river] see Deut. 3. 12.

CHAP. XI. VERS. I.

The mother] see 2 Kings 8, 26.

V. 2. Iehosheba] called also Iehoshabeath, which was wife to Iehoiada the high Priest, 2 Chron. 22. 11. [in the] the Italian, in one of the, even in one of them which were in the great porticoes which encompassed the Temple; where there were bed-chambers for the Priests which served in their weekly turnes, Ezec. 40. 45. 46.

V. 4. Rulers over hundreds] they were Levites, valiant men; heads of hundreds in their own tribe; according to the order Exod. 18. 25. which were to come to Ierusalem with their hundreds extraordinarily, and armed, to be of the Kings guard, v. 11. now by their meanes hee beforehand did win the Levites which were to come into service, 2 Chro [...]. 23. 2.

V. 5. That enter] for even from David [...] time, the Priests and Levites, divided into certaine reliefe [...], 1 [Page] Chron. 24. entred upon the actuall service of the tabernacle for a week by turnes 1 Chron. 9. 25. [shall even be] besides their holy function, they shall also be in arms about the Temple where Ioash their lawfull King is hidden, to make a guard for his person.

V. 6. Shall be] those which goe off from their weekly service, shall bee divided into two squadrons, and the one halfe shall stand in armea at one of these gates, and the other, at the other: [the gale of] hereby must bee meant the south gate of the Temple, called the gate of Sur, that is of the places about it: for comming from the Kings house to it, they made a great compasse about to the left hand: [behind the] the Kings ordinary guard lay by the Kings pallace, in a house which had a gate, through which one came to the bridge which was over the great hallow or valley and went to the Temple: and at the end of this bridge there was another gate, which to them that came from the Kings pallace, was behind the guards lodging: and was also called the gate of the foundation 2 Chron. 23. 5. because it stood upon the broad wall, which was fortified with great counter-forts, and did beare up the whole fabrick of the Temple [of the house] the Italian, of the body of the Temple, the Hebrew word signifieth a building thrust out, and it should seeme hereby is meant the Basilick or body of the Church, properly called the Temple, separated from the Porticoes, by void spaces round about; see the same word in the same signification, Ezech. 41. 12. 13.

V. 7. Of the House] namely at the two foresaid gates, from whence might come the greatest danger from the Kings Pallace, where Athaliah lay with her Guard.

V. 8. And yee] the third part of you which come upon your weekly duty after you have, done watching, yee shall also accompany the King when hee commeth sorth [hee that commeth] any of Athaliahs people that shall strive to break the ranks of the guard, or to come into the Temple which is environed with ranges of pilasters.

V. 10. King Davids] it is likely that they were some enemies consecrated by David, and hanged up in the Temple for a remembrance, and in signe of thanksgiving like Goliahs sword, 1 Sam. 21. 9. and the Syrians shields, 2 Sam. 8. 7. 11.

V. 11. The guard] namely those Levites which stood here for the Kings guard: [by the] in the Priests Court, over against which was the Chamber where the King was hidden.

V. 14. By a Pillar] on a place which was like a scaffold, or tribunall of brasse, square, made by Solomon in the middest of the peoples Court, 2 Chron. 6. 13. upon which the Kings did present themselves before the Lord in certaine solemne actions, 2 Kings 23. 3. 2. Chron. 34. 31.

V. 15. Of the host] namely of those bands of armed Levites, [the ranges] as verse. 8. [that solloweth her] to hold on her side, to helpe or assist her.

V. 16. Came into] some hold it to bee the City gate called the horse gate, Neh. 3. 28. Ier. 31. 40. But it is likelier that it was the great horse and cart way which led to the Kings Pallace, opposite or contrary to the little foot way: [There] in that great high way.

V. 17. Made a] hee made meanes to have the King and people to renew their covenant with the Lord, promising him obedience and faithfull service as 2 Kings 23. 3. and also for the people to sweare to bee faithfull to their King.

V. 18. Appointed] or did set the watches.

CHAP. XII. VERS. II.

ALL his dayes wherein] for after Jehojada's dayes he went astray, 2 Chron. 24. 22.

V. 3. Sacrificed] to the true God, but not in the place chosen and consecrated by him.

V. 4. The money of] this was the first kinde of consecrated money, namely the halfe shekel which every Iew that was twenty yeares of age paid yearely, after he was set downe and mustered in the Register book of every commonalty, which money was destined for the work of the Sanctuary, Exod. 30. 12. and afterwards for the work of the Temple: [that every man] the second kinde of consecrated money, which was for the work of the Temple; namely, for such mens vowes as might bee redeemed for money, Lev. 27. 2. [All the money] the third kinde of consecrated money, which was of voluntary offerings; to which every Priest was in every place to exhort them that he knew, a Chron. 24. 5. in imitation of Moses his gathering of the like, Exod. 3 [...]. 5.

V. 5. Shall be found] which time, or age, or any other accident hath caused, and especially by reason of the spoile which Athaliah made, 2 Chro. 24. 7.

V. 6. Had not] in the Chronicles it is said, that they did not sollicite the work, and it is likely that the confusions which had been before did hinder them from converting the two first kinds of those moneys to that use; whereupon Ioas restrained himself only to the last, namely voluntary offerings, vers. 7.

V. 7. But deliver it] the Italian, leave it] I will take a care to have it gathered by some other body: Others translate it, restore it.

V. 9. Besides the] within the Priests Court: [that kept] the Keepers of the holy s [...]uffe and vessells: the charge of which things was also committed to the doore keeper of the Temple, 1 Chron. 9. 28, 29.

V. 11. Of the House] namely over this work. [Page]

V. 13. How be it] such was their carefull haste in repairing of the Temple, that untill that was done, no part of this money was to be bestowed upon any utensiles belonging thereunto, though there was great want of them, many of them having been taken away by *Athal [...]*ah, 2 Chron. 24. 7. but after the fabrick was finished, all these things were againe provided, 2 Chron. 24. 14. [Snuffers] see 1 King. 7. 50.

V. 17. Set his face] after that Ioash began to goe astray.

V. 20. Millo] it seemeth to be that great terrace, whereof see 1 King. 9. 15. 24. [Silla] might be some great high way paved with great broad stones, according to the sound of the Hebrew word.

V. 21. Iozachar] called Zabad also, 2 Chron. 24. 26.

[Shimeath] a womans name, 2 Chro. 24. 26. [Shomer] called also Shimith in the aforesaid place: [with his] though not in their Sepulchers, 2 Chron. 24. 25.

CHAP. XIII. VERS. III.

ALL their dayes] whiles Ioash reigned.

V. 5. A Saviour] namely Iehoash the son of Iehoahaz, vers. 25. and Ieroboam his sonne, 2 King. 14. 25.

V. 6. The Grove] planted by Ahab, 1 King. 16. 33.

V. 7. Leave] namely of his whole Army.

V. 14 [...] pt] seeing him mortally sick.

V. 17. Eastward] where Syria was: [the Lords] that is to say, a signe given by the Lord, of the victory which hee would grant thee over the Syrians: [A [...]hek] a city beyond Iordan, in the countrey of the Amorites, Ios. 13. 4.

V. 19. Was wrath] at the future flacknesse of Ioash, in the performance of Gods vengances and freeing of his people, which the spirit of God had revealed to his Prophets by this signe; namely that hee should let Ioash smite upon the ground; and that hee should overcome the Syrians so often as hee should smite times. Now God foreseeing Ioash his negligence, caused the signe to be agreeable to it.

V. 20. Comming in] after the fruites of the earth were gathered in, they came to rob it.

V. 21. Cast] a figure of that life which all the faithfull doe obtain by drawing neere unto Christ, and to his death.

CHAP. XIV. VERS. VII.

SElah] a strong hold upon the frontiers of Edom.

V. 8. Let us look] let us fight with one another. Now the cause of this challenge seemeth to be the same as is set down 2 Chron. 25. 13.

V. 9. The thistle] a parable, or comparison, as Iudg. 9. 8. by which Ioash scoffeth at the King of Iudahs temeritie, being a petty king in regard of him, so that hee scorned to have him to bee his kinsman, though hee was no enemy to him.

V. 10. Meddle] or why shouldest thou provoke any one to evill.

V. 13. From the gate] these two gates were on the North side of Ierusalem, drawing towards the West, Neh. 12. 39. Ier. 31. 38.

V. 21. Azariah] called also Vzziah 2 Kings 15. 30.

V. 22. Hee built] he repaired or fortified it: [Elath] the same city that is mentioned Deut. 2. 8. 1 Kings 9. 26. which was upon the Red sea, see 2 Kin. 16. 6. [the King] namely Amasia his father.

V. 25. Hamath] the northerne bound of the countrey, set down by God himselfe, Num. 34. 8. [the Sea] this is the lake of Sodom, or Asphaltis, Deut. 3. 17. which was the southerne bound of the ten tribes: [Ionah] the same, whose book is inserted amongst the small Prophets, Ion. 1.

1.

V. 27. Said not] as hee did afterwards in the dayes of this Ieroboam.

V. 28. Which belonged] being conquered by David and
Solomon, who reigned in Iudah, 2 Sam. 8. 6. 2 Chron. 8.
3. and were peradventure by them added to their tribe, and Bezon afterward caused them to rebell, 1 Kings 11.
24.

CHAP. XV VERS. I.

Twenty seventh] seeing that Amaziah reigned nine and twenty yeares, 2 Kings 14. 2. and that Ieroboam the sonne of Ioash, began to reigne the fifteenth yeare of Amaziah, 2 Kings 14. 23. it followeth that this seven and twentieth yeare is about the eleventh yeare after the death of Amaziah, so wee must couclude that there was an interregnum or vacancie of the Royall Seat in Iudah for the space of eleven yeares or there abouts; occasioned peradventure by Azariahs tender age, or by the powerfullnesse of his fathers murtherers, who kept the government in their hands.

V. 5. Over the house] had the governing of all things, as generall Lieftenant and officer under the King.

V. 13. Vzziah] who is the same as Azariah.

V. 16. Tiphsa] it cannot be that which is mentioned 1 Kings 4. 24. because this was in the middle of the countrey, and that was upon the frontiers of Syria.

V. 30. The twentieth] seeing that v. 33. it is said that hee reigned only sixteen yeares, and that 2 Kings 16. 1. it is said that Ahaz the sonne of Iotham began to reigne in the seventeenth yeare of Pekah; wee must conclude that Ioram lived twenty yeares after hee came to bee [Page] King: but that foure yeares before hee died, hee resigned the Kingdome to his sonne Ahaz.

V. 35. The higher gate] it appears by 2 Chron. 23. 20. that it was the same which was called the gate of Sur, 2 Kings 11. 6. and high, by reason of some singular eminency above the rest: as that through the which the King came into the Temple 2 Kings 16. 18. or else to be understood as Ezec. 9. 2.

V. 37. In those] namely about the end of Iorams reigne, about the beginning of Ahaz reigne.

CHAP. XVI. VERS. VI.

Elath] which had been taken by Azariah, 2 Kings 14. 22. [from Elath] the Italian, *El [...]*th, it was the territory or countrey of *El [...]*th: [the Syrians] the Italian, the Edomites, in whose countrey the said city stood, Deut. 2. 8. others by reason of the similitude of the letters, reade the Syrians: who had made themselves absolute Lords thereof, though the inhabitants were Edomites.

V. 7. I am] I yeeld my selfe and my Kingdome, to be thy vassall and subject: I submit my selfe unto thee: for thee to bee Lord, and protector of mee.

V. 9. And carried] according to the prophecy of Amos, Amos 1. 5. [Ki [...]] a name of a city or countrey of Assiria, or Media.

V. 11. Against King Ahaz] hee built it in haste, while the King was absent, expecting his returne to dedicate it.

V. 14. The brazen Altar] built by Solomon, 2 Chron. 4. 1.

V. 15. The great Altar] namely Ahaz his altar, which peradventure was bigger than the altar which Solomon built: [shall be] when I please, I shall make use of Solomons altar also: or that shall bee for mee to enquire of the Lord. This, hee saith, feigning as though hee would keep the true Altar peculiarly for his own use in urgent occasions, for the greater honour of it: employing the new one for common uses.

V. 18. The covert] which is not mentioned elsewhere, therefore it is uncertain what forme it was of, for what use it was, and where it stood. It is thought that it was some lodge to rest in, made with columnes, over which cloathes might bee stretched out, for the Priests refreshment upon holy dayes; which dayes they were very much to plead with great number of sacrifices and devotions. Now all this was done, by Ahaz, to take away all commodities which belonged to the service of God: [Kings entry] the King came into the Temple two wayes, ordinarily through the South gate, called of Sur, or the higher gate, 2 Kings 15. 35. and on the Sabbath, and holy dayes at the Eastern gate, 1 Chron. 9. 18. Ezech. 46. 1. 2. Now it is uncertaine which of these two gates is meant in this place: [without] namely of the first compasse of the Temple, comming from without: [for the King] hee made all this spoyle, to obtaine this idolatrous Kings favour: to shew himselfe alien from Gods true service.

V. 20. VWith his fathers] yet not in their sepulchers, 2 Chron. 28. 27.

CHAP. XVII. VERS. I.

Nine yeares] since the beginning of Hosheas reigne happened in the last year of *I [...]*rams reigne, 2 Kings 15. 30. 32. and that the ninth of Hoshea falleth just with the sixth of Hezekiah 2 Kin. 18. [...]. 10. these nine yeares must not bee understood of his whole reigne; seeing that there is all Ahaz his time between, which was sixteen yeares, 2 Kin. 16. 2. and also six yeares of King Hezekiah whether there were any vacancy in the Kingdome, as 2 Kin. 15. 1. or whether hee was not properly King, untill hee was established by the King of Assyria his protection; as beginning a new numeration of the yeares of his reigne, according to the custome, see upon, Ezech. 1. 1.

V. 4. To so] to have reliefe from him against the Assirians, those monarchies having been emulators one of another for a long time, see 2 Kings 18. 21. Ier. 37. 5.

V. 9. Secretly] this may be referred to private idolatries and impieties, Ezech. 18. 12. besides the publick and authorized ones. Or to the pretences of good intentions, wherewith they coloured their publick superstitions: [from the towers] set in severall places for the safeguard of the countrey, against the enemies incursions; or for the safeguard of the cattell, and of the fruites of the earth; the meaning is, that they did it in all places from the biggest to the least.

V. 15. Vanitie] a frequent name for i [...]ls, Deut. 32. 21. 1

Cor. 8. 4. [Became vaine] be sotted in idolatry, and as it were transformed into the likenesse of the heathen, see Psal. 115. 8.

V. 18. Out of his] from the place where God was present upon earth in grace and vertue: which was his Church, over which Gods eye yet watcheth in a speciall manner.

V. 24. The King] first Salmanezzer, and then Esarhaddon, Ezr. 4. 2.

V. 25. Feared not] they yeelded no religious worship to the true God, neither did they in any manner of way acknowledge him.

V. 26. Of the Land] the foolish conceit of idolaters, that each countrey and nation should have its own proper deity, what it had pleased them to choose.

V. 17. Let them goe] let there another new plantation be sent thither in the place and stead of them which [Page] were devoured by the Lions: which perhaps happened in the dayes of Ezar-haddon, Ezr. 4. 2.

V. 28. One of the] not one of them which were of the tribe of Levi, but one of them which the Kings of Israel had made of their own minde, 1 Kings 12. 31. [how they should] the outward ceremonies of the law, by which the people yeelded unto the Lord some kinde of worship, though false and corrupt; yet it did keepe alive some memory of him, and some reverence of his name.

V. 34. Neither doe they] their religion is but a mixture of the true and false.

CHAP. XVIII. VERS. II.

Twenty and five] seeing Ahaz began to reigne at the age of twenty years, and reigned sixteen years 2 Kings, 6. 2. he must beget Ezechiah at eleven yeares of age, which must not seeme strange, considering the singular blessing that nation had for generation. So Reboam was begotten by Solomon about the same age, 1 Kings 14. 21.

V. 4. Did burne] by an arbitrary superstition, as unto a signe of Gods grace, yet being not commanded by him to doe it, which command ought to be the rule and scope of all true divine service That having been kept but only for a memoriall: [Nehushtan] a peece of brasse, to shew that it was to be valued no more then so much of such stuffe, there remaining none of the ancient vertue in it, and to annihilate by this name of scorne the false honour which was yeelded to it.

V. 5. Like him] in perfectly purging the service of God from all Idolatry and superstition.

V. 7. He rebelled] in a just zeale for Gods government, he being the only soveraign Lord of his people, and in detestation of his Fathers wicked covenant.

V 8. From the tower.] the Italian, towers, taking and sacking all their towers, as well the strong as the weak ones, 2 King. 17. 9.

V 14. To Lachish] a city of Juda to besiege which Sennacherib did stay: [I have offended] in having rebelled against thee.

V. 16. Had overlaid] restoring them into their former state, 2 Chron. 29. 3. in which Solomon had made them, namely, covered with golden plates, 1 Kin. 6. 32. which Ahaz had taken away, beside all other dammages which he had done to the Church.

V. 17. Sent] breaking the covenants, when he had received the money, for he would now have King Hezekiah to yeeld himself wholly to him, and to deliver Ierusalem into his hands: [R [...]saris] this name as well as Rabshakeh, are names of offices: The first signifieth chiefe of the Eunuches, the other chiefe of the Cupbearers, see upon Ier. 39. 3.

V. 20. I have counsell] that one needeth nothing, neither for counsell nor strength, which are the two necessary meanes to make warre with, but only to pray to God: Or, that these humane meanes are of themselves vaine and unprofitable.

V. 21. Will goe into] he is not onely unprofitable, but also very harmfull.

V. 22. Whose high places] whose service thou hast lessened and put down according to the sence of Idolaters, that doe think pietie consists in the endlesse multiplication of their superstitions.

V. 25. The Lord said] a foolish imagination of Sennacherib or Rabshakeh for to afright the people, which imagination they had conceived either by reason of their pretended offence towards God, vers. 22. or by reason of the prosperous successe they had in conquering the rest of the Countrey.

V. 27. They may eat] as much as to say, that hee would keep them shut up, and make them endure all the extreamest wants of a siedege.

V. 31. Make an agreement] Heb. a blessing, that is to say, a friendly agreement.

CHAP. XIX. VERS. II.

The Elders] the Italian, the eldest, namely the heads and governors.

V. 3. Of trouble] into which the people of God being fallen, the enemies doe take an occasion from thence to blaspheme and despight God: [the children] a proverbiall kinde of speech, to signifie an extreme danger; as when a womans strength faileth her even upon the point of being delivered.

V. 4. Will heare] a phrase taken from men, meaning he may have considered of it, and be wrath in his minde for it.

V. 7. I will send] I will send a panick terror in his minde, concerning the comming of the King of Ethiopia, and a true and reall terror by the mortality and death of his Camp, that he shall determine to be gone.

V. 9. He heard say] see an example like this, 1 Sam. 23. 27.

V. 16. Sent him] the Italian, sent this, namely the subject of this letter which I hold in my hand.

V. 21. The Virgin] the Prophets use to call those cities & states so, which are and ought to be to their Princes in stead of chaste daughters, to be inviolably kept under their lawfull Lords, who ought also to keep themselves pure, in the integrity of their faith and obedience towards them.

V. 23. With the multitude] a figurative description of Sennacheribs vaine-glory, who presu [...]ed that hee could easily subdue all Iudea, which was likened to Lebanon for heighth and magnificence: And to Mount Carmel for [Page] pleasantnesse, and fruitfulnessse, see Isa. 14. 8.

V. 24. Strange waters] newly found out, which heretofore were not know: or of strange countreys, [dried up] my armies are so great that they can drie up rivers, drinking but once every man, and yet I alwayes am abundantly provided of water from other places: it seemeth he mocketh Hezekiah for the care he took in stopping of the fountaines about Ierusalem, 2 Chron. 32. 3. [Of besieged places] namely of strong holds.

V. 25. Hast thou not] hee turneth his speech to Sennacherib in the name of God, shewing him that all which he had done in Iudea, was done by his decree for to chastise his people; so that he, who was but onely the instrument, had nothing to vaunt himself against of God, who could hinder him and overthrow all his undertakings, Isa. 10. 5. 7. 13. 15. [formed it] appointed and decreed it to be so together with all the circumstances, Isa 22. 11. Ier. 33. 2.

V. 27. Thy abode] figurative termes taken from huntsmen, the meaning is, I know all thy councells designes, and undertakings, and I govern them all through my providence, see Psal. 139. 2. 3.

V. 28. In thy nose] as they doe to bufaloes and other fierce beasts.

V. 29. This year] many think that was the sixth year, next before the year of rest, Levit. 25. 5 which year it was not lawfull to sow nor reap, but to feed only upon what the earth did voluntarily bring forth: Now the miracle was, that in the sixth year which was to furnish victuall for the two yeares following, Levit. 25. 21. they could not till the land, by reason of the Assyrians comming, whereby the sixth, seventh, and eighth year, there was nothing eaten but what grew of it selfe.

V. 30 Take root] prosper and multiply every way: A pharse taken from trees Iob 29. 19.

V. 31. Shall go forth] after this siege the Countrey shall be re-inhabited and peopled by them that shall have escaped in Ierusalem: [the zeale] God shall work all this to maintaine his glory, and his Church against the Assyrians fiercenesse and blasphemies.

V. 32. Cast a banke] or Terrace, see 2 Sam. 20. 15.

V. 37. Of Armenia] the Italian, Ararat, which is in the great Armenia, Gen. 8. 4.

CHAP. XX. VERS. I.

Thou shalt die] the Italian, thou art dead; this was no absolute and irrevocable decree, but a threatning of a thing which would surely happen, if God did not through his omnipotencie help it, which was done to try and humble Ezechiah.

V. 2. He turned] to pray privately with a greater devotion and fervour without any disturbance.

V. 3. Wept] not so much for the losse of his life, as because hee should leave none to succeed him, for Manasseh was borne three yeares after Ezekiah recovered.

V. 4. The middle Court] of the royall Pallace, it seemeth he meanes that of 1 Kings 7. 8.

V. 6. For mine own sake] moved thereunto by mine own good-will, to verifie my promises made to David, to maintaine my glory, and to reward  Davids fidelity.

V. 7. A lump] figges indeed have a naturall propertie to ripen and mollifie, but God did adde thereunto by miracle, a supernaturall kinde of vertue to hasten and strength [...]n the operation, as in many other miracles: [the boile] it is very likely that it was a plague sore.

V. 8. What shall bee the signe] the request of a signe being made in humility, through a meere desire of confirming his faith, which was opposed by many contrary likelihoods, is not condemned in Scripture, see Iudge 6. 17. 37. 39. Isa. 7. 11.

V. 9. The shadow] shall the shaddow of the point of the diall goe forward ten of those degrees, which noted the spaces, not of whole houres (for then the day must have been at least twenty houres long) but of halfe houres, or quarters, or peradventure lesse.

V. 10. A light thing] not but that the miracle would have been equall both wayes; but because it is naturall for the day to goe forwards, the miracle would not have appeared, but onely by this singularity of having it done in an instant: Whereas in the retrogradation, both the substance of the thing and the manner was miraculous.

V. 11. The shadow] together with the body of the Sunne which went backward also, Isa 38. 8. see Ios. 10. 14.

V. 12. For he had] in outward shew to congratulate with him, because he had recovered his health; but indeed it was for to be truly informed of that terrible miracle, of the lengthening of the day, 2 Chron. 32. 31.

V. 13. Hearkened] he was a little tickled with carnall delight by this magnificent visit, Isa. 39 2. and pricked up with pride, 2 Chron. 32. 25. 31. [house of his Armour] the Italian, the house of his vessells, or his houshold stuffe, or his armory.

V. 18. Eunuches] or Courtiers.

V. 19. Good is] just by reason of the manifold sins which we have committed, I doe with all humility and worship submit my selfe thereunto.

V. 20. A poole] this was a great poole of water brought by conduits under ground, which were digged out of the rock from the fountains of Gihon, when Sennacherib besieged the Citie, 2 Chron. 32. 30. And the said poole was in the Citie of David, and seemeth to be the same as is [Page] mentioned, Neh. 2. 14. & 3. 15. Isa. 22. 9. 11.

CHAP. XXI. VERS. V.

IN the two] as well in the Priests, as in the peoples court.

V. Familiar Spirits] the Italian, a spirit of Phithon, he ordained that there should alwayes be some body possessed with such a kinde of spirit, as should give answers instead of an Oracle.

V. 13. Siretch] I will lay every thing levell there, as I have done in Samaria, and by the house of Ahab, see Isa. 34. 11. Lam. 2. 8.

V. 16. His sinne] of Idolatry, which particularly is called the sinne which displeaseth the Lord

CHAP. XXII. VERS. VIII.

The book] this was the originall which was kept within the Temple, Deut. 31. 24. which amongst the confusions of Manasseh and Ammon, might bee hidden or mis-said.

V. The words] the curses and threatnings pronounced against those sins which had reigned and did yet reigne amongst the people: [he rene] through the excessive grieffe of his minde, being exceedingly troubled in spirit.

V. 13. Enquire] if there be any meanes, or if it bee not too late to appease his wrath, what good or mercy we may hope for, and what evill or rigour wee ought to feare.

V. 14. Of the wardrobe] the Italian, of the garments, of the priestly garments: [in the Colledge] the Italian, in the second precinct, these were the suburbs of Ierusalem called Eezera, which was encompassed with wals and gates severall from the City it selfe, and therefore the gate of this enclosure was called second, Zeph. 1. 10. and the middle gate, Ier 39. 3.

V. 18. Hast heard] which were read in the book of the Law, v. 10.

V. 20. In Peace] before the last desolation of the countrey; and thou shalt die in my favour, to come into everlasting rest. So that Iosiahs death, though violent, 2 Kings 23. 29. was not accursed of God.

CHAP. XXIII. VERS. II.

The Prophets] see upon Ier. 26. 7. [he read] caused it to be read by some Priest.

V. 3. By a Pillar] the Italian, upon a Pillar, wherof see 2 Kin. 11. 14. [stood to the] consented to it, & did openly protest that they would stand to it without varying.

V. 4. Of the second order,] these were two Priests which were in the next degree to the high Priest, who were also his deputies, see 2 Sam. 8. 17 2 Kin. 2. 518. [ [...]ethel [...]] where Iereboam had setup one of the Calves, 1 Kin. 12. 29. Now Iosias caused this dust to be carried [...]hither, as an abominable uncleanness, to profane the place, & take away all opinion of holiness from it.

V. 5. The Idolatrous Priests] the Italian, Camaries, they were certain ministers of Idolatry different from the Priests which belonged to the Idols, Zeph. 1. 4. The Iewes believe that it was a kinde of Monks, so called, either by reason that they lived cloistered up, or because they used to wear smokie clothing & of a darke colour: [Planets] or the 12. signs of Zodiack.

V. 6. And cast] the sign of detestation of Idols and Idolaters, for these graves were the graves of them which had worshipped Idols, 2 Chron. 34 4. [of the children] of the bas [...]st and lowest degree amongst the people, who being most sensuall, are likely most enclined to Idolatrie and superstition.

V. 7. The houses] they were little booths which served for brothell houses, where they committed the abominable sin of lust against nature; Idolatry being alwaies followed with these abominations, fruits of the unclean spirit of lying, Ro. 1. 23. 24. 27. see 1 Kin. 14. 24. & 15 12. & 22. 46.

[hangings] the Italian hath it, houses, they might be some tents which were set up in that grove, wherein those wickednesses were committed.

V. 8. All the Priests] which worshipped the true God, yet they do it in the high places, and not in Ierusalem, which was the only place approved by God: [defiled] hee did by authority proclaim them to be unclean, took away all signs of holinesse from them, and brought them to [...]ordid uses, and defiled them with unclean things according to Law, as with dead bodies, bones, and the like, v. 4. 14 16. 20.

[from Geba] which we [...]e the two bounds of the Land of Iudah in length: [of the gate] set up near to the gates of the City, according to the ancient custome of Idolaters, for to have some Tutelar and Guarding God-head: [of Ioshua] neither the man nor the gate are mentioned any where else, it might be some Captain of that city, or of some part of it, who dwelling neare one of these gates, had built some Chappel, or place of devotion there.

V. 9. The Priests] though they were of the Priestly race, yet were they deposed from their Office, but were notwithstanding suffered to feed upon the holy mea [...]'s, as of meat offerings wherein all manner of leaven was forbidden, Lev. 2. 4. 5. 11.

V. 10. Topleth] it was a place on the East side of Jerusalem, in the pleasant Valley of the children of Hinnon so called from To [...], that is to say, a Drum, either by reason of the musick, dances, and other pastimes, which were used there; or by reason of the noise of drummes which was used there in the abominable Sacrifices of their children; to deaffen the eares, and dull the senses of the Spoctators, see Ier. 7. 31. & 19. 6. 11.

V. 11. The horses] they [...]ere certain statues of horses & chariots dedicated to the Sun, as he was accustomed to be figured by the heathen, mounted upo<sup>n</sup> a charet drawn with foure horses: [at the entring in] it is thought to be either one or more gates of the first precinct of the Temple on the west side, through which they went in to the court of the Gentiles [in the suburbs] the Italian hath it, *Pari [...]*rim, it seemeth to be the same place as is called Parbar, 1 [Page] Chron. 26. 18. & it is uncertain what place it was, & why it was so called; the Hebrewes hold they were certain suburbs belonging to the temple towards the west, see Ize. 45. 2

V. 12. That were on] see of this custome, of those that worshipped the Stars, Zeph. 1. 5.

V. 13. Of corruption] it is thought it was the mount of Olives, or some other near unto it on the east side of Ierusalem, & that it is so called by allusion or equivocation of two Hebrew words, whereof one signifieth annointing, by reason of the Olives, & the other, spoile or corruption, by reason of these abominations.

V 15. The high place] that is to say, the Temple which was built there.

V. 16. Turned himselfe] namely, when hee was in Bethel, which place though it was no part of the Kingdom of Iudah, he did these things, either as by right as being lawful Lord, as he was  *Davids [...]*ighfull successor; or, in meer zeale in an abandoned country, which in a manner had no Lord at all, 2 Chro. 34. 6

V. 18. No man move] the Italian, preserve, and doe not burn them as you have done the rest.

V. 21 In this book] which was found in the Temple, 2 Kings, 22. 8.

V. 22. Surely there was not] this Passeover is here made mention of, because it was celebrated with more concourse of people, and greater purity then over it was since the time of the Iudges, 2 Chro. 35. 18

V. 24. And the Idols] the Hebrew word signifieth porperly, little domessicall or houshold Idols, Gen. 31. 19.

V. 26. Turned not] because that the people followed not the example of their King in converting themselves sincerely to the Lord, as it appeared presently after the death of Iosias, see Ier. 3. 10.

V. 29. Of Assyria] by this name, seemeth to be understood

Nabopolassar King of Babylon, who had taken Assyria from the Meades, who had subdued the Assyrians; so oftentimes by the name of Assyrians, by reason of the nobleness of the Title, are understood the Caldeans, and afterwards the Persians, who had conquered Assyria: [against him] the cause might be to hinder him from going to provoke the King of Babylon, for fear left his countrey which lay between the countrey of these Monarchs, should be left to the Conquerors mercy, and should be the place, or field for their war: [ [*...]*ew him] that is to say, wounded him mortally, for it seemeth he died in Jerusalem, 2 Chron. 35 24. [when he had] at the first encounter.

V. 30. And the people] some believe that this *Ie [...]*az was installed by popular faction, and not according to birth-right, seeing that he was but three and twenty years of age when he began to reign, and reigned but three months; whereas his brother *Ie [...]*im who succeeded him, was five and twenty years of age when he began to reign, v. 36. unlesse there were some vacancy or interregnum: *Iehoa [...]*az] called also Shallum, Ier. 22. 11.

V. 34. Turned] for to shew his sovereignty, [there] according to Ieremiah his prophecy, Ier. 22. 11.

CHAP. XXIII. VERS. I.

NEbuchadnezzar] the sonne of Nabopolassar, who raised up the old Empire of Babylon, annexing Assyria unto it, which he had conquered, Gen. 10. 10. 2 Kings, 23. 29. & being yet living he sent this Son of his to make war in Iury, who is here called King because he was heir & Lievtenant general to his father.

V. 2. Bands] the meaning is, Before the Caldeans came with a compleat Army into Iudea, they made inroads and spoyled the countrey with these bands, whereby God gave the people yet some time to convert themselves, and his elect to prepare themselves against the last and irreparable inundation.

V. 6. Ieboiakim] called likewise Iechoniah, 1 Chr. 3. 16 and Coniah, Ier. 22. 24.

V. 7. The King] this is added to shew that from that time the Aegyptians aid, who were enemies and emulators of the Babylonians was quite cut off from the Iewes; for the Aegyptians stirring in Zedekiahs time, lasted but a little, and was to smal or no purpose, Ier. 37. 5. [the river of Aegypt] of which see Num. 34. 5.

V. 12. Went out] an Hebrew phrase signifying as much as that he yeelded to his mercy: [of his] namely of Nebuchadnezzars.

V. 14. All Ierusalem] that is to say, the greater and better part of the people: [craftsmen] the Italian, Carpenters, to take all means of fortifying the city, and arming the men, see upon Iudg. 58. 1 Sam. 13. 19

V. 20. For] God having resolved to punish so many sins, did not grant Zedekiah the spirit of repentance.

CHAP. XXV. VERS. III.

FOurth moneth] this number is supplied by Ier. 52. 6. [for the people] for the meanest sort; well there might be a little left for the better sort.

V. 4. The City] see Ier. 39. 2. 3. [of the Gate] see Ier. 39. 4. [and the King] according to the prophecy, Ezech. 12. 13.

V. 8. Captaine] see Gen. 37. 36.

V. 18. Chiefe Priest] that is to say, high Priest: [second] his great Deputy, & next to the high Priest in the Priestly line; such as there were alwayes one or two: *El [...]*zar under Aaron, Phineas under Eleazar, &c. see Num 3. 32. 2 Sam. 8. 17. 2 Kin. 23. 4. [of the door] or of the holy vessels, Ier. 35. 4. see upon 2 Kings 12. 9.

V. 19. And five] Ier. 52. 25. there are seven; whether it be by reason that they were taken at severall times, or that the sive were the chiefe: [that were] the Italian, of his familiars, of his in imate friends; the Hebrew, of them who beheld the Kings face.

V. 23. All the] these are the heads of the men of warre which forsook Zedekiah, vers. 5.

V. 27. seven and twentieth] see upon Ier. 52. 310 [Evilmerodach] Sonne of Nebuchadnezzar.

V. 29. Before him] in his royal palace, or at his table.

THE FIRST BOOK OF THE CHRONICLES.

[Page]

The ARGUMENT.

IT is plain that these two Books of the Chronicles were written after the return from the captivity of Babylon: and that they were gathered by some prophet; or by Esdras himselfe, out of the ancient publick records: wherein were contained the peoples genealogies, and the Kings acts, especially of the Kings of Iudah: being these records were kept in Babylon, by the Priests care, though not without appearance of some imputation to the History, which happened through the injury of the times. In this Book then are summarily numbred the generations of the holy stock, in which the Church was preserved from the creation of the world, from father to sonne untill the returne from the Captivity. There is briefly set down the narration of  Davids acts, as a summary, and in some places an addition to the History of the Books of Samuel. But principally is set down the excellent order which hee established in his kingdome, as well in pulitick and warrelike affaires, as in the Ecclesiasticall government, and the service of God in all his functions. Being desirous in this manner to prepare for his sonne Solomon (who was by God nominated, and by the people acknowledged and consecrated his successor) all things which were necessary for this great work of the Temple: to which God had destinated him: wherefore hee gave him the modell also, which hee had received from God: and consigned stuffes of all kinds, of an inestimable value, and mighty quantity, into his hands, which hee long before had gotten together, and consecrated: to which also towards the end of his life hee added much through his own liberality, and the peoples contributions.

CHAP. II. VERS. VI.

ZImri] who seemeth to be the same as Zabdi, Ios. 7. 1.
[Dara] called also Darda, 1 Kings 4. 31.

V. 7. Achar] Ios. 7. 1. hee is called Achan; but it seemeth that his name was changed by reason of the trouble which hee caused in Israel through his sinne; for Achar signifieth a troubler, see Ios. 7. 25.

V. 9. Ram] called also Aram, Mat. 1. 3. [Chalubai] called Caleb, v. 18.

V. 13. Eliab] it seemes to be the same as Elihu 1 Chron. 27. 18. Shimmah] called also Shammah 1 Sam. 16. 9.

V. 18. Ierioth] which might be some concubine: [her sonnes] nomely Azubahs, as it is very likely.

V. 23. To the sonnes] they were held to bee of Manassehs countrey: from whom Machir was descended; though in effect Iair was of the tribe of Iudah by the fathers side, but by the mothers side hee was of the tribe of Manasseh: to the which hee also joynd himselfe.

V. 24. Caleb] it is thought to be the name of a place, not in the land of Canaan, but in the wilderness, and it is not mentioned any where else, it might also bee construed, neere Caleb married with Ephrata: [Abiah] it is uncertain whether this be the same Hezron, as is mentioned, v. 21. the meaning is, that this woman brought him fourth a sonne after the decease of the father: [the father] according to some, hee was the head and progenitor of those who afterwards inhabited in Tekoah, a city of Iudah.

V. 25. And Ahijah] or of Ahijah, as though that were his mothers name.

V. 42. Caleb] of whom see v. 18. [Mesha] leaving out the rest, who had already been named, v. 18. [Ziph] namely of the Ziphites.

V. 45. Beth-zur] or the Beth-zurites, namely of those who afterwards lived in Beth-zur a city of Iudah.

V. 47. Iahdai] who might bee the sonne of Moza.

V. 49. The father of] the first originall of the Madmannites, which dwelt in the city of Madmannah a city of Iudah, Ios. 15. 31. and so it is in the following name.

V. 50. Caleb] grandchild to him that was named before v. 18. 19. [Ephratah] wise of the first Caleb [of Kiriath-jearim] namely of those who dwelt within that city of [Page] Iudah, and so in the names following.

V. 52. Haree] the Italian, Roe, called also Reaiah 1 Chron. 4. 2. [Manahebites] the Italian, Menubet, it may bee the name of the same place which is called Manahath, 1 Chron. 8. 6.

V. 53. Zareathites] the Italian, Sorealites, the Inhabitants of Zoreah and Esthaol, a City of Iudah, Iosh. 15. 33.

V. 54. Of the] the Italian addeth, Of the one halfe, the other halfe hath been mentioned, v. 20. 52.

V. 55. The families] because that this part of the posterity of Iethro took their habitation in the Tribe of Iudah, Iudg. 1. 11. and the rest went elsewhere, Iudg. 4. 11. [Scribes] men that understood and were exercised in the Law of God, as Ezr. 7. 6. Ier. 8. 8. [Iabez] a place not mentioned elsewhere, which seemeth to have taken its name from one Iabez of Iudah, 1 Chron. 4. 9. [the Kenites] one of the branches of Iethroes posterity, who was Moses his Father in Law, Iudg. 1. 16. whose head was Hamath Father of all these Families; and especially of that which afterwards was the most renowned amongst them, called the Family of Recab, by the name of a noted person, which descended from this Hamath, see Ier. 35. 2.

CHAP. III. VERS. I.

DAniel] who seemeth to be the same as Chileab, 2 Sam. 3. 3.

V. 5. Bathshua] called also Bathshebah, the daughter of Eliam, 2 Sam. 11. 3.

V. 6. Elishama] called also Elishua, 2 Sam. 5. 15.

V. 8. Eliada] who is the same as Beliada, 1 Chron. 14. 7.

V. 15. Iohanan] who according to some is the same as Iehoahaz, 2 Kin. 23. 30. & Shallum, Ier. 22. 11.

V. 16. His sonne] that is to say, his successor, as if he had beene his sonne according to the Law, Num. 27. 10. for otherwise Zedekiah was Vncle to Jeconiah, vers. 15.

V. 17. The Sonnes] successor, though not with the Title of King, but onely as head or chiefe of the Nation, for in Iechonia failed Solomons line, Ier. 22. 30. and Nathans line succeeded, of which was Salathiel, Luke 3. 27. 31.

V. 21. The Sonnes] it seemes that these were the Families of the royall bloud after the captivity.

CHAP. IV. VERS. I.

The sonnes] the lineall descents from father to sonne, although there were some interruptions, 1 Chron. 2. 5. 9. 19. 50. [Carmi] it is not likely that it is the same of 1 Chron. 2. 7. whereupon many believe him to bee the same as Chalubai or Calch; 1 Chron. 2. 9. 18.

V. 2. Reaiah] called Haroe, or according to the Italian, Roe, 1 Chron. 2. 52. [these are] from these descended the Inhabitants of Zereah a city of Iud [...]h. Iosh. 15. 33.

V. 3. Of the Father] of him from whence issued those who inhabited and peopled the city of Eram, 2 Clron. 11. 6. which were the families of the above named.

V. 4. Gedor] namely, of them who inhabited a city of this name, as seemeth may bee gathered by vers. 18.

V. 9. Iabez] this man is not mentioned elsewhere, and questionlesse he was one of the heads of these families, who peradventure gave the name to the countrey of Iabez, 1 Chron. 2. 55. [called his] because that Iabez by the transposition of letters sigfieth one who bringeth sorrow.

V. 10. Oh that] a representation of lively and fervent prayers in some extreame necessity; or upon the point of some warlike exploit, the enemies being at hand.

V. 12. Ir Nahash] the Italian, the city of Nahash, of the people which peopled it in the division of the land of Canaan: Of this city, there is not any mention elsewhere: [Recab] the name of a city or countrey whereof there is no mentioned elsewere.

V. 13. Kenaz] this and the rest Caleb, Iehaleel, Esdra, Simeon, Isi, were heads of the families and the issue of Pharez, although it be not specified whose sonnes they were.

V. 14. Charasim] the Italian, crafts-men, the Hebrew word may bee extended to all those that work upon any grosse work, as Carpenters, Founders, Armorers, &c.

V. 15. Iephunneh] who was also the sonne of Kenez, and therefore Caleb is sirnamed the Kenizite, Num. 32. 12.

V. 17. The Father] that is to say, the head of these Families which dwelt in this city of Iudah, Ios. 15. 50.

V. 18. Iebudijah] the Italian, the Jewesse, for the other was a stranger the daughter of Pharaoh which is an Egyptian name, and it is uncertaine whether it was the King himselfe. Others make a proper name of it, Iehudijah, and Hodiah vers. 19. [Gedor] they are names of cities of Iudah, inhabited by the posterity of these men, see Iosh. 15. 58.

V. 19. *The Garmi [...]*e] the Italian, the Garmites, namely of these two families seated in these two cities of Iudah.

V. 23. That dwelt] that is to say, gardeners, and men who looked to plants, &c. [there] in such places looking to such like businesses for the Kings of Iudah. Others translate it,

And they remained there, namely in Babylo [...], in the King of that pl [...]c [...] his service.

NEmuel] in these names, and in those which follow there is great diversity, Gen. 38. 5. for what reason, it is unknown.

V. 31. Vnto th [...]] so long as the Kingdome of Iudah remained in  Davids posterity: untill the captivity of Babylon.

V. 40. For they] that land was excellent, for exceeding good pastures: for the Arabians being the posterity of Ham, who use the trade of grasing, had chosen it for that purpose.

V. 41. And the habitations] or the Maonites; as though it were the proper name of those scevite Arabians, who lived under tents.

V. 43. The rest] the remainder of them whom Saul had destroyed, 1 Sam. 15. 7. and David 2 Sam. 8. 12.

CHAP. V. VERS. I.

WAs given] for Ioseph in the person of his two sonnes, which Iacob had adopted, had a double portion in the land of canaan, Gen. 48. 5. according to the right of the first borne, Deut. 21. 17. [is not] hee was to be the first, and have preheminance in the family, as the first borne had, besides his double share. So one of the prerogatives of the first borne, was conferred upon Ioseph, and the other upon Iudah, Gen. 49. 8. And this seemeth to be touched in this place, to shew the reason why Iudah is set foremost in these genealogies, and not Ioseph.

V. 2. Chiefe rulers] before David the tribe of Iudah, had but only the preheminance of place, and honour; in David is got the degree of the Kingdome, untill the captivity of Babylon: and after that it had the governors: and when they failed, it kept that of the great Senate, or Councill of the nation, see Psal. 60. 7.

V. 4. Ioel] who was descended from some of the sonnes of Ruben.

V. 6. Tilgath] elsewhere called Tiglath-pileser, [...] *Pe [...]*s [...]r.

V. 7. Brethren] of the descent of the three last sonnes of Ruben, v. 3. [was reckoned] it seemes hee meanes that of v. 17.

V. 8. Who dwelt] this may be referred either to the tribe of

Ruben in general, Ios. 13. 15. or to B [...] I [...], that is to say, to his posterity.

V. 10. Hagarites] that is to say, the Is [...] aelites: descended from Abraham by Hagar, Psal. 83. 6.

V. 13. Their brethren] the meaning is, that every one of these was the head of a family, of all which families jointly A [...] i was the head v. 15.

V. 16. Shar [...] n] this was a city beyond Iordan, besides that of Isa 35. 2. which was in the tribe of Ephraim on this side.

V. 20. Were helped] by God, by meanes of some manifest miracle, v. 22.

V. 22. Many] therefore all the countrey was left to be spoyled: [the warre] God did fight therein as it were personally.

CHAP. VI. VERS. X.

Executed] who carried himself like a free and courageous Priest, in the resistance which hee made against King Vzziah, 2 Chron. 26. 17. Others referre this, not to Azariah but to Iohanan his father, whom they beleve to be the same Ieb [...] iada who re-established Gods true service, and the whole Kingdome, delivering it from the tyranny of Athaliah, 2. Kings 11. 14.

V. 14. Seraiah] who was also Ezra's Father, Ezr. 7. 1.

V. 19. Their fathers] forefathers, and ancestors, who gave their names to their families.

V. 20. Of Gershom] the Italian addeth, the sonnes of, those that descended in direct line: [his sonne] that is to say, grand-childe, v. 42. 43. Now many of these names are otherwise in many places of Scripture; according to the custome of the Iewes, who had oftentimes two names.

V. 22. Amminadah] called also Izahar, v. [...] and elsewhere.

V. 27. Elkanah] the father of the Prophet Samuel, 1 Sam. 1. 1.

V. 28. V [...] shni] called Ioel also, v. 33. and 1 Sa [...]. 8. 2.

V. 33. And these] Heman and Asaph, v. 39. and Etban, v.

44. who were the three heads of the foure and twenty orders of sacred singers, 1 Chron. 25. 9.

V. 39. Brother] of the same tribe of Levi; for otherwise they were of two different stocks: the one of Kehath, and the other of Gersho [...], v. 43. [ [...]od] in the Tabernacle, and afterward in the Temple executing of his office.

V. 44. Ethan] called also Ieduthan, 1 Chron. 9. 16. and 25. 1. 3. 6.

V. 49. And his sonnes] by lineall descent from father to sonne: [the place] that is to say, it was done but once a yeare by the high Priest going into the sanctuary, Exod. 30. 10. Levit. 16. 17. as it was done by the other Priests daily carrying the blood of propitiatory sacrifices into the Temple, Levit. 4. 5. 6. 17.

V. 54. Castles] publick houses for priestly residence.

V. 58. Hilen] called also Holen, Iosh. 2 [...]. 15. as many other of these names of cities, are here diversly set down, by reason that according to the time, the names of places doe often alter.

V. 60. Thirteen] joyning to the eleven, the other two [Page] named, Iosh. 21. 16. 17.

V. 61. The sonnes] see, v. 66. [ten cities] whereof there are but eight named, v. 63. but the number is filled, Iosh. 21. 2 [...]. 23 25.

V. 66. The residue] besides Aaron his priestly family, v. 57.

V. 78. By Iericho] see upon, Num. 22. 1.

CHAP. VII. VERS. II.

Whose number] see of this description, 1 Chron. [...]7. 1.

V. 12. Shuppin [...]] Gen. 46. 21. they are called Muppin and Huppin, and Num. 26. 39. Shupham and Hupham: who were the sonnes of Ir, the sonne of Bela, v. 7.

[Hushim] this Hushim is not spoken of elsewhere, in the tribe of Benjamin. There is indeed a Hushim spoken of in the tribe of Dan, Gen. 46. 23. and it is very likely to be the same; otherwise Dan w [...]uld be quite left out in this numbring: and it may very well be, that the word Aber, which followeth, ought to be interpreted another; a terme used in the Hebrew, in detestation of a thing or person, which they will not call by its name, by reason of the horrible idolatry which was brought up, and used in Dan. Whereupon also Rev. 7. 5. Dan is left out for some such reason. And Zabulon is also left out in this place for some unknown reason.

V. 13. Bilha] Iacobs concubine, Gen. 30. [...].

V. 14. The sonnes] the Italian, the sonne, that is to say, descended from him, for Ashriel was the son of Machir, sonne of Manasseth, Num. 26. 29. 31. [whom shee] the Italian addeth, the wife of Gilead, it hath been necessary to supply these words, by reason that in these books are some mutilations, which have happened by some unknown meanes.

V. 15. The second] the Italian, the other, the head of the stock of the posterity of Manasseh, for *Zelophe [...]*ad was the sonne of Hepher, the sonne of Gilead, Manasseh his grand-child, Num. 26 33.

21. The men of Gath] it is likely that this happened whilst the children of Israel were in Egypt, in some inroad which th [...]se Ephraimites made upon the *Phili [...]*ines, or the Philistines upon them.

V. 22. Ephraim] because between Ephraim Iosephs sonne, and these who were slain, there are seven generations; and it is not likely that Ephraim was yet livi [...]g: therefore by Ephraim must bee understood *Za [...]*ad himselfe, either because hee had two names, or because hee was so called by reason that hee was head of the tribe.

V. 23. [...]eriah] that is to say, in affliction.

V. 27. Non] elsewhere called Nun, the father of Ioshua, Moses his successor.

V. 28. Gaza] the Italian, Aza, a city in the tribe of Ephraim not mentioned elsewhere; for it cannot be Gaza of the Philistines which was farre from Ephraim.

V. 34. Shamer] Italian, Semer, which is the same as Shomer v. 32.

V. 38. Iether] which is the same as Ithran in the precedent verse.

CHAP. VIII. VERS. VI.

They removed] the Scripture specifieth not when, nor how, nor wherefore this happened.

V. 7. He removed] seeking a more commodious habitation.

V. 8. After he] the aforesaid Gera [had sent them away] namely by the aforesaid removing. It should seem the meaning is, that of that great Family of Ehud, which at first dwelt in Geba, one part went into Manahat; and the other which was descended from Shaharim, went into the land of Moah.

V. 13. Aialon, namely of the countrey which was about this city, for the city belonged to the tribe of Dan, Iosh. 19. 42. some believe that this happened after the captivity.

V. 21. Shimhi] it is likely to bee the same as Shema, v. 13.

V. 29. The father] that is to say, the head of the Gibeonites, called Iehiel, 1 Chron. 9. 35.

V. 32. These also] namely part of these heads with their Families: [over against] for Ierusalem was scituate in the land of Benjamin, and therefore was joyning to the rest of the countrey where the other Families of the Benjaminites did dwell.

V. 33. *N [...]*r] called also Abiel, 1 Sam. 9. 1. [Abinadab] it may bee the same as Ishui, 1 Sam. 14. 49. [Eshbaal] called also Ishbosheth, see upon, 2 Sam. 2. 8.

V. 34. Meri [...]baal] called also Mephibosheth, 2 Sam, 4. 4.

CHAP. IX. VER. II.

ISraelites] some of the ten tribes, which had joyned themselves to the tribe of Iudah, before the captivity, 2 Chron. 31. 1. and, 34. 6. under which are comprehended they of Iudah a [...]so: [Nethinims] the word signifieth men dedicated, and subject to some service: the common opinion is, that they were of the Gibeonites posterity, which were subject to mean and laborious services, Iosh. 9. 23.

V. 4. Amihud] if this bee the same with the numbering in Neh. 11. 4. there is great diversity in the names.

V. 5. Shilonites] they are thought to bee the posterity of Sela, the sonne of Iudah.

V. 11. The ruler] the second Priest, and deputy to the high Priest, Num. 3. 32▪ Now this is [...]cant by Azariah, [Page] who is also called Seraiah, Neh. 11. 11.

V. 18. Hitherto] to this houre and at this time, when this book was gathered out of the ancient Chronicles: [Kings Gate] one of the Temple gates, for each gate was assigned to one of the chiefe families, 1 Chron. 26. 13. see of this gate upon 2 Kings 16. 18 Ezech. 46. 1. 2. [*Port [...]*rs] the chief of the Porters of which, see vers. 22.

V. 19. Keepers of the gate] in the old time, anciently, before the Temple was built: [the hoste] when the people marched in the Desart, in manner of an Hoste or Camp, encompassi [...]g the holy Tabernacle like a Kings or Generals sent: [of the entry] of the said Tabernacle which had no gates.

V. 20. Was with him] he had been singularly guided by Gods Spirit in his generous actions and accompanied by his blessing all his life time, Num. 25. 11. 12.

V. 21. Zechariah] in the time of David, 1 Chro. 26. 1. 2. [of the Tabernacle] which David had made for the Arke, 2 Sam. 6. 17.

V. 22. All these] of which, see ver. 17. [Samuel] there is no mention of this any where else: it may [...] this order was made after the Ark was sent home from the Philistines, 1 Sam 7. 1.

V 23. *Sat [...]*ey] this is also referred to  Davids time▪ [of the house] some hold, that by the house of the Lord, here is meant the Tent which David erected for the Tabernacle in Ierusalem, 2 Sam. 6. 17. and by the house of the Tabernacle, Moses his Tebernacle which was in Gibeon with the Altar, 2 Chron. 1. 3. 5.

V. 25. With them] namely, with those foure chief ones, v. 17. who alwayes were neer the Temple in Ierusalem. N [...]w their brethren were divided into foure and twenty Reliefes, or Orders, 1 Chron. 26. according to which they were to enter into service, week after week, 2 Kings 11. 5.

V. 26. The Chambers] whereof, see 1 Kings 6. 5.

V. 27. Round about] in the Chambers, which were in the porticoes, which encompassed the body of the Temple.

V. 28. Had the charge] see upon 2 Kings 12. 9.

V. 30. The ointment] the Italian hath it, the perfume, whereof see Exod. 30▪ 7. 34.

V. 31. In the pa [...]] a kinde of an offering, Levit. 2. 5.

V. 32. Shewbread] of which, see Levit. 24. 5. 6.

V. 33. Day and night] morning and evening at the twice offering of the daily offerings.

V. 35. And in G [...]beon] Sauls race is here reiterated for some unknown cause.

CHAP. X. VER. XIV.

ENquired not] he did not humbly submit himselfe to Gods silence, whereby he denied his [...], a [...]d went on to question with the devils, 1 Sam. 28. 7. and had not used those laudable and and holy instances of true humiliation, conversion, and prayers, to move and encline the Lord to reveale his will unto him.

CHAP. XI. VER. VIII.

ROund about] building up the inside about the place, even from the Terrace or Mi [...]lo.

V. 10. To make him] to maintaine and strengthen him in his Kingdom against all his enemies.

V. 14. And they] this Eliazar, and Shammath with him, who is named 2 Som. 23. 11.

V. 24. The three] which three were Abishai, [...] enaja [...], and Asael, 2 Sam 23. 16. 20. 24.

V. 26 E [...] hanan] 2 Sam. 23. 24. some of these Captaines had other names, and here there are more set down then in Samuel, whether it were that David did encrease it afterwards, or that he did substitute others in the place of them that dyed, or that those which are named after ver. 42. had some other Offices besides Samuel his thirty.

V. 42. Thirty with him] this Adina was a Colonell, and had thirty Captaines more under him in his Regiment.

CHAP. XII. VER. I.

KEpt himselfe close] and durst not converse freely in the land of Israel, of which Ziklag was in those dayes, 1 Sam. 27. 6.

V. 2. Brethren] people of the same Tribe of Benjamin, as Saul was.

V. 4. Among the thirty] namely, inferiour Capta [...]n [...], which hee commanded as Colonel.

V. 8. Into the hold] namely, into Ziklag it selfe, which was in the wilderness of Iudah, or some of those strong holds where David fortified himselfe, 1 Sam. 23. 14. 19. 2 [...].

V. 15. Went over] in Sauls dayes, to goe and joyne themselves with David: [in the first] in the March Moone, when Jordan began to be full, and continued so till after harvest, [...]sh. 3. 15. Ier. 49. 19.

V. 18. The Spirit] this Amasai had a certain divine motion, which did put him on to utter these words with such an efficacie and zeale, that it imprinted in  Davids heart a firm belief of his fidelity, see Iudg 6. 34

V. 20. To Ziglag] the Italian addeth from thence [...] Ziklag, namely, from the Philistines Camp, 1 Sam. 29. 11

V. 22. The Hoste of God] that is to say, a very great one, for the Hebrews doe adde Gods names unto certain things to exaggerate the excellence or greatness of them.

V. 27. Was the leader] the head of the Priests, being Abiathars chiefe Deputy, who was the High Priest, 1 Sam. 23 9.

V. 29. The kindred] the Italian, the brothers, of the [Page] same Tribe.

V. 31. Of the halfe Tribe] on this side Iordan, for of the other halfe mention is made, verse 37.

V. 32. Vnderstanding] some referre this to the knowledge of Astrologie, by which they might fore-see the naturall dispositions of the aire and seasons, and divers accidents of inferiour bodies subiect to the government of the celestiaall ones; things which oft times are of great monent in enterprises, though even at that time, and ever since, judiciall Astrologie hath gone beyond its lawfull bounds, see Est. 1. 13. O hers understand and take it to be onely a naturall wisdom and sagacity, gotten by long experience, to discern and know the very moment of opportunities, a thing very important, and helpfull to the good successe of affaires.

V. 39. *Their [...]*rethren] that is to say, they of the same Tribe.

V. 40. Mules] set to draw Ca [...]s.

CHAP. XIII. VERS. II.

AND that it bee] if it please God to shew us that this design is pleasing unto him, granting us blessing and assistance therein; and that hee gain-say some oracle or accident.

V. 3. Let us bring againe] from Kiriath-jearim, 1 Sam. 7. 1. [Enquired not at it] to desire the Oracle of God, for to doe any divine worship there, the people contending themselves to goe to Gibeon where the Altar was, 2 Chron. 1. 5. to sacrifice there.

V. 5. From Shihor] which are the two uttermost [...]ds of Palestine long wayes, see Iosh. 13. 3. 5. [Sh [...]hor] see upon Num. 34. 5.

V. 6. Whose name] is called upon, namely, before the Arke, the faithfull hearts, and eyes being turned that way when they called upon God.

CHAP. XV. VER. II.

NOne ought] the Italian, it is not to carry, it ought to be carried upon Priests shoulders, and not drawn upon a Cart, as it was done at another time; whereupon grew the inconvenience, 2 Sam. 6. 3. [for ever] continually without any variation, untill the time by him prefixed.

V. 5. His brethren] namely, the next of kinne of the same Family as Kohath was of.

V. 8. Elizaphan] that was one of the sonnes of Vzziell, the son of Kohath, Exo. 6. 22. whose posterity was named after his name, whereas the other *Kohathi [...]*s kept the name of Kohath their first Father.

V. 9. Of Hebron] who was also one of Kohaths children▪ Exod 6. 18.

V. 10. Of Vzziel] of his other sonnes besides Elizaphans, whose children were set down before.

V. 11. The Priests] Abiathar was high Priest, and Zadock was his great Deputy, 2 Sam. 8. 17. 1 Kin. 2. 27. according to the order established, Num. 3. 32. Now sometimes there were two of these second Priests, as 2 Chron. 35. 8. whereby one might say, that this Abiathar is he who is called Abimelech 2 Sam. 8. 17. 1 Chron. 24. 3. and thereunto seemeth to be referred that which is said, 1 Kings 4. 4.

V. 12. Sanctifie your selves] prepare your selves for this holy work with ceremoniall purifications, accompanied with the inward purifications of the soul-

V. 13. A brea [...]h] by the death of Uzzah: [sought him not] we had not religiously examined what hee required of us by his Law in this ca [...]e; Or wee had not presented our selves before him, to performe this service rightly according to his wi [...]l.

V. 16. Sounding] joyning, and according the vocal musick with the instrumentall: From hence it appeares that this sacred musick was in use even before  Davids time, though there be no mention made of it in the Law, but  David did afterwards il [...]ustrate and ordaine it, 1  Chron. 25.

V. 18. Of the second] of holy Musitians, under the three foresaid heads: [Ben] hee is left out, verse 20 and 21. wherefore some believe that he had two names, and that hee is the same as is called Azz [...]z [...]ah, verse 21.

V. 20. Alamoth] a terme of musick, whose signification is uncertaine, see upon  Psal. 46. 1.

V. 21. Shemineth] see upon  Psal. 6. 1. [to excell] the Italian,  for songs of victory , upon occasion of some notable victory or deliverance, to magnifie the Lord and rejoyce; or, to guide the song, or as they say, to h [...]ld the Descant.

V. 22. Chiefe] or hee was the chiefe amongst the Levites in the carrying of the Ark, or he had the superintendencie of them which carried it.

V. 23. Doore-keepers] did the office of doore-keepers, to hinder people from c [...]ing neer to it; like to two others, who went behinde v. 24. for the same occasion.

V. 26. Helped the Levites] by some not specified declaration, hee caused the Priests which bare the Arke to stay, [...]nd others succeeded in their places: Now 2 Sam. 6. 13. it is said that David sacrificed an Oxe and a Sheep, at every six places going; here therefore are to be understood greater pauses.

V. 27. All the Levites] see upon Psal. 32. 16. [an [...]phed] see upon 1 Sam. 2. 18.

CHAP. XVI. VERS. IIII.

TO record] unto the Church, Gods benefits and wonders, and to make unto him a perpetual acknowledgement of them.

V. 7. First] the first Psalme or holy Song which hee [Page] gave them was this, for afterwards hee composed and gave them many more, see 2 Sam. 23. 1.

V. 11. His strength] that is to say, his glory, according to the use of the holy language, as if he should say, Seek his glorious presence in his Temple, where he doth manifest himselfe in grace and power.

V. 12. The judgements] his Lawes, or the executions of his justice upon his enemies, he pronouncing the sentence, and putting it in execution by his Almighty Word.

V. 14. Are in all] the fame of what he hath done for us, is spread overall the World.

V. 22. Mine annointed] namely, persons consecrated to my service, in which consecration the externall unction was alwayes employed as a sign: [Prophets] according as the Lord revealed himselfe to the Patriarchs by dreames and visions, Gen. 20. 7.

V. 27. Strength] or glory, or the effects of his Soveraigne power, for the safety of his.

V. 28. And Strength] acknowledgement, and praise for it.

V. 30 The world] by the spirituall reign of the Messias figured by  Davids, shall bee restored in the Church (gathered out of the whole world) all the ruines and disorders which have happened in it through sinne, and the state of it shall bee unmoveable and eternall.

V. 33. To judge] to rule, and governe it.

V. 35. In thy praise] in thy marvellous works, wo [...]thy to be highly solemnized.

V. 39. The Tabernacle] that of Moses, which was then in Gibeon with the Altar, 1 Chron. 21. 29. 2 Chron. 1. 3.

V. 41. Because] using these words by an intercalar verse of all the holy praises, 2 Chorn. 5. 13. and 7. 3. Ezr. 3. 11. Ier. 33. 11.

V. 42. Of God] that is to say, holy.

V. 43. To blesse] to pray and doe his devotions to the Lord, amongst his houshold, in the quality of a Father of a Family, as hee had done publikely in the quality of a King; or to celebrate the same Festivall and joy amongst his own folks as hee had already celebrated amongst all the people.

CHAP. XVII. VERS. V.

FRom Tent] whether he have a regard to the new one which was set up by David, besides Moses his, or whether he meaneth Moses his alone, which had never stood still, but was alwayes removed from place to place.

CHAP. XVIII. VERS. VIII.

Tibbath] citi [...]s called *B [...]*rah and Berothai, 2 Sam. 8. 8.

V. 10. Hadoram] called Ioram in Samuel.

V. 16. Abimelech] called Abimelech in Samuel: [Shausha] called there Seraiah.

CHAP. XXI. VER. I.

STood up] troubled their rest, and hindered the course of Gods blessings, and renewed his combats with the people, assaulting of David their head.

V. 3. Are they not] this numbering of them, will not binde them by stricter bonds, nor make them more faithfull to thee: as your mustered souldiers have in that kinde a more peculiar Oath ministred unto them: [of trespasse] he saith this, perceiving that there was sinne in this enterprise of the Kings, which could not chuse according to the custome of Kings sinnes, but cause some great calamitie to the people.

V. 5. And all they] of all the other Tribes besides Iudah, which was numbred by it selfe, and Benjamin, and Levi, which were not numbred at all, ver. 6.

V. 8. Said] before the plague began.

V. 18. The Angel] not the destroying Angell but the Sonne of God himselfe, who did appear to the Prophets.

V. 20. The Angel] this it is likely was the destroying Angel, ver. 16.

V. 26. Answered him] hee declared by this sign of fire descending from heaven, that hee accepted of his sacrifice, see Lev. 9. 24. Iudg. 6. 21. 1 Kings 18 38. 2 Chron. [...].

V. 28. He sacrificed] he sacrificed there ordinarily, besides that first sacrifice which hee sacrificed there, being commanded by God.

V. 30. Could not] by reason of the great haste he had to appease the Lord, and to deliver Jerusalem from the scourge of mortality: [to enquire] to crare his grace and pardon, by prayere and seacrifices.

CHAP. XXII. VER. I.

This is] this is the place which God hath chosen for the scituation of his Temple, Deut. 12. 5. which David judged', as well by the failing of fire from heaven, 1 Chron. 21. 26. as by expresse revelation.

V. 2. The strangers] they of other Nations who dwelt amongst the Israelites as mercenary workmen, and were not incorporated with Gods people, by community of Religion; unlesse those accurs [...] Nations be [Page] meant which were taken to mercy', and were employed about toilesome labours, as Iosh. 9. 21. 1 Kings 9. 20. 21. [Masons] which were amongst these strangers.

V. 3. Ioynings] to binde and fasten the square stones one with another.

V. 8. Thouhast] not that he condemned  Davids just and necessary warres, which were commanded, approved and blessed by God, 1 Sam. 25. 28. b [...]t only to distinguish the particular vocations of the one, and the other David having been continually employed in warre, to get a firm and durable peace for the people; And Solomon being called to sanctifie that pea [...]e with piety and religion: David to take paines abroad, and Solomon at home. And also to shew the singular sanctity which was required in that enterprize, it being a figure of the spirituall building of the Church, which cannot bee accomplished but by the peace of God.

V. 9. Solomon] that is say, peaceable.

V. 14. My trouble] the Italian, my povertie, in my weak and small humane power, in comparison of God to whom this house must bee built: Others, in mine afflictions, that is to say, warres, and continuall troubles: [an hundred thousand.] see by the certaine rule which may be gathered by the weight of the Talent, Exod. 38. 25. the innumerable and monstrous wealth which David had gathered together.

V. 19. To seeke] to call for his grace and pardon by prayers and sacrifices.

CHAP. XXIII. VER. IV.

The work] of the ordinary ministry in which they where to serve, the Priests in the preparing of their Sacrifices, and other Ceremonies, and instructing of the people, &c. according to their turnes, as they were appointed and divided.

V. 5. And foure thousand] in which number are comprehended the masters which were two hundred eighty and eight, 1 Chron. 25. 7. and the rest were Schollars: [which I made] which I have been the inventor of, Amos 6. 5. and have appointed them to be used in the Temple, by Gods commandement, 2 Chron. 29. 25.

V. 7. Laadan] who in another place is called Libni.

V. 8. The Sonnes] that is to say, his issue, heads of Families in that Kindred, which were in the time of David when this numeration was made: And so must the word Sonnes be understood hereafter.

V. 9. Shimei] this Shimei is not the same as is in the verse following, and might be one of Laadans children which were named before; one body many times having two names.

V. 11. Ziza] it is Zina who was named in the precedent verse.

V. 13. Should sanctifie] should use them holily, as they who were the only persons consecrated thereunto, and accepted of God in this office; whereas if any other had meddled with them, they had been phrophaned: [the most holy things] as the two Altars, the Table, the Candlestick, the Arke, and then certaine portions of meat which remained of the Sacrifices and the Sanctuary it selfe, where none but the high Priest might come in, see upon Levit. 2. 3.

V. 14. Were named] they had no other name but onely were Levites, having prerogative of honour, above the rest of their Tribe, see 1 Chron. 26. 23.

V. 16. [*...]*s the chiefe] in this numbering which David caused to be set down.

V. 21. The Sonnes] of these two Sonnes of Merari, Exod. 6. 16. came [...]orth two branches which in  Davids time had these heads of their Nations.

V. 22. Tooke them] according to the Law, Num. 36. 6.

V. 24. Of twenty years] Num. 8. 24. it was set down that the Levites should be numbred from five and twenty yeares and upward, and that at thirty they should come into actuall service: But it should seem, that the place of Gods service being become permanent in one place, and the people encreased and in peace, and consequently Gods service much encreased in the labour of it, God did command David to anticipate this numbering, calling them to doe the service five yeares sooner, for to encrease the number of them that should doe service, 2 Chron. 31. 17.

V. 26. No more carry] as they were wont to doe, while the Tabernacle was in the Wildernesse, Num. 4. 4. Now here it should seeme David would say, that the service of those ancient times required greater strength, abil [...]ty of body, and a more mature and staid judgement.

V. 29. Of measures] from hence it appeares that the Levites had the care and over-seeing of all publike measures, as things that were holy, and rules of legality [...]and uprightnesse in all trading; and that they kept the patterns of them in the Temple, whereupon the just shekel is called the shekel of the Sanctuary, see upon, Exod. 30. 13.

V. 30. Every morning] at the houers of the daily offerings morning and evening, 1 Chron. 9. 33. Neh. 11. 17.

V. 31. Burnt Sacrifices] solemn and publike ones: [by number] namely of singers according to the their divisions and turnes, to be present at these Sacrifices.

V. 32. The Charge of the Sonnes] to help them in their functions, the Levites being called the Priests Ministers, Num. 3 6. 9.

OF the sonnes] the lineall descendents from father to sonne.

V. 2. Before their father] while their father was yet living.

V. 3. Zadock] Zadock and Abimelech in  Davids time were the heads of the two branches of the priestly line of Eliazer and Ithamar, and were in stead of two great deputies to the high Priest.

V. 5. One sort] not setting the one lineadge before the other: as likewise the two aforenamed had their office equall, without any superiority: [the governours] namely Zadock and Abimelech, 1 Chron. 9. 11. 2 Chron. 35. 8.

V. 6. The scribe] a man who understood, and was a Doctor of the holy w [...]it, or else a writer, or a Secretary.

V. 19. To come] according to their turnes week by week, see 2 Kings 11. 5. 1 Chron. 9. 25. [under Aaron] or his successor in the place of high Priest: [as the Lord] according to the degree of authority and dignity that God had bestowed upon him.

V. 20. The rest] the other families of the Gershomites, besides those that have been spoken of already, 1 Chron. 23. 16. 17. [of the sonnes] those other families retained the name of Amram in generall: but afterwards againe they were subdivided in Shubael who was one of his posterity, and then afterwards in Iedeiah, who came from Shubael: which divisions happened, either by reason of the celebrity of some of the descent, or by the multitude and encrease of the particular family: [Shubae.] called also Shebuel, 1 Chron. 23. 16.

V. 21. Rehabiah] who is spoken of, 1 Chron. 23. 17. [the first] in Dauids time when they were numbred.

V. 22. Sh [...] omoth] called also Shelomith, 1 Chron. 23. 18. the meaning is, that Shelomoth was their chiefe.

V. 23. Of Hebron] by 1 Chron. 23. 19. it appeares that here is some defects, happened through the injury of the times, and may easily be supplied by that other place, see the like example 1 Chron. 2. 53.

V. 26. Iaaziah] issued, as it is very likely, from Mahli, whose posterity took his name, in some notable subdivision: or by succession of time, by reason of Iaaziahs dignity: [Beno] being the first borne of Iaaziah, was the head of the Families of the rest who were his younger brothers, v. 27.

V. 28. Of Mahli] namely of his other issue, which retained his name, besides Iaaziah see, 1 Chron. 23. 21.

V. 29. Kish] this also was another of A [...] a [...] lies stock, 1 Chron. 23. 21.

V. 30. The sonnes also] that is to say, the posterity: [were the sonnes] the families which were called by the names of these ancient heads: or which had these heads in David's time.

V. 31. The principall] without observing, in their order of relieving one another, any precedency either by reason of eldership, or greatnesse of number, or power: [over against] so that as there were five and twenty orders of Priests, there were just so many of Levites, who minist [...]ed unto them; whose heads are before set down.

CHAP. XXV. VERS. I.

OF the hoste] it is likely that hereby is meant the holy hoste, of those that ministred in the Temple, according to the frequent use of this word in the Law, the heads of which have been set down, 1 Chron. 24. 31. v. 2. [the sonnes of Asaph] these three heads were yet alive in the time of David, 1 Chron. 15. 17. and had before been the heads of the Musicians, but here the number of them i [...] encreased, and the order more exactly set down: [prophesied] to sing and play holy songs in the Church, with zeal and fervor, and motions of the body, like to the prophets; using musick therein also to raise up the soule to God, in imitation of the prophets: 1 Sam. 10. 5. 2 Kings 3. 15. Asarelab called also Iesharelah, v. 14. [according to &c.] the Italian hath it, under the King, playing and singing the Psalmes which were composed by David, and at times, and with tunes, set down by him.

V. 3. Zeri] called Izri v. 11. the Italian, next to Mattithia in this verse addeth [Shimei:] this name must be supplied from v. 17. see the like example, 1 Chron. 24. 23.

V. 4 Vzziel] who is the same as Azareel v. 18. [Shebuel] called also Shubaal, v. 20.

V. 5. Seer] that is to say, Prophet, 1 Sam. 9. 9. whether it be, that Heman had the gift of prophecy, or that this name in this place signifieth only a divine finger: [in the words] in Psalmes and songs which God had inspired his Prophets with, upon the subject of victories which hee had granted to his people, oftentimes pointed at by this manner of speech, exalting the horne. And also upon the exaltation of Dauids Kingdome, and especially Christs.

V. 6. To the Kings order] see upon v. 2.

V. 7. Two hundred] see upon, 1 Chron. 23. 5.

V. 8. The Small] there was no priviledge of precedency to be had, either for age, degree, or any other thing: [the teacher] each order being composed of a certain number of teachers and schollers.

Divisions] there were four and twenty relieves, and exchanges of porters, as well as of Priests, singers and ministrong Levites: and these came in also to do their service by turnes weekly: [The Korhites] the i [...]ue of Kore: [Meshelemiah] who is the same as Shelemiah v. 14. the meaning is, that these three families of the house of Kore namely Meshelemiah, and Obed Edom. v. 4. and Hosa v 10. were destined to this office of being porters: [o [...] the sonnes] namely of his posterity▪ [of Asaph] this is not that famous singer of the same nome; but it may be the same as Ebiasaph, 1 Chron. 9. 19.

V. 5. Blessed] namely Obed Edom, with numerous i [...], and other prosperities, 2 Sam. 6. 11.

V. 6. Ruled] being there in rulers over hundreds, and thousands, according to the order established, Exod. 18. 25.

V. 12. One against another] in the same number of relieves, namely foure and twenty.

V. 13. As well the small] indifferently, without [...]ing one before the other, were porters for the Temple taken out of th [...]se families: and out of the whole number were made [...]oure and twenty relieves, as in the other sacred ministeries. But lots were not drawn amongst these, according to the families, of the foresaid heads, for to relieve one another weekly, one family after another; but they drew their lots according to the gates, 1 Chron. 9. 18. 25. so that there being in each reliefe, men of these three families, of Meshelemiah, Obed Edom; and Eosah, every one did his function at that gate, which the draft of this first lot assigned to each family.

V. 14. Shelemiah] to the posterity of Shelemiahs other children besides Zachariah, to whom the keeping of the Northern gate fell by lot

V. 15. To Obed Edom] and to his posterity: [the house] by 2 Kings. 22. 4. Neh. 11. 25. it appeares that there were in the gates of the Temple certain places appointed to gather the peoples gifts which were then made to the use of the Temple, as well for the building of it, as for the ornaments, and ordinary service of it. And this sense seemeth to bee verified by 2 Chron. 25. 24. Others oxpound it, the house of meetings, where the sacred ministers did meet to consult of publick affaires.

V. 16. To Shuppim] to Hosha the sonne of Shuppim Merarite v. 10. unlesse these were two brothers, whose Families were united under one heade [westward] on this side of the Temple there was no g [...]te through which one might passe out of the [...]urt of the Gentiles, to the court of the people: but only from the outward suburbs called Parbar, by the court of the Gentiles: and this Westerne gate was called Shallecheth, of casting out; because that they did use to cast out ashes, sweepings, and such other ordures of the Temple, out at that gate: out of which in processe of time grew the terrace, Isa. 6. 13. to which the go [...]ng up towards the East made a head, where there was a great valley▪ [ward against] there were every day as many men employed at one gate, as at another, namely si [...], who lodged in the six little chambers Ezec. 40. 10. for on the East side where the people did not come in, Ezec. 44. 1. 2. 3. there were six, on the North and South side, where the people came in [...]nd brought their gifts to the Temple, there were foure porters at each gate, and two for the houses of gatherings.

V. 18. At Parbar] it seems to be the same place as is called *P [...]*rvarim, 2 Kings 23. 11. in the Italian, for the English translation hath it in: [the suburbs] and that their strangers did carry their offerings, as the Israelites did, at the other two gates. And the name seemeth to agree therewith, for Parbar, may signifie fruit, or rent comming from strangers.

V. 20. Ahijah] the meaning is, Ahijah was the chiefe of all these sacred treasurers; amongst which Iehieli Zetham and Joel, with their Families, whereof they were heads, had the care of the consecrated money, brought in by command, or by the peoples liberality: [the treasures] see upon, 2 Kings 12. 4. three sorts of these holy treasures, but here is only made mention of two, there being no need of the third which was the sollicited collection, the other two being sufficient of themselves.

V. 21. Chiefe Fathers] the Italian addeth, there were chiefe, namely at that time as David made these orders.

V. 23. Amramites] the posterity of Amram by Moses his sonne; who upon some occasion (to avoid superstition, or usurpation of some preheminance forbidden by the Lord) did not leave his own name to his children; but let them passe in the common name of Levites and Amramites, see 1 Chron. 23. 14. [Vzzielites] the posterity of Vzziel, Amrams brother Exod. 6. 18. of whom there is nothing spoken hereafter; whether there bee any mutilation in this setting down, which might happen through the injury of times; or whether this Family bee comprehended in some of the other.

V. 24. The sonne] descended from him by a direct line, from father to sonne: [ruler] this was a second head of the sacred treasures, namely of that kinde which was extraordinarily ordained for the building of the Temple.

V. 25. His brethren] his kindred descended from Moses his other sonne, Eliezer.

V. 27. To maintain] for the continuall maintenance of the Temple after it was built: to which use, it should seeme, this stock of money was at first appointed leaving [Page] the first for the originall building. Vnlesse by the word, maintaining, the building it selfe bee meant, or a supply and ayd for that worke.

V. 29. Iezharites] namely the posterity of Izhar the sonne of Kohath the sonne of Levi, Exod. 6. 18. 21. [outward businesse] by Neh. 11. 16. it appeares that hereby must be understood the whole function of the Levites, besides what they did in the Temple: whether it were in the office of Iudges and inferior Magistrates, Deut. 16. 18. who proceeded only by the exposition of the Law, 1 Chron. 23. 4. 2 Chron. 19. 11. Or in the care of providing without, all that was necessary for the building and maintenance of the Temple, and service of God.

V. 30. In all businesse] having care, and power to cause the Law of God to be observed; and by these the Kings decrees, made thereupon, were put in execution in the Countrey.

V. 31. In the fortieth yeare] which yeare David made these partitions of places, before hee appointed Solomon for his successor: [Iazer] which city was assigned to the children of Merari, Iosh. 21. 34. 39. but it is not said upon what reason or occasion the Hebroniles, did seat themselves there.

V. 32. For every matter] as v. 30.

CHAP. XXVII. VER. I.

The children] after the division of the sacred offices, the military ones were divided, being appointed and disposed of by David in a new manner, besides the old division of the people into families, thousands, and hundreds &c. [that served] these were after the manner of Legionary soldiers, mustered under divers Captaines; who had all one chiefe commander of the Legion, to be ready upon all occasions at home and abroad, serving by turnes a moneth in a year: and likely the heads were continually by the Kings person. though the men staid at home, still ready at the Kings beck.

V. 3. Of Perez] of Iudahs race, Gen. 46. 12.

V. 4. the ruler] as who should say, the Lievtenant Generall, v. 6. 7.

V. 5. A chiefe Priest] the Italian, principall officer, because that besides this military charge, he was also a court officer, as great Provost or Captaine of the guard, 2 Sam. 8. 18. [in his course] in his course wherein Amizada [...] was Lievtenant, having inferior captaines under him.

V. 6. The thirty] of which see, 2 Sam. 23. 24. [above] as being one of the six Colonels, 2 Sam 23. 20. 22.

V. 7. After him] that is to say, after hee was dead, 2 Sam. 2. 23.

V 8. Shamhuth] who seemeth to be the same as Shammoth the Havorite, 1 Chron. 11. 27. and Shammah, 2 Sam. 23. 25.

V. 11. The Zarhites] the children of Zarah the sonne of Iudah, Gen. 46. 12.

V. 15. Heldai] it seemeth to be the same as Heleb, 2 Sam. 23. 29. and Heled, 1 Chron. 11. 30.

V. 16. Over the tribes] the Italian addeth, there were rulers over &c. it is uncertain whether these were commanders in warre severall from the particular precedent numbrings, who should command in case of a generall levie of all the tribes, over all the heads of hundreds, and thousands; or whether they were governours in the politick government, and over the Magistrates of judicature: to which seemeth to be referred that which is spoken, 2 Chron. 19. 11.

V. 18. Elihu] called also Elijah, 1 Sam. 16. 6.

V. 21. Of the tribes] amongst which Asher is left out, for some unknown reason.

V. 23. Took not] for though hee had commanded it, and begun; yet all was left unperfect, and was broken off, see 2 Sam. 24. 1. 1 Chron. 21. 5. 6. [because] and therefore the curious requiring of the exact number of them, was a tempting of God by an exact curiosity, as it were to make good his promise.

- V. 24. Because] for that hee had commanded the people to be numbred below the age appointed by t [...]e Lord.
- V. 25. Treasures] gathered up in Ierusalem: [in the fields] they were store-houses of provisions, and fruites of the earth, as 1 Kings 9. 19. or of the tributes gathered of cities without Jerusalem.
- V. 26. Of the field] in the Kings own lands: and so consequently.
- V. 27. Over the] over the dressing of them, and the ma [...]ing belonging to them.
- V. 29. Sharon] it is not certaine whether here be meant the fruitfull valley which was in Ephraim, Isa. 33. 9. and 35. 2. or the other Sharon beyond [...] da [...], 1 Chron. 5. 16.
- V. 32. Uncle] or cozen: [a Scribe] the Italian, a learned man, the Hebrew, a Scribe, that is to say, a man who understood the Scriptures. Or a Doctor of the Law: [was with] as a tutor or a governour.

CHAP. XXVIII. VER. II.

OF rest] where it might remaine constantly, without being removed from place to place: [for the foot-stoole] the Arke is so called, Psal. 99. 5. and 132. 7. for the Lord being represented sitting above the cherubines which covered the Arke, as upon a throne, the body of the Arke was in stead of a foot-stoole.

V. 4. Chose m [...]] me and my posterity untill the [Page] coming of the Messia [...].

V. 8. And seek] that you study, and employ your selves therein, to gaine a lively knowledge of them, and employ your selves in the keeping of them.

V. 11. Of the mercie seat] the cover of the Ark is so called Exod. 25. 17 over the which were the Cherubins, and thereby is understood the whole Arke, and consequently the sanctuary wherein it stood, and more generally the holy place, and the whole body of the Temple.

V. 12. By the Spirit] of God, who revealed unto him all that should be done to the Temple, as he had antiently told Moses the so me of the Tbbernacle, Exod. 25. 40. see verse; 9. [the treasures] as much as to say, that those Chambers should be employed to put up the holy treasures in, for the Officers lodgings, which served weekly, according to their turns; and to keep the vessells, and other things, [of the house] of these two kinds of holy treasures, see upon 1 Chron 25. 20.

V. 15. The Candlesticks] these are others, besides the ten golden Candlesticks which were in the holy place, 1 Kings 7. 49. for these served in the Chambers, for their domesticall uses, who ministred.

V. 16. The Tables of] there is no mention made else where of these silver Tables, nor what use they were for, but questionlesse, they were for some particular, and domestick use.

V. 18. The charret] the Arke is so called, which was as Gods throne, not constant as it is in heaven, but moveable. As much as to say, a signe of his presence in grace and power, which served only to direct the faithfull to the heavenly Throne, which is the seat of Gods eternall, and glorious presence; neither was it fixed in the Church, but that it might depart from thence, if the people did shew themselves unworthy of it, as Ezech. 1. 26. and 10. 13. 16.

V. 19. Vpon me] the Italian hath it, which was brought unto me, namely, by some Prophet.

V. 21. Every willing] the Italian, besides those that shall willingly employ themselves, namely, to build, and make the vessels of the Temple, as Exod. 35. 25 26.

CHAP. XXIX. VER. I.

WHom alone] none else of my children, nor all of them together to divide the Kingdom amongst them: [young] it appeareth by [...]e [...]ams age, 1 Kings 12. 13. that Solomon was married, but he was not yet [...]me to the perfect age of man, being not above eighteen years of age, [...] thereabouts.

V. 3. Of mine own] which I had gathered for my selfe, after I had consecrated to God, his part.

V. 4. To overlay] with little plates beaten out, and so laid on: [the houses] the gold was to cover the Temple walls, and the silver to cover the other sacred roomes which were about it.

V. 8. Stones] precious, or fine ones, as jasper, or porphirie, &c.

V. 11 The Victory] the Italian hath it, the eternity, or the victory and strength.

V. 15. For wee] acknowledging that by reason of the brevity of our lives, we cannot perpetually enjoy these things; we doe out of meere devotion, and piety consecrate them unto thee, which thou out of thy meer bounty wilt requite with eternall life and glory, see Matth. 19 21. Luke 16. 9. [abiding] the Italian hath it, hope, of escaping from death, see Psal. 49. 10 and 89. 48.

V. 18. keep this] this holy and free-will of consecrating themselves, and all they have, through thy grace and bounty, to thy service.

V. 21. For all Israel] for every particular person amongst the people.

V. 22. The second time] besides the first time, 1 Kings 1. 33. For that consecration was upon a sudden, and in a manner tumultuarily in the sight of those of Ierusalem only, to break off Adonijah his faction; but this was done with good respite, and great solemnity in the presence of the heads of all the Tribes: [unto the Lord] to be consecrated unto him in the government of his people: [Priest] namely High Priest, after that Abiathar was deposed, 1 Kings 2. 27.

V. 23. Of the Lord] of the Kingdom by him established and sanctified, to govern his people, and to be figured of Christs Kingdom, and where himselfe was Soveraign Lord and Law-giver.

V. 24. Submitted themselves unto] the Italian hath it, laid their hands under, they sweare to bee faithfull unto him, with the ceremonie of laying their hand under his thigh, as Gen. 24. 2. and 47. 29. Others plainely submitted themselves unto him.

29. In the book] in the two books of Samuel composed by these three Prophets.

V. 30. The times] the variety of chances, which happened in his dayes both prosperous and aduerse.

THE SECOND BOOK OF THE CHRONICLES.

[Page]

The ARGUMENT.

THe subject of this Book is the same as that of the two Books of Kings, save only that after the separation of the ten Tribes, this gives over the History of the Kings of Israel, and insisteth only upon that of the Kings of Judah, untill the time of the captivity of Babylon.

---

CHAP. I. VERS. V.

SOught unto it] they went thither to pray and offer sacrifices, and doe their devotions.

V. 10. Goe out] that I may conduct them as their King, Captaine, Guide, and Shepheard: [Iudge] that is to say, governe them by way of Iustice.

CHAP. II. VER. VI.

SAve only] to shew, that he did not intend to build a house to the infinite God, in that manner as Idolaters did build houses for their Idols, to keep them shut up, and tie them to their wills; but only to serve him and call upon him according to his command.

V. 7. In purple] in wooll died in these colours, Exod. 25. [...].

V. 8. Algume] see upon 1 Kings 10. 12:

V. 10. Twenty thousand] this was another provision then that which is mentioned, 1 Kings 5. 11. for that was for the house of King Huram yearely, and this was for the Sidonian workmen, during the whole time as they wrought.

CHAP. III. VER. I.

Where the Lord appeared to] the Italian, had shewed to, or where the Lord had appeared to David.

V. 3. The first measure] this might be some measure which was bigger then the common and ordinary measure, as who should say, geometrical cubits, see Ezech. 40. 5. and 41. 8. Others translate it in the first measure there were sixty Cubits, that is to say, in the body of the building, properly called the Temple, severall from the porticoes, and the Courts, and which was first designed, these measures were observed.

V. 5. Greater] that part of the house which was called the holy place, which was forty Cubits in length, whereas the most holy place was but twenty, 1 Kings 6. 16. 17. [house] namely, the floore thereof, 1 Kings 6. 15. for the walls and seilings were covered with cedar boards, 1 Kings 6. 9. 10. 15. [over-laid] laying over the boards little golden plates, fastened on with mailes whose heads were of the same metall.

V. 6. Garnished] the Italian, covered, he had great store of them set in amongst those chaines which were upon those walls, which were covered with gold: [Parvaim] the signification of this word is uncertaine, some by reason of the affinity of the letters, hold it to be that which in our dayes is called Peru; and that Solomons ships did use to saile thither even in those dayes.

V. 9. Of the nailles] of each one of them, and they were nothing but heads made in the fashion of golden bosses or knops, 1 Kings 6. 18. and they served for heads to the nailles, with which the said plates were fastened to the said Cedar boards; and likely they were set in the midst of the eight squares of those chaines and nets, wherewith the walls were adorned: [the upper Chambers] they were certaine principall roomes of the building of the porticoes appointed for the holy Ministers to make their meales in, like unto refectories; or else for places of meetings and councell, see 1 Chron. 28. 11.

V. 10. Image work] or moveable, which were not fastened nor joynd in, as those which were upon the cover of the Arke, and those which were upon the walls; Others have it moving, that is to say, made as if they were in act of flying, or going.

V. 11. The wings] the foure wings of the two Cherubins together.

V. 14. The vaile] the Italian, the curtaine, which seemeth to have been hanged up before the wall, which parted the holy place from the most holy one, 1 Kings 6. 16. [thereon] namely, wrought in embroidery.

V. 15. thirty and five] both of them, for either of them were seventeen cubites and a halfe, to which joyning the pedestall of each, which was of halfe a cubit, they came to bee of eighteen cubits a peece, as it is said, 1 Kings 7. 15. Ier. 52. 21. [Chapiter] the Italian, Capitells, see upon 1 Kings 7. 16.

Their forme] it seemes we ought to understand this of that forme which God prescribed to Moses, Exod. 25. 31. 40. or some other which David had from God, as 1 Chron. 28. 12. 19. [in the Temple] in the forepart of it, called the holy place.

V. 9. The great court] the peoples court, divided into severall parts by porticoes, [with brasse] with plates of brasse, fastened on with nailes.

V. 19. Altar] the Altar of incenses or perfumes.

V. 22 Were of gold] that is to say, covered with little golden plates, laid upon the wood whereof they were made, 1 Kings 6. 30. 2 Kings 18 16.

CHAP. V. VER. III.

IN the Feast] seven or eight dayes before the feast of the Tabernacles, in which dayes was celebrated the feast of the dedication, and immediately after the feast of the Tabernacles, 2 Chron. 7. 9.

V. 4. Levites] the Priests of the Tribe of Levi, Num. 4. 15.

V. 9. Vnto this day] this must bee understood of that time when this History was first written, and not of the time when it was again compiled by Esdras; for the Scripture makes no mention of the Ark, neither at the taking in of Jerusalem, nor after the returne from the captivity.

V. 11. Were sanctified] by ceremoniall purifications, joyned with acts of internall piety and devotion: [did not then] they came at that time all together though afterwards they observed the courses of waiting appointed by David, 1 Chron. 24. and 25.

V. 13. For he is good] whether they sung the 136 Psalme from the beginning to the ending, or other Psalmes, joyning this verse as a burthen unto it, an ordinary thing in your Anthiphones, 1 Chron. 16. 41. [the house] such a cloud as was in the antient Tabernacle, Exod. 40. 34. Num. 9. 15.

CHAP. VI. VER. V.

NEither chose I] not but that there had been other Rulers over the people, but there had been none made with a promise of succession in the same dignity, nor expressly to be the figure of Christ, as David was.

V. 13. Scaffold] in other places called a pillar, 2 Kings 23. 3. 2 Chron. 23. 13. [of the Court] of the people which looked by a direct line towards the Altar, through the gate of the Priests Court, verse 41. [let thy Priests] see the exposition upon Psal, 132. 9.

CHAP. VII. VER. I.

The glory] the thick cloud, a signe of Gods glory, which in this world (though present, and of officacie) is hidden from the senses, and is not to be comprehended by humane understanding, and shall not bee fully revealed, till wee come to everlasting life, see 2 Chron. 5. 13. [the house] namely, the holy and most holy place.

V. 2. Could not] see upon Exod. 40. 35.

V. 3. Upon the] for the cloud was both within and without the Temple, as Exod. 40. 34.

V. 5. Dedicated] see upon 1 Kings 8. 63.

V. 6. Of the Lord] that is to say, holy: [when David praised by their ministry] the Italian, having Davids Psalmes in hand, the subjects of this musick were Davids Psalmes and Hymnes, 1 Chron. 16. 7.

V. 8. The Feast] of the Tabernacles which lasted seven dayes, and was celebrated successively after the dedication, which had also lasted seven dayes.

V. 9. Solemn Assembly] namely, eight dayes after the Feast of the Tabernacles, Levit. 23. 36.

V. 14. Will heale] I will free him from the scourge [...] wherewith he shallbe afflicted.

CHAP. VIII. VER. II.

The Cities] Solomon had first given them to Haram, 1 Kings 9. 11. but hee not accepting of them, restored them to Solomon, which seemeth here to bee pointed at.

V. 10. Over the people] the Italian, that people, which wrought those kinds of works.

V. 11. Because the places] a reason grounded upon some ceremoniall purity, against which divers accidents might befall women, either upon the customes of that woman, or some of her followers, who peradventure did yet retaine many of *Egypt*s prophanities.

V. 14. The man of] a Prophet guided therein by Gods spirit.

V. 18. Ships] the Italian hath it, stuffe to build ships, the Hebrew, ships: but by reason of that they could not come from Tyre into these Countreys without fetching an infinite great compasse, wee must understand the Hebrew words, for ships in severall peeces, or for Timber and materials to make ships of.

CHAP. IX. VER. IV.

HIs ascent] the Italian, and what he offered in the house, &c. or the ascent by which he went up into the house, &c. see upon 1 Kings 10. 5.

V. 11. Terraces] the Italian, entries, along by the [Page] railles thereos, as it is expounded, 1 Kings 10. 12.

V. 12. Besides that] the meaning may bee that he did not give her presents of the same quality, but farre more precious; Or that besides, that which hee gave her in exchange, or requitall of her presents, he added many more thereunto, out of his own meere bounty, and liberality.

V. 18. Fastened] with golden tackes, hooks, or nailes.

CHAP. XI. VER. VI.

HEe built] that is to say, he fortified.

V. 10. Fenced Cities] by scituation, and nature, whereupon hee thought it good to strengthen them by art also.

V. 15. For the Devils] that is to say, for the Idols in which the Devils were served, Levit. 17. 7. From hence it appeares that besides the Calves, in which Ieroboam pretended (though fasly) to serve the true God; he erected also, or suffered to be erected, other Pagan Idols.

V. 17. And Solomon] before he was corrupted by Idolatry, which howsoever it appeareth by this place, he did not commit himselfe, but onely suffered, and gave way to it in behalfe of his women; unlesse his conversion towards the latter end of his dayes bee here pointed at, which may be gathered out of the book of Ecclesiastes.

V. 20. Maacah] called also Micaiah the daughter of Vriel, 2 Chron. 13. 2.

V. 22. To bee Ruler] as appointed successor to the Crowne: [hee thought] if it were out of the order of birth, or without Gods expresse command, it was against Gods command, Deut. 21. 15.

CHAP. XII. VER. I.

V. 1. When] after the afore mentioned three yeeres, 2 Chron. 11. 17.

V. 3. Sukkiims] the Hebrew word signifieth people which dwelt in Tents, called Nomades, or Scenite Arabians.

V. 7. Some deliverance] the Italian, within a while I will grant them deliverance, others have it, I will grant them a little deliverance.

V. 8. They shall be] they shall be constrained to yeild themselves unto him, and to accept of such conditions as he shall please: [my service] the Italian addeth, the difference between my service, &c. that is to say, how happy their estate is that lerve God according to his will; and contrariwise, what a misery it is to be subject to prophane people, for a puni [...]ishment of disobedience to God, see Isa. 26. 13.

V. 9. Took away] Ieroboam giving them him to deliver Ierusalem from spoile, and destruction.

V. 12. Things went well] the Italian, there were good things, much piety in many men, and many remainders of the true worship of God; Whereupon for the Elects & the holy seeds sake, God spared the people in genenall, see Gen. 18. 24. 26. 2 Chron. 19. 3.

V. 14. He did evill] by this, Idolatry is pointed at, in which is the excesse of sinne.

V. 16. Abijah, called also Abijam, 1 Kings 14. 31.

CHAP. XIII. VER. II.

Michaiah] see upon 2 Chron. 11. 20.

V. 5. Of Salt] the Italian, inviolable, Heb. of salt, see upon Num. 18. 19.

9. With a] in this, there seemeth to be some imitation of the Law of consecration of Priests, Exo. 29. 1. Lev. 8. 2. but as superstition is alwayes liberall in corporall things, so these people had multiplied the number of sheep.

V. 19. Ephraim] or Ephron, and may bee the same place as is mentioned, Ioh. 11. 54.

CHAP. XIV. VER. III.

OF the strange Gods] namely of Idols, for the high places dedicated to the true God remained yet.

V. 9. Mareshah] a Citie scituate in the frontiers of Iudah, Josh. 15. 44.

V. 11. And in thy name] for thy service, and glory by thy will, and under thy conduct, calling upon thy name, believing in thee, and trusting in thy favour.

V. 13. Gerar] a City of the Philistines, the peoples perpetuall enemies, and it is very likely that in this enterprise they had joyned themselves with the Ethiopians.

V. 15. The Tents] these were moveable, and ambulatory habitations which certain Arabians used, going from place to place, feeding their cattell, who joyned with these Ethiopians, who came through their countrey.]

CHAP. XV. VER. I.

The Spirit] he was moved by a divine, and prophetick inspiration.

V. 3. *A lo [...]*g season] long since, in the Iudges times, and now again under Roboam.

V. 7. Your hands] be not weary, nor doe not grow slack, in the valiant pursuite of restoring Gods service, for in so doing you shall prosper.

V. 8. Oded] called also Azaria the son of Oded, v. 1. [renewed] restored it and repaired some what that was decayed in i [...], either through age, or some other accident. Or else he consecrated it, and purified it, from the Idolatrous prophanations.

V. 10. The third] at which time they celebrated the feast of Penticost.

V. 12. To seek] to serve him only, to invoke him, and call upon him, to obtain aide and favour of him.

V. 16. The mother] his grandmother, 1 Kings 15. 2.

V. 17. The high places] namely those high places, [Page] which were consecrated to the true God; for they which were consecrated to idols were taken away, 2 Chron. 14. 3. 5.

V. 19. There was] after the Ethiophians were, 2 Chron. 14. 9. [five and thirtieth] reason forceth us to count these yeares, not from the beginning of Asas reign, but from the separation of the ten tribes; for the last yeare of Baasha falleth with the twentieth yeare of Asa 1 Kings 16. 6. 8. and therefore 2 Chron. 16. 1. it is said that Baasha came against Asa the six and thirtieth yeare, Asa then reigning; which year fol'owing this five and thirtieth year, Reoboam after the said separation reigned seventeen years, Abijah three: and at this time Asa had already reigned fifteen, v. 10.

CHAP. XVI. VER. IV.

The store cities] they were certaine frontier places, where there were armes, and storehouses, or magazines for armes and victualls.

V. 7. Escaped] thou hast made thy selfe unworthy of the victories, which I had prepared for thee upon the Syrians, whom it was better for thee to have to be thine enemies than thy friends, or this armie of the Syrians, is vanished away in thy greatest need, for thou shalt hereafter have other warres with Baashah, in which thou shalt have no aid, nor assistance from Syria, see 1 Kings 15. 32.

V. 12. Yet in his] hee fell into the same sinne of humane confidence, in this accident; as he had done in the other accident of the war against Baashah.

V. 14. Which was filled] the Italian, VWhich he had &c. or which was filled: [with sweet odours] as 2 Chron. 21. 19. see of the Iewes manner of enbalming upon Gen. 50. 2.

CHAP. XVII. VERS. I.

AGainst Israel] against the ten tribes, with which his father had continuall warres 1 Kings 15. 32. Others upon Israel, namely upon that part which was subject to it.

V. 3. In the first] before that in his old age, he fell into his grievous. sinnes: [Baalim] under this kinde of Idols, Iudg. 2. 11. is comprehended all other idolat [...]ie and superstition.

V. 5. Presents] in token of homage and subjection, as 1 Sam. 10. 27. 1 Kings 10. 25.

V. 6. VWas list up] that is to say, hee carried himselfe freely therein, without basenesse, feare, or carnall respect. Or he gloried in that only, and not in riches or worldly honours.

V. 14. Of them] of those men of warre, distributed under the following heads, who did likely stay contirually with the King, with some part of [...]eir men.

V. 16. Offered himselfe] for a Nazarite, Num. 6. 2. according to others, to serve to his glory, for the safety of his people: in the exercise of armes.

V. 19. Those] of which, see v. 2.

CHAP. XVIII. VER. I.

I Oyned affinity] taking Athaliah, Ahabs daughter to wise, sor Iehoram his sonne, 2 Kings 8. 18.

CHAP. XIX. VER. II.

IS wrath] God hath just occasion to bee angry with thee, and punish thee; yet through his fatherly pittie, hee hath more regard to thy piety in other things then to this thy particular offence.

V. 4. From Beer-sheba] from the one end of the land of Judah to the other; for these were the two outermost bounds.

V. 7. There is no] and therefore you ought to conforme your selves, unto that perfect pattern of your soveraign Lords exemplary justice, in being thankfull unto him: and also to know, that whatsoever is not in him; is contrary to his will, and hee will punish it.

V. 8. Of Israel] of that part which was subiect unto him: [for the judgement] to judge in Ecclesiasticall causes; or those which were of the written Law, set down in the Law of God. For in Ecclesiasticall causes it should seem the Priest, and Levites only were Iudges: in the other, the Ecclesiasticall & temporall judges were joyned: the first to set down what was the Law, and the others to examine the fact, and see the Law executed: [for controversies] this seemeth to be referred to causes which are only meerely civill and of reall and positive right, as contracts, sales, bargains &c. [they returned] whetherit were by meanes of the parties appeal, of which there is no expresse mention in the Law; or by the recourse of the Iudges, themselves in difficult, and ambiguous causes, as Exod. 18 26. Deut. 1. 17. according to the commandement, Deut. 17. 8.

V. 10. Between blood] see upon Deut. 17. 8. [between Law] in cases where each partie shall pretend to have right, and ground on the Law of God: doe you endeavour to finde out the true meaning of it, and to resolve the seeming ambiguities, and contradictions, and to know to whom according to its true meaning, it giveth the right.

V. 11. Of the Lord] Ecclesiasticall businesse, pertaining to the religious order, and service of God, or in causes which may be decided by the declaration of the Law: [ruler] see 1 Chron. 27. 16. [the Kings matters] depending upon the Kings statute, being of positive right: [officers] it should seeme they were some inferiour magistrates, from [Page] amongst the Levites, which were in stead of censors, and correctors to maintain the use of the Law, and governe the peoples behaviours in each city: and they received their orders from the great consistory in Ierusalem.

CHAP. XX. VER. I.

BEside the] of their subjects or confederates.

V. 2. The sea] of Sodom.

V. 4. Gathered themselves] every one in their city, to celebrate the fast with prayers and publick devotions: [came] namely to Ierusalem.

V. 5. The new court] it is likely it was the Priests court, which might be renewed, either in its building, or in its use, after some publick precedent prophanation; as the alter had been. 2 Chron. 15. 8.

V. 9. Sword] warre sent for the punishment of mens sinnes: [thy name] that as it is called by thy name, thy house, so thou walt be pleased to shew in it, the true signes and effects of thy presence.

V. 10. Mount Seir] namely the Edomites: [invade] to possesse it, or shew any hostility in it.

V. 14. The spirit] hee was suddenly overcome by a prophericall inspiration, and moved by the holy Ghost to utter it.

V. 15. Is not yours] God takes it all upon himselfe, and will have all the honour of it to himselfe.

V. 19. Kohathites] namely the holy singers whereof some were descended from Korah, 1 Chron. 6. 33. 37. the other from Gershom the sonne of Kohath 1 Chron. 6. 39. 43.

V. 21. Consulted] concerning what was right, and what ought to be provided concerning their vocation, remitting all the rest to God: [singer,] which shewed, that by faith hee was already assured of the victory, and that oven then hee did celebrate the triumph of it, and give the Lord thanks therefore.

V. 22. Set] h [...]e raised some secret and unlooked for occasion of strife amongst those nations, which occasion was taken upon a plot, and perfidious designe, whereupon they fell out amongst themselves as Iudg. 7. 22. 1 Sam. 14. 20.

V. 33. The high places] this must be meant by those high places which were consecrated to the true God: for Iehoshapbat had destroyed those which belonged to the Idols, 2 Chron. 17. 6.

CHAP. XXI. VER. II.

Of Israel] by right hee was King over all the tribes: but really of a part of them.

V. 11. To commit fornication] spiritually by idolatry.

V. 12. Elijah] the great Prophet Elijah was already taken up into heaven, in these dayes, as appeareth by 2 Kings 2. 11. wherefore this must be another Elijab, or else it must bee, that the great Elijah had written this prophecy in his life time, and appointed, that in its due time it should bee delivered to Iehoram.

V. 16. The Philistines] who before were tributaries, 2 Chron. 17. 11. and were afterwards subdued againe by Vzziah, 2. Chron. 26. 7.

V. 17. Into it] as farre as Ierusalem which they also took: [*Ie [...]*abaz] called also Ahaziah, and Azariah, 2 Chron. 22. 1. 6.

V. 20. Departed] or hee walked without any pleasure, that is to say, hee lived in continuall misery.

CHAP. XXII. VER. I.

AHaziah] called also Azariah v. 6. and Ieloahaz 2 Chron. 21. 17. [slaine] after they had carried them away into captivity, 2 Chron. 21. 17.

V. 2. Forty and two] 2 Kings 8. 26. it is said that hee was two and twenty yeares of age, which is confirmed by that, that Ieboram the father of Abaziah was two and thirty yeares of age when he began to reigne, and reigned eight years, which in all is forty: whereupon hee could not have a sonne of two and forty yeares of age when hee succeeded his father. This difficulty is in dissoluble, and it is likely that there is some alteration happened in these accompts, or in the figures by some unknown meanes.

V. 6. Azariah] which is the same as Ahaziah, and Ieha [...]haz, 2 Chron. 21. 17.

V. 8. Of the brethren] of his nearest kinsmen, for his brethren were all slain, 2 Chror. 21. 17. and 22. 1.

V. 9. In Samaria] in the ten tribes countrey, whose chiefe city is Samaria, for otherwise this happened in Iezreel, 2 Kings 9. 16. 27. [slaine [...]im] hee was wounded to death by Iehues people, but he [...]led to Meggido and there died, 2 Kings 9. 27. [said they] Iehu, or his people, who suffered the body to bee carried to Ierusalem. Or Ahaziah his own people, in reverence of his grandfather Iehoshaphats memory: [had no power] either by reason of their tender age, or for want of partakers, or by reason of Athalias might; none could take possession of the Kingdome, nor bee established in it by the people.

V. 10. The seed royall] as well the children of Ahaziah which were her own grandchildren, as the other neere kinsmen.

V. 11. A bed chambar] one of the chambers where the Priests lay.

V. 12. With them] namely with the high Priest his Family.

INto covenant] hee bound them with an oath, to take his part, and defend his person and State.

V. 4. The doores] and especially that of Shur, 2 Kings 11. 6.

V. 5. The Kings house] see 2 Kings 11. 5. [of the foundation] see 2 Kings 11. 6. [in the courts] in the peoples court, which was divided into severall g [...]eat courts, encompassed with porticoes.

V. 6. Into the house] within the Priests court: [they that minister] for besides singers and porters, the Levites had this third office also, to help, and serve the Priests, see 1 Chron. 23. 28. 29. [shall keepe] let them keepe themselves within the limits of their court according to Gods command, without int [...]uding themselves any further. Or let them doe their duties towards God; that is to say, let them contribute in all this action that which is due to God in faith and zeale to restore his service, by meanes of re-establishing the lawfull King.

V. 7. The Levites] that were in weekly attendance.

V. 8. Every man] namely that was a head of a Family, and was in office: [the courses] of sacred ministers, which served in the Temple by turnes, and were divided into soure offices; Priests, Ministring Levites, Singers, and Porters: see 1 Chron. 24. 25.

V. 10. All the people] namely that band of Levites which entred into their weekly turnes.

V. 12. Praising] with songs of thanksgiving to God, and congratulation and blessing to the King.

V. 13. At his pillar] the Italian, upon his scaffold, see upon 2 Kings 11. 14. [the singers] the holy singers of the Temple: [such as taught] those singers which guided and lead the song: and did teach the young men, 1 Chron. 25. 8.

V. 16. Between him] as Gods minister, and one who in this action represented him; and therefore in the book of Kings it is said between the Lord.

CHAP. XXIV. VER. VI.

The collection] the voluntary offerings, gathered, or which were to be gathered of the people, after the same manner as Moses did in the Fabrick of the Tabernacle, Exod. 35. 5. which example it seemes was afterwards followed, when there was need of repairing sacred buildings, Neh. 10. 32. Others doe understand this, of the halfe shekell by the pole, which was ordeined by Moses, Exod. 30. 12. 13.

V. 7. The sonnes] of whom, see 2 Chron. 21. 17. but chiefly King Ahaziah, who was wholly governed by his mothers advice, and councill.

V. 9. The collection] such another as Moses his collection was, but only that in this collection there was nothing but money offered, and that of Moses, there were other things.

V. 13. By them] through their care and diligence.

V. 14. They offered] Gods pure service was continued, and miantained, without any default or interruption.

V. 17. Made obeisance] desiring leave to sacrifice, and doe their devotions in other places besides the Temple, namely in the high places as they did before, whether because this necessity of comming from every place to the Temple were grievous to them, or that every one desired to have his proper place of devotion. After this grant they did goe on further, in the idolatry of groves, and Idols.

V. 18. Wrath [...]ame] from the Lord.

V. 21. Stoned him] some hold that this history is pointed at, Matth. 23. 35. and that Iehoiadah is there called Barachias.

V. 25. For they] his servants took an occasion to conspire against him, seeing him brought to that passe, that hee was utterly unable to governe, by reason of some languishing disease, wherewith God had afflicted him: [for the blood] whether these murtherers had indeed an intent to revenge that cruelty, or whether it were in them only a pretence: though in God it was the true cause: [of the sons] there is no mention made of the murther of any other but Zacharias; but the plurall number is here set down for the singular: unlesse there were more of them comprehended within that persecution.

V. 27. The greatnesse] namely for the building or repairing of the Temple v. 6. others translate it the great tax which was laid upon him, namely by the King of Syria, 2 Kings 12. 18

CHAP. XXV. VER. II.

B'Vt not] hee did not doe all that which was requisite for Gods service, for hee for sook the high places, 2 Kings 14. 4. but persevered not to the end, v. 14.

V. 7. Of Ephraim] the Kings of the ten tribes, which were Ephraimites and had their seat, in that tribe.

V. 14. The Gods] see a contrary example, 2 Chron. 28. 23.

V. 24. Obed Edom] his posterity, who were porters, and kept the collections of the Temple, 1 Chro. 26. 15.

V. 28. In the city] namely in Ierusalem, which was the chiefe city of Judah.

According to all] beginning laudably, yet at the last going astray; though after another manner.

V. 5. Vnderstanding] being a Prophet: for it was a prophets property, not only to have visions, and revelations, but also to interpret, both their own and other mens, Gen. 41. 15. Dan. 1. 17. and 2. 19 and 10. 1.

V, 7. The Mehunims] people of Arabia, called Scenites by prophane authors: see upon 1 Chron. 4. 41.

V. 10. Carmell] a city of Iudah, Iosh. 15. 55. 1 Sam. 25. 2.

V. 11. By bands] it is very likely, that hee had divided his souldiers into bands, to have them ready upon any publick necessity as David had, 1 Chron. 27. 1. and afterwards Iehoshathat, 2 Chron. 17. 14.

V. 16. Into the Temple] into the foremost part thereof, where it was not lawfull for any but the Priest to come, as likewise it belonged to them only to offer incense, Exod. 30. 7.

V. 19. From beside] the Italian, from upon, it sheweth that by some visible signe, as of some vapour, or ashes stirred up, or some such like signe, which was cast from the Altar, against Vzziahs face God made it manifest, that this leaprosie was immediately sent from him. Others beside the Altar, or to hinder him that hee should not come neer it.

V. 21. He was cut off] as other leapers, and unclean persons were.

V. 23. The field of the buriall] and not in the sepulcher.

CHAP. XXVII. VER. II.

COrruptly] by idolatry, sacrificing yet in high places, 2 Kings 15. 35.

V. 3. Of Ophel] it was a place at the foot of mount Moriah, so called by reason of its shaddowie scituation; and it was between the foundations of the Temple, and the wall of the city; and it seemeth that by this wall of Ophel, may as well hee meant the foot of the Temple, built with great counter-foots, as the wall of the city, Neh. 3. 26. 27. and 11. 21.

CHAP. XXVIII. VER. III.

The valley] a place neere to Jerusalem on the Eastern side of it, infamous for the idelatrie of *Mol [...]*ch, in honour of which Idol they caused their children to goe through the fire, see 2 Kings 23. 10.

V. 5. His God] hee that should only, and alone have been worshipped by his people, and to whom, as to their Sovereign Lord, they were bound to be faithfull.

V. 9. That reacheth] a Scripture phrase, to signifie an unreasonable number of greatnesse.

V. 16. The Kings] to the King, who had many Kings, and Kingdomes under him.

V. 18. Of the South] an ordinary name, for one of the countries of Iudea, Iosh. 15. 21.

V. 19. Made Iudah naked] the Italian hath it, had caused great liberty in Iudah, namely to idolatrize, and commit other impieties: not only by letting them goe unpunished for it, but by giving them evill example himselfe, which is the poyson, and plague of the people. Others, hee had caused Iudah to goe astray. Others, hee had made Iudah naked, namely of Gods protection as Exod. 32. 25.

V. 20. Distressed him] or burthened him.

V. 23. Which smote him] not truely, or really, but according to Ahaz his prophane opinion: see a contrary example, 2 Chron. 25. 14.

V. 27. The city] that is to say, the city of David.

CHAP. XXIX. VER. III.

OPened] Ahaz having shut them up in his daies to hinder the people from comming to serve the Lord in the Temple, 2 Chron. 28. 24. and v. 7.

V. 4. Into the East street] it is likely that here is meant, the East side of the court of the Gentiles.

V. 5. Sanctfie] by abstaining from womon, and by other ceremoniall purifications, and by prayers, works of piety, and spirituall devotions, prepare your selves to doe your office, as you ought to doe it: [and sanctifie] take every unclean thing out of it; unlesse hee here meanes some consecration like unto that of Levit. 8. 10. [the filthinesse] employed by Ahaz to idolatrous uses, and polluted by their abominable use.

V. 12. The sonnes] the issue that was descended from them.

V. 15. By the words] in his name, and according to his expresse will: taken out of the written Law, or at that time inspired to Hezekiah: or upon things which belonged to the Lord, and to his service.

V. 16. Into the court] seeing they began to cleanse the porticoes which were about the body of the Temple: it is very likely that by this court, is meant the Gentiles court.

V. 17. The house] the very body of the Temple; consisting of the porch, the holy, and most holy place.

V. 14. Did cast away] had taken out of their places, and from their sacred uses.

V. 21. For the sanctuary] namely to purifie it from Ahaz his contamination, and consecrate it a new, see upon Exod. 29. 36.

V. 25. *The command [...]*ment] concerning the in- [Page] sttution of the holy Musick.

V. 30. with the words] taking for their subjects the Psalmes of David and of Asaph, who was also a composer of holy songs inspired by God.

V. 31. Of a free heart] this is specified in your burnt offerings, for there was more devotion in offering holocaustes, which were wholly burnt in the honour, and service of God, then in the offerings of thanks giving, in which, the party offering had his share.

V. 33. Consecrated] by vow, by voluntary offering, and by sacrifices of thanksgiving.

V. 34. Slay] the Italian, flea, which notwithstanding was part of their charge, see Lev. 7. 8. [were more] they carried themselves with greater zeal and diligence.

CHAP. XXX. VERS. I.

SEnt] commanding them that were his Subjects, [wrote] by way of invitation and exhortation: [to Ephraim] to the other Israelites which were not under his command.

V. 3. In the second] which was lawfull upon extraordinary occasions and chances, Num. 9. 11.

V. 3. At that time] in the first moneth appointed, Exod. 12, 6. at which time the Temple also was purified, 2 Chron. 29. 17. for it could not be made an end of purifying the fourteenth day, but the sixteenth; because there were not Priests enow sufficiently prepared: [because the] now at the Passeover there were many sacrifices offered, Num. 28. 19. and the Priests ought to poure out the bloud of the Lambes at the foot of the Altar, verse 16. and burne the fat, and other sacrifices, 2 Chron. 35. 11. 12.

V. 5. Of a long time] the Italian, before times, or a long time before; in the manner as it was written, namely in the Law: [in such sort] the Italian, with such store of company, for every male was bound to be at the three solemne Feasts.

V. 6. The Kings] namely, of Pul, of Tiglath-Pileser, for it is likely that the last captivity under Shalmanezzer had not as yet been.

V. 8. Yeeld your selves] the Italian, give your hands, yeeld, and submit your selves unto him, and call upon him for mercy.

V. 12. The hand] God wrought powerfully in their hearts, that they should cheerefully obey the Kings godly commands.

V. 15. The Passeover] namely, the Lambes and Kiddes which were appointed for it: [the Priests] those which had not sanctified themselves the first moneth, 2 Chron. 29. 34.

V. 17. The Levites] whereas ordinarily, each father of a family, did kill the Passeover for his owne family, Exod. 12. 3. see 2. Chron. 35. 1 [...].

V. 18. Written] see upon Num. 9. 6.

V. 19. Of the Sanctuary] a request which every one made, who came into the Temple; being all to come there at these feasts, see Lev. 15. 31.

V. 20. Healed] that is to say, held them as purified through his grace and by his gracious pardon, and preserved them from such diseases and plagues, as such a disobedience was accustomed to provoke, and bring upon them, Exod. 15. 26.

V. 21. Vnto the Lord] the Italian, of the glory of the Lord, Heb. of the strength, for the Hebrews were o [...]ten wont to change these words, that is as much as to say, by which instruments his strength and power was exalted.

V. 22. That taught] the Italian, which well understood, who being the eldest, and having most experience, had preheminance over the rest, and were their guides; whereupon Hezekiah comforted them, [...] having a laborious charge laid upon them.

V. 24. A thousand] to offer sacrifices of thanks-giving [a great number] who therefore were sufficient to offer all these sacrifices

V. 25. The strangers] they of other Tribes, who by reason of the religion had settled themselves in Judah.

CHAP. XXXI. VER. I.

IN Ephraim] in the part of these Tribes which were under the command of Hezekiah, 2 Chron. 13. 19. and 15. 8.

V. 2. Their courses] appointed by David, 1 Chron. 24. and 25. and 26. and were divided into these four Offices, Priests, ministring Levites, Singers, and Porters: [of the tents] the Italian, of the Camp, that is to say, of the Temple, which by reason of the severall functions, number, and order of Ministers, was like an Army see Num. 4. 3.

V. 3. Portion] to relieve and help out the peoples poverty, as Ezr. 6. 9. for these burnt offerings were to be taken out of the peoples offerings, which were laid up in the treasures of the Temple, 1 Chro. 26, 20. Neh. 10. 33.

V. 4. The Portion] whereof, see Num. 18. 8. [encouraged] should willingly employ themselves in Gods service.

V. 5. Honey] the Hebrewes doe hereby meane Dates for there were no Tithes, but of the fruites of beasts and plants.

V. 6. The Tithe] these might bee Tithes that were voluntarily consecrated without any expresse Law; as of the spoyles of wa [...]re, gaines of marchandize, &c. Gen. 14. 20. and 28. 22. Num. 31. 28. 30.

V. 7. The third] namely, from the beginning of harvest, which happened in the third month, untill the end [Page] there of which is in the seventh, see Exod. [...]3. 16.

V. 10. Chiese] it appeareth by v. 13. that he was but only one of the high Priests great Deputies, there being ordinarily two of them: of Eliazar his two lines, out of which were come the Families of Zadock and Ithamar sons of Aaron, 2 Sam 8. 17. 1 Chron. 24. 3.

V. 12. Was Ruler] according to the order established, 1 Chron. 26. 20.

V. 13. Overseeres] over the comming in and going out of these things, and were to give an account there of to the two chief: [the Ruler] vicar-generall, see 1 Chron. 9. 11. Ier. 20. 1.

V. 14. The Porter] see 1 Chron. 26. 14. [free-will] this was the second sort of sacred treasures, 1 Chron. 26 20. [oblations] the Italian addeth, heaved, see upon Exod. 29. 24. [most holy] see Lev. 2. 3. and 31. 12.

V. 15. In their set Office] the Italian, in their trust, that is to say, set in the Office of, &c. [small] according to the Law, Deut. 18. 8.

V. 16: Besides] for whom they did provide likewise, ver. 19. [from three] in the Law there is made mention but of two numberings, one was from the age of a moneth, the other from the age of thirty, see upon Num. 3. 15. & 4. 23. this third may be brought in for those who might begin to eat of holy food, with some convenient ceremoniall parity, which could hardly be or was in a manner impossible before this age: [entreth] that might and ought to come into the Temple in their turnes for to doe the service.

V. 17. From twenty] see upon 1 Chron. 23. 24.

V. 18. In their set office] the Italian, upon the trust of them, this loyalty and diligence of the Treasurers was answerable to the trust which the sacred Ministers did repose in them; through which their zeale and affection to Gods service was redoubled, leaving all other employments to attend to this only.

V. 21. In the Law] for the faithfull fulfilling and observing of it.

CHAP. XXXII. VERS. I.

The establishment] the Italian, this faithfulness, of Hezekiah in re-establishing Gods pure service: Others translate it, this establishment.

V. 3. To stop filling up the mouthes or [...]oads of the springs, and bringing the, waters thereof into the city by pipes under ground, verse 30. see Isa. 22. 9. 11.

V. 4. The brook] which came and issued from that great spring of Gibon, which was on the west-sid [...] of Ierusalem.

V. 5. [...] [...] see upon Isa. 22. 9. [broken] which [...] peradventure remained so after the ruine, 2 Chron. 25. 23. [to the towers] even to the very top of them: [another wall] for to make a kinde of a ditch with brayes in it.

V. 8. An arme] namely worldly power or strength, Ier. 17. 5.

V. 19. Against the God] the Italian hath it, of the God, or against the God.

V. 25 Rendred not] the Italian, did not acknowledge, namely, to God, in containing himselfe in humility before him, and holding his life, kingdom, and every thing else, as from him.

V. 28. Coates] for his flocks, and small sorts of catell.

V. 30. The upper water course] upon the Assyrians coming, v. 4. he stopped the rising spring of Gibon, whose water was before brought to the city by high pipes and conduits into the poole called the upper poole, Isa. 7. 3. and taking the same spring lower under the earth, he brought the water by channells under ground into the new or lower poole which he himselfe had made Isa. 22. 9. 11 to take away the water from the enemies, and furnish the city abundantly therewith: [straight] whereas before the water course fetched a compasse towards the South, he made this water course straight from the West to the East▪ [under ground] these words are added in the Italian, or [...]elow from the West, that is to say, taking the spring from the bottome of the rock, which was on the West side of Ierusalem, or from the West down; that is to say, drawing the water from the West side of Ierusalem to the hast side which was the lowerside.

V. 31. Left him] did not guide him not strengthen him with his Spirit in this temptation of worldly ambition; for that humility which hee shewed when Isaiah admonished him, and his perseverance in piety, doe shew that hee was never quite deprived of Gods grace: [he might know] a humane kinde of speech, not that God indeed did doe this to know any such thing; but to make Hezekiah himselfe to know it; and to have the whole Church to take example thereby.

V. 32. The vision] in his prophesie, Isa. 36. to chapter. 40.

V. 33. Did him honour] with funerall poms, songs, lamentations, &c.

CHAP. XXXIII. VER. V.

IN the two Courts] namely, the Priests court; and the court of the people.

V. 7. The Idol] this was some speciall Idol [...] which hee worshipped in the gro [...],e, 2 Kings. 21. 7.

V. 8. Appointed] the Italian, established, that is [...]rmely and irrev [...]cably assigned.

V. 11. Thornes] others translate it, stronge holds, [Page] others, bushes, or [...]ops of hills.

V. 19. The Se [...]rs] the Italian, Hozai, who might be some Prophet, for the Prophets did use to set down in writing publike Acts which were to be kept in the Church, as 1 Chro. 29. 29. others translate it, of the Seers.

CHAP. XXXIV. VER. III.

HE began] this reformation here set down all along, though the greatest part of it was in the eighteenth yeare of Iosiah as appeares by 2 Kings 22. 3. & 23. 4.

V. 6. With their ma [...]tocks] the Italian, in their desolate places, in their countrey and their cities which were wasted by the Assyrian warres, and their old inhabitants put out, and carried away into captivity, see upon 2 Kings 23. 16.

V. 8. To repaire] to give order to the high Priest, to cause those collections to be made which were appointed for this work, and to employ them herein carefully.

V. 9. The Money] see upon 2 Kings 12. 4. [that kept] see upon 2 Kings 12. 9.

V. 10. And they put it] as had been done under Iehoash 2 Kings. 12. 11.

V. 11. The houses] these were the chambers in the porticoes of the Temple.

V. 20. Abdon] called also Achbor the son of Michajah, 2 Kings 22. 12.

V. 22. Tikuath] called also Tikuah the sonne of Harha [...], 2 Kings 22. 14.

V. 31. In his place] this was the seaffold mentioned, 2

Kings 11. 14. 2 Chron. 6 13.

V. 33. Made all] hee constrained them by royall power and authority to forsake Idolatrie, and serve God according to the extericur forme by him appointed, though the interiour part of most of them was not touched with any true piety, as it appeared presently after Iosiahs death, see upon 2 Kin. 23. 26.

CHAP. XXXV. VER. I.

Killed] namely, the Paschall Lambs and Kids.

V. 3. That taught] as well sacred learning as the observance of Gods service, see Lev. 10. 11. Deut. 17. 11. [put the] the Italian, leave the, seeing you are eased of the labour of carrying the Arke of the Lord, which was anciently imposed upon you, Num. 4. 15. employ yourselves so much the freelier in this other part of your service, Chron. 23. 26.

V. 5. Your brethren] the Italian, to minister to your, &c. to help them to make ready the Passeover, ver. 6. and also to [...]lay for the Levites and the Priests who were employed about other businesse, and also for them that were unclean, 2 Chron. 30. 7. [according to the divisions] seeing that for every family which had a head, there must a Paschall lamb be eaten, Exod. 12. 3.

V. 7. Bullocks] these were for the feasts of unleavened bread, Num. 28. 19. and for burnt offrings and sacrifices of thanksgiving.

V. 8. Rulers] Hilkiah was high Priest, and the two other were his deputies, and heads of the two lines of Eleazer & Ithamar, according to the custome.

V. 11. They killed] every father of a family, Exo. 12. 6. and the Levites by themselves and for other Levites who were otherwise employed: [sprinkled] at the foot of the Altar, see upon Exod. 12. 27.

V. 12. The burnt offerings] that part of these beasts which was to be burned to the Lord, namely, the fat, the kidneys, and the caule, ver. 14. see Lev. 3. 3.

V. 13. The other] those parts of the sacrifices of thanksgiving which were appointed; for those who offered them, and were to be dressed in the Temple, and eaten at sacred seasts: [divided them] to each one a part of his offering.

V. 14. They] namely, the Levites which ministred: [made ready] the Paschall Lambs, and their portions of sacrifices of thanksgiving.

V. 15. The sonnes] namely, his race and posterity, whose lot and turn it was now to be and serve in the Temple according to the order, 1 Chron. 25. [the Levites] namely, the ministring Levites differing from the other three Offices of the Levites.

V. 21. The house] to the race of the Kings of Assyria, perpetuall enemies and emulators of the Aegyptians: [for God] namely by some Prophet of his.

V. 25. In the Lamentations] it might be some compilement of holy Poems upon mournfull subjects, as those of Ieremiah are used upon occasion of some publick calamity.

THE BOOK OF EZRA.

The ARGUMENT.

EZra* Priest and Doctor of the Law, sets down in this Book the History of the first and second return of the Iewes out of the Captivity of Babylon to Ierusalem; and of the beginning of the restauration of the 'Temple, the service of God, the City of Ierusalem, and of the Common-wealth of Israel; under three Kings of Persia, Cirus, Darius, and Artaxerxes: Whereof the first, after hee had conquered the Empire of the Caldeans at the end of seventy yeares foretold by Ieremiah, by publick proclamation set the Iewes at liberty, and gave them leave to returne into their countrey, and to re-edifie the Temple of God, and re-establish his worship: Whereupon a great number having for their heads Zerubbabel of  Davids royall race, and appointed Governour by Cyrus and Ieshua high Priest, returned into Iudea, and having begun to re-edifie the Temple, were disturbed by the wiles and calumnies of the Samaritans; Whereupon the work was interrupted and intermitted for a long time, untill by Gods expresse command and Darius his permission, it was begun again and accomplished, and all the orders of the ancient servie [...] re-established. After which time under King Artaxerxes: Ezra with another great troop of Iewes did also return, having the Kings favour and liberality heaped upon him, with full power to see Gods true worship kept and observed, and his service duely performed. And being arrived into Iudea, he began with the separation of prophane and unlawfull marriages, which the Iewes had contracted with Idolatrous and Pagan women, to purge the people of God from all prophane mixture, and cut off all inducements which might bring them to fall againe into their old sinnes, which had beene so severely punished by these forep pst-ruines.

CHAP. I. VER. IV.

Remaineth] and cannot follow the rest for want of meanes: [help him] neither by lending or giving to him.

V. 5. Of Judah] amongst which were many of other Tribes, 1 Chron 9. 3.

V. 8. Sheshbezzar] it is thought that this was Zerubbabels name amongst the caldeans, seeing they did use to change the chiefest of the Iewes names when they carried them into captivity, through superstition and Idolatry, or else for a sign of slavery, Dan. 1. 7. [Prince] for Zerubhabel was of the blood royall of Juda, and chief of  Davids line, 1 Chron. 3. 19. Luke 3. 27. 31. and in this quality hee was head, and conductor of the Iewes; acknowledged to bee so even in Babylon; and was made governour by the King of Persia, over those who came back this first time, Ezr. 5. 14. and 6. 7.

V. 9. Knives] they were certaine great Knives to kill the beasts for Sacrifices with, which knives belonged to the Priests, and were [...]med up with gold.

V. 10. Second sort] namely, for price, greatnesse, and use; for the first which were of gold, might be for the service of the Temple within, and these for the use of the chambers and of the courts: Others translate it double, that is to say, covered with such like Basins.

OF the Province] namely, of Babylon, called the Province by eminencie, for a difference between it and other countreys, where the Iewes had been dispersed, verse 59 unlesse Iudea be meant as Neh. 11. 3.

V. 2. With] under these heads, to which Neh. 7. 17. is added Nahamani: [Ieshua] high Priest, Ezr. 3. 2. called elsewhere Ioshua.

V. 3. The children] s [...]me believe they were the issue and posterity of such and such heads of Nations, from which they might also have taken their names; but by Neh. 10. 14. it appeareth that they were Families of which by order of birth, these were the chiefe, and heads in those dayes.

V. 5. Seven hundred] in Nehemiah, there is a diversity concerning this number and some other: It may be by reason that these two rumbrings of Ezra and Nehemiah were not both at one time, whereupon some might bee dead, or some have joyned themselves to them.

V. 16. Of Hezekiah] in whose person this line was subdivided.

V. 21. The children] the Inhabitants and native Citizens, and so consequently in all the names of Cities.

V. 29. Nebo] it seemeth to be the same Citie, as Nob. 1

*Sam. 21. [...]. Neh. 11. [...]*2.

V. 31. Of the other] besides him, of verse 7.

V. 36. Of Ieshua] of which this Ieshua was head, yet it is unknown whether this be the same Ieshua that was high Priest or another.

V. 41. The Singers] the holy ones of the Temple.

V. 42. Of the Porters] of the Temple.

V. 55. Of Solomons servants] of the reliques of the Cananites, who were by Solomon set to painefull and bodily labours, *1 Kings 9. [...]*1.

V. 59. Tel-melah] they seeme to bee names of Provinces or Cities: [they could not] and therefore they could not be put into any ancient possession of goods, and holy Offices.

V. 60. The children of] it seemeth that these same did call themselves Levites.

V. 63. The Tirshatha] it seemeth to be the name of some Caldean Office, as Governour, Lievtenant, or Commissary, given to Zerubbabel or Sheshbazzar, Ez. 1. 8. Neh. 10. 1. [of the most holy] see Iev. 2. 3. and 25. 22. [with Vrim] which was the manner of asking, and giving out Gods Oracles, and answeres in doubtfull and obscure cases, Num. 27. 21. Now it is likely that Vrim and Thummim, and many other sacred ornaments, were burnt and perished in the taking and destruction of Ierusalem by the Cal [...].

V. 69. Pound] the Italian, mines, a name of coyn of sixty shekels, Ezech. 45. 12. that is to say, of thirty ounces.

CHAP. III. VER. I.

The seventh] in which the feast of Tabernacles was to be kept, [...] ev. 23. 34. Num. 29. 1 [...]. which was the first holy day that they were to keep, after their return from Babylon.

V. 2. The Sonne] that is to say, the grand-child, see 1 Chron. 3. 19.

V. 3. For feare] to secure themselves from all dangers, they hastened to desire and aske Gods assistance and aide by prayers, and sacrifices, &c.

V. 5. The continuall] that of morning and evening daily: [consecrated] appointed by God to be kept with all manner of holinesse, and especially with rest, and c [...] ssa ion from all painefull work, to attend altogether to the meditation and exercise of piety, in which consists the true sanctification of dayes.

V. 6. Laid] it was not yet begun to build above the ground, though it is likely that the old foundations for the most part remained whole, Ez. 4. 12.

V. 9. Of Iudah] it is thought to be the name of some particular man called also Hodavia, Ez. 2. 40. and Hodevah, Neh. 7. 43.

V. 10. After the] or by the meanes, using  Davids Psalmes for formularies of prayes.

V. 12. Before their eyes] considering how the first had been destroyed, and how much lesser this would be, and how many things would be wanting in it.

CHAP. IV. VER. I.

The adversaries] these were of those wicked Samaritans, and that mixture of Gentiles wherewith the Kings of Assyria had perpled the land which belonged to the ten Tribes, 2 Kings 17. 24. who were ever after the Iewes hereditary enemies.

V. 2. Let us] there was some hidden deceit in this request, pernicious both for the temporall and spirituall: [Esar Haddon] sonne of Sennacherib, 2 Kings 19. 37. who sent some new plantation on colonie into this countrey, after the first, which was 2 Kings 17. 24. unlesse that which was spoken in that place, were spoken by way of anticipation of time.

V. 3. You have nothing to doe] you being a prophane people, and; Idolaters, 2 Kings 17. 41. can have no part in the building, nor make any use of this Temple.

V. 4. Weakened] by threatning [...], deceits, and [Page] other meanes they sought to discourage them.

V. 5. Councillers] to the King of Persia: [Darius] called by historians the sonne of Hystaspes.

V. 6. Abashuerus] that is to say, of Xerxes, who afterward married Esther, Esth. 1. 1.

V. 7. Artaxerxes] surnamed Long hand: [Bishlam] it seemeth to bee some councill composed of the people of the countrey, to which the King sent a president or head, and that which was councelled upon, and agreed by all, is written in the name of the President Rehum only, and the secretary.

V. 9. Then] it seemeth that Ezra sets down the very words of the records of Persia, in which it was set down when, and by whom the said letter was written; whose originall was kept in the chamber of publick records: [the Dinaites] names of severall nations with which the land of Israel was peopled by the Assirians, of whose deputies the said councell was composed.

V. 10. Asnapper] this name is not elsewhere, and it is likely that it was some Captain or principall officer of Esarhaddon, v. 2. [and at such a time] the Italian hath, &c. the Chaldaick text hath a certaine word which signifieth, hitherto, and it seems to be a cutting off of some speech which is not needfull to be set down at length. Others think it is the date of the letters.

V. 14. Dishonour] namely that his Maiesty bee despised, by a bold contempt, and refusall of obedience.

V. 15. Thy fathers] the Italian, predecessors, Kings of Assiria and Babylon, whom the Persians succeeded.

V. 24. Darius] who was surnamed Spurius, or Bastard.

CHAP. V. VER. I.

PRophesied] commanding them to undertake the worke, and assuring them of Gods blessing and sauovr.

V. 4. That make] that is to say, by whose authority this work was undertaken which were Zerubbabel, Ioshua, Haggai, and Zachariah.

V. 5. Of their God] that is to say, God did safe guard them and favour them.

V. 10. Their names] who were the first authours and conductors of all this work.

V. 15. That is] the scituation of which Temple is assigned and consecrated in that place.

CHAP. VI. VER. I.

IN BAbylon] in the Kingdome of Babylon, which the Persians then possessed, and did containe Media also, in whose royall city this record was, amongst other publick records, v. 2.

V. 2. Achmetha] the Italian, Ec [...]atana, the name of a city which was the head of Media. Others have it, in a roll in the royall city of Media: [thus written] the Italian addeth, written: remembrance this was the title of the aforesaid writing.

V. 3. The heighth] namely of the tower of the portico; whereas Solomon had made it of one hundred and twenty cubits, 2 Chron. 3. 4. and it seemes that Cyrus brought it to the one halfe; for feare lest it should be used for some watch-tower: [threescore] like to Solomons, 1 Kings 6. 2.

V. 4. Three] see upon 1 Kings 6. 36.

V. 12. Destroy] the Italian addeth, *again*e, or alter this, and destroy this house.

V. 14. Artaxerxes] surnamed Muemon or rememberer, under whom Ezra and Nehemia some yeares after brought home the rest of the people, and is here named and set down by anticipation, Ez. 7. 1. Neh. 2. 1.

V. 15. Adar.] the name of a month which was answerable to February Moon.

V. 17. Sinne aff [...]ring] see Levit. 4. 23. and 9. 5. & 16. 5

V. 18. Divisions] which were appointed by David 1 Chron. 24. and 25. and 26.

V. 20. Killed] the ministring Levites did help to [...]kill and make ready the beasts, and presented the blood of them to the Priests, to poure it at the foot of the altar, as 2 Chron. 30. 16. 17. and 35. 11. 12.

V. 22. Of Assiria] that is to say, of Persia, which had swallowed up the Empire of Assiria and Caldea, whereupon sometimes the name of the one is taken for the other.

CHAP. VII. VER. III.

*SO*ne of Merai [...] th] there is a great leap in this setting down, wherein are over-skipped six of Ezra his ancestors, see 1 Chron. 6. 6. 11.

V. 6. Scribe] a Doctor of holy scripture: and this word is frequently used both in the old and new testament: [the hand] according as the Lord favoured and prospered him.

V. 9. Began hee] the Italian, was appointed, or was the beginning of the departure.

V. 12. King of Kings] a proud title of those great Empires, Ezec. 26. 7. Dan. 2. 37.

V. 14. Seven] these were seven principall Noble-men that stood alwayes by the King of Persia, and were his councellers in all great offairs, see Est. 1. 10. 14. [according to] to know if things bee established and executed according to Gods Law, whereof thou art Doctor, and which I also give thee power to observe.

V. 16. Thou canst finde] that thou canst gather [Page] amongst my subjects of their own free good will: [the people] namely of Israel.

V. 18. To thy brethren] namely the Colledge of Priests.

V. 23. Wrath] namely from God: [of the King] the Italian, against the King, or of the King and his children.

V. 27. Blessed] these are Ezras words.

CHAP. VIII. VER. II.

OF the sonnes] descending from the two priestly loynes and branches, namely from Elieazar by Phineas, and from Ithamar, see 1 Chron. 24. 3. 4. [David] it is likely to bee King David, and this Hattush may be hee that is mentioned, 1 Chron. 3. 22.

V. 15. Ahaliah] it is thought to bee the Adiabenes count [...]ey.

V. 17. The chiese] having, either by meanes of the Iewes po [...]itick government, or by the King of Persia his commission, some command in that place, over the Iewes: [Casiphia] the likenesse [...]f the name seemeth to intimate this to be the Caspian countrey or the chiese city thereof.

V. 18. The sonnes] his successors or p [...]sterity: [tie sonne] meaning the grandchild, Exod. 6. 16. 19.

V. 20. Whom David] in the division of the sacred offices, there is no mention made of the Ne [...]inims 1 Chron. 24. and 25. and 26. but wee must beleieve that David confirmed and new appointed that which had been anciently decreed concerning them, Iosh. 9. 21.

V. 21. Afflict our selves] the Italian, humble our selves, or to afflict our persons. An usuall kinde of speech, to signifie a true fast, of contrition of heart, and repentance; joynd with the bodily fast, Levit. 16. 29.

V. 25. There present] that were present at the time of this gathering. Or that were willing to give. Or that had power to give.

CHAP. IX. VER. II.

HAve taken] though those women were not converted to the worship of the [...] God, & therefore Gods command, Deut. 7. 3. was broken: and the Church degenerated even in its first beginning [...] Gen. 6. 2.

V. 3. My garment] for anciently they did wear [...] garments, the outward longer than the inner: [ [...] ckt off] through just anger, and bitterness of heart, and not through any superstition, which was forbidden, Lev. 9. 27. Deut. 14. 1.

V. 5. My hands] the Italian hath it, the [...] aimes [...], according to the Iewish manner of praying, holding their armes abroad, and their palmes open towards heaven.

V. 8. A naile] that is to say, some subject of hope, and a prop to our faith in his Church, even as nailes serve to fasten, joyne or hang up many things, see Isa. 22. 23. Or it is a proverbial way to signifie some small remainder of a thing, as the naile, or the pinne of a rich tent; as the ancient Tabernacle, was a signe of Gods being present in grace amidst his people.

V. 9. Bond-men] subjects, and deprived of our ancient liberty and Kingdome: [a wall] a little place of safety, like unto a fold, or a penne for a flock of sheep.

V. 15. Thou art] as for thy part, thou hast superabundantly fulfilled all thy promises, and kept thy covenant with us.

having made us to subsist, notwithstanding our sinnes; all the fault is in us, and wee confesse it and repent therefore in thy presence, as for a fault which otherwise would make us in capable of thy grace, and would deserve most heavie punishments.

CHAP. X. VER. II.

There is hope] if wee can repent, and amend our selves: and therefore moderate thine affliction; and seek for to amend this busides [...].e.

V. 3. VWith our God] whom thou dost represent in this action: [to put away] for these marriages with idolatrous and pagan women, were of no force by Law, seeing God had forbidden them: [and such as are] the Italian, the children, as bastards, borne in unlawfull copulation; and therefore could not be incorporated amongst Gods people; though it is likely that the parents did provide them food and other necessaries when they sent them away: [and of those] namely who had abst [...]ined from any such mixture, Ezra 9. 4.

V. 4. Belongeth unto thee] because thou art a Priest, and hast a speciall command from the King to see that Gods Law be observed, Ez. 7. 26.

V. 8. Seporated] hee should bee excommunicated out of the Church, and forbidden the use of all holy things, and held as a heathen and prophane man.

V. 9. The ninth] which was the month of May, counting September for the first, after the manner of the Persians, Est. 2. 16. [in the street] in the court of the people, or in the Gentiles court: [great raine] which being out of the accustomed season, was somewhat pr [...]digious, and seemed to portend Gods wrath, as 1 Sam. 12. 17.

V. 12. So must w [...]] or it is good to doe according to thy word; and wee take upon us to doe it.

V. 14. Stand] to frame a supreame counsell or [Page] consistorie: [the elders] who after they had made an enquiry in each city, were to make their relation. As for example whether the woman were a Proselite before shee was married, whither at the time of her marriage shee had made such abiurations, and protestations as were requisite; whither shee had not after defiled her selfe by ido latrie: if she gave any prooffe of true piety: that according to these informations it might be judged whether the marriage were to be confirmed as sanctified by her profession: [be turned] by annihilating what hath been done amisse, and providing that hereafter no such thing may be done.

V. 15. Helped them] as adsessors, commissaries, or relators.

V. 16. Sate down] begun to sit about these judiciall acts: [the tenth] which was in the moon of Iuno, counting the moneths from September.

V. 44. And some of them had wives by whom they had children] the Italian hath it, and there were some of them who exposed their children, that is to say, some of them forsook their children, leaving them in the streets, or in the high-ways. Others translate it, and there were some amongst them, that had women, by whom they had children.

THE BOOK OF NEHEMIAH.

---

The ARGUMENT.

T His book containeth the continuation of the restauration of the Jewish state after their returne from Babylon, whereof (after a long discontinuance) Nehemiah was a chiefe instrument, who lived almost at the same time as Ezra did, and they were both present at all the notable actions which are set down in this History. Nehemiah as governour appointed by the King of Persia, and Ezra as a Priest, and one excellent well skilled in the Law of God. The summe is, that Nehemiah being raised to honours, and in favour with Artaxerxes King of Persia; got leave of him to goe to Ierusalem, to build up the walls, and restore the ruines thereof: which hee undertook with a heroick zeale and courage, continued with great wisdom, and in very good method, and accomplished within a very short time, by the wonderfull blessing of God. And then hee began to provide for the safety of the city, against the plots and treacheries of the Samaritans, and other heathens, their neighbours and enemies. And afterwards provided for the politick government within: beginning with the mitigation of creditors rigors, and relieving the poore from oppression: and in despite of all disturbances without, and treacheries within; hee accomplished this work: then hee began to set down rules in the performing of Gods service, and ministry of the Temple, laying the foundation thereof upon the renewing of Gods covenant, and so went on in settling the holy offices in their ancient orders, and in providing sustenance for the Ministers, and all other things which were necessary for the use of the Temple. And after this the walls of the city were solemnly dedicated, the people numbred, and one part assigned to dwell is Ierusalem, and the rest in the cities, and places of the countrey according to the ancient lands of their tribes, and families. And all this being finished in twelve yeares space, at the end of them, Nehemiah returned into Persia, from whence within a yeare after hee made another voyage to Ierusalem, and reformed many disorders there, as the peoples mixing themselves with prophane people; the want of maintenance for those who ministred in the Temple, and marriages with infidels, so that through his excellent vertues, bee set the Iewish Common-wealth in a good and happy state, in which it continued for a long time after. Whereupon most deservedly was attributed unto him the title of Third Founder of that Common-wealth, after Ioshuah, and David.

V. 14. Of the fountaine] which was also on the Westside, and was so called because that anciently the water of the great fountain Gihon was from this place brought into the city, by a great channell built upon arches, see upon 2 Chron. 32. 4. 30. [the kings] 2 Kings 20. 20. there is mention made of a water course made by King Hezekiah: but it is thought that Solomon first made it, and that King Hezekiah did but only repaire it, or change it into a water-course underground: [there was no] th [...] passage was so stopped, and incumbred with stones rubbish and such ruines, that I could not passe but on foot.

VER. 1. They built] the one bestowing the cost, and the others their labour, and all together setting forward, and looking to the work: [the sheep-gate] which was on the East side of the Temple, and next to it; through which the cattell appointed for sacrifices were brought in great number; whereupon it was so called, Iohn. 5. 1. or at the least the old name revived, see Gen. 3. 21. Mic. 4. 8. [sanctified it] that is to say, repaired it, and set it up in its former state and splendor; and did also new dedicate it to its first use, by prayers and devotions, which use was more holy than that of the other gates; whereupon the Priests did undertake the repairing of it, and by their working upon it, did gaine it the more respect, as being a thing belonging to the Temple: [the tower of Meah] the Italian, the tower of one hundred, that is to say, of one hundred cubits [...]igh: [unto the] drawing towards the North; for this tower was on the North East side, see Ier. 37. 38.

V. 2. Next unto him] going on from the side of the said Tower towards the West: [the men] the commonalty of the inhabitants of Iericho, see Ezr. 2. 34.

V. 3. The fish gate] which was on the North side of [Page] Ierusalem; and it is likely that it was so called by reason of the fish which was brought in that way, for the provision of the city, from the Se [...] [...]sts of Tyre and Sidon, see Neh. 13. 16. [the sonne [...]] see Ez 2. 35. and it is doubtfull whether this Hass [...] be the name of a city, so that by children, be m [...]ant the inhabitants; or the name of a man, and so his posterity be meant.

V. 4. Repaired] the walls and towers, because that in this portion there was never a gate: [next unto them] namely next unto Merimoth and his people.

V. 5. The Tekoites] the inhabitants of Tekoah a city of Judah, 2 Sam. 14. 2. 2 Chron. 11. 6. [put not their necks] they were not partakers of this labour for the Lords service. Others referre this word Lord, unto Nehemiah the governour of the na [...]on, or to this head of the commonalty of Tekoah.

V. 6. The old gate] which was on the North side of the city.

V. 7. The throne] the Pallace or Court.

V. 8. Fortified Ierusalem] the Italian, Ierusalem was left, they did nothing to the wall from the above said place, unto the corner gate, because that there the wall had not been ruined as in other places, and according to some it was that soure hundred cubits of wall, which Ieboash had pulled down, and was bu [...]lt up againe by Vzziah, and made stronger, and broader, 2 Chron. 25. 23. see Neh. 12. 38.

V. 9. And next] next after them, on the West side; the foresaid space of wall being between: [of Ierusalem] the Italian hath it, the halfe part of Ierusalem, Ierusalem was divided into severall parts, or wards, whereof each one had it Captaine. The old Salem which was Melchisedechs seat, which is here especially meant by Ierusalem had two parts, whereof the other is mentioned, v. 12.

V. 11. The other peice] the Italian, a double space, namely of foure hundred cubits, whereas every one was to repair but two hundred, namely from one tower to another: [the tower] which was on the West side.

V. 12. His daughters] it should seem this man had none but d [...]ughters, who also employed their meanes and servants about this work.

V. 13. Zanoah] a city of Iudab, Ios. 15. 34. 56. 1 Chron. 4. 18.

V. 14. The sonne of] of the famous Family of the Rechabites, Ier. 35. 2. [Beth haccerem] another part of Ierusalem.

V. 15. Siloah] the Italian, Sela, this is the channell or small stream; which came from the fountain of Gibon, called elsewhere Siloah: [the staires] which were at the turning from the West southward.

V. 16. Bethzur] this name, and the following names, are names of severall parts of the city, given for either unknown, or unce [...]ain causes: [that was made] so named to make a difference between it, and other pooles which were naturall; which poole within a great enclosure of strong walls, held in the waters which came by that water-course: and it seems to be that which is called the upper poole, 2 Kings 18. 17. Isa. 7. 3. [unto the house] this was some place which is not mentioned any where else, where those Captaines had their lodgings, whom the King kept ordinarily neere to him, 1 Chron. 27. 1. which also it should seeme was a place where youths were taught to handle their Armes, Cant. 4. 4.

V. 19. Mizpah] the other halfe of that part of the city which was so called, v. 15. [at the turning] the Italian, at the corner, this was some great corner of the wall, on the South side of the city: where the Arsenall, or Armory had anciently been; which afterwards was removed to the house of the forrest of Lebanon, Isa. 22. 8.

V. 20. Zabbai] the Italian, Zaccai, or Zabbai.

V. 22. The men of the plaine] the Italian, which dwelt in the plaine, who had their countrey houses and houtholds in the plaine of Iericho neere Jordan: though they had houses in Ierusalem also: whether it were to people the city; or to supply the wants of Gods service; there being at that time but a small number of Priests.

V. 24. The turning] namely from the South side to the East, which turning came with the corner inwards into the city, according to the naturall scituation of the rock and the valley.

V. 25. High house] this was the Royall Pallace built by Solomon, 1 Kings 7. 1.

V. 26. Water-gate] see Neh. 8. 1. and 12. 37. and it seemes to bee that which is mentioned, Ier. 17. 19. called the water-gate, because that neere unto it, all the waters which were come into the city by water-courses, or pipes under ground, came into one channell, and did runne into a deepe valley.

V. 27. The Tekoites] namely the Priests which dwelt in Tekoah, for the common sort of the Tekoites had been spoken of before, v. 5.

V. 29. The keeper] see upon, 1 Chron. 26. 14. and 31. 14. [East-gate] namely of the Temple.

V. 30. His chamber] the Italian, his chambers, that part of chambers in the Porticoes of the Temple, which was assigned to him and his, for their habitations, for it is to be supposed that hee was a Levite.

V. 31. Gold-smiths sonne] or a gold-smith, but consecrated, and one of the Priests, to make or mend the holy vessells: [merchants] the Italian addeth, merchants of spices, or perfumes, for there being such frequent use for such things in the Temple for unctions, and perfumes, these people had gotten them habitations neere [Page] unto it: [Miphkad] the Italian, of the prison see Neh. 12. 39. and it is likely that it was no close and darke prison, but large, and be onging to the Church, for errours committed in Gods service, in the Temple, Ier. [...]9. [...]6. Acts 4. 6. and 5. 18. [the going up] the Italian, the high hall, it was some high roome, for assemblies, banquets, or other uses; when there was much company.

V. 32. The sheep-gate] by which gate having begun, [...].

hee there also ended the circuit of the whole city.

CHAP. IV.

VER. 2. His brethren] people of his Family: [feeble] a word of contempt, that is to say, poore and wretched.

V. 3. Even that] their work is so sleightly done, and in such haste, that the least thrust in the world is able to shake it, and throw it down.

V. 5. Before the builders] the Italian hath it, standing before them] namely before the builders, which is a kinde of action or posture of such, as at their pleasures will scoffe others, rejoycing in their miseries to aggravate them so much the more.

V. 6. The halfe] of the heighth.

V. 10. Rubbish] the Italian, dust, namely the rubbish of the ruines▪ [are not able] being called to watch, whereby they would seeme to inferre, that they must give over working for some time, v. 15.

V. 12. From all places] the Italian addeth, look to your selves from all places, that is to say, from all those wayes; which come from Samaria to Jerusalem.

V. 16. Of my servants] of my household servants, and guards; as hee was governour of the countrey: the rulers] of Families, or in generall; all other persons of government, as well to lead the men, as to oversee and hasten on the work.

V. 22. Lodge] unti [...]I such time as the work bee finished.

V. 23. Put off] in the night time, to be ready upon any occasion: [put them off for washing] the Italian, went for water armed, such was our feare of the enemies, that none durst goe out of the city, not so much as to fetch water, without armes, as Iudg. 5, 11.

CHAP. V.

VER. 2. TAke up] the Italian, receive, that is to say, whilst wee work for the publick good, let our food at least bee provided for; either by the publick, or by the contribution of rich men.

V. 5. Our flesh] wee are of the same lineage, nature and condition: [Daughters] which was a signe of extreame distresse; considering the weaknesse of the sex, and the danger of their chastity, when they were in other mens powers: [is it in our power] for to redeem them; which was lawfull for them to doe at any time, Exod. 21. 7.

V. 7. A great assembly] the great and Soveraign Counsell, composed of all the heads of the people▪ Deut. 23. 1. 1 Chron. 13. 2. and 19. 1. and often elsewhere.

V. 8. Have redeemed] this peradventure was done in Babylon before the comming away, according to the Law, Levit. 25. 47. [will you even sell] namely to be paid, or constraine them to sell themselves, for some benefit which you should freely grant them for nothing.

V▪ 9. Because of the] the Italian, for fear of the, for feare least wee doe againe provoke Gods wrath against us, and hee make us againe a scorne unto our enemies, by new scourges and afflictions.

V. 11. The hundredth part] a tax of usury, at one in the hundred by the month, forbidden when usury is forbidden in generall, Exod. 22. 25. Levit. 25. 36. Deut. 23. 19.

V. 12. The Priests] to be witnesses of this oath, as Gods ministers, who represented him.

V. 14. Of the bread] which was levied upon the people, for to finde the governours diet.

V. 15. Besides forty] the Italian, afterwards forty▪ having changed those rates of bread and wine into so many shekles a day.

V. 17. That came] for to doe Gods service, or to give us necessary intell [...]gences, Neb. 4. 12.

V. 18. Store of all sorts] I kept an extraordinary table, and did invite guests, at which time there was extraordinary store of wine spent.

CHAP. VI.

VER. 2. ONo] which was a city of Benjamin 1 Chron. 8. 12.

V. 10. Shemaiah] it seemeth to be a Priest of the posterity of Delaiah, 1 Chron. 24. 18. whose house was some part of the chambers belonging to the Temple: [shut up] in his own house, and durst not come abroad, by reason of some legall uncleannesse, as Ier. 36. 5. Or in the Temple by reason of some vow or devotion, as 1 Sam. 21. 7.

V. 11. Such a man] I that am a lawfull Magistrate, and carry my selfe uprightly in mine office, and deale with a good conscience, should I shew any basenesse of minde in the exercising of my charge, or forsake it for mine own private safeguard; staining my selfe with pus [...]llanimity; to the dammage of the publick good; and discomfort of the people? [would goe into] hee seemeth to reflect upon the freedom which the Temple did yeeld to some [Page] malefactors, Exod. 21, 14. 1 Kings 1. 51. and 2. 28.

V. 12, I perceived] for hee sought to put mee from the free exercise of my vocation.

V. 13. Reproach mee] as convicted of some evill designe by my flight, feare or basenesse, unworthy of the name and qualitie which I did beare.

V. 15. Elul] which was the August Moon.

V. 16. Cast down] from their pride, hope, and designes.

V. 18. Shechaniah] these might be some of the chiefs of the people.

CHAP. VII.

VER. 2. The ruler] the second person next to the governour, commanding in his name, within his court.

V. 3. And every one] appointing every one his place of watch, according to each part of the city where his house standeth, for the more readinesse and ease in defending of it.

V. 5. At the first] namely under Zerubbable; whose numbring, Ez. 2. 1. is here set down again.

V. 33. The other] for there were two cities of this name; the one in Ruben, Num. 32. 38. and the other in Iudah, which is meant here, and seems to be the same as Nob, 1 Sam. 21. 1.

V. 70. And some] here endeth that which is common and like to that which is set down, Ez. 2. 68. now the following contribution is different from that which is mentioned in Ezrab: [the Tirshatha] the Italian, Hathirshatha, the name of an office, Ez. 2. 63. here is neant Nehemiah, Neh. 8. 9. [the treasure] of the Temple, or to the stock of money which was appointed for the building of it, 1 Chron. 26. 26. Ez. 7. 69.

V. 73. So the] though, in Ez. 2. 70. and 3. 1. the words be almost the same, yet is the history different: that being of things in the dayes of Zeruhbabel, and this of Nehemiahs dayes which was many yeares after.

CHAP. VIII.

VER. 1. The water gate whereof see, Neh. 3. 26. [to bring] according to the commandement, Deut. 31. 10.

V. 2. The first day] which was the feast of the tabernacles, Levit. 23. 24. Num. 29. 1.

V. 4. Mattithiah] these were Doctors of the Law, and principall Levites.

V. 6. And Ezra] namely after hee had done reading of the Law.

V. 7. Ieshuah] it is likely that these Levites were divided amongst the people in severall places; who standing round about them in rings, were taught by them.

V. 8 Caused them to understand] or did expound the meaning of it to the assembly.

V. 9. Mourne not] for God had ordained, that feasts should bee celebrated with publick mirth, Num. 10. 10. Deut. 16. [wept] through compunction of heart, grieving for their sinnes, and through a tender conversion.

V. 10. And send] according to Gods command, and the godly custome of helping the poore in those dayes, that they might also bee partakers of the publick mirth, Deut. 16. 11. 14. Est. 9. 19. Revel. 11. 10. [the joy] the culy meanes to encourage you against all feares, and strengthen you in all your labours: is faith and trust in God, filling your hearts with divine and spirituall joy, through the lively apprehension of his grace.

V. 15. And that they should] for all solemne feasts were to bee published and publickly proclaimed, Levit. 23. 4. [boothes] the Italian, tabernacles, or bowers.

V. 16. The roose] made after the manner of an open terrace according to the fashion there.

V. 17. For since] this is to give a reason why here is such expresse, and particular mention made of the solemnity of this feast: [done so] having never celebrated the said feast with so much devotion and perseverance; being come together every one of the seven dayes to heare the Law. Whereas Moses, Levit. 23. 35. 36. did suffer the people to goe home the six middle dayes, feasting only the first, and the last.

CHAP. IX.

VER. 1. EArth] a custome observed in great mournings, Iosh. 7. 6. Iob 2. 12.

V. 6. The hoste] namely the holy Angels.

V. 8. Thou art righteous] loyall and constant, in all thy promises and covenants.

V. 14. Madest known] thou diddest teach them the true meaning, and use of the Sabbath, which hath a reference to the sanctification of that people which thou hast peculiarly gotten to thy selfe, Exo. 31. 13. Ezek. 20. 12.

V. 22. Into corners] the Italian, into parts, assigning to some tribes a severall countrey on the other side Iordan.

V. 29. Withdrew] they have not volutnarily brought themselvos to thy obedience and service. A phrase taken from plough-oxen and other drawing cattell, Zac. 7. 11.

V. 32. Seeme little] look upon it as upon a trouble, [Page] which though it bee moderate in respect of our sinnes, yet is grievous in respect of our weaknesse.

V. 38. And because] being through our afflictions brought to a true repentance; and because that through thy mercy, our evils may bee lessened.

CHAP. X.

VER. 14. PArosh] they are almost the same heads as are named, Ez. 2. 3. Neh. 7. 8. and because between that first numbring, and these dayes of Nehemiah there were above one hundred and fifty yeares the same persons could not be alive, by these names we must understand those heads, who had succeeded the former in the same dignity and degree.

V. 28. That had separated] that were come againe cut of Babylon and other Provinces, to serve the Lord according to his Law.

V. 29. They clave] they consented to what their chiefe had done in the name of all.

V. 31. Would not buy it] seeing that we our selves were subjects and could not hinder the Gentiles from bringing in their wares on the Sabbath day, nor could not cause them to observe the Iewish Lawes, we agreed amongst our selves to buy none, see Noh. 13. 15. 16. and so to keep the holinesse of the day: [leave the seventh] the Italian, let the land lie still the seventh, without sowing, or reaping, Exod. 23. 11. Lev 25. 4.

V. 32. We made ordinances] this was a contribution answerable to that of 2 Chron. 24. 5. [for the service] that is to say, for the work.

V. 33. The continuall meat] these things were anciently gotten out of the treasuries of the Temple, 1 Chron. 26. 20. then the Kings contributed their shares for the ease of the people, 2 Chron. 31. 3 here the people offered money to the same end: [the holy things] it seemes we must take these to be the publike sacrifices of thanksgiving, see Levit. 21. 22. [sinne offerings] which were common for all the people, Levit. 4. 13.

V. 34 We cast lots] there is no mention made of this wood offering, but only here and Neh. 13. 31. whereupon it is conjectured that the use thereof was first brought up after the captivitie, and that before the Kings had provided for it: Now it seems that in this establishment, the furnishing of this offering, was divided between the Priests, the Levites, and the people, to doe it each one for the third part of a yeare by lot, according to the order of the time; or amongst the families of the fathers divided into equall parts, to make provision thereof monethly. In the ensuing times it appeares by the Histories, that the whole masse of wood was gathered together in August, and upon the fourteenth day of the same Moneth the feast was celebrated, called the carrying of the wood.

V. 36. The first born] who were to be redeemed, and the money to bee delivered to the Priest, Num. 18. 15. 16. [cattell] the Italian, carrying or drawing cattell, horses, asses, mules, which were not good to offer, and therefore were to be redeemed, as the first born of men: [the firstlings] which were to be offered without any redemption, Lev. 27. 26. Num. 18. 17.

V. 37. Our offerings] whereof see upon Deut. 12. 6.

V. 39. We will not forsake] wee will continue the frequenting of it, and doe the service required therein; and will furnish all things necessary for the maintenance of the place and service.

CHAP. XI.

VER. 2. Blessed] as they who exposed themselves to the greatest dangers and toils [...] by reason of the enemies, who were jealous of the Cities greatness: And who without regarding their private interests, did most for the publick good, repairing, repeopling, keeping, and governing the head City of the countrey: [offered themselves] besides those others, which were drawn by lot.

V. 3. Of the Province] of Iudea, now reduced into a Province, subject to the Kings of Persia; or which were come from Babylon chiefe Province of that great Empire, as Ez. 2. 1.

V. 4. Athaiah] who might be some head of some great Nation, which is also comprehended under him: [the children] the issue and posterity of this sonne of Iudah, Gen. 38. 29.

V. 9. Overseer] as an inferiour Magistrate and head over a thousand, according to the ancient order, Exod. 18. 25. [second] as Leivtenant to the former. It might bee also translated, that he was appointed to be over the second City of which; 2 Kings 24. 14.

V. 11. The Ruler] one of the high Priests great deputies, see Num. 3. 31. 1 Chron. 9. 11. 2 Chron. 19. 11. and 31. 13. and 35. 8.

V. 12. The work] or the service.

V. 17. In prayer] the Italian, in time of prayer, for there were three houres appointed for daily prayers, see Psal. 55. 18. Dan. 6. 10. Acts 3. 1. and 10. 3. 9. 10. But here it seemes are particularly to be understood the times of morning and evening sacrifices, at which the holy Singers were present, Chron. 9. 33. and 23. 30.

V. 19. The gates] of the Temple.

V. 22. Were over] the Italian, were continually to [Page] bee present, were to bee continually assisting to Gods service, for being so few in number they could not by turnes relieve one another, as they did in former times, 1 Chron. 25. and therefore they were maintained out of they royall revenewes; and they had dwellings built them neere to Ierusalem, Neh. 12. 29.

V. 24. Of the children] namely, of the posterity of this other sonne of Judah, Gen. 38. 30. [in all] either in the tributes which the King of Persia levied amongst the people, or in those things which he gave out of his own revenews towards Gods service, Ez. 6. 8. 9. and 7. 20.

V. 25. Villages] countrey towns, which had been defaced and desolated by the Caldeans, and were not re-edified nor walled.

V. 30. The Valley] which was neere to Ierusalem, and where the Tribes of Iudah and Benjamin bounded upon one another. Josh. 18. 16.

V. 36. The Levites] namely, the rest, besides they who took up their aboad in Jerusalem, ver. 15.

CHAP. XII.

VER. 1. The Priests] namely, their heads, v. 7. [with Zerubbabell] with those that came afterwards with Ezra, Ezr. 8. 2. 3. 18. 19.

V. 2. *Mall [...]*ch] these and some others are diversly named from ver. 14 to v. 2 [...].

V. 4. Abijah] from whom Zacharias his family who was Iohn Baptist his father took its name, Luk. 1. 5.

V. 7. The chiefe] according to the number of which were made two and twenty courses or divisions of turnes to waite in, in imitation of the foure and twenty made by David, 1 Chron. 24. 7. [Ieshua] high Priest, Ezr 3. 2. Hag. 1. 1. Zach. 3. 1.

V. 8. His brethren] those which were of his fathers family.

V. 9. Were over against] the meaning seemes to be, that of these three heads of families of singers, there were three divisions made, and the lot was drawn amongst them, one being set over against the other, in the order of their functions.

V. 10. Ieshua] he was the high Priest.

V. 12. Ioiakim] he was the sonne of Ieshua: [of Seraiah] the Priests which are named in the beginning of the chapter, being dead, these succeeded them, as well in their office, as in the dividing of their turnes to waite. But true it is that whereas before there were foure and twenty; here there are but twenty: Some doe also hold that these were descended from the other by a direct line.

V. 21. Darius] surnamed Codomannus, last King of Persia, who was overcome by Alexander the great.

V. 24. Over against them] the number of Singers being encreased, Neh. 11. 22. and 12. 9. there was a division made of them equall with the other sacred offices, so that one order was alwayes answerable to the other, see 1 Chron. 26. 12.

V. 25. At the thresholds] or treasuries and store-houses, see upon 1 Chron. 26. 15. 17,

V. 27. The dedication] that is to say, the ceremonie of blessing, and calling upon the name of the Lord, and of desiring him to bee gracious to these new buildings; especially to the publike ones, see upon Deut. 20. 5. Psal. 30. 1.

V. 29. Had builded them] see the reason, Neb. 11. 22.

V. 30. Purified themselves] from all legall uncleannesse, making use therein of the water of separation, or purification, Num. 19. 9. but especially by devotions, repentance, and prayers, that it might please God to sanctifie that repaired city to his service and glory, and to guard and protect it as a pure and holy thing, being the residence of his presence, and the abode of his Church.

V. 31. Princes] with their companies divided into hundreds & into thousands: [upon the wall] which peradventure had long covered galleries upon it, now these two companies divided themselves at the gate of the valley, Neh. 2. 13. the one going Southward on the right hand, and the other Northward on the left: [companies] namely, of Levites and holy Singers.

V. 32. After them] namely, after the Levites and the Singers: [Hoshaiah] who then peradventure was the chiefe Ruler of the Tribe of Iudah, and was over all the other inferiour ones, as Neh. 11. 9. [halfe] for the other halfe followed that procession of Singers which went Northward, ver. 38.

V. 37. Even unto] having gone about just the one halfe of the city.

V. 39. And they] went about the other halfe of the City which was Northward, without going any further, and then went directly to the Temple.

V. 40. And halfe] that halfe with Nehemiah went, ver. 38. under which the other also, of ver. 32. must bee comprehended, one of the which, came to the Temple, by the way of the water gate, the other by the sheep gate and the prison gate.

V. 44. The chambers] see 1 Chron. 26. 20. [for the offerings] of that kinde as is set down Deut. 1 [...]. 6. 11. [rejoyced] and being glad to see the sacred Ministers follow their vocations, and execute their charges, he was ready and willing to pay them that which he was appointed.

V. 47. They sanctified] that is to say, they gave them unto them as holy things, and likewise the Levites gave the Priests the Tithes of their Tithes, Num. 18. 26.

VER. 1. ON that day] namely, after Nehemiah was returned from the King of Persia, verse 6.

V. 5. Prepared] he had made ready and furnished one of the chambers of the porticoes of the Temple, to lodge Tobiah therein when he came to Jerusalem: [Chamber] a partition of Chambers, that is to say, severall roomes: [the offerings] the Tithes of the Tithes, Neh. 12. 47. or the offerings which belonged to the Priests, Num. 18. 8.

V. 6. Of Babylon] that is to say of Persia, having conquered the Empire of Babylon, and reduced it into a Province, and may be he used that title to the Iewes, as Ezr. 5. 13. and 6. 22. [after certaine dayes] the Italian, after a year, or after some time.

V. 9. Cleansed] using the water of separation, Num. 19. 9. as having been polluted by the prophanenesse of them that had lodged in them, and by being put to uses contrary to Gods order, who had appointed them onely for his ministers.

V. 10. Been given them] by those that shared them, 2 Chron. 31. 4 15. 19.

V. 11. Why] that is to say, why for want of providing maintenance for the Levites; have the ordinarie services of the Temple been intermitted? see Neh. 10. 39.

V. 13. I made] according to  Davids first order,  1 Chron. 26. 20. observed by  Hezekiah, 2 Chron. 31. 12. [the Scribe] Doctor of the Law, or Secretarie, or Clerk, who kept the accompts and writings.

V. 15. Wherein they sold] upon a publick Marketday, when there was great store of people present.

V. 22. The gates] of the Temple, to keep the Sabbath religiously, doing their office without any distraction; Or to hinder unclean persons from comming into the Temple on the Sabbath, which was a day of solemn meeting and extraordinarie concourse of people,  2 Chron. 23. 19. [spare mee] the Italian,  pardon mee, my faults in other things, and my defects also in this.

V. 25. Cursed them] that is to say, denounced Gods curse unto them.

V. 28. Of the Sonnes] of his posterity, for he was his grand-child,  Neh. 12. 10. 11. and his name was  Manasseh, and his womans name  Nicoso; Now this  Manasseh upon this occasion retired to  Samaria to his father in Law, who by the permission of  Darius, and afterwards of  Alexander the great, undertooke the building of the Temple of  Garizim, Job. 4. 20. and to him there joyned themselves many Iewes and Priests, who had also entangled themselves in such unlawfull marriages, whence began the  Samaritans superstition and false worship in that Temple.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Book containeth a short History of certain notable accidents, which hapned to the Iewes that remained in Babylon, after their brethrens return under Ahasuerus, or Xerxes King of Persia; who by Gods singular providence having put away Vasthi his wife, espoused and raised to royall dignity Ester a Jewesse, and raised to one of the highest degrees of the Kingdom Mardocheus her Cousin and bringer up; by reason of a faithfull service which hee had done him when he was in great danger; So that by the meanes, of their two powers and authorities, the whole Nation was delivered from a bloudie plot which Haman had laid, and was alreadie decreed against them, to revenge himselfe of Mardocheus for refusing to give him divine honour: But was returned at last upon the authors head by the death of him, and the destruction of all his progenie and faction. For which deliverance there was a solemn annuall commemoration appointed, which is to this day observed and kept by the Iewes for a notable document of Gods protecting and providing for his people, even in their oppression and captivity, and of the excellent vertues, piety, loyalty, magnanimity, charity and justice, which hee preserved in many of the members of the said people, for the saving of the whole body.

CHAP. I.

VER. 1. OF Ahasuerus] the most probable opinion is that this is the same as is mentioned, Ez. 4. 6. called by the Historians Xerxes the terror of Greece.

V. 2. Sate] that is to say, reigned peaceably, as 2 Sam. 7. 1.

V. 3. The power] the Italian hath it, the Ho [...]st, [Page] gathered together for some notable enterprise, Xerxes having performed many of them, unlesse he meane onely the chiefe and officers of it.

V. 6. The beds] after the ancient manner especially of great ones, which was to eat lying upon beds, and not sitting at Table, see Ester 7. 8. Ier. 23. 41. Amos 2. 8. and 6. 4. [of red] the Italian, of porphyre, the Hebrew names for these st [...]nes are of a very uncertaine signification.

V. 8. Compell] which otherwise was a custome amongst the Persians.

V. 13. To the wise men] namely, to his councellers, or to the Astrologians and Magicians, by whose advices all businesse of importance were taken in hand, Est. 6. 13. [which knew] who by rules of Astrologic (a science much used amongst those Nations) did professe they could tell, at what instant of time any thing might be prosperously undertaken; or else they were men of great experience and knowledge of what had passed in former times; and therefore were able to give advice in things that daily happened, see 1 Chron 12. 32. Isa 3. 1. [Law] for these Astrologians were employed in public judgements and counsellors.

V. 14. Which saw] that is to say, were familiarly intimate with the King, and were his ordinary Counsellors, who had free access to the King at all times, which was not granted to other men in Persia, see Ez. 7. 14.

V. 16. To the King, by disobedience, and to others by ill example.

V. 18. Say] the Italian, dare to speak, that is [...] to say, shall be bold with their tongues, and contradict: [contempt] of women towards their husbands, and husbands wrath against their wives.

V. 22. That it should be published] the Italian, that he should speak, that every man should keep and observe the liberty of his own Nation, by commanding his people, and governing his own family without any contradiction: Some understand it also that the husband in signe of superiority, might use his own native language, although the wife were a stranger.

CHAP. II.

VER. 1. HEe remembred] he be thought himselfe of what he had done in his beat of wine and wrath: Being grieved that hee was constrained by reason of the Law to leave her so [...] a cause that was not very just nor honest: And therefore his Officers doe free him of this annoia [...]c [...] by shewing him a way, whereby hee might satisfie his desires, and make good his losse.

V. 3. To the house of.] it was such a place as is now in these dayes called a Serraglio, and there were two of them, one for Virgins, and the other for Coneubines, whereof each one had its Eunuch to governe it and [...]ook to i [...], verse [...].<sup>4</sup>

V. 6. Who had] namely, Kish.

V. 7. Hadassah] this name is a Caldean name, and the other which followeth a Persian according to many mens opinions.

V. 12. Of Myrrhe] which was very abstersive or cleansing and good to get wrinkles out of the skinne▪ and to make the substance of the body solid, to drive a way evill smells and sents; and generally to purifie or be [...]utifie.

V. 13. Whatsoever she desired] either for jewells, rich garments, or any other ornaments.

V. 14. Of the women] namely, of the Concubines, who had beene knowne carnally by the King.

V. 16. Tebe [...]h] which is the December Moone called the tenth Month, not according to the Persian manner of counting the Moneths from September, Ez. 10. 9. but according to the Iewes accompt, who begun their yeare in March, Est. 3. 7.

V. 18. Made a release] of all imposts and [...]ributes, according to the manner of Kings great feasts.

V. 19. And wheu] namely, after the King had chosen Ester for Queen, and that the rest were shut up in the Virgins Serraglio to purifie and beautifie themselves untill it pleased the King to call any of them: [sate] as one of the guard, or a courier, which he perad ventare was admitted to, for Esters sake to be ready at the Kings command, and neere to Ester to give her good instructions, and to have notice from her of any thing that happened.

V. 23. Of the Chronicles] of Records and publike Acts: [before the] for the Kings of Persia had Secretaries continually by them which wrote all that the King said or did; and any thing that befell him.

CHAP. III.

VER. 1. The Agagi [...] it is thought that hee meanes Amalekite, or of the bloud royall of that Nation, whose Kings were called by the common name of Agag, Num. 24. 7. [set his seat] according to the custome of Persia, by which great Lords had their seats appointed neere the King and set in order according to their worths, or according to the Kings favour, Est. 1. 14. see 2 Kings 25. 28.

V. 2. Boxed not] because that according to the custome of Persia, those honours did somewhat savour of divine worship, wherefore a Iewes conscience would not suffer him to yeeld any such kinde [...] of honour to man.

V. 4. That hee was] and that therefore it was not [Page] lawfull for him, nor hee would never doe it.

V. 7. Nisan] which is the March moone, see Ester 2. 16. [Pur] a Persian word, which signifieth lot, Est. 9. 24. for those people did use lots to chuse out prosperous times for such and such actions or enterprises: [Adar] which is February moone.

V. 10. His ring] with which he sealed his royall letters, Est. 8. 8. and he gave it him to wright what hee pleased in the Kings name, and it seemes hee kept it afterwards as a token of principall authority, Est. 8. 2. see Gen. 41. 42.

V. 15. The City] namely, the Iewes that dwelt in it; or all the people in generall, partly for pity, and partly for feare of the ordinary confusions, which happen in these popular executions, wherein every body followeth his own passion against whom h [...]e pleaseth, under the pretence of the proscription of some.

CHAP. IIII.

VER. 1. With ashes] see upon *Iosh. 7. 6. Iob 2. 12. Ezech. [...]*7. 30.

V. 8. To charge her] in *Mord [...]*cai his name, who was in a fathers stead to Ester.

V. 11. One Law] he is condemned to death without any remission by an immutable and irrevocable sentence which is of as much force as Law, Dan. 2. 9.

V. 14. Shall bee destroyed] some notable judgement of God will fall upon thee and thine, because of thy base and scare [...]ull courage.

V. 16. Neither eat] that is to say, doe not take your ordinary repasts, but eat sparingly and afflict your soules in token of repentance, which is the true companion and assistant of prayer: [I perish] I will embrace my death quietly, seeing I cannot avoide it without failing in my duty, unlesse that God be pleased to heare our common prayers, see Gen. 43. 14.

CHAP. V.

VER 1. INner Court] divided from the outward Court, Est. 6. 4. into which one might come without being called.

V. 2. Touched] in token of reverence and subjection.

V. 6. Of wine] namely, at the second course, see upon Neh. 2. 1.

V. 8. As the King] namely, in making my request known unto him.

CHAP. VI.

VER. 1. OF the Cronicles] the Italian, of the journall [...] or doily acts, the publike acts of every day which were gathered by certaine Scriveners according to the custome of Persia and other Nations, Est. 2. 23.

V. 4. In the Court] desiring and expecting to bee called into the inner Court, it being not lawfull to come in otherwise, Ester 4. 11. and 5. 1.

V. 8. The horse] as 1 Kings 1. 33. [his head] some understand this of the horses head which might also peradventure be the custome and fashion of Persia.

V. 12. His head covered] a ceremonie used amongst the Eastern people, in the time of great mournings, 2 Sam. 15. 30. Ier. 14. 3.

V. 13. His wise men] see upon Ester 1. 13. [to fall] from thy supreme dignity; the King having communicated it to another, by which meanes hee is entered into favour with all men: [bee of the seed] which seed by divers manifest proofes, all the world had found to bee in the great God his singular favour and protection, and had also the faculty of gaining the good will of Kings by their excellent vertues; as it had been seene in Daniel and his companions, in Jechonia, in Zerubbabell, Ezra, Nehemiah, and others. And peradventure in this councill there was some magick art used.

CHAP. VII.

VER. 2. ON the second day] after the first of the other precedent banquet.

V. 4. If wee had beene sold] it seemeth shee hath a reference to the summe of money which Haman had proffered, Ester 3. 9. and 4. 7. [dammage] in the losse of such a number of usefull and loyall subjects which cannot bee countervailed by the summe of money which hee hath proffered, though it bee a great and vaste summe.

V. 8. Vpon the bed] that bed which she used at meales, not the bed shee lay upon to sleep, Ester 1. 6. [face] as it were to take a hatefull object from before the Kings eyes, and to shew that Hamman was unworthy to behold the Kings face any more, and in token of his irrevocable condemnation, see Iob 9. 24. Isa. 22. 17.

V. 9. Chamberlains] the Italian hath it, ordinarie [Page] Officers, Heb. which stood in the Kings presence, others said in the presence of the King, Behold, &c.

CHAP. VIII.

VER. 4. HEld out] in signe of favour and to make her stand upon her feet, see Est. 4. 11.

V. 7. I have given] I have done what I could for you according to the Law, having punished Haman, and testified all manner of good will towards you; now it lyeth not in my power to revoke the letters written by Hamon, Est. 1. 19. But I doe give the Iewes leave and power to provide for their escape and defence as well as they can.

V. 9. Sivan] which is the May moone.

V. 10. Dromedaries] a sort of Camells which are lesser then the ordinary ones and extreame swift: [Mules] others translate it, greater Camells.

V. 12. One day] as they should have been set upon, to the end the Iewes might take nothing upon them beyond the moderation of a just defence.

V. 15. Blue] the Italian [violet] these colours namely, violet, white and scarlet, were peculiar to the Kings and great ones of Persia, [the Citie] see, Est. 3. 15.

V. 16. Had light] a calme and deliverance from the horrible tempest, which threatned them.

CHAP. IX.

VER. 3. Offices] some would restraine this to Treasurers and Chamberlaines.

V. 10. Laid they not] though the King had granted them leave to doe it, Est. 8. 11. yet they abstained from it, to shew that this execution was done by them, onely for the safeguard of their lives, and not for any covetousnesse.

V. 13. To morrow also] because there remained yet in Shushan many of the Iewes deadly and open [...]nemies, being of Hanians servants and partakers; who being escaped the prefixed day, would not faile a new to set on foot their cruell designe upon the first opportunitie: and therefore Ester desires to have them prevented, [be hanged] that their bodies may be as a spectacle in signe of execration, and for a publike example.

V. 19. Of sending] see concerning this I [...]udable custome, on great feast dayes, Neh. 8. 10. 11.

V. 21. The fourteenth] those of the countrey the fourteenth, and those in the citi [...]s the fifteen [...]h; yet according to the Iewes observation to this day, the fourteenth is a greater festivall then the fifteenth.

V. 23. Vndertook] they voluntarily submitted and yeelded to obey this command though it were not a command that had any power to force them to it, through feare of punishment, seeing it came not from any supreme power.

V. 26. Of this letter] the Italian, of those letters, namely of Mordacai, ver. 20. [and of that] they did dispose themselves to the observation of this, not onely by reason of Mordacai his authority, but also through their own judgements, acknowledging the danger and the greatnesse of the delivera [...].

V. 29. With all authority] the Italian, with all manner of instance, the Hebrew, strength: Others, he writ the second time all that belonged to the ratisication and firmenesse of this statute.

V. 31. Fastings] whereof not withstanding there is no mention made in this book: but one may gather by the Iewes practice, that in the thirteenth day of the moneth, which day the slaughter of the people should have been, they did ordinarily fast in remembrance of the danger.

V. 32. In the book] of the statutes and observations of the Iewes, besides Moses Lawes.

CHAP. X.

VER. 3. SPeaking peace] or speaking of peace to all, &c. studying and appointing such things as belonged to the prosperity and safety of them.

The ARGUMENT.

THis Book containeth a true History, and not as some have believed a fiction or morall parable as appears by the Scripture it selfe, Ezech. 14. 14. and Iam. 5. 11. The time when this hapned, seemes to be when the people journeyed in the wilderness after their deliverance out of Aegypt, whereof there are manifest tracks in this book, as of a thing newly done and yet fresh in mens memories. The most common opinion is that Moses hath been the authour of it, having written the narration in prose, and the discourses which were held upon this subject in heroick verse, fitting with the dignitie and gravity of the matter. There bee therefore two parts in this book, one is the history of what hapned to Iob an Edomite by Nation, but faithfull in his religion, and holy in his conversation; who from the very heighth of an exceeding great happinesse which he enjoyed with a very pure conscience, was by the Devills inducement and Gods permission, upon a sudden plunged into an abisse of miseries corporall and spirituall, internall and externall for the space of divers Months, with a long and exceeding stronge tryall of his faith and pietie, which had been calumniated by the Devill, and termed mercenary Hypocrisie, in which tryall and combate he at last remained victorious through his faith and perseverance, though much shaken and tottered in the f [...]esh through its thoughts and motions. And after he had been approved of by God, hee was miraculously raised and super abundantly rewarded. The second part containeth the opinions, motions, disputes, and discourses of Iob, and foure friends of his upon this subject: The summe whereof is, that Iob fully cetified by the holy Ghost of Gods grace in the promised Mediator, apprehended by a lively faith, a treasure preserved in a good conscience, cannot reconcile this harsh outward usage with that inward seale: And therefore hee most bitterly torm [...]nts and grieves himselfe, and complaines of God, to God himselfe; urging him either to admit him to come before him to justifie himselfe or to know the causes of this so unaccustomed and strange manner of government: Wherein though he shew the invincible force of his faith and uprightnesse of his conscience; yet can he not be excused from excesse in his termes and words: Contrariwise three of his friends, grave and wise persons which came to comfort him, seeing his tragicall and terrible calamities, and hearing his immoderate discourses, accuse him to have been a prophane and wicked man or a dissembling hypocrite; seeing that Gods providence and justice (which rewards every one according to his works) did punish him with evident tokens of revenge beyond the temperatenesse and measure of the corrections and proofes of the faithfull: And therefore they exhort him to convert himselfe to God, and give glory to him in all humility, and so to expect his deliverance from him. But Iob re [...]ells these temerary accusations and absolutely denies their maxime; namely, that God doth alwayes make the rewards and punishments equall to mens deeds, which is contradicted by the common expeience of all Ages. He also refuseth to acknowledge himselfe to have been a wicked man contrary to his own conscience, for that would have been a denying of the seale and witness of Gods Spirit in his heart; depriving himselfe of the onely stay and comfort he had in all his evils, and casting himselfe headlong into dispaire: And therefore he granteth unto his friends, that as he is a creature, he will not, nor cannot contend with his Creator, if he please to treat with him in his Majesty, and according to that soveraign right and power which hee hath over his creatures, and also as a sinner by his own nature, he yeeldeth unto the rigor of Gods Law, if he will [Page] proceed against him as a Iudge; but if he please to seat himselfe upon the throne of grace, and from thence heare him as a sonne and a believer, he is ready to lay himselfe open unto him, and maintaine his innocencie, and beare away the victory on his side: And having thus stopped the mouth of his three friends, Elihu the fourth stepts in, reproving the three other for not having rightly debated this controversie, and for being by that meanes forced to abandon Gods cause which they had undertak [...]n to defend: And takes another way; namely, to leave to God and Iobs conscience to judge of that part of his life which was past, and doth rebuke him for his present excesses and unreverences against Gods Majesty; shewing him that it was no way incompatible, but rather a very ordinary thing to be faithfull, and yet grievously punished by God for triall and exercise, or for correction and extirpation of some internall vice and defect not known, or unequally weighed in mans own conscience. Therefore he exhorteth Iob to silence, humility, and profound adoration of Gods judgements: Finally, Iob opposeth his faith and certaine assurance of Gods grace to his so severe visitations: His three friends doe oppose the profession which hee made of piety, faith and innocencie, by reason of these his afflictions: Elihu contrariwise maintaines that the one may subsist with the other, and that in such perplexities the onely remedy is, quietly to put ones selfe into the hands of God without any murmuring and contradiction, approving of all that hee doth [...] as most just; Which also is the true and certaine decision of the question: To which Iob submitting himselfe with silence, the Lord appeares and doth stronglier confirme it by his sentence, calling Iob and his three friends to a godly correcting of their opinions; and to a friendly concord of wills.

CHAP. I.

VER. 1. OF Vz] a part of the countrey of Edom, Lam. 4. 21. which took its name from, and was inhabited by the children of Vz of Esau's race, Gen. 36. 28. see Ier. 25. 20.

V. 3. His substance] the Italian, his cattell, or his wealth, and that as hee had, [houshold] his number of servants, as Gen. 26. 14. or husbandry: [of the East] in respect of the land of Canaan, as Judg. 6. 3. 1 Kings 4. 30.

V. 4 Went] at certaine times of the yeere they met at feasts of charity, and brotherly conversation.

V. 5. Sanctified them] prepared them by ceremoniall exercises and purifications, as fasts, abstinences, and washings, as Exod. 19. 10. and especially by internall and spirituall ones, of prayers, mortifications, and meditations, Gen. 35. 2. that they might without pollution or uncleannesse bee partakers of their fathers offerings: [burnt offerings] see Lev. 1. 3. [cursed God] the Italian, spoken evill of God, the Heb blessed, in detestation of blasphemie, it is covered under the name of its contrary, as much as to say, they may have spoken some irreverent word against God, in the heat and licentiousnesse of the banquet.

V. 6. There was a day] a comparison or example taken▪ from Princes Courts, where the Officers doe appeare at certaine times to give accompt of their charge, see 1 Kings

22. 19. [the sonnes] namely, the Angels, Luke 20. 36. Job 38. 7. [satan] the adversary, or accuser, or slanderer, Rev. 12. 10. here he comes impudently, being not called nor having no part nor right in heaven, nor in the light thereof, b [...]t onely desirous to obtaine some commission or permission to doe evill, which is his chiefe delight.

V. 7. Going too and fro] the Italian, compassing, as idle, and besides that, unquiet, seeking alwayes to doe evill, Mat. 12. 43. 1 Pet. 5. 8. [walking] an impudent boldnesse, as if the earth were a place for him to take his pleasure and pastime in; whereas it is the, place of his banishment, where he expecteth his last condemnation to infernall torments, Luk. 10. 18. Rev. 12. 9. 12.

V. 9. For nought] that is to say, of meere good will, for meere affection, love and respect which he beareth thee, which is true pietie, but onely for hope of recompence, his love being but a mercenary lo [...]e, Iob. 4. 6.

V. 11. Curse thee] Heb. blesse thee, as verse 5.

V. 15. The Sabeans] people of Arabia who were alwayes given to robbing.

V. 16. Of God] that is to say, the lightning; an ordinary manner of speaking.

V. 18. Wine] somewhat extraordinary, according to the manner of feasting, Est. 5. 6. and 7. 2.

V. 20. Rent] see Gen. 37. 29. [shaved] a signe of grieffe in those dayes, Ez. 9. 3. Isa. 3. 24. and 15. 2. and 22. [Page] 12. Ier. 7. 29. Mic. 1. 16. [worshipped] the meaning is, hee prostrated himselfe before God, to give him glory with reverence and humility, for his incomprehensible judgements.

V. 21. Came I out] as much as to say, that which I have lost was not mine own, I had but borrowed it of God, and without it I may die in his favour, as I was borne without it: [thither] namely to the earth pointing at it with his finger.

CHAP. II.

VER. 3. Without cause] not but that Iob was a sinner by nature, and therefore subject to the penalties of the Law; nor but that there were defects and vices in him though hee were in the state of grace,; for whi [...]h vices and defects God might justly punish him: but because hee did endeavour to live innocently, and kept himselfe from sins of malice, negligence, and such [...]ike, which provoke God against his children, see Iob 9. 17. Deut. 32. 5. 1. Ioh. 5. 18.

V. 4. Skinne] a proverbe taken from the exchanges which were used in those dayes, the meaning is, there may bee some proportion in bargains, releases, and exchanges, but for his life, a man will give all; and therefore Iob for feare of loosing his life, and not by reason of any true piety towards God, doth with patience and silence thus endute his other losses.

V. 8. Among] in token of humility and mortification, see Iob 42. 6. Mat. 11. 21.

V. 9. Retaine] as if shee should say, now thy wonted actions of piety, are unprofitable, the Lord cannot bee moved by thy prayers to restore thee, think then upon nothing else but upon submitting thy selfe unto his will, and die.

10. Shall wee receive] shall wee imagine that God is bound to use us alwayes kindly and mildely, and if hee doth not; shall wee not beleeeve in him nor serve him? see Iob 13. 15. and 17. 9.

V. 11. Temanite] descended from Teman the Edomite, Gen. 36. 11. [Shubite] issued of Shuah the son of Abraham by Keturah, Gen. 25. 2. [Naamathite] the originall of this name is unknown.

V. 12. Dust] in token of greefe. as Iosh. 7. 6. Neh. 9. 1.

V. 13. And none] partly by reason of astonishment, and partly because their hearts were shut up with compassion.

CHAP. III.

VER. 1. CVrsed] motions of meere infirmity, and impatience of the flesh, without blasphemy or impiety, or any other evill meaning, see upon 2 Sam 1. 21.

V. 3. Perish] an impossible and vaine wish. The meaning is, let not the memory of it bee kept, no [...] solemnized as a birth day, but let it every yeare when it commeth, bee held as an unluckie and infamous day.

V. 4. Regard it] let it not be made pleasant with clearnesse; nor luckie by any good chances.

V. 5. The shaddow] like to the shaddow of the subterraneall, and infernall cloisters: [staine it] let it be mournfull, like lo a funerail day, which day it was not lawfull for them who had been present at the sunerall, to come to any feasts, or offer any sacrifices.

V. 6. Let it not be joyned with] the Italian, let it not rejoyce with, let it not bee reckoned amongst the good, nor joyfull dayes of the yeare.

V. 7. Salitary] and not honoured by any festivall assemblies.

V. 8. Them curse it] namely those hired mourners that used those formes of mourming at funeralls, 2 Chron. 35. 25. Ier. 9. 17. Amos. 5. 16.

V. 9. The dawning of] the Italian, the eye lids of or the first appearing of day light: a poeticall terme.

V 12. The knees] namely of the midwife, or the nurse, see Gen. 30. 3.

V. 14. Desolate places] hee seemeth to meane the founders of great cities, and heads of Empires after the desolation of the deluge, Gen. 10. 10. 11. Iob 15. 28. Isa. 23. 13.

V. 18. The oppressour] hee meaneth one that is set over slaves to see them doe their work, as Iob 39. 10. see Iudg. 16. 21.

V. 20. Is light given] the Italian, giveth he light, meaning God; though hee forbeareth to name him for the reverence and respect hee beareth to his name.

V. 23. VWhose way] that seeth no issue nor remedy to her evils, and is quite void of counsell and help: [hedged in] as in a l [...]birinth of calamities, Iob 19. 8. Lam. 3. 7. Hos. 2. 6,

V. 26. I was not] I never gave my selfe over to carnall security, I have alwayes affrighted my heart with the apprehension of the accidents of this life and have contained my selfe within the bounds of all humility and modesty, Prov. 28. 14.

CHAP. IV.

VER. 3. Strengthened] by consolations, and holy, exhortations, &c. thou didest confirme others in faith, constancy and patience, Isa. 35. 3. Heb. 12. 12.

V. 6. Thy feare] the Italian, thy piety, Heb. fear, namely God, the meaning is, doth it not now appeare, tha [...] thou hast been meerly mercenary, serving God but only in meere hope of recompence or-reward, Iob 1. 9.

V. 10. The roaring] God abates the pride of the [Page] wicked and violent men; and takes from them the power of doing any hurt: [broken] or pulled out.

V. 12. A thing] the Italian, [...]word, namely by vision and prophetick revelation. And it is uncertaine, whether this happened just upon his afflictions, and at the same time, or whether it were before, see Psal. 62, 12.

V. 15. Secretly] by stealth, that is to say, unlooked for, as I was going by: [a spirit] namely an Angell.

V. 17. More just than] the Italian, justified before, namely by his own works and merits. A revelation of the doctrine of the free remission of sins, and of the sinners justification by grace, through his faith and beliefe in the promised Mediator.

V. 18. Put no trust] the good Angels themselves in their owne nature which was very well known to God were subject to fall into the devills sinnes; which are infidelity in Gods service, rash attempts against his command and glory; therefore they have had need of Gods confirming and sustaining grace. How much more then ought man who is in the state of sinne, and death, to acknowledge that hee cannot subsist nor stand before Gods judgement, but only by his gracious pardon and absolution?

V. 19. On them] namely men, whose corporall and animall life causeth them to bee weaker and more mutable than Angels: and in whom sinne is resident and reigneth, as it appeareth by his death. A terme taken from buildings, which are subject to fall.

V. 20. Without any] suddenly and in a moment. Or hee doth here represent the stupidity of men who I [...]ok not after their death, which should bee a profitable mistresse to teach them how to live.

V. 21. Even without] namely like beasts, without apprehending the soveraigne end of life eternall; which is the principall act of humane wisdome; nor doe not goe the way, for to attaine unto it, Psal. 40. 21. and 90. 12.

CHAP. V.

VER. 1. Call] if thou continest in thine impatience and folly thou canst not hope to be heard of God, nor helped or comforted by any of his Angels. God and his Angels will be against thee: [wilt thou turne] not by any religious invocation, which was never neither commanded nor suffered; but only by hope of approbation or assistance.

V. 2. VVrath] namely grudging and impatience: [killeth] makes his disease desperate and incurable.

V. 3. I cursed] I have judged that hee was accursed of God, and have conformed my thoughts to his judgements, and have shunned all manner of communion with the wicked. Hee meaneth that a man who hath not true spirituall wisdome, is alwayes doubtfull and uncertain in his happinesse, and desperate in adversity. And therefore O Iob, take heed of being one of them.

V. 4. In the gate] that is to say, in courts of justice, and publick assemblies, they are esteemed as infamous persons unworthy of enjoying the common right, see Psa, 117. 5.

V. 5. Out of the thornes] that is to say, though it be hedged in with strong hedges.

V. 6. Commeth not forth] it never bringeth foorth any true happinesse.

V. 7. Yet man] the Italian, although man, though man wicked in nature, performeth and doth many things, yet are they not like fruites of a good tree, but like vaine and unfruitfull sparkles out of a furnace:

V. 8. Commit] namely by conversion and humble prayers.

V. 9. Great things] namely such miracles as thy deliverance might be,

V. 10. Raine] naturall raine for the earth, and supernaturall of grace and comfort for the soules, Psal. 72. 6. and 143. 6. Hos. 6. 3.

V. 12. Of the crafty] so hee seemeth by an oblique way to tax Iob of hypocrisie.

V. 14. In the day] God blindeth them in such sort, that in matters which are most plaine they are without any percevance, counsell, or resolution.

V. 16. Iniquity] the wicked are confounded and lost, failing of their hopes, convicted of their wickednesses; and amazed at▪ godly, mens good successes contrary to their expectations.

V. 19. In seven] or in the seventh.

V. 21. The scourge] namely when the godly shall licentiously bee persecuted by calumniations, and injurious speeches.

V. 23. Thou shalt be in league] all creatures animate, and inanimate, as by expresse covenant shall take heed of hurting thee, the stones shall not cause thee to stumble nor fall, nor shall not bruise or hurt thy feet.

CHAP. VI.

VER. 2. OH that my] thou blamest me O Eliphaz for lamenting so extreamly, but know that my laments are not somuch as equall with my torments.

V. 3. Swallowed up] they doe not come out [Page] smoothly, but with interrupted throbs, even as liquor that commeth out of a bottle which hath a narrow mouth, or wanteth vent. Or my words faile mee, and are smothered up with sighs, and [...]obs.

V. 5. The wilde asse] lamenting is a naturall thing even to beasts, when they doe want any good thing, or feele any hurtfull thing.

V. 6. That which is] how ca [...] I use such moderati [...]n as you desire I should, my evils being extream, sweetned with▪ no kind of comfort, nor seasoned with any thing that is good for any healthful [...] use.

V. 7. The things] I suffer such torments even in my very soule, as the very t [...]ought of them would heretofore have assrighted mee.

V. 8. O that▪ thou dost in vaine exhort mee to hope for rest [...]urat [...]on, for my case is [...]ncurable, and my estate depl [...]rable; I expect, nor desi [...]e nothing but death

V. 10. Concealed] I have not put out the light nor cancelled the seale of Gods promises in my heart, nor ever diss [...]mbled or concealed the profession of my faith, Psal 40. 10. and 116. [...]0. and 119 4 [...]. so hee declares that [...]ee doth not desire to die like a desperate man; but th [...]t hee desireth death, as the only remedy of his evils.

V. 11. Mine ends] that space of life which I have to come according to nature is now so short, that I can not h [...]pe for any reparation of so many evils, Iob 16. 22.

V. 14. From his friend] from th [...]e O Eliphaz, and from thy fel [...]ows: [the feare of] which is violated for want of charity, and through giving rash judgement upon secret acts, which God reserveth only to himselfe.

V. 15. My brethren] or my intimate friends: [a brook] of raine-water which passe [...]h away, and not of a living spring.

V. 16. Blackish] they seeme very deep and look darkish as long as they are frozen.

V. 17. They wax warme] the Italian, when they runne, namely when the ice melteth in summer.

V. 19. Tema, Sheba] places of Arabia, to which they travell with caravans, and in great troops, with many beasts of carriage; and water is very scarce, Gen. 37. 25.

V. 21. Nothing] friends altogether unprofitable to performe any duties of true friendship, Iob 13. 4. [are affraid] you tremble with horror, as at accidents proceeding from Gods great wrath against an accursed person, whose company you therefore refraine.

V. 22. Did I say] seeing I desire no help nor assistance of you for mine evils and towards my losses, and that you can give me no comfort, which are two duties of true friends in affliction: I must needs esteem you as unprofitable friends, unlesse you will performe the third duty, which is to instruct and correct (but with reason) which I will willingly accept of, and doe crave at your hands.

V▪ 26. Doe yee imagine] doe you beleieve that all your discourses are like so many sentences, or unanswerable arguments; and mine to bee but frivolous things? [of one] namely mine, who am overladen with evils p [...]st all remedy.

V▪ 2 [...]. The fatherlesse] namely mee, who have none to help or beare mee up.

V. 29. Let it not bee] namely in you, finning against Go [...], usurping his right, taking upon you to judge of secret things, even against your neighbour with calumniations and inhuman [...]tie.

V. 30. My [...]e] these are figurative termes. His meaning is, [...]ave not I understa [...]ding and discretion enough, to keep [...]ee from giving heed to, or feeding my selfe with pernicious though [...]s and discourses? Iob 12. 11. and 34. 3.

CHAP. VII.

VER. 1. Time] all labours and services in this world, have their ends, and releasements, as souldiers are licensed, when the time of their serving is ended. But I alas seem to bee condemned to perpetuall torments, and shall have no time of respite in mine evils, which doe increase in the night time, which is a time of rest for all men.

V. 3. Moneths] this sheweth that his calamities lasted a long time, see Iob 29. 2.

V. 5. With wormes] with sores, and putrefied ul [...]ers, full of wormes.

V. 6. Hope] of corporall amendment.

V. 7. Remember] hee turneth his speech to God, speaking to him in humane termes and conceipts. If I die under thine hand, and that afterwards thy wraih be appeased, how wilt thou be able to doe me good when I am no more? Wouldest thou deprive thy selfe of the meanes of using thy goodnesse towards mee, letting mee die before thou help or relieve mee? see Iob 7. 21. and 14. 15. and 16. 22. Psal. 88. 11.

V. 11. Therefore I will not] since I can get no ease at thy hands; I will disburthen my heart with laments.

V. 12. Am I a Sea] I cannot judge my evils to be to any other end, than to keep mee in safe custody untill my cause be ful [...]y heard; but what needs so much rigor?

am I as mighty as these creatures? or able to resist thee or escape from thee? Iob 10. 6. 7. and 13. 27.

V. 15. My life] the Italian, my bones, my body which is now nothing but bones.

[...] [Page]

[...] [Page]

V. 16. I would not live] the Italian, I shall not live, [Page] give me a little rest, to prepare my selfe for my approaching death: [Uanity] transitory, uncertaine and fleeting of their own nature, but brought quite to nothing, through my calamities, Psal. 39. 5.

V. 17. Magnifie him] holding him in such straight custody, and proceeding against him, with such a rigourous inquest, as against a great and terrible delinquent, verse, 12.

V. 19. Swallow doune] that I may but recover my selfe, and take breath, Iob 9. 18.

V. 29. I have sinned] if thou wilt judge me according to the rigour of thy Law, I confesse my selfe to bee a sinner, and unable to yeeld thee satisfaction, Iob 9. 3. 15. 29. and 14.
4. though according to the fatherly rule, which thou hast prescribed to thy children, I have endeavoured my selfe to innocencie: [thou preserver] that keepest all men during this mortall life under thy Soveraigne hand as under custody, untill the time that every one must be judged [a burthen] life being noisome, and grievous to me, being oppressed with so many sorrowes.

V. 21. Take away] from before thy face and judgement, by pardon and by remitting thy justice, 2 Sam. 12. 13. not by taking it away from within man, by a totall annihilation of sinne, and all manner of defects which is never done during this life: [seek me] for to doe me good, verse 8.

CHAP. VIII.

VER. 4. CAst them away] hath punished them according to their offences.

V. 8. Enquire] call to remembrance and think upon our fore-fathers, who by reason of the advantage of long life, and other gifts, had more knowledge and experience then we have in this age.

V. 10. Shall not they teach thee] concerning Gods judgements and providence and the issue of the godly and the wicked.

V. 11. The rush] as the grasse of waterish places though it grow apace and strongly, by reason of the abundance of moistnesse, yet it withereth apace; So is the prosperity of the wicked fading in the mire of this world.

V. 16. The Italian addeth in the beginning of the verse, but the prefect man; for to observe the opposition, wee must supply these words out of the 20<sup>a</sup> v. according to the frequent use of Scripture: [he is green] he is like an exquisite tree set in a pleasant garden, in sight of his masters palace, sucking the sweet moistnesse of the quick springs, without ever fading or withering, Psal. 1. 3. Jer. 17. 8. that is to say, he shall have a lively root of faith continually nonrished by Gods grace, under his safeguard and favour he shall be strong in all assayes abundant in good works and all manner of blessings.

V. 19. The joy] the reward of his godly life, followed with a blessing in his posterity in which hee lives againe after his death.

V. 20. Will not cast away] the Italian, will not disdain, therefore ô Job turne thou unto him with uprightnesse of conscience, see Psal. 51. 19.

CHAP. IX.

VIR. 2. IT is so] that God is sovereignly just and wrongeth no man, Iob 8. 3. and that man hath no right to contend with him as he is a Creator, and a Iudge. And I know also that God as he is a father, gives unto his children accesse to his throne of grace, to unfold their griefes unto him, and to make him judge of their integrity.

V. 9. Arcturus] the Italian, the signes of the wayne, namely, the constellations; whereof Arcturus or the wayne is towards the North. Orion and Pleiades towards the East and West, the other towards the South, and these have here no proper name, being starres of the Antartick pole, alwayes hidden from our Hemisphere, and at that time utterly unknown.

V. 11. He goeth by me] he is incomprehensible as well in his essence, as in his works and judgements, Acts 17. 27. Rom. 11. 33.

V. 13. Not withdraw] namely for any feare, or by meanes any of ones resistance.

V. 16. If I had called] God hath shewed himselfe so terrible towards me, so that although he were appeased, yet durst I not take courage againe, much lesse durst I presume to contend with him in his anger.

V. 17. Without cause] see Iob 2. 3.

V. 19. Of judgement] to debate my cause by way of justice: [who shall set] God will not so farre abase himselfe as to stand to plead with mee as a party, neither will any one dare to take upon him the quaility of Iudge, to callus both before him.

V. 20 If I justifie] the Italian, If I be just, namely, justified by faith, and sanctified by the Spirit, endeavouring my selfe to righteousnesse and innocencie, according to the measure of grace as God hath bestowed upon me, though not in that perfection as may bee answerable to the purity of Gods nature, nor the rigor of his Law, for if I be put to these trialls; I will alwayes freely confesse my vices and defects, Iob. 10. 15. and 14 4. 1 Cor. 1. 4.

V. 21. Would I not know] at the brightnesse of that light, I shall finde my selfe to bee quite otherwise then I imagined, I shall abhorre my life, and bee ashamed of it, though before, it did seeme to me to bee prayse worthy and vertuous, see Rom. 7. 15.

V. 22. This is one thing] the Italian, he is all one, [Page] that is to say, let me be either just, or guiltie, it is all one upon this tryall, for by it wee shall bee all found guilty.

V. 23. If the scourge] the Italian, if it be a scourge, namely, an expresse punishment for some grievous sinne, he would say, Hee often useth the just more rigorously then hee doth the wicked; for these are sometimes destroyed upon a sudden, whereas the righteous doe oftentimes linger a long time in their miseries, God seeming to take no care therefore, Iob 21. 13. Psal. 73. 4.

V. 24. The earth] God many times suffereth the wicked, most licentiously to raign in the world: [hee covereth] hee subverteth all order of justice, condemneth and putteth to death, even [...] the Iudges themselves. The covering of the face was a mark of a condemned man, held as unworthy of any more enjoying the light, and therefore deprived of the use of it, Ester 7. 8. Iob 40. 8. Isa. 12. 17. see Iob 24. 22. [if not] the Italian, if God doth not this, can these effects bee attributed to any other supreme cause, then to the providence of God? Amos 3. 6.

V. 27. If I say] if I doe resolve to beare out the afflictions of the body with the strength of the Spirit, and of the minde, I doe finde my selfe more weak this way, being terrified by thy wrath.

V. 29. Labour I] to suppressse my grieffe, and to endeavour to strengthen my selfe, in constancie and patience.

V. 31. In the ditch] in the abisse of the sense and feeling of my sinnes: [mine own cloaths] a kinde of figurative speech, as much as to say, I should bee deprived of all my ornaments of dignity, estimation, and glory, as being unworthy to weare them.

V. 33. Lay his hand] that is to say, use power, ordaine a Law, and enforce to stand to judgement.

V. 34. His feare] namely, his divine and terrible Majesty.

V. 35. It is not so] I am quite beside my selfe, amazed, and doe not know what I say.

CHAP. X.

VER. 1. VPon my selfe]. as much as to say, at my perill, if there be any danger to be feared, I will undergoe it.

V. 2. Doe not condemne] doe not use thy absolute power for to destroy me, and since mine own conscience doth not condemne mee, shew mee the cause of this thy manner of proceeding, that I may either bee contented with it, or amend my selfe.

V. 3. Oppresse] that thou shouldest use thy Soveraigne power in destroying thy creature, without observing the course and order of justice, and without the accused persons confession or conviction: [shine] to favour and direct their enterprises.

V. 4. Hast thou] thou art not subject to error, nor ignorance, as your worldly judges who are oftentimes forced to make severe inquisitions, and proceed roughly with guiltlesse persons, which notwithstanding is justified by the necessity of justice.

V. 5. Are thy dayes] ar [...] not thou eternall, and doest not thou know in the indivisible moment of thine eternity, all what hath been, is, and shall bee; wherefore thou needest not to proceed by way of enquirie, see Iob 7. 18.

V. 13. Hast thou hid] how can this agree, that thou shouldest, with the one and the selfe same free-will, create me, and destroy me? doe me so much good, and prepare so many evils for me?

V. 14. Thou wilt not acquit] words spoken according to the judgement of the flesh, which holdeth Gods visitations, to bee punishments and vengeance.

V. 15. Righteous] as Iob 9. 20.

V. 17. Witnesses] certaine proofes of thy wrath and indignation against me, Ruth. 1. 21. Iob 16. 8. Mal. 3. 5.

V. 21. And of darknesse] a figurative description of death.

V. 22. Without any order] without any vicissitudes, distinctions, or varieties set in order, of which things consist the greatest part of the beauty of this world; [the light is] namely, when the light is in the land of the living, by the return of the Sunne; The meaning is, that all is there abissed and sunk into eternall night.

CHAP. XI.

VER. 3. When thou mockest] the Italian, shalt thou mock, namely, God and us, making us believe such absurd things, as though wee were beasts, or ignorant men, Iob 34. 7.

V. 6. Of wisdome] this may bee understood of Gods Law, or of his secret providence: [double] that is to say, the Law of God doth not only require the outward discipline and obedience, wherein, O Iob, thou thinkest thou hast given satisfaction: But it also requireth the internall and perfect conformity to God, and to his will, which is the spirituall meaning of it: by which thou wilt finde thy selfe convinced, Rom. 7. 14. Iames 1. 25. Divine providence hath likewise two faces, of rigor, and clemencie, tempered and altered, according to the wants of Gods children in this life, by an unspeakable wisdom, see Eccl. 7. 14.

V. 10. If he cut off] that is say, if he destroyeth, or [Page] restoreth.

V. 11. He knoweth] mens inconstancie is the cause why he doth not alwayes proceed in the same degree, not in the same manner with them.

V. 12. For] the carnall mans brutish understanding is ignorant of, or doth oppose this wisdome of God.

V. 13. Stretch out] according to the ancients gesture in praying, not with their hands joynd together, but with their armes stretched abroad, and the palmes of their hands turned up towards heaven.

V. 15. Lift up] thou shalt be freed from the confusion of conscience, and wilt bee able to present thy selfe before God with a god [...]y confidence, to call upon him and contemplate him, see Gen. 4. 6. I [...] 22. 26.

V. 17. Shall be] thou shalt be renewed in glory and prosperity, even like as the day when it returns after the night.

V. 18. There is] the Italian hath it, there shall bee, God will alwayes furnish thee with new matter, to cause thee to hope perfectly in his grace.

V. 20. Shall faile] aspiring to that good which shall never come to passe, Iob 8. 13. [giving up] namely, by reason of a totall despaire.

CHAP. XII.

VER. 2. YEe are] you believe you know as much, and think you are as good as a great multitude of people put altogether: [shall die] an ironicall kinde of speech, as if he should say, in your own opinions you are the only wise men in the world, and with you shall all wisdome die.

V. 3. Who knoweth not] these discourses which you so much brag of, are they not common and ordinary?

V. 5. He that] namely I, who doe as it were hang dangerously, and am in danger of falling under the burthen of mine afflictions, Psal 35. 15. and 38. 17. Ier. 20. 10. [a lamp despised] a pro [...]erbiall kinde of speech, as much as to say, a thing of nought, and of no value; like a piece of a b [...]rnt st [...]k, or like a smoaking snuffe, see Isa. 7. 4. and 42. 3. [of him] of you my friend [...], that have not the feeling, and experience of my evils, and therefore cannot rightly judge of them, nor have any fellow feeling of them.

V. 6. Prosper] very often, and almost ordinarily; *I [...]*b opposeth t [...]is to his friends maxime, who said that adversity alwayes followed the wicked.

V. 7. The beasts] the thing is so plaine, that in a manner the v [...]ry beasts doe know it, and publish it.

V. 11. Try▪] think you that I will without any examination or distinction allow of your discourse, I who by reason of mine [...]ge have obtained wisdom and experience, see Iob 15. 10. and 32. 6.

V. 13. With him] I doe with you acknowledge Gods wisdom, [...]justice, and soveraign power; but that is nothing touching this present case, wherein the question is, how his fatherly favour, which I am certainly perswaded of, can agree with this s [...]me extreame rigour which hee now useth towards mee.

V. 15. With-holdeth] if hee doth not let it raine, the waters of the earth doe drie up.

V. 16. And wisdom] namely, the rule, and order of the right guiding of the world: [are his] as hee is Soveraign Lord over all, even of the Devills, and of all their instruments of deceit; so doth hee give [...]n their actions, as also the actions of sedu [...]ed men, though they be wicked; so that nothing happeneth witho [...]t his permission, and without being restrained within certaine bound [...], and reduced unto the very point of his most just will, see 1 Kings 22. 22. Prov. 16. 4. Ezech. 14 9 2 Thes. 2. 11.

V. 17. Hee leadeth▪] in triumph like prisoners taken in the warres after he hath overcome them in their combats against his Kingdom: [Councillers] the wise Princes and Conductors of the world; 1 Cor. 2. 6▪ 8. [spoiled] of all honour, power, and dignity.

V. 18. Looseth] that is to say, he degradeth them, taking away all command and authority from them; which is the bond which bindeth the people to obedience and subjection, Iob 30. 11. Isa. 45. 1. 5. [girdeth] hee causeth them to bring themselves into bondage, see Psal. 66. 11. Ier. 27. 2. 2 Kings 25. 7.

V. 20. The trusty] the Italian, the eloquent, or confident speakers.

V. 21. Weakneth the strength] the Italian, [...] jackneth the girdle, hee makes them faint-hearted and weak; a phrase taken from girdles, which bind a mans garments, and buckle his armour close to him, which makes him more stedly and nimble, see Dan. 5. 6.

V. 22. Shaddow] namely, most hidden things, which seemed to bee buried in perpetuall ignorance.

V. 24. To wander] amazed, irresolute, without direction or councell in their business [...]s.

CHAP. XIII.

VER. 3. SVrely I would] that Majesty which is s [...] terrible to his enemies, shall not hinder me, but I will dare, and desire to maintaine the right of my faith, and good conscienc [...] before him: He answereth Zophers, [Page] saying, Iob 11. 5.

V. 4. Forgers] the Italian, botchers, you gather up without any order, and to no purpose, whatsoever commeth in your way, to strengthen and maintaine your false accusation against me.

V. 7. Speak wickedly] condemn me through a manifest prevarication without knowledge, or against your own conscience; onely to insinuate your selves into Gods favour, as defendo [...] of his honour, or advocates in his cause.

V. 9. Search you out] namely, to know whether you did it in true zeale or only in flattery and dissimulation: [d [...]]e yee so mock him] the Italian, would or could yee so mock him, by or with a feigned affectation of words, void of truth.

V. 11. His excellencie] namely, the Maiesty of that great God, the authour and terrible defender of truth.

V. 12. Are like unto] they seeme indeed to bee of some value or greatnesse; but they have neither soundnesse of truth in them, nor worth of wisdom.

V. 13. Let come one me] let what please God befall me, I must seek some ease in my complaints, and in my instances towards God.

V. 14. Wherefore] what may be the reason of these extreme torments, which bring mee, into such distresse, that me thinks I should teare my selfe with my teeth? Iob [...]8. 4. [Put my life] the Italian, hold my soule, that is to say, why am I perpetually in present danger of death? see 1 Sam. 28. 21. Psal. 119. 109.

V. 16. For an] this mine assured confidence ought to bee a certaine argument for you, that I am no such hypocrite as you accuse me to be, for such a one dares not appeare, nor cannot subfist before God.

V. 18. Justified] namely, approved of by God as a true believer observing the Lawes of the duty of a true child, see Job 9. 20.

V. 19. If I hold my tongue] the Italian, I will hold my tougue and give up; the meaning is, I have but a short time to live, therefore I beseech thee give me leave besore I die, that I may pleade my cause unto thee, see Iob. 16. 21. 22.

V. 22. Call] take which part you please in this cause, be either plantiffe or defendant, I am ready every way.

V. 26. To possesse] to beare the punishment of my faults committed in mine age of ignorance, and imprudencie: For since I came to knowledge I have forborne to doe any such thing, Iob 20. 11. Psal. 25. 7.

V. 27. In the stocks] see Job 7. 12. and 42. 10. [settest a print] thou followest me close, and upon the track like a hunter, Iob 10. 16.

CHAP. XIII.

VER. 1. BOrne of a woman] whose issue is defiled and subject to Gods curse, by his sentence given against her, Gen. 3. 6. Iob 1 [...]. 14.

V. 3. Open] thou enquirest diligently into his whole course of life for to punish him therein, although he be otherwise sufficiently wretched, see Iob 7. 17.

V. 4. Bring] canst thou in thy rigorous judgement finde me to be pure and perfectly just, being even from my birth stained with originall sinne which can never be blotted out in this life.

V. 5. Seeing his] let that great misery which he is fallen in through sinne suffice thee; namely, that he cannot escape deatly, at that prefixed time which thou hast appointed, and doe not aggravate it by extraordinary torments which may drive him to impatience or despight, see Psal. 78. 40. and 89. 48. and 103. 14. [with thee] that is to say, determined within thy councill.

V. 10. Where is he] namely, his body and his corporall life; for Iob did firmly believe the immortality of the soule, and the resurrection of the [...]esh, verse 12. Ioh 29. 26.

V. 11. Faile from] doe resolve, and evaporate.

V. 12. Till the] so long as the world shall last in this present estate, untill the change and restauration which thou shalt make of it in the last day, Psal. 102. 26. Isa 51. 6. and 65. 11. and 66. 22. Acts 3. 21. Rom. 8. 20. 2 Pet. 3. 7. 10. 11. [not awake] namely, at the last resurrection.

V. 13. Hide me] ô wouldest thou but convert my death into imprisonment or restraint for a time; that when thou are appeased (which I make no question but thou wilt be) I may againe enjoy thy favour, see Iob 7. 7. 21. Isa. 26. 20.

V. 16. For now] I dare not at this time appeare before thee, because it should seeme thou hast put off the person of a father, and hast taken upon thee to bee an inexorable judge: [numbrest] examinest my life most rigorously, see Iob 10. 14.

V. 17. Sealed up] as the writings or informations of a processe which is ready to be sentenced, Deut. 32. 34. Hos. 13. 12.

V. 18. And surely] all these desires of mine are vaine; there is no escaping of death.

V. 20. His countenance] in being, and condition.

V. 21. His Sounes] if God being appeased, lets the children feele the effects of his grace, that helpeth not the deceased father.

V. 22. Shall have paine] this poeticall representation, hath no other meaning but that the dead have no manner of communication with the living.

VER. 2. AND fill] conceive turbulent and unruly thoughts and discourses, and feed himselfe therewith, pointing at the tempestuousnesse and violence of the Eastern wind in those countreys.

V. 4. Cassest off] thou dost violate, and teachest others to violate that reverence which is due to God by thy bold rashnesse in justifying thy selfe against his judgement, and in contending with him: [restrainest] by thy talke that God doth afflict men out of his own free-will and absolute power, without any respect to their offences, and by thine ill example of contending with him, in stead of humbling thy selfe, thou doest subvert the grounds of true invocation, which are confession, humility, repentance, and trust in his grace.

V. 5. Of the crafty] namely, of dissembling hypocrites, or cunning deceivers, see Job 5. 12.

V. 7. Art thou] hast thou the knowledge and experience of all the age [...] of the world; Speaking this in answer of what Iob had alledged of his mature age, Iob 12. 12. [before] a proverbiall manner of speaking, to shew a great antiquitie, or rather eternity, see Psal. 90. 2. Pro. 8. 25.

V. 8. Hast thou] see Ier. 23. 22.

V. 11. Of God] which wee propose unto thee in his name, and which are taught us by his word, and are the only remedy appointed by him against the apprehending of his judgements; Namely, that there is a meane and a hope of forgiveness through his grace, by converting ones selfe unto him, and humbly calling upon his name, see Iob 16. 2. and 21. 34. [secret thing] some priviledge or unknown worth to exempt thee from this generall rule.

V. 12. Carry thee away.] cause thee to goe astray by such excesse of words, beyond the bounds of reason, and the respect due to God: [wink at] proudly scoffing at whatsoever is said unto thee.

V. 15. The heavens] namely, the spirits or celestiall bodies compared to him.

V. 16. Which drinketh] to whom sinning is as naturall and customary as drinking; or who is as it were altogether steeped in sinne, Iob 34. 7.

V. 19. Unto whom] who for their heroicall vertues, and wisdom were thought worthy to receive from God, by the consent of Nations, lawfull Kingdoms, which they were able to defend against all the assaults of their enemies, see upon Iob 8. 8.

V. 20. Travelleth with paine] outwardly through calamities and adversities, and inwardly through Gods wrath, pricking his conscience: [oppressor] or tyrant, opposed to those lawfull Kings that are spoken of before: Now Iob had been in authority, and is by the way taxed, as having dealt unjustly therein, as Iob 22. 8. [is hidden] is decreed in Gods secret councill.

V. 21. Is in his eares] he is troubled with continuall seares and alarms, his conscience representing his wickednesses to him, and their deserved and unavoidable punishment.

V. 22. He believeth not] hee lieth in despaire, apprehending continually his remedlesse and eternall evils.

V. 23. He knoweth] his conscience doth set his present ruine before him.

V. 25. Stretched out] he hath boldly and feloniously resisted Gods will, Lev. 26. 21. Num. 15. 30. like an open and deadly enemy.

V. 27. Covereth] he hath plunged himselfe in delights and pleasures, with which being drunk and puffed up, hee set himselfe against the Lord, Deut. 32. 15. Psal. 17. 10. and 73. 7. and 119 70.

V. 28. Dwelleth] he hath built or repaired cities, pallaces, and strong-holds either for magnificence, or for the safety of his own person, according to the custome of Tyrants: Peradventure he meaneth those Kings of violent Empires, who repaired, or built great cities after the deluge: As Nimrod, Ashur, and others, Gen. 10. 8. 11. Iob 3. 14. Isa. 23. 13.

V. 29. The perfection] the Italian, the top, namely, the heigth and glory, a phrase taken from trees.

V. 31. In vanity] in humane counsels and meanes, which are altogether deceitfull.

V. 32. His time] namely, out of the naturall time of old age, when things naturally decline after they have lasted a long time in their full vigor and growth; as a Vine, or an Olive tree spoiled of its fruits before they be ripe.

V. 34. The Congregation] the great number of followers and attendants: [bribery] that doe abuse publike government and authority, which Job is accused by these men to have done, Iob 22. 8.

V. 35. Conceive] they within, device; and abroad, practice, nothing but violence and deceit.

CHAP. XVI.

VER. 4. SHake my] in contempt and scorne, Psal. 22. 7. Lam. 2. 15.

V. 6. Though I speak] the Italian, if I speak, that which you say is true, my complaints doe not ease my paine, yet silence would encrease it and make it worse; therefore I will case my minde with talking.

V. 8. A witnesse] namely, that my sorrowes are not seigned, nor of small consequence, see Iob 10. 17.

V. 9. Sharpneth] he looketh fiercely upon mee, and with a piercing eye.

V. 10. They have] hee describes how violently his [Page] friends did set upon him, with their reproofes and injurious words, see Iob 6. 27. and 12. 4. and 17. 2. and 19. 22. [smitten mee] cruelly and contumeliously wro [...]ged mee with such injuries as this is, Lam. 3. 30. Mic. 5. 1.

V. 11. The ungodly] namely the devill and his instruments, Arabians and Caldeans, Iob 1. 15. 17.

V. 13. Archers] figurative termes, as Iob 10. 17. and 19. 12. [my gall] which is a mertall and incurable wound.

V. 15. I have sowed] according as my affliction hath been, so hath my humiliati [...]n been, in submitting my selfe under the hand of God, Ier. 31. 18. [defiled] I have taken off all mine ornaments, to put my selfe in the habit of an afflicted and suppliant man, see Exod. 33. 5.

V. 16. The shadow] mine eyes are dimme and weak, like unto a dying mans.

V. 17. Pure] it is not polluted by an evill conscience, see Psal. 109. 7. Prov. 28. 9. 1 Tim. 2. 8.

V. 18. O earth] if I have committed any murther, or such like cruell fact, I doe not desire that it may be concealed, or scape unpuni [...]ed. A kind of speech taken from robbers and murtherers, who cover all those things as may reveale blood-shed, see Gen 4. 10. 11. Isa. 26. 21. Ezec. 24. 7. [my cry] that is as much as to say, let my request be denied, Iob 17. 9. Psal. 66. 18. 19. Prov. 1. 28. Iohn 9. 31.

V. 20. Powreth out] I powre out my teares, and cries before him only, and therefore he alone, and not y [...]u, is to iudge of them.

V. 21. Plead] to maintaine by the inward seale of Gods spirit, and by the certaine prooss of a lively faith and pure conscience, his right and title to be one of Gods children; notwithstanding all this seeming rigor, see Iob 9. 32. and [...]7. 3.

V. 12. When a few] the Italian, for my few, I doe very earnestly desire this, before my death, which I perceive to be very neere; that I may die in peace with Gods approbation, and as a sweet smelling savour to the Church, and for the edific [...]tion of it.

CHAP. XVII.

VER. 1. MY breath] that is to say, my life or vitall power is utterly wasted, I have nothing sound nor whole left mee. Others understand it, my breath is infected, and stinks, as Iob 19. 17.

V. 2. Moskers] not of Jobs griefes and afflictions, but of his speeches, which seemed unproper unto them, like as it were the speeches of one beside himselfe, Ioh 21. 3. [mine eye] my mind and thoughts are so fixed upon your sharp invectives, that I lose my sleep in the night time.

V. 3. Laydown] the Italian, O lay down a pawn, hee appeales to God from his friends unjust judgements, according to the ancient custome of those who called one before a Iudge, which was to lay down a pawne, or put in security for to pay or performe whatsoever should bee adjudged: [strike hands] the manner of being bound or becomming surety, Prov. 6. 1. and 17. 18. and 22. 26.

V. 4. Exalt them] that is to say, thou wilt not give judgement on their side.

V. 5. The eyes] God shall curse even their posterity, who in a cause between friends, which are the most sacred causes, doe prevaricate through flatterie, or acceptation of persons, as you doe now with mee, thinking to insinuate your selves into Gods savour, who loves mee, and is loved by mee; with whom I contend only in loving termes, as children doe with a father, see Iob 13. 7.

V. 6. Hee hath] meaning God, whose name hee spares in reverence: [asore time] the Italian, I am openly led about, I am as a common by-word or publick mocking-stock.

V. 7. Are as] they are so m [...]ag [...]r and wan, that they looke more like an apparition than a true body.

V. 8. The hypocrite] or prophane man, who shall thereupon take an occasion to blaspheme God, be hardened in his wickednesse, and make a scoffe of the faithfull.

V. 9. Heldon] shall be confirmed, and persevere in goodnesse, notwithstanding these scandals.

V. 12. The night] I watch and am troubled all night, as well as in the day time, and can take no rest, Iob. 7. 3. 4. 13. [the light] the day, wherein I finde a little ease seemeth exceeding short to me, in regard of the most dolefull nights.

V. 13. If I] see Job 6. 11. and 14. 14.

V. 14. I have said] I am disposed and prepared to die, I have no desire to live, nor have no more fellowship nor community with life, but with death only, see Psal. 88. 5. 6.

CHAP. XVIII.

VER. 2. MAke an end] you Iob, and your partakers, see Iob 35. 4.

V. 3. As beasts] see Iob 17. 4. [reputed] the Heb. are wee unclean, vile, and defiled in your sight?

V. 4. Hee teareth] the Italian, O thou who tearest, thou Iob that doest so violently bestirre thy selfe, canst thou cause God to give over his wise and just governing of the World? or canst thou move him from his constant justice, which is as firme as a rock?

V. 5. The light] their glory and happinesse shall [...]tterly perish.

V. 7. The steps] their pride shall bee abated and [Page] their high enterprises shall be stayed.

V. 8. H [...]e is cast] tho Italian, they shall cast themselves; they shall insnare themselves in dangers, which they shall not afterwards know how to get out of.

V. 12. His strength] his strong body shall decay through misery, and all meanes of subsisting shall be quite taken away from him.

V. 13. The first borne] an Hebrew phrase, that is to say, the most tragick and cruell kinde of death, see Isa. 14. 30. Or the devill prince of death, and the first condemned unto it, Heb. 2. 14. as Christ is the first borne of the resurrection, Col. 1. 18. Rev. 1. 5.

V. 14. Rooted out] they shall be past all hope of ever being re-established in their former state▪ there shall be nothing left them, whereon to build any confidence, Iob 20. 21. [bring him] this despaire shall bring him to an unhappy death, followed with the everlasting pains of hell.

V. 15. It is none] where they shall be bond-men, and no more masters, which shall encrease their grieffe: [brimstone] in signe of a curse, to condemne that land to bee for ever barren, Deut. 29. 23. Isa. 34. 9.

V. 16. Beneath] a proverbiall kinde of speech taken from trees, as Iob 29. 19 Isa. 5. 24. Amos 2. 9. Mal. 4. 1. the meaning is, hee shall bee deprived of Gods grace, which is the root of all happinesse, and of his blessing which is the top of it.

V. 20. At his day] the Italian, their day, namely the day of Gods iudgements upon them: [went before] they that lived in the dayes of those judgements, and were spectators of them.

V. 21. That knoweth not] the Italian, that know not, that have quite extinguished his light out of their minds, and blotted all respect and feare of him out of their heart▪ Rom. 1. 21. 28. 1 Cor. 15. 34. Tit. 1. 16.

CHAP. XIX.

VER. 3. TEn times] or many times.

V. 4. Mine error] leave the [...]are thereof to mee, for it nothing concerneth you.

V. 6. Know now] doe not adde affliction to the afflicted which is so odious a thing to God, Psa. 41. 2. and 69. 26. or regard the greatnesse of my evils which draw these complaints from mee, that seeme so immoderate to you, see Iob 6. 2. [*compassed [...]*e] hath encompassed mee round with affliction [...], that I can get out no way. A hunting terme, Iob 10. 16. Lam. 1. 13 Ezech. 12. 13. Hos. 7. 12.

V. 7. Wrong] the Italian, violence, I am guiltlessly tormented by the devill and his instruments through Gods permission, see Psal. 119. 122. Isa. 38. 14.

V. 8. Fenced up] see Iob 3. 23. [hee hath set] hee hath taken away all meanes from mee of getting out of my afflictions.

V. 9. My glory] namely the authority and dignity I was in, as a magistrate, see Iob 29. 7. 14. 20. and 30. 11.

V. 10. Hath hee removed] namely of bodily life and comfort, Iob 7. 15. but not of eternall salvation, Iob. 13. 15. and 19. 25. [a tree] cut down or rooted up.

V. 12. His troops] figurative termes taken from sieges, see Iob. 16. 13.

V. 17. My breath] shee scorneth to come nigh mee, by reason of the change and stinkingnesse of my breath: [for the] for the love and in regard of our children, which were the pledges of matrimoniall love between us.

V. 18. Young children] young in age, or mean of condition. Others, men of evill life.

V. 20. The skinne] namely my gummes, an ordinary kind of speech, as when one saith; such a one hath nothing left him but his teeth.

V. 21. Hath touched mee] see Ruth 1. 13. 1 Sam. 6. 9 Iob 1. 11.

V. 22. Are not] as much as to say, it seemeth that you could find in your hearts to devoure mee alive, Iob. 16. 10.

V. 24. And lead] melted into the cuts of the letters, or upon lead. Namely some plate of that mettle, as was anciently used for inscriptions and publick monuments. His meaning is, I desire that posterity being well informed of my cause, might judge of it.

V. 25. For I] the Italian, as for mee I know, as much as to say: Finally I doe appeale to the last judgement of the great Iudge of the world, the promised Messiah in whom I have beleevd as well for the salvation of the soule, as for the resurrection of the body. And hee in time shall make mine innocency to appeare, see 1 Cor 4. 5. [liveth] as true eternall God: and that in his humane nature, which hee will take upon him for the redemption of his Church, he will perpetually enjoy the life of glory, purchased through his justice for himselfe and all his members, Iohn 6. 57. and 4. 19. [shall stand] that is to say, shall appeare in glory to judge all men who were turned to dust, and raised againe by him.

V. 26. My skinne] namely this corporall life, in which nothing is now left mee but my skinne: [in my flesh] in mine owne proper person, my body by vertue of the resurrection, being rejoyned to my soule, I shall enjoy the presence of my God and Saviour by the divine light in my mind, which shall redound unto the senses of the body, which shall also have for object of its happinesse, the humane and glorified body of Christ, and the misticall body of his Church perfectly united unto him, Psal. 17. 15. [Page] [...] Cor. 23. 12. 1 Iohn 3. 2.

V. 27. Not another] mine own body shall bee againe restored unto mee, and not another new body created, see Isa. 26. 19. [my reines] an exclamation of a vehement desire, as Gen. 49. 18. Psal. 119. 81.

V. 28. The root] I have Gods word, and his holy promises deeply rooted in my heart through faith, Ia. 1. 2 [...]. by which being freed by Gods judgement, I ought not, nor must not bee condemned by men, see Iohn 3. 18. and 5. 24.

V. 29. Of the sword] of Gods just punishment: [wrath] the Italian, iniquity, see Iob 6. 29. [a judgement] namely against them that give rash judgement of their brethren, Math. 7. 1. Rom. 14. 4 Ia. 4. 11.

CHAP. XX.

VER. 2. Therefore] because thou threatnest us with Gods judgements, I will answer thee being very certaine that I am in the right.

V. 3. The spirit] my soule, or the spirit of God: [understanding] with reason and understanding, and not with passion, and recrimination.

V. 5. Is short] the Italian, from neere, that is to say, it begun but a little while since, and will shortly end.

V. 10. Shall seeke] either because they doe nor revenge themselves of their fathers injuries; or because they shall make use of them in t [...]ei [...] extreame need: [restore] being forced to it, or to redeem his own life, out of his angry euen its hands.

V. 11. His bones] hee shall bee rotten with the excesses and dissolutions of his youth, which shall [...]ing him to his grave.

V. 12. Though wickednesse] the pleasure which hee hath taken in the delights of sin, shall at last be changed into horrible torments and sufferings. A phrase taken from some poison that hath been swallowed in some pleasing meat or drink.

V. 17. The rivers] a figurative description of Gods blessings bestowed upon his children in this and in the other life, taken from the qualities of the land of promise flowing with milke and hony, see Psal. 36. 18.

V. 18. Restore] hee shall cast it up againe, and shall restore to others that which hee had gotten from them, as v. 10. [according] hee shall bee as poore and wretched as hee hath been rich and mighty: [his substance] the Italian, his power, namely his wealth and strength: [restitution] the Italian, his change, see Iob 15. 31.

V. 19. And hath forsaken the poore] the Italian hath it, hee shall leave poore behind him, namely his own children: [which he builded not] the Italian, hee shall not build his own, hee shall not found, nor establish his businesse, nor his family in any way to make it endure long, see Exod. 1. 21. 1. Sam. 2. 35. 2 Sam. 7. 27.

V. 20. Shall not feele] hee hath been continually enflamed with an unsatiabie cove [...ious desire.

V. 22. In straits] hee shall be brought into extreame wants and sufferings: [every hand] hee shall be exposed as a prey to the poore.

V. 24. Of steele] the Italian, of brasse, for in those dayes they could give brasse such a kind of temper, that it was more usefull for weapons than any steele.

V. 26. All darkenesse] wheresoever hee shall thinke to finde a place of safeguard, there shall hee meet with some horrible mischance: [not blowen] that is to say, calamities whose causes shall be unknown, and shall proceed immediately from God, see Isa. 30. 33.

V. 27. The heaven] all the creatures high and low, conspiring his ruine, shall testifie the curse of God upon him for his sinnes.

V. 28. [...] away] shall be carried away as by a deluge of water.

V. 29. By God] the Italian addeth, by God for his words, namely for his blasphemies, which is the greatest sinne, of the wicked; for which hee also taxeth Iob in some sort, see 1 Sam 2. 3. 10. Others the inheritance which was assigned unto him by Gods sentence.

CHAP. XXI.

VER. 4. My complaint] seeing it is God who in an extraordinary manner doth afflict me, how should [...] observe any measure in my complaints, Iob 6. 2.

V. 13. In a moment] without much languishing, which good men doe oftentimes in their calamities, Iob 9. 23 and 24. 19. Psal. 73. 4.

V. 15. What is the] hee seemeth to rehearse the very words of Pharaoh, Exod. 5. 2.

V. 16. Their good] being perswaded they can have all things at command, and all that they want to be within the compasse of their power; they care not for praying to God for to desire those things at his hands: [the counsell] God forbid that ever I [...]ould consent to any such wickednesse, Iob. 22. 18.

V. 17. How often] I confesse that which you say, concerning Gods iudgements upon the wicked, to bee sometimes true in this world, yet it is not so continually, nor ordinarily.

V. 21. For what] if you tell mee that at the last God sheweth his vengeance upon the children of the wicked; I answer you, that the wicked man can not have any notice of that, after his death, see Iob 14. 21. and 24. [...]0.

V. 22. Teach] these wayes of God are incomprehensible, the action it selfe is manifest, but the hidden reason of it is not subject to mens censures nor corrections: [hee judgeth] hee is the soveraign Lord and judge of the world, above all worldly power and greatnesse; wherefore he ought to be acknowledged to be the absolute rule of all wisdome and righteousnesse, Gen. 18. 25. Iob 8. 3. and 34. 12. 17. 19. Rom. 3. 5.

V. 23. One] namely the wicked.

V. 24. His breasts] the Italian, his milke pailles, figurative termes, meaning that hee enjoyeth all good things at his will and pleasure.

V. 25. And another] namely a good man, as I my selfe am.

V. 26. They shall] after so many differences between them in this life, they come both to be alike in their death, namely for bodily death and outward appearance, see Iob 14. 19. Eccles. 9. 3.

V. 27. I know] I doe foresee what you meane to say to mee, namely, that at the last the wicked are destroyed after some transitory prosperity: and I tell you contrariwise, that prosperity doth not forsake them till death.

V. 29. Have ye not asked] men of experience, such as have gone many voyages will shew you, that for the most part the wicked doe prosper in the world.

V. 30. Of wrath] namely Gods wrath, by generall and expresse judgements.

V. 31. There seemes to bee no witnesse nor iudge against him, contrary to Zophars saying, Iob 20. 28.

V. 32. Remaine in the tombe] the Italian, watch nothing but the heape, hee hath lost all knowledge and feeling of worldly things, as Iob 14. 22.

V. 33. The clodds] hee lieth sweetly in the ground, or in monuments made of clodds after the ancient fashion, and troubles himselfe no more with worldly affaires, Iob 24. 20.: [after him] he is followed by many in his death, as many have gone before him.

V. 34. In vaine] proceeding with mee thus; thou art grievously afflicted, therefore thou art wicked: convert therefore, and thou shalt be restored. Wherein are two falshoods: the one, that all those who are afflicted are wicked; and the other, that God doth alwayes corporally relieve the penitent, see Iob 16. 2. [there remaineth] you are alwayes possessed with a bad opinion of mee, only thinking to make yourselves thereby acceptable to God, Iob 13. 7.

CHAP. XXII.

VER. 2. CAn a man] as when God rewardeth mens good works, it is not in regard of any profit hee reaps thereby, so must his punishments be attributed to no other reason, but only to his iustice; contrary to that as Iob seemed to doe: [hee that is wise] namely the spirituall wise man, who by the light of Gods spirit, apprehends the end of eternall life, and follows the true and sure meanes to obtaine it.

V. 4. For feare of thee] because that Iob had termed his afflictions, to be a strong and secure watch, Iob 7. [...].

V. 6. For thou] that is to say, wee must suppose by thy punishments, that thou art guilty of some or all these sinnes; not that Eliphaz had any prooffe that Iob had done any such thing: [for nought] through meere hardnesse, and inhumanity, for covetousnesse to get his goods, though thou wert otherwise sufficiently secured for what thou diddest lend. Or taking of his goods to pawn, and lending him nothing, or much lesse than his goods which he pawned to thee were worth: [the naked] that is to say, the ill clothed, or those who are now brought to poverty by meanes of thy extortion.

V. 8. The earth] through thine acceptation of persons when thou wert a publick officer; none but great and mighty men could quietly enioy any thing: or thou diddest assist them in their uniuert purchases.

V. 9. The armes] thou and the ministers of thy tyrannie have oppressed them, and taken from them all meanes, whereby they might subfist.

V. 10. Are round about] God hath stayed the course of thy violence, by these afflictions, as a ravenous beast is caught in toiles, see Iob 18. 8. 11.

V. 11. Darknesse] namely a trouble and confusion of understanding, want of counsell and advice.

V. 12. Is not God] although God be infinite in his essence, and that from his throne of glory hee seeth and iudgeth all things; yet hast thou prophanely smothered up in thine heart all apprehension of his providence and iudgement.

V. 14. Walketh] hee enioyeth his blessednesse in idlenesse, and takes no care of worldly things.

V. 16. Out of time] before the end of their naturall course, and before they were come to maturity of amendment or repentance, see Iob [...]5. 32. Psa. 55. 23. and 102. 24. Eccl. 7. 17. [foundation] being in outward appearance happy, well founded and established.

V. 17. VWhat can] the Italian, what had, in what particular could they complaine of God, that they shewed themselves so alien from him? Isa. 5. 4. Ier. 2. 31. Mic. 6. 3.

V. 18. Is farre] Eliphaz repeateth the same words as Iob spake, Iob 21. 16. as if hee meant to say, that which thou speakest with thy mouth I speak it from mine heart, and in verity.

V. 20. VWhereas our] as God hath spared us, and [Page] others that were like us, namely that feared him, even so hath hee destroyed the wicked.

V. 21. Acquaint now] get into his favour again, and by prayers, humility, and turning to him, get thy selfe free accesle unto him, see Isa. 27. 5.

V. 24. Lay up gold] a hyperbolicall phrase, as much as to say, thou shalt make pavements of gold, see 2 Chron. 1. 15. Psal. 68. 30. [Ophir] the name of a countrey, Gen. 10. 29. 1 Chron. 1. 23. where there was excellent good gold grew, and therefore this name is taken absolutely for the finest gold.

V. 25. Shall be thy desence] the Italian, thy gold, his grace and blessing shall bee to thee in stead of a deare treasure. Or it will abundantly en [...]itch thee.

V. 28. The light] that is to say, God will inspire thee with good counsell, and direction in all thine affaires: or will shine over them with his blessing.

V. 29. VWhen thou art] when thou thinkest thine affairs goe to decay, then shalt thou re-assure thy selfe, by thine inward confidence in God, which will not deceive thee: [the humble] namely thy selfe, who shalt have humbled thy selfe before God, who will not regard thy past sins, but the sincerity of thy repentance and thy prayer free from hypocrisie, Iob 11. 15. Isa. 1. 15. 1 Tim. 2, 8.

CHAP. XXIII.

VER. 2. Even to day] after so many protestations, and justifications of mine, doe you still continue in your sinister misconstructions of my laments, though they doe no way equall my torments, as to terme them mournings, and [...] rebellions against God? see Iob 6. 2. [my stroke] the Hebrew, my hand. Others translate it, though my hand be aggravated upon my groanes, that is to say, though I strive to repress them it is but all in vaine.

V. 3. VWhere I might finde] O that hee would appeare to mee in vision, or spiritually shew himselfe present by his power in my heart: [his seat.] not that of soveraign Maiesty or exact rigor, but his throne of grace, Heb. 4. 16.

V. 6. VWill hee plead] I am sure hee would not deale with me as an enemy; nor as having absolute power, but in his fatherly benignity, Isa. 27. 4. 8. Ier. 10. 24.

V. 7. Might dispute] in that laudable manner, whereby the faithfull man opposeth unto the appearances of Gods wrath, the firme persuasion of his grace, by the seale of his spirit, see of such a kind of contention. Gen. 32. 24.

[should I bee] I should by Gods definitive sentence bee absolved from your rash iudgements, I Cor. 4. 5. or God himselfe after hee had heard my cause would free mee out of this hard prison, Iob 13. 27.

V. 10. As gold] I should bee found good and loyall, like gold coming out of the furnace.

V. 11. My foot] hee doth confute Eliphaz his false accusations, Iob 22. 5.

V. 13. But hee is] the Italian, but if hee is, notwithstanding this mine innocency, I know that if it please him to afflict mee hee will doe it, and it is not possible to oppose his will; or to search out the reasons of it.

V. 14. And many] hee doth not deale so with me alone, but it is an ordinary thing.

V. 16. My heart soft] the Italian, melteth my heart, makes mee want strength to beare his rigor, see Psal. 39. 11.

V. 17. Because I was not cut off] the Italian, why was I not cut off before that these calamities did fall upon mee: [neither hath hee] the Italian leaves ont; neither, hath hee hitherto preserved mee from death, which is the only meanes to end mine afflictions, Iob 3. 23. and 6. 9. and 30. 24.

CHAP. XXIV.

VER. 1. Why] I doe not deny Gods justice in punishing the wicked, and rewarding of the just: I only dispute with you concerning the time: namely because hee doth not doe it alwayes, nor a like in this life, but at that time as hee pleaseth, which time is hidden to al men, even to the faithfull.

V. 2. Some] the Italian, the wicked, these words ought to be supplied out of the sixth verse, according to the frequent use of the scriptures.

V. 4. They drive away] the poore dare not stand in their way, either by reason of their pride, or by reason of their violence and thefts.

V. 5. As wilde asses] they are a fierce, cruell, and untamed kinde of people; for such is the nature of this beast, Iob 39. 8. Ier. 2. 24. Hos. 8▪ 9. [to their work] namely to steale: [the wilderness] the Italian, the field, or the desert, that is to say, they live upon what they steale in the fields.

V. 8. They are wet] those poore naked people, doe flie before the faces of these violent men, into solitary places, where they doe endure great wants: [embrace] an Hebrew phrase, as Lam. 4. 5. his meaning is, they lie upon the hard stone in stead of a bed, wherein other men doe wrap themselves up in blankets and cover-lids.

V. 9. The fatherlesse] namely to sell him into bondage.

V. 10. Take away &c.] the Italian, they suffer hunger which bring them the sheafes, they are so cruell that they [Page] suffer their servants and work-men to want, in harvest and vintage time, at which time nature it selfe teacheth liberality, Deut. 25. 4.

V. 12. From out of the citie] which is as it were besieged by these field-theeves, Iudg. 5. 11. Neh. 4. 23. [layeth not] hee doth not use them like malefactors.

V. 13. Against the light] whether it be the naturall light of the conscience, or the divine light of Gods Law and Word, or the inward light of Gods spirit, working oftentimes even in the very hearts of the wicked, for to reprove them.

V. 14. Rising] to goe into the fields to steale: [is as a thiefe] the Italian, worketh as a thiefe, steales secretly and cunningly.

V. 16. They know not] they take no delight in it they fly it and hate it, for feare of being discovered and taken.

V. 17. Shaddow of] horrible, and fearfull, even a [...] the darknesse of hell.

V. 18. Their portion] they choose, woody and barren places for their habitations, as well to fly the society of men, which they are enemies to, as for to follow their theeving without fear and unpunished: [hee beholdeth not] they fly frequented places, such as ordinarily your vineyards are

V. 19. Drought] after they have led such a damnable and beastly life, they doe for all this, many times die a sweet and naturall death, Iob 21. 13. 31. Psa. 73. 4.

V. 20. Shall forget him] their dearest friends, as their owne mothers doe quickly forget the love of them: his meaning is, that they have no more communion with the living: [as a tree] that is rotten and worm-eaten.

V. 21. The barren] which was a wretched and dishonourable condition, as well as the widdow, see 1 Sam. 1. 6.

V. 22. Draweth also] they subvert and overthrow all publick order, and lawfull government, with their violence, see Iob 9. 24.

V. 23. To be in safetie] namely meanes sufficient to maintaine themselves: [his eies] hee seemes to love and favour them, and to take an especiall care of them.

CHAP. XXV.

VER. 2. DOminion] hee is the soveraign Lord armed with terrible majesty, therefore none ought to plead against him, as thou O Iob hast desired to doe: but contrariwise, every one ought to submit unto him with all reverence and humility.

V. 3. Of his armies] namely his Angels, in whose nature and number, appeareth the greatnesse of his Majesty: [upon whom] by him all men live, and subsist, understand, & discourse, and are guided and directed, Iohn 1. 3. Acts 17. 28. so that being all that they are, only out of his pure and meere good will, they are not proprietaries in any thing: which propriety must be the ground of all judiciall act [...]on [...].

V. 4. Iustified] how can hee be perfect of himselfe, without the gift of grace. His meaning is, that not only Gods Majesty, but even his own naturall corruption also should keep him from contending with God: [that is borne] namely man that is borne in sin, and under a curse, the signe whereof appears in the womans bearing and bringing forth, Gen. 3. 16.

CHAP. XXVI.

VER. 2. HOw hast thou] thou Bildad, and thy companions will undertake, to c [...]mfort, advise, and instruct me, but you doe not proceed well, and goe the contrary way to work: for to exclude mee from all accesse and filiall communication with God, and bring mee upon nothing but the consideration of his terrible Majesty, is the way to cast mee into despai [...].e. Your counsell of converting my selfe, being g [...]ounded upon a false supposition, is vain and pernicious. The instructing of mee in such ordinary and common things, is altogether unprofitable, I knowing, confessing, and apprehending them as well as you. The question is, whether a child may not make his moane to his father, and whether a good conscience may not maintaine it selfe before God; and whether in such strange accidents, a man may not be doubtfull, and desire to be cleared by God.

V. 4. To whom] dost thou tell these things to an ignorant and silly man? dost not thou tell them [...]o mee, who know them as well as thy selfe, Iob 9. 2. and 11. 3. and 13. 2. [whose spirit] wilt thou terme thy discourses to be divine inspirations, being such vulgar and ordinary things? Or doe but truely examine, what spirit it is that moveth the to talke thus, to draw your false conclusions out of yo [...] discourses, and you will find it is impossible to bee the spirit of God.

V. 5. Dead things, &c.] the Italian hath it, the Giants were formed by God and &c. that is to say, spirits condemned under the earth, as devills, and the damned who are also called Giants in the Italian translation, Prov. 2. 18. and 9. 18. for the Giants of the primitive world, Gen. 6. 4. which were drowned in the deluge were an example of everlasting damnation▪ 1 Pet. 3. 19. Now Iob would say, I can exalt God [...] Majesty and Power above that which you speak of it.

V. 7. The North] all the hemisphear of the Ar [...] tick pole, under which name hee comprehends the whole heaven, which is a subtile body, seeming to bee a vacuity, [Page] though there be no vacuity in nature, see Gen. 1. 6. [hangeth] hee hath appointed even from the first creation, that the earth being the heaviest of all the elements, should stand immoveable in the center of the whole universe, compassed about on every side with the ayr, having no prop, nor supporter, but only its own weight, see Psal. 104. 5.

V. 8. Hee bindeth] a poetically terme, meaning that hee keepeth up the vapours, where of the raine is engendred, gathered up in the clouds, as in bottles or barrells, see Iob 38. 37.

V. 9. Hee holdeth back] the Italian, hee seel [...]th, that is to say, hee stretcheth out the heaven, which is his throne, like to a great coverture or seeling, which hee shadoweth over with clouds when hee pleaseth.

V. 10. Compassed] hee hath made great hallow places and channells in the earth, within the which the sea and other waters of the earth are kept, that they should not overflow, Gen. 1. 9. [untill] so long as the world lasteth there will be a vicissitude of day and night, Gen. 8. 22.

V. 11. The pillars] a poetical phrase, as much as to say, the whole universe is shaken by him, see Iob 9. 6. Psal. 18. 9. and 104. 32. Mat. 24. 29.

V. 12. Divideth] namely when the children of Israel passed through the red sea; the fame of which miracle was spread all over the neighbouring countreys, Exod. 14. 21. Others doe understand this more generally, as Isa. 51. 15. Ier. 31. 35. [the proud] the Italian hath it, Rahab, a common name for Egypt, Psa. 87. 4. and 89. 10. Isa. 51. 9. the signification of it is proud haughtinesse, whereupon some have understood it for the rising of the waves of the Sea.

V. 13. His spirit] that is to say, his divine and essential power. [serpent] the scriptures call [...] all great sea-fishes, and sea-monsters by this name. Others understand it to be the Celestiall signe called the great Dragon.

V. 14. His wayes] that is to say, works: [little] for want of capacity in us, see Iob 4. 12.: [who can] if God would reveale himselfe in his full Majesty, without accommodating himselfe to the meannesse of humane nature, it would likelier be an astonishing or thunder-like sound, than a sweet and instructing speech.

CHAP. XXVII.

VER. 1. Continued] after hee had stayed a while to see if his friends would reply.

V. 2. Hath taken away] hee seemeth to have taken away from mee the right which hee hath given mee through his grace, namely to be his child, Iohn 1. 12. and to not respect mine innocencie, see Iob 34. 5.

V. 3. The spirit] that is to say, so long as I shall enjoy that life which God hath given mee, which is maintained by breathing, Gen. 2. 7. Isa. 2. 22.

V. 4. Wickednesse] which I should doe, if I should contrary to that which the spirit of God witnesseth to my conscience, through a fained humility, confesse that I have been wicked, see Iob 13. 7.

V. 7. Mine enemies] an ordinary kinde of speech to expresse how farre a man hateth any thing, by wishing it to his enemy.

V. 8. For what] I detest to have any communion with the wicked, for they cannot choose but die in finall despaire, and in their calamities they have no help nor comfort from God, which is not so with mee, Iob 6. 10. and 12. 4. and 13. 15.

V. 10. Alwayes] namely as well in adversity, as in prosperity.

V. 11. The hand] namely his actual and efficacious providence, Acts 4. 28. [which is] which hath no certaine law, nor invariable rule, but dependeth upon his meere pleasure, as his judgements [...] against the wicked in this world are.

V. 12. All yee] you know all this as well as I, but only you be obstinate in your opinions to contradict mee, and to insinuate your selves into Gods favour; you incline to this extreame, to say that God alwayes punisheth the wicked in this world: but I stand upon this moderation, that indeed hee doth doe it at some times, according as hee pleaseth, but not at all times, nor equally; wherefore I say and will maintaine, that by mans outward state one cannot, nor ought not to judge of the conscience, Eccl. 9. 1. 2.

V. 15. In death] a manner of speaking which signifieth, that the wicked dying are plunged int [...] everlasting death, which only is the true death: [his widdows] they shall not be honoured with any funerall exequies, nor any mourning; but even as if they were infamous persons, become or slavee unto their enemies, they shal by them be debarred of these last offices, Psa. 78. 64. Ier. 22. 18. Ezech. 24. 23.

V. 18. As a moth] which is easily bruised and broken to peeces, Iob 8. 14. Psa. 39. 11. and 58. 9. [a booth] see Isa. 1. 8. Lam. 2. 5.

V. 19. Shall lie down] in the streets in the open ayre, and none shall receive him.

V. 20. As waters] as a fullness of waters, or [...] sudden deluge: [in the night] that is to say suddenly, as many of Gods judgements have happened in the night, for the greater terror, Exod. 12. 29. and 14. 24. 2 Kings 19. 35. Isa. 15. 1. Dan. 5. 30. Mat. 25. 6.

V. 23. Shall clap] in token of joy, and also of wonder or admiration, as 1 Kings 9. 8. Ier. 9. 17. Lam. 2. 15. Ezec. 25. 6.

VER. 1. FOr the silver] man not content with the fruites which the earth bri [...]gs forth hath digged for those mettals which it kept hidden in her entrailles: but as for Gods wisdome man must content himselfe with what hath been revealed in the Law, and word of God; the secrets of his providence can neither bee searched out with labour, no [...] purchased for money▪

V. 2. The stone] called the Cadmian stone.

V. 3. Hee setteth] hee penetrates into dark places under ground at his own pleasure, and carrying light with him, he doth as one should say limit, and set bounds to those darkenesses: [the shaddow] which would lie hidden in eternall obscurity if man did not bring them forth.

V. 4. The floud] the Italian addeth, *where the [...]*oud, in these mines sometimes veines of water being cut in sunder, doe hinder the work, and the water must either be drawn out, or the course of it turnd another way: [forgotten] which were never thought [...], o [...] which at other times had been dried up.

V. 5. Commeth] namely above the earth: [turned up] that is to say, it is stirred a [...]d digged up: [fire] by meanes of furnaces, to melt or purifie mettals, or▪ by reason of lamps and other lights which are brought thither.

V. 7. No foule] which naturally are very quicksighted, and fly every where, even in most inaccessible places.

V. 8. The Lyons whelps] Lyons have all the same qualities as have been before spoken of.

V. 10. Rivers▪ to set water-works going to wash the ore of those mettalls, and for other uses, or to draw the waters away when they overflow.

V. 22. Wee have heard] not that they have it really there; as they have mineralls, and mettalls.

V. 23. The way] the proceedings, motions, reasons, meanes and intentions▪ [knoweth] a figurative terme, as who should say, hee hath it by him ready and at hand, hee needs not look for it▪ as [...] it were hidden in an unknown place.

V. 25. To make] the Italian, when bee gave, namely when hee established the order of nature; perfectly regulated in all things; as if the winde, which is such a wandring and unconstant creature, [...]ad its motions weighed and counter-poised, see Psa. 135. 7▪ [weigheth] set an order for the suspending, or holding up of the higher waters in a certaine quantity, leaving the rest below, Gen. [...]. 6.

V. 27. Hee see it] hee had it with him, and, as one should say, employed it, in the establishment of the whole order of nature. Some have understood this passage as also that of, Prov. 8. 22. of Gods [...] wisdom; which i [...] his everlasting son▪ by whom as by joynt and co-operating cause the Father created all things, Iohn 1. 3. Colos. 1. 16.

[declare it] the Italian hath it, numbred it, figurative termes, meaning that he possessed and comprehended it all.

V. 28. He said] hee hath not revealed, no [...] communicated to man, the wisdom of his providence, by which hee ruleth the universe, but that of his law by which man ought to governe himselfe, and not goe beyond those bounds, Deut. 29. 29. 1 Cor. 4. 6.

CHAP. XXIX.

VER. 2. MOonths] see Iob 7. 3.

V. 3. When] when by his spirit he did enlighten mee inwardly, and by his providence he guided me in all mine affairs and all chances, were they never so doubtfull or difficult.

V. 4. The secret] his most wise conduct, did governe my house, and did provide for it.

V. 5. My children] the Italian, my houshold servants, the Hebrew young men which some understand to be hi [...] children, see Iob 19. 15. 16.

V. 6. I washed] I enjoyed all my goods and pleasures, as Gen. 49. 11. Iob 20. 17. Psal. 81. 16.

V. 7. To the gate] namely the city gate, which was the place where they held their counsells, and kept their courts of justice, for Iob was a magistrate.

V. 8. Hid themselves] for reverence.

V. 9. Resrained] to heare mee speak without troubling of mee, or in regard of my dignity.

V. 11. Blessed mee] the Italian hath it, accounted mee to be blessed, by reason of the gifts and graces God had bestowed upon mee: [gave witnesse] of my vertue and integrity.

V. 13. Came upon mee] after that I had delivered him.

V. 14. I put on] I applied it to my selfe, and as one should say, I put it on in all my actions, and made it familiar and habituall to mee: [clothed me] it did adorne me with its lustre and brightnesse.

V. 15. I was] I was as a publick provision or store for all my peoples wants, in counsell, strength, charity and justice.

V. 16. I searched out] I took paines with patience to search out the ground of all causes, that I might judge with justice, which is the daughter of truth. Or I did not stay untill I was requested to maintaine the right of the oppressed; but prevented them by enquiring by vertue of my offi [...], see Prov. 29. 7.

V. 18. I shall die] sweetly, as in my friends armes, a considence grounded upon Gods promises.

V. 19. My root] a similitude taken from trees which are watered below at the root, and have the dew above them; meaning that Gods grace was alw [...]yes in his [Page] heart and his blessings upon all his businesse and actions, see Ioh. 8. 17. and 1 [...]. 16.

V. 20. My [...]ow] that is to say my strength and power did stil [...] encrease, Gen. 49. 24.

V. 22. Spake not again] either to adde any thing, or to contr [...]dict: [dropped] they received my speeches, as a wel-come and comfortable raine.

V. 23. Latter raine] a raine which came very seldome in that countrey, but was much desired, for the refreshing and nourishing of the corne and other fruits and blessings of the earth, Prov. 26. 1. Zac. 10. 1.

V. 24. They believed it not] that I would debase my selfe in so much familiarity: [they cast not] yet that did not cause any contempt of my person, to obscure my splendor or abase my greatnesse.

V. 25. As a King] I was both beloved and fear [...]d, tempering and mixing the gravity of command, with the sweetnesse of mercy and beneficene.

CHAP. XXX.

VER. 2. WHere to might] they were so wretched and impotent, that I could have had no service of them: [old age] they had lived long in v [...]ne, having gotten neither understanding no [...] experience: It was altogether an unprofitable old age.

V. 4. Mallowes] which served po [...]re people for food; some take it to bee Samphire which is a kinde of Sea-Mallowes or Sea-pu [...]en, and is good for food: [roots for their meat] the Italian, roots to warm them, according to some, the roots also were their food.

V. 11. Loosed] hee hath through mine afflictions brought me into contempt, and deprived me of authority, which is the bond of subjection and obedience, see Iob 12. 18.

V. 12. ra se up] figurative terms taken from sieges, see Iob. 19. 12. Lam. 3. 5.

V. 13. My pathes] all the wayes by which any reliefe may come to me: [they have no helper] they are sufficient to doe all this of themselves without the help of others.

V. 15. My soule] the Hebrew, my princesse or principall one; an epithet of the soule, by reason of the eminencie of it, and of the command which it hath over the body: [my welfare] all meanes of avoiding this present misery.

V. 16. [My soule] I doe melt in teares and sorrow, [...]mine heart faileth mee and I faint, or fall as it were in a swoun, 1 Sam. 1. 15. Psal. 42. 6.

V. 17. Are pierced] with mostbitter paines which penetrate into the most inward and solid parts of my body: [in the night] for then was Job inmost paine and [...]ent, Job. 7. 14. and 17. 12. [take no rest] by reason of extream in [...]mmation.

V. 19. Cast me] brought me into a most miserable and wretched estate, deprived of all honor: [become like] my body is leane and pale, like the body of a dead man, and as for my condition it is so base, that I am no more esteemed of then dust.

V. 21 Art become cruell] the Italian, turned to bee, contrary to thy nature and precedent benignity; thou dost entreat me after a most rigorous manner, Psal. 77. 7. 8. Ier. 30. 14.

V. 22. Thou liftest] thou torment [...]st me both in body and minde, and never sufferest me to rest or recover my selfe.

V. 24. Howbeit] how soever this is my comfort, that death will end all my corporall paines, which cannot goe beyond the grave: Job speaketh thus, going no further then the afflictions of the body, for by his faith in the promised redeemer, hee was feare lesse of eternall punishment.

V. 25. Did not I weep] have I failed in any duties of mercy towards my neighbour, to which are joynd the promises of Gods mercy? Mat. 5. 7. Iam. 2. 13.

V. 28. I went mourning] the Italian, *I went bro [...]*n, that is to say, dark in sorrowes and infirmities, or in a habite of sorrow.

V. 29. Dragons] which howle horribly in the Deserts: A very frequent comparison in Scripture.

CHAP. XXXI.

VER. 1. I Made] I had framed and submitted all my senses to be obedient unto the spirit of God; yea, the most wandering of them which were mine eyes, the very doore and baite of all concupiscence, Marth. 5. 29. 1 Ioh. 2. 16.

V. 3. A strange punishment] the Italian, the strange chances, my cruell calamities surpasse all measure of visitation, triall, and correction, of a believers infirmities, see Prov. 21. 8. and upon Obad. 12.

V. 7. Mine heart] and if my senses had beene allured by some object of sin, yet my heart which is the seat of Gods Spirit hath opposed them, see Num. 15. 39. Ezech. 6. 9. and 20. 24. Matth. 5. 29. [Any blot] see Iob 1 [...]. 15.

V. 8. Let me saw] as for a taste of Gods generall curse, Lev. 26. 16. Deut. 28. 30. 38. [My off-spring] all mine encrease of children, beasts, or fruits.

V. 10. Grinde] an obscure circumlocution, designing the enterchange of action in adultery, Hos. 4. 13. 14. Or the meaning may be, that his wise might become a slave, and be employed in grindling at the hand-mills, Matth. 24. 41. see Iudg. 16. 21. Lam. 5. 13.

V. 11. By the Iudges] that is to say, it is a criminall or capitall offence, which deserveth to be punished with bodily punishment, Gen. 38. 24. Leu. 20. 10. Deut. 22. 22.

V. 15. Did not one] or did not he fashion us all in one and the same manner?

V. 16. To faile] through faintnesse, caused by a [Page] friutlesse expecting of reliefe.

V. 18. From my Mothers] that is to say, even from the very beginning of mine youth.

V. 21. My help] people enow that would have stood in my de [...]ence, against all pursuites that by way of justice could have beene made against mee: [in the gate] namely, in the publike place where judgement and justice was ministred.

V. 22. Shoulder blade] that I might be punished with that wherewith I had sinned, see Wis. 11. 16. [the bone] the Italian, the chanell bone, which is the arme-bone above the elbow, which joyneth with the shoulder.

V. 25. Rejoyced] carnally, setting mine whole delight in temporall goods, and in abusing them in delights and pleasures, see Luke 12. 19. and 16. 19. Iames 5. 6.

V. 27. Secretly] contrary to my open profession of sincere religion, see Deut. 27. 10. [enticed] or allured through the beautie of these creatures, or by the example and inducement of Idolaters▪ [hath kissed] and action of Idolaters, who kissed their Idols which were present, 1 Kings 19. 18. Hos. 13. 2. and to those which were further from them, they held out their hand, and afterwards did put it to their mouth, as an acknowledgement that they had their life and breath from them.

V. 28. Denied] seeing all Idolaters are incompatible with Gods true service, 2 Cor. 6. 16.

V. 31. If the men] I have withstood even my familiar friends, who did incite me to revenge.

V. 33. Covered] hidden it and not confessed it to God, or denied it by not giving him the glory, or dissembled it by excusing or extenuating it; whence it appears that Iobs justice which he hath so often protested of, consisted not in the perfection of power, but in the benefit of Gods grace and his sincere endeavouring himselfe to piety, and in the spirits true comb [...]ting against the flesh: [as Adam] Gen. 3. 12. Hos. 6. 7.

V. 34. Did I fear] the Italian, though I could assright, though mine own strength and power might have warranted me against mine enemies, whom I could easily have overthrown, yet I alwayes avoided contentions, and to offend, or be offended.

V. 35. Would answer me] let him either be plantiffe or defendant, Iob 13. 22. [a book] to cite me to appeare, or give me a cobby of questions.

V. 36. Surely I would] I would make it my glory, and my tryumph.

V. 37. As a Prince] the Italian, as a Captaine in full assurance of faith, Rom. 8. 32. Heb. 10. 22.

V. 38. If my hand] if I have gotten my lands unjustly, or if I have enjoyed and tilled them, by oppressing my neighbour, see Hab. 2. 11.

V. 39. The owners thereof] if the true owners have been put out by me, or if I have not well and justly rewarded the labourers. v. 40. I then submit my selfe to Gods curse, here described in these termes, Gen. 3. 18.

CHAP. XXXII.

VER. 1. BEcouse] having no proofes contrary to his protestations to convince him with.

V. 2. The Buzite] it is very likely that hee was descended from Buz the sonne of Nabor, Gen. 22. 21. whose progeny might bee divided into severall branches and nations, whereof one bore the name of Ram, from their chiefe: [justified] ca [...]ing more to defend his own innocencie, then to give God the glory; and by justifying himselfe he accused God of doing him wrong.

V. 3. No answer] namely, no certaine answer to convince him, that he had been wicked; so that after they had interested Gods right in this rash accusation, they were sorced to give him over.

V. 8. Aspirit] men have the naturall faculty of understanding and discoursing, but for to proceed directly in divine matters, the assistance, illumination and guide of Gods Spiri [...] are necessary.

V. 9. Great men] in understanding, age, and worth.

V. 12. That convinced] in that wherein by reason hee ought to bee reprov'd, namely, for his unreverend speeches towards God.

V. 13. Lest you should] I speak this because you should not deceive your selves, thinking you had sufficiently convinced him; and that he doth only maintaine his sayings, through obstinacie, for which he must bee remitted to Gods judgement.

V. 14. Now hee] I will not herein carry any personall passion, as you seeme to have done, being stung by his words, which have not touched mee.

V. 15. Amazed] at [...] ohs firmnesse and constancie in maintaining his innocencie.

V. 18. Full] or bigge, I boile with Gods zeale and am even ready to burst, I am so full of reasons and meanes to abate Iobs excesses, see Ier. 20. 9.

V. 19. My belly] my minde in which I have conceived this discourse.

V. 21. Accept] whereof Iob had accused his friends, Job 13. 7. and 17. 5.

V. 22. Take me away] hee would violently take away my life and destroy me, Psal. 28. 3.

CHAP. XXXIII.

VER. 4. The spirit] I am a man as thou art, and therefore will deale with thee upon even termes, by reason of [Page] common right, fitted unto mans capacity, to which thou mayest freely reply without feare of being overcome by my majesty, as thou hast said of God, Iob 9. 32. and 16. 21.

V. 7. My terror] these were the two conditions, that Iob would have made with God, to treat with him, Iob 9. 34. and 13. 20.

V. 10. Occasions] namely, causes and matters of [...]ite, Iob. indeed had not used the selfe same termes, but such as meant as much, Iob 13. 26. and 23. 13. 14.

V. 12. In this] thy immoderate justifying of thy selfe, thy complaining of God, and thy desire to argue with him, are the heads whereof I doe accuse thee, and for which I reprove thee, I let thy fore-passed life goe concerning which I doe no way tax thee: [God] and therefore it was fitting for thee to shew greater humility, and respect to his infinite Majesty, and not treat with him upon equall termes.

V. 13. For he giveth not] for this had been Iobs frequent complaint, that hee could not know the reason of this his so hard usage, Iob 10. 2. and 13. 23. and 19. 7. and 23. 45.

V 14. For God speaketh.] the Italian addeth, it is true that God, that which thou desirest [...], indeed happeneth sometimes, namely, that God by revelations, or expresse apparitions, doth warn men of their sinnes, for which he punisheth or threatneth to punish them, but that is not so continually, see Gen. 20. 7. and 31. 24. Dan 4. 5.

V. 16. Openeneth] he revealeth his counsels unto them, see Iob 36. 10. 15. [sealeth] hee proposeth it unto them as firme and concluded; if so be they doe not repent, and imprinteth in their minde the certainty of the happening of it, and the true cause of it.

V. 19. He is chastened] the Italian addeth, but sometimes also man is, sometimes God punisheth men, and not reveale his thoughts so expressely unto them, but remitteth them to the ordinary ministry of his word by men, to produce the same effect for their amendment: Now Elihu would inferre that, if God hath not granted Iob the first meanes of particular revelation, yet he hath not denied him the second in this visitation, having raised him who was his servant to speak unto him in his name: [bones] his members, & most strong and solid part [...].

V. 23. A Messenger] a Prophet or Officer of his Church, bringing the ambassage of reconciliation, 2 Cor. 5. 20. Hebrew, an Angell, as Mal. 2. 7. and 3. 1. Rev. 1. 20. [an interpreter] or a mediator that will intercede to make peace: [one among] this seemeth to be added to shew the scarcity of good Ministers, and faithfull and wife Distributers of Gods graces, or that the vertue of the holy ministerie doth no [...] depend upon the personall qualities and excellencies of the man, but that God operates by whom hee pleaseth, when the person is but warranted with with a lawfull calling: And so Elihu in modestie would make himselfe one of the ordinarist sort [...] of Gods servants as much as concerned his person, still reserving its weight and vertue to his words which came from God, see Iob 32. 6. 10. [to shew] to tell him the only meanes to obtaine grace and pardon at Gods hands, which is true conversion in faith and repentance.

V. 24. And saith] namely, to some Angell a minister in this healing, Psal. 107. 20. or to that Prophet which shall bring him word of this restoring, accompanying the Prophets word with his owne power to produce the effect of it: So the works of Gods grace are attributed, to the instruments of the word, by the certaine co-operation of God, when his ordinances are observed, Obad. 21. Rom. 11. 14. 1 Cor. 9. 22. 1 Tim. 4. 16. Iam. 5. 20. [I have found] by my soveraign will and by mine infinite wisdom, I have set down the meanes of redeeming mankinde from their condemnation, namely, the death and passion of my son, which I now accept of for this penitent man, Math. 20. 28. 1 Tim. 2. 6.

V. 25. His flesh] God shall restore him to full health, and new vigor of body, [...] figure of the restauration of the soule, Psal. 103. 5.

V. 26. Shall see] hee will cause the beames of his garce to shine upon the looking glasse of his conscience, within the which he shall see God appeased and propitious unto him, 2 Cor. 3. 18. and 4. 6. [render] hee will set him into his precedent state of garce, and will restore unto him the feeling of the remission of his sins, wherein consists the sinners true righteousnesse before God, Rom. 4. 5. 6. Or after that a sinner is converted unto God in justice and righteousnesse; God shall make him feele the effects of his grace in all manner of blessings, in stead of the calamities, which he had drawn upon himselfe with his sins.

V. 27. He looketh upon men, &c.] the Italian hath it, and he afterwards shall turne himselfe towards men and say, &c. that converted sinner shall preach Gods grace towards men, and shall propose himselfe for an example.

V. 32. I desire] I would heare such reasons come from thee, as that I might yeeld the right to bee on thy side, I being no way subject to passion in this businesse, but being thy true friend.

CHAP. XXXIV.

VER. 4. Ivdgement] let us avoid stomackfulnesse, [...]nd all things else that may doe us hurt, and let us have [Page] no other end nor rule, but onely reason.

V. 5. For Iob] Elihu his intent is to shew that though Iob was the child of God, and had ever conversed in holinesse and righteousnesse, yet there were in him as well as in all o [...]her believers whilest they lived in this world, many remainders of sin for which he ought to humble himselfe, and beare with patience Gods visitations.

V. 6. Should I lie] should I confesse even against my conscience, that I have been a wicked man, or an hypocrite? Iob 27. 5. 6.

V. 7. Who drinketh up] that doth so freely speak unfitting things, that hee seemeth to intend to scoffe both God and man, Job 10. 3. Prov. 19. 28.

V. 8. Goeth] he giveth men occasiou to believe, that he believeth as wicked men doe, namely, that it is in vaine to serve God, Mal. 3 14.

V. 9. He hath said] he goeth on rehearsing of what Iob had said, though not in the selfe same termes, Iob 7. 3. and 9. 22. and 30. 26.

V. 10. Wickednesse] injustice in punishing men without a cause, seeing there may cause enough be found even in his own children, as well by reason of their vitious actions as by reason of their originall and naturall corruption.

V. 13. Who hath] is not hee supreme, being the summe of all Law and justice, and hath no Law nor superiour above him; and therefore injustice cannot bee in him, seeing injustice is but the transgression or breach of some Law or commandment, see Gen. 18. 25. Iob 8. 3. and 21. 22. Rom. 3. 5.

V. 14. If hee] he is besides all what hath been said, infinitely mercifull, for if he did not let passe, and pardon many mens sins, the whole world would perish, Psal. 130. 3. and 143. 2. Isa. 57. 16. [his spirit] that is say, the soule of man or his spirit; that is to say, the life which hee hath given unto man, and doth maintaine by the proper operation of his spirit; whereof his blowing into Adams nostrils was a signe, Gen. 2. 7.

V. 18. Is it fit to say] learn from the respect which is due to earthly Princes, the reverence which is due to the soveraigne Lord, see Mal. 1. 8.

V. 20. Be troubled] it seemeth that he meaneth the slaying of the first borne in Egypt by night with much terrour and tumult, Exod. 11. 4. 6. and 12. 29. see Iob 26. 11. [without hand] miraculously without any humane meanes.

V. 23. For he will not lay, &c.] the Italian, for God hath no more regard unto man, when hee commeth in iudgement before him; Gods foresaid judgements are unavoidable, for then he executeth hi [...] sentence with all rigor, forsaking that moderation which he had spoken of vers. 14 see Iob 23. 6.

V. 25. In the night] here hee seemeth to meane Pharaoh his overthrow in the red sea, which was done in one night, Exod. 14. 20. 24.

V. 26. In the open sight] in a publike place in the sight of all the people; so were the Egyptians bodies cast up upon the sea-shore in the children of Israels view, Exod. 14. 30.

V. 28. The cry] this is also taken out of the same story, Exod. 2. 23. 24. and 3. 7 9.

V. 29. He giveth quietnesse] the Italian, *if he sends home in pe [...]*ce, if he by his soveraign sentence freeth out of slavery and oppression, as he did his children out of the bondage of Egypt: Others, if he appease his wrath: [he hideth] if hee withdraw his grace, man can no more have accesse unto it: It seemeth he here pointeth at the darkenesse which was raised before the Egyptians army, Exod. 14. 20. *[whether it [...]*e] this soveraign justice is executed as well, and as easily upon whole Nations, as upon particular persons; contrary to mens justice, which is many times hindered and withstood by reason of the delinquents multitude.

V. 30. The Hypocrite] the Italian the prophane man, such a one as Pharaoh was, an obdurate scorner of God: [the people] namely Gods people; [be ensnared] in tyranny or unjust slavery.

V. 31. It is meet] ô Io [...] in stead of contending with God and with his justice, thou shouldest have implored his mercy, and not have trusted to much upon thine owne conscience which may deceive it selfe. [I have borne, &c.] the Italian, who saith I pardon, I will not destroy, who hath revealed himselfe not only in his Law by commanding and threatning; but also in his promises of grace to comfort and encourage by the remission of sinnes.

V. 32. That which I see not] if there be in me any hidden sin which my conscience knoweth not off, which hath provoked thy wrath, see Psal. 19. 12 1 Iob. 3. 20. [Teach thou me] that I may aske pardon therefore and amend.

V. 33. Recompence] according to the rigor of his justice: [Refuse] namely, the way of mercy which I propound unto thee, to demand justice as thou hast hitherto done.

V. 36. My desire is] the Italian, O father let Iob be tryed, namely, O father whom I adore for thy fatherly goodnesse doe not withdraw thy visitations from Iob, untill thou hast brought him to the duty of a child, and to the onely meanes of obtaining pardon, which is humility and confession.

V. 37. He addeth] the Italian, he will adde, I desire it for his good and salvation, for feare least being delivered by thee whilst hee is in this wicked minde, he should triumph as though he had gotten the victory of thee, to the dim [...]nition of thy glory: [clappeth] in signe of joy and victory, Psal. 47. 1. and 98. 8.

VER. 2. Thinkest thou] how can this agree, that thou shouldst appeale to Gods judgement, to be approved of, and justified by him, and in the meane while contend [...]st with him, as if he not respected good or evill works, for to give them their due reward, Iob 9. 22. and 10. 14. and 31. 2. 3. [My righteousnesse is more then Gods] the Italian, my righteousnesse is from God; that is to say, I am sure God will justifie me, though men condemn me.

V. 4. Thy companions] those which approve of thine opinion, and are here present at this disputation, Iob 18. 2.

V. 5. The heavens] consider by the distance which is between heaven and earth what dis-equality there is between God and man, against whom man cannot have any just action grounded upon dammage or profit, as it is amongst men, Iob 22. 2. Luke 17. 10. see Isa. 55. 9.

V. 9. The oppressed] mens lamentations, though they be unjustly afflicted, are not heard of the Lord for to obtaine freedome at his hands, unlesse they come unto him by way of humble prayer; how much lesse then ô Iob, shall thy laments be heard, who art smitten by God, and canst complaine of [...]one but him, if thou refusest to convert thy selfe unto him, with humility and acknowledgment, see Hos. 7. 14.

V. 10. My Maker] and consequently I am [...]is, and he is take care of me, and free me from the unjust tyranny of other masters: [who giveth] comforteth his children secretly in the midst of their greatest afflictions, Psal. 42. 9. and 149. 4.

V. 11. VWho teacheth us] to not complaine to no purpose as beasts doe when they feele any paine, but to flie to him with well prepared prayer, which seemeth opposite to Jobs saying, Job 6 5.

V. 12. because of] because they remaine obdurate, and their pride hindereth them from humbling themselves before God to crave pardon and deliverance.

V. 13. Uanitie] the vaine cries and complaints which are not accompanied with faithfull prayer.

V. 14. Although thou sayest thou shal [...] not see him] the Italian, how much lesse will he [...]eare thee who sayest thou lookest not upon him; thou that professest thou wilt not humble thy selfe before him in this affliction, but wilt contend with him: [Therefore trust thou] the Italian, judge thy selfe in his sight, and then wait for him; recall thy selfe and condemne thy former proceedings and give glory to God, and then dispose thy selfe to an assured hope, 1 Cor. 11. 31.

CHAP. XXXVI.

VER. 2. ON Gods behalfe] to defend his justice which thou questionest.

V. 3. From a farre] from the generall grounds of his nature, justice and works, I will come to thy particular cause: [Ascribe] I will acknowledge it, preach it, and maintaine it to be just, for his glory onely, and not for any private respect of mine own.

V. 4. Not be false] namely, proceeding from flattery, to insinuate into Gods favour against mine own conscience, or without any motion from the heart, a thing wherewith Iob had taxed his friends, Jo [...] 13. 7. and 17. 5.

V. 5. Mighty] not by a tyrannicall might, having no regard to justice: As it should seeme Iob had intimated Iob 19. 7. & 23. 13. & 30 21. but such a might as is alwayes governed and guided with justice and wisdom: [Despiseth] namely, in denying of justice in respect of the inequality of their conditions according to Iobs complaint, Iob 10. 3. [strength and wisdom] the Hebrew, strength and heart.

V. 8. In fetters] he calleth afflictions fetters; they being as a prison to the faithfull who are fallen into some sin, for their correction and to prevent judgement, see Iob 13. 27 & 42. 10. Psal. 107. 10.

V. 9. Hee sheweth them] namely, by the publike ministry of his word, see Iob 33. 23.

V. 10. Sheweth them] he admonisheth them in secret, by divine revelations, Iob 33. 14. 16.

V. 12. They obey not] seeing hee here yet speaketh of the just, vers. 7. opposite to the wicked, ver. 13. by this disobedience can no way bee meant an obstinate rebellion, but a carelesnesse in the expresse amendment of some sin, by which others may prevent Gods last visitation in this world.

V. 13. But the hypocrites] the Italian, the prophane, that is to say, the wicked doe not only remaine unconverted in their afflictions, but become more wicked, whereby their punishment is also increased.

V. 14. Among the unclean] the Italian, among the Sodomins [...]s, namely, such as commit the abominable kinde of lust: Ayming at the destruction of Sodome.

V. 15. In his affliction] when in their afflictions they voluntarily humble themselves, see Ier. 31. 18.

V. 16. Have removed thee] if thou hadst chosen this way for thy conversion.

V. 17. But thou hast] thou seemest in some manner to imitate the wickeds extream and irre missible sin; which is to contend with God, saying, that he hath wronged them in their perdition: Now Elihu did onely intend to disswade Iob from such an impiety, to which his specches seemed to incline: But Iobs aime was no other but to maintaine the seale of Gods Spirit, against all appearances and reasons which might be urged to the contrary, which is the good combat of the faith; but it was followed by Job with a little too much excesse: [Iudgement] thou art already as it were a guilty man in the judges hands, therefore thou oughtest so much the more to beware least thou doe further provoke him.

V. 20. Desire not] desire not death in this manner a [Page] [...] thou dost, for in the state in which thou art, thou oughtest to feare an extraordinary kinde of death, even by Gods hands whereby many people have passed even to eternall death, as in the deludge, Sod [...]m, a [...]d Egypt.

V. 21. Iniquity] the Italian, vanity, namely, that vain desire of death, only to ease thee of some corporall paine, never regarding the eternall state of the soul: [chosen] thou hast desired rather to fall into the hands of God, by such a kinde of death, than to endure these torments, see Job 3. 13. 20. and 6. 8. and 10. 1.

V. 22. God] if thou say est thou wouldest argue with God, not to contraty him, but only to relate thy reasons unto him, that he might proceed with thee according to them. Who art thou that shouldest teach or direct him, who is in such heighth of Majesty and command?

V. 24. Which men] of which they are neither iudges nor censurers, but onely spectators and adorers.

V. 25. A farre off] either for reverence or through weaknesse being not able to come neere so great a light.

V. 30. Hee spreadeth] hee shooteth out his lightnings every way, Psal. 28. 13. 15. and 144. 6. [Covereth] with thick clouds, and the gulses, and armes of the Sea which seeme to be so many rootes of a great tree.

V. 31. [...]or by them] that is to say, Gods providence is incomprehensible, for with one and the selfe same storme, hee t [...]under-striketh the wicked, and watereth the earth to cause it to bring forth fruit.

V. 32. With clouds, &c.] the Italian, hee hideth the [...]ame with the palmes of his hands, and directeth them what they should meet; he hath as a man should say, both his hands armed with thunders, which directly hit whatsoever he will have them.

CHAP. XXXVII.

VER. 2. HEare] it should seeme that at that time it thundered: [the noise of his voice] the Italian, his terriblethunder, or his thunder with terror.

V. 4. After it] not because that the lightning is before the thunder, but because that the thunder is heard after the lightning is seen, by reason that the [...]e [...]ce of hearing is [...]lower then that of seeing: [ [...]ay them] namely the raine and stormes.

V. 7. He sealet up the hand of every man] the Italian, he shutteth up every man at home, becauseth by reason of those kinds of weather [...], every one to retire home out of the fields, Exod 9 19. [that all men way kn [...]w his work] the Italian, that hee may know [...] workmen, a [...] a master of a family calleth his slaves or his workmen together, for to take the number of them.

V. 9. Out of the south] the Hebrew word, signifieth a hidden or secret place, for the Antarctick or Souththren Pole is hidden from our hemisphere, Iob 9. 9.

V. 10. By the breath] by cold winds raised by him, or by his command.

V. 11. Wearieth] that is to say, by show ring down of much raine, hee dissolveth and dissipateth them: [He scattereth his bright cloud] the Italian, and scattereth the clouds with his light; namely, with the Sunne which disperseth them with his beames.

V. 13. For correction] Hebrew, his rod, as Ex [...]d. 9: 18 23. 1 Sam. 12. 17. 18. Ez. 10. 9. [For his land] for the earth which is his creature, wherefore he provideth for it, at its need, as he doth for all his other crea [...]ures; or that part of the earth which is not inhabited, which God only, and not man taketh care for Iob, 38. 16. 17. [Or for mercy] some singular and extraordinary mercy, as 2 Sam. 21. 10. 1 Kings 18. 45.

V. 15. Disposed them] namely, those foresaid meteors, raine, snow, &c. [The light] namely, the raine-bow, or the Sunne thorow the clouds when they are severed, or after they are dispersed.

V. 16. Ballancings] that is to say, how they are hanged up even in the ayre.

V. 17. How thy garments] how after a raine caused by a Southern winde the weather cleering up, tho [...] art warmed in thy garments.

V. 18. Strong] not by reason of any hard massie Elementall thicknesse, but by reason of their ayrie, incorruptible, and indissoluble nature composed of very thin and even parts.

V. 19. Darknesse] namely, the darknesse and ignorance of our understandings.

V. 20. Shall it be told him] his meaning is, that all manner of discourse or conceit of divine things, framed by the corruptsence of the flesh is abominable to God.

V. 21. And now] it seemeth that at that very instant, the cloudy weather did begin to cleare up, and that thereupon Elihu took accasion to speak these words.

V. 22. Faire weather] the Italian, gilded clearnesse, the Hebrew, golden.

V. 23. Finde him] that is to say, comprehend the infinitenesse of his essence, not draw neer the light of his glory, nor penetrate into the secrets of his providence.

V. 24. He respecteth not] the Italian, no man though wise of heart can see him, that is to say, to have a full and direct knowledge of him, either by sence or discourse of reason; for that knowledge is reserved untill the everlasting life; Exod. 33. 20. 1 Cor. 13. 12. 1 Io [...]. 3. 2. Others translate it, hee respecteth not any that is wise of heart; that i [...] to say, God will disdaine to take notice of him, as being too much inferiour to him.

VER. 1. WHirld-winde] namely, in the same manner as the Lord was wont to appeare, who did in that manner hide the brightnesse of his Majesty, and shewed the signes of his power, to bring man to feare and humility, see Deut. 4. 12. 1 Kings 8. 12. Ezech. 1. 4. Nab. 1. 3. Heb. 12. 19.

V. 2. Darkneth] darkeneth the soveraign luster of my providences, justice, and wisdome.

V. Gird up] now I appeare unto thee as thou hast so often wished, strengthen thy selfe with reasons to argue with we: [I will demand] an ironicall kinde of speech, in answet to Iobs speech, Iob 13. 12.

V. 4. Where wast thou] wast thou my companion or my councellor when I created the world, that thou wilt now be such in the governing of it? [laid the] figurative termes taken from buildings.

V. 5. Who] besides my selfe.

V. 7. When] namely, when all creatures, especially the heavenly ones being newly created, did glorifie their Creator, every one in its own kind, Psal. 148. 3. He seemeth to take this similitude from the birds which use to sing at breake of day: [The sonnes] namely, the Angels, Iob. 1. 6.

V. 8. With doores] figurative termes to expresse the great concaviti [...]s wherein the Sea is enclosed: [Brake forth] similitudes taken from birthes.

V. 12. The morning] that is to say, the Sunne; causing it to rise at such or such an houre, sooner or later, in such or such a point of heaven, according to the divers degrees and scituations of the Zodiack.

V. 13. Take hold] to extend it selfe to the furthest parts: [The wicked] which doe hide themselves by day, and doe flie the light, Iob 24. 13. 17. Iohn 3▪ 20.

V. 14. It is turned] the Italian addeth, and cause the earth to hee turned into divers formes as clay, &c. That is to say, that it doth appear various, as a potters vvork of divers figures and colours, whereas the darknesse of the night confounds the aspect of every thing.

V. 15. From the wicked] namely, Male factors, who hide themselves in their receptacles for feare of being discovered and punished: [The high arme] that is to say, the violence used by these thieves and night robbers, who are discovered and taken by the benefit of the day.

V. 17. The gates] poetically termes to signifie the subterranean and infernal parts.

V. 19 Where is] poetically termes likewise, which signifie or meane nothing else, but that God alone without any help, or work of any man appointed, the divers points of Sun rising and Sun setting.

V. 20. Shouldst know] as it were to bring it to its lodging.

V. 21. knowest thou it] an ironical speech: [wast then] it may be thou wast present when I established the course of nature.

V. 22. Hast thou] hast thou any part in the bringing forth of these meteors, or dost thou perfectly know the causes and means of them.

V. 23. Have reserved] as in magazines and armories, for to overthrow mine enemies, Exod. 9. 24. Iosh. 10. 11. Isa. 30. 30.

V. 24. By what] dost thou know the causes of lightnings, and other fierce meteors, and of tempestuous winds.

V. 25. Who hath] who besides me distributeth, a [...] it were by certain channels and conduits, the rain water upon the earth?

V. 26. Where no man is] and therefore this watering can be no effect of humane work, and thereby God sheweth his providence, even over savage beasts, Psal. 35. 8.

V. 28. hath the rain] are these creatures produced by causes which are constant and invariable in nature, as humane generation is? do they not proceed from my power [...] and simple free-will?

V. 30. Are bid] under their frozen superficies in winter time.

V. 31. Canst thou bind] hinder the season from becoming more temperate in the Spring-time when the Pleiades rise with the Sun: [Or loose] or doe so that when this [...] ign riseth with the Sunne, it may not draw up vapours from the earth to engender raine, mists, hoary-frosts and stormes.

V. 32. Arcturus] ordinarily called the guardian of the beare; and his sonnes are here the other lesser starres of the same constellation, of which the biggest and most noted carryeth the name.

V. 33. Knowest thou] either how to order them as Master over them, or to comprehend what they are certainly and perfectly? [Dominion] as well in regard of the motion of the heavens, which varieth the sea sons of the earth, as of the influences and vertue which commeth from thence.

V. 37. Who can number] who is it that causeth vapors to arise out of the earth & bringeth forth raine as much as need requireth, according to the order of his wisdome: [who can stay] the Italian, who layeth, that is to say, who can stay the raine: A terme taken from that, when one will poure out any liquor out of a bottle or out of a barrell, they doe lift it up; and when they will stay it againe, they lay it downe upon the ground.

V. 38. When they] namely, when it hath rained sufficiently, so that the ground is moistened and the clefts thereof closed up.

V. 39. Wilt thou] is there any besides my selfe that provideth for all beasts, and especially your savage [Page] ones which frequent not the companie of men, Psal. 104. 21. therefore my providence ought to be acknowledged, and adored without any contradiction, as absolute, and soveraigne.

V. 41. His young ones] often times neglected and forsaken by the old ones, who as we read, are very forgetfull: [Cry unto] with all their croaking they move none to help them, but onely God, see Psal. 104. 27. and 145. 5. and 147. 9. [Wander] when they begin to come out of their nests and play abroad.

CHAP. XXXIX.

VER. 3. They bow themselves] a description of the manner of these beasts bringing forth their young without any humane help, which tame and house-bred beasts oftentimes have.

V. 4. Are in good liking] notwithstanding the hardnesse of their birth, by reason of their dams exceeding dry temperature: [goe forth] they quickly forsake their dammes, and get pasture for themselves.

V. 5. Who hath] is it not I alone that have given this beast that quality that it will by no meanes be made tame?

V. 7. The multitude] the Italian, the noise, or the multitude; for his fierce and savage nature, causeth him to shun, and as one should say, dildaine inhabited places: [Neither regardeth] he is not like a poore slave in a chaine, who is called upon and beaten to his work, see Iob 3. 18.

V. 9. The Unicorne] this is likewise a very fierce beast which now adayes is very rare, but anciently was more common.

V. 12. Bring home] by his labour bring home the encrease of thy seed, or draw it to thy house as other kinde of cattell doe.

V. 14. Leaveth] according to the nature of that bird, which never sitteth upon, nor hatcheth its egges, but covereth them with the sand in the Sun, whose heat doth hatch them.

V. 16. Her labour] in laying of the egges which doth not cause any such care or love towards her young ones in this bird, as there is in other birds.

V. 17. Of wisdom] that is to say, it hath not such forecast to provide for its young ones by a naturall instinct as other foules and beasts have.

V. 18. What time] being followed by hunters on horse-back, she easily escapeth from them, partly by running, and partly by raising her selfe a little upon her wings.

V. 23. The quiver] a horse-mans armes.

V. 24. Neither believeth he] poetically termes; hee doth so rage and burne with desire of battell, that when hee heares the trumpet sound a charge, hee can hardly believe it. Others, he cannot stand still, when hee hath once heard the sound of the trumpet.

V. 26. And stretch] after that hee hath c [...]st his feathers, hee returneth to hotter climates.

V. 29. Her eyes] the eagle is very sharp sighted, and will see a great way off.

V. 30. Suck up] they drink no water, but in stead of drink, they suck up the bloud of the prey: [the slaine] the eagle hath also a very tender smell, so that shee will sent out dead carkasses a great way off, and flie thither. Which Jesus Christ; Matth. 24. 28. Applyeth by similitude unto the motion of the holy Ghost in the faithfull, who giveth them the true odour of saith from heaven to earth, and causeth them to come to him alone, who dyed for their sinnes, and is the true food of the soules.

CHAP. XL.

VER. 2. ANswer it] if thou hast not any sha [...]e in the creation, preservation, and conduct of these creatures, much lesse hast thou any in the higher effects of my providence; namely, in the governing of mankinde, and guiding my children to salvation.

V. 8. Wilt thou also disannull] wilt thou undertake to be a superiour judge over me, or to stand against mee in judgement, or to bee mine▪ enemie in action and strength, ver. 9. or to usurp my soveraign command? Try first thy strength with men, verse 11. To try what thou art capable to doe.

V. 13. Hide them.] shut them up in thy prisons, like guilty men already condemned, whose faces in ancient times they were wonted to cover, as having no more part in the light, see Est. 7. 8. Iob. 9. 14.

V. 14. That thine own] that thou art strong enough to maintaine thine owne cause, and that thou haste some shew of reason to withstand mee.

V. 15. Behold] to confound thy presumption, I will here make use of two creatures of mine, one of the land, and the other of the sea, to make thee acknowledge through thy weaknesse in regard of them, what thou art able to doe with mee: [with thee] hee is my creature as thou art framed of the same elements and matter; and lives upon the earth as thou dost, and may bee made tame to live amongst men: [He eateth.] of his owne nature hee is not cruell, nor a devourer of flesh; Yet hee will not bee wronged, and is of so great strength that no man dares assault him.

V. 16. In the navell] which is as the center of the [Page] body of living creatures, through which the chiefe vesse is of the veines and arteries doe passe and meet.

V. 17. Hee moveth] the Italian, Lee setteth up, or stirre [...]h it and windeth it about. Others when hee will his taile is like a cedar: [ *[...]*is taile] there being no such greatnesse, nor no such motion in an Elephants taile as is here set down: it seemeth that by the taile is meant his trunk, of which all these things may very properly be spoken: [the sinnews] this is also another of the Elephants propertie [...], whose testicl [...]s are hidden and stic [...] to his belly, fastened there by certaine sinnews and ligaments, and doe not hang as other beasts testicles doe.

V. 19. The chiefe] the greatest and strongest, and most understanding of all earthly irrationall creatures: [hee that made him] God alone can overcome him with strength, men (and they in great number) only by art and cunning.

V. 20. Surely the] hee livet [...] not upon preying but hee lives by hearbs, and fruits, and doth not affright other beasts.

V. 21. Hee lieth] by reason that hee delights in rivers, and water sides, to wash and refresh hims [...]lfe

V. 23. Drinketh up] the Italian, hee forceth a river, by his greatnesse and strengih he can stay the course of a river. Hyperbolicall termes.

V. 14. With his eyes] the Italian, will any take him in his sight? by open strength and not by wiles: [his nose pierceth through snares] the Italian hath it, will any bear his nose to put in snares? this is also spoken according to the nature of this beast, which though it be apt enough to bee tamed and taught, yet it will endure no halter, bridle, bit, nor ring in his nose, as other beasts have.

CHAP. XLI.

VER. 1. LEviathan] a common name for all great sea-monsters, see Psal. 104. 26. now adayes in the coasts of Arabia, the same is attributed to the Crocodill, or to a kind of it, as in the description made in this chapter, there are many things which are proper to him.

V. 2. *A [...]*ook] or dra [...] a rush through his nose to bring him to hand, as another little fish.

V. 3. will bee make] poeticall kind of speeches, as if hee should say, canst thou keep him prisoner, to make him use supplications unto thee to avoid death, or thine evill usage of him?

V. 5 Bind him] as you doe little birds for children o play with.

V. 6. The companions] namely the fishers.

V. 8. remember the battell, doe no more] the Italian, thou wilt never more remember the battell, hee will quickly kill thee, so that thou shalt thinke no more of assal [...]ing him, or any one else.

V. 9. Of him] the Italian, of taking him, namely by wiles, whilest hee is a sleep, for oftentimes hee waketh on a sudden; and overthrowes all that he meets.

V. 11. Prevented mee] I am not only almighty, but I am also such a one that none can tax me with injustice: I being bound to no man, and all things being [...]ine, and proceeding only from me.

V. 12. I will not] hee returnes to the description of the Leviathan.

V. 13. Discover] will any one come neere him, as to a horse in a stable, to take off his cloth, and saddle and bridle him for the service of man?

V. 15. His scales] the Italian, his strong bucklers, namely his great and strong scales. This and some other parts of this description, doe fit better with, and are more proper to the Crocodill than any kind of whale.

V. 18. His neesings] the great stirre hee keeps with swimming and beating himselfe in the water, maketh the ayre to sparckle, with sp [...]inkling up of small drops of broken waves: [the eye-lids of] like un [...]o the dawning of the day, [...] Iob 3. 9.

V. 19. Burning lamps] by his casting up transparent water into the ayre, and by the heate of his breath. A poetically hyperbole.

V. 22. In his neck] namely in that part of his body where the neck of other creatures is, for the whale, crocodill and other fishes have no necks: [and sorrow] [...]rtor of death is his fore runner, to any one that beholdeth it.

V. 25. Hee raiseth up himselfe] that is to say, he sheweth himselfe in the sea: [purifie themselves] they have recourse unto God, by prayers vowes, sacrifices, as in a present danger of death, to be delivered by him.

V. 30. Are under him] his skin is so hard, or hee is so armed with strong scales, that sharp pointed things, which hee resteth upon doe not hurt him.

V. 31. Hee maketh the sea] troubleth it, and maketh it muddy.

V. 32. Hee maketh] hee leaveth a long white frothy path behind him.

V. 33. There is not] neither man nor beast can overcome, or equall him in strength, nor affright him.

V. 34. Hee beholdeth] without any feare: as if hee contemned them.

CHAP. XLII.

VER. 2. I know] now doe I acknowledge thy right, and thy soveraigne power over all creatures: and that neither in action, nor in reason any man can withstand thee. [Page]

V. 3. That hideth] Iob repeateth Gods own words Iob 38. 2. the more sharply to condemne himselfe, applying them to himselfe with a godly kinde of disdain: [things too wonderfull] namely thy right to thy creatures, and the secrets of thy providence.

V. 4. Heare I beseech thee] it is fitting I should dispose my selfe to humble docility and obedience towards thee, and not to presume to teach thee: contrary to that for which the Lord in a holy scoffe had reprov'd him, Iob 40. 7. where in stead of answer, the Italian hath it, teach.

V. 5. I have heard] that which I conceived of thy Majesty heretofore was but little, and mine ignorance hath thrust mee on to rash thoughts and words; but now thy glorious apparition hath enlightned mee, and brought mee againe into the straight way of humility and reverence, see Psal. 48. 8.

V. 6. In dust] as in an expresse and publick penance.

V. 7. Spoken] in confessing and correcting your presumption, in speaking of my judgements, and secret counsells, as Iob hath done at this present.

V. 8. And goe] to reconcile your selves to him, before you can imagine to reconcile your selves to mee, Mat. 5. 24.

V. 10. Turned the captivity] the Italian, took Iob out of his captivity, namely out of the griefes and afflictions which hee had been detained in, as in a prison, Iob 13. 27. Psal. 69. 33. [when he prayed] to shew that God gives, and forgives according as a man forgiveth his neighbour: [twice as much] save only in children, see Iob 1. 2. for his children being dead in Gods favour, they perished not, so that before God, Iob had the number of his children doubled.

V. 11. Did eate] these were feasts of comfort, which were in use in those dayes, Ier. 16. 7. Ezech. 24. 17. [a piece of] Heb. a lamb, namely a peece of coyne which had that stamp upon it, which presents were tokens of congratulation. Gen. 33. 19.

V. 14. Iemima] as who should say, beautifull as the day: [Kezia] that is to say, Cassia aromatick, which was a kinde of sweet smelling plant: [Keren happuch] that is to say, a violl or horne of oyle, to beautifie: which is as much as to say, naturally faire, wanting no helpe of art or painting. The beauty of the body being one of the great excellencies of nature, and a singular degree of Gods image in man. And a particular, and especiall gift in a woman, which Iob would acknowledge by these names.

V. 15. And their father] which it seemeth hee did, to have his daughters live amongst the rest of his family, even after they were married: that they might not be desiled with idolatries, which peradventure out of Iobs family were ordinary in that countrey.

THE BOOK OF PSALMES.

The ARGUMENT.

AMongst other subjects which the holy Ghost did in ancient times dictate to the Prophets, even from Moses his time, were spirituall Canticles or songs, whereof there be divers scattered up and down in holy scripture. But this gift was most especially and abundantly conferred upon David with skill in Musick to a divine perfection: with an expresse inspiration, that hee should establish, and regulate the publick use thereof in the Church; which use had been beforetimes brought in by some custome and order not specified in Gods law. But David made a new order therein, appointing the office of holy singers and musicians to one part of the Levites, to doe their said office in turns like unto the other officers of the Temple. To the chiefe of these singers and musicians, or to some one of them especially, David and other divine composers did give their songs, or hymnes,: whether they were upon any generall subject concerning the whole Church, or any other particular subject, appliable and profitable to all the elect, for example, document and edification: to be sung in the Temple, at the houres of sacrifices as well quotidian as solemne on Sabbath and festivall dayes: joyning unto their voices the sound of diverse instruments, of which David was also the first inventor. All these Canticles, being well known and verified to be made by divine inspiration, were gathered together and kept by the Priests, with other holy books. And at last this part of holy scripture was [Page] also closed and sealed up by Ezra, as the ancients have thought, under the Hebrew name of prayses, which is also the chiefe subject and use of them: in stead of which Hebrew name, the Greeke interpreters have called them Psalmes, that is to say, songs, to whose singing is joyned the harmony of iustruments. The matter or subject of them is diverse, and very large, this book being an epitome of all the scripture, reduced into practise, in all manner of vertues and spirituall actions, and in all the accidents and necessities of this present life; by divine motions and ejaculations of the soule, stirred and raised up by the holy Ghost, who with his power accompanied she stile, the numbers, and poetically art of them, and the grave and holy concents of Musick. Yet in this generality, there may this distinction be observed, that in some Psalmes God speaketh to his Church, and to his elect, and in other some to his enemies; to the first by instructions, exhortations, corrections, consolations, promises, and prophecies, especially of the Messiah and of his spirituall and everlasting Kingdome, of which there are in this book more notable and plaine ones than in any other book of the old Testament. To his enemies hee speaks by threatnings and reproofes, and reclaiming them from their rage. In other places the Psalmists speak, or cause the Church to speak unto God, in confessions, complaints, prayers, prayses and thanks givings; or to the faithfull, in instructions, exhortations, corrections, and reprehensions. And all to this chiefe end, to frame and instruct the faithfull man, even in this world, in the way to performe that great work, of life everlasting, which is to glorifie God with a heart ravished unto him, and to keep the soule in a lively and spirituall exercise and application of the doctrine of piety, and in the fruition of Gods grace, in the joy and comfort of the holy Ghost: and cause it to feele the joyes of the age to come, and to taste the happinesse of it, by certaine heavenly motions, which the said soule is driven and drawne, by the use of the Psalmes practised infervor of spirit, and purity of minde, as by a very strong and divine engine.

PSAL. I

VER. 1. That walketh not] who in his deliberation concerning his manner of living, hath not betaken himselfe to follow the examples or the inducements of the wicked: [nor standeth] nor is not obdurate, and fixed in the habit and custome of sinning: [of sinners] of those who make a trade and occupation of sinning, and are elsewhere called workers of iniquity: [nor siteth] that doth not consent unto, nor take pleasure in sin, with a dead, and seared conscience, and contemneth not, nor prophanely casteth off, all manner of correction and feare of Gods judgements, which is the very height of sin, see Prov. 18. 1. and 21. 24.

V. 2. In the law] that is to say, in all Gods revealed word: for to draw the ground of his faith, and comfort of his conscience, out of the promises of grace. Out of his commandements the rule of his life, and out of his doctrine, the light of his instruction to salvation.

V. 4. Chasse] which is the huskes of the corne, when it is threshed in the floore; meaning that they shall be without any firme stay or subsistence in their consciences, without rule in their actions and motions, without any direct aime to a certaine end, and without any profit in operation.

V. 5. Shall not stand] they shall not be able to appeare and subsist there with a secure conscience: nor they shall not be absolved by the judges sentence: nor be raised from death to glory in the resurrection. But they shall be beaten down with terror, be void and fallen from all manner of hope, and be throwne into everlasting perdition, see Luke 21. 36. Ephes. 6. 13. [in the judgement] namely in the last and generall judgement.

V. 6. Knoweth] that is to say, approveth of it, and favoureth it: [the way] their whole life and conversation.

PSAL. II.

VER. I. A vaine thing] which hath neither ground, nor good reason; and besides cannot bring forth any good or happy fruite.

V. 2. Annointed] the King who was by him consecrated namely Christ Iesus, see Psa. 45. 7.

V. 3. Let us break] let us shake off all manner of obedience and respect, and let us endeavour to set our selves fully at liberty, Ier. 5. 5. see of this yoak and spirituall bonds, Mat. 11. 29. 30. Rom. 6. 18.

V. 4. That sitteth] in his eternall Kingdome and rest which cannot be moved nor stirred by the ragings of this world.

V. 5. Then] at a certaine time which he hath set down, see Psa. 14. 7. Eccl. 3. 17.

V. 6. Of Sion] my Church figured by Sion, where David dwelt and reigned.

V. 7. I will declare] I the son of Gnd will by my Gospell proclaime my Fathers counsell concerning the establishment of my Kingdome: [the decree] see upon Rom. 1. 4. [hath said] hath decreed concerning mee, to whom hee hath communicated all his counsell, that as I am his essentiall son, proceeded from him in an unspeakable manner, in the unmoveable point of eternity, which is the eternall this day, which hath no succession, variation, nor vicissitude of time. So in the day of my glorious resurrection, which is the prefixed time of the fulfilling this decree, I should appeare plainly to the world such as I am from my birth, by entering into possession of the new spirituall Kingdome which hee hath given mee, as I am his son and heire: and also head and mediator of his Church, see Mat. 28. 18. Acts 13. 33. Rom. 1. 4. Heb. 1. 2.

V. 8. Aske of mee] as mediator represent unto mee the perfectnesse of thy obedience, and performance of thy office, that thou' maiest receive the promised reward and crowne, to reigne over man-kinde, whom thou hast saved, see Psa. 89. 29. Iohn 17. 4. 5. [the heathen] the Italian, the nations, all generally; to be Lord over them in power and justice as my Lievtenant. And amongst them chiefly, over the elect, to be thine own proper people, gotten by thee; over which thou reignest in grace and spirit.

V. 9. Shalt break them] namely those that are rebellious.

11. With trembling] namely a trembling of reverence and worship, by reason of the greatnesse and Maiesty of the King. Of humility by reason of the infirmity and unworthinesse of man. And of care, to beware of the dangers that may happen, if the King be wrath, and for feare of loos [...]ing the good things of this Kingdome.

V. 12. Kisse] yeeld unto the eternall son of God religious adoration, as to the true God, and homage of subjection, as to the King of the world; the kisse being a signe of both, 1 Sam. 10. 11 Kings 19. 18. Hos. 13. 2. [from the way] the Italian, in your way, namely in your manner of living: or by the way, that is to say suddenly, in the midway of your enterprises, which you will never be able to bring to an end. Or that you doe not perish by your way, that is to say, that your proceeding be not to perdition, Psa. 1. 6.

PSAL. III.

VER. 2. SElah] this word is not any where but in the Psalmes, and in Habacuck. Some hold it to be a terme of musick, as a pause, or signe of elevation of the voice, or of changing of tune. Others will have it to be a signe of exclamation, or exaggeration.

V. 3. My glory] hee, in whose favour and assistaunce I doe glory. Or the author and defendor of the glory of my Kingdome, which is in question: [the lifter up] who comfortest and rejoycest mee; freest me from dishonor and contempt; heartenest and settest mee free; raisest mee in dignity and honour. All which things are meant by lifting up the head.

V. 4. I cryed] hitherto I have alwayes found God propitious to my prayers, and therefore I have the same confidence now at this present. Or in this present occasion I feele my heart strengthened by faith, in the grace of God by meanes of prayer: [of his holy hill] namely out of his tabernacle set up in Sion hill, 2 Sam. 6. 17. where the Arke was, over which the Lord shewed himselfe present in grace and power.

V. 7. For thou hast] thou hast alwayes broken, overthrowne and beaten downe mine other enemies, or thou hast already taken away from these all strength and meanes of hurting mee; accomplish therefore the work of thy deliverance.

PSAL. IV.

THE title, [to the] the Italian, given to, published by David, for the use of the Church, though it was penned before upon some particular occasion: [chiefe Musician] it appeares by first Chron. 15. 17. that even from time out of minde, there had been amongst the ministers, and officers of the Church sacred musicians, under certaine heads or masters, the original whereof is unknown, the Law making no mention thereof. Afterwards David having invented new instruments, and illustrated the art of Musick, Amos 6. 5. did also appoint singers in the Temple: and divided them into three companies, and Asaph was chosen by him to sing those things which hee composed, 1 Chron. 25. 1. 2. whereupon it is likely that it is he is meant in these titles of Psalmes: [on Neginoth] that is to say, upon stringed instruments; the meaning may be that this Psalme was sung to such kinde of instruments, or that it was sent to the chiefe of the musicians which played upon such instruments. Every generall sort of instruments having it severall company of musicians, 1 Chron. 15, 19. 20. 21.

V. 1. Of my righteousness] wnesse, judge, and [Page] defender of mine innocency, and right.

V. 2. Sonnes of men] the Italian, you chiefe men, it seemeth he directeth his speeches to the officers of the Kingdome, and to the heads of the eleven tribes, who after the death of Saul, did for a long time refuse to accept of David to be their King, 2 Sam. 2. c. and 3. 1. [my glory] will ye contemne and seek to beat down my royall dignity which God hath conferred upon mee, and of which I already begin to have possession in the tribe of Judah? [vanity] namely vaine, and unprofitable designes, to maintaine your greatnesse, under the pretence of the house of Saul, opposing mee who am your lawfull King: [seeke after] frame deceitfull plots, and false conspiracies to withstand mee.

V. 3. That is godly] namely mee David whom hee hath endowed with true piety, to re-establish his true service, which is spoken in opposition of Saul, who was reprov'd; and of his abominable race, see Psa. 89. 20.

V. 4. Commune] consider within your selves the great error which you commit, and examine what your duty is: [and be still] forbear plotting and taking counsell together Heb. hold your peaces, or be silent.

V. 5. Offer the] dispose your selves, by submitting to my government, to have part in Gods true service, in his Church, before his arke, in the holy place according to Gods order; that you may have certain assurance of his grace and blessing; which hath not been done in Sauls time, 1 Chron. 13. 3. [of righteousness] pure and right ones according to Gods command, Psal. 51. 19.

V. 6. Lift thou up] cause us to feel the effects of thy grace at full, even as the son shooteth out his beams at full mid. day.

PSAL. V.

The title: [Nehiloth] it seems that this word ought to be understood of all winde instruments.

V. 1. Meditation] the conceits of my soule, conceived and framed with deliberation, and uttered with a low and humble voice, yet with a most vehement affection, all which is comprehended under the proper signification of the Hebrew word.

V. 3. Look up] the Italian, expecting, or stand looking, as Psa. 130. 6.

V. 5. The foolish] namely those which run eagerly upon sin, and are as it were mad and enraged to commit evill.

V. 8. Lead mee] give unto my actions and businesses a good direction, that my actions may be holy and righteous, and my businesses and affairs happy and blessed: [in thy] the Italian, with thy, in thy law, which declareth thy righteousness. Or by thy firme loyalty and uprightnesse in the promises of thy grace. Or in thy obedience.

V. 9. An open] they gape continually with open mouth after the death and ruine of others like unto the sepulcher which never faith enough, Prov. 27. 20. and 30. 16. Or their false discourses are like so many pits to cause a man to fall into; or like [...] the throats of ravening wilde beastr, to teare in peeces and devoure.

PSAL. VI.

The title: [Neginoth] see Ps. 4. upon the title [Sheminith] the Heb. word signifieth, the eight, and is a terme of musick opposite to Alamoth, 1 Chro. 15. 20. 21. and it seems, that by the first may bee understood the highest and shrillest tunes; by Alamoth the lowest, and by Muth-Labben, Psa 9. the mean ones.

V. 2. My bones] namely my strength, the strongest parts of my body are cast down.

V. 3. How long?] shall thy wrath and thy punishment last? how long wilt thou delay to aid me?

V. 5. For in] the meaning of such like speeches (which are very frequent in scripture) is, that God doth afflict his children for their triall or correction, that by their deliverance he may produce matter of glory, and praise unto himselfe, in the middle of his Church, Psa. 50. 15. so that God seemeth to be frustrate of his end if his children die before they bee restored: or hereby is shewen the fear of Gods children, anguished by feeling of his wrath, least they should die out of his grace, unreconciled; and by that meanes be excluded and debarred from their desired aime, to be everlastingly instruments of his glory.

V. 6. In the grave] or in hell, as it seemeth to be implied in the precedent verse.

V. 7. Waxeth old] that is to say, faint, failing and dimme, by reason of the disgrace and despight which mine enemies doe mee.

PSAL. VII.

THE title, [Shiggaion] it seemeth to be some kinde of song to a pleasing and delightfull aire, or some kinde of musick, as Haba. 3. 1. [Cush] this was very likely to have been some courtier of Sauls who had slaundered David, see 1 Sam. 24. 10.

V. 2. Tear my soul] that is to say, my person or body.

V. 3. Done this] which is most falsely laid to my charge, namely to have plotted Sauls death, and the peoples revolt, &c.

V. 4. That was at] namely my friend Psa. 41. 9. his meaning is, I have been so farre from seeking to doe Saul hurt when he was my friend, that I have contrariwise assisted him to my power, after hee was wrongfully become mine enemy, see 1 Sam. 23. 5. and 24. 7. and 26. 9.

V. 5. Tread down] let him throw me down, and ignominiously tread mee to death: [and lay] and after my death let my honour and reputation lie buried in some infamous dunghill, Psa. 22. 15. and 89. 39. and Lam. 3. 53.

V. 6. Thou hast commanded] that is to say, I am [Page] persuaded that thou hast decreed within thy selfe to re-establish thy Church, and to take notice of mens actions, I beseech thee to hasten on that time.

V. 7. Compass thee] make them appeare before thee, and gather them into thy presence, and then sit down upon thy throne. A description of a solemne judgement.

V. 8. To my righteousnesse] that is to say, according to mine innocency in this action and the righteousnesse of this cause: not any way concerning Gods soveraign right or the rigor of his law: see Psal. 130. 3. and 143. 2.

V. 9. The hearts] namely the thoughts, and meanings: [the reines] the affections the inclinations, and motions of the will.

V. 11. Angry] though hee prolong the punishment of their misdeeds, yet doth he still remember the offence, and holdeth them guilty who treasure up wrath against the day of judgement, Rom. 2. 5.

V. 14. Hee travaileth with] the Italian, he bring eth forth, hee doth what hee can to bring to passe, and execute his wicked will: [salsehood] an effect of which shall be to his own ruine, quite contrary to his intent, Isa. 33. 11.

PSAL. VIII.

THE title: [Gittith] a terme of Musick whose signification is unknown, some hold that it was taken from the city of Gath of the Philistines, from whence the ayre of this song, or the manner of singing it, or the instrument whereto it was sung, had beene taken. Others derive it from a word which signifieth a wine-presse, as though this Psalme were to be sung upon the ayre of some merry song of thanksgiving which was used in time of vintage.

V. 1. Hast set] thou hast established the seat of it in heaven for ever, from whence it spreadeth its beames over the earth.

V. 2. Ordained] the Italian, sounded, that is to say, thou doest maintaine, the glory of thy power goodnesse and providence against the blasphemies of carnall wisdom, Rom. 8. 7. by the meanes of sucking babes, whose birth, sustenance and wonderfull protection convinceth the wickednesse of Atheists. As if hee should say, thou doest employ the little, feeble, and ignorant, for instruments of thy glory against the bold undertakings of the wise and mighty, Mat. 11. 25. 1 Cor. 1. 27. [strength] the Italian, glory, the Heb strength, the word strength being often taken for glory; because that the chiefe foundation of glory is might and strength: [that thou mightest] namely to suppress and keep down: [the avenger] by this is meant a deadly, and much incensed enemy, see Psa. 44. 16.

V. 5. A little lower] this might very well bee referred to the command which was conferred upon man over all other creatures, at the first creation. But because by reason of sin he is fallen from it, this is perfectly verified in Christ the second Adam, who hath gotten the title of lawfull heires and possessors of the world, for those which beleieve in him, Rom. 4. 13. whereof they have but a taste in this world, but in heaven they shall have the full fruition 1 Cor. 15. 27. Heb. 2. 7.

PSAL. IX.

THE title, [Muth-Labben] the Italian, Almuth-labben] according to some it is a terme of musick, see upon Psa. 6. in the title. According to others these words doe point out the subject of the Psalme: and may signifie; upon the death of him that stood in the middle; namely Goliah who shewed himselfe between the two armies, defying the Israelites, 1 Sam. 17. 4. for which victory David composed this Psalme a long time after, namely after hee had his settled habitation in Ierusalem.

V. 2 In thee] making thee, thy grace, and thy deliverance the only subject of my joy, v. 14.

V. 3. At thy] the Italian, before thy, being discomfited by thine only power who art the head of thy people, and standest in the front of thine armies.

V. 6. O thou enemies] an ironically kinde of scoffe and insultation.

V. 7. Shall endure] the Italian, fitteth, in his imperiall throne, and judgement seat.

V. 13. From the gates] Iob. 38. 17.

V. 14. In the gates] in the city, or in the publick meetings which were held neere to the gates of the city: [of the daughter] that is to say, of the people which dwelt therein, according to the ordinary phrase of scriptures.

V. 16. Snared] overcome and ruined, as a beast taken in the toiles: [Higgaion] according to some it is a terme of musick whose signification is unknown, see upon Psal, 7. in the title. According to others it is a note of exclamation, and admiration, as who should say, O a thing worthy to bee considered and meditated upon.

V. 18. Shall not although hee seeme to bee neglected of God for a time, yet that shall not bee perpetually.

V. 19. Prevaile] the Italian, get strength, let him not through thy patience take more courage and boldnesse, to endeavour himselfe more strongly against thy Church: or let him not bee the stronger.

PSAL. X.

[Page]

VER. 3. BOasteth] hee braggeth of his evill life whereof hee maketh open profession, or hee braggeth that hee will accomplish, his wicked designes, or glorieth that hee hath already accomplished them. Others: hee commendeth others who are according to the desires of his own soule: that is to say, hee respecteth none but such as are like him, and them only hee esteemeth, Psal. 36. 4. and 49. 18. Rom. 1. 32.

V. 4. Of his countenance] which pride hee carrieth engraven in his very countenance and makes it known in all his carriages and gestures: [will not seeke, &c.] the Italian, careth for nothing, hee contemneth all divine and humane lawes, hee feareth not, nor respecteth not Gods judgements: hee careth for nothing so bee may fullfill his desires; hee enquires after nothing; nor examines nothing; all things are indifferent to him.

V. 5. Grievous] the Italian, prophane, or troublesome; that is to say, all his endevaurs and all his actions aime at nothing, but at hurting of others: [are farre above] for hee is altogether carnall, hee hath not any disposition nor correspondency with thy law which is altogether spirituall: and therefore cannot livelyly represent unto himselfe the issue of the wicked according to the said law, see Rom. 7. 14. 1 Cor. 2. 14. [hee puffeth] hee does most arrogantly despise them, and is confident that hee can overthrow them with a puffe.

V. 7. Of cursing] of perjuries and blasphemies towards God, and curses against men: [mischiese] the Italian, perversnesse, or trouble, and torment, that is to say, the end of his deceitfull speeches, is to damnifie, and deceive others.

V. 8. Of the villages] A description of a high-way robber, under which name are meant all violent and deceitfull men, and their actions.

V. 9. Into his net] into his traps and ambushes which hee hath laid for him.

V. 14. despight] namely the malice and boldnesse of thine enemies, in despighting thee to thy face; or the injurie done to men with insulting over them.

V. 15: Seek out, &c.] the Italian, and then if thou seek out the wickednesse, &c. his meaning is, these wicked men are incorrigible, their malice will never have an end, untill they be rooted out, therefore O Lord once rid the world of them.

V. 16. The heathen] the Italian, the nations, that is to say, the wicked and ungodly, who are like heathens which have no God: Or hee meaneth that God having rooted the accursed nations out of the land of Canaan, had given a certaine signe, and prooffe, that hee would suffer no wicked prophane people to be there.

V. 17. Of the humble] or poore afflicted: [prepare] the Italian, establish, namely by thy spirit, with grace and strength, to endure all assaults. Others, thou doest prepare, namely them, to call upon thee holily, and righteously.

PSAL. XI.

VER. 1. How say yee] David speaketh to [...] of Sauls courtiers, who by violence, or deceitfull speeches, did seeke to send David far from the land of Iudah, to free Saul from jelousie, and doubts, 1 Sam. 26. 19. Others take these words to bee touching some evill counsell of his friends, wishing him to retire to his caves and rocks where hee was wont to lie, and not come heere to Iudea, which was  Davids hearty desire.

V. 2. For loe] it is true that I am in extreame dangers, and that I can have no recourse to justice, in this generall subversion of the state, but yet upon the assurance of mine innocency, I will have recourse to heaven, and to Gods justice.

V. 3. The foundations] that is to say, all the state which ought to be founded upon piety and justice; Psa. 75. 4. and 82. 5. Pro. 20. 28. and 29. 14. being subverted by the malice of mine enemies, can the cause thereof bee imputed to mee guiltlesse man?

V. 4. His eye lids] a manner of speech taken from those mens actions who being desirous to look upon a thing more fixedly, doe winke with their eyes, or close up one of them.

V. 5. His soule] a humane kind of speech, the meaning of which is; he hateth them with all his heart.

V. 6. Shall reigne] as in the destruction of Sodom, Gen. 19. 24. [snares] the Italian, embers, others, though not so well, translate it snares: [the portion] a similitude taken from banquets at which every one had his portion of meate and drink set out, see Psa. 16. 5. and 75. 8.

PSAL. XII.

THE title, [Sheminith] see upon Psal. 6. in the title.

V. 4. Wee will] wee will keep ourselves in favour with Saul, and maintaine our greatnesse in his Kingdome, by slandering of David, and flattering of Saul. For this Psalme seemeth to have a referrence ta those times which were infected with such plagues: [oür lips] our tongue is a meanes sufficient for to maintaine us, which can neither be hindred nor taken away from us, none hath any power thereon but only our selves.

V. 5. Puffeth at him] the Italian, against whom they [Page] speak boldly] others from them that burst out in speeches against him namely through rage or contempt, Psa. 10. 5. Others lay snares, that is to say, seek to entrap him with their courtly arts.

V. 6. The words] namely the promises hee hath made mee to raise me to the Kingdome. [p [...]re] from all falshood deceit and vanity, which are the [...]rects of mens words: for the Lords words are most true, and most just

V. 8. The wicked] that is to say, all manner of licentiousnesse and impunity reigneth; when publick offices are enjoyed by unworthy and infamous persons, such as Sauls officers were, see Prov. 28. 12 18. and 29. 2.

PSAL. XIII.

VER. 2. TAke counsell] that is to say, advise how I shall doe to escape. Or how long shall I be kept in care and troubles of the mind, which daily troment mee?

V. 3. Lighten] give mee the guide of thy spirit the joy and comfort of thy grace, and re establish me by thy power: [least I sleep] least I perish beyond all remedy: like one that passeth immediately from sleep to death.

V. 6. Dea [...] bountifully] hath given me the reward of mine innocency in this cause: the wages of my paines and patience, and the crown of glory for this combate.

PSAL. XIV.

VER. 1. The foole] the sensuall and prophane man, who is nor enlightened with the lively light of Gods-spirit: who through the malice of his heart, puts out as far as in him lieth the naturall lights of knowledge, and of conscience concerning God, his providence, law and judgement, that hee may run headlong to all manner of evill: [hath said] his understanding being darkned, hee doubteth whether there be a God or no; and in his rebellious and perverse will, he endeavoureth to confirme that beleef in himselfe (though atheisme can never find a perfect & continuall assent in the heart of man) and so works without any feare of God as though hee were fully persuaded thereunto, see Rom. 1. 21. 28. 1 Cor. 15. 34.

V. 2. The children] namely all men in their corrupt nature, having not the gift of regeneration, see Gen. 4. 26. and 6. 2. yea and a great part of Gods own people, which had gone astray, while King Saul reigned, though there were yet a holy remnant amongst them which are afterwards (namely v. 4.) opposed to the wicked, and therefore are excepted out of this generality by Gods grace: [and seek] namely that made God and his service and glory the only end of all their actions and that did seek to gaine the true and lively knowledge of him and to be in his favour, to come at the last to a perfect union with him, Acts. 17. 27.

V. 3. They are all gone aside, the Italian, they are all spoiled] the Hebrew word is taken from wines that are grown sower, see Isa, 1. 22. Hos. 4. 18. as the word that followeth is taken from meat that is grown rotten or stinking.

V. 4. My people,] by this word are oftentimes meant the poore and needy, whose only protectoris God, Exod. 22. 25. Mic. 2. 9.

V. 5. There] namely before God and his judgement, contrary to the judgement of the world, Psa. 2. 6. see Eccl. 3. 17.

V. 7. Come out of Sion] that I David comming to reigne in Ierusalem may free the people from Sauls tyranny, and his wicked officers. But especially that the great Saviour of the world, whose type I am, may come to be incarnate in Ierusalem, to gaine everlasting salvation for his Church.

PSAL. XV.

VER. Who shall abide] that is to say, who shall bee true member of thy Church, never to be cast out of it, and who shall enter into thine everlasting tabernacles of glory.

V. 4. In whose eyes] who when he will judge of a man, taketh God and his approbation for his rule, and doth not voluntarily honour, vice and impiety, for flattery or any worldly respects, see Psa. 16. 3. Ier. 15. 19. Iude. 6. he seemeth to touch those who flattered Saul, whom God had rejected.

PSAL. XVI.

THE title: Michtam] it is not certainly known what the signification of this word is: but it is certain that it is taken from another word, which signifieth most pure gold;

whereupon it might bee translated, a Psalme of gold: or a pretious jewell.

V. 2. Thou art] that is to say, as in thee, O soveraign Lord of all men, is the spring and fountain of all goodnesse, so canst thou not be prevented in any good, nor recompenced for any benefits, thy favours proceed from thy meere grace: and that service which thou requirest at our hands, is not for any profit that thou reapest thereby, but for our own good, and the reliefe of those that beleieve in thee.

V. 3. The excellent] the Italian, the honoured, that is to say, the true and noble children of God, heires of his Kingdome and changed from glory to glory. 2 Cor. 3. 8. 1 Pet. 4. 14.

VV. 4. Drink offerings] they were certaine offerings of wine, under which is comprehended all the service done to idols: [of blood] thry are abominable before God, as the sacrifices of men, and spilling of humane blood which was used by the pagans: [take up] I will abhor even the very naming of them Exod. 23. 13. Deut. 12. 3. Hos. 2. 16. 17. see Ephes. 5. 3.

V. 5. The portion] that is to say, amongst all the goods of the world, where of every one ccooseth out his part, [Page] I for my part take the grace of God, with which I am sufficiently satisfied. A phrase taken from those shares which every one had assigned unto him at feasts, Gen 43. 34. Sam. 1. 4. & 9. 23. see Psal. 11. 6. [Maintainest] thou hast not onely out of thy grace bestowed the chiefe of goods upon me, but dost also preserve it unto me by thy power, 2 Tim. 1. 12. 1 Pet. 1. 5.

V. 6. The lines] the Italian, the lot, Hebrew, the [...]nes, with which they measured land when they parted it, see Deut. 32. 9. see concerning this lot off the Saints, Acts, 26. 18. Ephes. 1. 11. Colos. 1. 12.

V. 7. Hath given mee counsell] who sweetly and powerfully inspireth mee to accept of this gift at Gods hands, and to preferre it above all other gifts and for it to forsake all other things, and strive to preserve and encrease it, see Psal. 73. 23. [My veines] mine internall thoughts, and secret motions of the soule, enlightned sanctified and moved by the holy Ghost, doe dictate and suggest unto me, what I ought to doe and undertake, see Psal 27. 8. [In the night] which is the time of rest, and of the faithfulls more serious meditations, and of most lively operation of Gods spirit in their hearts; when they are wrapped in rest and silence, free from wordly employments, and all distraction of senses, see Psal. 17. 3. Cant. 3. 1. Isa. 26. 9.

V. 8. I have set] that is to say, I have had him alwayes present in my soule by faith, by obedience, I have set him before me for the scope and object of all my actions, by sincerity for a witness and judge of them; and by experience for a rewarder of my fidelity, and chiefe aime of my happinesse.

V. 9. My glory] the Italian, my tongue, Hebrew, glory, according to the custome of Scripture, Gen. 49. 6. Psal. 30. 12. & 57. 8. Yet others take it for the soule, Iob 30. 15.

[Shall rest] the Italian, shall dwell, namely, in this world as in a waifairing lodging, then in the grave as in a place of safeguard and repose, an at last in heaven, as in its true and eternall mansion.

V. 10 My soule] namely I, my person, whose corporall part remaining dead, the whole man cannot be said to be delivered. Now Acts 2. 31. this passage seemeth to bee applyed to Christ, who is the onely perfect Saint of God, and to his resurrection by vertue of his most perfect justice, which preserved his body from all putrefaction and corruption. For though David have here some reflection upon himselfe, and his deliverances from mortall dangers, and to his hope of blessed resurrection. Yet the termes are so high and pregnant, that they cannot properly belong to any other but Christ; even according to the internal meaning of the holy Ghost revealed unto the Apostles.

V. 11. Of life] namely, everlasting and glorious life: [In thy thy presence] that is to say, in thy grace (which is called the presence of God) in this world, and in thy glory in heaven consisteth mans soveraigne happinesse: And this good is communicated unto him in consolation through faith in in this life, and in eternall joyes in the life to come, by the presence and clear sight of God and all of his meer liberality and power, who is the right hand of God: This being applyed to Christ, signifieth his glory received from the father after his ascension into heaven, Psal. 45. 7. Heb. 12. 2.

PSAL. XVII.

VER. 1. The right] namely, by declaring and defending my right and innocency, oppressed by mine enemies. [Goeth not out of] which is free from hypocrisie, vaine boasting, and malicious deceit.

V. 2. Proceed] that is to say, from the sentence which thou shalt give, let it appeare that I am innocent; which mine innocencie being known unto thee, I beseech thee to defend it.

V. 3. In the night] namely, when hee was most private and retired, when being hidden from all others, hee was onely manifest to thee, and being free from all worldly cares, was all gathered within himselfe, and having laid of the maske of worldly dissimulation, hee appeared naked in his true being: [Tryed me] thou hast proved me by thy severe examination, as metall is tried in the furnace: [Nothing] that was false or evill: [My mouth] my words are all true loyall & correspondent to the iuward thoughts of my heare.

V. 4. The works] that is say, in all my conversation and ordinary course of life: [by the word] namely, by it have I been guided and kept in.

V. 6. For thou wilt heare mee] that is to say, thou wert accustomed to heare me.

V. 7. By thy right hand] Others, thou that savest those which put their trust in thee from them that rise against thy right hand; that is to say, against thy Kingdom and will.

V. 10. They are] their worldly prosperity ruffeth them up, and makes them insensible and obdurate against all reason and just feare; and the Scripture doth use this terme of a fattened heart in this sence, because that the fat of man hath no feeling in it, and those that are very fat are lesse subject to the passion of feare.

V. 14. Of the world] whose heart is altogether set upon worldly things, & who rainging in this world, make no account of any other happiness, and finally are against thee and thy Church, holding with the world, see Ier. 17. 3. [with thy hid treasure] that is to say, with thy temporall goods.

V. 15. In righteousnesse] if I endeavour my selfe to holinesse and righteousnesse, I shall have thee alwayes present by thy grace in this life; and after my happy resurrection, I shall see thee face to face as thou [Page] art, and I shall bee fully and perfectly enlightned by thy glory, Matth. 5. 8. 1 Cor. 13. 12. [thy likenesse] not with any created image, or representation, but with the essentiall manifestation of God, as hee is really himselfe, and in his glory, which is the forme of God, Phil. 2. 6. and shall see God as hee is, 1 Joh. 3. 2.

PSAL. XVIII.

VER. 2. ROck] my strong and inpregnable hold and defence, Deut. 32. 4. [The horne] my strength, valour, defence, and victory. A frequent phrase in Scripture taken from horned beasts; or from the ancient custome of wearing hornes made of iron, or some other metall upon their Helmets, for a crest or militarie ornament; whereupon the raised horne was a signe of victory, and the horne beaten down a sign of being overcome.

V. 3. I will call] or praising the Lord, I will call upon him, and I shall be delivered, as now I prayse him for his past deliverances; and from them I take a resolution alwayes upon the like necessity to flie unto him, with certaine assurance that he will surely deliver me.

V. 4. The sorrowes] or bonds, see upon the next verse. [The floods] sudden and violent assaults, like the overflowing of a great multitude.

V. 5. The sorrowes] the Italian, the bonds, namely, the dangers of present death. A figurative phrayse taken from the bonds and linnen wherein they wrapped up dead corpses when they buried them, see Iohn 11. 44. and from the cords wherewith they bind malefactors when they are had to execution.

V. 6. Out of his Temple] namely from heaven, the holy seat of his glory.

V. 7. Then] a poeticall description to shew, that  Davids deliverance, had been altogether miraculous, and meerly divine beyond all order of nature, and humane power.

V. 10. Cherub] that is to say, Angels, see Gen. 3. 24.

V. 11. Dark water] vapours, dark and thick clouds.

V. 20. To my rightcousnesse] integrity and innocencie of life, beseeming a true believer and a childe of God, which hath it reward from God in grace, and not according to the rigour of [...] his Law.

V. 23. From mine] that is to say, from my naturall corruption, whereof some reliques doe remaine, and work even in regenerate men, Rom. 7. 17. Gal. 5. 17. see the like manner of speech, 1 Cor. 7. 5.

V. 25. Vpright] namely, in keeping thy word, and promises.

V. 26. Froward] the Italian, frowardly, that is to say, roughly, and cruelly withstanding him in all his actions.

V. 27. The high looks] namely, the proud, the raising up of the eye-browes being a naturall signe of pride, Psal. 101. 5. Prov. 6. 17.

V. 28. Light my] in the darknesse of ignorance, and in my perplexities, evils and dangers, thou dost give mee the light of knowledge, direction, joy and comfort, Iob 29. 3.

V. 30. God his way] all his actions, and directions are most just, and his words most true, having neither vice, vanity, nor deceit in them.

V. 32. Perfect] the Italian, plaine, that is to say, easie, and happily directed in all my actions and enterprises, Isa. 26. 7.

V. 33. He maketh my] he hath endowed me, with that excellent militarie vertue, of promptitude and celerity, in taking hold of opportunities; and putting in speedy execution all my deliberations: [And setteth me] he gives me grace not onely to conquer by valour, but also to establish my selfe through magnanimity and wisdom in those high degrees of honour, from which without these vertues, the fall would bee ruinous and unavoidable.

V. 34. A bow] this seemes to bee understood of  Davids admirable strength, 1 Sam. 17. 35.

V. 36. Enlarged] given me a happy issue in all my straights and difficulties.

V. 41. Vnto the Lord] without any faith or pietie; yea, rather to make the Lord a companion or favourer of their wickednesses; or it is done in an extreame dispaire of any other help, see Psal. 109. 7. Prov. 28. 9.

V. 43. From the strivings] he seemes to meane, that resistance which was made him by the major part of the tribes after the death of Saul, 2 Sam. 2. 9. 10. and 3. 1. [A people] this is to be referred to the strange nations, which were subdued by David, 2 Sam. 8.

V. 44. As soone as they heare] at the very first newes of my arrivall, or at my first command or bidding. [Shall submit] the Italian, have fained, Hebrew, have lied unto unto me; not out of any sincere good-will, nor loyally; but forcedly and dissemblingly have yeelded themselves unto mee, and have acknowledged me, see Deut. 33. 29. Psal. 66. 3. and 81. 15.

V. 45. Fade away] the Italian, are faded, the have lost their courage and have fainted, and beene asraid, see Exod. 15. 14. Iosh. 2. 9. 11 and 7. 5.

V. 46. The Lord liveth] the Italian, may the Lord live, that is to say, as the Lord liveth and is eternall within himselfe, so let him be acknowledged and worshipped by all, Psal. 104. 31. A manner of speaking, taken from the acclamations and wishes of long life, which are [Page] made to Kings, 2 Sam. 16. 16. Dan. 2. 4. and 3 9.

V. 47. Avengeth me] the Italian, that giveth mee meanes to revenge my selfe, not by a private passion, or viciously, but by way of publike justice.

V. 50. Great deliverance] as Psal. 17. 7. and 20. 6.

PSAL. XIX.

VER. 1. DEclare] they are as a miraculou pourtraiture of God their Creators wisdome, power, and eternitie, and of the Majesty of that soveraign King, who hath his residence there in glory; and they instruct man as powerfully by the eye, as he could be instructed through the eares by being spoken to, Rom. 1. 19. 20. [The Firmament] see Gen. 1. 6. Isa. 40. 22.

V. 4. Their liue] as who should say, their writing, grosse and in plaine drafts, others, their delineation, that is to say, their structure perfectly set up and framed.

V. 7. The Law] by this word Law, Testimony, &c. is meant the second means of revelation which God hath used, and that is his word: [Is perfect] it seemeth that this perfection, is contrary to the line which is spoken of before namely, a rough revelation by creatures, which declare nothing but the generality of Gods nature, whereas the word reveales at full both his nature and his will, as farre as is necessary for mans salvation: [Converting] the Italian, it restoreth, it is the true light which revives the soule, as the Sunne revives the body. Others, converteth the soule, that is to say, brings it back directly to God, whereas the creatures, through mans fault and defect, doe often detaine him too long with themselves in love, confidence and admiration: [the testimonie] see Exod. 16. 34. [The simple] that is to say, every man in generall, naturally blinde, and ignorant in divine things and more particularly him who doth not oppose the presumption of carnall wisdom to this pure light of the word of God; but in humility and simplicity, submits himselfe to believe and obey all that which hath been revealed unto him, see Pro. 1. 4. and 8. 5. Mat. 11. 25. 1 Cor. 3. 18.

V. 9. The feare] that is to say, the rule of his feare, and of all true religion contained in his word: [Enduring] that is say, it is invariable and incorruptible, and produceth the effect of eternall life in them that observe it: [The judgements] that is to say, the statutes and lawes according to which he judgeth man.

V. 11. There is great] in the first covenant made with Adam, God did indeed promise eternall life to the perfect observer of his Law, but this condition being become impossible by reason of sinne, Rom. 8. 3. the Gospel which is the covenant of grace, promiseth man the same life, by vertue of the merit of Christs perfect obedience; so that he follow the way and direction to holinesse and sincere and true obedience, though unperfect in this life.

V. 12. Who can understand] that is to say, this external revelation, by his works and by his word, is not sufficient of it selfe to salvation; unlesse the operation of Gods internal grace and spirit, bee added to it; to remit man his sinnes, whose greatnesse and weight exceeds all humane sence and power, and to regenerate him in newnesse of life.

V. 13. Keepe back] by thy spirit repress the motions and affections of my flesh; which doe yet dwell end combat in those who are regenerate, that they may not get the victory over me, and command me, and come to the heighth of untamed and presumptuous rebellion, called pride, which is incompatible with the spirit of regeneration, Lev. 26. 21. Num. 15. 30. Iob 15. 25. and is opposite to the infirmity, ignorance, and inconsideracie of Gods children, see Deut. 3 [...]. 5. Heb. 5. 2.

V. 14. My strength] the Italian; my rock, see Deut. 32. 4.

PSAL. XX.

VER. 1. The name] the true God, who hath revealed himselfe unto his people by his name, by which he is wor [...]hipped and known. Others, his famous power. [Defend thee] the Ita [...]ian, raise thee on high in safety, as it were on a high and inaccessible place out of all danger.

V. 2. From the Sanctuary] which upon earth was the ordinary place of Gods presence, in grace and power and the figure of heaven.

V. 3. Accept] the Italian, turne to ashes let him shew that it is, acceptable to him, for God in extraordinary Sacrifices, did often give a signe of his approbation, by sending fire from heaven to consume the offering, Levit. 9. 24. Iudg. 6. 21. 1 Kings 18. 38. 1 Chron. 21. 26. 2 Chron. 7. 1. Or give thee grace to desire his convenient aide for thine offerings, so that thou mayst feele the effects thereof.

V. 5. Banners] that is to say, tokens of victory set up to the honour of God.

V. 6. Know I] words of faith, and of a prophetick spirit of the whole Church, represented by the Priest offering prayers and sacrifices: [His holy heaven] the Italian, the heaven of his holinesse, the throne of his most sacred majesty: [With the] with miracles and glorious effects of his omnipotencie. [Page]

V. 7. Will remember] wee will call upon him, and and will have all our hearts and intentions fixed upon him, of whom we have such excellent proofes through the remembrance of which wee will take courage.

V. 8. Stand upright] we have stoutly withstood all their assaults and have obtained a full and firme victory.

V. 9. Heare us] the Italian, answer us] make our King (who is the figure of Christ) a ready and assured instrument of our deliverances, every time that we shall be in danger and necessity.

PSAL. XXI.

VER. 3. Preventest him] thou hast prevented him with thy graces and benefits which thou hast bestowed upon him of thine owne free will.

V. 4. Length] this is to be referred to eternall life which David had assurance of by Gods spirit, besides temporall blessings, Mat. 19. 29. 1 Tim. 4. 8 see Ephes. 3. 20. Or else to the continuance of his Kingdome in his posterity untill the comming of Christ, who should change it into an everlasting Kingdome, 2 Sam. 7. 19.

V. 6. Most blessed] the Italian, thou hast set him in blessings, that is to say, to bee every way blessed, to be an instrument of blessing to thy people, and a formulary and solemne example of blessing, see Gen. 12. 2. [With thy] see Psal. 16. 11.

V. 9. Thou shalt] thou shalt consume them with the fire of thy wrath, like wood put into a furnace.

V. 11. They intended] the Italian, they have warped, the Hebrew, have bent or stretched, a similitude taken from Weavers, who warpe their yarne before they weave, or from archers; who when they have bent their bow and put in their arrow doe take their ayme.

V. 12. Shalt thou make them turne their back] the Italian, set them as a but, see the like similitude, Job 7. 20. & 16. 12. Lam. 3. 12.

PSAL. XXII.

THE title [Aijeleth Shahar] that is to say a hinde or strength of the morning according to some it was the beginning of a song, to the tune of which this Psalme was to be sung, according to others, it was a full singing, or the great morning quier, because that every morning and evening there was musick in the temple, 1 Chro. 9. 33. & 23. 30.

V. 1. My God] in respect of David,] they are words of faith, fighting against some great terror, when hee did not feele the present effects of Gods grace. But in respect of Christ, shadowed by David, they are expressions of his humanity, on the one side fully assured of Gods love, and on the other side brought into extream agonies, to give his wrath satisfaction for the sinnes of the world; to which end the God-head did not onely for a time suspend the influence of its power, so farre as it was fitting to let him suffer the incomprehensible paines, even in an exteame manner, though it never forsooke him insomuch as was necessary to van [...]uish and overcome them, Isa. 42. 1. Iohn 16. 32. but did also make him feele, the horror of Gods wrath against sinne, for which hee had undertaken, see Matth. 26. 38. 39. Luke 22. 44. Gal. 3. 13.

V. 3. O thou that inhabitest] the Italian, the constant, that is to say, immutable in thine essence, counsels and promises, Psal. 102. 12. 27. and therefore thou canst not vary in thy grace towards mee. But in respect of Christ, these words doe meane that the truth of Gods promises, and the confidence of all the ancient Fathers, being grounded upon his victory in this combat, he desired his fathers power, with confidence that hee should bee heard: [the prayes] the subject of the thanks and blessings which thy people yeeld unto thee. Or the onely cause and foundation of all their honour and glory.

V. 6. A worme] a most vile and contemptible person, as Isa. 41. 14.

V. 9. That took mee] see Psal. 71. 6. Isa. 46. 3.

V. 10. I was cast] thou tookest me into thy care and tuition, and tookest me up, as a mid-wife or nurse taketh an infant when it first comes into the world.

V. 12. Bulls] namely, strong and fierce enemies: [Bashan] a place abundant in fat pastures and great cattell, Deut. 32. 14.

V. 15. Hast brought me] thou haste made mee even ready to bee laid downe in the graye, see Psal. 7. 5.

V. 17. They look] feeding their eyes and passions with my misery, as with a pleasant spectacle. see Luke 23. 35.

V. 20. My darling] the Italian, my onely one, an epithet of the soule, as Psal. 35. 17. for man having but one life, that is so much the dearer to him: Vnlesse he meane the solitude hee was in, being destitute of all humane reliefe, Psal. 25. 16. which was also verified in Christ, Iohn 16. 32.

V. 22. My Brethren] all the faithfull adopted by the Father through grace and regenerate by his spirit, and made brothers and co-heires with Christ, Iohn 20. 17. Kom. 8. 29.

V. 26. The meeke] an ordinary title of the faithfull: [Page] [Shalt eat] shall spiritually be fed with the Lords flesh and blood, who died and did rise againe for them, and in him shall have the full fruition of all good things.

V. 27. All the ends] a prophecie of the calling of the Gentiles: [shall remember] the [...] and lively knowledge of the sufferances and glory of Christ shall be given to, and preserved amongst all Nations by the preaching of the Gospel, and especially by the Sacrament of his body, therefore called a remembrance, Luke 22. 19.

V. 28. The Kingdome] namely, the spirituall Kingdom over the Church, and the universall one over all the world belongeth unto Christ, true eternall God.

V. 29. All they that be] all the true elect and faithfull, rich and poore, of what condition soever, shall participate of these spirituall goods without vainely slopping, vainely at the worldly and corruptible ones: [That goe down] that are weak and halfe dead through hunger and misery.

V. 30. Shall bee accounted] shall bee put into the number of the children of God, Psal. 87. 6.

V. 31. His righteousnesse] by this word is meant Gods grace under the Gospel, which was acquired unto men by Christ, the everlasting Gods righteousnesse, according to the truth of his promises and covenant, see Rom. 3. 21. 22.

PSAL. XXIII.

VER. 3. HE restoreth] or bringeth it againe into the rightway when it goeth astray. [Ofrighteousnesse] according to others, straight and plaine paths.

V. 4 I walk] and though I were in the terrors of present death: [thy rod] namely, thy providence and conduct, or thy spirit, which is the internall guide and comfort of the faithfull.

V. 5. Thou annointest] that is to say, besides my necessary occasions, thou dost fill me with joy and glory; Your odiferous oyles being used at banquets, and upon other festivall occasions, and to consecrate Kings and Princes, see Psal. 92. 10. and 104. 15.

V. 6. In the house] namely, in his Church in this world, and in the everlasting Kingdome of heaven afterwards.

PSAL. XXIV.

VER. 2. VPon the Seas] that is to say, upon the the great abisse of waters which is under the earth, enclosed in great hollow places, whence the heads of rivers doe spring and bubble out upon the earth, see Gen. 7. 11. and 49. 25. 2 Pet. 3. 5.

V. 3. Into the Hill] that is to say, into the Lords Temple set upon the hill Moriah in Jerusalem, where David carried the Arke, 2 Sam. 6. 17. 2 Chron. 3. 1. And afterwards into the Kingdome of heaven figured by that hill.

V. 4. Lift up] who giveth no heed, nor puts no confidence in the vaine and foolish designes of the world, nor in the fraudulent enticements of the Devill.

V. 5. Righteousnesse] the effects of the loyaltie of Gods promises and covenant, and of the righteousnesse which his sonne hath acquired to the Church, Psal. 22. 31. and the free reward of that righteousnesse which the faithfull doe practice through the Spirit of regeneration.

V. 6. Jacob] the Italian hath it [...], such is Iacob that seeketh thy face O God, namely, the true Israel according to the Spirit, Rom. 4. 16. Gal. 6 16. Others translate it, that seeke thy face in Iacob: Others, that seek thy face O Jacob: that is to say, which seek out the true Church to be incorporated into it by a lively faith, under the onely head of the Church which is Christ, see Isa. 44. 5. Rev. 3. 2.

V. 7. O yee gates] a prophetick representation of Christs glorious entrance into heaven, under the figure of the Arke brought into the place prepared by David, as Psal. 47. 15.

and 68. 25. to shew the onely cause of the Churches gathering together, and of the bringing of it up into heaven, namely, Christs ascention, see Iohn 12. 32. Acts 2. 33. Ephes. 4. 8. 10. [Lift up] a phrase or terme taken from triumphall arches or great porticoes, set up, or beautified and adorned for the comming in of great victorious and triumphant Captaines.

V. 8. Who is] the Angels admirations at the comming in of Christs humanitie into heaven, see Ephes 3. 10.

PSAL. XXV.

Without cause] through meere and wilfull malice, no way merited nor provoked by any offence of mine.

V. 6. Remember] that is to say, use them effectually towards me according as thou wert wont to doe: [for they] seeing that from all eternity thou hast made use of those thy loving kindnesses, in decreeing my salvation to thy selfe, let not them now be interrupted, staid, nor limited any way.

V. 8. Therefore] because God is good, therefore he will give his children his Spirit for their direction, and because he is upright, it must of necessity bee a good and most certaine direction.

V. 10. The pathes] that is to say, the works and counsels by which hee commeth and communicateth himselfe to his, and by which he also bringeth them back to himselfe, guiding them by the tracks of his owne vertues.

V. 11. For it is great] therefore the expiation of that [Page] iniquity, must be a work of thine infinite mercy, whereunto thou art moved most when thou seest the greatest misery and necessity, and the offender grieving most for it, Rom. 5. 20.

V. 14. The secret] namely, his decree and fixed will concerning their salvation, and all the meanes appointed for it, see Iohn 15. 15. Acts 10. 27.

V. 21. Mine integrity] let mine innocencie and sincerity be a sufficient defence and safeguard, against all mine enemies ambushes and violence, drawing thy protection upon mee: Or let these vertues alwayes keep me from doing evill, and let them never depart from me.

PSAL. XXVI.

VER. 2. MY reines] see Psalms. 7. 9. and 16. 7.

V. 3. Is before] thy grace goeth alwayes along with my faith, and I have sincerely obeyed the truth of thy word.

V. 6. I will wash] I doe endeavour to bee pure in all my actions, because that the service which I doe thee, may not bee defiled with an evill conscience: A phrase taken from those washings which were appointed for the Priests to use when they came neere to the Altar, Exod. 30. 19. 20. [I compasse] a ceremony used at solemne thanksgivings, whilst they offered sacrifices of prayse, or after they were offered, see Psalm 43. 4. 1 Kings 18. 26.

V. 8. Where thine honour dwelleth, the Italian, of the Tabernacle of thy glory, namely, the seat of the glorious signes of thy presence on earth in grace and power, which was the Arke, called also the glory of God, 1 Sam. 4. 21. Psal 78. 61.

V. 9. Gather not] doe not ensold mee in the same ruine and curse: see the contrary, 1 Sam. 35. 29.

V. 10. Of bribe [...] the Italian, of presents, that is to say, of injustice, corruption, and prevarication.

V. 12. Standeth] the Italian, standeth firme, by saith I doe already hold my selfe victorious over mine enemies freed from all dangers and difficulties, and settled in secure happinesse.

PSAL. XXVII.

VER. 1. MY light] all my councell, guide, and direction, my joy and comfort, hee that dissolveth all my inward clouds of trouble and confusion; and externall one [...] of dangers and calamities,

V. 3. IN this] namely, that the Lord is my light, salvation, and strength.

V. 4. May dwell] that I may perpetually both upon earth and in heaven live in the happy communion of his Church, Psal. 91. 1. [The beauty] the excellencie and [...]esnesse of his grace, truth, and other perfections which hee maketh manifest in his Church by his word. And besides that, his glory which hee shall fully reveale in heaven; things which were represented by the magnificence of Gods Tabernacle, and farre more afterwards by the glory of Solomons Temple.

V. 5. Shall hide mee] namely, in this communion with the Church shall I bee safe and secure: [upon a rock] into a place, and condition most secure.

V. 6. Mine head] that is to say, I shall have a glorious victory, Psal. 3. 3. [Of joy] the Italian, with joy] with voices of joy, used in sacrifices of thanks-giving, together with the sound of holy trumpets, Num. 10. 10. Psal. 26. 7. and 43. 4.

V. 8. When thou saidst seek yee my face, my heart said, &c.] the Italian hath it, my heart saith, from thee, seeke yee my face: [seek yee] thou and all the faithfull direct your selves to [...]e in my Temple, where I doe reveale my selfe in grace and power; and seeke to have me alwayes present with you faith and in spirit, and aspire to the full manifestation of my glory in heaven: [My heart] moved and inspired by thy spirit.

V. 11. Teach me] inspire and strengthen me constantly to follow thy holy will in patience and faith, so that mine enemies may not cause me to goe astray but that by this secure way, I may escape their ambushes.

V. 13. Vnlesse I had] the Italian, oh vnlesse I had] we should adde I had beene overcome in my troubles and combats; or woe is me, or I should have fainted unlesse, &c. see Psal. 119. 91. to see] that is to say, to be before my death re-establi [...]hed in the fruition of Gods benefits in his Church, which are a certaine pledge of the eternall happinesses.

V. 14. Waite]  Davids words to himselfe, and all the faithfull.

CHAP. XXVIII.

VER. 1. MY rock] see Deut. 32. 4.

V. 2. Oracle] this was the most inward and secret place of the Tabernacle and Temple, in which the Ark was, and out of which the Lord answered, being enquired of by Vrim and Thummim, see Num. 27. 21. 1 Kings 6. 5.

V. 3. Draw me not] doe not cause me to die the death of the wicked, which is alwayes forced and violent, in regard of their worldly affections, and being an execution of [Page] punishment on Gods behalfe. Whereas the death of Gods children is a sweet gathering up and voluntary departure, 1 Sam. 25. 29. Psal. 52. 5. & 125. 5.

V. 5. Regard not] through contemnt and prophanenesse, they reject all meanes of conversion as can be offered unto them by the Lords works: [And not build] that is to say, their ruine shall be eternall and irreparable. Others, let him destroy them and never build them up againe.

V. 8. Their strength] namely, the strength of his people and inheritance.

V. 9. His annointed] namely, me David who was consecrated by him.

PSAL. XXIX.

VER. 1. O Yee mightie] the Italian, yee sonnes of the mightie, let there bee no greatnesse nor heighth in the world, that doth not humble it selfe before the great and terrible God.

V. 3. Vpon the waters] upon the clouds where the thunder is engendered, Ezech. 10. 5. or upon the sea over which the thunder maketh a noise, and runneth for a long time.

V. 6. To skip] that is to say, hee hath made the splinter [...] and broken peeces of trees that have been stricken with thunder, to flie up into the ayre: Or when they have been shaken by the wind, or stormes, or by earth-quakes: [Sirion] a hill neer unto Lebanon, Deut. 2. 9.

V. 7. Flames] namely, lightning and thunder.

V. 8. Kadesh] this is the great wilderness between Egypt and Palestine.

V. 9. In his Temple] God indeed makes manifest unto all the world the effects of his power and majesty, but hee is no where acknowledged nor worshipped but in his Church. Or these things which make God terrible to all the world, are arguments and inducements to his Church to prayse and blesse him.

V. 10. Upon the flood] that is to say, in these terrible tempests, which seeme to turne the earth upside down, God is a peaceable Commander of the universe, governing all these accidents through his providence, and by his Sovereigne power: some think that he meaneth the generall deluge.

PSAL. XXX.

THE title [and song] the Italian, Canticle, it is thought that when these two words of Psalme and Canticle or Song are both put in the titles of Psalmes; it is meant that the sound of instruments was to be joynd with the voyce when they were sung in the Temple, and that the voyce went before when it is said Canticle and Psalme, and did come afer when it is Psalme and Canticle: [Dedication] see of these dedications of houses, Deut. 20. 5. here is meant the purification of  Davids house when he came to dwell in it againe, after the death of Absolom who had defiled it with incests and other wickednesse, see 2 Sam. 20. 4.

V. 1 Lifted me up] farre from any assault or danger, Psal. 20. 2.

V. 2. Healed me] freed me from all evils, restored and re-established me.

V. 5. His anger] namely, his fatherly anger and saving correction which hee giveth his children, Psal. 103. 9. [A moment] namely, with his grace which never faileth: And also because that all temporall things and accidents are but as a small moment in comparison of eternity: [ [...]se] the Italian, lasteth a whole life, an ordinary kinde of speech to signifie perpetuity, as amongst men there is a difference between things that are but for a time, and things that are for life.

V. 6. Prosperitie] the Italian, quietnesse, that is to say, ease and prosperity: [I said] by a motion of carnall security, though faith have no promise made unto it of exemption from all punishments, trialls or exercises.

V. 7. My mountaine] my Kingdome whose chiefe seat was in Sion: [Diddest hide] that is to say, thou diddest suspend the actuall influence and communication of thy grace.

V. 9. What profit] he speaks after the manner of man, as Psal. 44. 12 the meaning is, canst thou out of my destruction reap the fruit and obtaine the end of thy glory in thy Church, see upon Psal. 6. 5. Isa. 33. 18. [In my bloud] namely, my violent death inflicted upon mee for a punishment, which being joyned with the feeling of Gods wrath, cannot produce in man the effect of praising God voluntarily, see Psal. 39. 11. Now all believers have alwayes abhorred such a kinde of death before they were reconciled to God, and had a true feeling of his grace.

V. 12. My gloris] that is to say, my tongue or my soule, Psal. 16. 9.

PSAL. XXXI.

VER. 1. IN thy righteousnesse] namely, thy upright and invariable truth and firmnesse of thy promises and covenant, or thine equitie which consists in righting of those who are wrongfully oppressed.

V. 5. Redeemed mee] that is to say, my soule is thine because thou hast redeemed it from eternall death, and therefore living or dying, I will by an assured faith put it into thine hands, being sure that it cannot perish, but that thou wilt turne all mine evils and disastrous [Page] chances, to my salvation.

V. 6. That regard] that are given to Idols, which have no God-head in them, but that which the Idolator doth falsly attribute unto them; nor power, but what the Devill deceitfully doth lend them: or generally, those that put their trust in any thing but onely in God.

V. 8. Thou hast set] thou hast established mee in a peaceable and secure estate.

V. 10. Iniquity] the Italian, my paines, Hebrew, mine iniquities, because that death and all miseries proceed from sinne, the Scripture doth often confound the names of the cause, and of the effects.

V. 11. A seare] by reason of horreur and griefe, as if I were a person struck with some extraordinary curse of God.

V. 12. A broken vessell] a broken potsheard or some old forsaken peece of tile.

V. 15. My times] thou rulest, and governest my whole course of life, thou settest down how long it shall last, and disposest and orderest all the passages of it.

V. 17. Let them be silent] or let them be rooted out.

V. 20. Hide them] thou settest them in safety, in a place that is secure and hath an inviolable priviledge of freedome: A kinde of speech taken from Princes secret and withdrawing Chambers, which are sacred places [From the strife] from false accusations and calumnies, from cruell slanders, and from being wronged and insulted over.

V. 22. In my haste] the Italian, in my errour, or hastinesse; when I have by my calamities beene transported into irrigular thoughts and unseeming words.

PSAL. XXXII.

THE title [Maschil] this word is often found in the titles of Psalmes; some hold it was some particular kinde of penning; others expound it a Psalme of instruction, or made by some wise and understanding body, and therefore fitting to give instruction to others.

V. 1. is covered] a figurative terme taken from the filths and ordures which men cover, because they may not annoy and be loathsome to mens view; so God cloatheth man with Christs justice and innocencie, that hee may not bee moved to wrath and to reject him, by reason of sin, which would otherwise appeare in him; but that he may receive him into favour, beholding him in and through Christ, see Gal. 3. 14. Rev. 3. 18.

V. 2. No guile] namely, hypocrisie and dissimulation, which is incompatible with true and justifying faith, 1 Tim. 1. 5.

V. 3. Kept silence] when I have not disburthened my conscience by a sincere confession to God, and have not with prayer sought the true meanes to obtaine grace: [My bones] all my strength hath been destroyed, and hath failed in me: [My roaring] whilst I have done nothing, but complaine grievously for mine afflictions; and have not sought a remedy for the cause of them, which is sin, not yet healed by thy grace.

V. 4. My moisture] or greennesse, that is to say, all the moisture and substance of my body hath been consumed and dried up, either by some burning disease, or by the feeling of Gods wrath, and all the vigour and gladnesse of my soule hath been quelled with the fire of thine indignation, see Psal. 38. 3. 4.

V. 5. The iniquity] namely, so much of sin as was criminall and deadly in thy sight, for God after hee hath pardoned, doth yet reserve unto himselfe the fatherly correction of a sinner, and the curing of the wound and disease of the soule by many calamities, by which David himselfe had been visited, see Psal. 39. 12. & 109. 24.

V. 6. For this] namely, being taught, and induced by mine example to put full confidence in thy mercy, he shall desire it at his need: [When thou mayest] that is to say, whilst thou givest a man time and scope of repentance, before thou dost pronounce the irrevocable sentence against the obdurate sinner, and before thou hast taken thy spirit and grace from him, either during his life or at his houre of death, see Isa. 55. 6. John 7. 34. & 8. 21. Heb. 6. 6. [in the floods] namely, in great and generall calamities.

V. 7. My hiding place] refuge and safeguard: [thou shalt compasse me, thou shalt on all sides give me occasion to prayse thee and rejoyce in thee: Or, thou shalt give all thy people occasion by being participants of my deliverance to yeeld thee solemne thanks, and make a publick rejoycing therefore.

V. 8. I will]  Davids words to every beleever: [With mine eye] to guide thee, and for to have a care of thy salvation.

V. 9. Least they come, &c.] the Italian, otherwise they will not come, &c. thou canst not rule them, nor have any service of them, before thou hast tamed and bridled them. Others translate it, that they may not come neere unto thee, namely, to doe thee any harme.

PSAL. XXXIII.

VER. 1. IS comely] that is to say, it is their proper dutie, fitting for their state, and acceptable in their mouth, and wherein hypocrites and wicked, men ought to have no part, for they prophane Gods name, in what manner soever they take it, Psal. 109. 7. Prov. 28. 9. Zach. 11. 5.

V. 3. A new song] that is to say, sung with such [Page] fervencie as new things use to bee sung. Or alwayes new, according to Gods grace which never waxeth old. Or, sung by the motion of the new spirit of grace: which doth not so much looke after the old benefits of the creation, as after the new benefit of the redemption in Christ, which reneweth all things, see Psal. 40. 3. and 96. 1. Rev. 5. 9. and 14. 3.

V. 4. In truth] with loyalty, without any guile, with perseverance, without any inconstancy; which are the two maine vices and corruptions, which defile and corrupt all goodnesse which proceeds from man.

V. 6. By the word] namely by the manifestation of his word and [...]tious decree, or by his subsisting word, which is the son: as by a conjunct cause, equall, and cooperant, Pro. 8. 27. Iohn 1. 3. 10. Colos. 1. 16. Heb. 1. 2. [by the breath] namely by his word and command, Or by the subsisting spirit, which is the third person in Trinity, inseperable from the other two, as well in essence as in operation, see Gen. 1. 2. 26. Ioh 33. 4.

PSAL. XXXIV.

THE title: Changed his behaviour] the Italian, counterfeited, that is to say, feigned himselfe mad, or changed his carriage and behaviour: [Abimelech] in Samuel it is Achish; but it should seeme that Achish was the name of the person; and Abimelech the name of the Royall dignity, common to all the Kings of the Philistines, as Pharaoh in Egypt, and Caesar in Rome, &c.

V. 2. The humble] or the meek, the ordinary title of all beleevers.

V. 5. Looked] through faith, hope and prayer: [lightened] comforted, cheered, and directed in their necessities and calamities.

V. 6. This poore man] David speaks this of himselfe, or brings in the elect speaking of him.

V. 8. Taste] cleere your judgements, that you may rightly know Gods goodnesse, examine the trials and proofes which hee gives you of it, and take pleasure and delight in it.

V. 12. That hee may see] that is to say, that hee may enjoy those good things as if they were in his present possession.

V. 18. Broken heart] bruised, and beaten downe with afflictions and troubles. Or, contrite and mortified by humility and patience, Psa. 51. 17. Isa. 57. 15. and 61. 1.

PSAL. XXXV.

VER. 6. LEt their way] let them have no light for their actions and enterprises, nor bee guided by any good counsels, nor have any firme subsistence.

V. 7. They hid for mee] a phrase taken from hunters.

V. 10. All my bones] that is to say, I my selfe with all my strength and power. Or, I who am at this present quite consumed and extenuated, as if I had nothing left mee but skin and bones.

V. 11. They laid] the Italian, they asked mee, they laid faults unto mee, and accused mee for faults, whereof I am not only innocent, but also ignorant.

V. 12. Spoiling] the Italian, discomfort, the Hebrew word signifieth a privation from all help, comfort, joy and assistance.

V. 13. Sick] that is to say, afflicted with any kinde of calamity: [my clothing] I pittied their afflictions and did humble my selfe in prayer before God, to mediate fop them: [returned] a phrase taken from the manner of praying which they anciently used, namely b [...]wing their head downe to their breast. And so is represented the continuance and assiduity of prayer, proceeding from the heart, and by this gesture returning, as one should say, back to its spring againe, so to make a continuall revolution.

V. 14. I behaved my selfe] the Italian, I went about, a description of an extream care, and unquiet passion of the minde.

V. 15. But in mine adversity] the Italian, in my balting, that is to say, when I have been thrust out of my precedent happinesse, and have been shaken by adversity: [teare mee] with scoffes and calumnies.

V. 17. Destruction] their ambushes, and snares whereby they seek to make mee fall into perdition: [my darling] the Italian, my only one, see Psa. 22. 20.

V. 19. Winke] a gesture of a malicious scoffer, Prov 6. 13. and 10. 10.

V. 22. Keep not silence] doe not forbear operating by thine almighty word.

V. 24. To thy righteousness] righteous I am and innocent in this cause, yet not any way meriting towards God, nor perfect of my selfe, see Psa. 31. 2.

V. 25. Ah] a terme of mi [...], as of a man that would incite himselfe to the full fruition, of the pleasure which is shewed him.

V. 27. Which hath pleasure in the] the Italian, who will have the, who causeth it, and makes him enjoy it, and granteth it him for the love hee beareth him.

PSAL. XXXVI.

VER. 1. The transgression] through the experience I have of his wicked life, I doe discourse, and conclude within my selfe, that he hath forsaken all manner of piety and feare of God.

V. 2. Flattereth himselfe] hee doth incite and entice [Page] himselfe to sin; by discoursing falsely of Gods patience, of his owne wealth and prosperity, of the delight and profit that hee reaps thereby, an [...] otherslike baites of iniquiey. Or hee covereth and cloaketh his sin, see Iob 20. 12.

V. 4. Vpon his] hee bestowe this time of rest, when hee is retired from other employments, to plot those wickednesses, which in the day time hee puts inexecution.

V. 5. Thy mercy] it should seeme that these two vertues, mercie, and truth are for the faithfull, and the other two of righteournesse and judgements for the wicked: [reacheth] that is to say, it is infinite, and incomprehensible.

V. 6. Great mountaines] that is to say, it is eminent and governes all things. Or it is firme and immovable, Heb. the mountaines of God, according as the Hebrews doe adde the name of God to many things, to extoll the greatnesse of them, see Psal. 80. 11. Ion, 3. 3. [a great deep] the Italian, abisse, as well for his incomprehensible providence, as also because that through his judgements, the pomp and greatnesse of the world, is ab [...]ssed, and sunk beyond recoverie.

V. 8. Satisfied] this ought to be chiefly referred to Gods children, who in this life have the grace of God in abundance in his Church; and afterwards doe passe to the perfect possession of hi [...] glory and happinesse, Psa [...] 16. 11.

V. 9. In thy light] the Italian, by thy light, that is to say, in this world wee are vivified and enlightned in a lively faith, and saving knowledge, by thy spirit of grace; and in the celestiall life the light of thy glory shall fill us, and transforme us, and make us capable of contemplating thee face to face, and to enjoy thy presence for ever, see Isa. 60. 19. 2 Cor. 3. 18. Rev. 21. 23.

V. 10. And thy righteousness] in defending and protecting their right against their enemies.

V. 11. Remove mee] let it not make mee goe wandring out of thy house, where liech the good of all fa [...]thfull soules. It seemes hee meanes his flights from Sauls persecutions, 1 Sam. 26. 29. Psal. 11. 1. and 42. 6.

PSAL. XXXVII.

VER. 3. Shalt be fed] like a sheep, under the conduct and keeping of a good shepheard.

V. 5. Commit] by prayer recommend thy way unto the Lord, and by faith assure thy selfe that hee undertaketh the care and conduct of it: [thy way] thy businesses, actions, and all the passages of thy life.

V. 6. Shall bring forth] shall make the truth of it appeare out of ignorance, the vertue of it amidst calumnies, and false judgements, and the dignitie and value of it, after some obscurity of calamities and afflictions: and this hee will doe, either by convincing of mens hearts inwardly, or by making it renowned and glorious by the proofe of outward blessings.

V. 7. Patiently] in peace and patience without mourning see Psa. 62. 5. Isa. 30. 15. Lam. 28. 3.

V. 12. In the abundance of peace] or through the abundance of peace.

V. 13. Shall laugh] a humane manner of speaking: to shew the absurdity and folly of the wickeds enterprises, the vanity of their endeavours, how easily they may bee put back: and the ignominie which they receive. [hi [...] day] namely the time prefixed by divine providence for the judgement, and per [...]on of them.

V. 16. Of many] or of the great and mighty wicked ones.

V. 18. Knoweth] hee takes a care of their life and being: and as hee hath within himselfe decreed how long it shall last, so hee guides all the passages of it, and doth daily supplie their necessities, see Psa. 1. 6 [inheritance] the goods which they possesse as they are the children of God, can not perish not be taken away from them.

V. 19. Ashamed] the Italian, confounded, that is to say, deprived of helpe, and frustra [...] of their hopes.

V. 20. The fat] melted at the fire.

V. 21. Paieth not] hee cannot pay by reason of the extaeame poverty which God in his judgement afflicts him with.

V. 22. Shall inherit] they shall have the true and only right and interest in Gods creatures, which is gotten them by their redeemer; they shall lawfully and godlily enjoy that part which shall be bestowed upon them in this world; and shall afterwards have their full inheritance in heaven, Rom. 4. [...]3.

V. 23. The steps] God prospereth and bringeth to a happie period and end, all the businesse of such of his children as hee hath received into his grace, and which doe endeavour to please him. Others translate it, the just mans steps are directed, and hee delighteth in his way: [are ordered] or established and streng [...]hened.

V. 24. Though hee fall] namely into miseries and calamities.

V. 25. Begging] this maist not be understood of all manner of poverty, which may constraine a man to live of almes: to which kinde of poverty there have in all ages many godly men been subject: but of the shamefull trade of begging, which joyned with poverity beateth a signe of Gods curse along with it, and is accompanied with many vices, see Iob 15. 33. and 30. 1. 3. 5. Psa. 59. 15. [Page] and 100. 10, Others doe understand this particularly of almes givers, who give for the love of God, and therefore doe not come to poverty, Psa. 11 [...]. 5. 9. Prov. 11. 14 25.

V. 26. Is blessed] receives grace and communication of all true goodnesse from God. And praises, good will, and good wishes from men.

27. And dwell] thou shalt never be dispossessed of those good things, not the secure habitation which God hath given thee in his Church, and [...] the last shalt he gathered to eternall glory.

V. 28. His Saints] the Hebrew word doth properly signifie godly and good men.

V. 29. The land] namely the whole world whose lower part the elect doe enjoy during this life, as they are Gods children: and after this life they ba [...]e, the heavenly inheritance, which is the true [...]nd of the living.

V. 31. His steps] hee shall be firme and constant all his life time, as well in goodnesse as in blessing.

V. 34. His way] his comm [...]dements, which are the direct way which God hath marked out for man, to bring him to him.

V. 35. Eay tree] the Hebrew word according to some, signifieth any kinde of tree that standeth in the same place whereas it did first grow.

V. 37. For the end of that man is peace] the Italian, for there is a reward for a man of peace, namely the good man who seeks to be at peace with God and man, and offendeth no man, nor doth not trouble any righteous society; but hee whose goodnesse makes a sweet league and harmony with all good men, see Mat. 5. 9.

V. 38. The end of the wicked shall bee cut off] the Italian, all reward shall bee taken away from the wicked, or the wickeds posterity shall bee cut off.

PSAL. XXXVIII.

THE title, [to bring to remembrance] that is to say, penned to keep his afflictions in memory, that the fruit, instruction, and amendment may last for ever. Or to put God in minde of his grievances by prayers, confession, &c. A phrase taken from sacrifices, wherein there were certaine offerings of memoriall, see *Exod. 30. 16. Levit. 2. [...]*2. and 6 15.

V. 4. Gone over] they have overflowed even my very head, Psa. 42. 7. Or they are more in number than the haire of my head, see Ez. 9. 6.

V. 5. Foolishnesse] my rashnesse and inconsideratenesse in sining.

V. 6. Goe mourning] the Italian, *in sad, colour [...]*ing, for those that were afflicted with sicknesse, did anciently use for to humble themselves before God in this manner, see Job 2. 8. and 30. 28.

V. 7. A loathsome disease] the Italian, with inflammation, it might be some burning seavor, which made his side [...] po [...] and beate continually. Others take it for some [...]ore, or pestilentiall carbuncle. Some translate it matter, or rottennesse.

V. 8. Ro [...]red] I doe send forth cries which are I [...]wd and full of anguish, my heart boyles, and heares with griefe and sorrow.

V. 11. Al [...]] the Italian, over against mee, like idle spectators, scorning, or no [...] daring to come neere mee. Or affarre off, looking upon mee with horror, Luke 10 31. 32.

V. 12. Lay snares] or lay wait for mee to take away my life.

V. 13. Heard n [...]t] I doe as though I heard not. I beare all things with silence, be it th [...]ough patience, or by reason that I know not what to answer to their reproofes, and false judgements, which are grounded upon these my strange evils, and disasters, see 2 Sam. 1 [...]. 10. Psal. 39. 9.

V. 14. No reproof [...] no reasons or arguments to confound mine adv [...], see Iob 23. 4. Psal. 119. 42.

V. 15. Thou wilt heare] the Italian, thou wilt answer, for mee that have nothing to reply.

V. 16. My foot] when it seemes that I am moved in body or minde.

V. 17. My sorrow] the cause and feeling of it, is continually before mee.

V. 18. Declare] only in thy sight, as a penitent man, in all humility confessing, that I may obtaine mercy, whereupon mine enemies grow the more insolent.

V. 19. Are lively] they flourish and enjoy health and prosperity.

PSAL. XXXIX.

THE title, [Ieduthun] he was one of the three chiefe heads of the holy musick appointed by David, 1 Chron. 16. 41. and 25. 1. 3. Others think that this Psalme was given to the company of the Ieduthunites, which as well as the rest had alwayes it head.

V. 1. I said] I had propounded and firmly promised to my selfe: [my wayes] my actions and words: [a bridle] or mous [...]e for my mouth; his meaning is, I will bridle my inward motions and swellings, so that my tongue shall not run out, which is the first and suddenest budding of sin, Iam. 3. 2. 3. [is before me] I will see him flourish and prosper, abusing Gods patience with insolency and persecuting of the godly.

V. 2. Dum [...]] to not mur [...]ure, nor withstand [Page] Gods providence: [from good] namely from that which was lawfull and reasonable for mee to speake in my sufferances, for defence of mine innocency, which was to complaine unto God and desire justice at his hands.

V. 3. Was [...]]t] seeing I could not evaporate my passion in words, I doe inwardly boile through impatience.

V. 4. Make mee to know] seeing mine afflictions are such, that it seemes they can have no end, but only with my life, I pray thee let mee know the prefixed time of it, that according to it I may provide my selfe with patience. Or doe thou shorten it, that I may not be quite overcome.

V. 5. Behold] hee seemeth herein to correct his former wishes or desires, as if hee said; But why doe I thus grieve at the lastingnesse of my miseries, seeing that mans life is so short? cannot I comfort my selfe in the shortnesse of my life, which will also shorten my miseries, see 2 Cor. 4. 18. [an hand breadth] or foure fingers breadth, which is one of the least geometricall measures: [at his best state] the Italian, though hee stand, that is to say, though hee be alive, or in a prosperous, and well settled state: [altogether vanity] he is like an abbreviate, or compound made of all that is brittle, transitory, and decaying in this world.

V. 6. Walketh] the Italian, goeth and commeth, this vanity of man is not only discovered at his death, which is so sud [...]en, but in the whole course of his life also which is like unto a flying shaddow, see 1 Cor. 7. 31. [they are disquieted] or tossed to and fro, the Scripture often joyneth trouble and vanity together, and also confounds the termes, see Hos. 8. 7. an irrigular tossing to and fro, being proper to light and empty bodies.

V. 7. And now Lord] though I know very well by the discourse of reason, that death will end my miseries, yet that is not my true comfort, which consists in nothing but only in thy grace and salvation.

V. 8. The foolish] that is to say, the worldly man, who is preoccupied with false and erroneous opinions, transported with vaine passions, and drunken with his own prosperity, see Psal. 14. 1.

V. 9. I was dumbe] the Italian, I grow dumbe, now that I have through faith set my soule in peace, and leaving aside mine enemies, who a [...]e but secondary causes of mine evils, I am come up by vertue of thy spirit, to thee who art the supream cause; I can voluntarily keep silence and have patience, which before, naturall reason could not induce mee to doe.

V. 11. For iniquity] namely when corrections are sent by thee for an expresse punishment of sin, either in fatherly severity to thy children, or as a judge for a punishment to the wicked: [like a moth] which is easily crushed, and killed, see Iob 27. 18. Psal. 58. 8. or by a secret kinde of consumption; as a moth gnaweth or fretteth a garment, and makes no noise, see Ioh 13. 28. Isa. 50. 9. Hos. 5. 12. [surely] in the violent and fierce wrath of God, mans vanity is plainly discovered, which is not so well perceived in the slow and unperceivable decay of nature.

V. 12. A stranger] I am to make but a short stay and abode in this life, by thy sufferance; therefore doe thou that art the everlasting Lord, use that mercy towards mee which thou commandest to bee used towards strangers, that are pious persons. Or, regard mee as a poore stranger who am come under thy roofe for protection: [as all] I doe acknowledge my selfe to be in the same state of misery as all my predecessors were, and therefore I desire the same grace and favour as thy hands as they had before mee.

V. 13. Spare mee] mitigate the violence of mine affliction: [recover strength] by faith in spirit, that I may [...]ish my course, and the good fight, obtaining the victory through a happy death; after which there is no more beginning againe: [be no more] in regard of this life, in which the fight continueth, and is ended by death.

PSAL. XL.

VER. 1. I waited patiently] the Italian, I waited long, Heb. in waiting I waited.

V. 2. Horrible pit] that is to say, out of horrible, and unavoidable dangers and calamities, Psal. 18. 16. and 69. 1. 2. a phrase taken from high falls of waters.

V. 3. A new song] see Psal. 33. 3. [and feare] shall, by these wonders, be brought to an humble reverence, and worship of God, and to trust in his good [...]n [...]sse.

V. 4. Respecteth not] doth not stay to build his hopes and enterprises upon the Kings and Princes of the world, Psa. 62. 10. 118. 8. 146. 3. nor upon any meanes or assistance of prophane and idolatrous men. Others, he turneth not af [...]er those &c. doth not imitate those who trust in their own powers, or deceitfull wisdomes, which are the two kinds of carnall confidence, which are blamefull.

V. 5. Thy thoughts] no man can iustly acknowledge nor yeeld thee sufficient thanks, for the singular acts of thy providence, which are infinite in number, and surpassing in greatnesse. All that can be said, or known, is but only in part, and in generall.

V. 6. Thou didest not] for all these kindnesses thou desirest no other sacrifice, but the true and spirituall [Page] sacrifice of new obedience, and thanks-giving: without which, and in respect of which, all externall sacrifices are of no esteeme in thy sight Heb. 10. 5. this hath a relation to the abolishment of the sacrifices of the law by Christ, either by allusion, or by the declaration of some secret meaning, revealed to the Apostle, by the spirit: [hast thou opened] the Italian, hast thou boared, by thy spirit thou hast opened my heart and mine understanding to make mee know, love, and desire thy law, see Isa. 35. 5. Acts 16. 1 [...]. Some think David had a relation to the law, Exod. 21. 6. to boare or pierce his care, who voluntarily did yeeld himselfe to perpetuall bondage, and that the meaning is, I of mine own accord, have dedreated my se [...]fe to be thy servant, and thou hast accepted of mee.

V. 7. Then said I] namely after thou hadst disposed mee to thy obedien [...]e: [Ioe I come] I answer to thy call, and obey thy command I am ready to doe what thou pleasest, this is also some intimation of Christs comming in the flesh: [in the volume] Heb. in the roll, according to the manner of ancient writing, upon great long peeces of paper, which were afterwards rolled up upon a little stick, see Isa 34. 4. Ezec. 2. 9. [it is written] I doe submit my selfe to the obedience of thy law, as if it were written particularly for mee. Or to mee only, and to all thy regenerate elect doth thy law speake with fruit and efficacie, producing in them the true effect of obedience, and not to unbeleevvers, to whom it is unprofitable, and doth oftentimes increase their rebellion.

V. 8. Within my heart] the Italian, in the midst of my bowels] it is rooted in my heart, not only by knowledge, but also by a lively lo [...]e: my heart is imprinted with it, and it is written upon it, see Ier. 31. 33. 2 Cor. 3. 3.

V. 9. I have] this is the second kinde of spirituall sacrifices, namely of thanksgiving, *Hos. 14. 2. Heb. 13. [...]*5. [righteousnesse] he meaneth the [...] vangelicall righteousnesse which is no hing but Gods gr [...]ce, and all the effects thereof: accord [...]ng to his justice and loyalty in all his promises and covenant, see Psa. 22. 3. Rom. 3. 21. 22.

V. 11. With-held not] doe not hinder them from comming [...]owing down upon mee: *[preserve m [...]*e] doe thou employ them in protecting of mee.

V. 12. Mine iniquities] the punishments of them have suddenly overtaken me, see Num. 32. 23. Iob. 8. 4. [faileth mee] through horror and feare of thy judgement.

V. 15. Aha] scorning, and insulting over my miseries.

V. 16. Such as love] that doe fervently desire it, and use the right meanes to obtaine it.

PSAL. XLI.

VER. 1. *CO*nsid [...]reth the] the Italian, carrieth himselfe wisely towards the, as well in judging soberly, and charitably, of the hidden causes of their affliction, as in words and acts of humanity and mercy: [the Lord] this is a promise of requiting the mercifull, Mat. 5. 7. Or a reproof of mens false judgements, and a comfort to the faithfull contrary unto their said judgements; to whom David promiseth in Gods name that they shall bee a [...]ed, and have a happy issue.

V. 3. Make] the Italian, turne, a figurative terme, taken from the making of a bed for a poor sick man; that is to say, thou wilt stirre up his bed. Others, thou wilt change his bed, namely from a bed of sicknesse, to a bed of rest.

V. 6. Speaketh va [...]ity] the Italian, speaketh lyingly, that is to say, maketh a false shew of friend-ship and good will: [gathereth] out of all that he seeth or perceiveth in mee, hee gathereth matter of evill, and sinister thoughts.

V. 9. Mine own familiar] hee speakes of some perfidious traitour, who was the figure of Iudas: [lift up] a figutative terme taken from the kicking of beasts.

V. 10. Requite them] as I am a King and lawfull magistrate: I will by way of justice requite their wicked treacheries, and not out of any private passion, which is alwayes condemned.

V. 11. Because mine] because thou hast already abated his pride, and confounded his hopes, by beginning to restore mee.

V. 12. In mine] my sicknesse and calamities, have not endammaged nor diminished mine estate: [before thy] being alwayes under thy safeguard and care, as thy servant.

V. 13. from everlasting] the Italian, from one age, that is to say, in all ages; to the end; or from this present age to that which is to come, that is to say, from this time evermore.

PSAL. XLII.

THE title: [Maschil] see Psa. 32. [of Korah] Heman one of the three heads of the holy musicians was one of Korah the Levites posterity, 1 Chron. 6. 33. and 25. 5. 6. And these three Psalmes beare his name, not that hee made them, but because they were particularly sent to him, for to keep them, and play and sing them, when his turne came, to waite upon Gods service.

V. 1. The hart] at all times by reason of his hot and dry nature which makes him extreame thirstie at a [Page] certaine season of the yeare, but especially when hee is hunted: [my soule] I servently desire to bee in thy tabernacle, before thine Arke, where thou art present in the tokens and effects of thy grace and vertue: whereas I am now farre from them by reason of mine enemies persecutions, and especially Sauls, see Sam. 26. 19.

V. 3. Where is] seeing hee appeares no where to thy reliefe, it is a signe that either hee hath no power, or that hee hath cast thee off, and is no longer thy God, and that therefore if thou hopest in him, thy hopes are all vaine

V. 4. I power out] that is to say, my spirits are scattered, and emptie themselves in teares and sorrow, see Iob 30.

16. [for I had gone with] when I went to the house of God with a great company of people rejoycing, according to the manner of solemne feasts, see Isa. 30. 29.

V. 5. For I shall yet] I doe assure my selfe by faith; that hee will give mee new cause to praise him, when hee shall in grace turne towards mee, whereon dependeth the salvation of all his elect. Others expound it, I will yet praise him and his salvation, &c. Or for his salvation.

V. 6. Remember thee] I take comfort, representing unto my selfe, by faith in spirit, thy presence, and grace in thy Temple, from which I am now absent: [from the land] from the countrey which is neere the heads of Iordan: meaning that great row of hills which is generally called Hermon, Num. 34. 7. where David lay hadden during Sauls persecutions: [Missar] the name of a hill not mentioned elsewhere.

V. 7. Deep calleth unto] a figurative description of his calamities, the meaning is, that as after the thunder in the clouds, there fall great showers of raine; so thy wrath is followed by a whole deluge of afflictions, which shower downe one after another without cease, or end.

V. 8. VWill command] the Italian, will send, that is to say, I hope that after this fullnesse of calamities, hee wi [...] I send forth a commission and con mand of grace, sor to set mee free, Psal, 44. 4. and 68. 28. whereby the day shall be filled with his loving kindnesses: and the night shall be employed in meditating upon them, acknowledging them, and setting them forth: [of my life] the only author, defender, and preserver of it.

V. 9. I will say] now in the state of affliction, wherein I sinde my selfe at this present, I will persevere in prayers, expecting hereafter the effect of my Faith.

V. 11. The health] the Italian, the compleate safety, the only author, and perfect cause of my deliverance; through which I hope yet one day I [...] all be able to lift up my head freely, and shew my countenance cleared through gladnesse and honour.

PSAL. XLIII.

VER. 3. SEnd out] according to the truth of ahy promises, let mee againe behold the brightnesse of thy countenance: namely of thy grate and favour, which may disperse all the clouds of my calamities, and may bring mee againe into thy Church, out of which I am now driven by the violence of mine enemies.

PSAL. XLIV.

VER. [...]. ANd cast them out] the Italian, and caused our fathers to grow, that is to say, thou causedst them to prosper and grow like vines or other plants which doe grow and spread abroad.

V. 3. Their own sword] which though they did employ with much valour, by Gods command; yet it could not have wrought those effects, which did surpasse all humane power, and were true miracles wrought by God: [the light] namely thy grace and favour.

V. 4. Command] that is to say, worke it by thine almighty word, which gives a being, and is a law for all things, see Psa. 42. 8. and 68. 28.

V. 5. Through thy] calling upon thee, through thy strength and power, under thy conduct, fighting thy cause, by thy command.

V. 9. Goest not forth] thou doest no more assist us in our sights, a terme taken from that the arke was wont to be carried in the campe in the time of great and imminent dangers of warre, Num. 14. 42. and 31. 6.

V. 12. Thou sellest] that is to say, thou hast suffered their enemies to subdue them easily, without any losse or dammage: or hast given them over to their wills, as a thing of no value: [dost not increase thou thy selfe seemest to have lost by this oppression of thy people, which was as it were thine own inheritance and thine enemies have not so much as yeelded thee, any acknowledgement, or done thee any homage therefore, as it were to recompence thy losse. Others, thou hast not raised their price, that is to say, thou hast let their enemies have them at what price, and upon what condition they would themselves, and hast not caused them to pay a deare rate for their conquest.

V. 14. A [...] shaking] a signe of scorne, and derision, as 2 Kings 19. 21. Job. 16. 4. Psal. 22. 7.

V. 15. My confusion] I have causes of confusion continually before mine eyes, the marks whereof I carry upon my face, and forehead, which are covered with shame.

V. 16. Avenger] that is to say, an enemy grievously incensed, Psa. 8. 3.

V. 19. Of dragons] that is to say, horrid places such [Page] as are the receptacles or dens of those beasts, see. Isa. 34. 13. and 35. 7. by which is meant an extream desolation: [the shadow] that is to say, deadly calamities, Psa. 23. 4.

V. 20. Stretched out] prayed after the ancient manner of praying, with armes laid abroad, and hands turned up, Job 11. 13.

PSAL. XLV.

THE title [Shoshannim] an unknown name of a time, or as a muscally instrument: [of loves] spirituall loves, of Christ and his Church, as in the book of Canticles, the contemplation and penning of which was peradventure occasioned by Solomons nuptials and from thence are taken many termes, to signifie things which are meerly divine and celestiall.

V. 1. Enditing] the Italian, bubbleth out, a figurative terme, which is very frequent in scripture, to expresse not only the fervency of a righteous mans zeale, but also the vehemencie of divine inspiration, see Iob 32. 18. [a good] that is to say, a discourse of dainty matters: [touching the] the Italian, I rehearse my works to the King, that is to say, I consecrate these my works, to the honour of the everlasting King of the Church.

V. 2. Fairer] excellent and perfect in all manner of vertue, and such dost thou appeare to be to thy Church, see Isa. 33. 17. [grace] that is to say, besides thine own proper perfections, thou hast that soveraign gift of communicating thy selfe by thy most sweet and gracious word, see Isa. 50. 4. [therefore] these are the two causes, and grounds of the establishment of thine everlasting Kingdome by God, thy Father.

V. 3. Thy sword] which is the most efficacious and piercing word of thy Gospell, Isa. 49. 2. Heb. 4. 12. Rev. 1. 16. and 19. 15.

V. 4 Ride] or bee thou carried as it were upon a triumphant chariot; which is meant by the Gospell, by the preaching of which, Christ was to be carried victorious and triumphant all the world over: [prosperously] being thus sum [...]ously armed and surnished, set a happie period to all thy businesses. Isa. 53. 10. [thy right bond] that is to say, if thou dost employ thy soveraign power, thou shalt finde the experience of those admirable effects, which the spirit doth foretell by mee.

V. 5. Thine arrowes] see concerning these armes of Christ, and of their effect. Isa. 49. 2. 2 Cor. 10. 4.

V. 6. O God] hee directeth his speech to Christ Heb. 1. 8. true eternall God who besides and with the Kingdome of essence, and eternall glory, is also mediator as lievtenant generall to his sather, which place hee undergoeth in the union of the two natures, yet by the power of his deitie.

V. 7. Therefore] that is to say, because that thou alone through the most perfect justice art fitting and worthy to bee King of the Church; God hath consecrated thee for this place, in thine whole person, and hath endowed thy humane nature beyond measure with the gifts of the spirit, which gifts were anciently figured and shewed as it were in a shaddow, by the annointing of Kings John 3. 34. 1 Iohn 2. 20. 27. [of gladnesse] for your sweet smelling oiles were also used for to beautifie the face upon occasions of feasting and mirth, Psa. 23. 5: and 104. 15. and likewise this oile of consecration, and infusion of the gifts of the holy Ghost is also an oile of joy and glory in Christ: [thy fellowes] all the true elect, sanctified by the same spirit, and endowed with the same graces, to be Kings and Priests, Rev. 1. 6. and 5. 10. of which neverthelesse they receive but a certaine portion and measure, 1 Cor. 12. 7. 11. Ephes. 4. 7. whereas Christ hath the whole fullnesse of it, Iohn 3. 34.

V. 8. All thy garments] thou art clothed with the gifts of the holy Ghost, which spread forth a most sweet odour of grace even from heaven thy dwelling place, Cant. 1. 3. [out of the] from heaven which is Christs royall habitation, alluding to Kings pallaces whose walls were covered over with marble, 1 Kings 22. 39. Amos 3. 15. [made thee glad] namely that everlasting joy which thou hast in heaven.

V. 9. Daughters] as much as to say, Kingdomes and provinces shall be joynd to the Church of Israel which is here specially meant by the spouse, by reason of that nations prerogative, though they altogether doe make but one universall Church, Cant. 6. 8. [honourable women] the Italian, amongst thine honours, that is to say, thy nuptiall traine and pompe. Others have it thine honorable, that is to say, thy maids of honour: [upon thy] the chiefe place of honour, next to the soveraign, and was given to the queenes, 1 Kings 2. 19. [of Ophir] see Iob 22. 24.

V. 10. Hearken] the prophets words to the Church: [forget] renounce the world which is as it were thy fathers house whence thou wert taken, to cleave altogether to thy husband, according to the Lawes of matrimonie, Gen. 2. 24.

V. 12. The daughter] that is to say, the people of that city: hee meaneth that the mightiest and famousest nations of the Gentiles, should bee joynd to the Church, to doe in it and with it homage to Christ, Psa. 72. 10. Isa. 23. 18.

V. 13. The Kings daughter] namely the Church, [Page] which is Gods daughter, and Christs bride, Cant. 7. 1. [within] the Church though it bee adorned with divine graces even in this world, yet it is like unto a bride which is yet at home, until her solemn going forth when shee goeth to her husband, Rev. 19. 7. 8. which signifieth that shee doth not outwardly make shew of what shee is as yet, 1 Iohn 3. 2. or that her ornaments, are spirituall and internall, not worldly, Cant. 1. 5. 1 Pet. 3. 3.

V. 14. Shall bee brought] that of altogether may be composed the intire body of the universall Church.

V. 15. Pallace] first into the communion of the Church in this world, and afterwards into heavenly glory.

V. 16. Thy children] as if hee said, O Christ, in stead of the Iewish nation out of which thou shalt come according to the slesh; the whole Christian Church shall bee thy people, which is made so by thy word and spirit, Heb. 2. 13.

[princes] by some degree and measure of particitation of Christs spirituall and everlasting Kingdome, and glory, Mat. 19. 28. Luke 22. 29. 1 Cor. 6. 3. Ephes. 2. 6.

PSAL. XLVI.

THE title: [Alamothe] see 1 Chron. 15. 20. and upon Psal. 6. in the title.

V. 4. A river] the Church shall enjoy her sweet rest, and security, though it have in it selfe but weak meanes, meant by those sma [...] streames and torrents where with Ierusalem was watered; opposite to great rivers and seas that is to say, the power and greatnesse of the world, see

Isa. 8. 6.

V. 5. Right early] the Italian, when the morning appeareth, that is to say, just in the point and very moment of the greatest danger, even as when after the dangers of the night, with the day the assault is expected, as God hath done in diverse a [...] ctions of his people, Exod. 14. 24. 27. 2 Chron. 20. 20. Psa. 30. 5.

V. 6. The heathen] this may bee understood of some singular deliverance, as that of 2 Chron. 14. 12. and 20. 23 and 32. 2 [...]. or of such ordinary ones as God sendeth to his Church: [hee uttered] a figurative description of Gods miraculous assistance without any humane meanes, as Psa. 18. 6. 7.

V. 8. Hee hath made] or hee hath sent desolations upon the earth, that is to say, hee hath destroyed the Kingdomes of the world which were his enemies.

V. 10. Be still] Gods words to his enemies, to exhort them to repentance, or to denounce perdition to them, if they continue.

PSAL. XLVII.

VER. 2 FOr the Lord] that is to say, the everlasting sonne of God, being gone up to heaven, hath ta [...] en possession of the universall Kingdome; which God his father hath given him.

V. 3. Hee shall subdue] this must bee understood of the spirituall subjection of the whole world to Christs Kingdome, in whom the Church hath part as being his body, see Isa. 49. 23.

V. 4. Hee shall] the Italian, hee hath, that is to say, hee hath by his free election given us an excellent inheritance, chosen out above all other, wherein consists all our glory; namely the Kingdome of heaven.

V. 5. Is gone up] this may figuratively be understood of the arke of the covenant, in which God did shew himselfe present, which was by David transported with great pompe and solemnity into his city, 2 Sam. 6. [...]2. or by Solomon into the Temple 1 Kings 8. 6. But spiritually and chiefly it ought to be referred to Christs ascension into heaven, as Psa. 68. 24. 25.

V. 8. The throne] namely the arke figuratively, 1 Chron. 28. 18. Psa 80. 1. and 99. 1. and heaven in truth and mystically, Heb. 8. 1. and 12. 2.

V. 9. The people namely of two they have been made one only people, a prophecy of the calling of the Gentiles: [unto God] hee is the only protect [...], and governor of the universe; and therefore it is fitting and just that all men should acknowledge him and serve him.

CHAP. XLVIII.

THE title: [Of Psalme] see upon the title of Psal. 30.

V. 2. Beautiful for scituation] not so much for temporall blessings, for which shee was called the Queen of the East, as for the spirituall ones, God being present there, and his service truly established there, and the promise being, that the Messias should there accomplish the worke of our redemption: [of the great King] which God had chosen for his Royall residence, where all his people are to come, to receive his commands, and to yeelde him homage and service.

V. 4. The Kings] he speaks of some notable en- [Page] terprise which was against the Church, as Psal 46. 6

V. 7. Thou breakest] the Italian, they were broken as the East wind, breaketh the Ships of Tarshish, thou dost overthrow all the preparations of men in the Sea of this world: [Of Tarshish] of the great Sea, either M [...]d [...]teranean of Ocean: [With an East winde] which is a tempestuous winde in those countreys, Ier. 18. 17.

V. 8. As we have heard] that is to say, this deliverance of ours, is equall to those ancient deliverances whereof we have heard report: Or we have so and the effects to be according to thy words and promise.

V. 10. According to thy] thou makest thy selfe to be known such, as indeed thou art; and like unto such a one art thou praised and glorified.

V. 11. The daughters] the cities of the Tribe of Iudah, called daughters in respect of Ierusalem which was the Met [...]opolis.

V. 12. Walk about] a poetical representation, by which the world is invited to consider the inpregnable strength and magnificence of the Church, by reason of the presence of her God; even as singularities of the Fort or Castle of a City are shewed to Travellers, to the end, that they may spread the fame thereof into forraign parts a great way off.

PSAL. XLIX.

VER. 3. OF wisdom] Hebrew, wisedomes, namely, concerning the true knowledge and apprehension of the end of man, that hee may lead his life accordingly.

V. 4. I will encline] a terme taken from Musicians who leane to their eare, when they are tuning their instruments, meaning that he will instruct himselfe as well or better then any other can.

V. 5. The iniquity] that is to say, the congregation of the wicked, or the calamities which God useth to inflict upon his children for the punishing of sinne.

V. 8. Precious] the Italian, cannot be found, or it is deare or rare to be gotten.

V. 11. They call] seeing themselves to be mortall, they think for to immortalize themselves by meanes of their lands and Lordships, which they call by their owne names.

V. 12. The beasts] as much as concerneth the body and this present life, Eccles. 3. 19.

V. 13. Their sayings] Hebrew, their mouth, the meaning is that although the sonnes of worldly men see the vanity of their fathers confidence, yet they will follow their example. Others translate it, they doe approve of it with their mouths, that is say, doe with words prayse that kinde of life, and doe follow it with their deeds.

V. 14. Feed on them] the Italian, shall pasture them, a poetically kinde of speech, that is to say, being laid in the e [...]rth, like unto a great flock of sheep they shall be under the command of death: Other, shall seed on them, that is to say, shall consume them: [...] Shall have dominion] the elect who are partakers of Christs eternall Kingdome in the blessed resu rection which is called the great day-break, Cant. 2. 17. and 7. 12. 2 Pet. 1. 19. shall obtaine a full victory, and have quiet dominion over the world and the worldly: [Beautie] or strength.

V. 15. Will redeeme] shall raise my body to life and glory, because I dyed in his grace, and my soule shall be carried up to heaven: Or according to others, because he hath adopted me, and received me into the number of his elect.

V. 18. He blessed] hee hath been contented, and flattered himselfe with a vaine opinion of happinesse.

V. 19. He shall goe] the Italian, it shall goe, namely, the soule of the worldly man: [See light] namely the light of life and glory everlasting.

V. 20. Understandeth not] namely, true spirituall wisdome to apprehend the scope of everlasting happinesse, and direct his life towards it: [The beasts] not as concerning the lastingnesse and subsistencie of the soule which is eternall, but in the privation of happinesse which is the true end of man.

PSAL. L.

The title, [Of Asaph] a famous Musitian in  Davids  dayes, 1  Chron.  25. 2. who was also a Prophet and composer of Psalmes, 2  Chron.  29 30. whereupon it is not certaine whether the Psalmes which are entituled by his name were composed by him, or whether they were onely directed to him and his successors, to bee plaid and sung in their turnes.

V. 1. The mightie God] the Italian, the God of gods, the representation of a solemn act; namely, the Lord judging of his Church, drawn according to the modell of the great and last judgement, to which it serves as a preparation for instruction and correction: [The earth] that is to say, all the inhabitants thereof.

V. 2. The perfection of beautie] the Italian, the place of the perfection, or according to others, he appeared compleatly beautifull.

V. 4. To the heavens] to bee as assisting and witnesses,  Deut. 32. 1. Isa. 1. 2.  unlesse that by the heavens he meanes the Angells.

V. 5. Gather] this seemes to bee spoken to the Angells, who are ministers in this judgement, Matth. 13. 39. 41. and 24. 31. [Saints] namely, all the members of my Church and people, sanctified by my covenant and the seales thereof, by my calling and their profession; [Page] though many have denied the truth and vertue of it. [By sacrifice] that is to say ratified it by a solemn sacrifice and spilling of the bloud, set down, Exod. 24. 8. Others referre it more generally to all sacrifices which were seales of Gods covenant.

V. 6. Declare] Gods justice shall in this judgement of his bee manifested to all the world, as plainly as those things which from heaven are seen here upon the earth, Rom. 1. 18. [God is Iudge] a true i and Sovereign Iudge of all the world, and therefore [...]n him there can be no injustice, Iob 34. 13. Rom. 3. 6.

V. 7. Testifie against thee] the Italian, make my protestations to thee, namely, solempne declarations of what I require at thy hands, and what I doe enterchangeably promise to thee.

V. 8. I will not] in this judgement, I will not aske thee any account of the externall and ceremoniall service, which of it selfe is not agreeing with my nature, nor acceptable to mee, but onely being done as a duty of obedience, and joynd with the internall service of faith, invocation, holinesse thanksgiving, &c.

V. 11. I know] they are alwayes before me ready at my service.

V. 14. Thanksgiving] the Italian, prays, he comprehends all the spirituall service in these two parts of thanksgiving, and invocation; and in effect it consisteth all, in receaving of God in faith by meanes of prayer; that which he pleaseth to bestow upon us, and to give unto him againe what he therefore requires at our hands; that is to say, service and acknowledgement in words and deeds, which things are pointed out unto us by these termes of the Law, namely, of sacrifices of prayse, and of vowes, see Lev. 7. 12.

V. 18. Thou consentest with him, the Italian, thou delightest in his companie, or thou runnest along with him. [Hast beene partaker with] the Italian, thy portion is with, thou art their companion. A terme taken from commerce, or from banquets made after the ancient manner, to which divers did contribute, and had their shares therein.

V. 20. Thou sittest] even at thine own ease, as if it were a pastime and recreation to thee.

V. 21. And I kept silence] I have not taken notice of thine offences, nor have not punished them suddenly, Ecce/s. 8. 11. 12. Isa. 26. 10.

V. 22. Teare you] that is to say, destroy you by executing of my judgements: God in his rigor being compared to a Lyon.

V. 23. That ordereth] according to my will which is here setdown.

PSAL. LI.

VER. 1. Blot out] sinne hath in it the staine of spirituall pollution, and makes one liable to punishment, God blots it out, when notwithstanding the said staine he looks graciously upon the soule by vertue of his sonnes justice and satisfaction, which presents it selfe between the sinner and him; and together with that, cancels the debt of the offence in his judgement, and so gives peace to the conscience.

V. 2. Wash mee] a frequent terme to signifie the lively application and imputing of Christs bloud to the sinfull soule, whereby it is put into such an estate, that God doth not abhorre it as foule and impure; but accepts of it as beautifull and and cleane, see Heb. 9. 14. 1 Iohn 1. 7.

V. 3. I acknowledge] I doe judge rightly of it, without dallying or lulling my selfe asleep: I am ashamed thereof, and am in anguish therefore, and doe confesse the fault: [And my sinne] my conscience doth alwayes set it before me as it is, horrible and abominable.

V. 4. Against thee] David had sinned against men also, as well through private injury as by publike scandall, but for to aggravate his offence, and to seek pardon and remedy, there where onely it is to be had, he makes himself guilty towards God alone, the offence towards man being nothing in regard of the offence towards him, whose Majesty is offended, and Law violated in every sin. And also to shew that no excuse, pardon, acceptation of persons, or want of power on mens side, could free him from Gods judgement, though as he was King, he was exempted from the punishment of men, see Gen. 20. 6. & 39. 9. Lev. 5. 19. & 6. 2. [That thou] I doe thus confesse it, because that all glory may bee given to thee, for all the judgements, and punishments, which thou shalt lay and inflict upon me.

V. 5. I was shapen] I do not only confesse my sin in this action, but in generall also by reason of the corruption of my nature through originall sinne, which hath passed into me in my begetting: As if he should say, I have not only sinned, but am also wicked of nature, see Iob 14. 4. Iohn 3. 6. Rom. 5. 12. Ephes. 2. 3. [Conceive] the Hebrew, warme me, a tetme taken from birds that hatch their egges.

V. 6. Thou desirest] the Italian, it hath pleased thee to teach me, that is to say, to regenerate me with thy Spirit, creating a new spirituall light in mine understanding and wisdom in mine heart, see Isa. 54. 13. Ier. 31. 34. Ioh. 6. 45. Rom. 12. 2. Ephes. 4. 23. Others translate it, thou delightest in truth in the inward parts, and hast taught mee wisdom inwardly: that is to say, thou hast made mee by thy Spirit such as thou requirest man to bee in sincerity and uprightnesse; but alas, I have not employed this talent in resisting of temptation, but have spoiled this good work of grace, even as that of nature was already corrupted in mee. Yet those small reliques which remaine in me, doe yet revive some hope of pardon, [Page] and restorment in me. [In the hidden] the Italian, in the inward, Hebrew, in the secret, see Rom. 2. 29. 1 Pet. 3. 4.

V. 7. With hysop] working in me that effect, which is figured by hysop in ceremoniall purifications, Lev. 14. 4. 49. 51. 52. Num. 19. 18. Heb. 9. 19. which is that God doth not onely cleanse the filthinesse of sinne, but doth also cure the malady, doth onely take away the stink of it, but conferreth also upon man the sweet savour of his sonnes justice, by in puting it unto him.

V. 8. Make me] as thou hast humbled and bruised me by Nathans message; so let me either by thy Spirit inwardly, or by some minister outwardly, receave the sweet ambassage of peace, and reconciliation, to comfort me after so much terror, see Job 33. 24.

V. 10. Right spirit] or a constant spirit and well settled in a resolution to serve and obey thee, or to doe well.

V. 12. Thy free Spirit] the Italian, thy voluntary Spirit, or free, that is to say, the Spirit of grace, which is the author of true spirituall liberty in the faithfull, Rom. 8. 2. And freeth them from sin and death, and causeth them to serve him willingly: Others translate it, the principall or reall spirit, which is ruler and governour of the soule, and all the thoughts and motions of it, as the soule is of the body, see Iob 30. 15.

V. 14. From blood guiltinesse] namely, from Vriahs murther, or generally the capitall punishment which I have deserved: [Thy righteousness] not that of the law which condemneth irre-missibly: but that of the Gospel, which observes the promises of grace, and according to them doth grant pardon, Rom. 3. 26.

V. 15. Open thou] that is to say, give me cause, and together with that, a will and holy motion to give thee thanks for thy forgiveness.

V. 16. For thou] the meaning is, the corporall sacrifices are not of any value, in respect of the Elects true spirituall sacrifices; yea the first, without these are abominable: Now there are two sorts of these spirituall sacrifices, the one for to obtaine grace, such as your acts of repentance and contrition were; the other after that wee have obtained it; such as the sacrifices of thanksgiving were. I doe now present the first unto thee, give mee occasion hereafter to yeeld thee the second, see Psal. 50. 14. 23.

V. 17. Broken Spirit] that is to say, extreamly afflicted and humbled with griefe for sinne, yet without dispaire, but offering up such a heart unto God, by a faithfull calling upon him in his sonnes name, see Isa. 57. 15. & 61. 1. & 66. 2.

18. Build] maintaine, strengthen, and defend thy Church. It seemes that he hath a regard to that; that Princes sinnes doe take away Gods safe-guard from the people, Exod. 32. 25. and they oft-times are punished for them, 2 Sam. 24. 17.

V. 19. Then] namely, when thou hast purged my sinne, by which the whole body of the people is defiled through me who am their head: thou shalt look upon us in favour to accept of our service: [Of righteousness] done rightly according to thine appointment, Psalm 4. 5. [Burnt offerings] see Levit. 6. 22. 23.

PSAL. LII.

VER. 1. Why boastest thou] why dost thou triumph in thy wickednesse and cruelty, which thou findest to be favoured and recompenced by Saul: [O mighty man] see 1 Sam. 21. 7. [the goodnesse] Gods grace towards his elect, is not changed or annihilated through thy persecutions and cruelties, but it will arise against thee in their behalfe.

V. 5. Of the living] see Psal. 27. 13.

V. 6. And feare] namely, they shall reverence God for his judgements.

V. 9. On thy name] that is to say, on thy selfe, revealed as by a proper name to thy Church; or upon thy grace and savour: [Before thy Saints] the Italian, and it is good, &c. that is to say, thy Saints doe alwayes look after it by faith, and calling upon it, and it is also continually nigh unto them, in all their necessities, and whensoever they pray or call upon it. Psal. 16. 8.

PSAL. LIII.

THE title, [Mahalah] it is thought to bee the name of a musically instrument, see the same subject as that of this Psalme, Psal. 14.

V. 5. Where no feare] the Italian, where no cause of feare, without any apparant cause of feare by panick terrours, sent by the Lord, and by a certaine secret remorse and trouble of conscience, see Lev. 26. 17. 36. or when they shall be in carnall peace and security, 1 Thes. 5. 3. [Put them to shame] for God condemneth their present enterprises, and reproveth their persons, hee hath given thee power to overcome and beat them back shamefully.

PSAL. LIV.

THE title, [Neginoth] see Psalm 4. in the Title.

V. 1. By thy name] that is to say, by thy selfe, shewing by thy power that thou art indeed such as thou art termed to be.

V. 3. Strangers] he calleth Saul, and his followers so, and the Ziphims, because they proceeded aga [...]nst him, like barbarous people without any humanity, see Psal. [Page] 144 7. [My soule] that is to say, they seek to take away my life.

V. 4. With them] namely, as their head and conductor, whose power supplyeth their little number, and their weaknesse.

V. 5. In thy truth] pronouncing a just judgement against them or according to thy truth, that is to say, thy true promises made to thine elect.

V. 7. Delivered me] I assure my selfe by saith that he will doe it, therefore I hold it as done. Others, when he hath delivered me.

PSAL. LV.

VER. 2. MAke a noise] wi [...]h laments, fervent prayer and groanes.

V. 3, Of the vo ce] the Italian, of the cry, it seemes that he would describe the warre like cries which they make at onsets: [They cast] a terme taken from sieges, where they use to roule down, dart, and throw down anything as they can upon the besiedgers, for to endammage them.

V. 8. Windy storme] namely, the fury and violence of mine enemies.

V. 9. Divide their] dis-unite them and dissipate their counsels; hee seemeth to have a relation to the confusion of languages at the tower of Babel, Gen. 11. 7. see Iudg. 9. 23. Hos. 10. 2. [In the City] it is very like that hee describes the estate of the City of Ierusalem, from the beginning to the ending of Absoloms conspiracy, to which time this Psalme hath a relation, 2 Sam 15. every thing being then in confusion and out of order, without any justice or policie, as it doth happen oft-times in popular commotions.

V. 13. It was thou a man] the Italian, it was thou whom I thought to be a man, in as good estimation as my selfe: [My guide] mine ordinary counsell whose advice I followed, as a sure guide in all mine affaires and actions, he seemes to point at and have a reference to Achitophels sure advices, 2 Sam. 15. 12. & 16. 23.

V. 15. Ceaze upon] as a creditor going to recover his debt forcibly: [Let them goe down] punish them as Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, were punished who were old conspirators as these are now, Numb. 16. 32.

V. 17. Evening] he points out the three ordinary times of daily prayer, observed by Gods people in private houses, Dan. 6. 10. Acts 3. 1. and 10. 3. 9. 10. [And cry aloud] the Italian, make a noise, namely, praying with great commotion of the heart, fervour and elevation of voice.

V. 18. There were many with me] the Italian, they are against me in great number: Others, with mee, meaning the Angels, Guardians of the faithfull, 2 Kings 6. 16.

V. 19. Have no changes] by repentance and conversion.

V. 22. Thy burthen] thy cares, trave's, and businesses which trouble thee.

V. 23. The pit] namely, present and everlasting death.

PSAL. LVI.

THE title, [Ionath] these three Hebrew words doe signifie the dumb dove, which is in distant and remote places: Others imagine it was the beginning of a Song; to whose aire this Psalme was to be sung: Others, believe that David calleth himselfe so, being like a poore dove driven out of its own countrey, which durst not speak, and was faine to counterfeit for feare of the Philistins, 1 Sam. 21. 13. [Michtham] see Psal. 16. in the title.

V. 1. Swallow me up] the Italian, men with open throats follow mee] they hunt after mee, and doe what, they can to destroy mee; a terme taken from ravenous beasts.

V. 2. O thou most high] the Italian, from on high, that is to say, they take advantage of their degree and might, for to over-top me: A terme taken from the advantage which high places have to command the lower ones: Others, translate it, O thvu most high.

V. 4. In God] I am confident that with Gods help, I shall have occasion to magnifie the truth of his holy promises, in which I have beleevved: [What flesh can die] that is to say, mortall man; for man is often so called from that his fraile and fading part in contempt of his pride, and for to abate it and beat it down.

V. 5. They wrest] they give me perpetuall cause of grieffe and complaint.

V. 7. Shall they escape by iniquity] the Italian, it were in vaine for to deliver them, that is to say, destroy them O Lord, for they are hardened, and incurable; thy patience will never draw them to repentance, see *Isa. 26. [...]*0. Others rranslate it, their safety is in iniquity, that is to say they put all their confidence in their deceits, as though they could free them from all dangers.

V. 8. Put thou] doe not suffer mee to spend so many teares in vaine, keep them in minde, that thou mayest bee moved through the abundance of them to restore me.

V. 12. Thy vowes are upon me] that is to say, I have vowed my selfe unto thee, and laying hold on thy deliverance with a lively faith, I doe finde my selfe obliged to performe my promise, see Prov. 7. 14.

PSAL. LVII.

[Page]

THE title, [Altaschith] these words signifie, doe not destroy: And the meaning thereof in these titles of Psalmes is unknown. Some beleeeve that it was the beginning of some ordinary Song, to whose tune these Psalmes were sung. Others think that it was a title of prayers made in great danger of death.

V. 3. He shall send] he shall work my deliverance in a manner which shall be altogether miraculous and heavenly, making the effects of his mercy, and the truth of his promises to appeare.

V. 4. Are set on fire] the Italian, inc [...] indiaries, slaundersers, court flatterers, which doe incense Saul ag inst me, see 1 Sam. 24 10.

V. 5. Be thou ex [...] bed] that is to say, make known thy soverague and glorious power in my deliverance.

V. 6. Is bowed down] the Italian, they drew down, or my soule began to decl [...]ne.

V. 7. Is fixed] or re-confirmed and re assured therefore I will sing.

V. 8. My glory] that is to say, my tongue, of my soule, as Gen 49. 6. Psal. 16. 9.

PSAL. LVIII.

VER. 1. DOe yee indeed] according to some the Hebrew word, signifieth congregation in this sence. O congregation doe y u speak uprightly, and yee sonnes of men doe yee judge, &c. [sunnes of] he directs his words to Sau's Councailors and Courtiers.

V. 2. You weigh] that is to say, you frame and devise: Or, you maturely deliberate meanes and wayes to execute it: Or, you make shew of using some kind of justice, in oppressing me, Psal 94 21. Isa. 10. 1. Or, you leuell and make plaine all things that lie in your way, and remove all hinderances.

V. 3. Estranged] from God, and from his obedience and love, as if they were not Gods people, see Isa. 48. 8. Ephes 2. 12. [From the] even from their first beeing, by reason of their corrupt nature, Ephes. 2. 3.

V. 4. The dease Adder] the Italian, Aspe, they say, the Aspe when he seeth the Charmer, layeth one of his eares close upon the ground, and covereth the other with his taile, because he will not here the Charmes, so David would say, that his enemies were hardened in evill, and could not admit of any word of sweet correction, to dead their malice, not any way approving of any magick spels which were condemned, Deut. 18. 10. 11.

V. 7 Let them be] the Italian addeth [in an instant] Or let them be as if they were cut in sunder: Or let them shoot their arrowes, but let them be as if they were cut off.

V. 9. Before] that is to say, O you wicked men, which even from your birth are as hurtfull as thornes, the Lord destroy you betimes before your malice encrease and gather strength, like a young thorne which in time groweth to bee a great and strong bush.

V. 10. Wash] a phrase taken from victorious Warriars as, Psal 68. 24. as much as to say, he shall peaceably enjoy his victory over his enemies.

V. 11. Reward for] the Italian, fruit of, that is to say, a reward from God.

PSAL. LIX.

VER. 3. NO: for my trangression] namely, against them, whereby they should have cause to persecute me.

V. 6. They return] the Italian, they goe and come, a description of the care, and diligence Sauls Officers used to surprise David.

V. 7. With their mouth] the Italian, belch out words, insulting as though they had already taken me; or outragious and flanderous words; or furious and threatning words.

V. 9. Because of his strength] the Italian, I will beware of their strength; Others, As for their strength I will look upon thee, that is to say, I will hope in thy help to free me from it.

V. 11. Scatter them] it should seeme he hath a relation to Caines punishment, whom God would not have kild, but would have him to bee a wanderer all the dayes of his life for a spectacle, and an example of Gods, judgements, Gen. 4. 12. Otherstranslate it, Shake them, namely, their degree of honour and dignitie.

V. 12. For the sinne] others, the words of their lips, are the sinne of their mouth, meaning that all they doe say or utter, is bad and wicked: [Be taken] let them bee suddenly punished and overthrown, for their impudent presumption, in cursing and slandering me.

V 15. Let them wander] now they wander up and down to catch me, but the time shall come that they shall wander through hunger and want, to seek food and reliefe.

V. 16. In the morning] it should seeme this hath a relation to the watching of Sauls servants for him, who thought to catch him, and kill him in the morning, 1 Sam. 19. 11. meaning, at that time when these people imagine to have me in their hands, I shall bee in safety, and shall have cause to praise and blesse thee for my deliverance.

PSAL. LX.

[Page]

THE title, Shushan Edith] the words signifie, the Lillie of ornament, and it is not certainly known whether it were the name of some musically instrument or the beginning of some ordinary song, Psal 80. in the Title: [To teach] that is to say, given to the Colledge of sacred Musicians for a forme of a song of victory, to have their Schollars learne it, and peradventure all the people; to honour Dauids triumphant returne in stead of ordinary songs which were used upon such occasions, see 1 Sam. 18. 6. Psal. 68. 12. 26. [twelve thousand] in Samuel and the Chronicles, there is mention made of eighteen thousand, peradventure these twelve thousand were kild in a pitch battell, and the other six thousand in some other skirmishes.

V. 1. Cast us off] this must bee understood of the grieveous calamities which the people suffered under the Iudges, and under Sauls raign.

V. 2. To tremble] thou hast shaken the land of Israel, and caused them to suffer many adversities.

V. 3. Made us to drink] thou hast amazed and astonished us with afflictions, like unto a man that had drank some drink to astonish, and make him beside himselfe, according to the threatning in Deut. 28. 28. 34.

V. 4. Displayed] in signe of victory: [Because of] not for any desert of ours, but only to ratifie the truth of thy promises of grace.

V. 6. Hath spoken] that is to say, he hath sworn by himselfe, who is the most holy one: Others, hee hath spoken in his sanctury; that is to say, in heaven, or in the Temple where he uttered his Oracles: [I will rejoyce] that is to say, I shall enjoy my victory peaccably, possessing the Kingdome of Israel, even over those parts which did longest and most obstinately follow Sauls side, as those places had done which are here named.

V. 7. The strength] namely that Tribe, in which, by reason of the great number and valour of them, consisteth the chiefe strength of my Kingdome, see Deut 3 [...]. 17. Psal. 78. 9. [My Law-giver] that is to say, Jerusalem the chiefe citie of Judah and of all Israel; the great councill of the seventy Iudges, Num. 11. 16. and my soveragne court of Iustice, Psal. [...]. 22. 5.

V. 8. My wash-pot] that is a people brought into a most abject slavery, as your scullions and dishwashers in Kitchins, Psal. 68. 13. or a countrey grown in famous and of a [...]o [...]did condition, as your water-carriers are; unlesse hee meanes the great slaughters which David made in those places, having flaine two parts of the Moabites; whereupon the countrey became as a great panne or boule full of blood, 2 Sam. 8. 2 [will I cast out] in contem [...], and to despise them: [Triumph thou] that is to lay, acknowledge me to be thy King with joyfull acclamations, as who should say, with a long live the King; honour thou my triumph now that thou art subdued, 2 Sam. 8. 1. 12.

V. 9. Who will bring me] who will put the enemies strong holds into my possession, after that I have overcome them in battell? May bee he meanes Rabba [...] particularly, the chiefe city of the Ammonites, which David besieged after all these victories, 2 S [...]m. 11. 1.

V. 11. From trouble] or to bee freed from our enemies.

V. 12. Through God] with his help and assistance, and through his power, Psal. 56. 4. 10.

PSAL. LXI.

THE title, [Neginah] see Psalm 4. in the Title

V. 2. From the end] it seemes that David made this Psalm at that time as he fled from before Absolom to the confines of the Land of Israel, 2 Sam. 17. 22. Others say, it was when hee fled from Saul, as Psal. 42. 6. [ [...]ead me] it doth represent a man climbing to get up into a place of safety, but wanting strength to get to it; the meaning is, doe thou save me, for of my selfe I ca [...]n [...]t doe it by any meanes.

V. 3. For thou hast been] this verse may be joyned to the former in this manner, I pray thee relieve mee, as thou usest to doe; or with the following verse 3 upon the assurance of thine ordinary deliverances, I hope to be brought back againe to thy Temple, there to remaine for ever.

V. 4. In the Covert] a phrase taken from birds, as Psal. 91. 4.

V. 5. The heritage] namely, these present and eternall goods, which properly belong to thy children, wherein the world hath no part at all.

V. 6. Prolong] the Italian, adde, or thou wilt adde, that is to say, cause thou me to live, and reign under the protection of thy grace and constant love, all that time as thou hast appointed mee without any interruption, and let the Kingdome of thy Church become everlasting under the Messias, who is to descend from me.

PSAL. LXII.

THE title, [to Jeduth [...]n] the Italian, over the children of I [...]duthun, that is to say, over that company, or squadron of sacred Musi [...]ions, which was of the progenie of Ieduthun, 1 Chron. 25. 1. 3.

V. 1. My soul] or, let it bee how it will, my soule hopeth in, &c.

V. 3. How long] David speaks to his enemies and [Page] persecutors: [Will yee imagine mischief] the Italian, how long will yee set upon a man, or will yee contrive and imagine mischief: [a tottering] that is ready to fall, being shaken, or through age: [Fence] that is dry, and hath no mortar to strengthen it, such as your walls that are made about lands or fields.

V. 4. To cast him] the Italian, to cast this man, namely me, against whom they lay all these plots: [From his excellencie] the Italian, from his heighth, that is to say, from that degree of honour which I now am in, in Sauls Court, and from the Kingdome which I expect according to Gods promise.

V 8. Ye people] namely of Israel, [power [...]t] lay open before him, with lamentations and prayer [...], all your griefes, cares, and desires, with an open heart, and disburthen your selves thereof upon him, 1 Sam. 1. 15.

V. 11. God] hee hath oftentimes revealed by his word, and deeply imprinted in my soule, that he is the Almighty, because that man might trust in him; most loving and kinde to reward with his grace, those which serve him; And most just to punish the wicked. Which are the three heads of this Psalme.

PSAL. LXIII.

VER. 1. Will I seek thee] as I am, now in desert and drie places, flying before mine enemies, much afflicted in body; so my soule being farre from the presence of the Church, thi [...]steth after grace and comfort.

V. 2. Thy power and] that is to say, the eye of my soule and body is alwayes fixed towards the most holy place, where the Arke of the covenant is, which is called the strength and glory of the Lord, 1 Sam. 4. 21. 1 Chron. 16. 11. Psal. 78. 61. because that God did shew himself to be present there, in power and venerable majesty: [So as I have] the delight which I took here [...]ofore in thy favour, when I was in thy Temple, is that which now doth revive my desires, and causeth this sorrow in me.

V. 4. Lift up] to call upon thy holy name, according to thy command, trusting in thy promise.

V. 8. Followeth, the Italian, cleaveth, it cleaveth inseparably unto thee, depends all upon thee by faith and perseverance.

V. 9. Shall goe into] shall bee abissed into hell, into eternall perdition.

V. 10. They shall fall] that is to say, they shall be staine, and withall shall beleft unburied, for a prey to wilde beasts.

V. 11. But the King] namely, I David, appointed and chosen by God to be King over his people: [Sweareth] that is to say, acknowledgeth him alone for his true God, which is most authentically done when hee sweareth by him, see Deut. 6. 13. Isa. 19. 18. and 45. 23. and 65. 16. Zeph. 1. 5. [Of them] namely, of flatterers and slanderers, such as Sauls Courtiers were, who were  Davids chiefe enemies, shall be confounded and amazed, when they shall see me established King.

PSAL. LXIV.

VER. 1. MY prayer] or complaint.

V. 2. From the secret councell] namely, from their private plots: [Insurrection] or a tumult, that [...]is to say, a violent commotion, or surie of the people.

V. 3. Who whet] by slanders and false accusations against others, and by frauds and dissimulations against David himselfe: [Bitter words] that is to say, poysoned words; a terme taken from those Archers which poyson their Arrowes.

V. 4. In secret] the Italian, in hidden places, where they lie in wait, and thereby are meant their dissimulations and deceits; such as a hunter useth when he lyeth hid in a bush. Isa. 28. 15. or with which the just man meets, and wherein he is detained, namely his innocencie, simplicity, and perceavance which are his onely refuge, and in things belonging to a humane life, are as it were his passages. [Feare not] neither God nor men; or they do it without any danger, and secure from him whom they set upon so unawares.

V. 5. They encourage themselves] or they strengthen themselves in thoughts, that is to say, they doe confirme them with so much fore-cast, and with such cautions, that they seeme infallible.

V. 6. Deep] that is to say, most crafty and cunning.

V. 7. Shoot at them] the Italian, shall shoot them, or shall upon a sudden showre his arrowes upon them and wound them.

V. 8. Their own tongue] [...]amely, their owne wicked counsellis which they have taken and agreed upon with their tongues, shall even fall upon their own necks, Psal. 34. 21. and 94. 23. [Shall flee away] or shall bee moved namely with feare.

V. 10. Shall glory] in God for his judgements, which he hath executed for their deliverances.

PSAL. LXV.

THE title, [and song] see Psal. 30. in the Title.

V. 1. Prayse] thy Church prepares it selfe to give thee devout thanks, when as thy wrath being appeased, thou shalt relieve it in its greatest need. It seemes this Psalme was made after the three years of famine, then when God by sending of raine, gave hopes of a plentiful harvest, 2 Sam. 21. 10. 14. [Page]

V. 2. All flesh] every one of thy people shall come to thy Temple in Jerusalem to give thee thanks.

V. 3. *Iniqi [...]*ties] we were overcome with evils and calamities which wee had drawn upon our selves by reason of our sinnes.

V. 4. And causest] whom thou hast called to the participation of thy covenant to bee a living member of thy Church, Psal. 15. 1. and 14. 3. [Wee shall] wee shall bee filled with those graces which thou bestowest upon thine, in thy Church, termes which are taken from the holy meats of the sacrifices, wherewith the sacred Officers of the Temple were largely fed.

V. 5. Terrible things] that is to say, miraculously: [In righteousnesse] that is to say, in goodnesse and equity towards thy children, and in loyalty in all thy promises: [Confidence] thou art hee which preservest and maintainest the world; and upon whom by a secret motion of nature it depends, and from whom it hath all goodnesse and subsistence: Some think that there is here some allusion to the calling of the Gentiles, whose hope of salvation depended wholly upon his grace.

V. 8. Thou makest] that is to say, by thine universall kindnesses, thou givest all the world occasion of rejoycing, even from the East unto the West.

V. 9. Thou visitest] th [...]u [...]hast care of it, and providest for all the necessities of it: [And waterest] and after that thou hast made it thirsty, thou dost enrich it with the treasures of raine. [With the river] termes taken from the watering of gardens, by little channels and cond [...]its; the meaning is that God worketh those effects in the land of Israel, with ra [...]ne only which men doe in time of drought, with many such artificiall waterings, see Deut. 11. 10.

V. 11. Thy pathes] the Italian, thy tracks, meaning such tracks as a Cart or Waggon makes as it goes, for the Scripture calleth the clouds Gods Charior: and as a Chariot wheele leaves an impression, so doe the Clouds poure cu [...] their raine as they goe; Or plainely, wheresoever thou passest, thou bringest a blessing and plenty with thee▪ Psal. 85. 12.

V. 13. They shout] hee doth poetically attribute that to dumb and inanimate creatures, which they do but give man occasion to do to whom it is peculiar to prayse God with heart and mouth.

PSAL. LXVI.

VER. 3. How terrible] or how terrible a [...] thy works: [submit, themselves] the Italian, faine with thee, they do by constraint seeme to acknowledge and worship thee, see Deut. 35. 29. Psalm. 18. 44. and 78. 36. and 8 [...]. 15.

V. 5. Towards the children] the Italian, above the, that is to say, above any power or resistance of thei [...]s, or working upon them.

V. 6. There did we] that is to say, our nation had great occasion to rejoyce exceedingly in those notable miracles, whereof the first was the ending of the Egyptian bondage, and the second the comming into the land of Promise.

V. 11. Thou broughtest] a description of the peoples calamities, taken from wilde beasts brought into nets and from beasts to draw and carry, and from slaves bound about the body with chaines.

V. 12. Through fire] namely, thorow extreame dangers and afflictions, see Isa. 43. 2. [A wealthy place] the Italian, a place of refreshment, or a prosperous and abundant place.

V. 15. The incense] namely, that part of sacrifices of thanksgiving which was to be burned, and consequently to vanish away into smok, Lev. 3. 3. 9. 14.

V. 17. He was] the meaning seemeth to be, that praying to him aloud, I was therewithall assured that I should be heard; whereupon I did conceive, and silently frame within my selfe the pr [...]aise which I would therefore yeeld unto him in due time.

PSAL. LXVII.

VER. 2. That thy way] namely, the marvellous order and meanes which thou observest in governing of thy Church, as well in regard of thy word and lawes, as of thy works and miracles; and generally in every thing wherein and wherefore thou dost manifest thy selfe.

V. 4. Shalt judge] shalt governe them by a righteous way of justice; this trust bee referred to the Messias his Kingdom, and to the calling of the Gentiles under him, Psal. 72. 4. Isa. 2 4.

V. 6. Yeild] that is to say, all the world shall bee filled with divine blessings, and especially with spirituall ones.

PSAL. LXVIII.

VER. 2. ARise] these are the same words as Moses used in the wilderness, when the Arke did remove, Num. 10. 35. For this Psalme was composed by David when hee removed the Ark to Sion, 2 Sam. 6. 11. [before him] or by reason of his presence.

V. 4. Extoll him] the Italian, raise up his wayes, termes taken from what is used to be done, at the triumphall comming in of Kings, whom they use to meet, and [Page] ridde, and mend the wayes by which they are to come; so here is meant the preparation for the bringing of the Arke:

but especially the spirituall preparations for Christs comming into the world, which is a right wilderness, void of all goodnesse, justice and life; which preparations were made by his Prophets, and especially by Iohn the Baptist,
Isa. 40. 3. Mal. 3. 1. Mat. 3. 3.

V. 5. A judge] that is to say, a protector of their right against all manner of oppression: [habitation] namely in heaven in his glory, and in his Temple in the signes of his presence and power.

V. 6. Which setteth] that is to say, gives them a peaceable and permanent dwelling where they may live in fellowship, in sweet and holy matrimony, blessed with issue: [the solitary] namely they that had no family nor company; Or living in solitary places: as it oftentimes happeneth in the great desolations of warres, wherein man is forced to live without marrying, and wander without any familie, *Psa. 78.
63. Ier. 7. 34* [the rebellious] that is to say, cont [...]ariewise his obstinate enemies, being subdued, are driven out of their countries, and ancient dwellings, into desert places, where they settle their abode, Psa. 107, 40.

V. 8. The earth] a poetically description of Gods glorious apparitions, when hee brought his people through the wilderness, and especially when the Law was published,
Exod. 19. 16. 18. [dropped] with toile, and sweating

V. 9. A plentifull [...]ain] thou makest the [...] and of Canaan, which thou hast taken for thine own, having consecrated it for the seat of thy Temple and Church, marvalous fruitfull, by raine, and abundant dewes, Deut. 11. 11.

V. 10. Thy congregation] the Italian, thy band, that is to say, thy people which is as the armie which thou art commander over, amongst whom, after the victory [...]ou dividest the conquered countrey: [prepared it] that is to say, assigned and reserved it for thy Church, by thy secret providence: it having before that time, no countrey of it own as other nations had, see Deut. 32. 6.

V. 11. The word] the Italian, cause to speake, that is to say, to celebrate his wonders and benefits, for the victories granted to his people upon the Kings of Canaan, under Ioshua, the Iudges and David: [those that published] hee hath a relation to this, that upon the first report of some notable victorie, the maidens did sing songs thereof in the streets, to the glory of God, and praise of the Captaine of the Ar [...]ie, Exod. 15. [...]0. Iudges 11. 34. 1 Sam. 18. 6.

V. 12. Did flee] some hold these to be the very words of the aforesaid songs: [and such] the spoile was so great which was found after the slaughter, that even women and maidens, who either through modesty, or tendernesse doe not use to goe much abroad, especially to follow armies, had also their share thereof, see 2 Sam. 1. 24. Or the enemies campe being discomfited, those which did most use to keep at home, came forth without fear, to pillage.

V. 13. Though ye have] this verse also may be of the subject of the said songs, the meaning of it is, After that ye, O people of God, shall for a long time have endured base slavery, and have been like s [...]ullion boyes, lying upon the ground, durty and smoakie: you shall bee againe restored to glory, and honour by Gods deliverances: [covered] that is to say, white, and bright like silver.

V. 14. When the] after all these victories obtained against the enemies of the Church, the land which before seemed horrid through warre and desolation, Psa. 74. 20. became beautifull and flourishing in justice, peace and blessings, even as the hill of Salmon, being shady and darke of it own nature, becommeth white when the snow is fallen upon it, see concerning this hill, Iudg. 9. 48.

V. 15. The hill of God] that is to say, all other hills though they be very high, and therefore called the Lords hills, Psa. 36. 6. and most fruitfull as the hill of Bashan, and though they exceed in largenesse, yet must they yeeld the first degree of honour to mount Sion, though it bee but a barren and low hillock, seeing God hath chosen it for the seat of his Temple, figure of his Church, yea of heaven it selfe. And hereby is meant, that the highest worldly Kingdome must humble it selfe under the Kingdome of Christ in his Church, though it bee lowly and poore in the sight of the world.

V. 16. VWhy leape yee] as triumphing, and making a shew of your naturall advantages over Sion. Or to insult over it, and compare and equalize your selves in honour with it; poetically kinde of speeches. Others translate it, why gaze you as though you were ravished with admiration?

V. 17. The chariots] the Italian, the horsemen, a description of the company which accompanied the Arke, when it was brought to mount Sion, followed by an infinite number of people marching in order, 2 Sam. 6. 15. Which was a figure of the Angels, environing Gods Majesty in heaven, or following Christ when hee ascended thither, 1 Tim. 3. 16. Heb. 12. 22. [Sinai] the same glory, as appeared in mount Sinai, when God delivered his law. Exod. 19. 16. is now transported to Sion, where God is present in grace and power.

V. 18. Thou hast] a description of this transportation of the Arke, compared to a Kings triumphant entry, who having overcome his enemies, and brought a great many of [Page] them away prisoners, having made the rest tributary, goeth home to his pallace to live in glory, and rest, governing his Kingdome in peace. A figure of Christs ascending into heaven, which is the seate of his glory, and throne of his Empire, after hee had overcome all his spirituall enemies, Ephes. 4. 8. Colos. 2. 15. [thou hast received] the Apostle, Ephes. 4. 8. applying this to Christ, in stead of thou hast received; saith, thou gavest; for the Kingdome of Christ differeth from earthly Kingdomes in this, that the fruites of his victories are not for the King, but for his subjects.

V. 20. The issues] namely the soveraigne power of causing to die, or the preserving from death, or the restoring to life.

V. 21. The head] namely the divell, who is the Prince of the world, Deut. 32. 42. Psal. 110. 6. [...]ab. 3. 13. [hairy] evill spirits are figuratively in scripture called hairy or shaggie, see upon Levit. 17. 7. Isa. 13. 21.

V. 22. I will bring] the Italian, I will bring thee againe, that is to say, I will continue, and renew my old deliverances in defending thee from thine enemies, as I once delivered thine ancestors from Og the King of Bashan, Num. 21. 33. and from the Egyptians in the red sea, Exod. 14. 22.

V. 24. Thy goings] namely the holy manner of conducting the Arke, with even and proportionable restings, and settings downe, see 2 Sam. 6. 13.

V. 27. There is] the Italian, there was, the tribe of Benjamin was present at this solemne meeting, though before, it had more obstinately than any of the other tribes withstood David, and held on Saals side. And also the tribes of Zebulon and Nepthali which lived in the borders of the Kingdome, mentioned here; to shew that the civill warre being extinguished, and all the countrey reduced to obedience; the whole nation was also united in religion and in the service of God, which was appointed by David to bee performed in Ierusalem: [little] namely that tribe which came from Iacobs youngest sonne, hath alwayes been small, both in strength and number, 1 Sam. 9. 21. and was also much decayed and diminished by the accident set down, Iudg. 20. [with their ruler] the Italian, which hath ruled, namely in the person of Saul. who was a Benjamite.

V. 28. Thy God] the prophets words to the people: [hath commanded] that is to say, hath made thee able to subsist, and resist thine enemies, by his will only, and by the efficacy of his word, see Psal. 42. 8. and 44. 4. and 71. 3.

V. 29. Because of thy Temple] the Italian, strengthen him from thy Temple, from which as from the place of thy presence, all power and grace deriveth unto thy people: [bring presents] may be made subject and tributary unto thee. This was partly and figuratively verified in David: but in Christ spiritually, and perfectly, all power being given him both in heaven and in earth.

V. 30. Disperse] or drive away: [the company of spearmen] the Italian, the beasts of the reeds, the people which are proud, and bold, by reason of their wealth and plenty: like unto cattell as feed in a fat soyle, such as that is where reeds grow, see Isa. 35. 7. [bulls] see Psa. 22. 12. Isa 3 [...]. 7. [till every &c with peeces of silver] the Italian, which lie upon plates of silver, are so extream rich, and so magnificent in their pleasures, that they make them [...]ee [...]ings, and beds of silver, a thing which was much used in former times, see Ester 1. 6. Iob 22. 24.

V. 31. Princes shall come] the Italian, let great Pirnces come, to doe homage and yeeld obedience to God under the Messias: A prophecy of the calling of the Gentiles, see Isa. 18. 7. and 19. 24. [stretch out her hands] the Italian, with full hands namely with presents, or tributes: Others translate it, let them readily stretch forth their hands, that is to say, let them confesse themselves to bee subject, let them crave favour of him, acknowledge and worship him.

V. 33 The heavens] that is to say, the highest heaven, Deut. 10. 14. [of old] the Italian, which were ever, that is to say, which doe still remaine in the same state as they were first created, without any change or corruption.

V. 34. Strength] the Italian, glory, Hebrew strength; for the holy language often sets down these words one for the other: [his excellency] hee hath as it were two thrones of his glory, one here on earth by meanes of his people: and the other in heaven.

PSAL. LXIX.

THE title, [Shoshannim] see Psal. 45. in the title.

V. 1. The waters] that is to say, my life is brought into extream danger, La [...]. 3. 54. Many parts of this Psalme may bee referred to David, as hee is a figure of Christ: others belong only and directly to Christ, at whom the holy Ghost chiefly aimed.

V. 4. Then I restored] that is to say, I am guiltlesse, yet am vsed as though I were guilty; this is meant by Christ, meaning that hee who was just, suffered for men that were unjust Isa. 53. 4. 5. 6. 1 Pet. 3. 18.

V. 5. My foolishnesse] that is to say, whether I bee guilty of those faults which are laid to mee or no.

V. 6. For my sake] that is to say, seeing mee, namely David abandoned by thee, who was an example, and mirror of faith unto them, a gage or pledge of hope, and an instrument of preservation. In Christ this hath a more sublimed and lofty sense save mee that I may be author of salvation to thine elect, and doe not suffer the faith and hope which they have had in thy promises, ever to be frustrate, see Psa. 22. 4. Luke 24. 21.

V. 7. For thy sake] for serving thee, and maintaining thy glory, and not through any misdeed of mine; wherefore if thou shouldest forsake mee, the faithfull would be discouraged from serving of thee, seeing that it would bee in vaine, and rather prejudiciall, than helpfull to them.

V. 8. A stranger] that is to say, I have not been acknowledged, but have been shunned by my neerest kinsmen▪ So Christ was rejected by the Iewes, Iohn 1. 11. and his own kinred beleevd not in him Iohn 7. 5.

V. 9. The zeale] the cause of this generall alienation from m [...]e hath been, because that I have with an ardent and upright affection maintained thy service and glory, against the malice of men: and have purchased their evill wills, by not seeking to please them.

V. 10. That was to my] mine enemies reproved mee saying all I did was in vaine and to no purpose.

V. 11. Sack-c [...]oath] see Psa. 30. 11.

V. 12. They that] namely the governours and counsellors of the people who did anciently keep their courts of justice neere the gates of the city: Gen. 23. [...] the m [...]aning is, people that are in authority doe condemne mee, and the vulgar sort doe flout and [...] mee, Psa. 22. 7.

V. 13. An acceptable time: that is to say, thou hast prefixed a time for the end of mine afflictions, after which thou wilt lay open thy grace, Psal. 30. 5. Isa. 26. 20. [In the truth] the Italian, for the, that is to say, according to thy saving promises, which are invariable: Or, by thy saving truth, which is the cause of the salvation of thine Elect: who have no other ground therefore, but thine immutable will and decree.

V. 15. The pit] a terme taken from the steep going down of a well, which maketh it impossible to be gotten out of, see Psal 55. 23.

V. 18. Because of] because they may not triumph over mee, in contempt of thy Majesty.

V. 19. Are all] to feede their eyes with the sight of mine afflictions, and of my death, Mat. 27. 39. 41. Luke 23. 35.

V. 20. To take pittie] the Italian, to condole with mee, a representation of the disciples flight, and forsaking of Christ at his death, Mat. 26. [...]. 40. Iohn 16. 32. and how that no humane strength nor assistance; hath any way contributed any thing to the work of redemption Isa. 63. 3. 5.

V. 21. Gall] the Italian, poyson, or gall, that is to say some most bitter thing.

V. 22. Let their] propheticall imprecations or a denuntiation of Gods sentence against the Iewes, for the rejection and death of Christ, Rom. 11. 9. the meaning is, let all their good and delight, bee changed into ruine and perdition. It may also bee that the holy Ghost had some relation to the last passeover which was kept in Ierusalem, when it was besieged by the Romans, who took the opportunity of the time when there was an infinite number of people in the City which came to the feast, which was the chiefe cause of its finall desolation.

V. 23. Let their eyes] let them lose their understanding, and as for their eternall salvation, let them have a vaile of ignorance before their eyes, and let them bee given over to a reprobate sense, Iohn 12. 39. 40. Rom. 11. 8. 10. 2 Cor. 3. 14. [and make] let them bee oppressed, with perpetuall and insufferable bondage.

V. 25. Let their] let their Cities, and Temple be destroyed and laid waste, Mat. 24. 2. Luke 19. 44.

V. 26. For they] for their will, and intention was evill, concerning Christs death, though it proceeded from the hand and counsell of God, Isa. 53. 3. 4. 10. Acts 4. 27. 28.

V. 27. Adde] let them accumulate the measure of their sinnes, that the punishment thereof may fall fully upon them, Mat. 23. 32. 1 Thes. 2. 16. [let them not] let them have no share of that justice which thou shalt manifest in thy Gospell, in grace, and justification of sinners, Rom. 3.

25. 26. and 10. 3.

V. 28. Let them bee] let them neither have right to it, nor beare the marke of being thy people, reprove them, and take away thy vocation from them, and let them not be included in thine externall covenant, which is the first degree of election to life eternall, and beareth the portraiture of it before men: though in many, vocation may be without election to life, Mat. 20. 16. Rom. 9. 6. and election, in its highest sense and meaning is immutable Rom. 9. 29. 30. and [...]0. 6. 11. see Ezech. 13. 9. and Exod. 32. 31. Rev. 3. 5. and 22. 19.

V. 29. S [...]t mee up] bring mee up out of the state of humiliation and suffering, to celestiall glory, after my resurrection to goe up into heaven, Isa. 53. 8. Acts [...]. 31. Phil. 2. 9.

V. 30. I will praise] I will cause mine elect in my Church, to yeeld perpetuall thanks unto the Lord, and that shall bee the spirituall sacrifice, by which all ancient corporall and figurative sacrifices shall be abolished.

V. 32. The humble] an ordinary title given to the [Page] true elect, to whom only the Gospell is preached to life and salvation.

V. 33. His prisoners] namely his elect enthralled in the bonds of sinne and death, Isa. 41. 7. and 49. 9.

V. 34. Praise him] the whole world which hath suffered it part of punishment for mens sinne, Rom. 8. 20. shall also participate of the glory of his restauration through Christ, Psal. 98. 7. Isa. 44. 23. and 49. 13. Rev. 18. 20.

V. 35. Sion] that is to say, the universall Church, [the cities] namely the particular Churches: [that they] namely the humble, v. 33. or his servants v. 36.

PSAL. LXX.

VER. 2. BE turned backward] that is to say, let whatsoever they undertake come to nothing.

PSAL. LXXI.

VER. 3. HAbitation] or strong hold: [thou hast given] see Psal. 42. 8. and 44. 4. and 68. 28.

V. 7. As a wonder] the Italian, as a monster, that is to say, they have been afraid of mee because that such strange things have befallen mee; and have scorned mee, and had mee in abomination by reason of my extream miseries.

V. 9. Of old age] as v. 18. and hence may bee gathered that this Psalme hath a relation to  Davids troubles by reason of Absaloms conspiracy, which happened in his old age.

V. 15. Thy righthousnesse] thy bounty, and loyalty, in all thy promises, according to the frequent meaning of scripture.

V. 16. I will goe in] that is to say, I will endeavour and trie to extoll it. Others, I will walke trusting in the Lord.

V. 17. Taught mee] through knowledge and experience.

V. 18. Gray headed] namely in the time of my decrepit old age, which is the most dangerous time of man, and then is thine aide most needfull for him: [untill I] give mee leave to celebrate this deliverance also, as well as I have done the rest.

V. 19. Thy righteousnesse] others, now thy righteousnesse is exalted to the height, Psal. 36. 6. and 57. 1 [...]. [who hast] the Italian, thou hast namely heretofore for mee. Or thou wilt have done them, when thou hast heard and delivered mee.

PSAL. LXXII.

THE title, [For Solomon] that is to say, penned by David to tecommend Solomon his son and successor to God: and to set before himselfe the true modell of Christs most perfect Kingdome of whom hee was a figure, that imitating his vertues, hee might draw upon him, the aforenamed blessings of his Kingdome.

V. 1. Thy judgements] that is to say, put thy lawes which are the rule of well governing, in his minde, that hee may know them; and in his heart and will that hee may execute them. Now in respect of Christ, this is a prophecy of the fullness: of the gifts of the holy Ghost, which were conferred upon his humane nature, Isa. 11. 2. 3. 4.

V. 3 The mountaines] figurative termes, as much as to say, there shall every where bee justice, and peace in abundance; whereof the first comprehends all the vertues and properties of a good government; the other all the happineses which ensue.

V. 5. They shall] that is to say, thy people and thine elect, shall be induced by these loving kindnesses of the Messias, and brought to a sincere and voluntary performance of Gods service.

V. 6. Come down] hee shall bring comfort, and refreshment, and new plenty of spirituall vertues into the world, which is quite scorched with iniquities, and all blessings quite dried up in it, see Iob 19. 23.

V. 8. From sea] Solomon indeed reigned from the sea of Sodom, or from the red sea, to the mediterranean sea East and West; and from the river Euphrates, to the uttermost bounds of the land of Canaan, North and South, 1 Kings 4. 24. according to the bounds which God had set down, Exod. 23. 31. Num. 34. 3. But all this was but a shaddow, and figure of Christs Kingdome which was to spread over all the earth.

V. 9. Shall lick] they shall prostrate themselves before him, with their faces groveling upon the ground, according to the fashion of the Easterne people, as Isa. 49. 23.

V. 10. Of Tarshish] namely of all the sea-coasts see Psal.

48. 7. and that which was spoken of Solomon, 1 Kings 10. was but a small essay in this point, but the perfect accomplishment of it, was in Christ, who sitteth at the fathers right hand above all powers and dominations, Ephes. 1. 21.

V. 14. Pretious] that is to say, hee will keepe it from shedding, or hee will be avenged upon them that shall shed it, see 2 Kings 1. 13.

V. 15. Prayer shall be] not for Christ himselfe, who is farre from needing any assistance from man. Yea hee alone, hath prayed, and doth pray the father for all men, [Page] by the only vertue of his most perfect justice: according to the property of his office of Mediator, and intercessor. But prayer is made for the manifestation, preservation, and increase of his Kingdome, and for his body which is the Church, see Psal. 18. 46. and 118. 25. 26. Mat. 6. 10.

V. 16. In the earth] a figurative description of a great plenty and abundance; the meaning is, that of a little seed sown the eares of corne shall grow to such a height, and fullnesse, that they shall make a noyse in the ayre like the cedars of Lebanon driven with the winde.

V. 17. Shall call him blessed] the Italian, shall bee blessed in him, or they shall blesse themselves in him, that is to say, they shall glory in the happinesse which they enjoy through his loving kindnesse. Or they will esteeme and acknowledge that all the good which they have, proceedeth from him alone.

V. 20. Are ended] this is the last Psalme which David penned, leaving it as a deposite, or legacy to Solomon.

PSAL. LXXIII.

In the title: [Of Asaph] see upon Psal. 50. in the title.

V. 2. Vere almost gone] the Italian, stumbled, through diffidence in Gods grace, or murmuring against his providence, or being tempted to imitate the wicked.

V. 4. There are no] they doe sweetly passe over their naturall course of life, and are not violently drawn to an untimely death, through weaknesse or other chances.

V. 7. They have] every thing goeth on prosperously with them, even beyond their own hope, conceipt, or desire.

V. 8. They are corrupt] the Italian, they are dissolute, that is to say, they are licentious, and let the raines loose to all manner of evill; or they loose themselves in pleasures and dissolutenesse. the Hebrew phrase is taken from things which doe melt, and are spilt: [that speake] they are arrogant, and presumtuous in their speeches, as if they were above other men, above law and order, and that all things were lawfull for them to doe.

V. 9. They set] that is to say, they speake prophanely of God, and of his providence and justice: or they doe foolishly boast of his favour by reason of their present happinesse: [their tongue] their pride is such that they judge and speake of every thing at their own pleasure, without any feare or regard. Or they doe take resolutions and lay their plots everywhere as though nothing were impossible to them.

V. 10. Hither] namely to these thoughts, and to the words following: [waters] that is to say, God sends them perpetuall and extreame afflictions, which is meant, by drinking off a cupp▪ and squeeing all the liquor into it.

V. 12. In the world] the Italian, perpetually, or in this age.

V. 13. Cleansed] God indeed is hee who only cleanseth mans heart from sinne by the [...]oud of his sonne, and by the vertue of his spirit, 1 Cor. 6. 11. But this action is attributed to man, by reason of his study, and voluntary co-operation, by the gift of the holy Ghost residing in him, namely to cleanse himselfe from sinne, and keepe himselfe from iniquity, 1 Iohn 3. 3. and 5. 18.

V. 15. I should offend] the Italian, I am disloyall, that is to say, I doe Gods Church a great deale of injury, which hath alwayes been under afflictions; if I thinke or say, that all her piety hath been without hope, or her hope without effect. Others I deceive the generation, that is to say, I propound a false doctrine unto them, which is apt to seduce them. Others, behold the generation, &c. that is to say, notwithstanding all afflictions, it is certaine that thou art a Father to the Church only; which is sufficient to make mee judge well of these afflictions; I have done ill, and confesse I have erred in this my rash judgement.

V. 17. I went] withdrawing my minde, from the world, and the false shewes thereof, I have confined my selfe to judge of these things according to the rule of thy word revealed in thy Church, Psal. 77. 12. Or contemplating by faith, heavenly things, and the glory in which thou dwellest (which is the true scope and reward of the faithfull, and not the world, 2 Cor. 4. 17. 18.) from whence the wicked are excluded.

V. 19. With terrors] which cannot bee understood by panick terrors, which terrifie the wicked, Iob 18. 11. Psal. 53. 5. nor of the tragicall and strange accidents, by which they perish, see Iob 31. 3.

V. 20. Shalt despise] when these vaine shaddowes of the world, shall be past in which thy providence seemeth to sleep, when thou shalt bring forth every thing into the light of thy judgement, thou shalt make it appeare, that their prosperity hath been but a false illusion: and thou shalt change this worldly lustre, into everlasting ignominie. Others, when thou shalt awake them, namely at the last resurrection.

V. 21. Pricked] that is to say, stung with impatience, having my thoughts and affections wounded with rage.

V. 23. Nevertheless] not withstanding all these [Page] assaults, I never forsooke thee for want of faith, to run into despaire; nor for want of obedience, to follow the example of the wicked; and thou hast also continually accompanied mee with thy grace and spirit.

V. 24. Thy counsell] namely thy conduct, and internall direction of thy holy spirit, Psal. 16. 7.

V. 26. Strength] the Italian, rock, the strength the firme subsistance and prop, Deut. 32. 4. [my portion] as Psal. 16. 5.

V. 27. A whoring] so the scripture calls the alienation of mans heart, from the pure and loyall love and service of God, to goe after idols, or after the world, and the creatures, and to cleave to them in love, and trust in them, Iam. 4. 4, 1 Iohn 2. 16.

PSAL. LXXIV.

THE title: [Of Asaph] see Psal. 50. in the title. Now Asaph living in  Davids time, and the subject of this Psalme being evidently of the desolation caused by the Chaldeans, Asaph could not be the composer of it, but some other Prophet of those times, who put it to Asaphs posterity, who was one of the three heades of holy singers, 1 Chron. 25. 1. 2. to sing it in the Iewes synagogues in Babylon.

V. 1. For ever] that is to say, without any hope or appearance of being restored

V. 2. The rod] the Italian, the tribe, namely the tribe of Iudah, which above all the rest had this promise, to be preserved in the dignity and degree of being Gods people, and named his inheritance, Deut. 32. 9. and never to faile untill the comming of Christ, Gen. 49. 10.

V. 3. Lift up] come to visite them to take compassion of them and to restore them: [perpetuall] which are irreparable unlesse thou settest thine helping hand unto them.

V. 4. Roare] the Italian, have roared, that is to say, have made great out [...]ryes, and kept a great stirre when they gave the onset, or after the victory: [of thy congregations] the Italian, of thy Temple, the Hebrew, of thy place of meeting, or congregation so is the tab [...]nacle called, Exod. 27. 21. and afterwards Solomons Temple, which is here expressely made mention of: [for signes] namely for trophics, or monuments of victories.

V. 5. A man was famous] the Italian, that shall be known, that is to say, they have left such tokens of their fury, that the remembrance thereof will last in after ages: [as hee had] that is to say, [...] as a wood-man with his hook or harche [...] [...]s downe the shrubs, and bushes without any respect or difference: even so have the enemies spoiled and broken all the ornaments of thy Temple, whereof see 1 Kings 6. 18. 29. 32.

V. 8. All the Synagagues] the Italian, all the places of meeting, for besides the Temple, there were in every city, or inhabited and frequented places, oratories or synagogues, where the people came together to pray, or to heare the ordinary exposition of the Iaw. Others will have the Temple only meant; divided into a great many parts and members.

V. 9. Our signes] namely the frequent miracles formerly wrought for our deliverances. Or the signes of Gods presence, such as the Arke was Vrim and Thummim, &c. Or the sacraments of his grace and covenant, as sacrifices and other ceremonies were: [that knoweth] that [...]th any prophetick revelation, to know when the end of our troubles will bee.

V. 11. Pluck it cut of thy] the Italian, let it not remaine in thy, which is the action of one that stands idle, and carelesse, see Prov. 19. 24. and 26. 15.

V. 13. Of the dragons] the Italian, of the whales, hee seemes to meane the heads of the Egyptian host, as in the verse following Pharaoh himselfe is meant by Leviathan, a common name for all your great sea creatures. For Egypt is scituate between two seas: and within it is almost every where watered by the river Nilus, see Isa. 51. 9. Ezech. 29. 3. and 32. 2.

V. 14. To the people] namely to the wilde beasts, which devoured the Egyptians carkasses, which were cast up upon the shoar.

V. 16. Is thine] thou art the author, preserver, and governour, of this alternall course of nature, namely of the day and the night. Vnder which he seemes also to meane that alternall course of his providence, by which hee sendes his Church, sometimes prosperity, and sometimes adversitie.

V. 17. The borders] hereby may be understood the seas which devide and sever the earth, or in regard of particular countries the naturall frontiers of seas, hills, and de [...]rts, see Deut. 32. 8. Whereby hee seemes to inferre that Gods people having also had their confines, which had beene broken through Gods judgements, it would one day please him to re-establish and preserve them.

V. 19. Thy turtle dove] namely thy Church, represented in scripture under the names of such kinds, of weak, mild, simple, and sociable same crea [...]ures, which are most exposed to wrongs and injuries, see Cant. 2. 10. and 4. 1. Mat 10. 16.

V. 20. The covenant] formerly made with thy people, see Zach. 9. 11. [the dark places] that is to say, the countrey [...] being desert, and horrid is full of robberles, and [Page] receptacles for murtherers.

V. 21. Ashamed] that is to say, fallen from all hopes, and denied the request of his prayers: [praise] let them have occasion to praise it, through their deliverance.

V. 23. Increaseth] the Italian, ascendeth, it goeth up to heaven; that is to say, their insolent blasphemies, are directed to thee, and doe provoke thee to vengeance, as Gen. 4. 10. and 18. [...]0. Exod. 3. 7. Or it encreaseth, that is to say, it gathereth strength by reason of thy patience. The meaning is, if thou lettest them alone, there will bee no end of their rage. Others translate it, in the tumult of those which set upon thee, which ascendeth, &c.

PSAL. LXXV.

THE [...]le, [song] see upon Psal. 30. in [...] title: [Of Asaph] that is to say, which is one of the number of those Psalmes wich were especially given to Asaphs posterity to sing them in the Temple. And if Asaph were the composer of this Psalme, hee speaketh in  Davids, person, see Psal. 50. in the title: [Altashith] see upon Psal. 57. in the title.

V. 1. Doe wee give thanks] it seemes this Psal me was composed after Sauls death, when David had taken possession of the Kingdome, and that the Iebusites had yet Ierusalem in their hands, Ios. 15. 63. 2 Sam. 5. 6. [thy name] thou thy selfe, in the effects of the excellent titles which thou hast of everlasting, almighty, &c. Or thy grace and power: [is neere] that is to say, present in operation and efficacy.

V. 2. When I] that is to say, when I shall have taken from the Iebusites the City of Ierusalem, which God hath appointed, to bee the chiefe city of the Kingdome the seat of his Temple, where his people must meet for his solemne service, Deut. 12. 11. 1 Kings 8. 29. Psal. 122. 4. (mount Sion being called the mouut of the congregation, Isa. 14. 13. as the ancient tabernacle was, Exod. 27. 21.) then will I employ my selfe wholly and peaceably, to governe rightly, and doe justice, see Psa. 101. which is very hard to doe, amongst the confusion of armes.

V. 3. The earth] the Italian, the countrey, that is to say, all the countrey was ruined, through factions, violences, wrongs and calamities, whilest Saul, and his house raigned, Psal. 11. 3. and 60. 2. and 82. 48. now I have set my hand to the restoring of it, and I shall accomplish it, when God hath established me in the royall city.

V. 4. I said] I have repressed the boldnesse and violence, of the rebellious seditious and violent men.

V. 5. Speak not] bee not odstinate against the manifestation of Gods will, which was to choose me to be King.

V. 6. For] my Kingdome is given mee by God, and therefore you must submit your selves thereunto, either willingly, or by constraint: [from the South] the Italian, from the desart, the great desert lay on the South side, others doe comprehend the North also herein, on which side the wilderness of Damascus was, 1 Kings 19. 15.

V. 7. Is the judge] hee governeth and ordereth every thing, according to his owne free will.

V. 8. For in the] a second reason of the exhortation made, v. 5. God appointeth whom hee pleaseth, but afterwards hee punisheth those which oppose his appointment: [hand] figurative termes, yet very frequent in Scripture, taken from banquets, to represent Gods judgements, distributed most justly to every one according to his deserts, Job 21. 20. Psal. 60. 3. Isa. 51. 17. Ier. 25. 15. Rev. 14. 10. and 16. 19. [red] the Italian, troubled, or reddish, to signifie the fiercenesse of Gods wrath, and the effects of the troubles, and amazements of the minde, which it breeds, Ier. 25. 16. as new wine doth, which is not cleared nor settled.

V. 10. But the hornes] that is to say, I will set good men in safety, honour, power, and gladnesse out of all danger: a terme taken from the souldiers and captaines wearing, a kinde of a horne made of brasse upon their helmets, which the victors did weare upright, but they that were overcome wore it downe, see 1 Sam. 2. 1. 10. Psal. 89. 17.

PSAL. LXXVI.

VER. 1. KNown] hee hath not only manifested himselfe there by his word, but hath also made himselfe famous by his deeds and excellent miracles.

V. 2. Salem] this was the ancient name of Ierusalem, Gen. 14. 18.

V. 3. *The [...]*e] namely in Iudea, or in the land of Israel. He hath relation to some notable discomfiture of Gods enemies, as the Ammonites, or Mo [...] bites, 2 Chron. 20. or of Sennacherib, 2 Kings 19. 35. as Psal. 46. 9.

V. 4. Excellent] powerfull and triumphant over the greatest Kingdomes of the earth, which are full of violence, and likened to high mountaines which harbour devouring and ravenous beasts, see Cant. 4. 8. Hab. 3. 6. Or excellent from thy hills, namely from thy holy Temple, from whence thou shewest thy power, to the destruction of thine enemies, like unto a roaring lyon, see Isa. 31. 4. Ier. 25. 30. Or more excellent than the mountaines, that is [Page] to say, thy glory is exalted above all mountaines, which are receptacles for wilde beasts, more than those mountaines are above the lowest grounds or parts of the earth, see Psa. 36. 6.

V. 5. Their sleep] namely of death, which may properly be applied to the discomfiture of the Assirians, by night 2 Kings 19. 35. [have found] their heart and strength have failed them, so that they have not been able to make any resistance.

V. 6. Cast into a] they have been made unfit and unable to fight, see Exod. 15. 16. Nab 3. 18.

V. 8. Thou didest canse, &c] the Italian, thou didest Prociaime, a representation of the same deliverance under the manner of a judgement.

V. 10. The wrath] the fierco endeavours of thine enemies, doe cause thee to fight against them, and overcome them, whereby thy glory becommeth more excellent, and so much the more exalted, Exod. 9. 16. and 18. 11. [shalt thou restraine] the Italian, shalt thou gird thy selfe with, that is to say, thou shalt adorne thy selfe with the spoiles of thine enraged enemies, as conquerors use to doe see Iudg. 5. 30. 1 Sam. 17. 54. others, thou shalt binde them up as a bundle, thou shalt destroy them in an instant.

V. 11. All that be] namely his people that stand round about him, as souldiers stand about their captaine. Hee seemes to have a relation to the Israelites encamping round about the tabernacle in the wilderness. Or his people, who only have the right, and favour to come neere unto him to serve him, and call upon him.

V. 12. Shall cut off] the Italian, gather in their vintage, that is to say, he taketh away their life, as Ioel 3. 13. Rev. 14. 18. Or taketh away their wisdom and understanding.

PSAL. LXXVII.

THE title: Of Asaph] here Asaph is the composer. see upon Psal. 5. upon the title: [to Ieduthan. Or to them of the issue, or of the company of this chiefe of the Musicians, see Psal. 62. in the title.

V. 1. And hee gave] the Italian, because hee should give, or hee shall give &c.

V. 2. My sore] the Italian, my hands, the gesture of a discomfited and afflicted person, or my hands have melted, and run, that is to say, my strength is utterly decayed.

V. 3. Was troubled] in servency, and great agi [...]n of spirit, Psal. 55. 2. 17.

V. 4. Troubled] the Italian, astonished, the Hebrew word properly signifieth an astonishment caused by some great blow received.

V. 5. I have considered] either to aggravate my present griefe, by comparing these dayes with those happy times which where heretosore, or to strengthen mee so much the more, by the examples of Gods goodnesse, who having once declared himselfe a loving Father to his elect, never changeth nor altereth his minde, though hee doe vary the effects of it, and so comfort my selfe with hope, that the times will bee againe as they were heretofore.

V. 6. My song] when I yeelded solemne thanks to the Lord, and sung praises unto him for his loving kindnesses: [made diligent search] it discourseth and enquireth within it selfe, how this alteration should come, and what should be the reason of it, whether any good issue may bee hoped for, and what meanes may be used to bring it to passe.

V. 8. Is his mercy] is the effect of his promises quite ceased.

V. 10. The right band, &c.] the Italian, the right hand of the most high is changed, God doth not any longer shew forth his power in my behalfe, as hee did heretofore. A representation of the soules combate, amidst the distrusts of the flesh.

V. 13. Thy way] that is to say, every one of the elect may and ought to learne in thy Church the conduct, and proceeding of thy providence, towards those that are thine: by the generall example of the whole body of the Church, oftentimes afflicted, even to the extremity; as it was in Egypt, and then miraculousty delivered, see Psal. 73. 17. whereupon he hath matter to strengthen himselfe in all his trialls, still hoping for a happy issue.

V. 15. Redeemed] namely out of Egypt: [Ioseph] Iosephs issue is many times spoken of severally from the other tribes, by reason of their great number and power.

V. 16. The waters] namely of the red sea.

V. 17. The cloudes] these particulars are not specified by Moses, but they may be supposed, by what is written, Exod. 1 [...]. 24.

V. 19. Thy way] thou wentest in the cloudy and fiery pillar through the sea, before all thy people, [thy foot steps] after thy people were gone through; the waters returned into their naturall course, Exod. 14. 26. 27. whence it appeares that this miracle was no naturall effect, nor casuall accident, and that it is appointed so to be by thee only, for the deliverance of thy people.

PSAL. LXXVIII.

THE title, [Maschil] see Psal. 32. in the title.

V. 1. My Law] the Italian, doctrine, the Hebrew, Law.

V. 4. Shewing to thee] or they, namely the generation to come shall tell the praises, &c.

V. 5. A testimony] namely the Law, and the tables thereof, see Exod. 16. 34. and 25. 21.

V. 9. The children] hee hath a reference to the [Page] children of Israels discomfiture by the Philistines, 1 Sam. 4. 10. and specifieth the Tribe of Epharim; as well for the might and valour of it, which gave it a superioritie above the rest, as also because that the Ark of the Lord was then residing in Siloh a city of Ephraim, from whence it was transported to Judah; and for this cause, and by reason of Dauids being chosen King, Iudah became the head of the other Tribes; and so the people was established in peace and blessing, which is the chiefe subject of this Psalme, see vers. 60. 6 [...]. 68.

V. 12. Zoan] a very ancient city of Egypt, Num. 13. 22. Isa. 19. 13. Ezech. 30. 14. Named by other authors, Thanez.

V. 16. Streames] for out of that water issued a streame which went along with the people, even ininto the land of Canaan. Deut. 9. 21. Psal. 105. 41. 1 Cor. 10. 4.

V. 23. Opened] a figurative terme to expresse an extreame plenty sent from above, as Gen. 7. 11. 2 Kings 7. 2.

V. 24. The [...]] namely, a kinde of food which was in stead of bread.

V. 25. Angels food] Hebrew, the food of the mighty, which was an epithet given to the Angels Psal. 89. 6. and 103. 20. that is to say, a food that seemed rather Angelicall, and celestiall, then earthly; as well by reason of it origine, parity, and perfection; as for the efficacie of it, to preserve the body in perfect health and strength by Gods speciall appointment, in those who did not by their distrust or rebellion make it of no efficacie: [He sent them] in his wrath he would satisfie, their unbounded desires, though hee had before provided for their necessities: [Meat] namely, quailles whereof hee speaks afterward.

V. 27. Rained] made it to fall out of the ayre, as thick as any raine.

V. 28. Of their Camp] or in his Camp God being in his Tabernacle in the middest of his people, as a generall of an Army.

V. 30. They were not] their lust was not yet satisfied, though they had eaten flesh a whole month, Num. 11. 20. 33.

V. 31. The fattest] that is to say, the lustiest, and mightiest, the choyce of the people, as Iudg. 3. 29. Or the chiefe, and most renowned, as Psal. 22. 29.

V. 33. In vanity] that is to say, in long fruitlesse labours, wandering in the wilderness, being not able to come into the land of Canaan which was the end of their journey, Num. 14. 25. Others, reducing them to nothing. Others, in a moment. [In trouble] the Italian, [...] terrors, namely, in perpetuall fears of Gods judgements, and of death, which they were undoubtedly to suffer in the wilderness, according as God had threatned them, Num. 14. 23. 29. Others, suddenly.

V. 34. They sought him] they were converted unto him, and sought him.

V. 36. Flatter him] that is to say, they sought to re-obtaine his favour by fained prayers, confessions, and prorestations.

V. 38. F [...]ve] the Italian, cleansed, that is to say, pardoned them as if they had been sufficiently cleansed, saving the common people from corporall punishments, and as for his Elect, applying the promised redeemers bloud unto them, to cleanse them from all iniquity, and free them from everlasting punishment: [Stirre up] did not punish, with extreame rigor, see Za [...]. 1. 15.

V. 39. But flesh] that is to say, sinners, of a corrupt nature, Gen. 6. 3. Iohn 3. 6. mortall and corruptible, wherefore their misery moved the Lord to compassion, see Iob. 7. 16. and 10. 20. and 14. 6. Psal. 103 13.

V. 40. Grieve him] a [...] taken from man, and his passions, to expresse a grievous offence, whereby God is alienated from man, as Psal. 95. 10. Isa. 7. 13. Ephes. 4 30.

V. 41. Limited] they would subject God unto their own wills, prescribing his works within certaine bounds of times, meanes, and other circumstances, see Psal. 106. 13. Ier. 49. 19. or restraining through incredulity his power, within the bounds of their naturall sense, by believing him no farther, then they were able to apprehend; or through their incredulity they hindered God from working any greater miracles for their deliverence, as Mark 6. 5.

V. 42. They remembred not] the Psalmist seemes here to goe on againe with the matter left off, verse 12.

V. 47. Sycamore] a kinde of tree which by reason of the frequentnesse of it in Egypt, is called an Egyptian figgetree: [With frost] or with haile stones.

V. 48. Gave up] left them to bee kild; and destroyed.

V. 49. Evill Angels] namely, devils, who being Princes of the ayre, caused these tempests.

V. 50. Made away] caused these calamities which were sent by him in his wrath, to showre down upon them without any stay or hinderance.

V. 51. The chiefe of▪] the Italian, the firstings, namely, their first-borne, according to the phrase of Scripture, see Gen. 49. 3. [Of Ham] that is to say, of Egypt; for Mizraim father of the Egyptians, that gave Egypt its name, was the son of Ham, Gen. 10. 6.

V. 53. They feared not] that is to say, without any reasonable cause of feare, being continually safe under Gods protect on, though they did alwayes through diffidence give themselves causes of feares and vaine terrors.

V. 54. Mountaine] namely, Sion, upon which Ierusalem stood, the chiese seat of Church and Kingdome; or [Page] the whole hill countrey of Israel.

V. 56. They tempted] this is the continuation of verse 42. [His testimonies] namely, his Lawes, Exod, 16. 34.

V. 57. Turned aside] that is to say, that whereas God led them by the hand, to direct their actions and motions to his obedience, they were turned aside even as a bow turning in the Archers hand when he is shooting, which causeth him to misse his aime, Hos. 7. 16.

V. 58. High places] namely, Altars, Chappels, and such like places, to celebrate divine service in, out of the only place which was by him consecrated and was onely acceptable unto him, or peradventure also dedicated to Idols, and were so called because that they chose out the choicest hills for those purposes.

V. 60. He forsook] namely, when the Arke which was in Siloh was taken by the *Phili [...]*nes after which time it was never brought thither againe, nor into any place belonging to the tribe of Ephraim, see Ier. 7. 14.

V. 61. His strength] the Arke is oftentimes called the strength and glory of God, because it was as it were the throne of his glory upon earth, from whence hee shewed his power, see 1 Sam. 4. 21. 1 Chron. 16. 11. Psal. 132. 8.

V. 62. His inheritance] his owne proper peculiar people, in which hee had gotten a particular and peculiar interest.

V. 63. The fire] that is to say, the wrath of God, or furie of watre: [Not given to marriage] the Italian, not praised, they had not been honoured with nuptiall songs according to the customes of those times, see Ier. 7. 34. and 16. 9. and 25. 10. The meaning is, they had not been honourably married, because that men were killed in the warres, *Isa 4. 1. [...]*e [...]. 31. 22. Or they had been married without any solemnitie, like poore bond-women, or privately in the time of publike calamities.

V. 64. No lamentation] they had not made any funerall for their husbands, either because the conquering enemies did forbid, it, or because the miseries of the living caused them to forget the dead, see Iob 27. 15. Ezech. 24. 23.

V. 65. By reason of wine] the Italian, after wine, after he waked, and had evaporated his wine, or by reason of wine, that is say, having his hea [...] full of wine, termes taken from souldiers heated with wine; yet no way blemishing Gods sacred Majesty.

V. 66. Hinder parts] namely, with the painefull and shamefull disease of Emerods, 1 Sam. 5. 6. 9. 12.

V. 67. Of Ioseph] namely, Siloh, of the Tribe of Ephraim, which Tribe descended from Ioseph, where the Arke was settled for a long time, vers. 60.

V. 68. Chose] to bee the place of residence for his Arke.

V. 71. Ewes great with young] the Italian, milch cattell, or great with young, of which your shepheards had an especiall care, see Gen. 3 [...] 13. Isa. 40. 11.

PSAL. LXXIX.

VER. 1. The heathen, the Italian, the Nations, the subject of this Psalme may bee taken either for the taking of Ierusalem by the Caldeans, or for the persecutions of Ansiochus, as the seventy fourth Psalme.

V. 5. Thy jealousie] to which thou hast been provoked by us rebels, covenant breakers, and Idolaters.

V. 8. Former iniquities] the Italian hath it, the iniquities of those that were before us, namely, our for fore-fathers and Ancestors, whose iniquities, wee have imitated and exceeded. Others, the iniquities of former times.

V. 9. Thy names sake] that is say, for thine own sake, who art exceeding mercifull, and bearest the name of it. The meaning is, take an occasion not from us, but from thine own in-bred mercy, to make the glory thereof shew the greater.

V. 12. Into their bosome] that is to say, plentifully, Psal. 31. 23. A phrase taken from those who without measuring doe poure a thing into ones lap or bosome, see Isa. 65. 6. 7. Jer. 32. 18. Luk. 6. 38. [Wherewith they] because that injuries done to the Church redound through the enemies intents, or otherwise, to God himselfe, Psal. 69. 7. 9. Iach. 2. 8.

PSAL. LXXX.

VER. 1. I Oseph] hereby is meant the Tribe of Ephraim, the head of the other tenne Tribes which were divided from Judah, of whose destruction it seemes the Psalmist doth speak particularly in this Psalme: [Between the Cherubins] the Italian, upon the, namely, those Cherubins which covered the Arke, Exod. 25. 19. 20. which was as it were Gods Throne, Exod. 25. 22. 1 Sam. 4. 4. 2 Sam. 6. 2. Psal.

99. [...].

V. 3. Turne us] or lead us back againe.

V. 4. Wilt thou be angry] the Italian, wilt thou smoak, that is to say, how long wilt thou being fired with rage, reject their prayers, Psal. 74. 1.

V. 6. Thou makest u [...]] thou hast made them our enemies, or thou hast made us an occasion of controversie to our enemies, that is to say, they strive who shall first set upon us, and contend amongst themselves for our spoiles.

V. 8. A vine] namely, the people like a new planted [Page] vine a very frequent figure in Scripture, Isa. 5. 2. Ier. 2. 21. Ezech. 17. 6.

V. 9. Preparest roome] removing of stones, stocks, and other lets.

V. 10. Goodly Cedars] the Italian, very high Cedars, Hebrew, Cedars of God, see upon Psalms. 36. 6. and 104. 16.

V. 11. The Sea] namely, the mediterranean Sea [...] [the river] namely, Euphrates, the bounds of the children of Israels countrey, set by God himselfe, Gen. 15. 18.

V. 15. Madest strong] hee hath a relation to certaine small stakes, which they use to stick up by young vine plants, for them to grow up by.

V. 16. Rebuke] by reason of thy wrath, which is like a scorching wind to young plants.

V. 17. Vpon the man of] namely, upon the King, and the kingdome of Iudah, (the onely remainder of thy peoples desolation) which thou hast established, defendest and maintainest through thy power, which is exceeding deare unto thee, and is by thee raised to that [...]overaigh glory of being thy Church and thy people, Psal. 45. [...]. and 89. 21.

PSAL. LXXXI.

VER. 3. The new Moone] Hebrew, the covered Moone, namely, when it doth not shew, and is upon the point of renewing, which may bee understood of all new Moons kept holy by Gods command, with the sound of the holy Trumpets, Num. 10. 10. Or, it may particularly be understood of the Feast of the holy Trumpets, which was wont to be kept the first day of the first politick moneth, Lev. 23. 24.

V. 5. For a testimony] or protestation, that is to say, an expresse law, with an injunction of obedience, and denuntiation of a punishment to transgressors, [In Ioseph] Ioseph and Iudah, between whom was divided the right of first-borne, which was taken away from Ruben, 1

Chron. 5. 2. doe often represent the whole people. [When he] after hee had made his power and justice known amongst the Egyptians, by the deliverance of his people: [where I heard] the Italian, when I, when hee gave us his law, in a most terrible and unaccustomed kinde of voyce, which we were not able to endure, Exod. 1 [...]. 19. & 20. 19.

V. 6. I removed] that is to say, I have delivered him from the cruell slavery, wherein he was oppressed with toile and labour: [The pots] the Italian, the Baskets, wherein they carried earth to make bricks with, Exod. 1. 14.

V. 7. In the secret] namely, in the thick cloud where I framed a kinde of sounding noise like unto thunder, Exod. 19. 19. & 24. 16.

V. 8. *H [...]*a [...]] this is a summ of the Law, which was given in Mount Sinai, concerning Gods pure service [...] [I will testifie] that is to say, I will give thee absolute commands, binding thee to obedience upon paine of punishment, and with a promise of reward, see Psal. 50. [...].

V. 10. Open] that is to say, if thou dost obey mee, I will make thee fully happy and contented, and will fulfill all thy just desires.

V. 12. Hearts lusts] the Italian, hardnesse of their hearts or to the imagination, or to the perversnesse of their hearts.

V. 13. O that] a humane manner of speaking, to shew what pleasure God takes in mens obediences, for their own goods, Deut. [...]. 12. 13.

V. 15, Submitted themselves] the Italian, yeelded fained obedience, they should have been forced though but fa [...]nedly, and against their wills to have submitted themselves unto him, as Psal. 18. 44. and 66. 3. [Their time] that is to say, their happinesse.

V. 16. Out of the Rock] a hiperbolicall kinde of speech, as if God had made honey to distill out of the Rock, as he made the waters to issue forth of it in the Wildernesse.

PSAL. LXXXII.

VER. 1. STandeth] the Italian, is present, namely, by a particular vertue and providence as soveraign Lord, and chiefe Governour of his people: [Of the mighty] the Italian, of God, that is to say, of the Princes and Governours of his people, who are but Gods Ministers, from whom they have all their power, and from whom they receive their Lawes, as from their soveraigne and supream Lord, see Deut. 1. 17. 2 Chro. 19. 6. Rom. 13. 1. [Hee judgeth] that is to say, hee examineth, and discereuth their thoughts, motions, judgments, and actions, to approve of an ratifie the upright and holy ones, and reprove and difannull them that are not so: [The Gods] a name, which is sometimes attributed to Magistrates, by reason of their vocation, and because they represent Gods Majesty and Soveraignty.

V. 5. They know not] a complaint of the Prophet against the Magistrates of his time. [The walk on] they proceed in their actions without the guide of Gods Spirit, and the light of his Word, which are onely directions of all uprightnesse. [Foundations] that is to say, from the corruption of the heads proceeds a generall disorder and ruine of the whole state, see Psal. 11. 3. and 60. 2. and 75. 3.

V. 6. I have said] I have called you gods, verse 1. because you represent Gods Majesty in the governing of [Page] men, and because hee hath stamped in you a character of his glory, and finally, by reason of Gods gifts and vocation, and of the duty which you are bound to, not to exempt you from the generall condition of other men, nor from Gods judgement, both being apparant in you by reason of death.

V. 7. Of the Princes] which were before you, who yee know died all: Or like unto the Princes of other Nations, you having no priviledge by being Princes of Gods people.

V. 8. Iudge] that is say, seeing thy Ministers and Officers have subverted justice; come and re-establish thy Kingdome in the world by the Spirit and word, and chiefly by the presence of thy sonne, Psal. 96. 10. [Thou shalt] the Italian, thou oughtest, seeing thou hast determined to take in hand the government of the whole world, in thy sonnes person, as by right and naturally it belongeth to thee; let not that interest which thou hast in thy people, decay through the malice of men.

PSAL. LXXXIII.

VER. 3. Thy hidden ones, who in thy Church, wherethou art present, doe shelter themselves under thy protection in humility, feare, and faith, see Psal. 27. 5.

V. 4. From being] that they may be wholly dispersed and rooted out, from being a body of a Nation, or having any forme of Common-wealth. And let the Church (whose being consists in Congregation and Communion) be no more, which can never be, see Ier. 31. 36.

V. 6. The Tabernacles] the Italian, the Tents, that is to say, the Edomites who for the most part lived in the fields, in tents, as the Arabians have alwayes done, Isa. 13. 20. Now this combination of Nations may have a relation to the History of 2 Chron. 20. 10. [Hagarens] people of Arabia, desended from Ismael the sonne of Abraham by Hagar, 1 Chron. 5. 10. 20.

V. 7. Gebal] people of Phenicia, Ezech. 27. 9.

V. 8. They have holpen] the Italian, they have been an arme, the Assirians have been the principall nerve of this league and combination, being a most mighty Nation: [the children] namely of Ammon and Moa [...], which came from L [...]t, Gen. 19. 37. 38. who were chiefe of this enterprise.

V. 10. Endor] this place is not specified in the history, but by conferring of Josh. 17. 11. with Iudg. 5. 19. it appears that this battell was fought neere to that place.

V. 13. Make them] overthrow both them and their designes, as a bowle thrown down a steep place, see Isa. 17. 13. and 22. 18.

V. 14. The Mountaines] namely, the woods which grow upon them, which are often fired either by fire from heaven, or by some other accident.

V. 16. Seeke] make them yeeld unto thee and desire mercy and forgivenessse at thy hands, see Psal. 66. 3.

V. 18. That thou] or that thou who bearest the name of everlasting, art the most high.

PSAL. LXXXIV.

VER. 3. The Sparrow] a poetically figure, as saying, I am through my absence more wretched then these small birds, which may come neere thy Temple, and make their nests there. [even thine Altars] the Italian, neere to thine, some divide these words from the precedent. Alas thine altars, as if it were an exclamation of a most servent desire.

V. 5. Strength is] who by thy grace and power, hath that vigour of body and minde, that he can come from the place of his abode into thy Temple to solemn feasts: [In whose heart] who are moved by a holy zeale freely to undertake these holy voyages according to thy command, Exod. 23. 17.

V. 6. Who passing] who though they meet with many difficulties upon the way as penury of water in dry places (as peradventure this valley of Ba [...]) might be, 2 Sam.

5. 23. or generally any place which abounds with such trees as delight in dry soile) they overcome them all with their zeale, digging wells of spring water, or gathering of raine water in pits or cesternes. Which is chiefly meant here because that in these journeys, where there were great multitudes of people and great store of ca [...] tell, the want of water, which was ordinary in those countreys, was very troublesome.

V. 7. They goe] they never faint, but doe alwayes encrease in strength and courage.

V. 9. And look] shew thy grace and favour to me David, by thee annoited to be King, and now driven away by Saul.

V. 10. A doore-keeper] that is to say, in the poorest and most abject degree and place, as a doore-keeper is in great Lords houses.

V. 11. [...] *a S [...]*nne] that is to say, the author of all joy and goodnesse to his children, and their Protector against all evils.

PSAL. LXXXV.

VER. 1. Thou hast been] he hath a relation to some notable former deliverance, after which God had visited his people with new afflictions.

V. 3. Thou hast turned] thou hast turned away thy wrath, that it might not be kindled.

V. 8. I will heare] the Psalmists words, preparing himselfe and the whole Church to hearken unto the promise of Gods grace, which was revealed unto him by divine inspiration: [but let not] the Italian, but will not let, hee will convert and sanctifie them to himselfe, giving them the spirit of true wisdome, to keep them from rashly offending God.

V. 9. His salvation] in the corporall deliverance of his Church, but chiefly in the universall redemption of the world by the Messias, to whom the ensuing words are plainly referred: [that glory] wee shall againe have the glorious presence of God in our land, in the signes of his grace and power, as it was in the Arke; and then it will powerfully and gloriously dwell in his Church, in his sonnes person being made manifest in the flesh, see Hos. 2. 7. 9.

V. 10. Mercy] this cannot perfectly agree with any but the Messias his reign. The meaning is, Gods grace shall be so largely spread abroad, that it shall in truth bee answerable to those large promises which were formerly made. Or the blessings of God shall be accompanied with his constant truth, to make them firme and perpetuall, see Isa. 55. 3. [righteousnesse] Gods righteous and just government by his word, shall produce true peace and happinesse, and shall have it inseparably joyned with it, see Psal. 72. 3. Isa. 32. 17.

V. 11. Truth] men shall bee true subjects, and God shall be a just King; which are the two relative qualities, that keep every state in perfect harmony, see Isa, 45. 8.

V. 12. Good] namely the true and only good of man, which consists in Gods grace joyned with corporall goods, as farre as is fitting in his wisdome.

V. 13. Shall set us] the Italian, set it, that is to say, hee shall establish them wheresoever he comes by the preaching of his Gospell.

PSAL. LXXXVI.

VER. 5. REady to forgive] or inclina [...]le and easie to be drawn to forgive.

V. 7. Thou wilt] that is to say, thou usest to answer or heare mee.

V. 11. I will walke] the Italian, cause mee to walk, governe thou my whole life and actions according to thy holy word, and in such sincerity as thou requirest, and such as thou doest beget in thy children by thy holy spirit: [unite] let my heart cleave close unto it without varying or going from it, or being drawn away to contrary things.

V. 13. My soule] that is to say, my person from mortall dangers.

V. 14. Not set thee] who doe not feare thee, nor looke after thy judgements or commandements.

PSAL. LXXXVII.

VER. 1. His foundation] that is to say, the firme place of his abode, opposite to the moveable Tabernacle which was made by Moses: [mountaines] figuratively in Ierusalem, which had two hills within the precinct of it, Sion, and Moriah, and in reall spirituality, in the universal Church which is the heavenly Ierusalem, Gal. 4. 26. Heb. 12. 22.

V. 4. I will make mention] making (as one should say) a survey of my people, I will adde the Gentiles unto them, calling them to the knowledge of mee, by my Gospell, and regenerating them in my Church, holding them in the same degree with the Israelites, as true children of my covenant: [Rahab] a frequent name for Egypt, by reason of its pride and haughtinesse.

V. 5. This and that] indifferently of all nations and persons in a very great number.

V. 7. The singers] Gods words to his Church, meaning I will give thee full cause of rejoyceing, through my blessings which shall flow upon thee, as it were from all their springs.

PSAL. LXXXVIII.

THE title: [Heman] it seemes to be the same as is named, 1 Kings 4. 31. [Ezrahite] of the off-spring of Zarah the sonne of Iudah, 1 Chron. 2. 6.

V. 3. Vnto the grave] Heb. to hell, because that according to the first degree of Gods justice the first death is inseparable from the second, and the name of hell is common to both. And though by the second degree which is grace, by vertue of the Messias his redemption, corporall death to Gods children, beno more a passage to everlasting death: yet the name of hell hath still kept its ordinary signification of both: to shew that not by the nature of death, but by Gods grace these two deaths are severed one from the other in the elect.

V. 5. Free among] Others translate it, I am severed from the living: [whom] over which, in respect of the body, and this present life, thou doeest no more shew thy providence, in governing and relieving them, and in bestowing other benefits upon them.

V. 8. Shut up] namely by evils and dangers, without any way to getout, without any comfort or reliefe.

V. 9. I have stretched out] see upon Iob 11. 13.

V. 10. Wilt thou shew] the Italian, wilt thou work] [Page] the meaning is, if thou doest leave me in this case long, I cannot chuse but fall, and die; then can thy glory appeare no more in my miraculous deliverance, see Job 7. 7. [The dead] Heb. the gyants, that is to say, those that are abissed and sunk in death, as the gyants were in the generall deluge. Sometimes this name is taken for the damned, as Iob 26. 5. and sometimes plainly for the dead, Isa. 26. 19. by reason of what was said upon, verse 3. [Arise] he doth not meane the generall resurrection, nor any particular one, which happened by miracle; but of the common course according to which the dead returne no more into the world to enjoy any new benefits of God.

V. 11. In destruction] that is to say, in hell, see v. 3. Iob. 28. 22.

V. 12. In the land] namely, in death, in which the dead forget the living and the state of this present life, Iob 14. 21. Eccles. 9. 5. 6. and likewise the living doe forget the dead, Iob 24. 20. and all commerce is taken away, and annihilated betweene them.

V. 15. Ready to die] the Italian addeth, with roaring, with my lamentable crying out, as Psal. 22. 1.

V. 18. In darknesse] the Italian, are hidden in darknesse, I can see nor descry none of them, or they hide themselves from mee thorough horreur, and being ashamed of mine afflictions.

PSAL. LXXXIX.

THE title, Ethan] of whom, see 1 Kings 4. 31. 1 Chron 2. 6. and it is likely that he out-lived Solomon, and saw the destruction of the Kingdome under Iereboam, by the separation of the ten Tribes, and by the spoyle of the countrey by Shishack King of Egypt, 1 Kings 14. 25. 2 Chron. 12. 2. which calamities may likely bee the subjects of this Psalme. [Ezrahite] descended from Zarah, the son of Iudah, 1 Chron 2. 6.

V. 2. I have said] I hold it for certaine, and have fully concluded it in my minde. [Built up] a phrase taken from sound and well sounded buildings contrary to moveable, and waisairing habitations of Tents and Cabins. [Sbalt thou] the Italian, thou hast, that is to say, the effects of thy covenant and promises are certaine, being grounded upon thine everlasting decrees made in heaven, from whence they have their beginning, vers. 37. Or, thou hast in the invariable nature and order of the heavens, given a document and assurance of the eternity of all the heavenly and supernaturall works, counsels, promises, and orders of thy grace.

V. 4. Th [...] seed] this is fulfilled in Christ, descended from David, according to the flesh, who hath changed  Davids temporall Kingdome, into an everlasting and spirituall Kingdom. [Built up] I will raise thy Kingdome to the highest degree of perfection.

V. 5. The heavens] the holy Angels shall joyn with me in thy prayes, as partakers of the joy for the establishment of thy Church, by thy grace and truth. Or, the celestiall Orbes, to which by an ordinary figure, the Scripture doth attribute the doing of such things. [Of the Saints] namely, the Angels.

V. 6. The Sonnes] namely, the Angelicall Spirits, see Psal. 78. 25. and 103. 20. an Hebrew phrase, which signifieth nothing but creatures, to whose nature is proper the quality of a power beyond the measure of all humane power.

V. 7. In the assembly] the Italian, the counsell, that is to say, the assembly of his Angels amongst which he sitteth as a King in councell.

V. 8. Thy faithfulness] thou causest the most true revelations and declarations of thy truth, wisdom, and promises, to break out on every side like unto so many bright beames.

V. 10. Rahab] the name of Egypt, Iob 26. 10. Psal. 87. 4.

V. 12. Tabor] that is to say, these hills doe in a manner, glory of their height, fruitfulness, &c. in thee; acknowledging it commeth all from thee their Creator.

V. 15. That know] who in effect taste of the true spirituall joy, which thy grace and fatherly favour brings with it; and can give thanks for it with exaltation of heart and rapture of spirit.

V. 16. In thy righteousness] namely, in thy righteous and just government, or in thy loyalty in keeping and observing thy covenant and promises.

V. 17. Our horne] wee are conquerours tryumphant and glorious, see Psal. 75. 10.

V. 18. Our defence] he is our protector and defendor, and all glory therefore is due to him. [Is our King] the Italian, our King is the holy one of Israel, that is to say, it is hee that hath given him, and established him, and that worketh by him as by a chosen instrument.

V. 19. Invision] namely in prophetick revelation to Nathan,

Samuel, and others. [To thy holy One] the Italian, touching thy holy One, or religious one; that is to say, touching David, consecrated by thee: Who hath also faithfully, feared and served thee Psal. 4. 3. and is the figure of Christ, the true and great holy One of God, Psal. 16. 10. [I have laid] that is to say, I doe environ him with my help and protection, to whom I have committed the power over my people.

V. 20. I have found] it seemes to be a humane kinde of speach, as if hee said, after I had tried many servants, which have governed my people, I have fixed my [Page] selfe upon David. [Annointed] sacramentally with materiall oyle, 1 Sam. 16. 13. 2 Sam. 5. 3. and spiritually with the gifts of my Spirit.

V. 21. My hand] mine aide shall never forsake him.

V. 24. In my name] by my power, which he shall obtaine by calling upon my name.

V. 25. I will set] he shall conquer, and possesse all that land which I promised to my people throughout all the borders of it, Exod. 23. 31. Numb. 34. 3.

V. 27. My first borne] the chiefe and most eminent, as King of my people, to whom belongeth the right of first-borne, above other nations, Gen. 25. 23. 31. and is the figure of Christ, who is the true first-borne above all other creatures, Colos. 1. 15. 18.

V. 29. For ever] this is spoken chiefly in respect of Christ, who is eternall both in his person and kingdome.

V. 35. By my holinesse] namely, by my selfe, who am holinesse it selfe, laying my holinesse for a pledge, and gage of my saying. [That I will not lie] the Italian, if I lie, a concise manner of swearing often used in Scripture.

V. 37. As a faithfull] the Italian, there is a, namely, my selfe, see Iob 16. 19.

V. 38. Annointed] namely, a King of thy people, consecrated, and being one of  Davids posterity.

V. 40. To ruine] or to feare, that is to say, having caused those which stood in defence to be overtaken with great feare, the strong hold hath been easily taken by the enemies, see Deut. 32. 25.

V. 42. Set up] thou hast given them courage, and made them Conquerours.

V. 43. Turned] thou hast turned the edge of it, so that it could not cut, as 2 Sam. 1. 22.

V. 47. How short] see Psal. 39. 5. his meaning is, doe not by any extraordinarie afflictions seek the mine of thy poore creature, which is so fraile and unsteddy of it self: save us with speed, for otherwise wee shall be overthrown, and shall no more enjoy thy benefits, see Ioh 7. 7. 21. & 14. 14. [Invaine] making them neither the subject of thy benefits, nor instruments of thy service, but onely to cause them to perish.

V. 48. What man] that is to say, seeing that wee as well as all other men must once die; doe not make this our condition heavier with new and strange evils; let thy justice suffice thee, and out of thy mercie take pitie upon our inevitable misery, see Job 10. 20. & 13. 25. & 14. 5. [Shall not see] that is to say, taste of it and feele it.

V. 50. I doe beare] wherewith my heart is burthened and swelled.

V. 51. The foot-steps] namely, all the marks and monuments that remaine of thy peoples ancient Kingdome; or, they follow him upon the track with injuries and reproaches: Others, they doe scoffe at the foot-steps of thy Christ, that is to say, they make a jeast at the comming of the promised Messias, who is to re-establish the Kingdome: And for all this, is his comming yet delaid?

PSAL. XC.

THE title, [Man of] that is to say, Prophet.

V. 1. A dwelling place] all the while that we and our fathers have bin travellers in strange countreys, Gen. 15. 13. thou hast been a place of safety and dwelling to us, Ezech. 11. 16.

V. 2. Before the] a Scripture phrase to describe eternitie, which is opposite to time, and to whatsoever is most firme and lasting in it. [Thou art] and therefore we wretched mortalls doe flie unto thee everlasting Lord, as to the spring of our life, and cause of our escaping from death: which is the chiefe subject of this Psalm, see Psal. 102. 11. 12. 27. 28. Lam. 5. 19. 20.

V. 3. Return] thou dost irrevocably put in execution upon all men the sentence pronounced, Gen. 3. 19. concerning their returning to the earth from whence they were taken at the first creation.

V. 4. For] all their stay in this world, though oftentimes it be very long, is no way contrary to this sentence, for the longest time that is, is nothing being compared to eternity, which belongeth only to thee. [When it is] this is added, because that a man judgeth better of the shortnesse of time when it is past, then while it is running. [A watch] which is the fourth part of a night, see Mark 13. 35.

V. 5. Thou carriest] besides this generall necessity of dying, thou dost send whole deluges of extraordinary evils by particular judgements, which destroy man, Iob 14. 19.

V. 8. Thou hast set] a kinde of speech taken from Iudges, who examine a guiltie man, lay open his misdeeds, together with the proofes thereof, which is contrary to that which is spoken elsewhere, namely, that God covereth our sinnes, turnes his face away from them, and casteth them behind him. [Secret sinnes] or hidden, which a man doth himselfe forget, Psal. 19. 12.

V. 9. Passed away] the Italian, doe decline, a phrase taken from the going down of the Sunne, and from the declining of the day: [A table] the Italian, a word▪ or a thought.

V. 10. Threescore and ten] Moses hath a regard and relation to the most ordinary terme of life, and to the age which deserveth the name of life, beyond which life [Page] is but a continuall languishment, and a beginning of death, without any vigor or meanes of performing the actions of this life, or enjoy the commodities of it. [Their strength] the Italian, their flower, Hebrew, their excellency and glory.

V. 11. Who knoweth] though the shortnesse of mans life should teach a man to tremble, when he draweth neere to Gods judgements by death, [...]yet he is so stupid and so dull, that he doth not reap any sound document from thence, to learne how to lead his life well, Deut. 32. 29. God alone is able to work that in him by his spirit, Psal. 39. 4.

V. 14. Satisfie us] he makes an allusion to Manna, which fellevery morning in the wilderness. [Early] the Italian, every morning, or in the morning, that is to say, let thy grace renew with us as the day doth, Iam. 3. 23.

V. 16. Thy glory] namely, thy glorious power, deliverance, and providence, by which thou art also praised and glorified.

V. 17. The beauty] the Italian, the pleasing look, his loving kindnesse, his cleere and gracious eye, see Psal. 27. 4▪ [upon us, yea] that is to say, Doe thou from heaven, from whence as from an eminent place thou dost contemplate the end of all things, guide by thy feare unto a happy end, the life and actions of thine elect, who in this low world cannot see farre, nor see how to take their aime aright; Or for us, that is to say, for our good, and in our behoofe.

PSAL. XCI.

VER. 1. HE that dwelleth] whosoever through perseverance in faith, repositeth the whole trust of his salvation in Gods grace, who is the onely true refuge from all evils, though the world take no notice of him, is most secure under the safeguard of his Almighty power.

V. 2. I will say] I my selfe will put this holy Doctrine in practice, in my selfe.

V. 3. Surely] the answer of the spirit of God to the faithfull soule, see Psal. 27. 8. or it is a speech of the Psalmist to every faithfull man: [from the [...]are] from all ambushments and dangers.

V. 4. Hee shall cover] a phrase taken from birds. [His truth] thou shalt bee defended, and safe by vertue of his most true and infallible promises.

V. 9. Thou hast made] the Psalmist speaketh to his own soule. [Thy habitation] see Psal. 9. 1.

V. 13. Thou shalt tread] hiperbolicall and figurative termes; as much as to say, no creature shall bee able to doe thee any harme: especially in any thing as shall concerne a good life, and eternall salvation, Iob 5. 23. Isa. 11. 5. 9. Hos. 2. 18.

V. 14. On high] out of the reach of all assaults and hurts; [He hath known] being lively enlightned by my spirit, he acknowledgeth me to be his God, doth me service, and worshipping me.

V. 16. My salvation] namely, the accomplishment thereof, in the life everlasting.

PSAL. XCII.

THE title, song] see upon Psal. 30. in the title, [for the] to be solemnly sung in the holy assemblies upon the Sabbath day.

V. 3. A solemne sound] the Italian, with a vocall song, the Hebrew word is of a very doubtfull signification, yet it seemes to meane, vocall Musick.

V. 8. But thou] notwithstanding all these shewes of prosperity in the wicked; thou art for all that supream judge of the world, and wilt in due time, give them their due punishment.

V. 10. Shalt thou exalt] thou shalt make me a glorious Conqueror, see upon Psal. 75. 10. [I shall be] after the manner which was anciently used in feasts and merry makings.

V. 13. Those that] namely, the true elect, who shall have received from God the lively root of spirituall life in the Church, by the preaching of the Word and by his Spirit; taking their nourishment from the ground of Gods grace, which is therein dispensed.

V. 14. In old age] they shall grow old, yet shall they not want vigor, for to bring forth the fruits of their vocation, Psal. 103. 5. Isa. 40. 29. 31. and 65. 20.

V. 15. To shew] to attribute unto him the glory of inviolable justice contrary to mans conceit, who seeth Gods patience and bounty towards the wicked of this world.

PSAL. XCIII.

VER. 1. REigneth] this must bee chiefly understood of Gods spirituall Kingdome in the person of his sonne. [The world] that is to say, the State thereof renewed by the sonne of Gods reigne, is most justly ordered and guided by a righteous government, and maintained by an invincible power; so that it cannot be ruined either by inward default or any outward violence, Psal. 60. 2. and 82. 5.

V. 2. Of old] the Italian, from all eternity, Heb. from then, an Hebrew phrase to signifie an eternity without any beginning, Pro. 8. 22. as eternity without end is signified by any another terme which signifieth untill then.

V. 3. The floods] a figurative description of the worlds commotions and ragings against the sonne of Gods Kingdome, which are suppressed by his Soveraigne power.

V. 5. Thy testimonies] over the rest of the world, the Page Lord doth exercise his authority by power and justice, but in his Church by his Word and Spirit, which sanctifieth it unto God; [becommeth thy house] the Italian, is beautifull in thy house, this is all the excellencie of thy Church above the world.

PSAL. XCIIII.

VER. 1. TO whom vengeance] the Italian, of revenges, to whom it justly belongeth and hath authoritie to doe it, Deut. 32. 35. and who doth indeed execute it in time and place.

V. 4. Hard things] the Italian, hard words, namely, proud and insolent words against men and blasphemous against God.

V. 7. Regard it] the Italian, understands it not, or giveth no heed to it.

V. 10. That teacheth] not onely by his word, but also by his punishments and corrections, Psal. 119. 67. 71.

V. 11. The thoughts] not only the words, and deeds.

V. 12. Thou chastenest] with thy fatherly corrections.

V. 13. Mayest give him] that being chastened hee may convert himselfe and amend, to the end that hee may not perish with the world, 1 Cor. 11. 32. but may bee gathered to eternall rest, and even in this world be delivered from his evils.

V. 15. Iudgement] the world shall be put into an actual way of exercising justice and righteousness, by which the good shall be saved, and the wicked destroyed. [Shall follow it] the Italian, shall be after him, that is to say, God shall gather together his poore elect, who were before dispersed, and they shall follow him and cleave close unto him.

V. 17. In silence] or under earth, in the quiet and tenebrous cl [...]isters of death, where they doe not sing thy praises, a poeticall terme, as Psal. 115. 17.

V. 20. The throne] canst thou approve of, or favour these tyrants that doe abuse their publike authority by using of extortion?

V. 22. My refuge] the Italian, my confidence, or with whom I shall be safe.

PSAL. XCV.

VER. 3. ABove all] above any thing which is called God, either through abuse and mens false conceit, or through any resemblance of dignitie and glory.

V. 9. And saw] I made them also feele the punishments of my justice and the efficacie of my power according to their deserts; Or, although they had seen my works, and had so many times had experience of my grace, truth, and power.

V. 10. Have not known] they have no knowledge to understand, nor no affection to obey my commandements, to suffer themselves to bee peacefully and in faith guided by my providence.

V. 11. Rest] namely, into the countrey where I have promised to settle them in quietnesse, and where I will my selfe settle mine Ark, as in a firme and settled habitation, 2 Chr. 6. 41. Psal. 132. 8. which is a figure and pledge of mine everlasting rest in my glory, Heb. 4. 9.

PSAL. XCVI.

VER. 6. MAjesty] as beames sent forth from his eternall Deity. [Strength] hee exerciseth his glorious power in his Church.

V. 7. And strength] that is to say, honour, and acknowledgement of his infinite power.

V. 11. Rejoyce] as participating according to their degree and nature of the glory and happinesse of Christs Kingdome, see Psal. 69. 32. Rom. 8. 21.

V. 13. To judge] that is to say, to govern it by way of justice.

PSAL. XCVII.

VER. 1. The multitude of] the Italian, the great Isles, or the Isles in great number; By Islands are meant the great and generall parts of the world, divided and encompassed with the Sea.

V. 2. Clouds] a figurative description of the Messias his appearing, taken from that which is often repeated of the darknesse, wherewith God did hide the brightnesse of his presence when hee appeared, as when hee gave his Law, Exod. 19. 16. and at other times, 1 King. 8. 12. Psal. 18. 11.

V. 7. All yee Gods] the Apostle, Heb. 1. 6. referreth this to the Angels; but according to the propertie of the word, it may bee also more generally extended to all those who are called gods on earth, as Kings and Princes: And also to all creatures employed to Idolatrous uses: whereof the first ought to submit themselves by a religious worship and obedience unto Christs Soveraigne Kingdome; And the latter, through the preaching of the Gospel bee spoiled of their false honour; and freed from the Idolaters abuses, to let God alone he acknowledged and worshipped in the person of his Sonne.

V. 8. Sion] that is to [...]say, the Church in generall. [The daughters] the particular Churches, Ierusalem being as a mother, and the other cities as daughters. [Thy judgements] that is to say, the executions of thy justice, to destroy every power and dominion which shall oppose thine, and to establish thy Sonnes Kingdome.

V. 11. Light] eternall happinesse, as is even in this [Page] world prepared for the righteous: which have the seed thereof quick within themselves through Gods promises, and by the gift of the holy Ghost. Or it is spread abroad and laid open for them in Christs Kingdome.

PSAL. XCVIII.

VER. 1. Hath gotten him] that is to say, Christ by his own power, and by vertue of his most perfect righteousnesse, hath obtained for his own humane nature, and for his whole Church the victory over all his enemies, and eternall glory.

V. 2. Made known] namely by preaching of his Gospell: [his righteousnesse] namely his loyalty in his promises, his goodnesse, and mercy, the word righteousnesse being often used in this sense: unlesse Evangelicall righteousnesse be meant here, which is a pure gift of God, by which hee is pleased to justifie sinfull man, in vertue, and by the merit of his sonnes most perfect righteousnesse, embraced by a lively faith, Dan. 9. 24. Rom. 1. 17. and 3. 21.

V. 3. The house] namely according to the spirit, it being the true Church.

V. 6. The King] namely Christ Iesus, true and everlasting God in his owne nature, and established by his father universall King, in the qualitie of a mediator.

PSAL. XCIX.

VER. 1. BE moved] the Italian, tremble, namely with feare and reverence.

V. 2. In Sion] namely the Church, which is as the seat of this universall Empire, Isa. 2. 2. 3.

V. 4. Strength] that is to say, this King tempereth [...] is power with justice, contrary to the custome of tyrants of the world, see Iob. 36. 5.

V. 5. At his] the Italian, before his, a phrase taken from the thrones of earthly Kings: Or from the Arke of the covenant called footstoole, 1 Chro. 28. 2. towards which all ceremonia'l kinde of worship was to be done, either from neere or from farre off.

V. 8. Of their inventions] the Italian, of their actions, namely of the faults of his servants, as Exod. 32. 2 Num. 20. 2. 24. Deut. 9. 20. Or of the peoples sins. Others translate it, thou tookest vengeance for their actions, that is to say, thou wert a defender of their ministry, by grievously punishing the rebellious.

PSAL. C.

THE title: [Of traise] that is to say, made to give God thanks, peradventure publickly in the Temple, when the sacrifices of thanksgiving were offered, Levit. 7 12.

V. 3. Made us] as well in regard of the first naturall creation, as of the spirituall regeneration, Psal. 149. 2. Ephes. 2. 10.

PSAL. CI.

VER. 1. I will sing] I will in this Psalme make a vow to God, and a publick protestation to all the Church, of the good will which I will shew to good men; and the severe justice which I will exercise against guilty men, whensoever I shall attaine unto the Kingdome which the Lord hath promised mee.

V. 2. I will behave my selfe wisely in a &c.] the Italian, I will compose an instructing song concerning the perfect way: the Hebrew terme hath a relation to a certaine kind of sacred hymne called Masch [...], the titles of the Psalmes, which is as much as to say, a song of great instruction. Others translate it, I will give instructions concerning the perfect way. Or I will proceed wisely in the prefect way: [when] th [...] is to say, when wilt thou fullfill that which thou hast decreed, and thy promise, making mee King over thy people?

V. 3. I will set no] neither by desire, nor purpose: [that turne aside] namely from the right way of thy Law.

V. 4. Will not know] I will not regard him whosoever hee be, I will doe him no grace nor favour: I will cast him off, and shun him,

V. 5. Slandereth] he toucheth those vices which are most ordinary amongst courtiers.

V. 8. Early] the Italian, every morning, that is to say, every day, or carefully: by a simile taken from the daily sweeping of houses. Or hee hath a relation to that, that they did use in the morning to sit in judgement, Ier. 2 [...]. 12.

PSAL. CII.

THE title: [A prayer] it is apparent that this Psalme was penned towards the end of the Babylonian captivity, it being a forme of prayer, for the restauration of Gods people according to his promise: [his complaint] or his prayer.

V. 4. Like grasse] which is cut and dried, in the sun: [I forget] extreame affliction hath made mee forsake, and grow carelesse of my food: I have no taste, nor take no delight in it, whereby I am become drie, and I [...]ane.

V 5. To my skin] the Italian, my flesh, that is to say, [Page] to my skin.

V. 6. A Pelican] a solitary bird, which gives out terrible cries, wherein hee hath a relation to the Churches grievous lamentations when it is exiled.

V. 8. Are sworne] the Italian, doe make curses of mee, that is to say, by reason of my strange afflictions, they doe make mee an example of curses, saying, be thou accursed like such a one, see *Num. 5. [...]*7. Isa. 65. 15.

V. 9. I have eaten] a scripture phrase which signifieth lying with ones face upon the ground, amongst dust and ashes: a fashion which was used in great sorrowes and mournings, 2 [...] am. 12. 16. Iob. 2. 8.

V. 10. Listed mee up] this may be properly understood of the peoples former prosperity, which made their present calamity more grievous and sensible: or it is a similitude taken from those which lift up a thing, for to dash it so much the harder against the ground.

V. 12. But thou] though the Church seemes to faile, yet God endureth of ever, in essence, truth, and power; therefore hee can, and will restore it, see 1. am. 5. 19. [thy remembrance] namely all that which thou hast revealed to thy Church of thy selfe, and shee ought most faithfully to retaine and preach, see Isa. 26. 8. and 57. 8. Or plainly thy name, Hos 12. 5.

V. 13. The set time] namely of seventy yeares captivity, as it is most likely, 2 Chron. 36. 21 Ier. 25. 12. and 29. 10. Dan. 9. 2.

V. 14. In her stones] that is to say, to it, though it be brought into a heap of ruines, Psal. 79. 1.

V. 15. The heathen] the meaning is, that by Ieruselems and the peoples restauration; and by the Messias being borne and made manifest there according to the prophecies, God would open the gate for the vocation of the Gentiles, by the Gospell, which was to come out of Ierusalem.

V. 16. In his glory] that is to say, in his glorious manifestation, and operation of his power and grace.

V. 18. Which shall bee] that is to say, which shall hence forward be borne. Or if thi [...] be meant by the Gentiles, the people which thou shalt create anew. Or thy people Is [...]aer restored and set up [...]gaine as it were by a miracle, and into a new life, Isa. 43. 21 Ezech. 3 [...]. 3.

V. 23. In thew [...]y] in the time the Iowish nation was in prosperity before the time of its dissip [...]ion, which was the time prefixed by God himselfe for the Messias his comming Gen. 49. 10. which hath a relation t [...] [...] [...] flower of ones age, Iob 15. 3 [...]. Psal 55. 23. Prov. [...]. [...]. Eccl 7. 17.

V. 24. Thy yeares] the meaning is, thou hast joynd thy selfe to thy Church by an especiall covenant, which carrieth with it the co [...]muncation of benefits, correspondent to thine own proper nature; for as thou art living, so must shee live, as thou art everlasting, so must she be also, Matth. 22. 32. I beseech thee then to fulfill these effects of thy covenant of Grace.

V. 26. Shall perish] that is to say, being melted and dissolved by the fire, they shall change forme and state, yet shall not be brought to nothing, see Isa. 65. 17. and 66. 22. 2 Pet. 3. 7. 10. 11. The intent is, to shew that although God as he is Creator hath not communicated the gift of eternity to all his other creatures, yet he hath done it as a father to his children, ver. 18. see Lam 5. 19. 20. Hab. 1. 12. Matth. 22. 32.

PSAL. CIII.

VER. 1. ALL that is] namely, all my senses and all the faculties of my soule.

V. 3. Thy diseases] namely, corporall ones which he healeth, when and how, he in his providence thinks fitting; But especially the spirituall ones of sinne, corruption, and concupiscence, which hee healeth by the gift of regeneration, see Exod. 15. 26. Isa. 19. 22.

V. 4. From distruction] the Italian from the pit, that is to say, from many mortall dangers in this life; and especially from everlasting death and hell: [crowne thee] hee doth encompasse thee, and heap thee full, and raiseth thee up in spiritual glory.

V. 5. Like the Eagles] which is of long life, and alwayes vigorous and healthfull, whereby it seemes from time to time to grow young againe; Others understand it, of this birds changing her feathers, as Isa. 40. 31. Mich. 1. 16. Others doe apply it to some singularities of the Eagle which are not very certaine.

V. 7. His wayes] namely, his Law which is the true guide of ones life; Or, the conduct of his providence for the safety of his people.

V. 12. Removed] that is to say, he hath through his grace absolved and eased us of them, as though they nothing concerned us, and hath absolutely freed us from the punishment due for them: [from us] or from himselfe, turning his thoughts away from them, to not represent them unto his severe judgement in their naturall filthinesse.

V. 14. For hee] and therefore he takes compassion upon us, Psal. 78. 39. [our frame] the Italian, our nature; the Hebrew, frame: which may as well be understood, of the fraile, slippery, and mortall condition of our life and body, [...] [...] the defects and corrupt on of the soule, which are the two generall mi [...]ies of man, which move God to mercy and compassion.

V. 16. The place] a Scripture phrase, to expresse [Page] the entire abolishment of a thing, leaving neither signe, nor remnant thereof.

V. 17. Righteousnesse] namely, his loyalty in his promises and covenants.

V. 20. Hearkening] the Italian, obeying, or so soone as you heare his voice.

V. 21. His hoasts] this may be understood of the Angels, or of other celestiall bodies, Gen. 2. 1.

PSAL. CIV.

VER. 3. Layeth] Italian, maketh, figurative and poetically termes. [In the waters] namely, the upper waters, whereof see Gen. 1. 6. Psal. 148. 4.

V. 4. His Angels] that is to say, he hath them ready at his service, to send them here and there to execute his will: the Apostle, Heb. 1. 7. gathereth out of this comparison, that Angels are but creatures, and ministring spirits.

V. 5. Laid the foundations] the Italian, founded the earth upon her bases] figurative termes, for the earth hath no other foundation, but only its proper weight; by meanes of which it remaines immoveable in the center of the universe, Iob 26. 7.

V. 6. Thou coveredst it] according to some in the first creation, but it is most likely that this is meant by the generall deluge, Gen. 7. 19. for it is not likely that in the masse of the first creation, there were hills and valleys ready framed.

V. 8. By the valleys] hee calleth all channels beds of rivers, and other hollow places wherein waters are gathered, by this name.

V. 10. Into the valleyes] hee causeth them to rise above the earth out of the great abisse through certaine issues or vents, by some kinde of subterraneall boyling.

V. 13. The fruit] namely with the benefit of the raine, dew, &c. which thou bringest forth.

V. 15. His face] according to the custome of those times and places, which was to annoint the face with sweet smelling oyles, upon occasions of feasts or of rejoycing.

V. 16. Of the Lord] namely, that grow of themselves without any help of man through Gods onely will. Others believe that this addition was given them for nothing but onely to describe the heighth of these kinds of plants, as Psal. 80. 10. [Are full of sap] the Italian, are satisfied therewith, namely, with those raines, ver. 13.

V. 19. For seasons] namely, to distinguish the months, whereby are set forth the seasons of naturall things, and the times set down for sacred and civil affaires: [Knoweth] he never misses comming to the end of his compasse which he altereth every day, Job 38. 12. 19.

V. 21. And seek] the Italian, aske, a figurative terme, to signifie that as the roating of those beasts is a naturall signe that they want food, so God the author of nature and generall provider for all things, answereth them, as Iob 39. 3.

V. 24. How manifold] the Italian, how great, either in greatnesse or number.

V. 25. Creeping] namely, beasts that move, not with their bodies upright upon their legs, but that creep along upon the ground, or glide in the water, see Gen. 1. 20.

V. 26. Leviathan] a generall name for all great sea-fishes.

V. 27. Wait] the Italian, hope, by a secret instinct of nature, without discourse or understanding.

V. 29. Hidest] that is to say, thou takest away, and keepest back thy vertue. [To their dust] into the earth, from whence they were taken and framed, Gen. 1. 24. though the name of earth may be taken for all other elements, see upon, Gen. 2. 7.

V. 30. Thy Spirit] namely, that quickning power which preserveth all those things, which are created in their being; and it is an effect proper to the holy Ghosts person: [Created] that is to say, put into new life, and vigour.

V. 31. Shall rejoyce] let his works be acceptable unto him, seeing them employed to his glory and service, and not to sinne; through the malice of man, and let him thereby bee moved to blesse and preserve them, see Gen. 1. 4. 31.

V. 35. The Sinners] namely, the wicked which divert Gods love from his creatures, which they most wickedly abuse, and who doe not acknowledge nor worship the soveraign Majesty of this great Creator and Governour of the world: [Prayse yee the Lord] the Italian, Hallujah, an Hebrew word which signifieth praise the Lord, and hath been retained in the Christian Church as well as many other words, Rev. 19. 1. 3.

PSAL. CV.

GLory yee] let all your honour and glory be in him, who is and calleth himselfe your God, and honoureth you with the title of his people. [That seek] that doe fervently desire his grace and study to preserve it, and to bring themselves further and further into it, at the last to come into his sight and presence for ever, and to be perfectly joynd to him in his Kingdome.

V. 4. His strength] namely, his glory, whereof the Ark was a sign and pledge, and therefore is called the Ark of Gods strength, 2 Chron. 6. 41. Psal, 132. 8.

V. 5. The judgements] that is to say, his Lawes and statutes, or sentences pronounced against the wick- [Page] ed, and put in execution by his Almighty word.

V. 8. He commanded] which hee appointed by his Sovereaigne, and irrevocable decree.

V. 11. The lot] Hebrew, the cord; an instrument which was used in the dividing of lands, see Psal. 16. 6.

V. 15. Annointed] that is to say, sacred persons; seeing oile was emplyed anciently in consecrations; though wee doe not read that this ceremony was really used in the Patriarchs persons.

V. 19. His word came] which was revealed to Ioseph in dreames; [The word] namely, Gods providence and appointment.

V. 23. Of Ham] see Psal. 78. 51.

V. 24. Stronger] namely, in numerous issue.

V. 25. He turned] he suffered envie, false feare, and other evill affections to induce the Aegyptians to hate the people as much as before they had loved them: Now the evill work is attributed to God, not because hee is authour of it, which were as abominable to think as it is impossible to bee, but because hee not restraining the the malice of man, and suffering the divell to tempt him with strong objects, occasions and provocations, it must needs produce its proper effects; which God would have to fall out so for some good end, though hee reprove the wickednesse and perversnesse of it.

V. 27. They] namely Moses and Aron, Psal 99. 6.

V. 36. The chiefe] namely, the first-borne, Gen. 49. 3. Psal. 78. 51.

V. 37. Feeble person] they were all lusty and healthfull, which was opposite to the Egyptians last plague, Exod. 11. 7.

V. 41. They ran] the Italian, brooks ran, see upon Psal. 78. 16.

PSAL. CVI.

VER. 2: The mighty acts] his high and powerfull acts.

V. 7. The red Sea] it seemeth hee meanes, that even when they were come in the very place where the sea did runne, walking over dry land, they did still continue their murmuring and rebellions.

V. 8. For his name sake] not regarding them, but of his own meere free-will, to performe his will and promises, and by this meanes to maintaine his glory and make it to shine.

V. 13. They waited not] they did not submit through faith, humility, and patience, unto Gods providence; to expect the accomplishment of their deliverance at his appointed time, see Psal. 78 41.

V. 15. But sent] taking away his blessing from this food, they were not nourished nor fed thereby; but it brought leanenesse and distastefulnesse with it; an infirmity which often comes from fulnesse, whence proceeds that loathing which the Lord hath threatned them with, Num. 11. 20.

V. 16. The Saint] whose person was consecrated to be the Lords Priest.

V. 20. Their glory] namely, their glorious God, Ier. 2. 11. who did also clothe them with glory by his presence, vertue, and benefits, which they lost by their Idolatry, Exod. 32. 25. And this word of glory seemeth to be opposite to the word shamefull thing, which is attributed to Idols, Ier. 3. 24. & 11. 13. Hos. 9. 10.

V. 23. His chosen] the man who was chosen by him to bee mediator between him and the people: [Stood] a phrase taken from sieges and assaults, to shew the power of prayer, and other meanes appointed by God, to turn his wrath away, see Exod. 13. 5. and 22. 30.

V. 24. The pleasant Land] the Italian, the Land to be desired; the Land of Canaan is often called so, because of its wonderfull fruitfulness, and plenty of all manner of blessings; and chiefly because it was a pledge and sacrament of the Kingdome of heaven, see Ier. 3. 19.

V. 26. Listed up] that is to say, he sware, as Gen. 14. 22.

V. 28. Of the dead] namely of Idols, dead things without life or vertue in them; opposite to the living God; Or by this word is set forth the origine and beginning of Idolatry, which was to attribute divine honours to great persons, when they were dead.

V. 30. Stood up] as verse 23.

V. 31. That was] God approved this fact as just, and proceeding from true zeale, and assigned unto him and his posterity for their reward, the Priesthood for ever, Num. 25. 13. see Deut. 24. 13.

V. 33. He spake] see of this error committed by Moses upon Num. 20. 10.

V. 36. Which were] namely the Idols, or they, namely, the nations, see Exod. 23. 33. Deut. 7. 16. Iudg. 2. 3.

V. 37. Their sonnes] against the expresse Law, Levit. 18. 21. & 20. 2. Deut. 12. 31. & 18. 10. [Vnto devils] who were served in those Idols, see Lev. 17. 7. Deut. 32. 17. 1 Cor. 10. 20. Rev. 9. 20.

V. 39. Went a whoring] spiritually by Idolatry, and also bodily, these two sinnes being ordinarily coupled together.

V. 43. With their] following in every thing their own will and understanding, see Num. 15. 39.

V. 45. Repented] hath changed his severe way of proceeding into clemencie; a humane kinde of speech,

Gen. 6. 6.

V. 46. Made them] hath softened their enemies hearts, and caused them to use them kindly, see Ez. 9. 9. Pro. 16. 7. Jer. 42. 12. Dan. 1. 9.

V. 47. To tryumph] that is to say, in the glory, [Page] shewed in our deliverance, and preached by thy Gospel, we may take an occasion in a godly manner to boast of thy grace being delivered from our former ignominy.

PSAL. CVII.

VER. 3. FRom the South] the Italian, from the Sea, in the distinction of divers countries of the world, this word ordinarily signifies the West, in regard of the Mediterranean Sea which lieth Westward from Palestine; but in this place it should seeme it meaneth the South, in regard of the red Sea or the Ocean, which are Southerly.

V. 8. Oh that, &c.] the Italian, Let them therefore acknowledge before the Lord his goodnesse, and before, &c. namely, let them acknowledge it before the Lord with thanksgiving, and before men, with prayes and celebration.

V. 10. In the shadow] namely, in dark Caves and horrid Prisons, in continuall terror of death.

V. 11. The councill] the Law and Word of God is so called, being a sure director and faithfull counseller to man in all his enterprises, see Psal. 73. 24. and. 119. 24.

V. 17. Afflicted] namely, with sicknesse.

V. 20. He sent] hee hath delivered them by his will only, which is alwayes accompanied with infinite power, see Psal. 147. 15.

V. 23. Goe down] the Hebrewes speak thus because of the low Lands which are by the Sea-side in respect of the high land, especially in that part of Palestine which is hillie.

V. 26. Of trouble] trouble of the body, and passion and anguish of the minde.

V. 29. The waves] namely, the Sea which had been so angry with them.

V. 32. The Elders] the Magistrates and Senators.

V. 33. Riuers] namely the medow lands and grounds which are well watered with streames and rivers.

V. 39. Againe] namely, when they are defiled with sinne, and so provoke Gods wrath: [Through oppression] the Italian, through distresse, or through oppression, or through barrennesse.

V. 40. He poureth] that is to say, hee degradeth them from their dignities, hee disrobeth them of Majesty and respect, Iob 30. 11. by warres, seditions, and rebellions of their people, or by some other meanes; and when they are driven out, they cannot finde any setled abode.

V. 42. All iniquitie] the wicked mens boldnesse in repressed by these judgements of God, and generally by all evident acts of his providence, so that they dare not glorifie themselves, nor will not contend any more, being convinced by their own consciences, and are dismayed and confounded in their thoughts, not knowing what to say in these accidents, which fall out so contrary to their imaginations and hopes.

PSAL. CVIII.

The title, [Psalm of] see upon Psalm, 30. in the Title.

V. 1. My heart] the seven first verses of this Psalm, are the same as the five last of the 57 Psalm, and the rest of this Psalm are the same as the last eight of the 60. Psalm.

PSAL. CIX.

V. 1. OF my praise] who art the onely subject and theame of my praises, by reason of thy continuall benefits bestowed upon me, or in whom I glory, notwithstanding all the reproaches of mine enemies, being assured of thy grace and assistance, see Exod. 15. 2. Psal. 22. 2.

V. 4. To prayer] that is to say, I have prayed to God for them, Psal. 35. 1 [...]. Or, I have done nothing but pray, that is to say, all my defence and refuge hath been to turn to the Lord by prayer, as Psal. 69. 13.

V. 6. Set thou] this being referred to  Davids enemies, meaneth, that the head of his persecutors may bee subject to some cruell tyrant, who may give him no rest; but being understood of Iudas who was guide to those that took our Lord Iesus, it signifieth that hee was altogether given over to the divell, which are propheticall imprecations and denuntiations, endited by the holy Ghost, as it appears by Iohn 17. 12. and must not therefore serve to make presidents of: [Satan] or the adversary: [Stand] to torment and annoy him, or else for to accuse him before the Lord, Zach. 3. 1.

V. 7. Iudged] every time that hee hath any suite, let him be cast in it. And as for Iudas who is figured by him, let his sinne be irremissible. [His prayer] let all the petitions and requests which he shall present to the Iudges, doe nothing but incense them so much the more against him. And let not God heare any prayer that comes from Iudas; but let his condemnation be the more grievous by meanes of them.

V. 8. Another] let that principall persecutor of mine be dispossessed of his publike dignity, which hee abuseth against me, and let Iudas lose his Apostles place, Acts 1. 20. to give it way to Matthias.

V. 11. Catch] let him draw him to him by traps and deceits: [His labour] namely, all that he hath gotten [Page] with much tolle and labour, Iob 20. 18.

V. 13. Following] the Italian, in the second generation, that is to say, in a short time, not continuing long in his posterity.

V. 14. Bee remembred] namely, against him to make him beare the full measure of punishment, as hee hath heaped up the full measure of sinne, Exod. 20. 5.

V. 15. Of them] namely, of that wicked man and of his Ancestors.

V. 17. Cursing] namely, to curse others.

V. 20. That speak] that talk or determine upon my death, or doe raise deadly slanders upon me.

V. 21. For thy name sake] see upon Psal. 106. 8.

V. 27. That this] namely, this my deliverance, which I desire and hope to obtaine at thy hands; or my sufferances which depend upon thy meere will, and no wayes upon mine enemies wills or powers; which is much more verified in Christs sufferings, figured out by  Davids, Isa. 53. 4. 10.

V. 30. The multitude] the Italian, the great ones, namely Kings and Princes; I being of the same degree and dignity, to extoll thy glory so much the more by their acknowledgement, as  Psal. 107. 32. & 119. 46. & 138. 1. Others, amongst a multitude of people; that is to say, in the full assembly of thy Church.

V. 31. Stand] to help him, and hold him up, as  Psal. 16. 8. [That condemn] Hebrew, that doe judge his soule.

PSAL. CX.

VER. 1. The Lord] namely, God the Father, as chiefe in this councell, hath from eternity decreed, and in his appointed time hath made it manifest, that his sonne who is true God (and therefore as well by nature, as by his office of King of the Church, is  Davids master, Matth. [...]2.) should obtaine, as Mediator, in the union of his humane nature which he shall take upon him, an universall Kingdome over all the world; and as his Fathers great deputy, and hee that representeth the Kingdome of Gods glory: And that to this purpose his humanity should be exalted to the highest degree of heavenly glory under God: So the next degree of dignity under the highest, is signified by these words: [Sit thou at my right hand] 1 Kings 2. 19. Psal. 45 9. see of this Kingdome of Christ, Matth. 11. 27. & 28, 18. Mark. 16. 19. Iohn 3. 35. & 5. 22. Ephes. 1. 20. Colos 3. 1. Hob. 1. 3. & 8. 1. & 12. 2. 1 Pet. 3. 22. [Vntill] that is to say, untill that by my power, which thou hast from mee, by vertue of thy being engendred from all eternity, and by the unspeakable assistance of mine own person, thou [...]ast overthrow all the enemies of thy Kingdome; amongst which death shall be the last, 1 Cor. 15. 26. Not that Christs Kingdome shall cease after that, for it must be everlasting. But onely the quality of the King shall first bee changed, for he shall then reigne no more as Mediator and Deputie, but as true God of the same essence with the Father; Then the forme of reigning shall be changed, for then he shall reign without any externall meanes, without instruments, without enemies or hinderances; without any modification, or voluntary restriction of his Almighty power, justice, &c. without distinction of times, or diversitie of operations, and other circumstances proper to the government of his Kingdome in this world, see 1 Cor. 15. 24. 28.

V. 2. Shall send] he shall cause this thy Kingdome, which was founded amongst the Iewes by thy presence in the flesh, to spread abroad from Ierusalem, Isa. 2. 3. Mic. 4. 2. Luke 24. 47. throughout all the world by the preaching of the Gospel, which is the power of God, Rom. 1. 16. 1 Cor. 1. 18. with which as with a royall Scepter, he governeth his Church.

V. 3. Thy people] when thou, by thy Gospel shalt come forth of Ierusalem, like to a great King or Captaine, to goe and conquer the world; the elect shall voluntarily come under thy banners, to follow and serve thee in these thine enterprises: [Of thy power] the Italian, when thou shalt muster thine Army; or, in the day of thy strength; that is to say, when thou shalt lay open thy strength by the sending forth of thy spirit, and the power of it, to convert the world by thy Gospel: [In the beauties of holinesse] the Italian, in thy stately sanctuary, namely, in Ierusalem, where even then shall bee the seat of thy most glorious temple, Psal. 96. 9. and shall have been superabundantly glorified by thy presence in the flesh, Hag. 2. 9. [The dew] as at the dawning of the day the dew is engendred: so at the first manifestation of thy Gospel, an innumerable company of elect shall arise, newly regenerated, and a heavenly off-spring, Isa. 53. 10. Mic. 5. 7. 1 Pet. 2. 2. who by faith and confession shall joyne themselves to thee.

V. 4. After the] in a Priesthood which for the qualities of the person, for the property of his office, and the perpetuall lasting of it shall have no affinity nor conformity with the ordination of the Levites, but onely with Melchisedechs singular ordination; as it is brought in Gen. 14. 18. and as it is at large described by thy Apostle, Heb. 7.

V. 5. The Lord] namely, God the father, as hee who being the origine and beginning of thine eternall being, and the head of all this work of Redemption, shall beare thee up by his divine power, Isa. 42. 6. & 49. 8. & 51. 16. [Thy right] to assist and maintaine thee, see Psal. 16. 8. & 109. 31. [shall] namely, Christ the Sonne of God, verse 1. [Page]  Davids words. [Strike through] a figurative description of Christs spirituall victories: [Kings] namely, rebellious ones, and such as are enemies [...] into him.

V. 6. The heads] the Italian, the head, namely, the Divell prince of the world, Deut. 32. 42. Psal. 68. 21. Hab. 3. 13. and with him, the great Empires the world, which hee shall cause to rise and be instruments of his rebellion against Christ, Revel. 13. 2.

PSAL. CXI.

VER. 2. Sought out of] the Italian, Laid open before all them, that is to say, laid plainly open the great Theater of the Church; Or, worthy to be sought out, or exquisite.

V. 3. Glorious] the Italian, glory, exceeding glorious and honourable.

V. 5. He hath given] he hath miraculously fed his people in the wilderness.

V. 7. Sure] as well for the meere declaration of his will; as, also for the loyall promise of mercy to them that shall keep them, which promise is added to his said commandements.

V. 9. Redemption] he eemes to have an especiall relation to the deliverance out of Egypt, after which the law was given, and the covenant solemnly renewed.

V. 10. The beginni [...]g] namely, the very foundation and origine. [His prayse] namely, the approbation and gl [...]rious reward which man receives from God, Rom. 2. 29. Or prayse of God himselfe.

PSAL. CXII.

VER. 3. ANd his] the fruit and reward thereof is assured to us in this world, and shall be eternall in heaven.

V. 4. Ariseth] through the middest of the darknesse of ignorance, depravation, and the miseries of this world, the Lord doth enlighten his by the light of his word, spirit, grace, and favour, whereby they are made truly happy; Or if they doe fall into any evils, the Lord returneth at his appointed time, and causeth them to behold his countenance in joy and salvation.

V. 6. Remembrance] with men for to bee praised for it, and with God to receive the promised reward.

V. 7. Of evill] of evill reports of slanders, reproaches, or evill newes.

V. 10. The desire] that which they desire shall never come to passe; their desires shall bee all in vaine: Or, that good and happinesse which they have so much desired, shall vanish away when they are in the heighth of their pleasures.

PSAL. CXIII.

VER. 3. PRaised] all creatures set forth his honour; that is to say, doe yeeld abundant matter for to praise him.

V. 6. To behold] hee doth not disdaine from his high seat of glory to provide for all creatures both celestiall and terrestriall.

PSAL. CXIV.

VER. 2. IVdah] namely, the whole Nation of Israel, (divided before the separation of the tenne Tribes into Israel and Iudah, by reason of this Tribes prehemidency) which by reason of their deliverance, were a proper, peculiar, and holy Nation to God, Exod. 6. 7. & 19. 6.

V. 3. Saw it] namely, the Lord appearing in his power in the cloudy pillar: [And fled] that is to say, retired suddenly back, as it were to make way for the Lord: Poetica [...] termes.

V. 4. The mountaines] a description of the shaking of Mount Sinai, Exod. 19. 18. Psal. 68. 8.

PSAL. CXV.

VER. 1. NOt unto us] O Lord accomplish and fulfill our salvation; not having any regard unto us or our work, nor yet making use of any humane meanes therein, whereby any part of glory may bee diverted and taken away from thee, to bee imputed or given to us; But doe it by thine onely grace and power: that thy loving kindnesse towards us wretched sinners, and thy truth in thy promises may by thee be used and by men acknowledged and adored.

V. 8. Are like] the Italian, Let them be like, that is to say, let God take away all understanding and use of reason from them, seeing they doe so unworthily abuse it to his dishonour, Rom. 1. 23. 28. Others translate it, they are like unto them, that is to say, the Idolaters are as stupid and blind in feigning to themselves any godhead in the Idols, as the Idols themselves are.

V. 15. You are] or shall be.

V. 16. The Lords] namely, to be the seat of his glory Matth. 5. 34. & 23. 22. [Hath given] namely, the use of it, depending from his providence and supreme dominion, nor any absolute proprietie.

V. 18. But we] being redeemed, preserved alive, and re-established by him.

VER. 1. Hath heard] he doth continually heare mee and never faileth me.

V. 3. The sorrowes] Italian, the bounds, according to others, the sorrowes, see upon Psal. 18. 5.

V. 5. Righteous] in delivering his children from unjust oppression.

V. 7. Dealt bountifully] the Italian, rewarded thee, namely for thy faith and patience, Or he hath done thee good.

V. 9. I will walk] with all acknowledgment and gratitude, I will consecrate my whole life unto thy service, having thee alwayes before mine eyes to depend upon thee by faith and to frame all mine actions according to thy holy will.

V. 10. Have I spoken] Italian, I wil speak, that is to say, I have trusted in Gods promises, and therefore having found the effects thereof, I will not bee dumb like one that is dismayed, having failed in his hopes; but I will speak glorifying my selfe in God, giving him than [...]s and making open profession of my trust in him.

V. 11. I said] see upon Psa. 31. 22. [Are lyars] he seemes to have a relation to Samuel his message that he brought him from the Lord concerning Gods promises to him, and finding himself far from the effects of them, hee had made some doubt of the Prophets truth; Or, the meaning may be plainly thus, What can I hope for, seeing every man betrayeth me, and that I can trust no body.

V. 13. I will talk] I will solemnly and joyfully acknowledge him; a phrase taken from the custome observed in sacrifices of thanksgiving; after which they made a feast wherein the father of the family, for the honour of God, & to stirre up all the assistants to joyne in mirth and praying of the Lord; did take a cup in his hand, and used a certaine forme of blessing; and having drank, caused the cup to passe round to all the rest: And from that Christ took the ceremony of the holy communion, 1 Cor. 10. 16.

V. 15. Precious] namely, for to defend them from it and to revenge it, if it happen by any violence of men; and to be pleased with it as with a sacrifice; and to remunerate it as a triall, and victory of their faith, and an accomplishment of their obedience, see Psal 72. 14. [Of his Saints] or of good and godly men.

PSAL. CXVIII.

VER. 6. ON my side] or with me, or neare me. V. 10. Compassed had begir [...] me round.

V. 2. Fire of thornes] which lasts but for a blast, and leave; no [...]mbers nor coales, see Eccles. 7. 6.

V. 14. And song] he is the author and subject of my mirth and pra [...]ses.

V 18. The Lord] or the Lord hath punished mee grievously.

V. 19. The gates] namely, of Gods temple; where the law of God, which is the rule of righteousness is preached and taught, and where the chiefe part of it, namely, Gods service, is performed, and where we ought not to come in without an upright and sanctified soule.

V. 20. Of the Lord] namely, of his house, through which man draweth neere unto him, he being there present in the signes and pledges of his grace: [The righteous] for to such and not to prophane persons, it belongeth to enter in there; see Isa. 35. 8. Revel. 21. 27. and 22. 15. Or, the meaning is, God will not suffer good men alwayes to bee kept aloofe off from his house, as I have beene during Sauls persecutions, see Ec [...] Ies. 8. 10.

V. 22. The stone] figurative termes, to shew first and litterally,  Davids miraculous exaltation to the Kingdom, though the chiefe of the people did contemne and reject him: Then spiritually and prophetically, Christs establishment, God making him the foundation of his Church; though the Priests and other chief of the people to whom the building of the ancient Church was committed, did reject and withstand him.

V. 25. Save now] this is the signification of the Hebrew word H [...] sanna, which was an acclamation they were wont to make to new Kings; which was also made to Christ, Matth. 21. 9. [Send now] namely, to our King, and to us through him.

V. 26. That commeth] whom God sendeth to be King over us, being consecrated and elected by him, to be as it were his Deputy: Acclamations made by the Priests and people when David came into the Temple, and likewise to Christ whose figure David was: [We have] we Priests, Ministers of Gods Temple, whose office it is to blesse the people, doe blesse thee David, and all thy followers.

V. 27. Light] the Italian, a cleere light, namely, of his grace, peace, and blessing, after the dark night of miseries and confusions which we have suffured: [Binde] make ready sacrifices of thanks-giving. [The hornes] whereof see Exod. 27. 2. to these hornes it should seeme by this place they did use to tie the beasts which were for offerings, whilst the Priest laid his hand upon them, and used other ceremonies of prayers and devotions; and presently after did spill the blood at the foot of the Altar, as it is set down, Lev. 17. 6.

PSAL. CXIX.

VER. 1. VN defiled] namely, that converse. and proceed in all equity and integrity▪ in all their actions and life.

V. 2. Testimonies] namely, his law and word, which are a most true declaration of his vul, which otherwise is c [...]ncealed and u [...].

V. 5. Directed] or firme and se led.

V. 9. Wherewith] shall man being impure and na- [Page] turally defiled with sinne, bee able, as soone as hee commeth to have the use of reason, to amend that naturall corruption and to live holily and purely.

V. 14. In the way] namely, by giving my selfe to practice the true knowledge and performance of thy holy word in my whole course of life.

V. 18. Open] amend in me my naturall ignorance, giving me the lively light of thy Spirit; by which I may apprehend thy Law in its spiritual sense, and thy whole word in the mysteries of thy promised salvation; which are otherwise incomprehensible to the flesh, Matth. 16. 17. 1 Cor. 2. 7. 11. 14.

V. 19. A stranger] the world is not my countrey, it is but only away to passe to heaven; which way, of my selfe, I know not, guide me therefore, as in a strange place, by thy Law, that I may not go astray.

V. 21. Rebuked] or destroyed.

V. 23. Also] in my greatest persecutions as I have suffered by Saul and his counsellors; I never left meditating upon thy word, as well to comfort my selfe, and put my trust in it, as also to keep mee within the bounds of my true obedience to thee.

V. 25. My soule] I am cast down beyond all hope of reliefe, if thou dost not raise mee and restore mee to life, Psal. 44. 25.

V. 26. I have declared] I have alwayes laid open my heart, thoughts, and estate unto thee, desiring of thee the assistance of thy grace, spirit, and word, and thou hast granted it; O continue thou towards me thus hereafter.

V. 28. Melteth] the Italian, droppeth, namely in teares; or melteth.

V. 29. Remove] keep me, that I may never give my selfe to any fallacie or deceit, and deliver me from the fraudes and deceits of other men.

V. 32. Enlarged] out of the streights it is in, by the joy and consolation of thy spirit, which is the true well-spring of all free and cheerefull obedience; or from the bonds of naturall slavery to sinne by thy spirit of freedome, Rom. 6. 17. 18. 22. and 8. 2.

V. 37. Vanity] namely, the world and the lusts thereof which have no true happinesse in them, but are like unto apparitions and transitorie shadowes▪ [Quicken thou me] preserve and encrease in me the spirit of regeration and spirituall life, that I may continually bring forth greater fruits of that life, by obeying thy law.

V. 39. My reproach] wherewith mine enemies rep [...]roach me. [Are good] and therefore it is not sitting that I should be blamed and reproached as an evill doer so long as I keep and observe thy lawes.

V. 40. In thy righteousnesse] namely in the keeping of it, or by thy righteousnesse, namely, thy loyalty in preforming that which thou promisest, and specially in giving spirituall things to those that desire them of thee.

V. 42. Answer] then shall I bee able boldly to confute the reproaches of mine enemies, that doe scoffe at my trust in thee, when I shall finde the effect thereof are come to passe.

V. 43. Take not] doe not suffer me to want power, or courage to talk of thy holy promises; by finding my selfe fallen from those hopes which I had put in them. [In thy judgements] the Italian, in thy Lawes namely, in that which thou hast set downe concerning my salvation; or, in thy judgements, namely, which thou shalt give in the behalfe of thine elect, and for the punishment of the wicked.

V. 45. At liberty] the Italian, at large, out of distresse and affliction both of body and minde, being fully at liberty, vers. 32.

V. 48. Lift up] ones gesture, who doth most servently desire a thing.

V. 50. Thy word] namely, that thou hast regenerated me in the hope of eternall life by thy word; or, that thou hast recreated and eased me through thy holy promises.

V. 52. Thy judgements] namely, which thou hast alwayes executed upon the wicked, who are my persecutors: Others, thy lawes which have been for ever, that is to say, thine eternall decrees concerning my salvation which thou hast revealed mee by thy word.

V. 53. Because of the] considering their grievous sinnes and the cruell punishment which thou wilt therefore inflict upon them.

V. 56. This I had] namely, that in my greatest afflictions I have received comfort from thee; whereof hee had spoken in the former verses.

V. 57. I have said] that is to say, I have resolved within my selfe.

V. 60. I made haste] that is to say, I have speedily disposed my selfe to follow thy will in all things, without going back or doubting.

V. 62 Thy righteous judgments] the Italian, the lawes of thy righteousnesse, I make thy holy word the principall subject of my praises, it being one of the greatest benefits that thou hast bestowed upon man.

V. 64. The earth] as thou dost largely bestow thy blessings upon all creatures according to their nature and condition; so I doe desire the spirituall blessings of the lively light of thy law and word; which are sitting and convenient for the being and happinesse of my soule.

V. 66. [...]each me] seeing thou hast done mee this first [...]avour, as to let me receive thy word by faith, which word is divine and worthy to be both believed and obeyed, [...]e me also this second favour namely, to let me understand it [...]nd apprehend it, that I may com [...]ort my selfe in the promises there [...]f, and may [...]ulfill the commandements of it, and let my faith be encreased through understanding and knowledge.

V. 70. Their heart] this may be understood either of [Page] the great abundance of corporall goods, wherewith the wicked grow fat, as Deut. 32. 15. Iob 15. 27. Psal. 17. 10, and 73. 7. Or, of their stupidity and hardnesse in evill, as Isa. 6. 10.

V. 73. Thy hands] as thou hast given me a naturall being, so give me also a spirituall being in faith and knowledge; without which thou art neither glorified by me, nor hast any service done unto thee, nor man hath no happinesse.

V. 74. Will be glad] seeing in mee a notable example for those which hope in thy grace, see Psal. 34. 2. and 64. 10.

V. 75. Right] the Italian, righteousnesse, namely, just severitie in punishing of mens sinnes; and a loyall love towards thy children in correcting them by afflictions.

V. 77. Come unto me] have pity upon me, that I may be restored from my former calamities, and by that meanes I may serve thee effectually according to my desire.

V. 78. Dealt perversly] the Italian, subvert me, that is to say, they strive to overthrow me.

V. 79. *T [...]*rne unto m [...]] for to joyne with me, who am the chiefe of the good side, forsaking the wicked: or to behold in me an example of thy grace to bee thereby comforted, and strengthened ver. 74.

V. 81. Fa [...]teth] through a fervent & extream desire.

V. 83. Like a bottle] withered, scorched, and black with extreame misery, as Iob 30. 30. Lam. 5. 10.

V. 84. The dayes] namely, of my evils and calamities, as Psal. 39. 4. Or, of my life, and so the sense would be: My life is of it selfe already so short and frail that I would desire thee to take pity upon me, & not suffer it to be oppressed by mine enemies.

V. 85. Have digged] have laid snares, A terme taken from hunters.

V. 86. All thy] seeing that thy Law is just and righteous, favouring innocency, and contrary to wrong and injury, defend me according to that, from mine enemies which do unjustly oppresse me.

V. 88. Quicken me] that is to say, restore me to life or preserve me alive.

V. 89. In heaven] that is to say before thee, in thy minde and will, though according to the chances and appearances of the world, it seemes to suffer many changes, lets, and diminutions: Or it sheweth it selfe to bee settled in the heavens by the being and order of them; seeing that through the power of thy word, they have lasted without any change ever since the creation.

V. 90. Thou hast] the same is also to be [...] seene in the masse of this lower world.

V. 92. Unlesse thy law] unlesse I had been strengthened and comforted by the most sweet meditation of thy word, I had beene overcome by my calamities, see Psal. [...]. 13.

V. 93. Quikened me] restored, rejoyced, & eased me.

V. 96. Is exceeding broad] it doth last eternally in its strength and authority, and also bringeth forth the fruit of life and everlasting blessing to them that keep it, see Matth. 5. 19. and 24 35.

V. 97. Meditation] or that which I talk of.

V. 98. With me] the Italian, mine, as they are rooted in my heart, and are not as an outward law to mee, to force my will by constraint but by an internall conformitie of all mine inward senses and motions, see Jer. 31. 33. Rom. 6. 17.

V. 104. Therefore] namely because I have learned by thy law to judge uprightly; or because I am possessed with true and sound wisdom, I doe hate fraud which hath but a false outside.

V. 108. The freewill offerings] the blessings and thanks which I yeeld unto thee with a willing heart for all thy blessings, Psal. 50. 14. and 69. 30. 31. Hos. 13. 2. Heb. 13. 15.

V. 109. In my hand] the Italian, in the palm of my hand, that is to say, I am in continuall dangers of death: A Scripture phrase taken from them things which one carrieth in the palme of his hand, which are subject and easie to fall or to be taken away, see Iudg. 12. 3. Iob 13. 14.

V. 111. An heritage] namely, my true soveraigne, and peculiar good, which I hold from thee as a child of thy grace.

V. 113. Vaine thoughts] the Italian, discourses▪ namely vaine and deceitfull ones, which [...]avour of carnall wisdom, contrary to the simplicity of faith, and to that obedience which is due unto thee, see Eccles. 7. 29. Rom. 1. 21. 1 Cor 3. 20.

V. 115. I will] that being [...]r [...]ed from your disturbances & persecutions, I may peaceably attend upon Gods service; or, that you may give me no scandal.

V. 117. Have respect] or will take pleasure in them: Or, will attend upon them.

V. 118. Their deceit] namely, their devices and wily counsels in which they trust, do deceive them at last, not being able thereby to avoid thy judgement: Or, they are abominable unto thee because that in all their actions there is nothing but fraud, and thou art the author and lover of truth.

V. 119. Like drosse] which consumes away in the fining of metals. [Therefore] namely, to avoid these terrible punishments: Or, the more I behold the punishments which thou iuflictest upon the wicked, the dearer is thy grace unto me, which is revealed to me by thy word.

V. 122. Be surety] a phrase taken from men, who when they are sureties for a debter, do free him [...]ut of the hands of a cruell creditor: The meaning is, doe thou stand between me and mine oppressors, to rescue me from them, see Isa 38. 14.

V. 123. Of thy righteousnesse] which is most loyall and holy.

V. 126. It is time] mens malice is grown to the [Page] heighth, good men are put to the uttermost of their patience, and Gods glory is abused beyond measure. [For they] namely, the worldly and wicked. [Made void] taking away the honour and authority due to it, through their wickednesse and rebellion.

V. 127. Therefore] the more I see them violated by the wicked, the more am I confirmed through holy love & zeal against their scandals, see Iob 17. 9.

V. 129. Are wonderfull] as well by reason of the mysteries of heavenly wisdom, as also by reason of the promises of the everlasting happinesses to come. [Therefore] as well by reason of the humble respect I beare to their divine substance; as also by reason of my desire to enjoy those happinesses which are promised by them.

V. 130. The entrance] though thy word doe abound in mysteries, yet thou declarest and revealest them by thy spirit to thine elect; who forsaking the sence of the flesh doe in all simplicity yeeld unto and believe what is taught them, Matth. 11. 25.

V. 131. I opened] the action of those that runne after any thing; or that are wondrous thirsty; which setteth forth his zeale to Gods law.

V. 132. As thou usest to doe] the Italian, *as it is [...]*itting to doe, or according to thy custome to those, &c.

V. 133. Order] the Italian, establish, or direct. [Iniquity] vice or evill inclination to sinne, Rom. 6. 12.

V. 144. And I shall live] being guided by thy Spirit, I shall beware of sinne and be afraid to quench that spirituall life which thou hast created within me; but shall seek to increase it daily by practice.

V. 147. I prevented] I have been the first that hath prayed unto thee: Or, I have come to meet thee, and present my selfe unto thee.

V. 148. My eyes] I have awaked of my selfe in the night, before I have been called upon by the watch men, who call in the night to tell folks the seasons or watches of the night.

V. 149. According to thy] namely, according to that rule by which thou dost proceed with thy children, and which thou hast set down of thine own free wil; by which rule thou dost not deny the gift of thy holy spirit to them that ask it of thee Luk. 11. 13.

V. 150. Draw nigh] namely, to doe me hurt.

V. 151. Thy commandments] namely, the promises and threatnings which thou hast set down in thy law, through which I am confident thou wilt save me, and destroy mine enemies.

V. 156. Great] or many in number. [According to thy] as verse. 149.

V. 160. Thy word] the Italian, the sum of thy, all thy whole word put together, is nothing but pure truth; or, the principall quality of thy word is to be true.

V. 161. Of thy word] namely, for feare of transgressing and to not incur the penalties denounced in it.

V. 164. Seven times] or many and divers times. [judgements] or lawes and ordinances.

V. 165. Nothing shall offend them] the Italian, they shall have no stumbling block] or they shall have no mischance nor evill encounter.

V. 168. All my wayes] I am before thee in all mine actions and enterprises, to the end that thou mayest govern them according to thy will; or, because I know thou seest every thing, I therefore study to doe such things as thou shalt approve of.

V. 169. According to] namely, according to thy promise; or, give mee an understanding which may be directed and enlightned by thy truth.

V. 173. Chosen] that is to say, I have voluntarily set my self to follow them, or chosen them above all other things, for my sovereign good and treasure, with which I am very well satisfied and contented.

V. 175. Let my soule live] that is to say, doe thou keep me alive; or, preserve in me the life of thy Spirit. [Help me] that is to say, employ these meanes which thou hast appointed for thine elects salvation in my behalfe.

V. 176. I have gone] the Italian, I goe, that is to say, in this wtetched life I am like to a distressed sheep, that is strayed out of her sheepfold, and is ready to perish, take thou care of me, thou who art my true shepheard; Or, I am by mine enemies driven out of thy Church bring me in again, for out of it I am in continuall danger of running to perdition.

PSAL. CXX.

THE Title [of degrees] the Italian of *Maa [...]*ot, that is to say, of goings up or of movings. This title which is set before these fifteene following Psalmes is of very doubtfull signification [...]; Yet the likeliest opinion, is that these Psalmes were either newly penned, or chosen out from amongst the old ones, to bee sung by the people in their return from Babylon, in their severall dayes journeyes or stages as they travelled, either one, or more, or all at every removing: And to this subject they may all be referred either in part or in whole.

V. 3. What shall be given] he turneth his speech to the head or chiefe of his enemies, as if he should say, what profit shalt thou reap thereby? Peradventure the people would fore-arme themselves by  Davids ancient example, when he was persecuted by scoffes and slanders, against the like injuries which were offered unto them at their return from  Babylon,  Ez. 4. 6. Neh. 2. 19. and 4. 2. 3.

V. 4.  Of Juniper] which being a fat kind of Wood, makes a very scorching fire, and quick coales.

V. 5.  Woe is me] it seemeth that these words were first spoken by  David in his flight amongst the  Philistines, and other strange Nations; and were afterward applied to the peoples banishment. [ Mesech]  Mesech is  Moscovie, [Page] and  Kedar is  Arabia; not that  David ever was in those countryes; but hee called those Nations so amongst which he was, by reason of their fierce barbarousnesse. And this part of this Psalme is it which may most properly bee referred to the returne from  Babylon.

PSAL. CXXI.

VER. 1.  Lift up] I doe bend my thoughts every way, yet conclude at last, that in all my evils, my reliefe and deliverance must come from God alone.

V. 3.  He will not] the Psalmist speaks to himselfe in spirit, as  Psal 91. 3.

V. 5.  Thy shade] thy protector and defence.

V. 6. By day] hee hath a relation to the pillar of cloud by day, and of fire in the night, which God employed in the bringing of the people forth of Aegypt, and to defend them from the harmefull aire that it might not hurt them, see Isa. 49. 10. Rev. 7. 16. And this may also be applied to the return from Babylon under Gods protection.

V. 8. Thy going out] that is to say any thing as thou shalt undertake; Or, especially thy comming out of Babylon, and thy comming into Iudea.

PSAL. CXXII.

THE title, [Of David] that is to say, penned at the first by David when he had taken Ierusalem, and settled the Ark in it, 2 Sam. 6. 17. and afterwards made use of at the peoples return from Babylon.

V. 2. Our feet] that is to say, we shall no more need to runne here and there to doe Gods service, as we did at other times when the Arke removed from place to place; now that it stands still in Ierusalem, we shall not need to goe any where else, Deut. 12. 5. 14.

V. 3. That is compact] he seemes to have a relation to the times which were be [...]ore David, at which time the lebusites remained in the rock of Sion after the remnant of the City of Ierusalem was taken by the Tribe of Iudah, Ios. 15 63. Iudg. 1. 8. the City being divided by walls and also in government and religion; but David having taken in Sion, did perfectly re-unite it.

V. 4. Vnto the testimony] namely, to present themselves before the tabernacle where the Ark was, within which were the Tables of the law, called the testimonie, Exod. 16. 34. & 2 [...] 21. 22. Num. 17. 7. Or which is a testimony, that is to say, a commandement made to Israel, with Gods expresse protestation Deut. 12. 5. 14.

V. 5. Are set] there also is the soveraign court of justice, settled by Gods appointment; In which Court David sits as Iudge, and his Officers under him doe execute justice, Deut. 17. 8. 2 Sam. 15. [...]. 2 Chron. 19. 8. 10. Psal. 60. 1. and 108. 8.

PSAL. CXXIII.

VER. 2. VNto the hand] to bee defended by them if they be wronged, or to receive some benefit from them.

V. 4. That are at ease] that is to say, that are rich and powerfull in the world, see Zach. 1. 15.

PSAL. CXXIV.

THE title, [Of David] see upon Psal. 122. in the Title.

V. 1. On our side] or with us.

V. 4. The waters] that is to say, our enemies troops gathered together like a fulnesse of waters. [Over our soul] they would have overwhelmed and drownd us, so that we should have lost our lives, see Ps. 69. 2.

V. 8. In the name] that is to say, in the Lord himselfe, who hath revealed himselfe to his Church by his own proper name▪ or, in his power and grace.

PSAL. CXXV.

V. 3. The vod] the persecution of the wicked, and of Tyrants shall not alwayes last over the Church; within which the Elect have their true inheritance, for feare least they should fall into dispaire, or be tempted to take some unlawfull course.

V. 5. Turne aside] that goe out of the high beaten way of Gods service, and justice, to follow the errors of the world and sinne with hypocrisie or deceit, Prov. 2. 15. Isa. 29. 16.

PSAL. CXXVI.

VER. 1. The captivitie] this Psalme seemeth to have been penned expressely upon the deliverance from Babylon. [Like them] our deliverance seemed so wonderfull, and almost incredible.

V. 4. Turne againe] that is to say, accomplish our deliverance, as well in delivering of our brethren which are yet remaining in Babylon, as in fulfilling of ours, who yet lie languishing under grievous burthens. [As the streames] that is to say, that it may bee such a comfort and refreshing to us, as watering is to dry and desolate places, which are refreshed and flourish againe, by the comming in of the streames.

V. 5. They that sow] this may be understood either of the times which have been; or, of the present times▪ Of the former times in this sense: As in time of dearth, the poore husbandman throweth with an evill will that small store of seed which hee hath into the earth, but is [Page] afterwards comforted by the ensuing harvest; so were wee carried into captivitie with much griefe, but now wee gather the fruits of Gods promises, and of our faith and patience with joy and feasting, Jer. 31. 9. Of the present time in this sence. Now in these weak and small beginnings, wee are g [...]rieved because of the small likelihood there is of that, whereupon we doe employ our meanes and labours; namely, in the re-edifying of Ierusalem, and of the Temple, &c. But the time will come, that the Lord will cause us to gather [...] the fruit of full comfort thereby.

V. 6. Precious seed] the Italian, seed bought for a price, this is added to aggravate the occasion of grief so much the more; Hebrew, the gathering in of the seed; namely, which is not our own harvest, but such as wee have beene faine to gather up out of a strange countrey: Others, precious seed, that is to say, corne, which is good and sitting to be sowed.

PSAL. CXXVII.

VER. 1. The Lord build] that is to say, unlesse he, doe co-operate and assist our labours and endeavours, in the grounding and establishing of our families with his power and blessing.

V. 2. Of sorrowes] that is to say, gotten with a great deale of labour and sweat, and eaten in great scarcitie. [Vain] namely, if it doth not please God to encrease your store; which is the end of your laboursome life, & of your wretched sparing. [Sleep] that is to say, sweet rest, without anxietie or care, the soul taking its rest through faith in Gods providence, after it hath with loyalty and diligence performed such duties as it was called unto.

V. 3. Children] namely, good ones. [An heritage] a gift which God the great father of all bestoweth upon his children as a blessing.

V. 4. So are] Italian, such are, that is to say, fathers are armed and guarded by a companie of valiant children, as it were with a strong armour.

V. 5. His quiver] namely, his family. [They shall speak] the Italian, when they speak, that is to say, when they shal meet in honourable assemblies, or in courts of Iustice where there is any pleading (such courts being anciently kept near the city Gates) they may maintain their state, and defend their right against all oppressions, finding themselves accompanied by vertuous and couragious children; and fathers that have such children, shall not need to stand in feare of any reproach at their enemies hands, in the behalfe of the said children, see the contrary, Iob 5. 4.

PSAL. CXXVIII.

VER. 2. Thou shalt eat] thou shalt peaceably enjoy what thou hast lawfully gotten in following thy vocation; He now directeth his speech to all the faithfull.

V. 5. Of Zion] namely, out of that place where God appears to his children in grace and power: To make a distinction between those benefits which God as Creator, doth generally bestow upon all men; & those speciall blessings which he bestoweth upon his children in his Church, which is his house.

PSAL. CXXIX.

VER. 1. From my youth] in the Prophets, the time of the peoples youth, is the time that they dwelt in Egypt, Ezeck 23. 3. Hos. 2. 15. & 11. 1.

V. 3. The plowers] figurative termes, to signifie on the one side the evils done, the Church rending and tearing of it: and on the other side, Gods saving end therein, which is to prepare it through afflictions, to receive the seed of his grace, word and spirit, as in an earthly heritage well cleansed & manured.

V. 4. The cords] that is to say, all the harnesses belonging to this work; namely, all the meanes, power and counsels of these tyrants.

V 6. Grasse] opposite to good and fruitfull plants, which are brought forth through labour, such as the spiritual and everlasting happinesse of the Church is.

PSAL. CXXX.

VER. 1. The depths] that is to say, as out of an abisse of evils and dangers; or, out of a deep feeling of my sins, which without thy grace would sink me in dispaire.

V. 3. Shouldest mark] that is to say, if thou shouldest cause them to come in judgement against me, and shouldest examine them according to the rigor of thy law.

V. 4. That thou mayest] that is to say, thou art gracious unto men, not to nourish them up in their wickednesse, through indulgencie and impunity, but to give them occasion, and to move them inwardly by thy spirit, to respect thy mercy, and so to yeeld unto thee voluntary service; which would be impossible for them to doe without the spirit of grace, which God granteth to none, but those whom he hath received into grace by the remission of sins; without which, every work is contaminate, and unacceptable to God, 1 Kings 8. 40. Psal. 85. 9.

V. 6. More then] more fervently then those who tired by long watching in the night, doe desire the comming of the day, that they might thereby be relieved and take their rest.

V. 7. *Plenteo [...]*s] hee redeemeth man from innumerable sins, through his mercy which is infinite.

PSAL. CXXXI.

VER. 1. MY heart] I have not through pride or rashnesse undertaken any thing beyond my vocation or capacity, see Rom. 12. 16.

V. 2. Surely I have] the Italian, if I have not, a [Page] manner of affirming, as it were by an implicite and shortned oath. [Behaved] the Italian, composed, or framed, namely, to obedience, silence, and docilitie: This being referred to the people after the captivity, sheweth their weak and lowly estate; by which they were induced to depend absolutely upon Gods grace and providence, acknowledging no wisdom, nor meanes of subsistance in themselves.

PSAL. CXXXII.

THE Title, [A song] penned by Solomon or some other Prophet in his dayes, after he had made an end of building the temple; and afterwards referred to the re-edifying of the same Temple after the captivity, see Psal. 122. upon the Title.

V. 1. Afflictions] labours and difficulties which he hath gone through for the establishment of thy service.

V. 2. Sware] this Oath is not mentioned any where else in Scripture. [The mighty] namely, God who is the strength of his people, Gen. 49. 24.

V. 5. Vntill] these seeme to be  Davids thoughts and protestations; before he had taken the rock of Sion from the Iebusites, 2 Sam. 5. 6. where he knew by revelation that God hath made choyce of a settled abode for his Arke; wherein he was present in grace and power.

V. 6. Wee heard] in former times the ark was settled in Siloh, Iosh. 18. 1. a place belonging to the Tribe of Ephraim, Iosh. 16. 6. Psal. 78. 60. then it was transported to Kiriath-jearim, that is to say, a city of woods; here called fields of the wood, by reason of the great plaine of woods where this City stood, 1 Sam. 7. 1.

V. 7. Wee will goe] the Italian, let us goe: now that I Solomon have built the Temple, let all the people come thither to doe Gods service, see Psal. 122. 1. 2.

V. 8. Arise] these three verses are part of Solomons prayer at the dedication of the Temple, 2 Chron. 6, 41. [Into thy rest] that isto say, into thy firme habitation, opposite to those moving ones which it had in former ages: [Of thy strength] that is to say, of thy glory, namely, where thou art present in thy glorious power for the safety of thy Church.

V. 9. Be cloathed] that is say, clothed with inward purity and holinesse, represented by the holy garments: Or, cloathed with holiday garments by reason of thy deliverances and benefits often meant by the word righteousness; and with this sense agreeth the phrase of being clothed with deliverance or salvation, used 2 Chon. 6. 41.

V. 10. Thine annointed] namely, thy King, whom thou hast consecrated and endowed with the gift of thy Spirit, sitting for his office.

V. 15. Her poore] wherewith the Church hath abounded in all ages, see Isa. 14, 32, Zach. 11. 7.

V. 16. With salvation] the Italian, with clothes of deliverance, that is to say, with garments of joy and feasting, because of my deliverances, see upon Psal. 149. 4.

V. 17. To bud] that is to say, to spring up strongly, as from a lively root, or blossome, and grow out into a power and magnificent glory, expressed by the word horn which anciently warriours did weare in their helmets, see Psal. 75. 5. 10. and 148. 14. [A lamp] that is to say, one of posterity, in whom the glory of his Kingdome may live and shine 2 Sam. 21. 17. which was chiefly and most perfectly accomplished in Christ, of  Davids race according to the flesh.

PSAL. CXXXIII.

VER. 2. IT is like] this holy concord is not onely most pleasant, but it must also be considered as an effect of the Spirit of grace and peace, which being most plenteously poured out upon Christ, who is head of the Church [...], runnes down upon all the members of his body, and is the bond of the spirituall union, figured by the holy oyle; wherewith Aaron and his successors high Priests were annointed, Exod. 30. 30.

V. 3. Of Hermon] along ridge of hills in Palestine, Psalm. 42. 6. which were the highest in all the countrey; from whence in a manner the dew and moistnesse did run down upon the lower hills, such as Sion and other neighbouring hills were. [Commanded] the Italian, appointed, see of this manner of speech, Psal. 42. 8. and 44. 4. and 71. 3.

PSAL. CXXXIV.

VER. 1. BY night] namely, you Levites, which not onely by day doe service in the Temple, but also watch by night therein by turnes, according to your appointed times, see 1 Chro. 9. 33.

V. 2. Lift up] to pray unto, to praise, and blesse the Lord.

V. 3. Blesse thee] this seemeth to be an answer of the Levites and sacred Officers, to the precedent exhortation, with a blessing upon the King, as Psal. 118. 26. or upon all the people.

PSAL. CXXXV.

VER. 2. THat stand] it seemeth that here are distinctly set down the Priests which did Gods service in the Temple, and the Levites which performed their functions in the court.

V. 3. It is pleasant] the Italian, amiable, as Psal. 92. 1. and 147. 1.

V. 5. Above all] namely, above all things which are called gods here upon earth, be it either by resemblance of dignitie, or by the false opinions of men.

V. 7. For the raine] that is to say, for a signe, or [Page] peradventure one of the causes of the ensuing raine; and such as seeme to bring the faine after them. [Out of his treasuries] or store-houses, see Iob, 8. 22.

V. 14. Will judge] that is to say, will punish and visite them: Others, because that the Lord will doe his people right, and will be appeased with his servants: [will repent] that is to say, he will change his effects of severity, into effects of mildenesle, a phrase taken from men, which is very frequent in Scripture.

PSAL. CXXXVI.

VER. 1. FOr his] by 1 Chron. 16. 41. It appeareth that these words were an antiph [...]ra or burthen of the sacred Song, and praises which were sung in the Temple,

V. 5. By wisdome] the Italian, with understanding, that is to say, through his supream wisdome, Prov. 3. 19. and 8. 27. 27. Ier. 10. 12. & 51. 15.

PSAL. CXXXVII.

VER. 1. The rivers] he hath a relation to certaine Cities in Caldea set down in the Histories; which were assigned to the Iewes for their habitation during the captivity, where they held their Synagogues, Schooles, and places to performe the worship of God in; and they were neer to the river Euphrates, in low and wa [...]ie places.

V. 2. Wee] they seeme to be the words of the holy Leviticall singers which dwelt in those Cities. [Vpon the willowes] those being wa [...]ry countreys.

V. 3. Required of us] through a prophane curiositie, or in scorne. [That wasted us] the Italian, that made us howle singing, as Isa. 52. 5. Or, that had wasted us, bringing our City and countrey as it were into heaps of ruines, Psal, 79. 1. Or, that had sacked us.

V. 5. If I forget] although we will not prophane the holy songs, to make these Idolaters pastime; and though we at this present so grieved at heart, that we cannot think upon singing; yet our desire and intent shall alwayes bee good whensoever the the Lord shall deliver us. [Let my right hand] the Italian, if my right hand, with which I play upon these instruments.

V 6. If I do not] if when it pleaseth God to deliver us and restore us, if I doe not shew it by my congratulating songs towards thee, and my songs of praises to God that the soveraign joy of my soule consist in thee.

V. 7. The children] who through an inbred hatred against the [...]wes, joyned with the Babylonians, and did set them on to the totall destruction of Ierusalem, and maliciously rejoyced thereat, Lam 4. 11. Ezech. [...]. 12. Obad. 11.

V. 8. O daughter,] as much as to say, O thou Nation, O thou State, O thou Kingdome; see upon Psal. 9. 14. [Thou art to be] namely, according to the Prophecies, Isa. 13. 1. & 47. 1. Ier. 25, 12. & 50. 2. [Happy] as well for the honour which it will be to him to be executioner of Gods judgements upon his enemies, as for the blessing and recompence which he shall receive therefore, see Isa. 43. 113. 13.

PSAL. CXXXVIII.

VER. 1. BEfore the Gods] the Italian, before the Angels, which are present in the Church, Eccl. 5. 6. 1 Cor. 11. 10 and were set out under the pictures of the Cherubins which were in the Temple. Others understand the Hebrew word, Of the Kings and Potentates of the world, see Psal. 107. 40. and 119. 46.

V. 2. For thou hast] that is to say, Over and above the glory and praise, which is due unto thee for thy other perfections thou art also extolled in the effects of the truth of thy promises towards me; Or, thou hast magnified, thy name above all things through thy word; namely, it being considered either in its infallible truth, or in its most powerfull vertue and operation.

V. 4. When] or, because they heare. [The words] namely, how that by thine appointment, and according to thy promises I have miraculously been made King: Others understand this of the hearing of the preaching of the Gospel, as Psal. 102. 15. 22.

V. 5. Shall sing] that is to say, shall preach his admirable providence, his counsell, and works.

V. 6. The lowly] the Italian, things below, namely, what is done upon earth; Or, him that is of a poore and abject condition; or, him that is lowly in heart through humility, Isa 57. 15.

V. 7. Thou shalt stretchforth] as Psal. 3. 8.

PSAL. CXXXIX.

VER. 2. MY down sitting] or my down lying, that is to say, all mine actions and enterprises, *2 Kings. [...]*9. 27. [A sarre off] before it be effected or framed: Or, from heaven.

V. 3. *Comp [...]*ssest] term [...]s borrowed from huntsmen.

V. 5. And laid] thou stayest and takest mee, even as a wilde beast that hath been long pursued, and at the last is catcht in the nets.

V. [...]. Too wonderfull] the Italian, so wonderfull that I cannot avoid it; Hebrew, it is wonderfull above me: which some expound, it goeth beyond all my capacity & understanding, as Iob 42 3. Psal 4 [...]. 5. [I cannot] that is to say, to hide me from it, or to attain unto it.

V. 9. If I take] Poeticall termes to shew an exceeding swiftnesse, even as the dawning of the day doth presently shew it selfe over all the horizon. [Of the Sea] or, of the West.

V. 10. Lead me] shall alwayes take hold on me to cause me to goe where it will; showing thereby, that divine[Page] providence, is not a knowledge that lyeth idle, but an active and effectuall conduct.

V. 11. Shall cover me] the Italian, shall make mee lie a squat, the Hebrew phrase is taken from beasts which lye a squat, like dogs and huntsmen. [The night] that is to say, thou shalt see me as plaine as if it were day.

V. 13. Possessed] as much as to say, thou knowest and guidest all my thoughts, and most inward and hidden affections, being my Creator, see Psal. 33. 15.

V. 15. The lowest parts] namely, in this low world.

V. 16. Were written] or designed; A phrase taken from limners designes and drafts, the meaning is, thou hast already in a manner designed the idea of them, according to which afterwards the work was framed.

V. 17. How precious] that is to say, I reverence and adore thy holy providence.

V. 18. When I awake] every morning when I awake I am to come to a new account with thee forthy great benefits; the meaning is, I can neither comprehend them, nor make satisfaction for them.

V. 19. Surely] I am so certainly perswaded of thine infinite knowledge of every secret thing, and of thy judgement, that it causeth me to abhorre all manner of communication with the wicked, Psal. 26. 5. and 119. 115.

V. [...]0. Speak against thee wickedly] the Italian, have named thee in wickednesse, namely, in perjuries and execrations, and other accursed abuses of the name of God.

V. 24. Wicked way] Hebrew, way of paine or griefe; namely, by which I doe any man wrong.

PSAL. CXL.

VER. 3. SHarpned, in cunning calumnies, artificiall slanders and false reports.

V. 7. Thou hast] thou hast guarded and defended me in dangers of warre.

V. 9. Compassse me] a terme taken from huntsmen, as much as to say, which come neare, and beset me on every side. [ [...]et the] let the evill which they have plotted with their slanders, fall upon their own head.

V. 11. Evill] as hee hath persecuted me who was innocent, so let his sinne drive him, that is to say, let the wrath of God and the punishment which he bath deserved, persecute him, untill such time as like unto a beast forced to some precipice, hee fall and perish.

V. 13. Shall dwell] they shall live in rest and security, under the e [...]e of thy favour and providence; Or, in the midst of hy Church where thou makest thy selfe known in a speciall manner; Or eternally in heaven.

PSAL. CXLI.

VER. 2. AS incense] namely, the holy incense which was offered upon the Altar; A figure of the Saints prayers, under Christs intercession, Rev. 5. 8. & 8. 3.

V. 3. Set a watch] grant mee the guide and bridle of thy Spirit, that I may not sin in word nor deed in this my hard tryall.

V. 4. Let me not] let mee not be allured by their ease, and pleasure, which they enjoy in such ample manner for to joyn with them: Or, let not me take a delight in that which they take a delight.

V. 5. Smite mee] let him reprove me, and chide me, with a good intention, and through his pure zeale to goodnesse, see Iob 19. 2.

V. 6. Their Iudges] I'doe not only love just corrections; but doe also patiently suffer unjust persecutions; as I made it manifest in Sauls person, who was the chiefe of mine enemies, when hee was left alone in the cave, 1 Sam. 24. 9. to whom I offered no violence, but onely related unto him the wrongs which he did me, with all respect & modesty,

V. 7. Our bones] Saul and his men doe kill my followers, and through extreame inhumanity, leave their bodies unburied upon the ground.

V. 10. Escape] the Italian, passé over, that is to say, escape safely out of their snares.

PSAL. CXLII.

VER. 3. MY path] by which I may escape.

V. 5. My refuge] or my hope.

V. 7. Out of prison] namely, out of this cave where I lie hidden, and am watched for, and round beset with mine enemies. [Compasse mee] to congratulate with me, and to joyne with me in thanksgiving to thee. [Deale bountifully] the Italian; reward me, namely, when thou shalt change my state according to justice and mine innocency: Or, when thou shalt bestow this benefit upon me.

PSAL. CXLIII.

VER. 1. RIghteousnesse] and equity in righting the oppressed according to the just performance of thy covenant and promises, Ps. 31. 1.

V. 2. Be justified] namely, of himselfe, by his own works of thy grace in the promised redeemer.

V. 3. My soule] my person, to put it to death. [In darknesse] hee seemeth to have a relation to those solitary abodes which he did hide himselfe in, when hee fled from before Saul.

V. 5. I remember] which I doe, to comfort my selfe by the example of thy former benefits, which, I take as pledges and sureties, for what thou wilt doe hereafter, being thou art invariable in thy grace towards thy children.

V. 6. I stretch] see concerning this action in praying thus with stretched out armes and [...]p [...]n palmes held up towards heaven, Iohn 1. 13. Psalm. 88. 9. [Thirsty land] which looketh for raine.

V. 8. In the morning] it seemeth that David did [Page] make these prayers and meditations in the night time, expecting with the day, in which he was to follow the businesses of this life, that God should manifest his grace and relieve him, see Psal. 46. 5. [The way] namley, to live in thine obedience; or, to direct me happily in the affaires of this world.

V. 10. Into the land] namely, into thy Church where the right and secure way of doctrine and life is, by which one may come unto thee, Isa. 26. 10.

V. 11. Quicken me] that is to say, deliver me from these mortall dangers, preserve me alive, and restore me.

PSAL. CXLIV.

VER. 1. TEacheth] makes me valiant and understanding in warre-like affaires for his service and glory, and the safeguard of his people.

V. 2. My goodnesse] the well-spring of all the good things which I enjoy; or, he is altogether loving and favourable to me; or, I desire, nor seek for no favour, but from him.

V. 4. To vanity] that is to say, like to nothing.

V. 5. Bow] a poe [...]iall representation of a miraculous and glorious deliverance, as Psal. 18. 9.

V. 6. Scatter them] namely, mine enemies, verse 7. 11.

V. 7 Strange children] the Italian, strangers, this may bee understood of forraine enemies, or of domestick enemies, who were unworthy to bee termed Gods people, being of a barbarous and inhumane heart against David, Psal. 54. 5.

V. 8. Right hand] namely, their actions, or their power, or the covenants and promises they make and give their hands upon.

V. 12. That our] I desire this deliverance and victory at thy hands, that I may bring thy people into a state of holy peace and happinesse. [Corner stones] let them bee like ornaments in a common-wealth, as well in bodily gifts as in grace and vertue of the soule, wherewith the male sex, which is the prop and pillar of the state may be adorned.

V. 14. Nor going out] namely, out of the strong holds and Cities to goe and encounter with the enemy. [Complaining] the Italian, cry, of assault, terror, or tumult.

PSAL. CXLV.

VER. 3. IS unsearchable] that is to say, It is infinite and incomprehensible.

V. 7. V [...]er] that is to say, they shall fully and abundantly publish it, as if it were the issuing and boiling out of a spring. [The memory] namely, the memorable acts of thy goodnesse which they keep in their memorie, and must be consecrated to immortalitie.

V. 14. Be bowed down] who are ready to fall into some grievous danger, or that are almost overcome with the burthen of their miseries.

V. 16. The desire] the Italian, with thy good-will, namely, with benefits which thou bestowest out of thy free bounty. Others translate it, every ones desire.

V. 18. Is nigh] not onely in regard of his essence, which is everywhere, but also in regard of the effects of his power, and readinesse of his will, in granting their requests.

PSAL. CXLVI.

VER. 4. TO his earth] whence he was taken at his first creation, and whither hee hath been condemned to returne by death; and upon which hee hath fixed all his affections and thoughts, and is all his portion, having none in heaven, Psal. 17. 14. Ier. 17. 13.

V. 9. Turneth] he doth dissipate and ruine all their works, counsels, and enterprises.

PSAL. CXLVII.

VER. 2. BVild up,] that lai [...]th the foundation of his Church, advanceth it, establisheth, and strengtheneth it.

V. 3. The broken] namely, those whose soule is afflicted with the feeling and compunction of their sinnes, or is bruised with miseries and griefes, see Psal. 51. 17. Isa. 57. 15, & 61. 1.

V. 4. Hee telleth] a figurative terme, taken from Captaines, who muster and take the number of their armies, the celestiall bodies being called Gods armies: Or, from fathers of families, who keep an account of those of their household to shew Gods infinite, and most particular providence, grounded upon an inward knowledge of all things, though they seeme to bee numberlesse, like to the starres, Gen. 15. 5.

V. 10. In the strength] he doth not accept of great humane and naturall meanes for to co-operate with them, and adde thereunto by his divine power, nor to work his Churches deliverance by them: but he delighteth in assisting the faith and prayer of his Elect, when they are void of all strength and assistance.

V. 13. Strengthened] he doth defend thee against all assaults and dangers.

V. 14. The finest of] the Italian, the fat of, that is to say, with the flower of wheat, or with well grown wheat, and that abundantly, Psal 81. 16.

V. 15. He sendeth] he commandeth and appointeth all what he will have to be done in the world which is presently accomplished.

V. 16. Like wooll] that is to say, thick, and lock by lock, and as white as the snow in those countreys, Isa. 1. 18. Rev. 1. 14.

V. 17. His ice] it seemeth that he meaneth great [Page] haile stones.

V. 18. His winde] namely, some warme winde, sent onely by him, and endowed with that melting and dissolving quality, by which hee causeth the winter ices to melt, see the contrary, Iob 37. 10.

PSAL. CXLVIII.

VER. 1. FRom the heavens] the Italian, from heaven, namely, all you celestiall creatures.

V. 4. Yee heavens] namely, the highest heavens: the sense is, that as these creatures doe beare excellent portraitures and representations of Gods Majesty in them: So man who alone hath reason, and understanding for to know them, should from them take occasion of praysing God: [Above the] that is to say, above the aire, see concerning these upper waters, Gen. 1. 7.

V. 6. Forever and ever] namely, untill the end of the world, for then those creatures shall passe and change forme and state, Psal. 102. 26: Isa. 65. 17. Rom. 8. [...]. 2 Pet. 3. 10.

V. 1 [...]. Exalteth] hee hath given them strength, glory, and victory over their enemies, see upon Psal. 75. 5. 10. Or, a glorious and triumphant Kingdome in David, but especially in the Messias, Psal. 232. 17. [The praise] the Italian, matter of praise to his, namely, of the praise of God, which praise all his Elect should yeeld unto him: Or, matter of glory to themselves, as Psal. 149. 4. 9. [Neare unto him] namely, with whom he hath made an especiall covenant to make them his own and as it were his children.

PSAL. CXLIX.

VER. 4. BEautifie] the Italian, glorifie, he will set them in honour and reputation above the contempt and ignominie of the world, sending them his everlasting salvation and his temporall deliverances, Psal. 18. 50. Or, he will beautifie them with salvation, that is to say, he will make them fitting to weare festivall garments as Psal. 132. 16. [The meek] an ordinary title given to the faithfull.

V. 5. Vpon their] enjoying a sweet, and secure rest, see Job 35. 10.

V. 6. The high praises] namely, songs of praise and triumph to magnifie the Lord. [Sword] this may bee understood of the peoples victories over their corporall enemies; and also of the spirituall combats against the world, and the Prince of it, by the power of Gods word, and spirit, 2 Cor. 10. 4. Heb. 4. 12. Rev. 1. 16. & 19. 15. and finally of the last victory, over all the enemies power which the Church united to her head shall obtaine at his last comming, Rev. 2. 26.

V. 9. The judgment] he hath a relation to that expresse command which was inserted in the Law, of destroying the accursed nations of Canaan: under which is contained the spirituall of fighting uncessantly and unappeaseably against the Kingdome of Sathan.

PSAL. CL.

VER. 1. IN his Sanctuary] either his earthly one, in the Temple, that is to say, in his Church, or the heavenly one of his glory; by the first may be meant his sacred Officers, by the se cond his Angels, as Psal. 148. 2. [The Firmament] namely, the heavens, Gen. 1. 6. [Power] Italian, glory Hebrew strength, according to the frequent sense of this word in Scripture.

THE BOOK OF THE PROVERBS OF SOLOMON.

ARGUMENT.

THe ancient wise men of all Nations, did use to teach precepts of wisdom and vertue, by short sentences and apophthegmes: sometimes set down in plaine and proper termes, sometimes in obscure, figurative, and enigmaticall ones, the more easily to imprint them in the minde and memory of men, and to set them down as proverbs for the common vse. The same was also observed amongst the Israelites, and peradventure this custome passed from them to other Nations: Amongst otherwise men mentioned in Scripture, Solomon was especially endowed with this gift, and was by God inspired to utter many such sentences, as it is set down, 1 Kings 4. 32. whereof some being set down in a volume by himselfe; and some gathered together by the command of King Ezechia out of some other books of Solomons, were all put together in this epitome or summe, with an addition at the latter end, of some other wise mens sayings: Now this book is divided into two parts; The first is contained in the nine first chapters, and is a generall preface; The second is contained in all the ensuing chapters, and therein are set down all the said sentences. In the first; the wise man brings in heavenly wisdom, admonishing, exhorting, and crying out upon men, who goe astray after the vices and disorders of the world and are seduced by evill examples and allurements, and by that meanes are hurried along into the danger of everlasting damnation: Calling them back to the knowledge, study, love, and exercise of true spirituall wisdom, consisting in the knowledge of Gods truth and will; whose soveraigne dignity authority and worth hee extolleth, and sheweth the saving use thereof, both for the present and for the everlasting life. In the second part by a great number of shart sentences, and morall mottoes, he giveth the faithfull divers documents concerning all manner of vertues to be followed, and vices to be shunned, truths to be known, and dangers and inconveniences to be avoided, singularities to be observed, and duties to be practized, by all kindes of degrees, ages, and vocations in all occurrences of this life, as well towards God as towards themselves, and their neighbours; for to frame their behaviours in a good and godly manner towards God, to draw on his blessings and avoid his judgments: to passe their life in content, peace, security, and ease; and chiefly to guide them into the haven of glory, and everlasting rest.

CHAP. I.

VER. 1. The Proverbs] that is to say, sentences, notable sayings, and apophthegmes. V. 6. Dark sayings] or enigmaes: These were questions, or naturall and morall sayings, set forth under figurative and obscure termes, to refine mens wits, in seeking out the true meaning of them, and for to make the deeper impression of them, see Judg. 14. 12. 1 Kings 10. 1. Ezech. 17. [...].

V. 7. The beginning, the Italian, the head, that is to say, the chiefe point, or the summe: [Fooles] see upon Psal. 14. 1.

V. 8. Of thy Father] namely, the documents of piety and vertue which thine elders shall give thee according to the, Law of God, see Deut. 4. 9. & 6. 7. and 11. 19.

V. 9. An ornament] thou shalt be therewith adorned as with precious jewels, Pro. 3. 22.

V. 11. without cause] the Italian, unpunished, that is to say, without feare or danger: Others without cause, that is to say, though he have no way offended us.

V. 17. In vaine] the Italian, without any punishment] the sense is, These wicked men hunt after the innocent as after the birds, which cannot defend themselves, nor doe the fowler any harme; as wilde beasts doe to their hunters: But in stead of taking, they are taken themselves through divine vengeance.

V. 19. So are] The wicked meanes of those who [Page] seek to enrich themselves by these practices, shall be instead of snares and pittefolds for them, to fall into perdition.

V. 20. Wisedome] The Italian, Excellent wisedome] Hebrew, Wisedomes, that is to say, the everlasting Son of God, who is the Fathers subsisting wisedome, Prov. 8. 23, 24. doth publish his Word in the Church, Without] Namely in the world, which in regard of heaven, where the Son of God dwelleth in glory, is like the streets and market places, in comparison of a royall palace.

V. 21. Chiefe place] As your market places, and heads of streets are.

V. 22. Ye simple ones] That is to say, unadvised and ignorant people who are subject to [...] seducements, & deceits of the world; The scorers] hat is to say prophane contemners. Psal. 1. 1.

V. 23. Poure out] I will poure out the gifts of my Spirit in abundance, as out of a living spring.

V. 24. I have stretched out] A kinde of gesture by such as call a man at a farre distance, beckening with their hands, as Isa 65 2.

V. 26. Will laugh] A kind of phrase taken from men to signifie Gods judgement without mercy upon the incorrigible, wherein God is pleased, as in the soveraigne effect of his justice, by which he repayeth their boldnesse with eternall contempt and ignominy, see Psal. 2. 4. and 37. 13.

V. 31. Shall they eat], That is to say, they shall receive a just reward for their wicked life.

V. 32: The turning] Namely the error, according to others, the ease and prosperity.

CHAP. II. VERS. 1.

Hide] The Italian, Lay up] that is to say, keepe them safely in thy heart and memory, like unto some pretious things, and make provision for thy soule out of them, a phrase taken from those places where they keep victuals or treasure.

V. 7. Sound wisdom] The Italian, Right] that is to say, a just protection and defence of their innocency, and the reward of their righteousnesse.

V. 8. The paths] That is to say, just men together with all their actions, and their whole life.

V. 9. Good path] Or path of goodnesse, that is to say, all just and vertuous proceedings.

V. 12. From the way of] The Italian, from the evill way] That is to say, from the way of evill.

V. 13. Of darkenesse] Namely of sin and voluntary ignorance, out of the secure light and guide of Gods Law, see Job 24. 13.

V. 16. Strange woman] That is to say, an adulteresse who having a husband, ought to be held as a stranger to any other. Others beleeve that in this book common whores are called strange women, because that infamous exercise was forbidden to Israeltish women Deut. 23. 17. and they who by abuse or toleration did do it, were strangers; or if they were any of Gods people; as it seemeth that Salomon speakes o [...] [...]uch, verse 17. they were held as prophane and excommunicate persons.

V. 17. The guide] Namely her lawfull husband, who is the head of the woman, 1 Cor. 11. 3. to whom she was married in her youth, see Jer. 3. 4. The Covenant] The faith of matrimony, of which God is the author and preserver, it being alwayes contracted in his name; and hee being alwayes called upon as a judge and witness in it, See Malachy Chapter 2. verse 14.

V. 18. Her house] Her conversation and acquaintance bringeth men to perdition: Unto the dead] The Italian, Unto gyants] that is to say, unto the damned. See the reason of this manner of speaking upon Job, 26. 5.

V. 19. None that] Without Gods speciall grace, it is hard, nay impossible for man that hath begun to keep company with her, for to avoid perdition.

V. 20. That thou mayest] This is the consequence of the 12 and 16 verses.

V. 21. Shall remain] That is to say, they shall never perish, or they shall survive the wicked, which shall be rooted out.

CHAP. III. VERS. 3.

Mercy] Thou shalt perpetually enjoy the effects of Gods mercy and the truth of his promises of grace: About thy] Have them in deare and perpetuall remembrance. A terme taken from things, which men weare about them for a remembrance of some things, [...] persons who are very deare unto them as Exodus 13. 9. Deuteronomy chap, 6. 8. Proverbes 6: 21.

V. 4. Shalt thou finde] Thou wilt make thy selfe acceptable to God and men, 1 Samuel 2. 26. Luke 52. Acts 2. 47. Romanes 14. 18. and shalt be understanding in spirituall things before God, and prudent in humane things.

V. 6. Acknowledge him] Yeeld unto him such honor, obedience, and gratitude, as is due to him in all thy actions.

V. 7. In thine own] In thine own judgement and imagination, which is dazled and blinded by selfe love.

V. 8. It shall be] Thou wilt thereby sinde a great comfort and recreation to thy soule: a phrase taken from the fom [...]ntations, plaisters, and [...]ctions, which are applyed to the navell for diverse infirmities, especially to little [Page] children; and also from that when a mans bones are full of marrow, it is a signe of perfect health, and of his being vigorous and strong.

V. 9. Honour] Do him homage for his benefits, by free will offerings, or by consecrating of those parts unto him, which he requireth by his Law, as [...]ithes, firstlings and the like.

V. 13. That getteth] Hebrew, that draweth out, as out of some hidden place; or out of some treasure; So is described the endeavour we ought to use for to get wisdome: and that man of himselfe cannot make wisdome, but doeth draw or take it out of the spring which is God and his word.

V. 14. Merchandize] Namely the profit that is gotten by making use of wisdome, even as a merchant by laying out money for merchandizes.

V. 16. In her right hand] These blessings also do follow it.

V. 17. Her wayes] That is to say, the man whose actions and wayes are guided by wisdome, enjoyeth true happinesse and delight.

V. 18. A tree] As the tree of life. Genesis chapter 2. verse 9. and chapter 3. verse 22. was a meanes ordained by God, for the preservation of a lasting life, and continuall vigor and health, before man sinned. So true wisdome maintaineth man in the spirituall life of Gods grace, and communion of his Spirit.

V. 19. Hath founded] Hath made it to stand firme and immoveable. He thus exalteth the dignity of wisdome: For as Gods wisdome hath been the only architectrice, as it were, of the world: So that wisdome, which man receives from him, maintaines and governes all his actions, workes, and affaires.

V. 20. Broken up] He thus describeth the great channels, and hollow places made in the earth to hold the waters, Genesis, 1. 9.

V. 22. Grace] Like a beautifull collar, and ornament for ones neck: See Proverbes, Chapter 1. verse 9.

V. 27. From them] Hebrew, from the owners, namely from those to whom thou owest it, either by right, equity, or charity, as the poore or hir [...]ng? &c.

V. 32. His secret] Namely the knowledge and effects of his eternall counsell, concerning their election and salvation. Or plainly, he loveth them dearely as his intimate friends, to whom he revealeth the very secrets of his heart, as Psalme 55. 14. Joh. 15. 15.

CHAP. IV. VERS: 1.

A Father] Namely, me Solomon, who perform a fathers duty towards you.

V. 2 My law] Because that these precepts, are not onely meere documents for to instruct you; but are also rules for your life and conversation; with a Soveraigne and divine power to command you.

V. 3 For I was] I know what it is to instruct Children, having had such excellent education from David my father, that great Prophet, and therefore my words deserve attention and obedience. Onely] Onely deare, and none but I appoynted to be King; For otherwise David had divers children by Bathsheba, 1 Chron. 3. 5. and some copies have also, onely amongst my mothers children.

V. 4 And live] God will bestow a long and happy life upon thee, according to his promise Exo. 20. 12.

V. 7 The principall] Namely, mans greatest good consists in true heavenly wisdom. With all thy getting] though thou shouldest bestow all thy meanes therein. See Matthew 13. 44. The sence is, Let him preferre it before all other goods.

V. 8 Exalt her] That is to say, honour and hold her in great esteem.

V. 12 When thou] Following this plaine and straight way, thou wilt never meet with any let, but thou shalt overcome it.

V. 16 To fall] Into the snares which they have set, or into secret pits, which are their secret practises and privy lurkings, as Prov. 1. 1 [...]. or into utter ruine.

V. 17 They eate] They live upon nothing but R [...]pines, Deceits, and Extortions; or they onely take delight in such things, and they become their daily food.

V. 18 The path] The just alwayes increase in the light of knowledge and faith in God, and in all good direction and bless [...]n from him, untill they attaine to the height of eternall glory. See 2 Samuel chapter 23. verse 4. Job chapter 11. verse 17 Psalme 97. verse 11.

V. 19 The way] The wicked live in a profound ignorance of GOD, and of his truth and will, wherefore they cannot direct their actions to any happy end: and they fall into miseries which they can neither fore-see nor avoyd: See Job chapter the fifth, verse the foureteenth, and chapter the twelfth, verse the five and twentieth.

V. 22. That finde them] Namely to those to whom [Page] they are revealed by speciall grace. Health] Or Physicke. To all] Namely to their whole bodies.

V. 23. With all diligence] The Italian. Above all keeping] Or keepe thy heart from all things which it ought to be kept from. Out of it] That is to say as the heart is the spring of the life of the whole body, so that if it bee wounded, death must needs follow: So from the principall and predomi-nating part of the soule, which the Scripture calleth the heart of the soule depends the life and spirituall subsistence of all the rest, therefore it must be very safely and carefully kept.

V. 24. Perverse lippes] Namely all fraud, lying, and dissimulation.

V. 25. Thine eyes] A terme taken from those who alwayes looke before them as they goe; because they will goe the right way and not stumble, which every faithfull man is to imitate in his course of life.

V. 26. Ponder] The Italian, Levell] That is to say, let all thy actions bee according to Righteousnesse and Justice, like unto a straight and plaine way.

CHAP. V. VERSE 2.

Thy lippes] That thou mayest alwayes have the gift of speaking wisely, and like one that is well instructed.

V. 3. For the lippes] The meaning is, that thou mayest through the wisdom of thine understanding and thy words, be able to withstand any seducement, especially of unchast women. Of a strange] See upon Prov. 2. 16.

V. 4. Her end] All that comes of her acquaintance is nothing but all manner of unfortunate chances, displeasures, and hot repentance.

V. 5. Her feet] She walketh a great pace to eternall perdition, and leadeth others along with her.

V. 6. Her wayes] She useth all the art she can to draw men insensibly so farre into her love, and into the labyrinths of her vices, that they may not know how to come into the way of vertue or happinesse any more.

V. 9. Thine honour] Namely the flower of thine age, the strength of thy body, and the excellencie of thy wit, and together with that all thine honour and reputation. Unto others] The Italian, To strangers] Namely to Whores, who for the most part are pittielesse, griping, and cruell, ayming at nothing but the ruine of their lovers.

V. 10. With thy wealth] Or with thy strength that they may not spraine thy sinewes; and make them weake and feeble. Thy labours] Namely thy wealth which thou hast attained to by much labour.

V. 11. Mourne] The Italian, Roare] bewaile thy former follies bitterly, and have no remedie for it.

V. 14. I was almost] there is almost no evill nor misery that I have not fallen into, even in the sight of all the world with publike shame. Others hold them to bee the words of a sinner, not altogether desperate, who acknowledgeth his errors, and is somewhat inclined to turning.

V. 15. Drinke] A figurative instruction concerning the chaste and holy use of lawfull matrimonie, See Prov. 9. 17.

V. 16. Dispersed] This may be understood of the happie off-spring; which is borne in wedlocke, or of the good savor, example, and edification which is given to others, by such a laudable kinde of life and conversation.

V. 18. Rejoyce] Take thine honest delights with her, according to the Lawes of God and nature.

V. 19. Hinde] And Roe] Harmeslesse beasts that have no gall, and very loving in their kinds: pourtraitures of a vertuous woman, apt to gaine her husbands love.

V. 21. Pondereth] The Italian Levelleth] That is to say exammeth and trieth them.

V. 22. His owne] That is to say his owne misdeeds shall bee as a Sergeant, and a prison to him: his Conscience shall make him guiltie, and shall keepe him as a Prisoner, untill the time of his punishment.

CHAP. VI. VERS. 1.

STricken] In token of Faith given, and promise made. With a stranger] hee seemes to meane Us [...]ers whose trade was forbidden amongst the Israelites by the Law, Deutrenomie 23. verse 19. and was tolerated in strangers: And if any Israelite did use it, hee was accounted prophane, and excommunicate no otherwise then your common whores, Prov. 2. 16.

V. 3. When thou art] When thou hast bound thy selfe unto him, and hast given him right and power over thee. Humble] If thou hast not wherewithall to give satisfaction, humble thy selfe and desire aide of thy friends. [Page]

11. A Traveller] Who commeth on a sudden into a harbour. An armed man] it seemeth he meaneth men lightly armed, who were employed in making sudden [...]ons upon the enemies lands.

V. 13. He winketh] Tricks of cheaters and conycatchers, who by such signes make one another to understand heir tricks and devices to cozen. See Prov. 10. 10.

V. 22. when thou] The due observance of Gods law which I teach thee, shall make thee to proceed rightly in every thing: live securely, entertaining continually holy thoughts and comforts in the holy Ghost.

V. 26. Is brought] That is to say, man falleth into extreame misery and poverty. The Adulteresse] the Italian, A woman, desirous of men] namely, a luxurious woman, who hath an unsatiabable appetite to mens companies. Heb. The woman of man. Others also have it, Adulteresse. Precious,] This may generally be understood of the soule of man, which is of a notable divine, and heavenly nature. O [...] particularly of the most excellent persons in bodily and spirituall gifts; in nobility or wealth, which these lewd women doe lay wait for, more then for ordinary men.

V. 29. Be innocent] namely, before God, nor yet before men if he be taken.

V. 30. A theese] He seemes to meane the night theefe, taken in the act of breaking up, whom it was lawfull to kill, Exod. 22. 2. Or to impose what mulct upon him as it pleased him that took him. How much lesse then shall an adulterer be forgiven?

V. 32. His owne soule] namely, his life before men, and his soule before God.

V. 34. Is the rage] The most violent and implacable passion of all other; and the extremity of all the rages of man.

CHAP. VII. VERS. 4.

SAy unto] Be familiar with her, love her, and be in strait league with her.

V. 6. [...]rat] It is uncertaine whether this be a true history, or meerey a parable, to represent the [...] and proceedings of a dishonest woman.

V. 7. Among the youths] in understanding or age.

V. 14. I have] I have vowed sacrifices of thanks-giving, L v. 7. 16. and having to day paid my vowes, I [...]ve made a feast with the flesh of those sacrifices, for to entertaine thee.

V 20. The day appointed] the Italian, The new Moon] see concerning the Hebrew phrase used in this place. Upon Psal. 81. 3.

V. 22. As an One] Being ensnared by this womans allurements, he had no power to unbinde himselfe, he was faine to run to his perdition (like the Oxe that is tyed and drawne to the slaughter) and being voluntarily foolish, God suffered him to fall into the hand of sinne, as mad men are put into the stocks, to stay and punish them.

V. 26. Cast downe] A figurative terme taken from wrestlings: that is to say, she hath cast them out of the state of vertue and holinesse, and hath throwne them into perdition. Many] that is to say, of those who have beene overthrowne by women, the greatest part of them have beene great men for valour, knowledge, dignity, and vertue. Or in this warre mans valour is overcome by the subtilty of women.

CHAP. VIII. VERS. 4.

The sons of man] the Italian, The common people] See Psal. 49. 2.

V. 9. They are all] Their uprightnesse is cleere and evident, to all such as are enlightned by the holy Ghost, though your sensuall and carnall men doe judge otherwise of it. See Romans 7. 22. 1 Corinth. 1. 18.

V. 12. Dwellwith] I doe enjoy and have by me, and doe bestow upon all my true Disciples good and wholesome counsels and needfull prudence for their whole life.

V. 13. The feare] Which is the beginning of all true wisdom which I teach. Prov 17. 7.

V. 14. Sound] See concerning this word Proverbs 2. 7.

V. 15. By me] I the eternall Sonne of God who am the Fathers subsisting wisdom. Prov. 1. 20. and supreme Lord of the world, doe appoint Kings and Princes, by such wayes and meanes as I please they all have their authority and power from me, as my servants and deputies. Neither can they justly execute their offices, but by following of my lawes. See concerning this true wisdom. Luke 11. 49. Decree justice] or give sentences.

V. 18. Righteousnesse] That is to say, a just guide, defence, and recompence, or according to the custome of the Hebrewes liberality and beneficence.

V. 20. I lead] The Italian, I walke] or I leade and direct.

V. 21. Substance] Italian, The true being] namely, true life and subsistence in Gods grace in this world, and afterwards the glorious life of heaven.

V. 22. Possessed me] that is to say, I the Sonne was [Page] in the Father and by him, in the unspeakable unity of [...]sence, and in the union of the persons Iohn 1. 1. Of his way] that is to say of his workes, to performe which workes hee is (as one should say) come forth of his eternall rest and the mansion of his glory.

V. 23. I was] By the everlasting decree of the Father. I the Son have been established Lord and Governour of the world, for to represent my Fathers Majestie; who hath bin alwayes hidden in his inaccessible glory, Iohn 5. 22. Col. 1. 18. Heb. 1. 2. Set up] Or consecrated, as Psalme 2. 6. Or ever] From everlasting, before any time, which began but only with the creatures. See Psal. 90. 2.

V. 24 I was brought forth] That is to say engendred of the Fathers owne essence.

V. 25 Setled] Like to great workes or buildings which have deep foundations.

V. 26. The highest part] Namely this admirable superficies of the earth, so adorned, various, copious, and fruitfull.

V. 27. I was there] Working with him, as a joynt equall, and cooperating cause, Iohn 1. 3. Col. 1. 16. Heb 1. 2.

when be [...]t] When he gave a round forme to the masse of the Elements, yet all mixed together called the deepe, Genesis 1. 2. which round forme remained to the universe after the Elements were severed.

V. 28. The clouds] The Italian, The Heaven] The Hebrew word signifieth properly that aethereall part which is above the Elementall, which Moses calleth the upper waters, Genesis 1. 6, 7. Strengthened] When hee shut them up within the great concavities of the earth, as in strong and well barred fences, from whence they cannot issue forth, as they did in the floud, See Genesis 7. 11.

V. 29. Appointed] Namely when he fixed the earth in the center of the universe where it standeth immoveable through its own proper weight, Job 26. 7. and 38. 4. Psalme 104. 5.

V. 30. By him] Figurative termes to expresse in some kinde the unspeakeable union betweene the Father and the Sonne: and the Fathers perfect love towards him, Iohn 1. 18.

V. 31. Rejoycing] As the propertie of my person is to worke upon outward things, so all my delight is in preserving, and keeping the world whole, and in it to governe, enlighten, and doe good to men, Iohn 1. 4.

V. 34. Watching] For to attend continually upon my service, and study and meditate upon my word. A figurative terme taken from Princes guards on from the Levites which watched in the Temple.

CHAP. IX. VERS. 1.

Hath builded] That is to say, the Sonne of God hath laid the foundation of his house himselfe, and perfectly established his Church, Heb. 3. 3, 4. and in it he unfoldeth all his treasures for the getting and preserving of the spirituall and everlasting life to the participation of which hee inviteth all men by the ministry of his word. See a like parable, Mat. 22. 2.

V. 2. Mingled] Or made ready-according to the custome of those Countries where they did use to mingle their wine with water, as well to please the taste, as for wholsomenesse.

V. 3. The highest] They were high places, or little terraces done about with railes, and Parapets, in the highest parts of the Citie which were used to make Proclamations upon, give sentences, and other like, publike [...]ctions, Iohn 19, 13.

V. 4. Who so is simple] O all you men, who are naturally ignorant, and idiots, and subject to the deceipts of the flesh and the Devill.

V. 6. The foolish] The Italian Foolishnesses] Namely the actions of foolish and overseene worldly m [...],

V. 7. Hee that reproveth] The meaning is, of men that are altogether ignorant and void of understanding, there are of two sorts, some are prophane, hardened and scornefull men: the other are wise, and understanding in that they know their owne defect, and seeke to amend it: to the first the word of God serveth for nothing but only to provoke their wrath, in blaspheming him, and committing outrages against his servants, Matthew 7. 6. in the latter it fructifieth to salvation. A scorner] See upon, Psal. 1. verse 1.

V. 10. The holy] Namely that which the true elect who are sanctified by Gods spirit, learne by his word
Understanding] Namely the true, solid and spirituall understanding.

V. 13. A foolish woman] Hee opposeth the world, the flesh and all their allurements represented by the actions, and baites of a dishonest woman, to celestiall wisdome and godly perswasions, to signifie that all the delight and love of the soule fixed upon any thing but upon God and his grace, is but a spirituall adultery and dishonestie.

V. 16. Whose is] O poore simple people that will take such paines to obtaine vertue and wisdome and deprive themselves of the pleasures of this life. Which lif's wisdome consists in the finding and enjoying of them when they offer themselves, and all the content of it in the enjoying of them whilest one may. Or they are the Holy Ghosts words, speaking [...] truth in its proper sence, and then it should bee translated. Who is foolish? Let him goe thither, Namely where the stumpe calls him.

V. 17. Stollen waters] that is to say: your stollen [Page] pleasures which are unlawfully taken are more favoury, and fuller of voluptuousnesse. The lewd words and thoughts of carnall men in their irregular and vicious pleasures, contrary to the chaste, lawfull and sober pleasures of the faithfull.

V. 18. The dead] The Italian, The Giants] that is to say the damned: See upon Iob 26. 5. Prover. 2. 18.

CHAP. X. VERS. 1.

The Proverbs] That is to say, short notable sayings, and morall documents, in the head of which the precedent Chapters have bin set in stead of a preamble or preface.

V. 2. Of wickednesse] That is to say gotten by unlawfull means. Righteousnes] Uprighenes in all things but chiefly in getting of goods, and in liberall and charitable use of them (which in the Scripture is called righteousnesse) shall cause man to bee preserved from extream povertie, and other mortall calamities, or from death it selfe in many cases, from which no wealth can guard the wicked, Psalme 49. 6, 7, 8.

V. 3. The substance] According to others the wickednes, that is to say all the false practises with which they use for to enrich themselves.

V. 5. In Summer] Namely in the fitting time to gaine and make provision of knowledge, experience, and all other manner of vertues, as the harvest of the fruits of the earth is in summer. That causeth] namely that disgraceth his father and mother, his name and kindred; through his carelesnesse and sloth▪ See Prov. 12. 4. and 17. 2. and 19. 26.

V. 6. Violence] The wicked are accursed, infamous, and condemned through their unjustice, and extortions: being that the covering of the mouth was a signe of mourning, condemnation, and shame, Hest. 7. 8. Job. 9. 24. and 40. 8.

V. 7. Is blessed] That is to say is praised and commended by good men Shall rot] That is to say it shall become stinking and abominable.

V. 10. He that winketh] An action of false and cunning persons, Job 15. 12. Proverbs 6. 13. it seemeth that hee coupl [...]s wicked deceivers which doe harme to others; to those that are foolish and unadvised in their speeches, and hurt themselves.

V. 11. The mouth] The good mans mouth is alwayes open in holy freedome and liberty, for his just defence; & for to teach, comfort & correct others like unto a lively spring which cannot be stopped Whereas the iniquity of the wicked wounding their consciences, clo [...]ing their mouthes with feare, shame, and confusion, v. 16. See Job 5. 16 Psal. 107. 42.

V. 12 Covereth] It regardeth not, but pardoneth all offences that are given; and concealeth those faults in his neighbour, which may be concealed.

V. 13 Wisdome] The wise man sheweth himselfe to be such by his speeches, but the foole cannot becom wise, but only by meanes of correction.

V. 14. Lay up] they doe keepe those things which they know under the key of wisdome and discretion in speaking; but the fooles have no stay to their tongues, no more than a building which is falling downe.

V. 16. To sin] That is to say to condemnation, and punishment, according to the meaning of the word sinne in Scripture.

V. 17. Is in the way] The Italian, Is the way] That is to say he doth not only walke in the way himselfe, but doth also guide others therein.

V. 18. He that hideth] He that hath his heart full of rancour, and evill, and doth dissemble and hide it with faire speeches is a false and treacherous man, and he that uttereth his hatred, in injurious & evill words is a foolish and unwise man, seeing he suffereth himselfe to be transported through passion to a dishonest and undecent act, and by this means discovering himselfe, he giveth his enemies way to beware of him, & also to offend him. Whereby the wise man inferreth, that to avoid both these vices, we ought to lay aside all malice and hatred. See Prov. 14. 17.

V. 20. The heart] All their wisdome, their conceits thoughts and determinations are of no value nor worth.

V: 21. Feed] Good men are not only sufficiently provided for themselves, but can also give to others true food for the soule, namely wholesome doctrine and holy documents, which the foolish wanting, doe perish for want of it.

V. 22. Addeth] Namely to any thing which it pleaseth God to bestow upon us, Psal 127. 2. Mat. 6 27.

V. 23. Hath wisdom] Hee delighteth and taketh pleasure therein.

V 26. So is] Displeasing and troublesome.

V. 6. Deliver them] Will cause God to deliver them from all dangers and treacheries.

V. 9. Hypocrite] or profane man. Destroyeth] the Italian, Corrupteth] namely, infecting and depraving his nature through his evill talke. Others, he ruineth and destroyeth him, by his dissimulation and false shewes of love. Through knowledge] by the light and direction of the holy Ghost, and by the lively knowledge of Gods word, which giveth unto the faithfull man wisdome sufficient for his preservation.

V. 11. By the] namely by their holy vowes and prayers. By the mouth] namely, by their blasphemies, evill counsels, slanders, lies, seditious speeches, &c.

V. 12. Holdeth his peace] He keepeth himselfe from speaking or doing any thing in scorne of another. Or he holdeth his peace, that is to say, he contemneth contempt and regardeth it not.

V. 13. A Tale-bearer] who useth the abominable art of a spie, to tell the secret acts and speeches of others which was a thing that the law did forbid, Levit. 19. 16.

Concealeth] any thing that may be concealed without any offence to God, or wrong to civill society, or to ones neighbour.

V. 14. Councillors] men that are worthy of such a title and charge by reason of their good and vertuous qualities.

V. 15. Sure [...]yship] the Italian, Sureties] namely rash and inconsiderate ones, Heb. Those that st [...]ke hands, Prov. 6. 1.

V. 16. Strong men] that is to say, amongst men, abundant wealth most commonly is gotten by extortion and greedinesse, but true honour, which is womens only treasure is obtained by a way which is cleane contrary; namely, of meeknesse and sweetnesse. 1 Pet. 3. 4.

V. 17. Doeth good] Gaining through his mercifulnesse the blessing of God and the good will of men. Toubleth] Through his inhumane cariage he depriveth himselfe of all true delight, plungeth himselfe into infinite dangers, griefes, and inconveniences, gaining neither favour nor love from God nor men.

V. 18. Worketh] He followeth a kinde of life from which he cannot gather any good fruit, but only unhappinesse contrary to his hope and intentions. That soweth] That is to say, which doth good and hath thereby Gods infallible promise of reaping felicity. See Hos. 10. 12. Gal. 6. 8. Jam. 3. 18.

V. 21. Though hand] the Italian, Every houre] That is to say, each moment he may expect his punishment. Heb. Hand in hand. See Prov. 16. 5. Others translate it from hand to hand, that is to say, from time to time.

V. 22. A lewell] That is to say, this bodily gift is not onely undecent, but unfitting for a vicious soule, for it neither hideth it, nor amendeth it. without] Heb. Of an evil savor. A phrase taken from Wines that have lost their strength, or from putrified meats, as Psalme 14. 1. Others understand it of a woman that hath lost her reputation and good name.

V. 23. The expectation] That is to say, all their ends and actions are evill, and doe provoke the wrath of God. Or they cannot hope or expect any thing but Gods everlasting wrath.

V. 25. Made fat] That is to say, shall be enriched and encreased with blessings. Shall be watered] the Italian, Shall become raine]. That is to say, God shall encrease the meanes whereby he may every day become more and more bountifull and liberall.

V. 26. That with-holdeth] namely in time of dearth

V. 27. Favour] Namely from God and men.

V. 28. Flourish] And prosper in all manner of goodnesse.

V. 29. He that troubleth] Namely through prodigalitie, evill government, and other disorders.

V. 30. The fruit] That is to say, all that which proceedeth from him either in words, or deeds, counsell or example, is very effectuall and good for his neighbours to direct, edifie and keepe them in a true spirituall life. A tree] See Prov 3.

18. Winneth] The Italian Taketh]. That is to say hee draweth them to God, and to the love of him; he sweetly gaineth and winneth them to God.

V. 31. The righteous] Gods Children are visited and corrected in this life, for their sinnes; and shall the rebellious, and those which are his enemies escape his just judgement? 1 Pet. 4. 17, 18. The sinner] Namely he that maketh a continuall practise and exercise of sinning.

INstruction] The Italian, Correction] that is to say, not only instruction, but also reproof and punishment for his sins.

V. 3. The root] That is to say, the ground and being of their subsistence, which is in God & his grace, 2 Tim. 2. 29.

V. 4. A crown] A glory and ornament, 1 Cor. 11. 7 Maketh] That through her dishonest life, evill manners, small wisdom and worth dishonoreth her selfe and hers; Rollennesse] A cause of continuall annoyance and paine, which gnaweth and consumeth him, Pro. 14. 30.

V. 6. Are to] They are deceitfull to insnare men into mortall dangers, through cunning deceits, discovering of secrets, and diverse other wayes: The mouth] their wise, direct, prudent and discreet answers, do give no way to these deceits.

V. 7. Are overthrowne] The Italian, In a turning] that is to say, they perish suddainly and in an instant, as one should say, in the twinckling of an eye, or in the turning of an hand

V. 9. Despised] That lives plainely without any pompe or state, and yet hath all his commodities, and services duely performed.

V. 10. Righteous] The good man is reasonable and mercifull even towards the beasts which are in his service, in not abusing or overworking them, and in giving them those things which are necessary for them.

V. 12. Desireth] He studi [...]th to learne, and carefully practiseth the unlawful practices of wicked men: Whereas the righteous without any such thing do prosper, and are nourished and increased by the lively root of Gods grace and blessing.

V. 13. The wicked is] The Italian, The snare of the wicked is in the] With which he desireth to ensnare other men, by traps and deceits: Or with which hee ensnareth himselfe to everlasting and unavoydable perdition? See Prov. 18. 7. Shall come out] Hee will not suffer himselfe to be catched by the wicked, v 6. or God will deliver him from any evill that shall overtake him.

V. 14. Shall be satisfied] Shal receive abundant blessings from God, in reward of the good which he hath done with his mouth; by aiming all his speeches at the glory of God, the profit, instruction, comfort and edifying of his neighbour. A dainty allusion, his mouth hath satisfied many, with godly and helpfull words, therefore it shall be satisfied with good things.

V. 15. The way] That which he undertaketh of his own head, and understanding without the counsell of any other, that seemeth to him to be very well devised.

V 16. Knowne] It is suddain and bursteth out presently in disordered and undecent actions and words. Covereth] He hideth and represseth the blamefull boylings of his wrath.

Others he regardeth not, and dissembleth the injury that is done him.

V. 17. Sheweth forth] either in publicke judgements, or in private talke and conference. Righteousnesse] Namely that which is not only true in the reality of the thing which is spoken, but is also just and upright, in regard of the intention and manner wherin it was spoken without any malignancie, wresting, or prevarication. Deceit] either speaking an untruth, or in wresting the truth.

V. 18. Piercings of a sword] Namely by his calumnies, revilings, and false accusations. Is health] through his comforts, good advices, and wholesome discourses.

V. 19. The lip] A man that speaketh truth continually shall never perish, but shall obtaine everlasting life at Gods hands. Or his affaires shall be maintained by God in a prosperous and invariable estate. Is but for] that is to say, peradventure the Iyer shall for a short time be undiscovered; and get some benefit by his cunning and deceits but through Gods usuall judgments, they shall come to light, and shall bring him forth no lasting nor durable profit, and if by chance he doth escape and prosper in this world, yet he shall receive from God eternall punishment.

V. 20. Deceit] By the ensuing opposition it appeareth that the meaning is that the plotters of evill deceive themselves through false imaginations hoping to reape any good by their malice. Councillours] that have in themselves thoughts of goodnesse and love, which they also preserve amongst men, by good and loyall counsels.

V. 21. No evill] Or iniquity, that is to say God will preserve him from bieng tempted to sin.

V. 23. Concealeth] Hee makes no vaine shew nor ostentation of it, but keepes it close as a treasure in wisdome and humility, to make no shew of it, but only opportunely and profitably, for the glory of God, and good of his neighbour.

V. 25. A good word] Of h [...]artie commiseration, and comfort.

V. 26. More excellent] The Italian, More abundant] Namely in temporall, or spirituall goods, or in c [...]nt [...]n [...]ment of minde, the righteous is alwayes rich and the wicked poore. Seduceth them] The Italian Caused them to wander] through misery or want.

V. 27. Rosteth not] As he doth eschew labour, so he depriveth himselfe of the sweet profit, and enjoyment of it. The substance] Through his industry he filleth his house with rare and excellent riches.

V. 28. In the way] Those which seeke after justice and righteousnesse, preserve and increase in themselves the spirituall life of Gods grace, and of the presence of his spirit, and so attaine to everlasting life.

INstruction] Or Correction.

V. 2. Shall eate] He shall receive reward for the good deeds which he hath done with his speech to the glory of God; edifying, comfort and helpe of his neighbours. Shall eate] Shall receive just reward of his iniquities.

V. 3. He that keepeth] A man that is wary and advised in his speech saveth himselfe from great evils and mortall dangers.

V. 4. Be made fat] He shal fully enjoy great store of wealth.

V. 5. Loathsome] by reason of his shamelesse lying, he loseth his credit, reputation and love amongst all good men.

V. 8. His riches] The rich and poore in this are all one, for as the rich for mony do free themselves from danger, violence, and oppression, so the poore man is freed from all these by reason of his poverty.

V. 9. The light] The prosperity of good men, is like a faire sunne, and is accompanied with the joy of the spirit. But the happinesse of the wicked is weake and dimme like to the light of a Lamp, and is quickly ended.

V. 10. With the well advised] Namely with those who doe nothing rashly nor unadvisedly, following their owne advices, and first rash motions: but with mature deliberation of their owne or with the good advice of others.

V. 11. By vanity] Namely by deceit, and unlawfull practises
By labour] The Italian, With the hand] That is to say lawfully by his labour and industrie.

V. 17. A wicked] Namely disloyall, or negligent. Is health] The Italian, Bringeth health] Recreates and rejoyces those which employ him, freeing them from the anxietie and uncertaintnesse of things which are done a farre off and are unknowne: faithfully performing his commissions.

V. 19. To fooles] It is also grievous to a foole, to give over his premeditated malice; upon which he hath set his whole desire.

V. 23. The tillage] God doth abundantly blesse the labour of poore men, which do faithfully employ themselves in their vocations.

CHAP. XIII. VERS. 1.

BU [...] Ideth] They doe establish it in a firme and durable state, by diligence in gaining it, good government in preserving it, and distributing and principally by bringing up their Children and governing of their family well.

V. 3. In the mouth] Fooles by their unrul'd and unbridled speeches doe presumptuously offend every mans reputation, without any respect, Job 5. 21. Or vaine and ambitious men are scourged by the licentious speeches and judgments of fooles who speake the truth of them without any regard and so expose them to derision. The lippes] That is to say their grave and wise speeches, doe save them from all calumniations, scornes, and scoffes of fooles.

V. 6. A Scornen] The prophane man makes a shew oftentimes; as though hee were willing to purchase true divine and spirituall wisdome, through knowledge, instruction and other wayes, but the malice of his heart doth alwayes hinder the effect 2 Tim. 27. Is easie] Because hee hath the light of the understanding: and free motion of his own will.

V. 7. The lippes] Namely the speeches of a wise and discreet man.

V. 8. To understand] Namely strictly to examine all his actions: not to undertake any thing but justly and wisely to repent himselfe and amend any error that he hath committed; and strengthen himselfe in goodnesse, Psalme 119. 59. The folly] The errors which they commit doe proceed, from that they deceive themselves in their foolish judgement, which cannot rightly perceive the truth of things.

V. 9. But among] Even as the wicked enjoy a false kinde of delight, and have a Conscience seared, and hardened in sinne: So just men doe enjoy a solid kind of gladnesse in their good life, finding Gods grace and approbation in their hearts.

V. 10. The heart] Every one is inwardly the only true and faithfull judge of his joyes, and none else can truly perceive them.

V. 13. In laughter] The Italian Too much laughter] As naturall laughter being beyond measure causeth paine in a mans body, by reason of the too much dilatation and extension of the Organs. So for the most part it is seene, worldly joyes end in sorrow.

V. 14. From himselfe] The Italian More than he] That is to say, sinnes are punished according to the greatnesse of the fact: But the reward of righteous mens workes is given them beyond measure or proportion, through the superabounding grace of God.

V. 16. From evill] That is to say from sinne, or from [Page] the danger of some mischance, to which evill a timorous circumspectnesse may bee a remedy. Rageth] The Italian Rangeth] Hee is carried by his cupiditie, rash will, and blinde passion; without marking or observing the end, and issue of things.

V. 17. He that is] The meaning is that there are two evils to bee eschewed in a mans wrath; the one is sudden violence which goeth beyond its bounds in committing of excesse. The other is close dissimulation, which watcheth its opportunitie for revenge, the first maketh a man contemptible, the second abominable, The true remedy is to smother up this fire and give it no vent nor issue, and not to nourish or [...]atch it up too long. See Prov. 10. 18.

V. 18. Folly] That is to say the just reward of it. Crowned] They shall obtaine honour and glory, by meanes of their wisdome.

Verse 19. At the gates] For to intreate and begge.

V. 22. Doe they not erre] That is to say they stray out of the direct way of life: wherereby they cannot chuse but perish unhappily. Shall be] From the LORD.

V. 23. In all] With actions and deeds a man gathereth goods, not with words.

V. 24. Their riches] They doe adorne vertue, and are an honour to it, but they cannot alter folly and disguise it, but that it will bee and seeme to bee what it is.

V. 25. Soules] Namely such people as have beene sldndered and wrongfully accused.

V. 26. Confidence] It is a sure desence for the soule, against all assaults and dangers.

V. 29. Exalteth] The Italian Exciteth] It causeth this franticke passion to burst out in some grievous excesse.

V. 30. A sound heart] The Soule disburthened of passions and perturbations, helpeth the strength and well being of the body much.

V. 31. Reproacheth] In not regarding that the poore man is Gods Creature, and that he beareth his image and that he is through Gods providence in that poore estate, he doth offend God himselfe. See Job 31. 15.

V. 32. In his death] For he dieth in Gods grace and in an assured confidence of the salvation of his soule and of the Glorious Resurrection of his body.

V. 33. In the midst] When it is in any one, it steweth and maketh it selfe manifest, even amongst a company of fooles, whose folly causeth the understanding mans wisdom to appeare so much the more.

V. 35. That causeth] Namely to the office which he beareth, and to the Princes choice, shewing himselfe unworthy of [...]h honour he hath done him in so employing him, See Isay 22. 18.

CHAP. XV. VERS. 2.

KNowledge] Or the tongue of wise men is an ornament to knowledge, that is to say, he expresseth it with a grace, and beautifieth it with his eomely and gentle carriage.

V. 4. A wholesome tongue] The Italian The healing of the tongue] That is to say the comforts, good councells, and other good offices which the tongue doth, are very healing things, and of great power to restore and cheere up an afflicted spirit. Others have it, the health of the tongue: that is to say sincere, pure, and holy speeches, do nourish and recreate the spirits. A tree] See Prov. 3. 18. Therein] By calumnies, false accusations and deceits.

V. 7. Doth not so] Or is not right, wherefore it cannot produce any effects of value.

V. 10. Correction] Men of an evill life take no delight in being directed by reproofes, corrections, &c. and in the meane time by reason of this refusall they perish eternally. Others translate it, an evill punishment, that is to say, a hard and severe punishment is prepared for him that, &c.

V. 13. Is broken] Or weakened.

V. 14. The mouth] They take no delight. But onely in things like to themselves, as all living things are nourished by things agreeable to their nature, and every one seeketh out, and loveth his like.

V. 16. Trouble] Of unquietnesse of Conscience, or of some turbulent passion or of suites and contentions.

V. 19. The way] Foolishnesse and sloth, doe so entangle him in all his actions, that he cannot tell how to accomplish or make an end of any. The righteous.] Namely of those who freely follow their vocation. Made plaine] The Italian. Raised up] That is to say, nothing is hard nor uncasie to them.

V. 23. Hath joy] Finding himselfe inwardly comforted thereby, and honoured and esteemed by others therefore. By the answer] Namely by a wise and prudent answer given in due time.

V 24. The way] The true spirituall wise man doth direct all this present life for to obtaine the heavenly and everlasting life, Philippians 3. 20. Col. 3. 1, 2.

V. 25. Establish] Hee maintaineth the poore and the afflicted in the just possession of their goods, Psalme 146. 9.

V 27. Hateth] This is spoken principally concerning judges. Shall live] Shall be maintained in happy state, and shall continue in the grace of God.

V. 30 The light] As the brightnesse of the day, the sunne, or of some other bright thing, comforteth; so good newes recreates and contenteth the whole body. [Page]

V. 31 The eare] That is to say, the man that is patient, tractable, and obedient to wholesome corrections and admonitions, which are made unto him for to regulate his ufe according to Gods laws, and direct it towards everlasting life; shall one day bee honoured and esteemed amongst wise men.

V. 32. Getteth] Or possesseth.

V 33 The instruction] The true and onely means to frame one to true wisdom.

CHAP. XVI. VERS: I.

IN man] The Italian, Are mans] That is to say, Man may by his naturall faculty discourse, devise, and deliberate; but Gods providence governs and directs according to his will and pleasure, not onely his actions, but his very speeches.

V. 2. Weigheth] Examineth, discerneth, and judgeth of every mans soule, and all the motions thereof.

V. 3 Thy thoughts] Thy designes and deliberations shall certainly have a happy issue.

V. 4 For himselfe] Not to reap any profit or benefit out of them, hee having full sufficiency of happinesse in himselfe, but because that all his Workes may bee referred to his obedience, service and glory. The wicked] God is not, nor cannot bee author nor cause of any wickednesse in his Creature; and therefore this ought to be understood thus; That all man-kind having been corrupted in Adam, God neverthelesse doth preserve it, and causeth it to fructifie, to draw and save out of them the number of his elect, leaving the reprobate in their originall depravation; by which, and by the wicked acts which they derive from thence, hee doth ordaine them to just punishment, to the glory of his justice: Romans chapter 9. verse 22. and 23. 1 Peter chapter 2. verse 8. Jud. Chapter the fourth. And so the word make, is referred to the preservation and propagation of humane nature, though corrupt, and to the just destination to punishment, as [...] i [...] often used for, ordained, or appoynted, as Mark. Chapter the third, verse the foureteenth. Hebrewes Chapter the third, verse the second. Of evill] Namely, for temporall and eternall punishments.

V. 6 In quity] God is propitious and pardoneth their sinnes to them as turne from them, and endeavour to attaine to those vertues, which are contrary to them, as 1 Kings 21 27, 29. Dan. 4. 27. Jon. 3. 10. Now this purging ought to be understood, in regard of corporall punishments because that for the everlasting and eternall punishment, there was never any other expiation, but onely the bloud of Christ, 1 John 1 7. and 2. 2.

V. 9 Directeth] The meaning is, man maketh many designes, but all the meanes occasions, conduct, and issue of the execution, [...]p [...]n [...] absolutely upon Gods will and providence.

V. 10 A divine sentence] The Italian, Divination] God often inspireth Kings and Magistrates, in the exercise of their Offices, so that they seem for to divine, either in foreseeing things to come, or in discovering of secret things, or in deciding of doubtfull things. See Genesis chapter 44. verse 15. 1 Kings chapter 3. verse 16. John chapter 11. verse 51. Transgresseth not] The meaning is not that this singular inspiration is perpetuall: but that when God doth communicate it, it doth worke so powerfully, that it causeth them to utter infallible oracles.

V. 11. The Lords] Are appoynted by him to be so, and therefore they cannot bee falsified, without a grievous offence to God.

V. 12 Abomination to Kings] Namely, to those Kings which are righteous and vertuous, which onely deserve this glorious name. For the] Because they know that the onely prop of their power is justice; and they punish the wicked because they hate and detest them.

V. 5. In the light] The subjects are emboldened, comforted and joyed, when the King sheweth himselfe loving and gracious towards them. The latter raine] A raine which falleth very seldome in those contries, yet is much desired, because it is a great refreshing, Job Chapter the nine and twentieth, verse the three and twentieth. Zach. chapt. 10. verse 1.

V. 17 That keepeth] That keepeth himselfe from sinne in all his actions, and avoydeth all occasions of going astray, and holdeth himselfe straightly to the Law of God. Psalme 119. verse the ninth.

V. 19 To divide] Then to have any part of their great wealth which they have gotten by violence and extortion.

V. 20 Handleth a matter] The Italian hath it, Understandeth the word] That is to say, well instructed in Gods word, hath a true taste, and the pure knowledge, and spirituall understanding of it.

V. 21. The sweetnesse] Eloquence, and grace in speaking, causeth knowledge to bee of greater estimation and worth.: Or hee that is is endowed with it, hath a [Page] great advantage above others to instruct and perswade others.

V. 22 Vnderstanding] Wisedome, like a living spring alwayes furnisheth the wise man with new and wholsome instructions and good advices, &c. The Instruction] Namely whatsoever they utter for advice, counsell or instruction, Psalme 49. verse 13.

V. 23 Addeth] Causeth to be dayly wiser and discreeter in his speeches.

V. 24. Pleasant] Are full of sweet cordiality, affectionate compassion, and faithfull consolation.

V. 26 He that] The Italian, The soule of him that] The fruit of every lawfull labour is first reaped by him that laboureth, he thereby supplying his owne wants and necessities.

V. 27. Diggeth up] The Italian, Maketh ready] The Hebrew terme seemeth to be taken from Cooks. Others, diggeth up; that is to say, doth plot secretly. Burning fire] This also is according to the precedent figure: for your secret calumnies, false and malitious reports, dissembling and fraudulent speeches, are like unto fire, which makes ready and ripeneth the intent of doing hurt, untill such time as it is ready to bee put in execution.

V. 28 Chiefe friends] Namely, those most trusty friends which doe give advice and counsell in all difficulties and perplexities. See Psal. 55. 13. Mic. 7. 5.

V. 29 Enticeth] Seeketh to make him a companion in his thefts; robberies, and extortions, Prov 1. 10.

V. 30 He shut [...]eeb] Evill men are pensive and solitary, whilst they are devising of malice, but break out in laughter and scoffing when they have executed it.

V. 31 If it be found] The Italian, It shall be found] God ordinarily granteth long life to good men, and not to the wicked. See Psalme 55. 23. Prov. 10. 27.

V. 33 Disposing] the determination and decision of such things as are lawfully put to the lot.

CHAP. XVII. VERS. 2.

That causeth] The Italian, That bringeth] See upon Prov. 10. 5.

V. 4 To false lips] To evill enticements and sugestions, and to slatteries and false prayes: or generally to all manner of evill speeches.

V. 6 The Crown] That is to say, the honour and ornament: it being a glorious blessing of God, which also addeth authority to the fathers, and causeth them to be esteemed and respected: especially when the vertue of the fathers shineth in the children, being discreetly brought up by them. See. Psalme 127. 3, 4, 5. Their Fathers] Insomuch that the fathers vertue enobleth the Children, and renowneth them: and their experience, wisdom, and authority, supplyeth many defects of youth, it being under the government of venerable old age.

V. 8. A precious stone] A most essectuall baite even as a precious stone, which draweth the eyes of the beholders to it. Whithersoever] few men, are able to withstand the allurement and tryall of presents: whether they be given to allu [...]e one to favour a just cause, or else to bribe him for to oppose it.

V. 9 He that covereth] He that concealeth those things which he knoweth have been spoken or done to another mans injurie, and is no malignant or indiscreet Tale-carrier, procureth, and preserveth peace amongst men. Others, hee which takes no notice of an injury which is proffered him either by word or deed. Proverbs chapter the tenth, verse the twelfth.

V. 10 Entreth] That is to say, is felt more lively, and produceth also more lively fruit of amendment.

V. 11 An evill man] Or the rebellious man, seeketh nothing but evill. A cruell Messenger.] shall bee given over to Satan, executioner of Gods just judgements.

V. 12 A foole] A man of small understanding, or subject to his owne passions, when he is in the heat of any of them.

V. 14. As when one] Opening the sluice, or cutting the banke; which done, hee cannot stay the water from gushing out or over-flowing: so by small beginnings of strife, oftentimes there grow and arise grent contentions, the violence of which cannot be stayed by those who were the first authors thereof. Before it bee medled with] The Italian, Before it come to reproaches] Namely, to such words, as are the first breach; after which, for the most part come blowes, wounds, and murthers.

V. 16 A price] Namely meanes, and outward helps, whereby he may learn wisdom. No heart] Namely to desire or make himselfe capable of wisdom.

V. 17 A friend] A true and loyall friend is alwayes ready to performe such duties as doe belong to a friend: whereas your neare kinsmen, ordinarily never shew themselves but upon some grievous mis-forturies, and in some extream necessity, which stirreth up and wakeneth their naturall duty and affection.

V. 18 Striketh hands] That is to say is bound for other men. Prov. 6. 1. and 11. 15. Becommeth surety] rashly and inconsiderately.

V. 19 That exalteth] As when one maketh a breach [Page] in a wall to raise a gate therein, he endangereth the wall thereby, so one that will raise and exalt himselfe boyond his degree, for the most part falleth into ruine and confusion. Proverbs 11. 2. and 16. 18.

V. 23 Out of the hosome] That is to say, he taketh it out secretly. Pro. 21. 14.

V. 24. Before him] Namely, he hath it alwayes by him, and before his eyes, as a light and a seeure guid in all his businesses. Or he findeth, and gaineth it easily: as Proverbs: 14. 6. The eyes] like a man that hath lost his way, or is besides himselfe; that knoweth not where he is, nor where he shall find that he looketh for, nor from whence he shall have any ayd.

V. 26. Is not good] All manner of injustice, though it be but for a small summe, and all unjust punishment, though it be but slight, and no way concerning life, is condeninable in a Magistrate or publike officer.

V. 27. An excellent spirit] The Italian, Of a reserved▪ spirit] That is to say, he is discneet and moderate. Others, of a coole spirit; that is to say, slow to wrath. Others, he is seldo me angry.

CHAP. XVIII. VERS. I.

Through desire a man having separated himselfe, seeketh and intermeddleth with all wisdom] The Italian, he that separateth himselfe, seeketh his, owne desires, and scorneth all law and reason] The note; That separateth] Namely from God, and from his pure service & from the communion of the Church, as those wicked men that were excommunicate, and accursed among Gods people by reason of their wicked life. See Ezech. 14. 7. Hos. 4. 14. and 9. 10. Judg. 19. Seeketh] That is to say, doth with an unbridled desire runne after his owne lusts, shaking off all feare of God, and respect to his Church. Scorneth] Falleth at last into the abyse and bottome of all impiety, which is bold prophanesesse.

V. 2. But that] Namely to produce dayly effects of his inward folly.

V. 3 Contempt] Namely, of God and men.

V. 4. Are as deep] Are of a deep and profound understanding, abounding in reasons, and have not onely a vaine lustre and slight appearance of truth or grace. Or they never faile in his mouth, which is as it were a lively spring, out of which they issue.

V. 8. Are as wounds] The Italian, Seeme pleasing] Either in regard of him to whom he beareth the tale, covering the gal of his maline under the hony of that affectio<sup>n</sup> which he pretendeth to be the cause of his relating such things unto him, and not concealing of any thing which may concerne him. Or in regard of him by whom he makes the tale, faigning himselfe to be his friend, to gaine the more beliefe, and the better to colour his sayings. They goe downe] that is to say, they pierce or penetrate into the heart of him to whom they are spoken. Or him whom they are spoken of, causing a deadly hatred and persecution against him.

V. 9. Is brother.] That is to say, they are like to one another, for the one getteth nothing, and the other wast [...]th what he hath aheady gotten.

V. 10. The name of] That is to say, he himselse being called upon in time of need.

V. 11. Is his strong] His fence and strong hold in all dangers and necessities.

V. 14. The Spirit] The vigour, firmonisse, and alacrity of the soule doe uphold and beare up a man in his corporall infirmities; but if the soule yeeldoth to grieffe, the body hath no comfort.

V. 17. Seemeth just] the Italian, Hath right] That is to say, seemeth to be in the right, untill the other parties reply be heard: and therefore it is needfull to heare both parties, if one will not erre in giving judgement.

V. 18. Contentions] Namely, in the dividing of inheritances and the like, Betweene the mighty] Amongst whom justice cannot so freely be executed as amongst meaner people.

V. 19. A brother] Ordinarily the contentions and hatreds of brethren, or those which are neere of kin, being exasperated one against the other, are irreconcilable. Good things comming to be the worst when they are once corrupted: mans wickednesse leaping from the one extreame of duty, to the other of offence.

V. 21. Are in] The life, safety, and good of man doe oftentimes depend upon the wise and right use of the tongue, and upon the contrary use his death and ruine. They that love it] That is to say, they that are inclined to much speech, or utter whatsoever commeth in their mouth, giving way to that naturill infirmity.

V. 22. A wise] Endowed with fitting qualities, according to Gods ordinance.

CHAP. XIX. VERS. I.

PErverse] Though he be rich and mighty.

V. 3. Perverteth] causeth all what he undertakes to goe backwards, and all his enterprizes and affaires to have an evill successe. Against the Lord] As author of his calamities, which he ought to impute only to himselfe.

V. 6. will entreat the savour] the Italian, doe reverence] namely, for ceremony, or for feare without any love, [Page] but liberality is that which gaineth the hearts: inferring, that power alone cannot gaine nor obtaine that so much desired and sweet bond of love in the hearts of men; which love being one of the necessariest foundations of a just domination, must begained by benefits.

V. 7. His friends] namely, those which were his friends in prosperity, who are called, friends of fortune. They are wanting] That is to say, no man hearkneth to him, nor gives him any favourable answer: Others, the words, namely, of a poore man doe not prevaile.

V. 8. Loveth] Because that the good and happinesse of the soule, dependeth upon true wisdome.

V. 11. To passeover] That is to say, to take no notice of it, but to forget and forgive it.

V. 13. A continuall dropping] A very noisome thing, which at the last consumes and wastes the husbands life and health.

V. 16. Desp [...]seth] He that lives carelessly and is indifferent in his wayes without [...]eeding what he doth. See Lev. 26. 21. O [...] he that taketh no care to rule his actions according to the will of God.

V. 18. Let not thy soule, &c. the Italian, But undertake not thou to slay him] That is to say, chastising him moderately by way of correction, but not to death.

V. 19. Deliver him] Namely, from the danger or the punishment which he is fallen into through some notable excesse committed by reason of his immoderate wrath. The meaning is, that it is better to let him suffer the evill which he hath deserved and drawn upon himselfe, that he may thereby amend; for pittie in such a case is hurtfull both to him and others.

V. 22. His kindnesse] That is to say, liberality amongst worldly men, is but a meere kinde of merchandizing, giving a little to receive much: but a poore man who hath nothing to give is more to bee commended then such false benefactors.

V. 24. In his bosome] or in his arme-pit. Not so much] Hyperbolicall termes, to shew that even hunger it selfe is not able to put away his sloth from him.

V. 25. Smite] That is to say, magistrates ought by severely punishing of those who transgresse boldly and maliciously; to give example and instruction to those who erre through ignorance and weaknesse. But as for the wise, reprove them only, and it is sufficient.

V. 26. Chaseth away] Namely, that through his dissolute life, spending all the meanes, causeth his poore widowed mother to sell her house, and forsake her habitation wherein she had spent all her former dayes.

V. 28. Devoureth] the Italian, Swalloweth] that is to say, he feedeth upon it, as upon a food which is proper unto him. Or makes no difficulty of committing of it, no more then he would of swallowing a pleasant liquor. See Job 15. 16. & 20. 12. 16. & 34. 7.

CHAP. XX. VERS 1.

A Mocker] being immoderately used, it maketh a man prophane, and an insolent contemner of God and men: Strong drink] A common name for all artificiall drinkes which are apt to make a man drunk.

V. 3. Will be medling] the Italian, Causeth himselfe to be scoffed] That is to say, raising of contentions without any reason, he reapeth nothing but dishonour and shame by it.

V. 5 Counsell] That is to say, prudence, and wisdom, which are the springs of all good counsell. Is like deepe waters] the Italian, Is a deepe water] As [...] should say, a living spring which never faileth. Draw it out] Shall seeke it out at his need, and shall by all meanes endeavour to purchase it, and shall make himselfe capable of using it.

V. 6. Proclaime] They professe liberally in words and faire proffers, but in effect they shew nothing but vanity. See Prov. 19. 22. Others understand it thus: that men do with words commend him that doth them good, but are seldome loyall in a reall acknowledgement.

V. 8. That sitteth] [That doth in person supply the place of a judge. A thing much used in former times by Princes & Emperours▪ Scattereth away] Through his acute judgement, not subject to such corruptions as inferiour Judges are. And through his awfull majestie he can penetrate into the falsehoods and cunnings of unjust pleaders, even as the Sun doth disperse mists. All evill] or all wicked men, As v. 26.

V. 10. Diverse] the Italian, Double] namely, the one too heavie to buy by, and the other too light to sell by.

V. 11. Even a childe] That is to say, even from the first actions of a childe one may guesse what his ensuing life will be.

V. 13. Open thine eyes] Be vigilant and attentive in all things which thou doest and undertakest.

V. 14. It is naught] When men buy a thing they use to dispraise it, which afterwards they can boast to have bought at a low and cheape rate.

V. 16. His garment] Which seems to be against the law. Exod. 22. 26. But here the wise man doth not touch he particular case of the law, which is in favour of poor men, who would not be taken for sureties; but speaketh of rich m [...], who inconsiderately become sureties, and therefore deserve to suffer for their [...]olly, that they may thereby take warning. For a stranger] Of another nation and region. Or for one that is unknowne to him, and to whom he is no way bound.

V. 17. His mouth] A proverbiall kinde of speech, as Lam. 3. 16. To shew that the false delight being once past, man findeth that he hath gotten no profit but much hurt: [Page] even as if his mouth were full of gravell, which is no way nourishing, and spoyleth his teeth. See Job 20. 12. 14. 15.

V. 19. Flattereth] the Italian, Entiseth] That is to say, a deceitfull flatterer who commeth to discover and spie into the thoughts and secrets of men. Such as your spies and tale-bearers are.

V. 20. His lampe] He shall be deprived of life and all manner of happinesse. Of all honour, dignity and good in this life. And afterwards shall be condemned to everlasting death: a phrase or manner of speaking very frequent in Scripture.

V. 21. Shall not] By reason of the unlawfull means which are used by those who strive to enrich themselves suddenly. And because that which groweth suddenly, perisheth also quickly. And because a man hath not by little and little used himselfe to beare, digest, and governe, so much prosperity being as it were drunken with riches, he is forced to vomit them up againe raw and undigested.

V. 22. On the Lord] To whom vengeance belongeth. Deut. 32. 35.

V. 24. Mans goings] All mans meanings are governed by Gods providence, and therefore men can determine nothing certainly, nor know the issue of his designes and actions.

V. 25. *A s [...]*are] A sinne which ensnareth and bindeth the soule of the sinner unto Gods judgements, and unto a remorse of conscience. Devoureth] prophanely eateth without any devotion of the sacrifices of thanksgiving. Or generally taketh to himselfe and employeth to common uses those things which God commanded to be offered unto him as holy, as tithes, first fruits, vowes, &c. To make enquiry] namely to know whether a man be irrev [..]cably bound thereunto, and whether there be no meanes to be freed from it. A token of temerity in having made a vow lightly: or of impiety in having changed his minde.

V. 26. Bringeth] A figurative terme taken from the ancient manner of threshing with cart-wheeles, Isay 28. 17, 28. To signifie the practice of justice in laying the wicked apart who are like to chaffe in humane society. Or plainely he punisheth them with grievous punishments. Such as the punishment of the wheele was. See 2 Sam. 12. 31. Amos 1. 3.

V. 27. The Spirit] the Italian, The Soule] God hath endowed it with the light of divine reason, understanding and conscience: whereby it knowes; rules, and judges it selfe, and its most secret motions, thoughts, and actions. See 1 Cor. 2. 11.

V. 28. Mercy] namely, God himselfe, who is all mercy and truth in his promises: Or these vertues of clemency and loyall justice being in Kings, are safe-guards for them insomuch as they draw Gods grace and protection upon them.

CHAP. XXI. VERS. 1.

Rivers] The Italian, Small streames] which are drawne every way by gardens to water their grounds as they please. See Deut. 11. 10.

V. 4 A high look] The Italian Haughly eyes] that is to say, the pride and haughtinesse of the wicked mens soules, which they expresse in all their actions, and in the carriage of their bodie, wherein they glory, and is a great sin before God.

V. 5 The thoughts] The two ordinary meanes to get goods, are, prudent consideration, and care and industry in putting that in execution which hath been maturely deliberated.

V. 6. Tossed] By the wind of Gods curse, like unto dust, or chaffe.

V. 7 Shall destroy them] The Italian, Shall draw them downe] Namely, into everlasting ruine.

V. 8 The way] That is to say, his life and his wicked and unlawfull actions. Strange] That is to say, full of horrible and tragicall chances, see Job 3. 13. Is right] That is to say easie, pleasant, and directed to a good and happy end. See Isa. 26. 7.

V. 9 A corner] Namely openly subject to the injuries of the weather, for the tops of houses in those places were made flat, and lay open like Terraces. A wide house] The Italian, In a common house] He seemeth, to have a regard to the custome of those countries, by which in every house men and women had their lodgings apart, wherein they remained in the time of mourning. Zac. 12. 12, 13, 14. But in time of mirth they lived in sweet communion with their family. See Psal. 68. 6. and 113. 9.

V. 12 The house] Which being full of extortions, bringeth the wicked to ruine, so far it is from being any stay unto them.

V. 14 In secret] Whereby he sheweth that he means corrupting presents given to Judges, to coole their zeale in doing of justice against ma [...]factors. Bosome] See Prov. 17. 23.

V. 16 Of the lead] The Italian, Of giants] that is to say of the damned: See Job 26. 5. Pro. 2. 18. & 9. 18

V. 17 Oyle] That is to say esseminate pleasures and delights, amongst which in ancient times were your odoriferous oyles: especially being used at banquers and feasts.

V. 18 A ransome] A figurative terme, as much as to say, God shall be pleased and appeased with the righteous, and shall turne his wrath towards the wicked, who, as one should say, shall come into their places▪ Prov. 11. 8. Isa. 43. 3.

V. 20. Oyle] The Italian, Precious oyles] which kinds of oyles, and spices were in those dayes laid up amongst your rarest and most precious things. See 2 Kings 20. 13.

V. 21. Righteousnesse] namely, a just reward of his [Page] good life.

V. 22. A wise man] Understanding and wisdom do often overcome strength, as may be seene in Cities taken by stratagem See Eccl. 9. 14.

V. 24. Proud] All those that are proud, are also scorers of God and men.

V. 25. The desire] Which is not accompanied with any study of endeavour for to obtaine it, and therefore serveth for nothing but to vex the foolish man.

V. 26. He coveteth] the Italian, The man given to covetousnesse, coveteth, &c. even as the covetous man is insatiable in gathering to himselfe, even so is the good man never weary of giving.

V. 27. With a wicked] the Italian, With wickednesse] As if they had stolne it, or forcibly taken it away: giving the Lord part of their theft. Isay 61. 8. Or offering it to God for to gaine his favour in some evill designe.

V. 28. That heareth] He that had rather heare then speake rashly or falsely shall alwayes in time and place have occasion enough to speake, and shall be hearkned unto, being of entire life and reputation▪ Or he that heares and faithfully reports or witnesses what he hath seene and heard.

V. 29. Wicked man] As the wicked grow worse and worse, untill they come to the point of unbridled boldnesse, shaking off and casting aside all manner of shame, even so good men continue and grow better and better in their good and upright conversation. Directeth] Or strengheneth and confirmeth.

CHAP. XXII. VERS. 1.

Loving favour] That is to say, the favour and good will of men.

V. 2. Meet together] Live together, and in many things have need of one another, and as they are borne all alike, so death makes them all equall, and at the last they are equally judged by the Lord, Job 31. 15. Ephes. 6 9. Whereby the consequence is cleere, that we ought to be charitable and upright, because that before God there will be no difference.

V. 3. The evill] Namely, the danger and inconvenience. Passeon] Doe runne on headlong, without any stay or circumspection.

V. 5 Thornes] All manner of unhappinesse, danger and trouble, encumbreth their wicked life. Doth keep] namely from sinne, he that keeps himselfe pure and cleane, 1 John 5. 18. Shall be farre] shall be exempt from these evil, or shall keepe himselfe farre from such people.

V. 8. The rod] That is to say, the tyrannicall power and authority, wherewith he unjustly oppresseth others. Psal. 125. 3.

V. 9. He that hath] He that seeing other mens miseries and wants is moved to compassion.

V. 10. The scorner] He that respecteth or reverenceth no man, that is licentious in scoffing and mocking every one.

V. 11. He that loveth] The good man proceeds in words and deeds, with such grace, discretion, and honestie that he is able to gaine the favour of the greatest ones.

V. 12. Knowledge] The Italian A man endowed with knowledge] Namely with true and spirituall wisdom, joynd with faith, love, and obedience.

V. 13. A Lion] He saigneth unto himselfe imaginary dangers, because hee would have some pretence that he might not goe abroad into the fields to work.

V. 14. The mouth] That is to say their dalliances and allurements, serve for to catch men, even as your pits made by hunters, for to catch, wilde beasts.

V. 18. Within thee] The Italian I [...] thy belly] In thy soule, like wholesome and well digested meate. They shall] The Italian. And if they be all] If thou hast well conceived and learned them, so that thou canst in fitting times and places make convenient use of them, if thou doest alwayes adorne thy speech with them, like unto a string of rich and precious pearles.

V. 21. The certaintie] Namely these divine, eternall, and undoubted truths. Thou mightest] That thou mayest in any vocation wherein thou shalt bee employed by God, or men, speake, worke, and converse in all manner of uprightnesse.

V. 22. Because he is] taking occasion from his povertie which is without power or defence. Or take heed thou doe him no wrong, for thou shouldest thereby not wrong justice onely, but mercy also, which is so much recommended and encharged to us by God. Or for feare of the Lord who is the de [...]ender of the poore. In the gate] In judgment, whose seate was neere to the Citie gates, the meaning is, do him no wrong neither in publick nor in private. See Job 5. 4. & 31. 21.

V. 25. Get a snare] be not unawares drawne to imitate him, or doe not runne into some mortall danger, as one often doth in such mens companies.

V. 26. That strike] For to enter rashly into suretyship.

V. 29. Diligent] that hath a quick and ready wit to resolve upon businesse, and is watchfull in taking hold of opportunities, diligent and active in his actions. Shall stand] shall be advanced and imployed in great mens services, and shall not be imployed in the imployments of the meanest sort of people.

COonsider] Be restrained and moderate in thine eating, and discreet in not laying thy hands upon any thing, but what shall be set before thee, as thy proper portion, according to the ancient manner of feasts, and especially beware thou touch not that which is for the Lord.

V. 2 Pat a kinfe] Thou wilt draw some misfortune upon thy selfe by the meanes of the Princes displeasure.

V. 3. Of his dainties] His rich garnished courtly Tables. Deceitfull] Because that it is a bait to bring one into much slavery and divers miseries and courtly ruines; and it is no firme thing: nor alwayes loyall witnessse of good will.

V. 4 Labour not] Unreasonably with anxiety, and biting care. Wisedome] Namely, carnall wisedome, by which thou art driven to gaine great wealth, as a meanes of worldly happinesse. Or which thou employest to get riches, and in which thou puttest thy confidence to grow rich. Or wherein thou gloriest after thou art grown wealthy.

V. 5 Set thine eyes] Hebr. wilt thou cause thine eyes to flye towards riches?

V. 6 That hath an evill] That is miserable or envious, who is never liberall, courteous, nor of a sincere heart.

V. 8. Shalt thou vomit up] After thou hast perceived his sordidnesse, thou shalt loath his table, and his meats, and shalt wish thou hadst never tasted of them, and shalt repent to have lost thy festi [...]all conversation in such sort.

V. 11 Their Redeemer] Namely God himselfe, Psal. 68. 6.

V. 18 There is an end] the Italian, If there be reward] seeing that undoubtedly God doth always reward good works, thou canst not faile in thy hopes.

V. 21 Drowsinesse] Namely, idlenesse and sloth: Prov. 19. 15.

V, 23 Buy] That is to say, gaine it with labour, study, and expence, renouncing all other delights, and ease, and never dispossesse thy selfe of it.

V. 27 A narrow p [...]t] Wherein when a man is fallen, he cannot stirre himselfe to get out.

V. 31 It moveth] A figurative terme, that is to say, it sheweth its strength, by frothing, and sparkling in the glasse. Others expound it, it seemeth to doe no hurt, being sweet and pleasant, Cant. 7. 9.

V. 32. It [...]i [...]eth] It will astonish thee, and make thine understanding dull, and thy body weak; as if thou wert bitten with an Asp.

V. 34 He that lyeth] Languishing, astonied, and staggering.

V. 35 Shalt thou say] Thou shalt find thy selfe bruised and wounded, and shalt not know who hath done it, nor how:

nor wherefore it was done. when I shall] amongst all the hurts which drunkennesse doth, this is one of the chief, that it causeth a kind of heat and perpetuall desire to continue in it, that one cannot abstaine, nor forsake it, nor the evils which it produceth. See Deut. 29. 19. Isa. 56. 12.

CHAP. XXIII. VERS: 2.

OF▪ mischiefe] Or of wrong or perversenese.

V. 5. Is strong] His wisdom is in stead of strength to him, and through his wisdom hee accomplisheth many things, which by strength hee could not doe.

V. 7. Is too high] It is above all capacity, and hee cannot comprehend it, Ps. 10 5. Prov. 14 6. In the gate] He shall not be able, nor shall not dare to speak in publike assemblies.

V. 9. Of foolishnesse] Every thing which mans carnall sence conceiveth, or thinks, being not enlightned by God, is sinne, Gen 6. 5. but this sinne being brought to its height, by a prophane contempt, groweth to such a high degree, that it becommeth abominable to men, and how much more to God?

V. 10 If thou] If thou faintest in adversity, and dost not grow strong, through constancy and magnanimity, thou wilt not be able to beare it, but wilt be overcome by it.

V. 11 If thou] This ought to be understood of oppressions, and private violences, that are manifestly unjust, which every one is bound to withstand in his vocation, and especially those which are in publike offices Job 29. 12, 13. Psal. 82. 4. 1. Joh. 3. 16.

V. 12 That keepeth] Namely God, who being thy protector, requireth thou shouldest bee the same to thy neighbour.

V. 15 Spoyle not] or rob not, and doe not prey upon it.

V. 16 For a just man] As much as to say, O you wicked men, doe not take an occasion to wrong good men, for God doth oftentimes visit them with afflictions: for he doth relieve them likewise, and destroyeth their oppressors. Shall fall] Shall irrecoverably fall into the a [...]ysse of perdition.

V. 21. That are given to change.

The Italian, Tale-bearers] That is, such as doe falsely accuse others to the King. Or that speake evill of the King himselfe.

V. 22. Whe knoweth] Who can fore-see, or avoyd these two suddaine thunders, of divine vengeance, and a Kings wrath?

V. 25 Ag [...] blessing] The Italian, A blessing of good] By which good is desired, and asked of God. Or he saith [Page] this, because that the word blessing in the Hebrew is also taken in the contrary sense for cursing.

V. 26 That giveth'd right answer] The Italian That answereth right words] Sincerity in words, cleare from all dissimulation, is the truest token of love, and the sincerest loving courtesie.

V. 27. Prepare] The meaning is that the wise man ought to regulate himself, and his buildings; according to his revenues, and that he must first care for things necessary; afterwards, he may look after things which are for delight, [...].

V. 28. Be not] He poynteth out three defaults in a witness. The first is, when hee wilfully, without necessity; and not being bound in conscience thereunto, revealeth another mans secret actions. The second when he is false, or suborneth other false witnesses. The third, when he beareth witness through malice, or for revenge. v. 29,

CHAP. XXV. VERSE 1.

The men] It is likely that these sentences were at the first scattered in divers of Solomons books, and that Ezechiah caused them to be compiled & gathered together by certaine men whom he had deputed thereunto.

V. 2. The glory] God sheweth the height of his Majesty, in that without any communication, or consultation with others, he doeth, and governeth all things excellently through his secret providence, Isa. 40. 13. Rom. 11. 33, 34. and by this means keeps all his creatures in humility and adoration. Whereas it is honourable for [...]ar [...]l [...]ly Princes, to participate of other mens counsells, and to make mature deliberations, because they have not within themselves all those perfections which are necessary for their office.

V. 3 And the heart] Namely their thoughts and intentions; unlesse it please them for to reveale them, by most, certaine proofs: how much more impossible is it then to search out the judgements and secrets of God? Rom. 11. 33.

V. 4 Take away] As it is impossible for a gold-smith to make any handsome piece of worke, unlesse his mettal be well purged, and refined: so must wicked men be put out of the Court, and out of the Kings service, before the kingdome can be well governed.

V. 7 Whom thine eyes] who hath honoured thee by admitting thee into his presence, and now by his sight doth encrease thy shame.

V. 8 Thou know not what to doe] The Italian, Lest thou doe something] That shall be unseemely, being provoked by the injuries which are done to thee.

V. 9 Debate] If thou canst not avoyd strife or contention, yet abstaine from interesting, or bringing in any third person, by revealing any thing which hee hath privately, and as it were in trust spoken unto thee, I [...]st thou be disgraced, as disloyall.

V. 12. An eare-ring] Which is no dishonour, but a true and precious ornanient.

V. 13 To them] He is a singular case, and comfort unto them, casing them through his wisdom, loyalty and care, of their solicitude and anxiety concerning businesses which are farre off, doubtfull, and of great consequence.

V. 15 By long forbearng] The Hebrew, by slownes to wrath.

V. 16. Hast thou found] The Italian hath it, If thou find] A generall precept for the sober and temperate use of all things, bee they never so pleasant; which some referre particularly, to the familiar conversation with friends, which is spoken of in the next verse.

V. 18. A maule] An instrument of death and ruine.

V. 19 A broken tooth] A deceitfull thing, which maketh some shew, but is for no use in time of need.

V. 20. As he that taketh away] That is to say, is like to him that doth things altogether unfitting, and untimely. As vinegar] Which hath a naturall contrarietie, with Nitre dissolving it, and causing it to lose its vertue. Even so singing and rejoycing to one that is afflicted, doth not comfort nor ease him, but doth more vexee and distemper him, and increaseth his griefe.

V. 22. Thou shalt-heap] If thy benefits will not mitigate his malice towards thee, yet will they bring Gods curse upon him, and his blessings upon thee.

V. 23 Angry countenance] That is to say a good mens austere severity, which sheweth in his countenance how displeasing slanders are to him, causeth the slanderer to hold his peace, or to goe away.

V. 26 Falling downe] namely, that through timorousnesse dares not oppose him, but is afraid of him, and yieldeth to him, or doth dally with him, and flatter him. Is a troubled] Hee is not good nor profitable, neither for edification, nor corrections, having troubled the purity of his soule, and life, with the mudde of carnall respects, and worldly interests, or by the basenesse of his mind.

V. 27 To search] Beyond the bounds of divine Revelation, and beyond the measure of the light which is conserred upon him: See Deuteronomie Chapter the nine and twentieth, verse the nine and twentieth. Their owne glory]

The Italian, Him who is the glory of men] Namely, God, his Majesty, and his secrets. So GOD is called the glory of man, as being the onely Sunne, which shining upon man in grace, light and glory, lendeth him all the light he hath: but will have him bee content with that small parcell of glory, and nor search out the depth of it through [Page] rashnesse of judgement, or curiosity of knowledge. Is not glory] The Italian Is a glorious thing] Hebrew is glory, that is to say, it is a thing too high to be undertaken. Or too rash, and bold an attempt.

V. 28. No rule over, &c.] Which may bee applyed to wrath, or any other passion, motion, or affection of man.

CHAP. XXVI. VERS. 1.

AS raine] The meaning is; either that it is a very rare thing in those Countries, 1 Sam. 12. 17. Or that store of raine, is troublesome, and hurtfull in harvest time.

V. 2. By wandring] The Italian Wandereth] That is to say is carried here, and there by the wind, by reason of her lightnesse; so the curse which is without reason or just cause, shall not take any effect.

V. 4. According to his] Imitating his passions, and undecent carriage.

V. 5. According to his] With reason, and to the purpose, to beate downe his presumption and ignorance.

V. 6. Cutteth off] And if any one were so madd as to cut off his owne feet, he were punished by himselfe, being thereby made unfit for any action or motion. So it a man employeth in a message, or embassage, an uncapable & unworthy person, he spoyleth all his businesse; and cannot hope for any good issue.

V. 7. Are not equall] The Italian The lame man halteth] The Hebrew phrase is taken from well buckets whereof the one commeth up when the other goeth downe. So is] Good words and discourses which are sometimes uttered by a foole, are not of any continuance nor alwayes alike, but are still seconded by some notable impertinency, neither doe they sound well in his mouth.

V. 8. As he that bindeth a stone in a sling, so is hee that giveth honour to a foole, The Italian hath it, Hee that giveth honour to a foole, doth as one that throweth a precious stone, into a heape of stones. Notes Doth as the] That is to say looseth all the honour which hee doth to him, it being drowned, and brought to nothing, through the fooles frequent actions: even as a Jewell cannot be seene, nor shew its lustre, being buried in a heape of stones. Precious] The Hebrew set, or unset, namely artificially in a faire-ring. A heape] He hath a relation to certaine heapes of stones, which were heaped up for directions in high wayes, which were consecrated by heathens and Idolaters, to an Idoll whom they termed a guide of high wayes.

V. 9. A parable] As a man whose minde is troubled with excessive drinking, having a thorne in his hand, can make no use of it, but must hurt himselfe or others with it: even so a mad man, when he hath learned any good sentence or parable, makes a contrarie and undiscreet use of it, to the wrong and offence of others.

V. 10. The great God, &c.] the Italian, Great ones grieve all men, and they hire fooles and travellers] That is to say, Kings and Princes sometimes doe erre greatly, grieving their subject; with impostes and taxes, to spend foolishly upon jesters, fooles, vagabonds and strangers, who bring some new or curious thing out of foreigne countries.

V. 12. Of a foole] That is so, and knoweth and openly professeth himselfe to be so.

V. 14. Vpon his bed] Out of which through lazinesse he is loath to come.

V. 16. The sluggard] As having made choice of a most happie kinde of life: in tranquillity without care: in security, without danger of any chances which may befall one in an active life: in liberty, free from all bonds and duties; in honour, not vilifying himselfe to doe any base or inferiour acts. In delight without any labour or grieffe. See Eccles. 4.

6. That can render] As lawyers, who resolve questions of law. Or those who formerly did resolve obscure questions, either naturall, politick or morall.

V. 17. Is like one] Puts himselfe into danger of not appeasing the quarrell, and to bring evill upon himselfe. As he that holdeth a Dog or a Wolfe by the eares, cannot hold him long, and doth the more anger him and provoke him, by holding him.

V. 18. [...]asteth] Offendeth willingly and in deed.

V. 20. Tale-bearers] Or whisperers, who doe incense enraged hearts.

V. 23. Burning] With calumniations and slanders. Are like] Such persons have no worth, neither without nor within, even as a potsheard which is coloured over with the drosse of silver, hath some lustre upon it, but is of no value.

V. 26. Shall be shewed] God shall through some misbehaviour cause it to be brought to light for to have it punished by publick order of justice.

V. 28. A lying tongue] The Calumniator and false accuser, who is set on by hatred and malice, and the flatterer who seemes to be moved by love, doe both produce one effect, namely ruine and calamity.

IS heavier] That is to say is more grievous and intolerable.

V. 5. Is better] That is to say free friendship; even in reproving the defects and errors of: a friend, is more profitable, and more to be desired, then friendship too full of respect, which produceth no wholesome effects.

V. 6. The wounds] Namely all his severe reproofes, corrections, and chastisements. The Kisses] Namely, his cherishings, and shewes of love. Are deceitfull] The Italian. Faigned] Or forced. The Hebrew word signifieth properly, a thing extorted through earnest intreaties and is not granted with a good will.

V. 8 As a bird] Which is alwayes restlesse, and hath no secure being, but is alwayes in danger. That wandereth] That goeth unnecessary voyages to no end. From his place] From his house and friends.

V. 10. Neither goe into] Trust thy good and ancient friends, rather than thy kindred, who many times will faile in time of adversitie, Prov. 19. 7.

V. 11. That I may answer] That is to say, I shall not be subject to my adversaries reproach for having an ill governed and dissolute son. See Psalme 127. 5. the words of a good and wise father.

V. 14. He that blesseth] All faigned honours and courtesies, are abhorred as bad as so many imprecations, by men that are wise, and lovers of truth.

V. 15. Are alike] Are equally displeasing, troublesome, and hurtfull.

V. 16. Hideth her] Hee that seekes to hinder her malice from bursting forth, and shewing itselfe abroad by actiona. Hideth the wind] The Italian, Makes it knowne that hee would shut up the winde. Makes it knowne] Makes himselfe publikely ridiculous, in undertaking a thing which is utterly impossible. That hee would] Example of a thing which is utterly impossible, as Prov. 30. 4. Eccles. 8. 8.

V. 17. So a man] The manners and externall carringe of a man, is refined, and made civill by conversing with other men.

V. 18. That waiteth] Namely a constant servant, that is: continually at: ending upon a Princes businesse. Or he that is faithfull and vigilant to keepe safe the person and goods of his master cannot chu [...]e but bee recompensed with some honourable place or office.

V. 19. The heart] The Conscience which is a mans true, looking glasse sheweth faithfully to a man what he is.

V. 20. The eyes] His lust and concupiscence which is let in at the eyes, 1 John 2. 16.

V. 21. To his praise] A man is knowne what he is, by the quality of them that commend him, for if they be wicked men, he is surely their companion, if they be good men, wee must likewise conceive that hee is like unto them. by this common axiome that every one praiseth him that is like to himselfe. Others expound it according to his praise that is to say according to his praise worthy acts▪ Or according to the praise which [...] given him. Seeing there can bee no other tryall of the heart, which is hidden to mans judgment.

V. 24. Riches] Money and greatnesse may faile and therefore for the maintenance of this life one never ought to neglect good husbandry, the chiefe part of which consists in the increase of Cattel, which are bred up with grasse that groweth of it selfe, without any labour or charge. See Eccl. 5. 9, 10.

V. 25. The tender grasse] He meaneth hay, which is gathered and laid up, opposite to that grasse which is eaten up in pasturage while it is upon the ground.

CHAP. XXVIII. VERS. 2.

*MA*ny are the] The Italian. The land often changeth] The change of governours bringeth with it many great alterations, and commotions of State, grievances and ru [...]nes of particular businesses, and many other inconveniencies: either by reason of their small experience, and of their greedy desires, or for want of confidence, and love: or by reason of their absolute will, to innovate every thing according their pleasures. But by a man] The Italian But by men] God blesseth the people, by the long and happy raigne of their Princes: when there are amongst the people a good number of men wise in the true knowledge of the feare of God. Others translate it thus by reason of wise and understanding men the land continueth a long time in the same state.

V. 3. A poore man] There is no crueller tyranny nor more intolerable, then that of meane people: as well by reason of their base and sordid mind which hath no tincture of generous humanity in it: as likewise because their forepassed misery maketh them covetous, and insatiable.

V. 5. Understand not] Their understanding is quite perverted, and incumbred, so that they cannot be guided by true reason, and uprightnesse of Conscience. All things] Which belong to the guiding of their life, and to direct them to everlasting salvation.

V. 6. In his wayes] The Italian That walketh two wayes]

Namely that is double in his proceedings and actions: outwardly following vertue, and inwardly using fraud and malice, ver. 18. Jam. 1. 8.

V. 8. Shall gather it] Not in ending any such thing of himselfe: but it is so done through Gods secret providence.

V. 10. To goe astroy] He that through his arts, and deceits, as by indirect wayes, seekes to draw good men that [Page] are simple, and weake, into some inconveniences or traps which they have laid for them.

V. 11. Searcheth him out] Judgeth truely of him his understanding being no way dazled, nor preoccupied by the love and lustre of riches.

V. 12. Rise] Are raised to power, and dignity, Psalme 12. 8. A vian] That is to say every man retireth from a bad Princes Court. Or good men doe hide themselves for feare of his tyranny, v. 28.

V. 13. He that covereth] That keepes them upon his Conscience, and doth not confesse them to God, and to men also, if need require it.

V. 14. That feareth] Through the great respect which hee beareth to Gods terrible Majestie, fearing to offend him, and being no way confident of himselfe.

V. 15 A wicked Ruler] That cannot get enough for to satisfie his unlimited greedinesse.

V. 17. To the bloud] That is to say to the body and life. Shall flie] Being driven by the torment of his owne Conscience, hee shall never take rest. and no man can make him confident.

V. 21. For a piece] That is to say, one ought to keepe himselfe from being any way corrupted with presents, for they that are any way enclined thereunto, will for a small matter bee induced to goe astray.

V. 22. An evill eye] Is unmercifull, envious, and covetous. See Prov. 23. 6.

V. 25. That putteth his trust] Pride and presumption being directly contrary thereunto. Shall be made fatt] Shall be filled with good and solid things, and not puffed up with winde as the proud man is.

V. 26. In his owne heart] In himselfe, in his owne understanding, courage, and valour. Wisely] In a wise and humble circum [...]pection and modestie Shall be delivered] From all dangers and sinister accidents.

CHAP. XXIX. VERS 4.

HEE that receiveth] Namely a Prince that grieveth his subjects with taxes and imposts.

V. 5. Spreadeth] Is a secret occasion of his ruine, flattering him up in his vices if he be subject to any. Or by filling him with damnable pride, and selfe conceit, or preparing some way, to draw him into his trap by this baite.

V. 6. There is a snare] Sinne insnareth the Conscience with Gods judgments, and keepes it as it were prisoner in perpetuall terrour and sorrow, or is the cause of its perdition, Prov. 11. 5.

V. 9. Considereth] To doe him right if hee be a Judge or Magistrate: or to defend and maintaine him; if he be a private person. See Job 29. 16. Regardeth not] He knoweth not what right is, nor careth for it: nor will take any paines for to learne it.

V. 8. Scornfull men] Prophane contemners of God, doe draw his judgements upon a whole Citie and Communalitie.

V. 9. Contendeth] Whether he contend about his owne private affaires, or whether he argue about some point of [...]ut and right. Whither he rage] The Italian, Sometime hee rageth] Seeing his presumption and obstinacy. Or laugh] The Italian Sometime be laugheth] At his impertinencies and follies. There is no rest] The Italian, He [...] hath no rest] That is to say, talking with a foole he cannot keepe that tranquillity of minde, and moderation of words, as be [...] a wise man: being driven by impatience.

V. 12. All his servants] The meaning may be this, When the Prince hearkeneth to calumnies, or false accusations, there is none of his servants, let him be never so faithfull, but is in danger of being held, and questioned, as guiltie. Or this. A Prince whith leveth flatteries, and is inclined to hearken to calumnies causeth his servants to turne flatterers false accusers, &c.

V. 13. The [...]full man] The Italian The Usurer] The rich man, who by meanes of his us [...]y keereth the poore man in subjection. Lightneth] That gives and maintaines the life of both: riches helping the rich man nothing therein, Luke 12. 15. nor poverty any way hindering the poore man.

V. 16. Are multiplyed] The Italian Are increased] In power and dignitie.

V. 18. Where] The Italian when] The publike preaching of Gods word, by the Prophets or others, being wanting, the Church is dissolved, and dispersed like unto a flocke without a Shepheard; or like unto a wall without mortar. See 1 Samuel 3. 1. Amos 8. 11, 12. Happie is lee] The meaning is. True it is that the want of preaching the word, is the perdition of the Church. Yet it followeth not that all the perfection and happinesse of it consists only in the preaching: but in the practice and observation of the same preached truth also.

V. 19. A servant] Namely a perverse and rebellious servant. By words] But with stripes and punishments. Though he understand] A signe and prooffe of the maliciousnesse of a servant.

V. 20, In his words] Or in his businesses.

V. 21 Shall have him become] Hee will no more know his owne condition, but will carry himselfe, as if he were a sonne.

V. 24. Is partner] That is his fellow receiver, or hath share of the thing stollen. See Proverbs 1. 14. Hateh his] Is an enemy to his owne salvation. Cursing] Namely the Oath given him by the Magistrates, whether hee knoweth any thing of the thest which was committed, Exod. 22 8. Lev. 6. 4.

V. 25. The feare] Great feare troubleth the mind of [Page] man, so that hee cannot take any good or wise counsell, or doe any thing freely. Or it is a snare and a stumbling blocke to him; that is to say an occasion to make him take rash and ruining resolutions.

V. 26. Many] Many in time of trouble, goe to the Prince with petitions. But it were fitter for them to have recourse to God first, who inspireth, and inclineth the hearts of Princes for to doe justice. See Psal. 20. 9

CHAP. XXX. VERS. 1.

AGur] This name as well as those names which follow are no where else in Scripture, and it is likely that this Agur was some wise man; who by some sententious speech which hee was inspired with by God, had taught these his two disciples, and this Chapter being the sum thereof, was added unto Solom [...]'s proverbs, by reason of the likenesse of the subject. The propheticke] The Italian The prophetick speech] Heb▪ the charge: prophecies and revelations are often called so; which the Prophets had charge to relate, and preach to the Church.

V. 2. Bruitish] The Italian An Idiot] It is likely that this Agur was a vulgar and unlearned man as Amos. 7. 14. and that he was supernaturally inspired and enlightned by God.

V. 3. Nor have the knowledge of the holy] The Italian But I know the knowledge] God hath revealed true and heavenly wisdom and doctrine to me. Of the holy] That is to say of Angels, as Dan. 4. 13, 17. and 8. 13. the meaning is. That as Angels without any learning or instruction, doe know Gods mysteries by a divine light infused into them, so I am inspired by God, without any humane or naturall meanes.

V. 4. Who hath ascended] That is to say, this heavenly wisdom is a pure gift of God, which none can gaine of himselfe. Who hath gathered] Even so impossible is it for man of himselfe to attaine to that heavenly wisdom. Proverbiall examples of such things as doe beyond all measure surpasses all humane power, as Prov. 27. 16. Eccl. 8. 8. Isay 40. 12. His Sonnes name] This hath beene commonly understood of the everlasting Sonne of God. Who alone with his Father, upholds, containes, and governes all things, Heb. 1. 3. But because it is not evident that this was the wise mans intent, this may be taken for a common saying. If ever there were any, which is not now alive, who is there left of his generation in the world?

V. 5. Every word] These inspirations which come from God, are not onely of a heavenly and most pure truth, but are also granted to men, to breed a lively faith in them, which maketh their hearts to have confidence in Gods grace.

V. 6. Adde thou not] Nor take away, nor alter. A Caveat for them that have any such revelations, that they should not falsifie, 1 Cor. 4. 2.

V. 7. Before I die] That is to say, all the dayes of my life.

V. 8. Remove farre from me] Feed my soule with thy word, preserving mee from all seducing error of Idolatry, &c. and endow my body with temporall gifts, as farre as shall be needfull for the salvation of my soule. Convenient for mee] The Italian Daily bread] Heb. of my allowance; that is to say as much as I shall daily need, according to the order of well governed families. See Job 23. 12. Prov. 31. 15.

V. 9. Deny thee] Withdrawing my confidence from thee, to put it in temporall goods. Or revolting from mine obedience, through pride and boldnesse arising from my fulnesse and plenty. Take the name] Namely by false oaths, the Hebrew word signifieth properly to catch hold without any respect, and licentiously, and is opposite to the other of taking, which is used in oaths: to shew the holy and religious use of Gods Name in them.

V. 10. Accuse not] The Italian, Speake not evill of] To provoke the master against the servant for small occasions, or for no cause at all. Guilty] Before God who is the defender of afflicted persons, Exod. 22. 23.

V. 15. The Horse-leach] The meaning seemes to be. There are two passions in a covetous man, here called a horse-leach. The first an extreame d [...]ffidencie, and feare of falling into poverty▪ the other a burning covetousnesse, the one is never at rest; and the other never satisfied.

V. 16. The grave] Or hell, The earth] Such as your sands and deserts are.

V. 17. The Ravens] The wickednesse of such children shall be punished with horrible kindes of death, without honour of buriall, their bodies flying upon the ground for foode for the fowles of the ayre, and for wilde beasts.

V. 20. Such is] Shee doth things so covertly, and so close, unlesse it please God that shee be taken and convinced some other way. She eateth] By these hidden termes is signified the act of dishonesty: and the impudency in the dissembling of it or denying it.

V. 21. The earth] These things doe cause great trouble amongst men, as well in States as [...] private families.

V. 22. For a servant] For such kinde of people being raised to dignitie, doe command imperiously and cruelly. When be reigneth] Whereby he becommeth insolent, injurious, and untamed, whereas poverty is a very healthfull punishment for him.

V. 23. Odious] By reason of her displeasing manners, vitious, and contentious nature. See Deut. 21. 15. That is heire] That hath succeeded her mistresse by marrying with her master, whereby she becommeth proud and intolerable.

V. 26. Feeble folke] Without any strength or courage. Yet can they finde a way to make holes in the [...]ks for their refuge, as well as the [...]er [...]st beasts. [Page]

V. 27. By hands] As it hath beene observed in gr [...]at swarmes of Locusts, some flye in troopes turning one way, and some the other way, like diverse squadrons of an army.

V. 28. The Spider] the Italian, The Star-lizard] Histories doe relate many things of the Star-lizard or E [...]t his naturall understanding, especially for the good of man, to whom this creature seem [...]s to beare a great affection.

V. 31. A Grey-hound] the Italian, The Cock] the Hebrew word is very ambiguous; by some it is taken for a Steed barded for the warre. By some for a Greyhound. An he Goat] Of according to others a Ramme.

V. 32. If thou hast] If through rashnesse or pride thou hast committed any evill act, or haste intended any evill:

especially, if thou hast falled in thy respect towards thy Prince. See Eccl. 8. 3. Lay thine] Containe thy selfe, bridle thy minde, and bethinke thy selfe. See Job 21. 5.

V. 33. The [...]ing] He [...] through off [...] ries, and importunities, [...] [...]oth move another [...] to wrath. Or he that lets his owne wrath burst out▪ instead of quenching and appeasing it.

CHAP. XXXI. VERS 1.

LE [...]/] It is likely, this was some name given to Solomon by his mother, after she understood by prophetick revelation, that he was to succeed David in the Kingdome. It signifieth one that is of God, or that belongs to God, that is to say, a King appointed and consec [..]ed by him. The prophecy] the Italian, The prophetick speech] See Proverbs [..]0. 1 [..] and it is likely that Bathsheba by divine inspiration did fore arme Solomon with these holy precepts; against the vicious inclination which he naturally had.

V. 2. What my] That is to say, what instructions can I give thee? and what instructions are most necessary for thee? Of my vowes] That is to say, for whose birth, life, salvation, and blessing, I have made so many vowes to God.

V. 3. Give not] Weaken not thy body and thy minde, through luxurie and unbridled lust, which is the very ruine of Princes. Prov. 7. 26.

V. 5. The law] the Italian, The statutes] Of God, and of his law.

V. 6. Give strong] The meaning is, that if it was lawfull for any to drinke a little extraordinary, yet it was not lawfull for Kings to doe it: who were by right to keepe their judgement and understanding cleere and whole, and had otherwise many inticements to stirre up the flesh: but it was more lawfull and fitting for afflicted persons, who wanted [...] and had need to drowne their sorrow [...] [...]. [...] nally, this is spoken comparatively, and not absolutely.

V. 8. For the dumbe] Namely, for those that dare not, cannot, nor have not power to maintaine their right against the oppression of the mighty.

V. 9. Open thy] That is to say, s [...]ke freely and cou [...]agiou [...]y, according as thou shalt [...]de it to bee the [...]ight.

V. 10. Who can finde] That is to say▪ Oh how happie shall that man be, that shall have this good hap granted him by God?

V. 11▪ Of spoi [...]] the Italian, Of garment] Heb. of spoiles, that is to say, of linnen and woollen raiment, and other garments, which women are to care for: especially in former times in which women were wont to weave such clothes at home themselves.

V. 13. Willingly] the Italian▪ With delight] Taking delight in their worke. Others, ac [...]ding to [...] delight of their hands: that is to say, [...] mo [...] d [...]us to worke sometimes in one [...] worke▪ and sometimes in another.

V. 14. She bringeth] That is to say, by selling of her worke to merchants, which come ou [...] of faire countries, she doth by such honest trading maintaine her family.

V. 15. A portion] [...] Italian▪ Their [...]] namely, their dayes worke▪ Others, their portion of food. Prov. 30. 8.

V. 23. Is knowne] Is renowned and noted for his wives worth. In the gates] in publick meetings and co [...] which were held nee [...]e the gates of the City.

V. 24. Fine linnen] the Italian▪ [...] Or exceeding fine linnen clothes.

V. 25. She shall rejoyce] th [...] Italian, she rejoyceth] Having provided things necessary for her family, according to her vocation: she takes no more care for any thing that may happen, leaving the rest to Gods providence.

26. The law] By her sweet and gracious speeches she sheweth how well she hath been bred and brought up.

V. 27. Of idlenesse.] That is to say, idly or nicely.

V. 28. Rise up] Namely to shew their due respect unto her when she commeth.

V. 31. Give her] let every one give her that praise, honour and blessing which she deserves by reason of her vertues. In the gates] Namely▪ in the peoples publick assemblies.

THE ARGUMENT.

THis booke was by the Greekes called Feclesiastes, that is to say Preacher: but by Solomon himselfe in his native tongue precheresse. Because that in this booke he bringeth in divine wisdom where with he was endowed; making, under his owne example, towards the latter end of his life, after hee had had so many tryalls and committed so many errors, a solemne kinde, of speech, for a publicke confession, and the instruction of the Church upon two very weighty & necessary point [...]. The first is, how a faithfull man may wisely governe himselfe in this world to live happily in it. The other how he ought to direct his life towards the Soveraigne end, which is eternall happinesse. Upon the first, he sheweth, that since the world, the essence, the goods, pleasures, accidents, and successions of it are nothing but vanity; having no perpetuall lastingnesse, no certaintie establishment, nor no equall tenure nor succession; wanting the fruit of permanent happinesse: the faithfull man ought not to settle his hopes nor fixe his heart upon it to labour unreasonably in getting the imaginary goods of it. Or needlessly trouble himselfe to shunne or correct the evils and disorders of it. But must content himselfe with a sweet and peaceable, and superficiall and transitory enjoyment of them: without anxietie, avarice, or unreasonable desire; though with care and providence in his vocation; under the conduct of true wisdom, whose worth he mightily extolleth; as being the Princesse of mans life and actions. Seeing man is by it directed in the true service of God, a [...]d in all vertue and dutie [...] belonging to any course of life whatsoever, either publike or private. And besides by the said wisdom, he is taught to conforme all his thoughts, motions, and affections, especially of joy, and sorrow, to the change of times, and chances appointed by Gods providence to keep man in a continuall temperature, and counterpoise. And to leave unto God the care of things to to come: and of governing and ordering such things as passe mans capacitie, and vocation: and above all things, to beware of sin, and endeavour himselfe to all manner of vertue: and to acknowledge, that all we enjoy is through Gods grace, for which we ought to yeeld him all honour and service. Upon the second point he teacheth the faithfull man to fixe his minde and heart continually upon eternall life, as the Soveraigne end of this present life. And to prepare himselfe by seriously meditating upon death, which is the true curbe for the excesses of this world: and by the religious feare of God, and apprehension of his judgement to come: and by obedience to his most holy commandements. So that with very good reason this booke may be called the treasure of precepts tending to true happines, and the Soveraign good of man.

CHAP. I. VERS. 1.

T He preacher] Hebrew Preacheresse. See the argument of this book.

V. 2. Of vanities] That is to say, most vaine: now he meanes to speak of whatsoever is separated from Gods grace, life, and spirit. Vanity] A thing that hath no sound, nor true essence, hath no firme lastingnesse.

V. 3 What profit] The worldly man who liveth not in God, and worketh not by his spirit, labours to no end, and loseth all his labour in seeking any perfect content of mind in this world.

V. 4 One generation] Death which none can avoyd, is the great and generall argument to prove the vanity of all worldly things; for though the world doe last invariable in his owne being, yet man is not of that lastingnesse: neither can the world give it him: wherefore his happinesse is never the more for the lastingnesse of the earth, since he himselfe cannot last for to enjoy it. And on the other side, the world sheweth that it hath not the property of of the chifest good, which is to be eternall, and to eternize him who is the possessor of it.

V. 5 The Sunne] The continuall unquietnesse of men, imitating these creatures in the motion of their thoughts, and desires, is also a prooffe of the fore-said vanity; for like the sunne they have no rest: like the wind they are in a turbulent agitation, which tir [...]th and consumeth them: and like the Sea which is never filled, though the rivers continually runne into it, they are never satisfied, nor have not the true content of the mind.

V. 8 With seeing] Of new things, to desire them and follow them, although it be tryed, and beaten out with watching.

V. 9 The thing that] The delight also which man takes in this variety is false and vaine: for really there is nothing new [...]: seeing that all things in all ages have beene of the same nature and kinde, and the vanity is onely in certaine outward appearances; in which true happinesse cannot consist.

V. 11 There is no] Man is deceived in thinking that hee hath found any new thing, wherein he may take content: and this proceeds from his forgetfulnesse, and ignorance of things which are past. Or the shew of novelty is quickly gone, and therefore there can no true happinesse be found in it.

V. 12 I the] I Solomon can speake of this vanity by mine owne experience, having imployed the gift of wisdom▪ which God hath conferred upon me, in taking notice of the state, and affaires of the world, that I might the better supply and execute my place and Kingly office.

V. 13. This [...]ore travell] True it is that every man is bound to seek and gaine whatsoever is necessary for his vocation: but this gaine, though it be vertuous, hath the same quality as other worldly things have: Namely, very toylsome, and no way effectuall to happinesse, and perfect content of the mind.

V. 15. That which is] No man, yea not Kings nor Princes, let them bee never so wise, and mighty, can remedy all evils, nor supply all defects; which is a great annoyance in publike Offices.

V. 16 I communed] As being grieved that I could not discharge my duty in my place, according to my desire, by mine owne wisdom, which was withstood and overcome by the great malice of men, which I knew not, nor could not remedy.

V. 17 And I gave] I thought it was fitting to accompany and strengthen my wisdom with a particular experience and mixture of the Art and termes of politick worldly wisdom, which before God is but meere folly. 1 Corinth. chapter the second, verse the sixth. But all this did but onely increase my travaile and discontent, seeing that with all this new endeavour, I could not attaine to mine end.

I will prove th [...]] I will seek to give thee some content, which thou couldest not find in thy [...]oyall dignity, by giving my selfe over to bodily pleasures. And behold] I quickly gave over this iutention, as foolish and bruitish.

V. 3 I sought] In stead of this voluptuous kind of life, I have be thought my selfe of a meane; namely, to temper the severity of my wisdom, and the weight of my charge, with honest and lawfull pleasures. To give my selfe unto wi [...]e] The Italian, To passe [...]wa [...] my life pleasantly in continuall [...]ng] Hebrew, To draw out my flesh in wine. Acquainting my heart]. The Italian, Governing my heart] fixing my selfe inwardly in the course of t [...] high and sev [...]re wisdom, yet glancing mine eye▪ and outwardly framing my selfe to the foolish wayes of Worldly men (especially great ones) concerning the pleasures of this life. Till I might] Untill at last I could resolve my selfe upon an uniforme manner of living, on which I might wholly rest.

V. 6 That bringeth forth] Hee seemeth to mean young nurseries of Trees, whether fruit Trees, or other that have more need of watering.

V. 8. Musicall, &c.] The Italian, Single musick, and musick▪ in consort] The Hebrew words are very obscure, and of uncertaine signification; yet this seems to be the most probable.

V. 10 I Kept not] He seemes to meane his ex [...]sses in delights, beyond his first intent▪ And this [...]] I have reaped, no [...] gathered no other fruit of these painfull pleasures, but onely a little transitory enjoyment of them.

V. 11 Then I looked] The Italian, But having considered] Being weary of this voluptuous life, I hive fallen againe to the severe and wise execution of mine office. Profit▪] Namely, there was no found nor permanent good, after the transitory pleasure.

V. 12 Wisedome] See Eccl. 1. 17 What can] The Italian, What are other men] That is to say, it hath been possible, and not altogether unfitting for mee, that have beene so wise and mighty a King, to alter my manner of living in thi [...] kinde, to the end I might finde out one, in which as most perfect, happy and secure, I might settle my selfe and teach it to others, wherein I am not to be imitated by private persons, whose condition bindeth them to goe on in that course of life which they have once begun, and have not the power to make new triall, often, and therefore I am to be believed, in mine experiences, which others may not try so well as I.

V. 13 I saw] Indeed I have found that for the conduct and guiding of worldly affaires, that politick wisedome is very good: but seeing the wise man cannot avoyd death, I see this wisedome participates of the corruptibility of all other worldly things: and therefore the soveraigne good cannot consist therein.

V. 15 And why] The Italian. And what will it availe me] seeing the aime of all man his actions is to purchase happinesse, to which nothing seemeth to be more adverse than death: what good will it do me to have been wiser than other men, in worldly wisdom, seeing I could not thereby free my selfe from d [...]ath? This also] Namely, all that secular wisdom [...].

V. 16 For there is.] If any one should say, that a wise man at the last gets renown, which makes him live after his death, I answer that this smoak of glory is most vaine, and in a smal time vanisheth aw [...]y and how] An exclamation of wonder, and disdain of [...] nall sence, which is wholly fixed upon the bare consideration of the course of the world and nature.

V. 17 I hated] My life hath beene displeasing to me, which otherwayes is so pleasing and sweet, seeing all the actions of it are toylsome, and do bring forth no permanent happinesse.

V. 18. Yea I hated] All those goodly and excellent things which I have done or made, have been displeasing unto me, whether they were materiall things, or things▪ belonging to wit, reason, or understanding. I should leave it] he meaneth that the comfort w [...] men have by having children, in which they seem to live againe after their deathes, and to whom he leaves the enjoyment and fruition of all his labours, is but a very weak one; by reason that one is so uncertain whether they will prove vertuous or no: which if they do not they will lose, and dissipate all what their father hath gotten. Peradventure

Solomon did already fore-see the vicious inclination of his son Rehoboam.

V. 20.] To despaire] And consequently to forgoe all such things as I perceived did not bring forth such fruit as I desired.

V. 21. For there is] Those who do as I have done, namely that set their hearts upon worldly businesse, though it bee in a vertuous way, to have all things in good order; yet they never rest from their labours and enjoy not that sweet fruition which they leave to their idle successors. Now if he that labours, hath no intent to enjoy the fruits of his labours, it is vanitie: and if he do desire it and cannot attaine to it, it is a grieffe, and trouble to him.

V. 22. Man] The Italian Such a man] He means those of what vocation soever, that are continually busie, and in action.

V. 24. There is nothing better] The Italian, Is it not good for] If they say that man may if he will take his rest, and enjoy the fruits of his labours, I answer that the power of so doing doth not lie in himselfe; but that God alone can grant him the grace so to doe.

V. 25. For who] [...]f so [...] that had depended [Page] upon [...]ns will, I had the meanes to doe it, [...] th [...]n [...]ny other, and seeing I could not doe it, it is manifest, that if it proceed [...] from God onely, and not from man.

V. 26. For God.] God alone through his grace so worketh in the heart of his elect, that they can enjoy the fruits of their labours during this life in joy, and tranquillitie, and deprives evill livers of this gift, giving them over to unsatiabable desires. Salomon seems to impute the cause of his wanting contentment of minde, amidst so great wealth, and plenty of goods into the faults and errors he had committed.

CHAP. III. VERSE 1.

TO every thing] Having spoken of the honest and lawfull pleasures which a good man may, and ought to take in this life, he now declareth how that this is not alwayes so, nor in the same measure seeing there are so many variable changes in the world, to which one must conforme his affections, of joy, or grieve. Purpose] Heb. Will, that is to say each voluntary motion of the soule.

V. 5. To cast away] In publicke rejoycings as upon occasions of victories, they did make great heapes of stones in the fields, for trophies. Which in time [...]f sadnesse or adversitie they cast away againe, some such like thing, Jos. 8. 29. 2 Sam. 10. 17.

V. 7. To rent] This is also referred to a ceremony used in great and suddain griefes: in which they used to rent their garments. Keepe silence] Which was also an effect, and signe of some great sorrow, Lam. 2. 10. Amos 5. 13.

V. 9. What profit] He doth here againe continue the speech which he had broken off, concerning the lawfull pleasures which a man may take in this world according to his vocation, still framing his affections to these variable chances as may happen, and he saith that anxietie, and continuall care, is no way available, but contrariwise is very hurtfull, seeing it keepeth man from enjoying the fruits of his labours.

V. 10. I have] I have found that this defect which men have, namely to vexe and torment themselves so much, proceeds from Gods secret judgement, which will have a man to be punished by the selfe same thing as he hath so much set his heart upon, forsaking God, namely by the goods of this world, which keep him in a continuall perplexity.

V. 11. He hath] Contrarily his perpetuall hearts care God hath appointed and is contented that man should conforme his affections of joy and sorrow, to the motions of his providence, and that he should rejoyce in time of prosperity, and be sad in time of adversitie, so he doth it alwayes moderatly. Eccles. 7. 13, 14. Iam. 5. 13. He hath set] He hath endowed them with so much naturall light, as that they can apprehend the various chances of this life, to judge of them▪ and governe themselves according to them. So that] Though there be inscrutable secrets in the government of his providence: yet God revealeth so much thereof, as may cause a man to conforme himselfe unto his will in all these chances. From the beginning] that is to say perfectly from one end to the other.

V. 12. To rejoyce]. When God gives a cause for it, and grants the power to doe it.

V. 14. Whatsoever] That the councells, and operations of the divine providence are permanent, and immutable, wherefore man ought to submit himselfe thereunto with all reverence. *For [...]*ver] Namely irrevocable and not to bee altered by any humane power.

V. 15. That which] That is to say, things which doe happen from time to time, were pre-ordained from everlasting; and are with God as things present, Acts 15. 18.

Requireth] As he hath pre-ordained all things that are to come, so shall he also judge of all actions that are past, which he sets before his eyes, as if they were present. That which is] Heb. that which is driven away, that is to say, mens actions, though they passe away, and are followed and thrust forward successively one by the other.

V. 16. And moreover I saw] He toucheth a point which may trouble the said tranquillity of spirit and minde more then any other thing: namely, the subversion of publick justice, which is the only temperature and strong tye of humane society. For a remedy to which evill hee prescribes the meditation upon Gods just judgement which is to come.

V. 17. There is a time] Namely, a prefixed time for judgement. Every work] the Italian addeth, Is there] Namely, A certaine place and prefixed time though unknowne. See Psal 14. 5. Hos. 13▪ 8.

V. 18. I said] Seeing so many errorrs of carnall sense, which doth incessantly trouble itselfe for the obtaining of the soveraigne good in this world, I have desited that God would be pleased to enlighten men with his Spirit, that they might know, that through their sensuality and affection to worldly things, they transforme themselves into beasts, and at the last dye in that estate, without any rellish or hope of eternall life. For without this internal teacher, all my instructions are unprofitable.

V. 19. The Sonnes] Namely, to worldly men w [...]o are guided by their blinde and corrupt naturall sense, and that have no part at all in Gods grace and Spirit. No preheminance] Namely in respect of eternall happinesse, whereof worldly men are deprived as well as beasts.

V. 21. Who knoweth] Without the illumination of the [Page] holy Ghost, which alone revealeth eternall life to Gods children, 1 Cor. 2. 9, 10, 11. man hath but an obscure and wavering notice of it, and no perswasion of obtaining it for himselfe.

V. 22. Wherefore] A conclusion reiterated out of the 12. v. There is nothing better] If man taking so much paines in the world doth proceed with reason, he must propound some end unto himselfe, wherefore he doth so; which can be none other but the sweet and honest fruition of his labours in this life, 1 Tim. 6. 17. which being once past, he hath no more share in this world, nor in his goods. Now this is spoken against fooles, who labour to no end, and never reape this fruit of their labours.

CHAP. IV. VERS 1.

The teares of] He had said, Eccl. 3. 12. That the good of man in this life was to rejoyce and doe good; now hee sheweth how a man may be disturbed in both these things by outward meanes. In the first by grieving at, and commiserating of other mens unjust sufferings and calamities: in the second by reason of the envie which they beare to one another. v. 4.

V. 4. This is also] These two aforesaid points are for the most part the causes which hinder the said fruition, and do trouble and afflict mens mindes.

V. 5. The fo [...]le] Now he begins to shew what mediocrity must be observed in endeavouring & labouring for worldly goods, the fruition of which is so commendable: namely, by shunning the carelesnesse of the one, and the unreasonable care taking of the other. v 7, 8. Eateth] An Hebrew phrase taken from those who taking no food, doe for a time live of their owne substance, untill it be quite consumed. The meaning is, he by little and little consumes all his wealth, and brings himselfe into extreame misery, overthrowing himselfe quite through his owne negligence.

V. 6. Better is] He covereth his sloth and basenesse, by a vaine seemingnesse of wisdom in seeking of rest. See Prov. 26. 16.

V. 8. His eye] Namely, his covetousnesse, the chiefe instrument and inticement to which, is the eye. See 1 John

2. 16.

V. 9. Two] Upon occasion of them, who by reason of a sordid kinde of avarice, do make choice of a solitary life; he commends the sociable kind of life, in fellowship, especially in the way of matrimony. They have] They both contribute towards the common good and profit, and doe enjoy it with more comfort.

V. 10. If they fall] By this [...]or [...] are meant all manner of mischances and infirmities which may befall either soule or body.

V. 11. They have heat] They shall helpe and relieve one another by all manner of mutuall offices.

V. 12 Three [...]old cord] A proverbiall kind of speech to signifie the profit of union.

V. 13. Better] Having before declared, how hee had through experience corrected many defaults in himselfe. Now he sheweth what great benefit may redound unto all men from his example and precepts: by opposing thereunto Princes incapable of counsell and correction, such as he did peradventure foresee his son Rehoboam would be.

V. 14. Out of prison he commeth] By his vertue, as Joseph did in Egypt. Gen. 41. That is borne] Who is borne a King in an hereditary kingdome.

V. 15. I considered] What I have said before is indeed the defect of aged Kings, yet the peoples fault is as great, when as growing weary of their old prudent Princes, they doe cast their affections upon the young successor, voide of understanding and experience. Which peradventure Solomon might perceive was done to Rehoboam, to the prejudice & contempt of his person and authority. In his stead] the Italian Which shall succeed the King] Heb. Succeed him; namely the King whom he had spoken of, verse 14.

V. 16. All that have been] This may be referred to the people, which revolted with Absalon against David. 2 Sam. 15. Shall not] They shall distaste him and be weary of him, and shall worship (as men say) the rising Sunne.

CHAP. V. VERS 1.

KEepe thy foot] Now he sheweth the vanity of humane sence which will meddle even with Gods service. And therefore he doth here correct it by the representation of Gods terrible majesty in his Temple, which ought for to suppress and put away any irreligious and unworthy action or thought. See Isay 1. 12. To heare] To receive instruction to salvation, by his word publicly preached in the Temple. Or to obey, namely, to dispose thy selfe to a voluntary kinde of obedience, which is that service that is acceptable to God; and not sacrifices. 1 Sam. 15. 22: Hosca 6. 6. Fooles] Namely, all such as through ignorance, superstition, or hypocrisie do erre in Gods service, which ought to be in Spirit and truth: for to acknowledge his benefits, and not to gaine his favour with presents, which is a thought abominable to God. See Psal. 50. 8. Prov. 15. 8. & 21. 27. Isay 1. 11. 16.

V. 2. Be not] Take a religious care of what thou [Page] utterest, whether it be in thy prayers, to desire of God things convenient, and in a convenient manner. Rom. 8. 25. Or in thy prayes and thanksgivings, to doe it with that devotion and zeale as is required: or in making of vowes, not to vow any thing that thou hast not a will, and firme resolution to fullfil. Others, doe not speake cursorily, that is to say, doe not accumulate and heape up multitudes of words, as superstitious men doe. Matth. 6. 7. For God] Seeing that thou who art an earthly creature, speakest to the Creator, in his glory, do it with reverence and trembling. See Heb. 12. 25.

V. 4. In [...]ooles] For such are they that vow inconsiderately, and then doe seek meanes to go back from their promises. Prov. 20. 25.

V. 6. The Angell] Namely, the Sonne of God, who in his owne proper person was present in the Temple, in grace and power. See Isay 6. 5. John 12. 41. And is called Angell by reason of his office of Mediator. Exod. 23. 20, 21. & 33. 14▪ Isay 63. 9. Mal. 3. 1. And destroy] He would curse thee and bring all thine actions to naught, by reason of thy perjury.

V. 8. Marvell not] Although there were no providence to governe the wo [...]ld, nor justice to punish these disorders. That is higher] Namely, God the Sovereigne Lord. Psalme 58. 11. and 82. 1. Then the highest] Namely; the holy Angels, to whom as Executioners of Gods justice, and Ministers of his providence, is committed the care of the Empires of the world, and chiefly of the Church of God. See Dan 4. 17. Rom. 8. 38.

V. 9. The earth] An oeconomicall precept for to make choice amongst other practises and arts which are for the sustaining of the life of man, of husbandry, as the most innocent, necessary, and delightfull. See Prov. 27. 23. 24. The King] There is no man, let him bee never so great, that can bee without the earth; seeing he hath his nourishment from no other place.

V. 10. He that loveth] The covetousnesse and desire of growing rich more suddainly and abundantly often diverts a man to some other kinde of trafficks, and exercises more gainfull. Yet husbandry hath this advantage, that man in effect hath no fruition nor good of his money, but so farre as it is converted to purchase the fruits of the earth, for his sustenance. Abundance] Namely of gold and silver: Things which of themselves are [...]e [...]d, and doe no [...] yield any fruit as the earth doth. This is] Namely this blind love of money.

V. 11 When goods] Ordinarily great wealth is accompanied with a great family, and number of servants which waste and consume it. So that the possessor thereof hath no other pleasure or benefit thereby, but onely the vaine delight of seeing them before him.

V. 12▪ Is sweet] Because he is voyd of heart-burning cares, and vehement covetousnesse, and because that his labour, joynd with his sober manner of living, causeth him to take a sweet kind of rest. The abundance] the abundance of wealth causeth a great deale of care and unquietnesse of mind. Or the s [...] superfluity of dyet alters the health of the body, and fills it full of raw humours.

V. 13. To their hurt] Being occasion of their death, or some grievous sinister chance, through private treacherie or publike violence.

V. 14▪ By evill travaile] Namely, by some injury, or wicked act done unto them by others, or by some misfortune of their owne.

V. 17. In darknesse.] basely and wretchedly, like one that is a true prisoner and slave to his riches.

V. 18. Behold] A confirmation of the conclusion made Eccl. 2. 12. 22.

V. 20. Shall not much] Hee shall not be much troubled, at the shortnesse and unstableness of this life; for living in Gods grace, whom hee calleth upon, he feeles in his heart that GOD answereth him, finding the comfort of his spirit; which breedes in him that holy, and pleasant fruition of the present good, which he hath, and the assured hope of the eternall.

CHAP. VI. VERS. 1.

There is] He declares what he said before, that the sweet enjoyment and fruition of goods, doth not depend upon them, nor upon mans owne will, but comes from Gods meere grace.

V. 3 And his soule] If he hath not the fruition of them in his life time, with an honest content. That he have no] Namely, if hee dyes some violent or infamous death, which deprives him of the honour of buriall, Is better,] in respect of the world, and of sence, an untimely or abortive birth, which never felt good nor evill, hath an advantage of him▪ who hath had goods, and hath lost them, and hath besides endured much grieve and trouble.

V. 4. For he commeth] Namely, that untimely birth, whose first framing seemes to be unprofitable, seeing it never comes to the perfection of being an human creature.

V. 5 More rest] Having never felt any evill.

V. 6 Yea though hee] The happinesse doth not [Page] consist simply in the life, but in the goods which one enjoyeth in it. Wherefore if one have no good, during life, it is burthensome and troublesome, and death once comming, makes them which have not been, equall with those which have been, in regard of the goods of this life.

V. 7. All the labour] man hath no other fruit of all his labours in this world, but only the supplying of his wanes, and of those things which are usefull for him: yet he cannot bound his labours and desires within these termes, and his understanding being thus corrupted, he can never have any true content of minde, unlesse it be granted him by Gods grace.

V. 8. For what] He proves the absurdity of this unreasonable care which man takes. For of all the care and industry he useth, in preserving his goods, if he hath any, or to get some if he hath none, he hath no other benefit but the maintenance of his life.

V. 9. Better is] The true good a man can have in this life, is to enjoy that which he hath in peace and rest; and not to wander with straying and unsatisfied desires after that which he hath not. This is] namely, this extreame desire and anxiety to be alwayes getting.

V. 10. Already] The name of Adam, that is to say, terrestriall, which God gave man at his first creation, sufficiently sheweth the imperfection of his being, if he be not in Gods favour; namely, that he hath his heart alwayes fixed upon the earth from which he came: wherewith his soule being not satisfied, by reason that it is of a divine originall, he labours endlessly for new experiences, and for to heape up goods of the same nature. Neither may he] For all this it is not lawfull for man to contend with God. But he ought with all humility to desire of him the assistance of his Spirit and grace.

V. 11. Seeing there be many things that] the Italian, When there is abundance of things they] This s [...]ue of covetousnesse: is not beaten downe nor put out, through the abundance of goods, no more then fire i [...] quenched with the abundance of wood, but waxeth greater and greater: therefore true content cannot consist in that abundance.

V. 12. For who knoweth] The chiefe cause of this error, nemely, of gathering together without any end [...] is mans ignorance, which will not suffer him to limit his desires, within the bounds of the shortnesse of his life; but causeth his thoughts to range after the infinitenesse of time to come, which he having no knowledge of it is a folly in him to seek to provide [...] it. As a shadow] which hath no substance and van [...] in [...] [...]; leaving no signe where it hath been.

CHAP. VII. VERS. 1.

A Good] Now he sheweth, that besides wordly goods, the fruition of which he hath commended, there are other goods which the faithfull man ought to look after: namely, eternall, to which one must passe by death: the meditation of which, serves to direct the living to that happy end.

Name,] the Italian, Fame] Namely, the true and sound name of faith and holinesse, which confirmed by his death, doth last afterwards. Of death] Namely, of him that is a beleever, and a childe of God, and dieth in his favour.

V. 2. That is] namely, death, which is the cause of that mourning, the consideration of which, causeth living men to think upon making themselves fit for it.

V. 3. Is better] This meditation of death, though it be sorrowfull, is better for the salvation of man then all his mirth, seeing he doth by that mortifie his flesh, and rendeth his heart from the world, and lifteth it up to eternall goods. Of the countenance] of man in his naturall estate, which is called the outward man. 2 Cor. 4. 16. The heart] That is to say, the soule and the inward man. Is made better] spiritually.

V. 4. Of the wise] Which looke after the end of things, and think upon eternity, whereas fooles are onely guided by sense, and thinke no further th [...] things present.

V. 5. It is better] This meditation of death, is indeed harsh to the flesh, being a rough curbe to the vanities of the world: but even as the severe reproofes of wise men, are to be preferred before fooles tricks, and jests. So an humbling and correcting sorrow, is more to be desired, then alluring and be witching pleasure.

V. 6. For as the] That is to say, even as the fire which consumes the thornes, causeth them to crackle for a small time: so the spirit of this world which leads men to perdition, transports them into an excesse of a false and short joy, and by that meanes hindreth them from thinking upon repentance, and a due preparation for death.

V. 7. Surely] Now follow some particular precepts belonging to that wisdome which he hath spoken of before: and first he sets downe some vicious passions, which darken the lustre of it. Oppression] Namely, the inclination, and evill habit of doing wrong to other men in matters of justice, whether it be through corruption, or his owne proper passion, of otherwise.

V. 8. Better] The wise man looketh after the end of things, according as he foreseeth it by the light of Gods Spirit, and according to it he regulates himselfe and all his actions, and will not be blinded with the false appearance of [Page] the time present. See Deut. 32. 29. The proud] That through a certaine pride and disdain is moved at every small offence. And he makes mention of this other passion of wrath, as contrary to the peace and quietnesse of minde, and to the moderation of true wisdome.

V. 10. Say not] Be not so foolish as to say, that the times of themselves are better or worse: to impute the vices and calamities of the world unto the age. But doe thou say that the times are such as the men are, and that to amend the times the men ought for to amend themselves.

11. Wisdomes] There are three things of singular value; life, an inheritance, (that is to say, all things to maintaine life) and wisdomes for to governe it. Meaning that the wise man should take a lawfull care for either, according to his vocation.

V. 12. A defence] the Italian, A Shadow] Riches indeed have this community with wisdomes, that they doe save a man out of many dangers and disasters, yet the principall subsistency and true happinesse of mans life consists in wisdomes.

V. 13 Consider] Be wise in discerning the various wayes of Gods providence, for to second them with thine affections of joy or sorrow. See Ecclesiast. 3. 1. 11. For who] Since Gods will cannot be withstood, nor the effects thereof bee altered, wisdomes would have a man submit himselfe quietly unto it.

V. 14. Consider] For to have such a feeling as God calleth thee unto by his visitation. Hath set] he hath in this life mixed good with evill, so that the one is a remedy and a curbe for the other. To the end] To direct man by th [...]se different meanes of mildnesse and severity unto a happie death, for after that there are no more vicissitudes nor varieties: all things are perpetuall, neither is there any place for repentance or amendment. Nothing] Like to what befalleth him in this world. After him] Namely after his death.

V. 15. All things] The Italian All this] This may be referred as well to the precedent, as to the subsequent things. Of my] Namely of my fraile and transitory life. That perisheth] Runnes into diverse mortall dangers and inconveniences. In his Righteousnesse] The Italian For his justice] either being persecuted by Tyrants, or misconstrued and calumniated or too indiscreetly and hatefully used. The wise mans meaning is to shew, that wisdome ought to bee joyned with uprightnesse in the guiding of mans life. Wickednesse] covered over with art and cunning, or used with politicke craft.

V. 16. Righteous overmuch] That is to say, a too severe reprover of every petty error, or too much bent upon a thing which of it selfe, or in thine opinion is just, without yeelding any way, either in charitie, or wise innocencie to the opinion of others, to the necessitie of times, to common custome, or to humane frailty. Destroy thy selfe] Making thy selfe as it were the very marke of publicke hatred.

V. 17. Be not] Have also a greater care of loosening the raines too much to wickednesse which provoketh Gods suddain judgment. Before thy] The Italian, Out of thy] Before the [...] of [...] all course and out of it, by some violent and [...] end, which may carrie with it the tokens and signes of Gods expresse vengeance. See Job 15. 32. and 22. 16. Psalm. 55. 15. Prov. 10. 27.

V. 18. That thou shouldest take hold] That thou shouldest follow the middle way between Gods right and the Consciences duty on the one side, and thy wise and innocent civill accomodation with men on the other side. He that feareth] True piety doth indeed save a man from the said inconveniences, but it is by means of this holy wisdom: to intimate unto us that these two vertues ought to be joyned together.

V. 19. Strengtheneth] Against all assaults and dangers. Mightie men.] The Italian, Governour] that is to say, politicke Magistrates, or Commanders of warre.

V. 21. Also] Seeing that all men are subject to errors, there is great reason they should also be apt to forgive one anothers faults, especially those which are most common, and into which a man may fall suddainely, and unawares, such as are the errors of the tongue, Jam. 3. 2.

V. 23. *Have I pro [...]*ed] I have meditated upon, and put in practice all these precepts, by meanes of that wisdom which God hath conferred upon mee a [...] still with such imperf [...]ction as is inseparably joyned to humane nature.

V. 25. The wickednesse] Namely that which is absolutely vicious in the common course of life; to beware of it, and therein to use the severe remedies of mine office; tolerating in the meane time many things that proceed from ignorance and weakenesse.

V. 26. The woman] The strump [...]

t, that knowes all the wayes how to entice, ens [...]

are, and catch men.

V. 27. This have I] Namely those things which I have spoken of; and which are but a parcell of that perfection which I sought after, to the height of which I could never attaine, v. 23.

V. 28. Have I found] I have found but few men capable of these first instructions of wisdom, but almost not any woman.

V. 29 This onely] The onely point that I have well apprehended, is, that God had at the beginning endowed man with divine wisdom, for to direct him to the end of his happiness, but hee hath lost this gift through sinne and rebellion: and in stead of that, he hath gotten false carnall wisdom, which is the cause of all his evils, and strayings. Iavention] The Italian Discourses.] Namely vaine, and false imaginations thoughts, and counsell. See Psalme 119 113. Rom. 1. 21.

VVHo is] Though mans wisdom be so imperfect, yet it is of great esteeme. Who knoweth] Besides he that is wise. To shine] It causeth a tranquillitie of spirit in him, which appeares by his cleere, and jocond aspect; contrary to the fierce and sad lookes of those men who are possessed with turbulent passions.

V. 2. The oath] Namely the oath of alleagiance which the subjects sweare to their Prince, not onely for feare of men, but chiefly for feare of wronging thy Conscience towards God, Rom. 13. 5.

V. 3. Bee not hastie] Bee not rash nor hastie to be angry with thy Prince, upon a pretence of any injury done to thee by him, forsaking his service; if thou be one of his household servants; or flying from his obedience, if thou be one of his subjects. In an evill thing] That is to say having committed any misdeed, having beene faultie in any businesse. Others do not persist in any evill action; that is to say, if thou beest in disgrace with thy Prince, seeke to appease him as soone as thou canst, Prov. 25. 15. that thou mayest not feele the thunder of his absolute power.

V. 5. The commandement] Namely of God, Shall feele] Shall keep himselfe from committing any fault as may provoke the Princes just wrath and indignation against him. The meaning is, that pietie towards God, shall by him bee rewarded with such wisdom, as may be applyed to any occasion.

V. 8. No man] It is true that by wisdom many evils may be avoided, but the punishment of impiety cannot be avoided, no more than the course of the wind can be stayed, death shunned, or fighting avoided by a Soldier that is enrolled, in some day of battell. This he saith to confirme that which he had said before, ver. 5. that innocency was the spring of mens safeties.

V. 9. Have I seene] I have considered of all these good meanes which man may use to live peaceably under a reasonable and a just Prince, and I have also perceived that there are some tyrants; that bring nothing but ruine upon their subjects and under which, none attaine to any promotion, but onely wicked men.

V. 10. Buried] That is to say which lay hidden for feare of the Lawes, or were kept under, and obscure, being not admitted to any dignity or Office. From the place] Namely from Gods Temple, as it happened to David in Sauls [...]ime, 1 Sam. 26. 19. *Vam [...]*e] That is to say one of the disorders of the world: by which may be perceived how much names, and outward shewes may vary from the truth even in the highest and most excellent things, such as publicke governments are.

V. 14. Which is done] By men, especially by evill Princes who doe often time reward vice, and persecute vertue. Others take this to be spoken of Gods providence, which prospereth the wicked, and afflicteth good men, which is a vanitie not in respect of the providence it selfe which is alwayes most just, and most wise, but in respect of those worldly goods and evils which it disperseth so contrary to that which seemes convenient, whence it appeares that they are not reall goods nor evils.

V. 15. Then I] Seeing so many unavoidable evils, I resolved to set my minde at rest and take honest pleasures, referring all to Gods providence. Vnder the Sunne] in respect of this corporall life, and the goods of this world. Shall abide with him] The Italian hath it: Which is lent him] Whereof he hath but a little fruition, as it were through favour, and for a time, and no true and constant propriety.

V. 16. Seeth sleepe] Never rests from this deepe meditation.

V. 17. All the worke] All the ground of his government and providence, his counsells, ends reasons, and meanes.

CHAP. IX. VERS. 2.

FOR all this] Hee gives a reason of what hee had said concerning Gods unsearchable providence: because that he himselfe, though endowed with so much wisdom, could not conceive his intentions towards the good and the wicked, in the chances of this life. No man knoweth] Namely by his owne bare understanding, by the naturall light, and by the bare consideration of the chances of this world, without the guide of Gods Word and spirit. All that is] It seemes that, goods and evils doe meet confusedly and by chance before the one and the other in the course of this world.

V. 2. That sweareth] Falsly, or in vaine. That feareth] Because of the respect hee beareth to Gods holy name, he forbearth to heare, unlesse it be in cases of necessitie.

V. 3. While they live] By reason of this indifferencie of events, worldly men doe daily in their wickednesse, whereby they die in the state of damnation.

V. 4. For to him that is joyned] The Italian, For he that is ch [...] I speak so of men in generall, for the number of Gods elect which are redeemed from sin and death through his grace, is but very small. There is] Whilist life doth last, the gate of hope and repentance is open; but men doe not make use of this opportunity to their owne salvation. A living dogge] That is to say, a great [Page] sinner, is happier whilist God grants him life, and gives him time to bee converted, then hee that is not so great a sinner (compared to a Lion, which is a more Noble, and not so unclean a beast as a dogge) that dieth in his sin.

V. 5. Know] And through the feare of death may bee induced to repent. Know not] Not that their soules doe lose all knowledge and remembrance: which would bee no otherwise then if they did perish quite; but because it availeth them nothing to salvation. A reward] Set downe for vertue, as there is in this world, which is the place appointed for us to labour and runne our race in. The memory of them] God hath for ever cast them off, [...]sa. 88. 5.

V. 6. Is now] They and their worldly desires are enfolded in eternall perdition: and have no more fruition of the world, especially in respect of repentance.

V. 7. Goe thy way] Hee now turnes his speech to the faithfull, exhorting them to sweeten the bitternesse of this life, and the remembrance of death, by a sweet fruition of the goods of this world in holinesse, temperance, chastitie and purenesse of life. For God now] The Italian, If God] If God gives thee cause so to doe, by blessing thee in the exercising of thy vocation.

V. 8. White] According to the custome of the ancients, at their rejoycings, and banquets.

V. 9. Of thy vanity] Namely of this thy poore transitory life.

V. 10. Whatsoever] Namely that is lawfull according to God, and that hee gives thee meanes to doe.

V. 11. And saw] I have observed that though a man bee endowed with good gifts and qualities, yet it is not in his power to produce alwayes the like effects; which depend upon the free concurrency of Gods action. And therefore the wise man must not hope to be alwayes happie in the world, but must prepare himselfe for sinister chances. See Eccles. 3. 1. and 7. 14.

Verse 12. His time] Namely the time of calamitie which God hath prepared for him.

V. 13. Have I seene also] As wisdom doth not alwayes produce its proper effects, so doth it at some times worke beyond all humane apprehension, through the assistance and co-operation of Gods power.

V. 14. There was] It is not certainly knowne whether this bee a parable, or a true history, as Pro. 7. 6. See somewhat like unto this, 2 Samuel chap. 20. ver. 16.

V. 15. Yet no man] Though before by reason of his povertie, no man made any account of him; and that he lay obscure, and his name was not taken notice of. Others, and none remembred him: Namely after they had received that benefit from him.

V. 17. In quiet] That is to say with reverence and attention; without any contradiction. See Job 29. ver. 21, 23.

CHAP: X. VERS. 2.

IS at his] That is to say, hath a settled understanding, whereby hee doth all things rightly: whereas the fooles understanding wandring astray, doth every thing in a contrary way.

V. 3. Yea also] Hee cannot when hee is abroad in publicke dissemble his follie: but discovers it in his gestures; and in his gate, and in all his other unproper speeches and actions.

V. 4. Leave not] Doe not thou give over thy service through despight, or impatience, nor doe [...] not forsake the place thou art in. For yeelding] The Italian, For mildnesse] That is to say, humilitie and patience.

V. 5. As an error] Namely like to the frequent errors of Princes of the world, who doe advance the most unworthy and incapable: because they will seeme to doe every thing out of an absolute will and power, as if they were not bound nor tied to any thing.

V. 6. Folly] Namely base persons, which have no understanding nor vertue. See Prov. 26. 10. The rich] Men of qualitie and note, and more capable of managing publicke affaires.

V. 8. Hee that diggeth] He seemeth to meane that Princes, who are causes of these disorders, doe also endure the punishment of them.

V. 10 If the Iron] It in Warres, all manner of weapons; though blunt and out of order as the Israelites weapons were, when their enemies had dominion over them, Judges Chapter 3. verse 31. and 5, 8. 1 Samuel Chapter 13. verse 22. may bee made use of by good and valiant Souldiers. Much more may wee hope to make good use of wisdome: which is better than any weapon, Eccles. 9. verse 18.

V. 11. Surely the] That is to say the slanderer is like the Serpent, and his biting, Psalme 58. 4, 5. and and 140. 3.

V. 12. Are gracious] They gaine the favour and good will of all men.

V. 13. The beginning] The more he speakes, the more he discovers his follie, especially when being reprov'd or contradicted, he bursts out into some furious passion.

V. 14. Is full of words] The Italian, Multipliyeth words] That is to say, doth bragge of many things, discourseth much, and undertaketh many things, feeding himselfe with [Page] great hopes, Jam. 4. 13, 14, 16.

V. 15. Wearieth] By reason of their unreasonable, and yet unprofitable striving, being not able for want of understanding and industry to attaine, to their ends even as a travailer wandring out of the high way can never attaine to his journeys end.

V. 16. A child] In age, understanding and experience. Eate] That is to say make feasts, and drinke excessively. In the morning] Which is the time to sit in councell and dispatch businesses. That is to say [...]o preferre pleasure, before such things as belong to their office.

V. 17. The Sonne of] Bearing a high, and heroick mind, free from base and sordid inclinations, and passions, such as ordinary and vulgar people are subject to.

V. 18. The building] Namely the houses, and families fall to decay and ruine.

V. 19. A feast] Seeing every one delights in honest recreations, wee must labour to get meanes, to sweeten thereby the bitteresses of this life. Or it is a pleasant thing according to the world to live in pastimes and pleasures, but that cannot be done without great wasting and expence of ones estate, which it were more expedient to save for necessary uses.

V. 20. The rich] Of him that is great in wealth and authority. A bird] The businesse might bee revealed by some unknowne meanes: for great ones have their spies in all places.

CHAP. XI. VERS. 1.

CAst thy] Doe good to those from whom thou hast least hope to receive any recompence; for the Lord himselfe will recompence thee for it, when thou least thinkest on it, or peradventure in life everlasting. A phrase taken from those husbandmen, that sow their seed upon moorish and overflowing grounds, which are unlikely and unfitting to bring forth any increase, Isay 32. 20.

V. 2. To even] That is to say, as many as thou canst without any limitation. For thou] The time [...]ay come that thou wilt not bee able to be bountifull, doe it therefore whilest God affordeth thee the meanes to doe it, Gal. 6. 10. Or, seeing thou art not sure not to fall into povertie, be charitable, that in adverse times thou mayest have charitie used towards thee either by God, or men, Luke Chapter 16. ver. 9.

V. 3. If the clouds] The Italian, When the] Even [...]s the clouds, after they are growne thicke, doe dissolve, and powre downe their water upon the earth. so the covetous man is at last constrained by death to leave all, for death makes man like a tree digged up by the roots which beares no fruit, and remaineth so for ever.

V. 4. Hee that] Even as the Husbandman that will stand too strictly to watch the just time and perfect opportunitie, may lose the season, wherin he ought to doe his businesse. So hee that hath too many carnall respects, loseth his time of well doing, which he cannot recover when he will.

V. 5. The workes] That is to say the Councells, and secret dispositions of his providence which determineth of the casualties of this life, and of the houre of death, wherefore doe thou good at all times that thou mayest not be surprised.

V. 6. In the morning] Namely at all times, and upon all occasions. Sow] That is to say, doe deeds of charitie: which are the seeds of the harvest of eternall life, a Corinthians 9. 10. Galathians 6. 7. Shall prosper] The Italian Shall happen best] This is spoken either in regard of men, whereof some are more thankefull than others, or in respect of God, who amongst diverse objects of Charitie, doth oftentimes present some to men, that are very precious in his sight, for love of which he doth proportionably increase the reward. See Matthew 10. ver. 41, 42. Heb. 13. 2.

V. 7. The light] Even as the sweetnesse of this life, is in worldly men quite overthrowne by their thinking upon death, from which there is no returne: So in the faithfull it must bee qualified by the same meanes, that they may judge of the said sweetnesse rightly, and not set their affections too much upon it but in time dispose themselves to a happy end.

V. 9. Rejoyce] It is lawfull and seemely for thee to enjoy the flower of thine age, and therein follow thy naturall deligh [...]: so thou alwayes keepe the feare of God in thine heart, and remember his everlasting judgment: not to licence thy selfe to do evill, nor to use any excesse in that which of it selfe is good and lawfull, Eccl. 3. 12.

V. 10. Are vanitie] That is to say, short and transitory; and doth not come againe, therefore man may lawfully enjoy it whilest God doth permit it.

CHAP. XII. VERSE 1.

The evill dayes] Namely old age, which being grievous and burthensome enough of it selfe, by reason of the diseases it brings along with it: there is no reason it should be overburthened or oppressed with bitter Repentance for youth mispent. Or his meaning is, that the securest way is not to put off amendment of life, untill extreame old age: at which time it is very hard to doe it, and is seldome done then in truth and sincerity.

V. 2. The Sunne] A figurative description of the [Page] defects of old age, and by this first he meaneth the weakening of the superior faculties, as the judgment, the understanding, the memory, and the imagination: And have the same correspondencie with the body of man, as these celestiall bodies have with the earth. The Clouds] The defluxions which fall upon the breast and stomacke, they likewise returning to the braine matter enough to breed more.

V. 3. The keepers] Namely the hands and the armes. Strong men] Namely the reines, The grinders] The teeth. Cease] The Italian Shall faile] Namely in number, or strength. Those that] Namely the eyes.

V. 4. The doores] Italian, The two doores] Namely the eye liddes, shriveled and hanging downe in old men. Is low] Namely when the hearing grows weak which hearing is caused by two bones within side of the eare whereof the one stands still, and the other moves like to two stones of a Mill. At the voice] Italian. At the sound] Hee seemes to meane the dry cough with which old men are troubled, & doth break their sleepe. The daughters of Musicke] All the Organs of the voice, will grow weake and dull.

V. 5. They shall bee] The Italian Man shall bee] That is to say the poore trembling old man, shall be afraid to goe up into any high place, for feare of falling downe. The Almond Tree] His head shall grow white. The Grashopper] His legges which were active and handsome. Desire] To eate, and to enjoy their corporall pleasures. See 2 Samuel Chapter 19. ver. 35. Because] At that age man runnes towards death, and the grave. The mourners] Namely the deceased mans friends and kinred, or the hired mourners, according to the custome of those times, Job Chapter 3. verse 8. Jeremiah Chapter 9. verse. 17 shall goe about the hearse.

V. 6. The silver,] The golden] These termes are to signifie the excellency of the Organs of mans body. Cord] A similitude taken from Wells: to signifie the generall oeconomie and Fabrick of mans body, by which if it be kept entire, and in its just temper, the body draweth life from the soule which is as it were the hidden spring of it: and if that be loosed, the body dies.

V. 7. The dust] Namely the body, which was at first framed out of the earth. Shall returne] For to appeare before him, either to be gathered up into the mansion of the blessed, or to be abissed into eternall damnation.

V. 10. Acceptable] Or pleasing and delightfull to the soule.

V. 11. The words] The word of God revealed by his holy Prophets, is unto the Church, not onely in stead of pasture, but also in stead of an inclosure, that it may not goe astray after false doctrines and vaine thoughts and inventions, even as a sheepfold is for sheepe. From one] Which is the everlasting Sonne of God, the Churches chiefe and supreame Shepheard, Iohn Chapter 10. ver. 1. 1 Peter chapter 5. verse 4. by whose spirit all the Prophets have spoken, 1 Peter Chapter 1. verse 11. and 2 Peter 1. ver. 21.

V. 12. By these] Namely by the words of wise men inspired by the Holy Ghost. Bookes] Of humane sciences, the infatiable curiositie of which yeelds nothing even to the best wits, but a labour altogether unprofitable for the obtaining of eternall happinesse.

V. 13. The conclusion] The whole subject of this book: is summarily comprehended in this point that man shall lead his life in the feare and obedience of God. So that after this hee may enjoy everlasting happinesse, subsisting before God, through faith and innocency.

V. 14. Shall bring] Hee shall cause every worke to come in, at that judgment, when he shall judge all secret things, good or bad.

The Booke of the CANTICLE OF CANTICLES OR SONG of SONGS.

THE ARGUMENT.

Amongst a great number of spirituall Canticles penned by Solomon, this was by him, or by the Church after him, called the Canticle of Canticles, for the excellency of it, as being a president to all the rest. Whereupon also the ancient Jewes, comparing these three sacred bookes which go in Solomons name, to the three parts of the Temple which he built. They liken the Proverbs to the Court, Ecclesiastes to the Holy Place, and this Canticle to the most Holy Place. To signifie that it is the treasure of the most sacred and highest mysteries of holy Scripture. For indeed the subject thereof is not so much concerning the ordinary state of the elect, nor of the common actions of their faith and piety, nor of Gods ordinary benefits bestowed upon them, as of the first-fruits of the vertues of the age to come, of the inward infusion of Gods grace into their hearts, and of the unspeakable comforts of his Spirit, with the lifting up of the soule and minde, and of the strong effects of faith in its greatest endeavours, and of the divine love, purged from all worldly thoughts and affections. All these things are by Solomon represented in this booke, bringing in by prophetick spirit, Christ dead and risen againe, and ascended into heaven, after he had contracted a spirituall mariage with his Church, and every faithfull soule, comming from time to time (whilest she was yet in this world expecting the accomplishment of this mariage in heaven) to visit her with new assurances of his love, and the enjoyment of his presence with inward excitements to yeeld unto him all duties of love, faith, perseverance, and invocation, and especially to follow him with her heart up to heaven, where he resides in glory, and whither in his appointed time he will gather her up unto him. Now he d [...]scribes and sets downe these visits two wayes: In the one the Church and the faitfull soule prevents him with her desires, and prayers: In the other she is prevented by Christ, who presents himselfe unto her unawares: To shew, that on the one side it is fitting for her to desire with ferventnesse to relish these first fruits, and on the other side, that the times and meanes to obtaine them are at Christ▪ free appointment, and when it pleaseth him: though he never quite deprives his elect of them in this world, so they be desired with a holy zeale, and the soule doe dispose it selfe thereunto with religious preparations. If the Church receive them readily, and with an interchangeable fervency, there [...]nsueth all manner of joy and [Page] comfort. But if she be slack and negligent therein, the occasion is lost, and there follow great troubles and afflictions. Both Wayes there alwayes appeareth Christ his infinite charity, and the Churches lively faith, and enterchangeable love. Whereupon the Church bursts forth into divine praises, and admirations of her bridegroomes perfections: and Christ also on his side, by his approbation authorizeth and exalteth the gifts and graces which he hath conferred upon his Church by the Spirit of regeneration, and exhorteth her to aime lively and continually at the marke of her heavenly vocation. Which the Church also protests for her part to desire, conditionally that the Lord will keepe his prefixed time▪ praying him alwayes to strengthen her in her weaknesses. Christ is brought in accompanied by his friends, and the Church by her companions. Christs friends are the holy Angels, and the glorified spirits. The Churches companions are the particular Churches, or the faithfull soules, or those which desire to joyne themselves unto her by faith. Christ makes the Angels partakers of his rejoycing, because of the worke of his grace. The whole body of the Church, communicates her knowledge, instruction, and light to the faithfull soules, or to the particular Churches, extending her care even to the Gentiles, of whose calling she hath been informed and instructed by the Lord. Now it is to be considered that whatsoever is spoken in this booke in poetick and figurative termes, must be directly referred to spirituall meanings, to which it perfectly and properly belongeth: whereas if it should be turned any other way, there would be nothing but monstrous absurdities.

ANNOTATIONS.

CHAP: I. VERS: 1.

O F songs] Namely, the most divine and excellent Canticle of all those that Solomon penned, 1 Kings 4. 32.

V. 2. Let him kisse me] The Bride, namely, the Church desires, that Christ who hath contracted a spirituall mariage with her, the accomplishment of which is deferred untill eternall life should come in the meane while at severall times to give her more expresse assurances of his grace, should draw neerer unto her with more intimate approaches of his presence and power, and should give her more lively inspirations of his Spirit, which is as it were the breath of his mouth. Then Wine] Whose property is to comfort the heart▪ to engender new spirits, purge them, warme them, and refine them. So Gods grace infused into a faithfull mans heart, doth comfort it, and inflame it to heavenly things.

V. 3. Of the savour] all the faithfull soules, which are like so many chaste Virgins, whereof the universall Church is composed, are enticed to love thee fervently, by reason of the gifts of the holy Ghost, wherewith the Father hath anointed thee, Psa. 45. 7. 9 & 133. 2. Isay 11. 3. which gifts thou powrest upon them by the preaching of the Gospell, [...] Cor. 2. 14. 16. Thy name] Namely, the knowledge of thee.

V. 4. D [...]aw me] Cause mee, by vertue of thy Spirit to raise my selfe from the earth up to heaven, where thou dwellst, and where the end or marke of my heavenly vocation is, that where thou art I may also be, perfectly united with thee. See Hosea 11. 4. John 12. 32. & 17. 24. We will runne] That is to say, thy Spirit shall not worke in us with an insensible motion, without any interchangeable or voluntary action on our side, like unto weights which are drawne up with engines. But it shall cause us to will and move as thou doest, and after thee. For Gods grace doth not destroy the manner of rationall working in man, but onely addeth a supernaturall vertue to it. Philip. 3. 12. 14. The King] Namely, Christ Jesus sitting at the right hand of the Father, hath by his death and resurrection given me right to come into heaven, which is as it were the bride-groomes chamber, John 14. 2. And by faith I am assured, one day to be really brought into it. Ephes. 2. 6. We [Page] will remember] That is to say, I and all my true members, will voluntarily renounce all carnall delights, that our only joy may be in thee who hast so loved us, and that hast within thy selfe the true object and cause of love. The upright] This seemeth to be added for to exclude hypocrites, which are in the externall Church from these holy desires, and meditations.

V. 5. I am black] If you will judge rightly of me, and be joynd to me, looke not upon my outward wretchednesse and deformitie with the eyes of the flesh, but view mine inward spirituall beauty with the eyes of the Spirit. Psal. 45. 13. which beauty consists in the purity of the soule, through the remission of sinnes, the renewment of regeneration, and by the ornaments of the gifts of the Spirit, Ephes. 5. 26. 27. O daughters]. The Church directs her speech, to the particular elect, the children of the spirituall Jerusalem. Gal. 3. 26. Rev. 3. 12. The tents] Which on the outside were of poore and base stuffe, but withinside were richly adorned, and full of treasure. Of Kedar] namely, the Arabians who dwelt in tents, yet were very rich and glorious, Isay 21. 16.

V. 6. The sonne] That is to say, God from above hath as it were burnt and scorched me up with afflictions and troubles. Mothers children] here on earth worldly men, that are of the same humane race as I am, being vexed at my profession, and my separation from them, have set upon me, and persecuted mee. Were angry] They have contended with me. They made me] They have set me to laboursome and unfitting worke, to serve mine enemies: which hath drawne me away from the care of my selfe, who am the Lods vineyard: and kept me from the governe-ment and care of particular Churches which was committed to me.

V. 7. Tell me] being weary of the troubles which I undergoe in this world, my recourse is to thee O Christ who art the soveraigne shepheard: to have thee bring me to the enjoyment of thy heavenly glory: where in the high and firme point of the eternall day of thy happinesse, thou thy selfe immediatly feedest thine elect, with the full communication of thy goods, and grantest them rest from all their labours, Rev. 7. 15, 16, 17. For why] Were it sitting that I should corrupt my selfe here in the world, by reason of thy being too long from me; or that the world should take me to be a poore vagabond creature whom thou hadst forsaken? Because that the fashion of unchaste women was to be in the fields covered over with vailles. Gen. 38. 14. The flockes] Amongst other nations, who vaunt themselves, saying, they enjoy the presence of their Gods, termed (though falsely) heads of nations, deliverers, and guardians of men, which thou indeed and truly art. See Isay 53. 12.

V. 8. If thou] The bridegroom shewes himselfe according to his brides desire, and tels her that she must understand that the onely way to come to his everlasting rest, is to come out of the world in heart and affection, imitating the Churches example in all ages. And [...] eed] Whilest thou art in this world, employ thy selfe in the worke of the ministry, and the gathering together of the Saints. And never doe thou stray from the example of those great shepherds, namely, the Prophets first, and then the Apostles. See Eccl. 12. 13.

V. 9. Compared thee] That is to say, in the course of thy heavenly vocation, my Spirit shall carry thee with untired swiftnesse, like unto the swiftnesse of Pharaoh King of Egypts Chariot-Horses: the horses of that countrey being very famous for their goodnesse, 1 Kings 10. 28. Isay 31. 3. See Canticles 6. 12. Isay 40. 31. And in this booke in praying of the Church he often joyneth strength with beauty. Canticles 4. 4. and 6. 4. 10. and 7. 4.

V. 10. Thy cheekes] Thy face is faire, not so much by reason of thy naturall gifts; as by reason of the ornaments of my grace and Spirit, Cant. 4. 9. and 7. 1. which I will still increase in thee, untill such time as I doe crowne them in the eternall life.

V. 12. While the King] this is the bride, who saith, that whilst Christ is in heaven, enjoying eternall pleasures, Isay 53. 11. she endeavours to present unto him the exercise and practice of her vertues; and especially the pure preaching of his Gospell, 2 Cor. 2. 15. Which are like sweet odours wherein he delighteth. See Luke 7. 38. John 12. 3.

V. 13. My well beloved] All these sweet smelling odours of good workes, proceed onely from Christ who dwelleth and reigneth in my heart by his Spirit.

V. 14. Camphir [...], the Italian, Cypresse] A rare plant like to the Woodbine, which bringeth forth a white flowre in very sweet clusters, and groweth onely in the land of Jurie, or as some say, in Egypt, see Cant. 4. 13. Of Engedi] A pleasant place in the land belonging to the Tribe of Judah. Iosh. 15. 6 [...].

V. 15. Behold thou art] This is the bridegroom. Doves eyes] The sight of thy faith, wherewith thou doest contemplate in Spirit, is sweet, amiable, simple, and chaste.

V. 16. Behold] This is the Bride. Pleasant] Faire, of a sweet and pleasing beauty, not terrible nor majesticall. Our bed] I have prepared thee an habitation in my heart, full of joy and feasting. Like unto a bridall-bed decked with garlands and greene boughes. In midst of the assembly of the faithfull, as in a palace built with precious stuffe.

V. 17. Of fi [...]re] the Italian, Cypresse] the Hebr. signifieth a particular kind of cypresse which spreadeth the boughs abroad, contrary to your ordinary cypresses [Page] and smells very sweet, and yieldeth very exquisite Timber, and is not to be found, but onely in the Levant, or Easterne Countries, in Latine is called Bruca a name very neare the Hebrew name.

CHAP. II. VERS. 1.

I Am] This is the bride-groom: as if he should say, as I am perfect in beauty and holinesse, represented by these flowers, so have I made my Church like me, by my sanctifying spirit, 1 John 4. 17. Sharon] A most fruitfull and pleasant plaine, Isaiah chap. 35. vers. [...].

V. 2. Among the] Namely, amongst all other Nations and Assemblies, which in their owne naturall corruption are but like thornes, and barren and hurtfull plants, which are destinated to the fire.

V. 3. As the Apple-tree] This is the Bride. The sonnes] Namely amongst the other heads, or false gods of prophane nations. I sate downe] The Italian, I have desired to be under] I receive a double benefit from Christ, as from a faire and fruitfull tree: for first he is my protection and safeguard, especially against the heat of Gods wrath: and secondly, hee filleth mee with good things for the food of my soule.

V. 4 He brought me] Hee hath brought me into the communion of himselfe and all the Saints, where he unfoldeth, and bestoweth upon his elect all manner of spirituall gifts, Proverbs chapter 9. verse [...]. Matth. chap. 22. verse [...]. Who through faith are already in heaven, enjoying the fulnesse thereof. Matth. chap. 26. verse 29. Luke chapt. 13. verse 29. and 22. 30 Rev. 19. 9. His Banner] That is to say, from heaven, whither he is ascended for me, he sheweth mee evident signes of his love; to the end that I should alwayes look and goe towards him: and that I should not goe astray in the world, but retire and draw nigh unto him, as souldiers doe unto their Banners.

V. 5 Stay me] The Italian, *Co [...]*fort me] a figurative description of the fervent enterchangeable love of the Church, which can never bee without restoratives of Gods word, for feare of fainting.

V. 6. His left hand is] The Italian, Let his left hand be] None but Christ by his spirit can ease me in the faintnesses which I am subject to in this world, by loving and following of him. See Rom. 8. 26.

V. 7. I charge you] The Italian, I adjure you] This is the bride-groom, who arrives upon a suddain, and unlooked for, whilst the bride in her languishments is fallen asleep: and by this charge which he gives the brides companions: namely the particular Churches, and the elect, hee seemes to intend to make a triall of the readinesse of her faith, and love to see if she will awake of her selfe at his comming: see Matth. 25. 6. Ephes. 5. 14. By the Roes] That is to say, by the example of these fearfull beasts, which the hunters endeavour to steale upon softly, and not to affright them, or make them runne away with much noyse. And hereby is signified the mildnesse of Evangelicall preaching, and exhortations. 1 Thes, 2. 6, 7. Or I adjure you by my love towards all the true elect, which are figured by these pleasant and wilde beasts, that have no gall.

V. 8 The voyce] The Italian, Behold the voyce] this is the bride, who you must imagine, did awake on a suddaine, according as her bridegroom did imagine. He commeth] a representation of Christs speed, in visiting his Church, and every faithfull soule from heaven, when he is earnestly and fervently desired so to doe.

V. 9 Behold hee standeth] Though I doe not see him openly, which is a thing reserved for the life everlasting. 1 Corinth. 13. 12. yet I doe apprehend him by faith, and doe finde the effects of his presence. 2 Cor. 5. 7. 1 Pet. 1. 8.

V. 10 Spake] Namely by inspiration, and internal motion of the spirit, forwarding and animating the exhortat [...]ons of his preached word. Rise up] forsake the world in heart and affection, to follow me, ayming at the marke of thy heavenly vocation, Phil. 3. 14. Col. 3. 12.

V. 11. The winter] The pleasing spring, of the yeare of grace is come, through the manifestation of the Messias in the flesh, and the preaching of the Gospell: enjoy it then with that spirit of freedom, which giveth thee accesse unto mee with confidence, Cant. 7. 11. Rom. 13. 11, 12. 2 Cor. 6. 1, 2. A propheticall description of this great good, which in Solomons time was yet a great way off.

V. 12 Of the singing] That is to say, of rejoycing in God, and yielding unto him continuall thankes. Others, to prune their vines, which was a token that the spring was come.

V. 14 O my dove] This is a continuation of the Bridegrooms speech to the bride, which her soule onely unnerstands, she alone hath power to preach it to others.

Now this name of Dove, so frequently attributed to the Church, represents her purity, simplicity, mildnes, and sociable nature, this bird having no gall, nor beake, nor clawes to doe any hurt with, and is very tame and sociable. That art] This is also a very ordinary thing for Doves to doe, to signifie that the Church is oftentimes constrained to fly into the further part of the world, and hid it self in corners to avoyd persecutions. Yet she never ought for to forsake the freedome of her profession, nor the invocation of Christs name, nor the preaching of his word.

V. 15 Take us] This is Christs promise, namely, that he will appoynt his Angels to overthrow and destroy tyrants and persecuters, Psal 80. 14. Or a command given to the [Page] Church it selfe, to repress and put out hereticks, and schismaticks, which grow up together with the truth of the Gospell.

V. 16 My beloved] This is the conclusion of this visit, wherein the Church gives herselfe wholly to Christ, and doth embrace and lay hold on him by a lively faith, though we reside in heaven, in glory: to which corporall absence she voluntarily consents. He feedeth] Who in his heavenly paradice, and fruition of his glory, performeth the office of soveraigne shepheard of the blessed soules: and from thence gathereth up unto him, those that are yet in this world. Canticles chapter 6. verse 2. Revelations chap. 7. verse 17.

V. 17 The day break] The Italian, The breath of the day] For likely at break of day there arise fine pleasing winds, Genesis 3. 8. See concerning the breaking of this everlasting day of Glory, Psalme 49. 14. Cant 7. 12. Rom. 13. 11. 2 Pet. 19. The shadowes] The night of the present estate of this world, which is nothing but darknesse of misery, sinne, disorder, and sorrow. Turne] Now thou hast fully comforted and restored me by this thy visit. I am content for to returne to my ordinary course of faith, repentance, service and obedience, as if thou didst retire into heaven, carrying with thee these extraordinary lights, & favours; untill the great day of the resurrection, at which time I hope thou wilt restore them to me perfect and everlasting without any interruption, Cant. 8. 14. Upon the mountaines] This name of Bether is not to be found any where else; peradventure it is some name framed according to the signification of the word, which is separation: for by these mountaines is meant heaven, and the state of eternall life, as well by reason of the height of it, as for its separation from all conditions and qualities, of this animall and terrestriall life, and from the state of this corruptible world. Ephes. 4. 10.

CHAP. III. VERS. 1.

I Sought him] This is the bride, who in a holy quietnesse of spirit, by prayers, meditations, lifting up of the mind and heart, endeavoureth to procure the Lords returne with new comfort, light, peace, and vertue of the holy Ghost; which the faithfull man doth not alwayes obtaine in the same moment of time as he desires it. Isaiah 26. 9.

V. 2 I will rise] That which I could not attain unto in my rest, and whilst I lived retired: I will now endeavour to get by action and diligence in my vocation.

V. 3 The watch-men] It appeares by Canticles 5 7. that by this word are meant great worldly wi [...] men, who have the c [...]re and government of States and Commonwealths, whilst the night of this life lasteth: But have no light of the kingdome of heaven, neither can they give a man any directions towards it.

V. 4 It was but a little] To shew that Christ is never sought for in vaine, Mat. 7. 7. Luk. 18. 7. Heb. 10. 37. And would not let him goe] Here are described the fervent desires, and the forcible endeavours of the Church, and of every faithfull person to make this singular presence of Christ, perpetuall and familiar unto them: which neverthesse cannot bee attained unto in this life; but is reserved for the life ev [...]rlasting. See Gen. chapt. 32. v. 29. Luke chapter 4. ver. 25.

V. 5. I charge you] The Italian, I adjure you] this is the Bridegroom; and by the connexion of this representation, we must suppose, that the bride was sweetly fallen asleep in the injoyment of this his so much desired presence, and the meditation of these divine graces, and the bridegroom withdrawing himself desires to have her left to this holy rest, without any disturbance, till shee bee moved of her owne accord to seek him againe.

V. 6 Who is this] The bridegrooms friends; namely the holy Angels are brought in here as ravished with admiration, seeing the Church lift her selfe up in this manner towards God in holy meditations, and desires, and in the actual exercise of all vertues, and gifts of the spirit. Ephes. 3. 10. 1 Pet. 1. 12. The wilderness] That is to say the world, which is a barren, savage, and terrible wilderness to the children of God, in comparison of heaven: See Canticles 8. 5. Pillars of] Hee seemes to have a speciall reference to those grosse smoaks, which did rise from the sacrifices, where there was great store of incense burnt. See Psal. 141. 2.

V. 7 Behold his] The Church was represented as asleep upon his bed in her celestiall raptures: the Angels extolling the bed of this divine rest, which is nothing but the faithfull soule, Cant. 1. 16. in which Christ dwelleth, Rom. 8. 9, 10. Ephes. 3. 17. Solomons] Namely Christ, signified and figured by this peaceable, happy and most rich King. Valiant man] Or of those selected bands of great Captaines set downe 2 Samuel 23. 8. 1 Chron. 11. 11. Are about it] As Solomon had his watchmen set about him in the night time, so is the Church guarded with Angels, which doe watch about her, Psalme. 34. 7. Daniel 4. 13 17.

V. 8. Hold swords] They are sword men, and have both experience and skill in handling their weapons.

V. 9. King Solomon] A figurative description of [...]e faithfull soule regenerated and fashioned by Je [...]us Christ, to be a place of sweet habitation, and re [...]se for him. Of the wood] Of C [...]dar, which was [...]on in Lebanon, and is not subject to wormes, and [Page] corruption to shew the incorruption of a faithfull mans meek and quiet spirit, 1 Pet. 3. 4.

V. 10. The pillars] by the pillars may be understood the firme perseverance of the godly: [The pavement] the Italian, the Beds head, by which is meant faith in Christ, upon which the conscience resteth. [The covering] the Italian, the tester of the bed, by which he signifieth hope. [The midst] by the middle is meant a good and upright conscience, the true looking-glasse, and resemblance of the new man created by Christ in justice and holinesse of truth.

V. 11. Yee daughters] the Angels exhortation to all the elect, to cause their hearts to forsake the world, to contemplate Christ by faith in the glory of his Kingdome, after his resurrection, which was, as it were the time of his marriage. As God brought Adam his wife after he awaked, Gen. 2. 21. 23. see Isa 33. 17 Heb. 2. 9. [His Mother] according to the letter, this is meant by Solomon, who was the figure of Christ; for when Solomon was married, hee had no father; and his mother was shee that did set the regall crown upon his head (having procured it him, 1 Kings 1. 16.) and put on his nuptiall garments. But in respect of Christ by mother is meant the father, who crowned him, as Cant. 8. 5. Psal. 110. 1. Phil. 2. 9.

CHAP. IV.

VER. 1. BEhold] the bridegroom of his own accord sheweth himselfe to his spouse, and finds her well disposed in all manner of holinesse and exercises of piety, from whence growes this approbation and prayse of her. [Thou hast doves eyes] a description of the Churches pure and simple faith, Cant. 1. 15. [within thy locks] locks are a womans naturall vaile and modest covering, 1 Cor. 11. 15. and here are signes of modesty and humility. [That appeare from] Gilead is a hilly countrey fitting to pasture such cattell in, and being high they may be seene a great way off. So the Churches modesty must be known to all men, Philip. 4. 5.

V. 2. Thy teeth] this belongeth to the accomplishment and per [...]ection of beauty, which requireth a just proportion in all parts; and doth distinguish the Church from violent and ravenous worldly men, who have sharp crooked teeth made like sawes, like unto wilde beasts, and doe alwayes hunt after prey and blood. By these descriptions of beauty in all parts is signified that the spirit of regeneration worketh upon the whole man in all manner of vertue. [Which came up] and are cleane and white.

V. 3. Thy lips] thinne and vermilion lips are a most remarkable part of corporall beautie, and are a signe of health and grace to represent the purity and spirituall grace of the Church in her speech, Ephes. 4. 29. Col. 4. 6. [Thy Temples] which are the true seat of the signes of modesty, to shew the holy and inviolable chastity of the Church, and the tenderness of her conscience.

V. 4. Thy neck] a figure of the uprightnesse and stedfastnesse of the Church in elevating her selfe in heavenly thoughts, lively hope, good conscience, free and confident conversation. Lev. 26. 13. 2. Sam. 2. 22. Iob 11. 15. Psal. 3. 3. to which is opposite the hanging downe of the head, and a dejected countenance, Gen. 4. 5. Luke 18. 13. Lo, here againe strength and greatnesse joynd with perfect beauty, as Cant. 1. 9. & 7. 4. [Build] the Hebrew word is very ambiguous, peradventure it was some great tower, or strong place where Captaines did exercise youth in the handling of their weapons, and other warlike exercises, and it might bee that house of fathers mentioned, Neh 3. 16. Others, built with battlements, or, for an Armory, or store-house of Armes. [Of mighty men] see 2 Sam. 23. 8. 1 Chron. 11. 11.

V. 5. Thy two] which sheweth the uniformity of the heart, without variation of hypocrisie or dissimulation: And the similitude of these beasts without gall doe shew the mildnesse, simplicity, and purenesse of it▪ see Prov. 5. 19. [which fed] that is to say, which are tame, and have put off all manner of wildnesse, to shew that all the righteous mans vertues proceed from the sincerity without fraud of Gods word, wherewith he is fed, 1 Pet. 2. 12.

V. 6. I will] after I have so sweetly visited thee, I will goe up againe into heaven which is the habitation of my glory, my seat of immortality and incorruption (figured by these spices which doe preserve the body from putrefaction) untill the last great day in which thou shalt bee perfectly joyned unto mee, 1 Thes. 4. 17. Rev. 19. 7.

V. 7. All faire] in regard thou art pardoned thy sinnes, which maketh God look upon his Elect in grace, as holy, and cleane from all spots; and also in regard of regeneration by the spirit, which reformeth the whole man to the likenesse of Gods image. Now Christ [Page] considereth and approveth of this his work, and not of the reliques of the old man, which he covereth with the cloak of his justice, and anni [...]lates by little and little with his Spirit, untill shee bee quite freed thereof in heaven, see Num. 23. 21. Isa. 1. 18. Ephes. 5. 26. 27.

V. 8. Come with mee] raise thy selfe up through faith and desire to mee, and my heavenly Kingdome, Cant. 2. 10. 13. From amidst the world which is likened to those high hills that are full of wilde beasts; and so is the world full of violence and cruelty against the Church, see Psal. 76. 4. Zach. 4. 7.

V. 9. Thou hast ravished] thy lively faith in mee, hath caused mee to bestow my whole heart and love upon thee, Psa. 45. 10. 11. [With one chaine] to shew that those gifts which are acceptable to Christ in his Church, are those gifts of grace, which hee hath bestowed upon her, and adorned her with, and not her naturall gifts of themselves, Cant. 1. 10. and 7. 1. Ezech. 16. 10. 11. 12.

V. 10. My sister] as well by reason of the communion of humane nature, as by the heavenly fathers adoption, Ioh.

20. 17. Heb. 2. 11. [thine Ointments] that is to say, the exercises of the gifts of the holy Ghost, which are poured down upon the Elect, and figured by the unctions used in ancient times, 2 Cor. 1. 21. and 2. 15. Philip. 4. 18. 1 Iohn 2. 20. 27.

V. 11. Thy lips] thy sanctified mouth, bringeth forth words of invocation, praise, and confession, and preacheth my word, which are things most pleasing to mee, and doe much edifie and comfort the faithfull. [Of thy garments] namely, of the gifts of the holy Ghost, with which I have cloathed thee, see Gen. 27. 27. Psal. 45. 13. 14. Ezech. 16. 11. 13. [Lebanon] a hill of Cedars, and other odoriferous plants, Hos. 14. 6. 7.

V. 12. A garden] a description of the Churches inviolable spirituall chastity of Gods secure watch which hee guardeth her with.

V. 13. Thy plants] namely, the true Elect which are now termed young and tender, in comparison of the ripenesse and perfection which they shall attaine unto in the Kingdome of Heaven, see Isa. 5. 7. and 60. 21. and 61. 3. [Camphire] the Italian, Cypresse, see upon Cant. 1. 14. Now by those aromattick plants, joynd to fruits to eat, is meant the variety and sufficiencie of the Churches graces and vocations, whereof some are more ordinary, but necessary; other some more rare and exquisite for the Churches ornament, recreation, and enrichment; but especially for the glory of God, see 1 Cor. 4. 7. and 12. 7. 8.

V. 15. A fontaine] the Italian, O fontaine, here the Bride speaks, and it is an exclamation of the Church, who acknowledgeth her [...] life, and spirituall nourishment▪ [...]her gifts and v [...]rtues to proceed from her Bridegroomes grace, who is to her as a living spring in a garden, which he had termed her to bee, verse 12. Now Christ may be termed a spring in his eternall Godhead, a well in his Office of Mediator, the Father having gathered together in him all the waters of grace; and all the running streames in the communication of the spirit, Isa. 12. 3.

V. 16. Awake] that is to say, O holy Ghost doe thou animate and vivifie in me the gifts and vertues which I have received from my bridegroom, that they may not remaine idle, and buried in me, but may be stirred up, to beare fruits pleasing to God untill they come to full ripenesse and perfection, seeing they are imprinted in mee by thy power, see 2 Tim. 1. 6. [North, South] by these two wi [...]de [...] of opposite qualities, is signified the same spirit working either coolnesse and refreshment of comfort, or heat and servencie of zeale.

CHAP. V.

VER. 1. MY Spouse] this is the bride▪ groome, who answering his brides precedent desires, comes by a speciall, grace to visit her, taking a singular delight in her good works proceeding from the ground of his grace, and the manuring of his Spirit, whereby they are properly his own and consecrated unto him by the Church. [O friends] that is to say, yee holy Angels and blessed Spirits rejoyee with mee, for the fruits which my Church Militant bringeth forth in the world, Luk. 15. 7. Iohn 3. 29. [Yea drink abundantly] the Italian, be drunken with love, that is to say, receive yee new matter of being ravished in the love of God, in that eternall glory which you are in, by considering the grace and vertues which are in your brethren and members upon earth; and by the enjoying of that common happinesse with them in perfect charity.

V. 2. I sleep] this is the bride which relateth a new [Page] visit of the bridegroomes, with circumstances differing from the other, the meaning whereof is, I had a little laid aside my divine thoughts and meditations, still keeping the eye of faith open, and the care of the heart attentive when the Lord returned. [That knocketh.] moving my heart by secret inspirations, to give full admittance and entrance to his grace and vertues, Revel. 3. 20. [Open to me] receive mee in thine heart, by a lively act of faith, for it is mine onely place of refuge and abode upon earth, out of which I finde nothing but annoyance and displeasure in the world.

V. 3. I have put off] I have for a time laid aside this deep meditation, wherein my soule was wholly enfolded, how can I then betake my selfe to it againe so soone? my weaknesse in this life will hardly endure it. [I have washed] like a traveller, that is newly come home. The meaning is, how should I then so suddenly fall a running after thee, which thou doest exhort mee to doe in all thy visites?

V. 4. Put in his hands] a description of Christs power, to work that inwardly by his Spirit in a faithfull man, which he outwardly commandeth by his word, Acts 16. 14. which notwithstanding he never accomplisheth, unlesse the faithfull man doe concurre thereunto with his will and action, as is set down afterwards. [My bowels] all my affections being stirred up by this working of God, were moved to answer to his call, see Luke 24. 32.

V. 5. My hands] this signifieth that the grace of the holy Ghost doth alwayes accompany these endeavours of the faithfull in these actions of faith, even as a look that is oyled, openeth the easier.

V. 6. My beloved] or Christ did suspend and keep back this rich communication of his grace and spirit which hee offered me, if so bee I had received it in time. [My soule [...]a [...]ed] repen [...]ances, and confessions of her defect of spirituall understanding, for that shee had not in time taken notice of Gods visite as Psal. 73. 2 [...]. Luk. 19. 44.

V. 7. The watchmen] that is to say, the great ones and Princes of the world, and preservers of the peace thereof

Cant. 3. 3. Seeing mee inflamed with zeale to seek after Christ, did persecute, and torment me, through Gods permission for punishment of my negligence.

V. 8. I charge you] the Italian, I adjure you, words of the generall body of the Church, directed to the faithfull souls, or to the particular Churches to which sometimes the Lord doth particularly communicate himselfe, whilst the Church in generall doth want these comforts; and they also sometimes by their prayers doe represent unto God the faith and sufferings of it.

V. 9. What is] these are the brides companions, who ask the Church this question, to trie whether shee doth continue in the true knowledge of Christ and in the choyee which shee hath made of him amongst all other religions, and in her faith and love towards him; Or to shew that every faithfull person learnes to know Christ of the Church, Cant. 6. 1.

V. 10. My beloved] this is the bride, who by the divine prayes of the bridegroom testifieth that shee knoweth him from others, and that her love is wholly settled upon him. [Is white] a mixture of the colours of a lively beauty, Psal. 45. 2. which may be applyed thus, namely, that Christ came with bloud to expiate sinnes, and with water to wash away the spots of it, and amend the defaults of it, 1 Iohn 5. 6. [The chiefest] the Italian, carrying the standard, that is to say, a man of note and eminency amongst all the other heads of people, Cant. 1. 7. and 2. 3. Or, he is the head of the militant Church, Exod. 17. 15. Cant. 2. 4.

V. 11. Fine gold] that is to say, it glistereth in divine glory. [Black as] smooth, and shining as a Raven in the Sunne.

V. 12. His eyes] that is to say, his judgement is most pure Isa 11. 3 Or his looks are most gracious and amiable, Cant. 1. 15. and 4. 1. [By the rivers] washing and cleansing themselves from dust and all other manner of uncleannesse. [Fi [...]ly set] the Italian, set as it were in in the foile of a ring] being in his divine face, they are like unto a precious jemme curiously set in a [...]ing of great value.

V. 13. His cheeks] that is to say, his aspect apprehended by faith in this world, and by cleer sight in life everlasting, containes in it the fulnesse of life and joy, Psal. 16. 11. and 17. 15. and 42. 5. [Lillies] namely, in candidnesse of perfect purity and truth, and in sweetnesse of benignity, and odor of divine grace, Psal. 45. 2. Esay 50. 4.

V. 14. His hands] a signe of his possession, and distribution; that is to say, he hath those precious jewels, namely, the gifts of his holy Spirit in his own hands, and doth most liberally bestow and distribute them, Psal. 16. 11. [His belly] the seat of his bowels and signe of most tender naturall affections, Isa. 16. 11. Ier. 4. 19. which in Christ are most pure and abundant in precious gifts. [Page]

V. 15. His legs] a signe of Christs firmnesse in his Kingdom, works, words, and government, and of his strength to trample upon his enemies, and of his untired power to accomplish the course of his office. [Lebanon] a high and famous hill, full of excellent plants.

V. 16. His mouth] the Italian, his palate, namely his word and Spirit, which is as it were the breath of Christs mouth.

CHAP. VI.

VER. 1. Whither is] the brides companions, that is to say, all true believers and the particular Churches, answering to the brides question, Cant. 5. 8. by saying they have no other guide to bring them to Christ, out the Church its selfe and their communion with her: And that the spirit of zeale, which works in the whole body, is the same as works in every particular member.

V. 2. My beloved] this is the bride, who teacheth every true believer that they ought to seek Christ in heaven whither hee is gone perfectly to enjoy his everlasting goods, and from thence soveraignly to governe his Church, Luk. 24. 5. Col 3. 1. [Gone down] a terme taken from the scituation of Solomons gardens in Ierusalem, which were in the low valley of Hinnom, whereas his palace stood in the higher parts of the City, see Neb. 3. 15. [Of spices] which in this book are taken for a figure of spirituall and celestiall goods, it being the property of spices to preserve from putrefaction. [*To [...]*eed] the Italian addeth, his flock, see upon Cant. 2. 16.

V. 4. O my love] the bridegroome, who is here brought in shewing himselfe to the Churches faith in heaven it selfe, where she hath sought for him, together with all believers: And in this act of faith and zeal, accepting and praying her as a fine City, a mighty Army, and a compleat body politick; which are the three principall qualities of the Church, answerable to Christs three properties, he being her Head, chief Captaine, and king. [Tizab] a City belonging to the Tribe of Manasseh, faire and pleasant by reason of the excellencie of her scituation, for which cause it was made choyce of, to be the abode of the Kings of Israel, 1 Kings 14. 17. and 15. 21. and 16. 6. 18. [Terrible] namely, to her enemies, as she is delightfull to her children, see concerning this mixture and conjunction of beauty and force, Cant. 1. 9. & 4. 4. & 7. 4.

V. 5. Turne away] poetically termes, which signifie nothing but Christs extreame love, moved, or rather as one should say, forced thereunto by the Churches faith.

V. 8. There are] to shew the excellencie of the Church above all other Nations of the world, over which also Christ reigneth in his power; Solomon useth these kinds of speech, taken from his own Court, in which at that time as hee composed this Canticle, hee might have this number of married wives, called Queens, and so many Concubines.

V. 9. Is but one] and incomparable above any other assembly in my love and favour, & in the gifts of my Spirit, see Psal 147. [...]0. [Of her Mother] she is only in all the generation of men. Amongst whom there is no other holy Nation joynd to God by a Covenant of peace, but onely the Church. [The daughters] this may be referred to the knowledge that other Nations had of the Church by meanes of the Gospel, whereby they were drawne to joyne themselves to her.

V. 10. Who is she] words of admiration uttered by these daughters, namely, the Nations of the world.

V. 11. I went] here the bride sets down her motion through faith into the heavenly Paradise, seeing shee could not finde her bride-groome upon earth. [Down] as verse 2. [Of nuts] namely, nutmegs, by which name are understood all other sorts of aromatick plants, verse 2. [To see the] that is to say, to taste by a lively faith the first fruits of eternall life, and to advance my selfe towards it by the lifting up of my heart and by a holy desire, Phil. 3. 14.

V. 12. Or ever I was] I felt my selfe beyond mine expectation, ravished up into heaven by an unspeakable violence of the spirit, Ephes. 5. 20. [Amminadib] this should seeme to be some famous Chariot driver of Solomons, who in the race of horses and Chariots, could out drive all the rest, see Cant. 1. 9.

V. 13. Returne] the brides companions, which are those Nations or persons that desire to bee joyned unto her, and therefore desire that shee may not bee so soone gathered up into heaven without them; but that shee might remaine in the world, to the end, they also in time might be admitted into her fellowship. [S [...] ulamite] as Christ in this book is named Solomon, that is to say, peaceable by the name of that King who was the type and figure of him; so the Church is called S [...] ulomite, by the name of her bridegroome, to shew the communion which shee [Page] hath with him, and the benefit of the true spirituall peace which shee enjoyeth through his grace; and therefore also the forming of the Hebrew word is rather passive then active [What will yee] the bride asketh what their reason is, that they so much desire to have her kept here in the world. [As it were] her companions answer that they doe desire it, because they may one day enjoy that incomparable happinesse, of seeing the Iewes and Gentiles united into one Church, Ephes. 2. 15. moving in gladnesse of Spirit, with a measured pace, and mutuall consent, solemnly to meet the Bridegroom according to the manner and custome of joyfull entrances, 1 Sam. 18. 6. Psal. 68. 25.

CHAP. VII.

VER. 1. HOw beautifull] the Bridegroom speaks still more and more, extolling the praises of his Bride, listed up to him by faith and fervent love, as hath been set down in the former chapter. [Thy feet] namely, all the parts of thy soule, ev [...]n the lowest and most abject, being adorned and sanctified by the gifts of the Spirit, fitted to each part of them, see Cant. 1. 10. & 4. 9. Joh. 13. [...]0. [O Princes daughter] namely Gods, who is supreme King of the Vniverse, and hath adopted thee to be his Daughter, and regenerated thee by his Spirit, to make thee capable of being joynd with me in spirituall matrimonie, Psal. 45. 13. 14. [The joynts] or the compasse, or the golden bindings and ornaments, for the ancient ornaments which they did weare about their feet, especially women were very pompous and stately, Isa. 3. 18. and all this is referred to the Churches handsome and vigorous manner of gate.

V. 2. Thy navill] thy belly is the place of thy bowels, which signifies the Churches hearty charity, accompanied with the gifts of liberality, figured by the heap of wheat, of comfort and consolation, figured by the boule of wine, of unfained and sweet humanity signified by the Lillies, see Cant. 5. 14.

V. 4. Thine eyes] thou haste a great divine sight which receivs the celestial objects, as the heaven is seen, as it were in a looking-glasse, in still and [...]leer waters. [The fish-pooles] the Scripture makes mention no where else, neither of these fish-poolles nor of this gate. [Heshbon] a City of the Moabites which fell to the Tribe of Ruben. [...]the tower] of this tower there is no mention made else where: It might be some beacon or high watch tower upon Mount Lebanon, the Northern frontier of the Countrey, Iosh. 1. 4. by which here may be understood the Churches watchfulnessse against the dangers of her forraign enemies.

V. 5. Thine head] that is to say, thou art exalted in dignity, thoughts, knowledge, and in goods and gifts, above all the rest of the world, like unto Carmell, a high and most fruitfull hill, and of a most curious aspect, Isa. 35. 2. [Like purple] the Italian addeth, Royall purple, for purple was the colour of Kings and Princes.

V. 8. I will goe up] a figurative description of Christs perfect conjunction with his Church in the Kingdome of heaven, and of the unspeakable pleasure which Christ will take in her for ever.

V. 9. That goeth downe] the Italian, that goeth straightly to my friend, an Hebrew manner of speech taken from men who shew their valour & courage by the bravery of their gate. The meaning is, that it makes its strength and gen [...]o [...]ity appear in a banquet made to friends, Prov 13. 31. [To speak] it doth waken and enflame the spirits; so that the most slow and dull are thereby made good and eloquent speakers.

V. 10. I am] there the Bride speaks.

V. 11. Come] the brides desire to have Christ come and gather her up to himself into heaven, in the day of the blessed resurrection, which will be as it were the morn of the great day, and the spring of the everlasting yeare in which the fruit of life and glory for the Church shall be made manifest, and shee shall have the full fruition of it, see Cant. 12. 11. 17. and 4. 6.

V. 13. The mandrakes▪] a kinde of fruit which is most beautifull to the eye, and sweet to the smell, Gen. 30. 14. which here signifies the pleasing fruits of justice and repentance, by which the Bride prepares her selfe to receive the Bridegroom at his last comming▪ [New and old] a phrase signifying great abundance, as Levit. 26. 10. Or, the perseverance of the Saints, which bring forth fruit in all seasons, without failing, Psal. 1. 3. & 92. 14. Isa. 65. 22. see Matth. 13. 52.

CHAP. VIII.

VER. 1. O That] the Bride speaketh: the meaning is, I would desire to have thee present: and familiar with [...] as [...] man during this life, to enjoy thy sweet com- [Page] munication, and not bee scoffed by the world; because I repose all my trust and love in thee being absent, then might I receive from thee, the fruit of thy doctrine, and thou reciprocally take delight in my services, faith, and good works: But since I cannot obtaine this, doe thou beare me up in my weaknesse, by the power of thy Spirit.

V. 4. I charge you] the Italian, I conjure you, the Bridegroom finding the Bride fallen asleep languishing in these holy desires, will have her let alone to rest awhile, untill shee awake againe of her own accord, to entertaine his visit.

V. 5. Who is this] these are the Bridegroomes friends, namely, the holy Angels who doe admire the Church wakened out of her sleep, and by a lively faith embracing her Bride-groom, and lifting her selfe up out of the world to him, Cant. 3. 6. [I raised thee] the Italian, I awakned thee, this is the Bride who saith that shee hath with her prayers and zeale [...]oved the Bridegroom to come and visite her from heaven; where Gods Paradise is, and the repose of Christs glory; where hee was ingendered from everlasting. [Thy mother] by this name is understood the everlasting father, who hath engendered the Sonne of his own proper substance; as Cant. 11.

V. 6. Se [...] [...]ee] that is to say, keep [...] mee straightly and dearly joynd unto thee, Isa. 49. 16. Ier. 22. 24. Hag. 2. 23. and so appease the great fervour of my heart, and the feare of being deprived of thee, which would cause me to faint if I were not refreshed by the comfore of the presence of thy grace. [ [...] [...] ] which swalloweth up every thing.

V. 7. Many waters] all other [...] meanes pleasant and delightfull objects are not able to quench this love, thy presence onely can doe it.

V. 8. We have] words of the Iewish Church to Christ concerning [...] the Gentiles Church, both sisters amongst themselves by the Covenant of the Gospel, and Christs [...]stors by the heavenly Fathers adoption: [She hath no] the time prefixed by Gods providence, is not yet come wherein shee may be capable to bee joynd in spirituall matrimonie to Christ, or be incorporated into the Church, Ezech. 16. 7. [What shall wee doe] what graces shall shee receive from thee O Christ, by the ministry of me that am the Church. [When she shall] when wilt thou call her to the communion of the Covenant of grace by the preaching of the Gospel.

V. 9. If she bee] the Bridegroom replyeth as if hee should say, if you consider her body as one of the two walls, whereof I am the corner stone that doe binde the Iewes and Gentiles together, Ephes. 2. 20. I will upon that wall build the palace of my abode in grace and everlasting glory: If you consider her ministry which is as the doore of this Temple or Palace, I will endow her, and strengthen her with excellent graces of my Spirit, to the end, that the gates of Hell may never prevaile against her.

V. 10. I am] the Bride saith that shee is the Congregation of Saints; composed of divers living stones, joyned together with the ciment of faith, and of the spirit, whereof is built a Temple holy to the Lord, Ephes. 2. 21. and that her ministry is, to feed Gods children which are borne in her with her breasts, which are the Old and New Testament. [Like Towers] a similitude which is not answerable to the figure, but to the thing figured, namely, Gods word, which is most firme and invariable, 2 Pet. 1. 19. whose manifestation and use is maintained by the Church, 1 Tim. 3. 15. [Then was I] that is to say, when I, namely▪ the Iewish Church was well ordered, and whilst I did performe the true [...] of a mother, I was and shall bee I so long as I continue such) in Gods favour: Intimating by this speech, that when shee should goe astray, shee should bee reprov'd and cast off.

V. 11. Solomon] that is to say, Christ sigured by Solomon hath committed the care of his Church to his Servants, Mat. 21. 33. not to appropriate the fruit of glory and service to themselves, but to referre it to God only. [Baathamom] that is to say, the plaine of the multitude, which might be some fruitfull plaine, not mentioned elsewhere; Or, it is a name fained according to the signification of the word, a Isa 5. 1. [*Vnto [...]*ers] whereby are understood all other duties belonging to good [...] dressers.

V. 12. My Vineyard] the Bridegroome declareth that though hee hath given such a commission to his Servants; yet he himselfe hath also a continuall care of his Church which is his own proper Inheritance, Isa. 27. 3. Or, that hee continually enjoyeth the fruites of this vineyard, which are alwayes presented unto him by his saithfull servants.

[must have] the Bride sheweth that the chiefe [Page] renews of this Vine; namely, the glory and service must be reserved for Christ, who neverthelesse, will reward his servants in this life, and in the life everlasting with some degree of grace and glory, Dan. 12. 3.

V. 13. Thou that] this is the Bridegroome which speaketh to the Church, which he hath brought cut of the wilderness of the world, into places consecrated by him, as into orchards and fruit-bearing gardens, and admonisheth her never to give over causing her voyce to sound in prayer and preaching; whereat the Angels, the Bridegroomes friends are present, and give eare unto, see Eccles. 5. 6. 1 Cor. 11. 10. Ephes. 3. 10. 1 Pet. 1. 20.

V. 14. Make hast] the Bride saith, that though shee much desireth that Christs presence might bee perpetuall, yet shee doth accept of and is contented with this enjoying of it at times, Cant. 2. 17. [Vpon the mountaines] that is to say, in heaven, see Cant. 2. 17. & 6. 2. 11.

THE BOOKE OF THE Prophet ISAIAH.

ARGUMENT.

BEsides the Priests and Levites which God had anciently established in the ministry of his Church; he did also, almost at all times, send Prophets unto her, extraordinarily raised, without any distinction of lineage or profession, who were immediately called, and endowed with supernaturall knowledge of Gods secrets by divine revelations and inspirations, and with a perpetuall and infallible conduct of the Holy Ghost in every particular of their Office, and authorized by undoubted proofes of the divine motion which wrought in them, and by the demonstration of Christs Spirit which spoke by them, The summaries of their speeches and Sermons set downe in writing by themselves were kept in the Temple, and added to other holy Bookes, to stand for Divine and Authentickall Scripture, and to be made use of in Ecclesiasticall Lectures, and Expositions. Yet their ministry was no way concerning the ceremoniall and ordinary service, nor the common guide and government of the Church; but was directed to these three generall ends. First, to maintaine by preaching and by the word, the religion and customes in their ancient purity and integrity, to correct and purge the vices and corruptions which crept in amongst them from time to time, to oppose all humane power which should be contrary to Gods power: and finally to keep, or set againe all things into their former state, by the same spirit as they were first established in the beginning. The second was to keep alwaies alive the memory of the promises of the Messias, and to keepe the faith and expectation of the faithfull alwaies bent towards him, and to comfort and strengthen the Church in her sufferings, by setting before her the promise of her restauration, by Christs spirituall Kingdome. The third to be the Ministers of Gods Oracles, in many particular occurrences, for the revealing of his secret will, for to give resolution in perplexities or direction and counsell in difficult cases; or for to denounce threatnings, to beate downe the pride of the rebellious, and for to bring beleevers to repentance. Finally, they were instruments of Gods continuall communication with his Church, and of His Sovereigne power and government over her; the strengthening of the ordinary Ministry, and a remedy against disorders and growing evils. Now one of the most noted amongst these was Isaiah, endowed with a propheticke spirit in a most eminent degree for variety of visions, sublimenesse of sences, for power of demonstration, and for a most incomparable Majesty of stile, being diversly carried, according to the variety of the times, which he met with▪ being sometimes under most evill and wicked Kings, sometimes under pious and vertuous ones, and sometimes under indifferent ones. And according to their occasions he hath framed his Sermons, the substance whereof is contained in this booke, and may be referred to these two generall heads, namely, of the Law, and of the Gospel. In the first he doth discover, accuse, and severely condemne the sinnes of the people, in all sorts and conditions of persons. In the last, he applieth unto the penitent, and residue of the elect, the onely remedy of Gods grace, and the comfort of the promise of eternall redemption through Iesus Christ. [Page] And though both these parts be so mixed together in every Chapter of this booke almost, yet one may observe that the preaching of the Gospell, hath alwaies been urged and amplified, according as the peoples malice did enforce the Prophet to denounce most horrible calamities and desolations to them. As indeed Isaiah was imployed in foretelling the cr [...]ellest evils that happened to the old Church by the Chaldeans, and also contrariwise the greatest universall blessings by the Messias; of whom he speakes so plainly, and so magnificently in many places, in regard of his Deity, of his being to be borne in the flesh, of his Doctrine, Actions, Sufferings, Glory, and Benefits, especially of the gifts of the Holy Ghost, powred down upon the Church, that with very good reason a good ancient Father called him the fifth Evangelist, Declaring of these things, not onely to the Iewes, but indifferently to all those Nations, which in their due time, were to be grafted in the body of the Church: as he had denounced unto many of them Gods most severe judgements tempered with the promise of grace, in Christ, towards all save onely the Babylonians: who by reason of their pride, and mercillesse persecuting of the Church, did beare the Image of the Kingdome of the World, and of Antichrist and his faction, condemned together with the divell who is head thereof to everlasting perdition; the horrors of which are also very lively described in many places of this booke.

CHAP. I.

Vers. 1. The vision] that is to say, the epitome and summe of Isaiah his prophecies, which God had sent unto him in a vision, or rapture of the Spirit, see Num. 12. 6.

V. 4. Children that are corrupters] the Italian, lost children; who are desperate and incorrigible in their wickednesse. Or destroyers, who were like unto these evill children, that dissipate their parents goods, and destroy their house.

V. 5. Be stricken] with blowes of correction, whereof you make your selves uncapable, Jer. 2. 30. & 5. 3. The whole head] the Italian, every Head; that is to say, the evils wherewith I have punished you, are universall and extreame, yet they have produced no amendment by reason of your obstinate rebellion.

V. 8. The daughter] namely, the communalty and people of Jerusalem. He seems to meane especially the desolation of the Land by S [...] Jacherib, which Jerusalem was free from; though in a most miserable estate all the Country besides being laid waste, Cottage] see Job 27. 28.

V. 10. Of Sodom] that is to say, extreameley corrupted, even as those wicked Cities were, see Deut. 32. 32 Eze. 16. 46.

V. 11. Sacrifices] offered without any faith, repentance or devotion, without which things all outward service is meere hypocrisie and illusion.

V. 12. To tread] a phrase picked out a purpose to shew that these false appearances, were rather acts of prophane contempt, then of Religion.

V. [...]3. New moones] feast daies, and daies of devotion appointed by the Law. The calling of] for all solemne feasts were publicquely proclaimed, that every one might devoutly prepare himselfe thereunto, see Lev. 23. 2, 4. Num. 10. 10. It is iniquity] the Italian, I cannot beare iniquity, and solemne feasts together] that is to say, inward wickednesse, cloacked with externall devotion, see Isa. 61. 8. Others, I cannot endure the trouble of new Moones, &c. nor of solemne feasts.

V. 15. When ye spread forth] according to the ancient manner of praying with their Armes spread abroad, and their hands opened and held up towards Heaven.

V. 18 Let us reason] if you can reply anything against mine accusations, or if you can alleadge any thing for your own discharge, or can any way complain of me, alleadge it now. I call your own conscience to be judge and witness therein, see Jer. 2. 5, 31. Mic. 6. 2. Though your sinnes] if convinced in your owne consciences, you give glory to God by a pure confession and flie to his mercy, by faith and a lively conversion, he shall quickly cause you to feele the effect of the forgivenessse of your sins, let them be never so grievous. As wooll] which naturally is exceeding White in those Countries. Psal. 147. 16.

V. 21. An harlot] apostatizing from her Gods Covenant, through idolatry, and corrupted behaviour, see Num. 15.

30. Psal. 73. 27. Now murtherers, the Italian, Now they are all murtherers, namely, all the inhabitants, where of he is full.

V. 22. The silver] namely, thy life and conversation, which before were pure and sincere, are now altogether corrupted and degenerate. A proverbiall kind of speech, as Psal. 14. 1. Jer. 28. 30. Ezek 22. 18, 0 Hos. 4. 18.

V. 25. Turne my hand] after I have laid my just [Page] punishments upon you, I will remember the residue of my Church, which I will undertake to purisie by the power of my word, and spirit, especially under the Gospell. Tinne] which as it is a deadly enemy to Gold and Silver, making them hard and brittle. So it is also a tyrant over them, and will hardly be separated from them. Hereby are figured your most noted, rooted, and inveterated sinnes.

V, 27. With judgement] namely by a singular effect of his just vengeance upon his enemies, who have abused the power which he gave them to punish his Church, and also of his equity in tempering his punishments in a certaine measure, that they may correct, but not ruine: and also of his loyalty in his promises, which are two of Gods vertues, oftentimes expressed by the word righteousness used afterwards in this verse. Her converts] the Italian, They that returne of her] namely, after they have been first scattered and driven out. Or those which shall be converted in her.

V. 29. The Oakes] which were consecrated by the heathens, and according to their example by the Jewes, a cause of their frequent idolatry, Isai. 57. 5. see the likeliest originall of this abuse, Gen. 21. 33. Jos. 24. 26. The gardens] he seems to mean the little groves which the Idolaters did use to plant, about the Chappels, or Temples of their idols, Isai 65. 3. & 66. 17. see Exod. 34. 13. Deut. 16. 21. Judg. 3. 7. 1 King. 16. 33. Ye have chosen] you have applied, and dedicated them to these prophane uses, of your owne Proper motion and authority, without Gods consent or approbation.

V. 3 [...]. The strong] the strongest and mightiest that are amongst you, shall be consumed, in an instant, by reason of their wicked workes, which shall perish also like the workers thereof, even as Tow to the fire.

CHAP. II.

Vers. 2. IN the last] by this phrase the Prophets doe often meane the whole time between Christs comming in the flesh, and his other comming in glory. That the mountaine] that is to say, the Church (figured by Gods Temple which stood upon mount Moriah) shall be exalted in spirituall glory above all worldly states and Kingdomes, meant by mountaines and little hills, see Psal. 68. 15, 16. All Nations] all differences and prerogatives of Nations being abolished, and brought to nought by the Gospell.

V. 3. The Law] that is to say, the preaching of the Gospell which conteineth in it all the statutes, and form of government of this Kingdom.

V. 4. He shall judge] that is to say, God the Father shall destroy every power which shall oppose it selfe to Christs Kingdome, under which he shall at the last establish true spirituall peace in the world, and eternall happinesse in Heaven. Though the Prophets doe also seem to promise some peaceable establishment of Christs Kingdom upon earth, at the least for some space of time, before his last comming. They shall beat] after they have been overcome, and subdued by the Lord they shall quietly undergoe their yoake, and serve in peace, which is described by these figures.

V. 6. Therefore] I doe call you to repentance, by meanes of which you may subsist by faith in expectation of the Messias. For your sins being growne to their height, Gods judgements would otherwise overwhelm you. From the East] with Easterne customs and vices; like the Chaldeans and other such, who were addicted to Magicke, Southsayings, Superstitions, and many other sins, in their common course of life. Others, they are more full then the Easterne people, that is to say, they hav [...] heaped up the measure of their iniquities, more then those Nations, see Gen. 15. 16. They please themselves] they have commended, and approved of their customes, and have rejoyced in imitating them. Or they have taken delight in them: namely, in their conversation, covenants, commerces, and marriages.

V. 7. Of Silver] which they have gathered together with an unsatiabable kind of covetousnesse, and have set all their love and confidence of their preservation in them, which is a more subtile kind of idolatry, Eph. 5. 5. Col. 3. 5.

V. 10. Enter into] the prophet speakes to the hardned people, to move to repentance by representing unto them Gods approaching judgement, as if he said, seeke thee out some secret place to hide thy selfe in, if thou canst.

V. 13. The Cedars] a figure of all manner of worldly exaltment, whereby worldly men exalt themselves against God, Ezech. 31. 3.

V. 16. Of Tarshish] of the great Ocean Sea, or of the Mediteranean Sea, see 1 King. 10. 22. Pleasant pictures] the Italian, The rare designes; namely of buildings, or forts, or counsels and enterprises.

V. 20. To the moles] that is to say, he shall abolish and prophane them, by burying them, or casting them upon the dunghils, in acknowledgement not onely of their vanity, but also of their abominablenesse; and for feare of Gods present judgement.

V. 22. From man] the Italian, from trusting in man; thinking or hoping to be delivered by him from Gods threatnings. Whose breath] who is of a fraile and mortall nature, and can subsist no longer then he enjoyeth the benefit of breath, which he may many waies be deprived of suddenly.

Vers. 1. OF bread] see Jer. 37. and 2 [...]. and 38. 9. Lam. 5. 4.

V. 2. The mighty man] he means peradventure the captivity of valiant and industrious men, set downe, 2 King. 24. 14. The prudent] the Italian, the soothsayer; some take this word in a good sense, for every wise man that doth foresee a great while before hand things that will come to passe, see 2 Chron. 12. 32. Others do take it for Astrologers, whom great men amongst the Heathen, and by their example amongst the Jews, did make use of in their businesses and resolutions of greatest importance, Ester 1. 13.

V. 3. Eloquent [...]] the Italian, the man skilfull in secret speeches; that is to say, in the deepest secrets of nature or state: or in obscure riddles, of the expounding of which the ancient wise men made a glorious profession: or in magicke and other hidden arts, in which were used words and characters.

V. 4. Babes] not onely in age, but also in understanding and experience. It may be he meanes the four last Kings of Judah, which came to bee Kings whilst they were but very young, following their youthfull appetites, the advice of Councillors of their own age, and the irregular wills of their mothers, or their wives, vers. 12.

V. 6. When a man] the Italian, if a man; the peoples misery shall be so great, that no man shall be willing to undertake the governing of them, though it be voluntarily offered them. Clothing] that is to say, thou art not yet quite wretched, as the common sort of people are, thou hast yet some badge of honour left to maintain thy dignity, and hast some means to exercise thy function. Let this [...] ui [...] e] namely, this desolate and ruined state.

V. 9. The shew of their] that is to say, their impiety, which they carry graven in their foreheads, and which they openly professe, doth accuse them before God, and calleth his judgement upon them.

V. 10. They shall eat] they shall receive the reward of their piety and righteousness.

V. [...]2. They which] namely, the false prophets which dally with thee, praising thee, or prophecying happinesse to thee. And destroy] confirming thee in thy wickednesse, and making thee incorrigible, and thy sinnes incurable.

V. 14. The vineyard] namely, the Church, which is Gods Vineyard, which you have spoiled through your wickednesse, Isai. 5. 1. Matth. 21. 33. Or poore mens inheritances, through your extortions and oppressions.

V. 16. Mincing] with a w [...]ton and lascivious gate: A ti [...] kling] this hath a reference to some ornaments which maids did weare upon their legs and feet for pride and wantonnesse.

V. 17. Smite with the scab] that is to say, he will cause them to be taken prisoners in the wars, and shall be shaven according to the custom, like slaves: or he will give them cause to mourne extreamly, whereof the shaving of the head was a token, Isa. 15. 2. Discover] a kinde of scornfull usage, which they used towards women that were taken prisoners in the wars, Isa. 47. 2, 3. Jer. 13. 22. Ezech. 16. 37. Nah. 3. 5.

V. 18. Cawles] belike they were some kinde of stockings full of holes, through which one might see their legs. Like the moon] the Italian, their little moons; an ornament for their shoes, made of gold or some other costly stuffe, in the form of a little crescent, which was likely set upon the points or ends of their shoes.

V. 21. Nose-jewels] see concerning these kinds of jewels, Gen. 24. 47.

V. 26. Shall lament] that is to say, they shall yeeld cause and occasion of sorrow by reason of their solitude and ruine, see Jer. 14. 2. Lament. 1. 4. Desolate] the Italian, emptied; of people and goods. Shall fit] the Italian, shall lie; being brought to dust through ruine and ashes by the fire.

CHAP. IIII.

Vers. 1. Seven women] that is to say, the countrey shall be so destitute of men, by reason of warres and other calamities; and the misery of the women shall be so extreme, that divers women, contrary to custome and decency, shall desire one man to marry them, see Jer. 31. 22. Let us be called] that is to say, Let us be accepted by thee, and let others acknowledge us to be thy lawfull wives, which are called after their husbands name. Take away] for it was a dis [...]onourable thing, especially in those dayes, for a young woman to be unmarried, Psal. 78. 63. 1. Cor. 7. 36.

V. 2. In that day] after God shall have executed his foresaid judgements upon the Jews. The branch] the Italian, the bud; the promised Messias, so called, Jer. 23. 5. and 33. 15. Zach. 3. 8. and 6. 1 [...]. because that in him is the beginning, spring, life, and subsistency of the Church, and was then contained within Gods promises, as a bud hidden in the ground, untill such time as it grew forth. The meaning is, Christ shall restore the remainder of his spirituall Israel to glory and honour by his salvation and grace. The fruit] namely, the body of the Church, which is as the plant that groweth out of that bud; meaning, that the small remainder of that corporall Israel, shall be magnified by the Spir [...]ll [...]tate to which it shall [Page] be transported by Christ under the Gospell. Others do [...] apply this name also to Christ, as if he were called the Lords bud, in respect of his Godhead, and fruit of the earth, in respect of his humanitie: see Isai. 11. 1. and 53. 2.

V. 3. That he that is] that is to say, all the members of the mysticall Church shall be sanctified by Christs Spirit, see Isa. 35. 8. 1 Cor. 1. 2. Every one] that is to say, all Gods Elect, shall be called, regenerated, and incorporated into the spirituall Jerusalem, Psal. 87. 5, 6. Gal. 4. 26. Heb. 12. 22. Written] a phrase taken from Registers and muster-Rolls, Exod. 32. 32. Psal. 69. 28. Dan. 12. 1. Luk. 10. 20. Revel. 20. 12. that is to say, those who by Gods will and his immutable decree are chosen and predestinated to eternall life, wherein Gods will stands in stead of writing, and his minde in stead of a book.

V. 4. When] after hee shall have purged his Church by the foresaid judgements. Of the daughters] that is to say, of the members of the Church in this world. The blood] that is to say, the abominable uncleannesse, as Psal. 51. 14. for in the Law the touch of mans blood that was spilt did defile. By the Spirit] namely by divine power, of separating good from evill, which is an act of judgement, and to exterminating of evill, which is proper to the fire, see Matth. 3. 12. V. 5. Will create] a description of Gods protection of his Church, by a similitude taken from the cloudy and fi [...] pillar in the desert, Exod. 13. 21. A defence] the Italian, a covering] as formerly in the wilderness God having filled the inside of the Tabernacle with signes of his glorie, covered the outside of it with a thicke cloud, Exod. 40. 34. Numb. 9. 15. so will he repaire his Church, which is his glorious habitation by his grace and Spirit.

V. 6. A tabernacle] the Italian, a tens; he hath reference to the outward tent which covered the whole body of the holy tabernacle, Exod. 26. 7. to signifie the same protection that hath been spoken of before.

CHAP. V.

Vers. 1. Will I sing] that is taken from the songs of mirth which were used in the vineyards in the time of vintage, Isa. 16. 10. and 27. 2. the meaning is, Even as friends do use to rejoyce with one another, if they have had an abundant vintage: so it is fitting for me, Isaiah, who am a servant, and as it were a friend of the bridegrooms, to sing a mournfull song, by reason of the ingratitude of Gods vineyard, and the losse of his labours and hopes. Unlesse they be God the Fathers words to his beloved Sonne, who is the Lord of, and Heire to the Vineyard, which is his Church. A vineyard] an ordinary expression signifying the Church, by reason of the excellency of the Vineyard above other fields, of her lowly and feeble condition in respect of fruit-trees, of the continuall neede shee hath of being watched and dressed, of the great value of her fruit, and of the little worth of her stemme, if it beat no fruit, and other such like considerations.

V. 2. Wilde grapes] a figure of hypocrisie, which makes shew of piety in the outward service, without any inward vertue, goodnesse, or truth of the Spirit.

V. 7. Oppression] the Italian, Leprosie; that is to say, malignant, inveterate, habituall, generall, and incurable times, which are the properties of a Leprosie. And the Prophet made choice of this word in the Hebrew, to make an opposite word to Judgement, or righteousnesse. A cry] namely, of tumult or violence, or of complaining by reason of the oppression of others, wherein there is [...] such an allusion as the former.

V. 9. In mine eare] namely, by secret inspiration.

V. 10. One bath] a small measure of liquid things, which was (as understanding men say) a perfect square of half a cubit every way. An Ephah] a measure of drie things, of the same quantitie the bath was, being the tenth part of an Omer, Ezek. 45. 11. the meaning is, the earth shall yeeld but the tenth part of what was sown, the seasons shall be so un [...]uitfull.

V. 12. The work] namely, his judgements, and the preparations and wayes made to them.

V. 14. Hell] the Italian, the grave; a poeticall description of a great mortalitie. That rejoyceth] namely, that drown all their seares and cares in carnall pleasures, vers. 11. 12.

V. 16. Sanctified] that is to say, religiously acknowledged, approved of, and worshipped as an enemie to sinne, and an upright Judge, because of his most just judgements.

V. 17. The lambs] in the midst of this generall desolation, God shall preserve some small number of his Elect, who by reason of their mildenesse and humilitie, are likened to Lambs, for whom he shall provide necessary sustenance. Strangers] the Italian, pilgrims; that is to say, that poore remainder which lieth scattered, and wandring up and down, shall be fed by the Lord in the midst of the ruines of the countrey, where the rich and mighty lived heretofore in all manner of ease and plenty.

V. 18. That draw] that is to say, That doe through their impenitency draw the punishment justly due for their sinnes upon them, being still enticed by vain hopes, false delights, and foolish presumption. Iniquity] or the [Page] punishment of it.

V. 19. Let him make speed] words of prophane contempt and insensible security. The counsell] namely, the judgements by him determined and pronounced against us.

V. 20. That call] the Italian, That say concerning evill, it is good; either through unjust judgement, or through flattery, or by way of calumnie, or meerly out of delight in telling of lies.

V. 24. Their root] a proverbiall kinde of speech, as Job 18. 16. and 29. 19. Amos 2. 9. that is to say, Their counsels and manner of government, which are as it were the root, being vicious and wicked, cannot bring forth any good effects, which are as the increase and fruits thereof. Or they shall be deprived of the grace of God in all things they undertake, and of his blessing in the issues and successe of what they undertook.

V. 25. The hills] an hyperbolicall description of Gods judgements, the meaning is, no high or eminent condition of state could keep them from being ruined.

V. 26. Will life up] to call them to execute his judgements upon his people.

V. 27. The girdle] they shall be all ready to march and performe warlike duties. Or they shall neither be base nor faint-hearted, which is signified by loose reins, Dan. 5. 6. nor busie about any other work, which is signified by the loose latchet of the shoe. V. 30. If one looke] all humaue help shall faile, and all hope of comfort and aid from the Lord shall be cut off. The light] namely, the day from the very morning. Darkned] every thing shall be overwhelmed with horrible darknesse of calamities which shall come from God, neither shall there appeare any light of hope or comfort.

CHAP. VI.

Vers. 1. The Lord] namely, Gods everlasting Sonne, a great King of the Church in his own person, John 12. 41.

V. 2. The Seraphims] a name of blessed Angels, which signifieth servent and fiery, as well in regard of their office as of their substance, who are here assistants as Ministers of Gods judgements. His face] by this covering of the face is meant, adoration and deep reverence; by the covering of their feet, immaculate holinesse; and by their flying with two wings, promptitude and zeale to obey.

V. 4. The posts] or thresholds, namely, the upper and lower threshold, in which the two axels whereon the doors did turn were fixed. With smoak] or chick cloud and dark mist, a thing which was ordinary when God appeared in glory, to hide his majestie, and to strike a terrour in mens hearts, Exod. 19. 16. and 40. 34. Numb. 9. 15. 1 King. 8. 10.

V. 5. Wo is me] the ordinary feare of the faithfull, when God appeared to them in glory, see Gen. 16. 13. Deut. 5. 24. Jud. 6. 22. and 13. 22. feeling of their own weaknesse, and knowing their owne naturall corruption. Unclean] thereby signifying that sinne which is most frequent amongst, and most avoidable for men, namely, the sinne of the tongue, Jam. 3. 2. or because even in his own calling he found himselfe defective many wayes. And I dwell] that is to say, I doe too much participate of the contagion of sin living thus amongst sinners.

V. 6. A live coale] a figure of the gift of the holy Ghost proceeding from Christ, who is the true spirituall altar of expiation and intercession for the Church. Which Spirit workes in the manner of fire for the purging of sin, Matth. 3. 11.

V. 7. Laid it upon] the Italian, brought it neer; see Jer. 1. 9. Dan. 10. 16. Thine iniquity] not that Isaiah was purged from all remainder of sinne as concerning his person, but onely concerning his office of Prophet he received the gift of the infallible conduct of the holy Ghost, that he might not erre through ignorance, nor prevaricate through malice, in the receiving and preaching of his prophecies. A promise contrary to that which Isaiah had confessed, namely, to be of unclean lips.

V. 8. For us] see of this unspeakable manner of consultation held by the sacred Trinitie, Gen. 1. 26. and 3. 22. and 11. 7: Here am I] an effect of the holy Ghost, who after he hath conferred the gift, which is necessary for the calling, doth also powerfully give the will, to cause him employ himselfe therein vigorously and cheerfully.

V. 9. Understand not] that is to say, Hereafter I will not send my word unto you for to convert and save you, but to convince and condemne you; for seeing I have deservedly taken away my Spirit from you, which you have so long withstood, that you have utterly extinguished it, the sound of my word hereafter shall but astonish you, and this light shall but dazell and blinde you so much the more.

V. 10. Make the heart] preach my word powerfully to this rebellious and profane people, that their wickednesse being thereby provoked, they may become more stupid, insensible, and hardned; a signe whereof is the fatnesse of the heart, see Psal. 119. 70. see Deuter. 29. 4. Isa. 63. 17. John 8. 43. 2 Thess. 2. 11, 12. Be healed] namely, that they may not be saved, delivered from all evil, and re-established in a happy state.

V. 11. How long] is there no stay, nor no end of this rejection of thy people, that it may not come to the uttermost extremity?

V. 13. A tenth] he seemeth to meane that little remnant which was left in the countrey in the generall [Page] captivity, which was at last likewise destroyed for its rebellion.

CHAP. VII.

Vers. 2. The house] namely, the King and Princes of the blood royall, and chiefe Officers of the Crown and Court. Syria] the King of Syria hath undertaken to besiege Jerusalem, being encouraged thereunto by the league which he had made with the King of the ten Tribes, the chiefe of which is the Tribe of Ephraim, and as sures himselfe that hee shall overcome by reason of the great assistance he hopes to have from thence.

V. 3. Shear-Jashub] it should appear by Isa. 8. 12. and 10. 21. that this name which signifieth the remnant, shall be converted, or shall be re-established, was given to that childe for a signe of the deliverance of the rest of the people which should bee converted to God. Upper poole] this was a great poole of water that came from the fountain Gihon, called the upper, as a King. 18. 17. because it was in the high Citie of Sion, neer the City of David on the south-side, Nehem. 3. 15. and to distinguish it from the lower poole, Isai. 22. 9. which was in the lower part of the City on the east-side.

V. 4. The two tails] a name of contempt, to shew that there was more smoak, that is to say, pride and outward appearance in them, then strength and power.

V. 6. Vex it] the Italian, divide it; that is to say, Let each of us seize upon that part which lieth most conveniently for us, and let us see a King over the rest, which may be a vassall to us both. The Sonne] one whose name is not mentioned elsewhere.

V. 8. Damascus] I have bounded these Kingdoms, and have set a King over every one of them; and I will not suffer them to passe their bounds, nor take anothers countrey. Within threescore] the common opinion is, That one must count these yeers, not from the time that Isaiah did foretell these things, but from the first prophecie of the latter ruine of the ten tribes, which might be Amos his Prophetie, 7. 8, 9 see a Kings 14. 27 about the eighteenth yeere of Jeroboam the son of Joash, after whom untill the last captivity of the ten Tribes, is just sixty five yeers.

V. 9. Of Ephraim] namely, of the ten Tribes, whereof Ephraim was chiefe. If ye will not beleeeve] the Italian, Doe ye not beleeeve it? the prophet reproveth the people because of their incredulitie. Ye shall not] the Italian, it is because you are not certain of it; by some signe of the truth, or by Gods promise.

V. 10. Spake again] namely, [...]y Isa. ah.

V. 11. Thy God] to whom thou makest a shew of being servant unto, as indeed thou oughtest truly to be, seeing thou art King over his people. Or in the height] that is to say, on earth, or in heaven.

V. 12. I will not ask] this did not proceed from any abundance or strength of saith, against which two vertues may be comitted, the sinne of tempting God; but it did proceed from hypocrisie, wherewith he covered the vain contempt of Gods promises, to which he gave no faith, nor did not desire to be confirmed in them.

V. 13. Men] namely, with your tyrannies and unjust dealings, and especially the prophets with your persecutions. My God] namely, by the refusall and contempt of his grace when it is profered you, see Psal. 78. 40. and 95. 10. Isa, 63: 10.

V. 14. Therefore] seeing thou wilt desire none, the Lord shall give thee one of his own proper motion. A signe] Christs birth was not the proper signe of this present deliverance, for that is set down, v. 16. But because that God would give a little childe for assurance of this deliverance, the Prophet upon this occasion saith, that another childe, that is to say, Christ, should be the cause and signe of eternall salvation; upon which are also grounded all the temporall deliverances of the Church, Isa. 8. 10. and besides he sets downe an infallible argument of the preservation of the Jewish nation, being that it was in a manner great with childe with Christ, and with Gods promises in him, Revel. 12. 2. and therefore could not perish before Christ were come into the world according to the prophecie, Gen. 49. 10. A virgin] namely, the blessed Virgin, mother of the Lord Jesus, according to Gods first promise, Gen 3. 15. see Mich. 5. 3. Shall conceive] not by the work or operation of man, but after an unspeakable manner by the power of the holy Ghost, Luke 1. 45. Shalt call] the Italian, thou shalt call; the propertie of the holy language sheweth that this speech is directed to the holy Virgin, as Luke 1. 31. not onely because the women did ordinarily use to name the children, Gen 4. 1, 25. and 16. 11. and 29. 32. and 30. 6, 8. 1 Sam. 4. 21. but also to shew that she had good reason so to doe, being a mother without any father. Immanuel] that is to say, God with us: not because Christ made any use of this name, but because the substance of the signification of it was in him, he being true God and true man, he having dwelt with men in the flesh, Joh. 1. 14. and remaining amongst them for ever in grace, spirit, power, and glory; and finally, he being the onely tye and conjunction of God with men.

V. 15. Shall be eat] that is to say though he must be born miraculously, and not after the manner of other men, yet shall he be true man, as it shall appeare by the food he shall take, which shall be like to that of other [Page] children and by the properties belonging to a very man, growing in stature and knowledge, Luke 2. 52.

V. 16. For] that is to say, O Ahaz, I have set thee downe this argument, and foundation of eternall salvation; because there is some similitude between that signe, and the signe which God will presently give thee, of the present temporall deliverance, for they are either of them litle children, tender and growing up in yeeres. Before] this is the proper signe of this present deliverance, as Isa. 8. 4. The child] namely, Shearjashub, the sonne of Isaiah whom he had brought with him to Ahaz, v. 3. see Isa. 8. 18. and likely he was at that time but very young; and according to this signe, these Kings dyed few yeeres after, 2 King. 15. 30. and 16. 9 The Land] namely, the Land of Syria and Israel which are thine open and rofessed enemies, shall lose their two Kings. Shall be forsaken] see such another manner of speech, Isa. 17: 9.

V. 17. The Lord] the prophecie of the evils which God would bring upon Ahaz, by meanes of the Assyrians, whom he called to assist him, but all in vaine, for they did contrariwise bring him into great distresse, 2 Cor. 28. 20, 22. and from thenceforth did alwaies infest the Land of Judea.

V. 18. Shall hisse] that is to say, he shall cause Armies to come in, which shall be like Flies and Bees in number, Deut. 1. 44. Psal. 118. 12. from Egypt and Assyria, which Kingdomes warring often one against another, did lay waste the Land of Judea. Which lay between them, and did oftentimes take part with one against the other, see 2 King. 18. 21. & 33 29, 33, 34. & 24. 7. Jer. 37. 5. Of the Rivers] namely, diuerse branches and channels of the River Nilus.

V. 19. Desolate valleys] amongst the hills and valleys in the Land of Judea, spoiled, and made desolate, by the precedent warres.

V. 20. Shave] that is to say, shall spoile, and destroy, see 5. 1. That is hired] this hath a reference to that which Ahaz did, when he hired the King of Assyria with a great sum of money to come and ayd him, 2 King. 16. 7, 8. which Assyrians did ever after afflict Judea. The River] namely, Euphrates. Of the feet] of the lower parts of the body, both great and small.

V. 21. And it shall come to passe] a figurative comfort for the remainder of the Church, by a promise that Gods grace and blessing should not faile it, in these publique calamities, and desolations.

V. 23. Every place] that is to say, fat and fruitfull places, shall be made Wildernesses, and Wildernesses shall become fruitfull, v. 25. that is to say, God shall spare, and helpe the weake and lowly, and shall destroy the great and mighty ones, see Jer. 39. 10.

V. 24. With A [...]] to h [...] wilde [...], which shall flie thither for refuge as into a Co [...]y overgrowne with woods and bushes.

CHAP. VIII.

Vers. 1. Roll] of Paper or some other thing fit to write upon, to set up the ensuing words in some publique place, and peradventure upon the gates of the Temple, to assure the ruine of these two confederate Kings, see Isa. [...]0. 8. With a mans pen] the Italian, With a mans stile] that is to say, with an ordinary manner of writing, as Heb. 2. 2. for some times the Lord ha [...] his revelations set downe, in such manner of writing [...] could be understood by none but the Prophet, as D [...]. 5. 5. 7. Concerning] a propheticall and short description of the destrustion of Syria and Israel by the Assyrians.

V. 2. I tooke] I would have these great persons to be present, when I did set up this writing in some publique place, that they might informe every one that I have done it, and what the meaning thereof was, which questionlesse the Prophet had explained to them.

V. 3. Maher] these are the very Hebrew words which were written in the roll, it being the Lords will that this prediction should be remembred by all men, by the name of his child.

V. 6. This people] namely, this Army of Assyrians and Israelites. The waters] that is to say, the small meanes and strength of the Church, sigured by the small streame which the Fountaine of Shiloah did send into the City of Jerusalem, which had no great River, see Psal. 46. 4. And rejoyce] in the Hebrew there is an allusion between these two words contemning, and rejoycing. His meaning is, he hath glorified himselfe, or hath been proud of the might of these two Kings, and hath triumphed, as though he had been sure to overcome the Jewes.

V. 7. Of the River] namely, Euphrates, the chiefe River of Assyria, a figure of the power of that Empire. And all his glory] namely, his power, and his Armies.

V. 8. Passe thorow Judah] this happened in the daies of Hezekiah, 2 Kin. 18. 23. To the necke] even to Jerusalem which is the head of Judah. A figure taken from one that is like to be drowned in some great floud, see Isa. 30. 28. Hab. 3. 13. Of his wings] that is to say his Armies, as Isa. 18. 1, Of thy Land] namely, of the Land of Judea, within which was restrained the Church, and the Kingdome of the promised Messias, Isa. 7. 14. by whom she should also be delivered from this invasion, v. 10.

V. 9. Associate] as the two Kings of Syria and Israel had done against Jerusalem, Isa. 7. 2.

V. 10. God is with us] this is the exposition of the name Imm [...]nuel, Isa. 7. 14.

V. 11. With a strong hand] that is to say, accom- [Page]panying of his word with the power of his holy Spirit in me and in all true beleevers, against the generall terrors of the unbeleeving and diffident people, which feared these two confederate Kings.

V. 12. Say ye not] as though ye were affrighted at this league, taking it to be invincible.

V. 13. Sanctifie] give him the glory that is due unto him, putting your trust in him, as in the holy one of Israel; namely, he whose Kingdome and Majesty, cannot be violated nor overthrown.

V. 14. For a Sanctuary] for a sacred and inviolable place of refuge, for the true elect, and faithfull, see Ezek. 1 [...].

16. A stone] namely, an occasion of ruine for their rebellion and incredulity. To both the] to the whole body of the unbeleeving and carnall Israelites, which were divided into two branches, namely, Judah and the ten Tribes.

V. 16. Bind up] these are Gods words to the Prophet, the meaning whereof is, When thou preachest the doctrine and testimony of my grace, especially concerning the Messias, it shall be like unto closed and sealed Letters, to all, save onely to true beleevers, and them which are enlightened by my Spirit, who alone shall understand them, and beleeve them for the rest shall reject them, see Isai. 29. 11. Mic. 2. 6.

V. 17. And I wil] that is to say, since it hath pleased God to reveale unto me this which he hath decreed against his ungratefull and rebellious people, I will peaceably submit unto his will, in the exercise of mine Office, hoping that I shal be acknowledged and approved of by him, though men reject me. That hideth] namely, that hath taken his grace and Spirit from him, who had so long withstood it.

V. 18. Behold] O ye faithfull looke upon me, whom God hath confirmed and strengthened by propheticke revelation, in all this common terror v. 11. and upon these my little children, whose mysterious and propheticke names assure us of the good which God will doe unto you, and of the evill which he will send upon your enemies, Isa 7. 3. & 8. 3. & 10. 21. for to strengthen you in faith, see upon Heb. 2. 13, 14.

V. 19. And when they shall] if the wicked will draw you away from these my Prophecies after divellish southsayings, which wickednesses were very frequent amongst the people, *I [...]*a 2. 6. Familiar spirits] see Lev. 19 31. *That p [...]*epe] the Italian, that whisper] according to the manner of Magicians, see Isa. 29. 4. and also the word Magician seemes to be of Hebrew originall, and signifies a murmurer, or whisperer. From the living] that is to say, should he use Necromancy, which is done by calling up of the spirits of dead men, to take advice of them for the safeguard of his life, in stead of calling upon the living God, the onely author, giver, and preserver of mans life, see Deut. 8. 11. 1 Sam. 28. 8, 12.

V. 20. To the Law] that is to say, turne to God alone, who by his Law declares his will unto you: which you must observe, and by his Prophets, he witnesseth his good will unto you, whereupon you must hope. There is no light] because he speaketh by the Prince of darknesse, and not by the Spirit of God, and hath no divine illumination, wherefore he can give no assured comfort, nor faithfull counsell, see Mich. 3. 6.

V. 21. They shall passe] all those that have committed any such manner of wickednesse, and shall have beleevd therein, shall in the end be grievously punished for it, falling through extreame calamities into despaire, and madnesse. Their God] namely, that Idol, whom they had sought after for these southsayings, Isai. 2. 8. or peradventure also the true God of that people, whereof this wicked man was. And looke] to see if any ayd will come to him from Heaven, 2 Sam. 22 42.

CHAP. IX.

Vers. 1. IN her vexation] namely, the Nation, or the Land of Israel, shall suffer a more grievous desolation, then that of the two Kings of Assyria was, who are spoken of hereafter. At the first] namely, when Pul made an inrode into the Countrey at the first, and then for money went away againe, 2 King. 15. 19. And afterward] namely, by Tiglathpilezer, 2 King 15. 29. who though he were not yet come, at that time as Isaiah prophesied these things, yet he is here spoken of as though he were come already, according to the manner of Prophets. More grievously] with more grievous warre, and fiercer onset. The Sea] of Genezareth or Tiberias. Beyond Jordan] namely, in Gilead, and other Countries. Of the Nations] the Italian, Of the Gentiles; Galilee is so called, because it was in the confines of the Tirians and Sidonians, and therefore the people were there mingled with the Pagans, 1 King. 9. 11.

V. 2. The people] a prophecie of Gods grace, through the Messias, to man, who lay buried in darknesse of ignorance and extreame misery; such as the state of the people of Israel was, set down here before by Isaiah. Now he sets down this gift which was to come, as if it were come already. In the Land] as who should say, in the infernall cloisters of death, under the earth.

V. 3. Thou hast multiplied] by joyning the Gentiles unto it, having called them by the Gospell.

V. 4. Thou hast] freed her from the bondage of sin, the divell, and other spirituall enemies.
